BUSINESS LEADERS IN LUBBOCK

Business Leaders-what does it mean? It does not of necessity mean the largest nor the finest equipped establishment. However, it does mean that those firms who have earned the name of business leaders do raise the standard above average by offering the most in service or merchandise for the money involved. We have listed for your benefit those firms who are outstanding in their field of business in Lubbock.

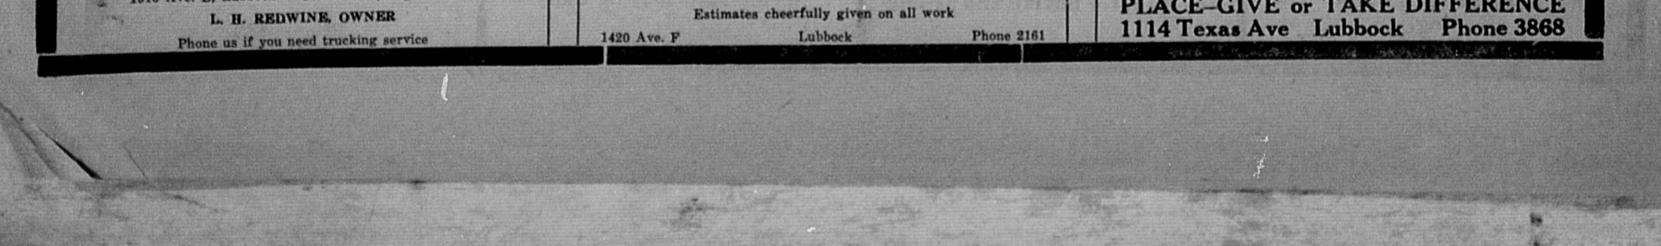

Those in Slaton and the surrounding territory who trade in Lubbock frequently have patronized these firms in the past and have found them to be honest in every respect. Those of you who have not done business with them are invited to call at their place of business when in Lubbock.

New Wash Materials Remind It's Time for Spring Sewing

AS A proper approach to the perennial spring sewing program that soon will be staged in countless households, we know of no gesture that will so inspire to hurry and get going as to take a day off and go fabric sight-seeing. C. Houston Goudiss Offers Timely Advice on Keeping Children Well in Winter; Warns of Several Dangers

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

ONE of the ways by which her community judges a woman's success as a mother is by the health and wellbeing of her children. If they are energetic, rosy-cheeked normal boys and girls who have a high resistance to infections, such as the common cold, and if they display the good dispositions that we usually associate with buoyant health, then the verdict of friends and neighbors is usually that of a job well done. To help her children main- degrees Fahrenheit when there is

It has been said that in winter the body is on trial-and this is heated to an outdoor temperature

While cool, outdoor air is stim-

When it is very cold outdoors, it is wise to have children come in from their play periodically to warm up. And if a child appears to suffer from the cold unduly, it is wise to have a physician check up on his health.

This, in turn, is frequently re-sponsible for lassitude. The remedy is often a simple dietary change—the addition of a salad to the daily diet; or possibly the use of stewed dried fruits in addition to a fresh fruit or fruit juice daily. Of course, the child should also have two servings of vegetables besides potatoes, one of which should be of the green leafy variety. Also a quart of milk daily; breads and cereals, at least half of which may preferably be the whole grain variety; an egg daily or at least three or four weekly; one serving of meat, fish or chicken, and another serving of a protein food, such as cheese. Some form of vitamin D should be included in the diet of young children, especially during the winter months.

It is also most important that children follow a daily routine that includes plenty of time for sleep. And for younger children a daytime nap is usually advised.

Children Need Healthy Mothers Mothers must give attention to the children's health. But let them give some consideration to their own. The tired, nervous mother is very apt to transfer some of her own fatigue and nervousness to her child. So in arranging your child's rest periods and diet, in looking after proper habits of elimination, make sure that Mother, too . . . and better still every member of the family . . . follows this same sound health program.

ulating to children in normal health, some children withstand it much less successfully. This is particularly true of those who are improperly nourished; who are over-fatigued or suffer from poor circulation.

