

A WEEK AT A TIME

HOW NAIVE. How naive the conduct of Dr. Smith who fled from Louisiana and gave himself up in Canada when the hue and cry got out.

OR SHAKE A STICK. We've heard of wrapping packages in brown paper for safety, but Congressman Wright Patman proposes to hold sheets of paper over American cities to keep raiding aircraft from being able to see them and bomb them.

SOMEBODY BENEFITS. And it used to be that the first watermelons ripening in any community could be sold for about a dollar and a quarter. Modern methods of transportation have changed that.

NOTHING SHOULD BE DONE. Open covenants openly arrived at was former President Wilson's way of saying that complete publicity should at all times be given to public affairs.

NEIGHBORS EVERYWHERE. George Evans, a friend who now lives in Lubbock, recently received a message that his aged mother at Athens, Texas, was on her deathbed.

READY FOR THE WOLVES. We are sincere in our belief that nations should have the right to determine their own destiny. But it looks stupid to claim the Philippines would have any chance to maintain their independence if the United States should withdraw from the Islands.

THOUSANDS LINE STREETS FOR ANNUAL JULY FOURTH PARADE

AS SLATON STAGED ITS ANNUAL JULY FOURTH PARADE—Beauty queens of Slaton and surrounding communities reigned in Slaton Tuesday as the city staged its annual Independence Day celebration highlighted by a huge parade during the forenoon.

QUEEN REBECCA CROWNED AT SUNSET CEREMONY

Smith Retires As S. F. Agent

Slaton Service Near Quarter of Century

More than twenty-three years ago W. H. Smith came to Slaton in the employ of the Santa Fe. He was a young man then as business looks at men in executive positions. He is not an old man now but he has served his time and retired from active service July first.

With "peace" as its theme, Slaton's annual July Fourth celebration was brought to a successful close Tuesday night in the crowning of Miss Rebecca Tudor, daughter of Mrs. Nan Tudor, as queen of the day's festivities.

In a colorful setting in the high school football stadium, Raymond Lee Johns, secretary of the Slaton Chamber of Commerce, crowned Miss Tudor before a crowd estimated at 5,000 people, the majority of which had spent the day participating in the day's varied program.

Pastor Speaks. Rev. J. Paul Stevens, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, delivered an address on "peace" following the queen's coronation. Miss Lillian Butler sang a solo and Mrs. Marion Hodge and Mrs. Mark Zimmerman were presented in two vocal numbers.

In Queen Rebecca's court were other candidates for her position who held places of honor during the day's parade. They were: Mrs. Ed Haddock, Misses Lee Beth Drewey, Margaret Hannah, Naydine Smith, Edna Marie Spence and Phyllis McReynolds.

Square Is Filled. Residents of Slaton, Lubbock and surrounding communities of the South Plains took part in a full day's activities which were highlighted by the morning parade and the program at the football stadium at night.

The crowd gathered early and by the time set for the parade the city square was filled with hundreds of people.

The parade, one of the highlights of the day's activities, got under way shortly after 10 o'clock with a score or more floats, decorated automobiles, riders, bicycles and other conveyances winding their way through the downtown business section. Point of origin was in the neighborhood of the Santa Fe station.

Winners Announced. Resulting of judging in the parade were announced from the bandstand in the city square by Johns, at the close of a brief entertainment program presented by members of Harley Sadler's play-ers.

First prize of $35 for the best float in any division went to the Daughters of Pioneers club. Best community float prize of $25 went to the Hackberry community. Best organization float prize of $20 was won by the Junior Civic and Culture Club. Best business float prize of $20 went to the Florence Dairy.

Other prize winners in the parade included: best Boy Scout exhibition, Slaton Troop C; best cowboy, Lloyd Patton of Southland; best cowgirl, Evelyn Mansker; best "peace" costume, Viola Martin on the Home Demonstration float; best comic character, Wade Haire of Southland; best boy's decorated bicycle, Carl Lewis, Jr.; best girl's decorated bicycle, Jimmie Fae Ward; best decorated pet, Charlene Lee; best rhythm band, West Ward school and best decorated piano, J. Martin Basinger of Southland.

Committeemen Listed. Weber B. Williams was general chairman of the board of city development and civic league committee. (Turn to Last Page, Please)

Cherry Family Comes To Slaton

New Santa Fe Agent Was Popular Citizen

This week Hamlin is losing one of her best families—Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Cherry and three sons, Don, 15, Bill, 13, and Jim, 8.

Mr. Cherry has been in Slaton since November 1, 1927. He was a popular citizen when he first came to Slaton in 1927. He was very popular in Slaton and was a member of the Church of Christ, the Chamber of Commerce, the Golf Club, and has recently served as chairman of the Boy Scout Troop Committee.

Juanita Elliott Enjoys Camp in New Mexico

Juanita Elliott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Elliott, is enjoying the cool mountain air of Camp Mary White at Mayhill, New Mexico. This place is about 100 miles from Roswell.

Juanita is proving to be very popular with her accordion playing and has participated in the Horse Show there and will play next for the Camp Fire. Before returning home, she will go to Carlsbad Caverns.