Guard Against Frostbite

Mothers should be on guard against frostbite when the temperature is below 24 degrees Fahr-enheit, however, and at all times estate. And at the same time, during the winter, see that chil-that provided by a woolen sweater and playsuit are considered as of adults. Ex- preferable to one too-bulky garment. Feet and hands should, of course, be well protected.

Don't Overheat the House

Only a little less serious are the consequences of dry, overheated indoor air. It is unfortunate that so many people keep their rooms entirely too warm in winter. This not only widens the gap between indoor and outdoor temperatures, but may be extremely irritating to the delicate membranes of the nose and throat. Most authorities consider an indoor temperature of about 68 degrees Fahrenheit satisfactory.

How Women in Their 40's Can Attract Men

Here's good advice for a woman during her change (usually from 38 to 52), who fears she'll lose her appeal to men, who worries about hot flashes, loss of pep, dirxy spells, upset nerves and moody spells. ### |Petticoat, Tiered Frocks Real News

If you see a glimpse of lacy froufrou peeping from under her neat little afternoon dress of silk crepe, do not make the mistake of saying "Pardon me lady, your petticoat is showing." If you do milady is apt to airily reply, "Sure, that's the intention." Yes'm it's only too true, petticoats are in fashion and furthermore the so-termed petticoat dress that is causing so much excitement in fashion's realm is actually styled so as to reveal a tantalizing glimpse of its frill.

Another sensation on the dress program is the new flounced silhouette. Fashion is flouncing everything that will gracefully yield to flouncing. Daytime skirts rise tier upon tier done in a restrained way while soft afternoon and evening frocks are widely flounced in the good old-fashioned now very newfashioned way.

What Does the Future Hold for The Smaller Towns in Texas?

What must inevitably be the fate of the small towns and communities in Texas?

This question is being asked in literally hundreds of interior places over the state where today "For Rent" signs clutter the windows of numbers of empty business buildings! It is a question of in-creasingly serious importance, not only to these small towns and communities, but to the state as a whole. These once busy places of community life, around which has largely grown the progressive development of Texas, are being dried up by the operation of heavy trucks over our highways. Their local business firms and enterprises, the dry goods, hardware, drug and fruit and vegetable stores, retail lumber yards, wholesale grocery houses, bottling plants, feed mills, oil mills, grain elevators and cotton compresses are unable to meet the competition of the larger business centers be-cause of the almost unrestricted and promiscuous use of Texas highways in the delivery of goods by trucks from the larger cities holding the quantity-purchase advantage. The absorption and manipulation, in varying

The absorption and manipulation, in varying egree, of the cost of transportation by highway or competitive purposes, if not restricted, will nevitably drive dealers and wholesalers in the mailer towns and communities out of business. They must succumb to the inequality of oppor-unity with which they are burdened and thus indicated further to core proving sconneg chaos. te further to our growing economic chaos. plea now being made by certain interests to be the load limit on trucks operating over

Texas Railroads, who seek no favors and advantages, but who willingly pay their own way to render efficient, dependable and economical transportation service to Texas communities, have felt the ill effects of unfair and subsidized competition in the same way and measure as the small town business men and, in the interest of our mutual preservation, join with them in urging that existing legal truck load limits be not increased i

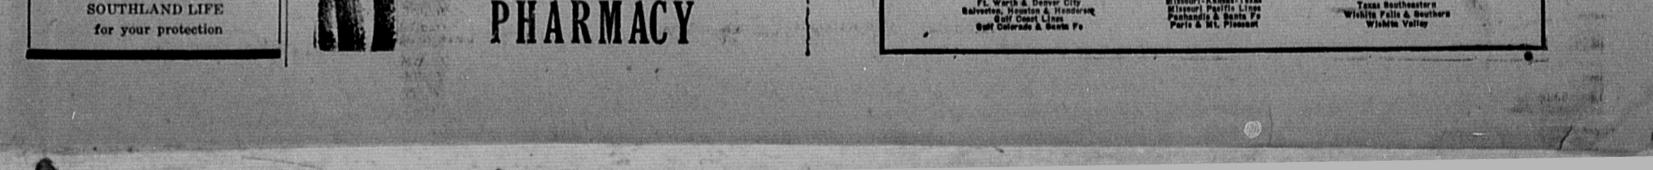

Texas highways will hasten the end of local enter-prises in smaller Texas communities. If under the present statutes harm already has been done the present statutes harm already has been done the small town merchant and property owner, what then must be the effect of any increase in the allowable truck load limit? Certainly the larger the load limit the greater will be the distance over which goods can be hauled from the larger dis-tiributing centers, and the greater will be the harmful effects on dealers and enterprises in the smaller towns!

The burden of taxation borne by the business interests of the smaller towns and communities throughout Texas will, as a natural result, be shifted more and more to the shoulders of the remaining property owners. Those who have in-vested in homes and business buildings must sacri-fice their investments to what some might mistak-ingly call "the march of progress."

The thousands of families, for so many years dependent upon employment by these business en-terprises as a means of livelihood, must be forced to the cities in quest of work, and failing in that add further to our burden of relief and unem-ployment!

Inroads by long distance truck operations on the traffic of the railroads must necessarily result in the abandonment of more and more railroad mileage, with consequent loss of payrolls and taxes to these communities and an increase of tax bur-dens to their citizens.

Whether the President is to blame, personally, for placing these distasteful names in the mouths of senators, or whether, as heretofore, the condition results from the activities of the "inner circle," the effect is the same. It is a very real problem for the administration advisors to ponder, and it is entirely possible that Mr. Roosevelt will get a slap in the face by senate rejection of some of the tempting to "co-ordinate liberal nominees for judgeships and other public offices. It is just possible that some senators will gag at swallowing several of the names. If that happens, what will be left Mr. Roosevelt's mastery of the senate thereafter will be meaningless.

But what made tatorships only under the most unlikely emergencies: "Peace could France's plans had been discussed only be endangered by . . . a demand to dominate the world by force." This means that little by little Mr. Chamberlain is willing to concede to Italo-German demands. Completely ignored were the Spanish situation and Italian claims against France.

The same day, French Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet hastened to make his peace with dictators: "Regardless of the violence of the Italian press campaign (for French Mediterranean territories) I have warm friendship for the Italian people." M. Bonnet practically accepted Mussolini's demands when he declared Italy had been treated badly during and after the World war by France and Britain.

Such tactics fell little short of an outright invitation for Hitler and Mussolini to make demands. By the time Der Fuehrer marched to the rostrum in Berlin's Kroll opera house every European ear was cocked. By the time he left, Europe and the world knew what to expect from Hitler in 1939:

On Colonies. Germany will demand that all her pre-World war colonies be returned, otherwise the Reich will "remain an explosive factor in Europe." Reason: Germany must have access to raw materials. The alternative is to force exports.

On Italy. "War against Italy for any reason whatever will see Germany and Italy side by side," said Hitler. This statement is expected to bring an immediate resumption of Italian claims against France, though France and Britain may interpret it with tongue in cheek. "War against Italy" means aggression against Italy, which is farthest from democratic thoughts. Though hoping Hitler meant to infer that he would not assist in aggression by Italy, London and Paris knew this was a futile hope.

On Other Demands. Allied reparations demands against Germany after the World war were "unreasonable and irresponsible." Hence Germany has been forced to make more competitive efforts in the anything, Der Fuehrer dropped the remark that "forceful redistribu-

Roper was virtually forced out as secretary of commerce in order to make room for removal of Professional Reliever Harry Hopkins to a cabinet job. Hopkins thereby was taken out of the line of red hot fire about his spending policies. Homer S. Cummings quit as attorney general and Frank Murphy, Michigan's lame duck governor, was given the post.

Former Sen. James P. Pope who was licked in the Idaho Democratic primaries was named to the directorate of the Tennessee Valley authority from which Dr. Arthur Morgan was so unceremoniously dismissed. Rumor has it that former Sen. Fred H. Brown, lame duck New Hampshire Democrat, is to be given the juicy job of comptroller general of the United States as soon as it is evident that congress will not vote abolition of the general accounting office.