Already away for two weeks, Juanita will remain for another two weeks at this delightful spot where she is learning, among other things, to saddle and ride a horse.

Mrs. Mary Hancock, of Electra, was a week end guest in the home of her brother, Dr. H. C. McIlroy.

Hospital Chiefs Visit Here

Saturday visitors in Slaton in the interests of the Santa Fe Hospital Association were Dr. M. L. Binchell of Toppoka, Chief Surgeon of the Association, Dr. H. A. Miller, Surgeon-in-charge of the Clovis Hospital, and C. R. Norris and O. M. Reed of Toppoka, Trustees of the Hospital Association. They visited at the Forrest Hotel, and spent the afternoon in the shops and offices.

Four Children Burned Over 4th

Patrol burns were suffered by four local children over the holiday period, all attributed to fireworks. At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Sikes, 750 S. 10th St., a sky rocket was accidentally ignited in the hand of a guest just as lunch had been eaten and before all had left the table. Dewain Sikes, who held the fireworks, suffered burns on the right hand, W. A. Sikes, age nine, had his hair singed and the right side of his face, right eye and shoulder burned and Jean Sikes, age seven, narrowly missed a severe eye injury when the rocket struck very close to her left eye, scarring her face.

W. A. and Jean are the children of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Sikes. All injured parties were immediately given treatment.

Monday afternoon about 6 o'clock, Wilma Jean Kenney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Kenney, 235 S. 2nd St., was severely burned on the arm and body when her dress caught fire from a lighted sparkler she held. Her screams attracted the mother who found her clothes in flames. The lower part of the right arm and the right side of her body were found to be burned when she was taken to a doctor.

All the victims are healing nicely, they report, but have a shyness of fireworks that will probably last a long time.

Two Injured in Car Wreck Friday

Mrs. Andy Caldwell, her two daughters, Anna Belle and Lala, and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Edward Caldwell, were injured late Friday afternoon when the automobile in which they were riding overturned two miles north of here on the Lubbock highway. They expressed the belief that a blowout was the cause of the wreck that greatly damaged the Buick car.

Anna Belle, most seriously injured, suffered a broken left arm and collar bone. Mrs. Caldwell was painfully bruised, Lala had a fractured shoulder bone and Mrs. Edward Caldwell was only slightly hurt.

After treatment in Mercy Hospital the mother was removed to the home of a daughter, Mrs. Clifford Young and the others, with the exception of Anna Belle, were released. The latter remained for several days in Mercy Hospital.

Miss Verble is Bride of Mr. Judd

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Verble, 159 N. 2nd St., are announcing the marriage of their daughter, Genevieve McCoy, to Leonard Judd, Nashville, Tennessee, son of Mrs. J. E. Judd, of Clarksville, Tennessee, which took place in Franklin, Ky., on June 9, with Judge Joe Appleby officiating.

Mrs. Judd was a senior in the Slaton High school the past term and taught a private class of tap dancers.

The groom is a Monterey High school football star, having played quarterback for four years and serving as captain the past year. He was also coach of the grammar school team. For the past two years he has been employed at the McConnell Field Airport, of Nashville.

Mrs. Earl Delaney, of Clovis, spent the Fourth in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Wolf.

Ward - Hughes Vows Are Read

Miss Elsie Mae Ward became the bride of Vernon Hughes Tuesday afternoon, July 4, at 3 o'clock. The simple ceremony was held in the home of Brother Leo Kuzel, pastor of the Church of Christ, with Brother Roy Fouts officiating.

The bride was attended by two bridesmaids with accompanying accessories.

Mr. Hughes is an employee of the Imperial Barber Shop and the couple will continue to make their home here.

Hannah Family Returned

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Hannah and Wilda Ruth returned last week from a sixty day vacation, most of which was spent in Cleveland. Visits were made to New York, the World's Fair, Niagara Falls, and Washington, D. C. Mr. Hannah reports the World's Fair offering reasonable prices to patrons, but remembers the reputation it had when it opened of charging exorbitant prices which is blamed for the poor gate that is being had now. "A great vacation and a wonderful time, but this country looks good to me," is his conclusion.

Brother of Mrs. T. A. Worley Killed

J. F. Wylie, 55-year-old Lubbock county farmer was killed instantly near his home at Monroe Saturday morning at 11:11 o'clock when the car in which he was riding to get his morning mail was struck by a south bound passenger train.

His car, carrying his mutilated body, was dragged more than 50 feet from where it was struck by the Santa Fe engine and was snatched off the track into the right-of-way. He died instantly. Witnesses of the Saturday morning tragedy said:

Funeral services were held at the High School auditorium at Monroe Sunday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. Burial was in the Amentally cemetery. At the funeral rites, Rev. A. Ashley and Rev. A. O. Grayson, both of Lubbock, officiated. They were assisted by Rev. E. A. Tharr of Sulphur.

Survivors are the widow; three sons, W. B. Wylie of Montague county, and J. C. and Franklin of Monroe; five daughters, Mrs. E. B. Buck of Nocona, Mrs. R. E. Myers of Monroe, Mrs. Martin Graves of Lubbock, and Mrs. W. L. Davis of Ralls; one brother, G. O. Wylie of Forestburg; one sister, Mrs. T. A. Worley of Slaton, and 13 grandchildren.

SAM BALL OPERATED ON

Sammy Ball, 12, son of Dr. and Mrs. Sam Ball, of Texarkana, Texas, underwent an emergency appendectomy at one o'clock Monday afternoon. Sammy is a grandson of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Smith, of 415 West Garza and was here on a visit when he was stricken ill.

Mixed Reaction Created by Huge Money Lending Program

Some Legislators Shout Halleluiahs, Others Are Bitter In Opposition to What They See as Another Gigantic Flop; Government Credit Menaced!

By WILLIAM BRUCKART

WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON.—President Roosevelt has asked congress for approval of another gigantic money lending program. He wants to put out $3,860,000,000 as a "stimulant to business."

The President is not proposing government spending, as distinguished from government lending. That is important. While it has been shown by the experiences of the last half dozen years that this spending idea is just as successful as trying to pull one's self up by one's boot straps, those who favor the lending program say this method of bringing about recovery has not yet been fully tested.

Arrival of the President's letter at the Capitol created quite a mixed reaction. Some members shouted their halleluiahs of more manna for the spawning ground for votes.

Nearly everything that is done in the national government is tinged with or steeped in politics. So the political phases immediately were stressed by the opponents of the program, and they are putting more steam behind their attacks as the days go by.

Say Roosevelt Is Paving Way for His Renomination

They say Mr. Roosevelt is proposing this new lending program now in order to pave the way for his renomination to a third term in the White House.

First, let me recall that during the administration of Herbert Hoover, when the present depression first fastened its fangs on our economic structure, there was the first major outpouring of government funds.

Well, the Hoover administration promoted loans for self-liquidating projects in a big way. As a stimulant of business, the plan was a magnificent flop.

Few Have Confidence in Policies of Government

Whether this government lending idea is sponsored by Republicans or Democrats, by Communists or Fascists, the result is bound to be the same as far as accomplishing anything toward business revival.

tration, and I think it is equally true in the Roosevelt administration.

But I want to go deeper into this problem. There is something more that we ought to think about, and it makes me shudder to talk about the possibilities inherent in moves of this kind by a democracy.

Mr. Roosevelt says that, without a doubt, all of this money that he proposes to lend will be paid back. He said in his message on the subject that there would be no loans approved unless there was assurance that the sums would be repaid.

Personal Political Element Is the Most Disturbing

If we can dismiss the doubt, however, there yet remains the factor, the potentiality, of the program that makes me jittery.

Let me illustrate. When Senator Norris, of Nebraska, began fighting a number of years ago for what turned out to be the TVA, he and all other sponsors of that socialist government-owned power project shouted denials all over the place when it was charged they intended to put the government deeper into the field of private business.

What happened? The answer is pretty well known. TVA began competing with private companies wherever it could get in the field against them.

On top of that came the operations of Secretary Ickes, and his public works administration. Mr. Ickes wanted to see more and better publicly owned power plants. He tried, and is still trying, to make power plants grow where power plants never grew before—all from money loaned by the government.

Officials Say Thought Is To Help Private Business

It is only fair to report that the top officials in the government say there is no intention to use these funds as was done through the Public Works administration. There is, they say, no thought of discouraging private business; the thought is to help private business.

Then, give consideration to the fact that the current lending proposal contemplates expanding the original Hoover-initiated program into fields of loaning not hitherto occupied by a government agency.

Floyd Gibbons' ADVENTURERS' CLUB

HEADLINES FROM THE LIVES OF PEOPLE LIKE YOURSELF!

"A Dog's Life"

HELLO EVERYBODY: Today's Distinguished Adventurer didn't write his own story. He can neither read nor write.

That, of course, is nothing new in the realm of adventure. Plenty of great adventurers couldn't as much as sign their own names, but that didn't stop them from getting into tight spots or from living lives that were packed full of thrills and danger.

And it's the thrills and the danger we want in this column. I don't give a whoop how well you can write, or whether you can write at all. The writing part of it is my job, and all I want you boys and girls to do is give me the facts.

That's what today's Distinguished Adventurer did. His name, by the way, is Jip. He is one-half foxhound and one-half pointer, and he's one of the best all-around bird and rabbit dogs in the state of Illinois.

Jip's boss, Newton Belgium, of Chicago, sent me all the dope about Jip's adventure. Newt raised Jip from a pup, and he was right there when things began to happen.

After Breakfast They Started for the River. They arrived in Sullivan about four o'clock in the morning, had breakfast and started for the river. It was a bitter cold morning, with the mercury down to five below.

There was Jip, swirling about in the icy water. He had become thirsty and started out to get a drink, but the thin ice near the edge had broken and he had fallen in.

The three men stood on the bank and looked helplessly at one another. There wasn't a thing they could do for Jip, so they stood watching on the bank while the game little animal did his best to help himself.

And then Newt had another idea. He loaded his gun and began firing at the ice.

little animal, trying to pull him away from the bank and whirl him out into the stream.

Gamely, Jip tackled the ice with his paws. He broke it for about five feet toward shore, but he couldn't climb up on it when it became too thick to break.