Rep. T. Alan Goldsborough of Maryland lately has been named a federal judge for the District of Columbia. It will be recalled that it was Mr. Goldsborough who invited President Roosevelt into Maryland last summer in the attempt to purge Sen. Millard Tydings from the Democratic ranks. In fact, it was at Denton, Md., Mr. Goldsborough's home town, that the President made his most vicious attack on Tydings and delivered his eulogy of praise for David J. Lewis in the senatorial primaries.

There have been other appointments mixed in here and there, some important, some just run-ofthe-mine jobs, and they have not met unanimity. Even the selection of Professor Felix Frankfurter as a justice of the Supreme court of the United States did not arouse enthusiasm among the senators who voted approval of the nomination. I, personally, heard several senators remark that the Frankfurter appointment was so much better than that of Hugo Black, a year ago, that it was refreshing to vote for him. Yet, they added a qualification. Justice Frankfurter has brains, a fine mind-but he is looked upon as the father of so much of the New Deal that his presence on the highest court appeared none too pleasing.

Nomination of Amlie of Wisconsin Creates Fuss

But all of these appointments now seem to have been only a build up to a climax. They were to be fol-

When Mr. Roosevelt began making appointments three or four months ago that were upsetting to some of his followers, they had to decide between their loyalty to him and their convictions. The bulk of them stood by him. He was the head of the Democratic party; party unity was, and is, essential, and they justified the votes in confirmation in various ways. The Hopkins and Murphy appointments were confirmed because it always has been the philosophy of senators that cabinet jobs are intimate associations with the President. He is entitled, therefore, to have whom he desires to sit with him at the cabinet session and to advise him when he seeks advice. I think there was an inclination to accept Mr. Murphy, too, because it was known he wanted to crush the sit-down strikes at their inception and was confronted with White House refusal of support. There were fewer votes against him for that reason than against Secretary Hopkins. On the other hand, Senator Vandenberg, the Michigan Republican, said he voted against the nomination because "the issues were the same as in Michigan's election last fall when Mr. Murphy was repudiated."

When it gets to cases like the Allred appointment for Texas judge and the Roberts appointment in Virginia, there simply is no explanation available-unless as I said, the "inner circle" is leading Mr. Roosevelt into a morass. Senators Glass and Byrd are going to fight the Roberts nomination. Senators Sheppard and Connally were not consulted about the judgeship in their state. As far as it has leaked out, nobody was asked whether the Amlie appointment would arouse enthusiasm or hatred.

Congress Shows Disposition To Assert Independence

The proposition thus settles down to only one possible answer. Since the last election removed the rubber stamp from the hands of the New Dealers and the congress has shown a disposition to assert its independence of the unelected "inner circle," they are resorting to a new strategy. They can not always control congress but they have access to the appointive power vested in the hands of the President. They have this because they have the President's ear and they take pains to see that none of the practical politicians, like Vice President Garner, or Sen. Pat Harrison, or Speaker Bankhead, wield any influence.

The strategy may work. It may put into numerous governmental posts and judicial positions men who will continue to execute New Deal plans. That, of course, is a brilliant move if it works. There is, however, more to think about than that. The trend toward the middle of the road, emphasized in last fall's voting, can be given greater momentum by the tactics of forcing upon the country policies against which the electorate expressed themselves.

George Raft's departure from Paramount was not exactly unexpected. It came as a result of his refusal to play the lead in "Magnifi-cent Fraud." Lloyd Nolan has formed the habit of stepping into the parts that Raft doesn't want, so he did it this time. Last August, when Raft refused a role in "St. Louis Blues," the same thing happened.

To this desk came a touching story about a cocker spaniel named "Rudy," given to Tommy Riggs by Rudy Vallee a year ago. According to this little tale from the press representative, the dog always listened to the Riggs Saturday night air shows. It began to pine in a corner when a dog character was introduced on the program, not knowing that the dog was played by Brad Barker, an animal imitator.

And, ran the story, a doctor friend of Riggs' claimed that, when "Rudy" died the next day, it was because of "the nearest thing to a broken heart that he had ever seen in an animal.'

That doctor should have consulted the elevator boy in Riggs' apartment hotel, who confided to me the fact that the dog died of distemper. But distemper doesn't make a touching little story for press agents.