Again and again the current pulled him out. Each time he managed to swim back. But already he had been in that icy water for 10 minutes, and he couldn't keep on fighting that current forever.

And all that time, Newt, standing up on the bank, was going through a hell that was almost as bad as the one his dog was fighting.

"Each time Jip fought his way back to the little cut he had made in the ice," Newt says, "he would look up at us with appealing eyes, as if he were trying to say, 'For God's sake, save me!'"

"By this time I was bewildered and desperate. I wanted to try to go out on the ice, but the other fellows told me it would be suicide and reminded me that I had three daughters at home depending on me.

"As I stood there, watching him fight for his life, I felt as though the whole world was going to pieces. To Frank and Harry I said, 'Fellows, he's done for, and I can't go home without him.'

They Started to Gather Up the Dead Branches.

"Finally I hit on an idea. We started gathering up all the dead branches we could find and throwing them into the water, hoping the current would drive them back of my dog, giving his hind legs something to kick against and enabling him to climb up on the ice."

"There was ice on his eyebrows and nose," Newt says. "I couldn't stand it any longer so I went back and got my shotgun. I was going to shoot him and put him out of his misery, but my friends stopped me—told me not to shoot him as long as he had a fighting chance."

And then Newt had another idea. He loaded his gun and began firing at the ice!

Jip was out in the stream again, fighting his way back. The first shot ripped out a chunk of ice, lengthening the cut Jip had already started. Newt fired again—and again—and then the other two men got the idea. Newt was blasting a channel in the ice so the dog could swim closer to the bank! They picked up their own guns and started to help.

They cut that channel almost to the shore. Jim swam into it, but still he couldn't get his hind legs up on the ice. Then Newt had another idea. All three men fired at once at the ice on the upstream side of the dog. That did the trick. A big, triangular piece of ice, half sunken in the water, floated down and got under Jip's hind legs, and Jip kicked himself up to safety.

They called Jip down to a spot where the bank was lower, and then went and got him. The poor pup was all in. His tail was frozen stiff by an icicle. He was cut and bleeding, and there was ice on his face and ears.

Newt put his coat around him and rubbed him until he could stand up. He carried him to a gully where he'd be out of the wind. As he set him down, out jumped a rabbit from a brush patch a few feet away.

"And when Jip got through chasing that rabbit," says Newt, "he was O. K. again!"

Children Greatest Reason for Home Buying

Out of every 100 American home owners, 50 buy their first house "to have a better place to bring up the children." The next greatest motive is just a sentimental longing "for a home of our own."

THE STORY SO FAR

Young, pretty Jane Barnes, who lived with her brother, Baldwin, in Sherwood Park, near Washington, was not particularly impressed when she read that rich, attractive Edith Towne had been left at the altar by Delafield Simms, wealthy New Yorker. However, she still mused over it when she met Evans Follette, a young neighbor, whom the war had left completely discouraged and despondent. Evans had always loved Jane. That morning Baldwin Barnes, on his way to work in Washington, offered assistance to a tall, lovely girl in distress. Later he found a bag she had left in the car, containing a diamond ring on which was inscribed "Del to Edith—Forever." He knew then that his passenger had been Edith Towne. Already he was half way in love with her. That night he discussed the matter with Jane, and they called her uncle, worldly, sophisticated Frederick Towne. He visited them at their home, delighted with Jane's simplicity.

CHAPTER III

Edith Towne had lived with her Uncle Frederick nearly four years when she became engaged to Delafield Simms. Her mother was dead, as was her father. Frederick was her father's only brother, and had a big house to himself, after his mother's death. It seemed the only haven for his niece, so he asked her, and asked also his father's cousin, Annabel Towne, to keep house for him, and chaperone Edith.

Annabel was over sixty, and rather indefinite, but she served to play propriety, and there was nothing else demanded of her in Frederick's household of six servants. She was a dried-up and desiccated person, with fixed ideas of what one owed to society. Frederick's mother had been like that, so he did not mind. He rather liked to think that the woman of his family kept to old ideals. It gave to things an air of dignity.

Edith, when she came, was different. So different that Frederick was glad that she had three more years at college before she would spend the winters with him. The summers were not hard to arrange. Edith and Annabel adjourned to the Towne cottage on an island in Maine—and Frederick went up for weekends and for the month of August. Edith spent much time out-of-doors with her young friends. She was rather fond of her Uncle Fred, but he did not loom large on the horizon of her youthful occupations.

Then came her winter at home, and her consequent engagement to Delafield Simms. It was because of Uncle Fred that she became engaged. She simply didn't want to live with him any more. She felt that Uncle Fred would be glad to have her go, and the feeling was mutual. She was an elephant on his hands. Naturally, he was a great old dear, but he was a Turk. He didn't know it of course. But his ideas of being master of his own house were perfectly archaic. Cousin Annabel and the servants, and everybody in his office simply hung on his words, and Edith wouldn't hang. She came into his bachelor Paradise like a rather troublesome Eve, and demanded her share of the universe. He didn't like it, and there she was.

It was really Uncle Fred who wanted her to marry Delafield Simms. He talked about it a lot. At first Edith wouldn't listen. But Delafield was persistent and patient. He came gradually to be as much of a part of her everyday life as the meals she ate or the car she drove. Uncle Fred was always inviting him. He was forever on hand, and when he wasn't she missed him.

They felt for each other, she decided, the thing called "love." It was not, perhaps, the romance which one found in books. But she had been thought carefully at college to distrust romance. The emphasis had been laid on the transient quality of adolescent emotion. One married for the sake of the race, and one chose, quite logically, with one's head instead, as in the old days, with the heart.

So there you had it. Delafield was eligible. He was healthy, had brains enough, an acceptable code of morals—and was willing to let her have her own way. If there were moments when Edith wondered if this program was adequate to wedded bliss, she put the thought aside. She and Delafield liked each other no end. Why worry?

And really at times Uncle Fred was impossible. His mother had lived until he was thirty-five, she had adored him, and had passed on to Cousin Annabel and to the old servants in the house the formula by which she had made her son happy. Her one fear had been that he might marry. He was extremely popular, much sought after. But he had kept his heart at home. His sweetheart, he had often said, was silver-haired and over sixty. He basked in her approbation; was soothed, and sustained by it.

Then she had died, and Edith had come. Things had been different.

The difference had been demonstrated in a dozen ways. Edith was pleasantly affectionate, but she didn't yield an inch. "Dear Uncle Fred," she would ask, when they disagreed on matters of manners or morals, or art or athletics, or religion or the lack of it, "isn't my opinion as good as yours?"

"Apparently my opinion isn't worth anything."

"Oh, yes it is—but you must let me have mine."

Yet, as time went on, he learned that Edith's faults were tempered by her fastidiousness. She did not confuse liberty and license. She neither smoked nor drank. There was about her dancing a fine and stately quality which saved it from sensuousness. Yet when he told her things, there was always that irritating shrug of the shoulders. "Oh, well, I'm not a rowdy—you know that. But I like to play around."

His pride in her grew—in her burnished hair, the burning blue of her eyes, her great beauty, the fineness of her spirit, the integrity of her character.

Yet he sighed with relief when she told him of her engagement to Delafield Simms. He loved her, but none the less he felt the strain of her presence in his establishment. It would be like sinking back into the luxury of a feather bed, to take up the old life where she had entered it.

And Edith, too, welcomed her emancipation. "When I marry you," she told Delafield, "I am going to break all the rules. In Uncle Fred's house everything runs by clockwork, and it is he who winds the clock."

"Bob is utterly at sea."

Their engagement was one of mutual freedom. Edith did as she pleased, Delafield did as he pleased. They rarely clashed. And as the wedding day approached, they were pleasantly complacent.

Delafield, dictating a letter one day to Frederick Towne's stenographer, spoke of his complacency. He was writing to Bob Sterling, who was to be his best man, and who shared his apartment in New York. Delafield was an orphan, and had big money interests. He felt that Washington was tame compared to the metropolis. He and Edith were to live one block east of Fifth Avenue, in a house that he had bought for her.

When he was in Washington he occupied a desk in Frederick's office. Lucy Logan took his dictation. She had been for several years with Towne. She was twenty-three, well-groomed, and self-possessed. She had slender, flexible fingers, and Delafield liked to look at them. She had soft brown hair, and her profile, as she bent over her book, was clear-cut and composed.

"Edith and I are great pals," he dictated. "I rather think we are going to hit it off famously. I'd hate to have a woman hang around my neck. And I want you for my best man. I know it is asking a lot, but it's just once in a lifetime, old chap."

Lucy wrote that and waited with her pencil poised.

"That's about all," said Delafield. Lucy shut up her book and rose. "Wait a minute," Delafield decided. "I want to add a postscript."

Lucy sat down.

"By the way," Delafield dictated, "I wish you'd order the flowers at Tolley's. White orchids for Edith of course. He'll know the right thing for the bridesmaids—I'll get Edith to send him the color scheme."

Lucy's pencil dashed and dotted. She looked up, hesitated. "Miss Towne doesn't care for orchids."

"How do you know?" he demanded.

She fluttered the leaves of her notebook and found an order from Towne to a local florist. "He says here, 'Anything but orchids—she doesn't like them.'"

"But I've been sending her orchids every week."

"Perhaps she didn't want to tell you—"

"And you think I should have something else for the wedding bouquet?"

"I think she might like it better."

There was a faint flush on her cheek. "What would you suggest?"

"I can't be sure what Miss Towne would like."

"What would you like?" intently she considered it seriously—her slender fingers clasped on her book. "I think," she told him, finally, "that if I were going to marry a man I should want what he wanted."

He laughed and leaned forward. "Good heavens, are there any women like that left in the world?"

Her flush deepened, she rose and went towards the door. "Perhaps I shouldn't have said anything."

His voice changed. "Indeed, I am glad you did." He had risen and now held the door open for her. "We men are stupid creatures. I should never have found it out for myself."

She went away, and he sat there thinking about her. Her impersonal manner had always been perfect, and he had found her little flush charming.

It was because of Lucy Logan, therefore, that Edith had white violets instead of orchids in her wedding bouquet. And it was because, too, of Lucy Logan, that other things happened. Three of Edith's bridesmaids were house-guests. Their names were Rosalind, Helen and Margaret. They had, of course, last names, but these have nothing to do with the story. They had been Edith's classmates at college, and she had been somewhat democratic in her selection of them.