CHAPTER IX-Continued -24-

Hale was pondering the resolution and finding additional grounds for it when he re-entered the Camp after midnight. He had walked further, been away longer, than he realized. The house was very quiet. He glanced into the living-room and study. Both rooms were dark. In the lower hall the sole remaining light that which burned all night movingle amber-tinted bulb. Approacing the staircase he realized that the upper hall was similarly dim. The members of the family were all in bed, or at least were shut away in their rooms. Joan and Bert must have returned long ago.

His foot was on the lowest step when the telephone bell in the hall closet rang insistently. Its shrillness was stifled by the closet's closed door. He doubted if Banks or anyone else would hear it. He went to the closet, closing the door behind him in an instinctive consideration for the sleeping household. The voice of an operator came to him.

"New York wants Mr. Hale," it said.

"Hale is speaking."

"All right, Mr. Hale. Please hold the line.'

During the instant that he waited Hale glanced at his wrist watch. Twenty minutes to one. He could not imagine who had called him up at that hour, unless it was Kneeland. What could Kneeland want, unless there had been some accident But the voice he heard next was not Kneeland's. It was a man's voice, anxious, yet apologetic.

"Mr. Hale," it said, "this is Kaufman, I'm sorry to disturb you at this hour. But did you get the telegram I sent you today?"

For an instant Hale could not remember who Kaufman was. His thoughts had been far removed from anyone named Kaufman. His mind busy with that problem he answered automatically, "No, I haven't re-had many doses?"

"No. Thanks again, Kaufman. Good-night."

Hale hung up the receiver. He seemed to be in a dream-a nightmare. The whole situation had unfolded before him and he was numbed by it. LESSON TEXT-Acts 3:1-10; 4:8-12. GOLDEN TEXT-Then Peter said, Silver and gold have I none; but such as I have give I to thee.-Acts 3:6.

Is Christianity on trial? Answers would differ, depending on varying points of view. Assuredly Christ is not on trial. He is the Son of God and the only Saviour of men, and we are "on trial" as to our attitude toward Him. It is also certain that the true Christian faith is not on trial. Even the liberal and socalled modernistic leaders confess that it is the only faith that has proved itself in the crucible of daily experience.

There is a sense, however, in which Christianity as a whole is on trial. The Church which professes to represent Christ on earth has failed most miserably at so many points that the world is looking at it with the same cold suspicion with which the Church was viewed in the time of Peter. The question which one can feel on every hand even though it is not asked in words, is, "What have you that will meet the unprecedented need of the individual-the social order-the whole of humanity?" There is a sufficient and a satisfying answer, but it is not found so much in the temporal realm as in the spiritual. We have something to offer that is better than silver or gold-the salvation which is found in none other than Jesus Christ, our Lord.

I. Better Than Silver and Gold (3: 1-8).

The lame man had long since abandoned hope of anything more than the coins that he could beg as he sat at the temple gate. He is typical of our hardened and cynical age which is interested only in what it can get in cash, and in what that money will buy. Even Christian people seem to have forgotten that "a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth" (Luke 12:15).

God has for us things far better than silver and gold-deliverance from the power and penalty of sin, glad liberation from the limitations of spirit which hold us down and make us content with the paltry alms of men. Where are these things to be found? In Christ. How are they ministered? Through His faithful servants. Peter and John were the kind of men who, though busy, had time to pray (v. 1). If you know men or women like that, cultivate their friendship, look intently to them in faith (vv. 4, 5), receive their help (v. 7), and above all, believe in their Christ (v. 6), and you will receive that which is better than silver and gold. God healed this man's body, but what is more important, He healed his spirit (v. 8). We need that kind of healing for the spiritual cripples of our day. The weak-kneed, lameankled, and spirit-darkened individuals in our churches and communities need the touch of God. Perhaps you may be used to bring them His message of deliverance and power. II. Wonder and Amazement (3:

Rural Traffic Accidents Increase Traffic accidents in the rural districts are mounting by leaps and bounds. Since 1924, the National Safety council says, motor vehicle fatalities have increased 172 per cent. In cities over 10,000 population they went up but 30 per cent.