"They are perfect dears, Uncle Fred. I'll have three cave-dwellers to balance them. Socially, I suppose, it will be a case of sheep and goats, but the goats are—darling!"

They were, however, the six of them, what Delafield called a bunch of beauties. Their bridesmaid gowns were exquisite—but unobtrusive. The color scheme was blue and silver—and the flowers, forget-me-nots and sweet peas. "It's a bit old-fashioned," Edith said, "but I hate sensational effects."

Neither the sheep nor the goats agreed with her. Their ideas were different—the goats holding out for something impressionistic, the sheep for ceremonial splendor.

There was to be a wedding breakfast at the house. Things were therefore given over early to the decorators and caterers, and coffee and rolls were served in everybody's room.

When the wedding bouquet arrived Edith sought out her uncle in his study on the second floor.

"Look at this," she said; "how in the world did it happen that he sent white violets? Did you tell him, Uncle Fred?"

"No."

"Sure?"

"Cross my heart."

They had had their joke about Del's orchids. "If he knew how I hated them," Edith would say, and Uncle Fred would answer, "Why don't you tell him?"

But she had never told, because after all it didn't much matter, and if Delafield felt that orchids were the proper thing, why muddle up his mind with her preferences?

The wedding party was assembled in one of the side rooms. Belated guests trickled in a thin stream towards the great doors that opened and shut to admit them to the main auditorium. A group of servants, laden with wraps, stood at the foot of the stairs. As soon as the procession started they would go up into the gallery to view the ceremony.

In the small room was almost overpowering fragrance. The bridesmaids, in the filtered light, were a blur of rose and blue and white. There was much laughter, the sound of the organ through the thick walls.

Then the ushers came in. "Where's Del?"

The bridegroom was, it seemed, delayed. They waited.

"Shall we telephone, Mr. Towne?" someone asked at last.

Frederick nodded. He and his niece stood apart from the rest. Edith was smiling but had little to say. She seemed separated from the others by the fact of the approaching mystery.

The laughter had ceased; above the whispers came the tremulous echo of the organ.

The usher who had gone to the telephone returned and drew Towne aside.

"There's something queer about it. I can't get Del or Bob. They may be on the way. But the clerk seemed reticent."

"I'll go to the phone myself," said Frederick. "Where is it?"

But he was saved the effort, for someone, watching at the door, said, "Here they come," and the room seemed to sigh with relief as Bob Sterling entered.

No one was with him, and he wore a worried frown.

"May I speak to you, Mr. Towne?" he asked.

Edith was standing by the window looking out at the old churchyard. The uneasiness which had infected the others had not touched her. Slender and white she stood waiting. In a few minutes Del would walk up the aisle with her and they would be married. In her mind that program was as fixed as the stars.

And now her uncle approached and said something. "Edith, Del isn't coming—"

"Is he ill?"

"I wish to heaven he were dead."

"What do you mean, Uncle Fred?"

"I'll tell you—presently. But we must get away from this—"

His glance took in the changed scene. A blight had swept over those high young heads. Two of the bridesmaids were crying. The ushers had withdrawn into a huddled group. The servants were staring—uncertain what to do.

Somebody got Briggs and the big car to the door.

Shut into it, Towne told Edith: "He's backed out of it. He left—this."

He had a note in his hand. "It was written to Bob Sterling. Bob was with him at breakfast time, and when he came back, this was on Del's dresser."

She read it, her blue eyes hot:

"I can't go through with it, Bob. I know it's a rotten trick, but time will prove that I am right. And Edith will thank me."

"Del."

She crushed it in her hand. "Where has he gone?"

"South, probably, on his yacht."

"Wasn't there any word for me?"

"No."

"Is there any other—woman?"

"It looks like it. Bob is utterly at sea. So is everybody else."

All of her but her eyes seemed frozen. The great bouquet lay at her feet where she had dropped it. Her hands were clenched.

Towne laid his hand on hers. "My dear—it's dreadful."

"Don't—"

"Don't what?"

"Be sorry."

"But he's a cur—"

Play Clothes Smartly Styled Of Dependable Wash Fabrics

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

PLAY clothes have come to be a theme of themes with costume designers. The idea of wearing just any old duds when you go out to play or to rough it in camp life or mountain climbs or just simple cross-country hikes is completely taboo these days. No woman of modern outlook can afford to sidetrack the issue of being smartly and appropriately garbed wherever she goes. There's absolutely no escaping the new demand for "style" tuned to environs of the time, the place and the game. Indulge in any outdoor pastime you will, but be sure you "look the part" in the matter of correct attire.

Designers have risen so valiantly to the occasion of creating an entire wardrobe of play clothes that all one has to do is to go to specialized departments and make your needs known and you will be outfitted to the 'nth degree of correctness for this sports occasion or that.

However, there is more to the play clothes challenge than just style, for dependable wearability that will withstand the ravages of roughing it is of such vast importance one needs must meet the issue with all the art and science at command. Which is exactly what fabric manufacturers are doing.

Note the play clothes pictured. They are extremely fabric conscious we can assure you, demonstrating perfectly the fact of their non-shrinkableness and their color fastness. Describing these timely modes, from left to right, the perfectly tailored slacks and shirt on the standing figure is of a wool and cotton flannel which has been scientifically sanforized shrunk in Switzerland.

A dark blouse with lighter skirt, both of sturdy cotton gabardine that has been pre-shrunk, as shown centered in the group will undoubtedly be a first choice with outdoor girls who know their 1939 fashions. Note the impeccably tailored pockets.

The Gay Nineties dressmaker bathing suit comes back again. Full skirt, basque bodice, snug-fitting waistband and tiny puffed sleeves with touches of narrow black velvet ribbon against demure yellow and white and black printed cotton describes the 1939 version of this quaint type as illustrated above to the right. Underneath this sanforized-shrunk cotton outfit jersey tights fit snugly making a complete trim and ship-shape ensemble.

Full of Nineteenth century charm, yet intensely modern with its brief frills is the beach ensemble on the seated figure in the foreground. It can be relied on to give perfect wear in that the flower print cotton which fashions it is pre-shrunk and fast color. Quaint ruffles edge the snug shorts and finish the formal little semi-fitted basque-like coat. The platform shoes are also interesting. (Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

Patterns That're Cool, Smart and Charming

YOU'LL feel cool, and look smart, as well as much smarter, in 1773, a soft afternoon dress with full, graceful sleeves, a paneled skirt, and shirred bodice that fits beautifully over the bust. In chiffon, georgette, or voile, it will be lovely for luncheons and afternoon parties.

Summer Comfort for Tot.

You can really make a whole summer wardrobe for your tot from this one easy design, 1766.

It includes, you see, a bonnet, a pinafore and a play suit that little folks can wear happily and comfortably on the hottest day. Make them of calico, seersucker, gingham or linen, and trim them with rows of ricrac braid.

The Patterns.

1773 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 38 requires 4 1/2 yards of 39 inch material with short sleeves. 4 3/4 yards with long sleeves.

1766 is designed for sizes 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5 years. Size 2 requires 3 3/4 yards of 35 inch material. 13 3/4 yards of ricrac braid to trim.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1324, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

Pull the Trigger on Constipation, and Pepsin-ize Acid Stomach Too

When constipation brings on acid indigestion, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste, and bad breath, your stomach is probably loaded up with certain undigested food and your bowels don't move. So you need both Pepsin to help break up fast that rich undigested food in your stomach, and Laxative Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels. So be sure your laxative also contains Pepsin. Take Dr. Caldwell's Laxative, because its Syrup Pepsin helps you gain that wonderful stomach-relief, while the Laxative Senna moves your bowels. Tests prove the power of Pepsin to dissolve those lumps of undigested protein food which may linger in your stomach, to cause belching, gastric acidity and nausea. This is how Pepsin-izing your stomach helps relieve it of such distress. At the same time this medicine wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your bowels to relieve your constipation. So see how much better you feel by taking the laxative that also puts Pepsin to work on that stomach discomfort, too. Even finicky children love to taste this pleasant family laxative. Buy Dr. Caldwell's Laxative—Senna with Syrup Pepsin at your druggist today!

May Replace Chestnut Trees Killed by Disease

The slopes of the Appalachians are spotted with ghost forests.

Little more than a generation ago, perhaps, the most characteristic tree of the region was the chestnut. It was taken as a matter of course.

About 1904 an Oriental fungus known as endothonia parasitica appeared on the trees in New England. It spread rapidly through the entire chestnut region, attacking the bark, girdling the trunk, and killing the trees. There was nothing to be done about it. The spores of this fungus were extremely light, so that every little breeze wafted them into new regions.

Today probably 95 per cent of the chestnuts are gone. The few left, which have escaped largely by accident, are doomed. But a few years ago a few healthy trees were transported bodily to the campus of the North Carolina State college at Raleigh, 200 miles from their usual habitat and away from the path of the blight.

For four years, according to a report, writes Thomas R. Henry in the Washington Star, they have escaped infection and remain healthy and thriving. It is hoped that they will live to become the ancestors of other great chestnut forests when all the trees in the mountains have been killed and the fungus goes with them because it will have nothing more to live on.

Meanwhile a series of co-operative experiments is being undertaken by the college and the department of agriculture in an effort to discover a preventative for the blight. A variety of chestnut in Japan and another in China have been found which appear resistant, but they are inferior to the American variety. However, a few are being grown on the Raleigh campus side by side with the fugitives from the Appalachians and efforts, thus far unsuccessful, are being made to produce crosses which will retain the fungus-resisting qualities.

West Indian Mahogany

West Indian mahogany was the first discovered and the first used in England and in the American colonies. Today Cuba supplies commercial quantities while lesser amounts are produced in Santo Domingo. The West Indian mahogany is generally held to be the finest of the mahoganies, being heavier, fine textured and of beautiful color and figure. It is used principally in making reproductions of Eighteenth century chairs.

Hats, Tiny or Big

Favor Tweed-Like Linens for Suits

Although this year's linens abound in the traditional smooth finishes of the sort that denote well-bred aristocracy, many new versions are appearing. Something for the home make-your-own-clothes designer to get excited about is the smart new slubbed, nubbed and tweed-like linens which combine the celebrated coolness of flax with a fine aptitude for tailoring that insures a suit of distinction and comfort for town or travel wear.