Of course, the council points out, a large part of this increase may be the result of much-increased rural travel. But most traffic authorities believe, however, that the more favorable city record can be traced to the more effective traffic control measures in municipalities.

In 1937, the loss of life to traffic accidents in rural districts and cities under 10,000 population was 27,400. In cities over 10,000, there were 12,100 killed.

While collisions with pedestrians constituted the major fatal accident problem in cities, rural districts had their greatest difficulty with collisions between two or more motor vehicles.

ceived any telegram."

The voice became more urgent, less apologetic. It said:

"That's what I was afraid of. I've been pretty busy ever since I sent the telegram this noon. But after I got to bed I remembered that you told me you were several miles from a telegraph office. You said messages weren't always delivered promptly, or even telephoned. When I began to think that over, I decided to call you up."

"Yes?" Hale's scalp was prickling. He had remembered now who Kaufman was. "What was in that telegram?" he jerked out.

"I told you in it that the analysis of the milk you sent me showed a small quantity of bichloride of mercury. It wasn't much. It wasn't anywhere near a killing dose. But, you see, I remembered that water you sent me for analysis. That was pretty serious and-"

"Never mind the water," Hale interrupted. "Tell me about the milk. Bichloride of mercury is a deadly poison, isn't it?" He did not recognize his own voice.

"Yes, it is. That's why I telegraphed. It was a small quantity, but it has no place in milk. After that water analysis-" At an exclamation from Hale the voice went on hurriedly, "Well, it's the sort of thing that suggests to a suspicious mind like mine-taken in connection with the water analysis-that someone who doesn't like you is giving you very small doses of poison. They're so small they may not show any serious effects for some time. You looked pretty husky the day I saw you. Still, if they're kept up long enough-"

"They'll kill in the end? I see." "There's no immediate danger." the voice went on, "unless the doses are increased. But I telegraphed you at once. Then when I thought it over I got fussy."

"Thank God you did. Thank you, too, Kaufman. I won't forget it. Is there anything else you ought to tell me about it?"

"Only to lay off milk for a while, and keep both eyes open." Kaufman's voice was now quite cheerful. Having done his duty as he saw it he was ready to drop the matter and get back to bed.

"Wait a minute. There's one thing more on my mind." Hale asked his next question in a voice that was not quite steady. "You say there was only a little poison in that milk. How many such doses could a per-son the before—" "Becare it killed? Ob, quite a lot.

If I'm right in my guess, the plan was to give it in such small doses, over a long period, as to cause a very gradual failing in the patient; something that would look like what used to be called 'a slow decline.' The effects vary in different patients, but they're the same as those of any slow poison-gastric disturbance, indigestion, lassitude, that sort of thing. The special effect is familiar, yet terrible, whose identity on the kidneys. It might go on for she would not confide to him. Then, bered everything . .

He did not know what he was to do when he reached her door. He stood before it, considering the question. Wake her up and ask her if she was all right? Idiotic. He had no reason to believe she had drunk any milk that night. Indeed, now that he considered the matter, he had every reason to feel that she had not done so. His warning to her had been imperative, and she had promised to heed it. From tomorrow she would be safe. He would take her to Doctor Crosby early in the morning. Both would have to know what he had learned. That much was certain. In the meantime, she was safe. Or was she? He could not leave the door. His feet would not carry him away. His brain would not direct him to move. He could not stir until he knew that all was well with her. How could he get that knowledge without disturbing her?

His hand closed on the door-knob, turned it softly. He did not expect that the door would open. She had promised to lock it regularly, and the memory of that nightmare she had dwelt on would surely make her do so. But, incredibly, the door opened. He widened the opening slightly and noiselessly, and peered in, looking toward Joan's bed. He gave no thought to the possibility of being discovered in such a situation, but he did not cross the threshold. Indeed, the narrow opening did not allow that. He would merely make sure that Joan was sleeping, and go back to his quarters with an easier mind.

CHAPTER X

The room was so dark that for a moment he could see nothing. Then, as his eyes became accustomed to the blackness, he saw the dim outlines of the two windows opposite him. He glanced toward the bed. It was occupied and he heard quiet breathing.

It was not until then that he saw something else. Something very close to him, at his right, between him and the head of the bed. It turned with a low gasp, came to-ward him with a little rush, wrenched the door-knob from his hand by a strong pull on the inside, and slid through the opening, closing the door behind it. It had moved with such rapidity that it struck against him as it came. He recoiled a step, then caught its arm and held it. For an instant it struggled frantically but in silence. Then, under his unyielding grip, it col-lapsed. In the hall's dim light Hale stared down into the convulsed face of Miss Hosanna.

He knew now what face Joan had seen in her nightmare-that face

"What do you want?" The question was almost inaudible. She had trouble in forming the words with her stiff lips; but her head was erect and her pale eyes burned into his. He answered under his breath. "A little talk with you, Miss Hosanna. We can't talk here in the hall, you know."

She hesitated another second, then crossed the threshold. When they were inside the room he closed and locked the door. He drew forward a chair for her, and seated himself facing her.

"Now," he said very quietly, 'we'll get to the bottom of this. What does it mean?"

Miss Hosanna was already getting herself in hand. She straightened in her chair, and stared at him with icy resentment.

> "This is a strange thing for you to do, Mr. Hale," she said between straight lips.

"Isn't it a far stranger thing that you are doing, Miss Hosanna?"

Hale asked the question very quietly, holding her eyes. He sat facing her like a gray rock, but he was inwardly shaken and appalled. Miss Hosanna! Miss Hosanna!

"I suppose I was walking in my sleep." Her head was erect now, her shoulders back. She radiated defiance. "I guess you've heard of sleep-walking before," she ended.

"I have. But I don't remember hearing of anybody who went about poisoning others in their sleep." (TO BE CONTINUED)

Milk Churned by Lurching of 'Ship of Desert,' Was Early Way of Making Butter

Camels may be ugly and ill-tem- | the Eskimos have a decided penty of butter on our bread owe them a debt of gratitude nonetheless, asserts Martha Harmon in the Philadelphia Record.

More than 20 centuries ago, men used goat and sheep milk butter. made the first butter accidentally the latter into a hand churn to work aided by the aforesaid camels. Milk was carried in skin bags on journeys across the desert and the jolting of the camels as they lurched along churned the liquid into a buttery mass. Not the sort of butter we are accustomed to use, we'll admit, for it was fluid enough to be poured slowly from the skins.

The people of India still make butter by shaking milk in bottles, producing a day's supply at a time, because the poorer folk there have no means of keeping foods fresh in refrigerators or even in running streams of cold water, as do our campers.

Just because Americans have a prejudice in favor of butter made from cow's milk, with margarine or oleomargarine as substitute when the family purse grows lean, doesn't imply that the rest of the world shares our taste. Even in this country there is considerable importation of goats' milk butter for persons of Greek or Italian origin, as well as others from the Mediterranean regions.

It has been suggested that one of the weak points in the ministry of the modern church is the lack of such miraculous deliverances from sin as those which caused the unbelievers of a generation or two ago to look with wonder on the ministry of the Word. After all there is no testimony just like that of a redeemed and transformed life. Men may argue with our philosophy, question our theology, but a redeemed life is a walking testimony in a community that no scoffer can refute.

There are two reactions recorded in the context of our lesson which reveal the possible attitudes of men toward such experiences. Some were amazed and believed in Christ, (4:4). Others hated the cause of Christ (4:16, 17) and they cast the preachers into prison (4:1-3). Did this discourage them? No, indeed. They knew that they owed allegiance to God rather than man (4:19, 20), and consequently used their very trial as an opportunity to proclaim III. The Pre-eminent Saviour (4: 8-12).

Note here again that the speaker was a Spirit-filled man. That is the absolute prerequisite to effective proclamation of the truth. Observe also the care with which Peter makes known that he and John are to have no personal credit or glory. They "have something there" that might well be applied to presentday religious activity when many men must either have all the glory, or go off and start a new work where they can have it.

Let us make much of the clear teaching concerning the person and work of Christ which is found in these verses, particularly stressing His place of absolute pre-eminence as the one and only, and, at the same time, the all-sufficient Saviour of mankind. Let us not forget that "there is none other name under heaven given among men whereby