Fruit Trims New White Straw Hats

Perfectly charming among summer-girl fashions are the new, usually large, rough white straw hats that are trimmed with clusters of gay colored fruit instead of the usual flower garnitures. This new fashion is wonderfully effective whether the hat be worn with an all-white costume or with a gay and festive silk print. It adds to the glory of this mode to carry a matching white straw handbag that is similarly fruit-trimmed.

Deck White Suits In Brass Buttons

There is a tendency to impart a military air to summer dresses and suits made of white sharkskin or white gossamer sheer wool by the use of handsome brass buttons, and in some instances epaulets of gold braid have been added. The fad for all white with gold trimming is also carried out in that gold kid belts are being worn with classic white dresses the draping of which takes on a sculptural beauty.

Fishnet Trim

A New York designer, on the search for something different to distinguish summer clothes, has turned to fishnet.

State Police Release

Austin, June 15—How age slows reflex action has been noted by state police in relation to the automobile driver.

Reaction tests given 33,000 persons show that young people are quicker than middle-aged drivers to react to an emergency and that women are slower than men where foot-action is required but are faster with their hands. Women's dexterity, the traffic research men said, probably comes from the fact that so many women's tasks are manual, such as sewing, cooking and typing.

The tests were administered by an electrically-controlled machine before which a red light flashed on one side and a figure representing a child on a bicycle appeared on the other. The driver did not know which would appear, and so had to make an emergency decision in each case.

Male drivers between 15 and 21 years had the best reaction time of any one age group. Ninety per cent of them were able to react to the emergency in one-half second while only 80 per cent of the girls

Wilson Woman Dies In Hospital July 4th

Miss Kate Heck, 59, died Tuesday, July 4th, in Mercy Hospital only 15 hours after she had been entered in an unconscious condition. She had been an invalid for years. Death came about 1 o'clock and the body was sent to Tahoka for burial. The deceased was a sister to John Heck of Wilson and had made her home with him since the death of their mother some three months ago.

Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Everline of Amarillo motored down Monday afternoon, bringing Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Smith, who were recalled from their vacation by the serious illness of Sammy Ball, grandson of the Smiths and nephew of the Everlines. The Everlines returned home Tuesday.

in this age group could equal that time.

But the next age group, 22 to 35 years, shows only 75 per cent of the men and 60 per cent of the women able to react in one-half second. The percentage shows another decrease in the next age bracket, 36 to 45 years, where only 65 per cent of the men and 40 per cent of the women made the half-second response. In the last group, 46 to 55 years, the figures drop to 45 per cent of the men and 25 per cent of the women.

These percentages must not be taken, however, as an indication that middle-aged drivers are necessarily poorer drivers, the research men warned. Although their reactions are slower, older drivers often have an increased safety index because they are more cautious and exercise better judgment than younger drivers do, it was pointed out.

Santa Fe Shifts In Personnel

Santa Fe shifts its personnel, and so frequent this week, one becomes, after a fashion, dizzy, keeping up. Agent W. H. Smith this week retired after more than twenty-three years service in Slaton. W. T. Cherry comes from Hamlin to take his place. Russell Satterlee, secretary to the Superintendent, has been transferred to La Junta as chief clerk to J. R. Skillen. Skillen, former Superintendent at Slaton and who went last year as Supt. to Las Vegas, has been promoted to be Assistant General Manager at La Junta, Colorado. As a coincidence, Satterlee left for his new post July Fourth, just ten years to the day after he went from Amarillo to La Junta to be chief clerk to the same man, Skillen, who was then acting Superintendent. Back to Slaton, Dayton Elbert was advanced to be secretary to the Superintendent, and Warren Henry will be mail clerk.

Ford Announcement Stirs Curiosity

The announcement made last week from the manufacturers of Ford Farm equipment has stirred much interest all over the farming sections of the United States. The statement that the new developments would revolutionize the farming industry is not entirely reassuring. If farm procedure is not now enjoying—or suffering—a revolution, then it will need a lot of sympathy when revolution does come.

Power farming is rapidly eliminating much of the labor from the farms, and that means eliminating many families from farms. In one South Plains county 25 percent of the farm operators were eliminated between 1930 and 1935. Government census figures will be made in 1940 and a later check can be made on the eliminations. In the meantime, the South Plains is eager to see just what will be offered in the new line.

Miss Pearl Farschon returned Monday from a week end in Clovis, New Mexico with her sister, Mrs. Jim Foley, who returned with her for a week's visit in the home of her mother, Mrs. G. P. Farschon.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Smith and daughter of Cooper; Mrs. Ray Cathey of Eunice, N. Mex.; Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Hendrix of San Antonio are visiting Mrs. Delia Hendrix this week.

Dr. and Mrs. Sam Ball of Texarkana arrived Monday night about 11 o'clock to be with their son, Sammy, Jr., who underwent an emergency appendectomy at Mercy Hospital Monday afternoon.

Lloyd T. Sikes and son, Dewain of Exeter, Cal., are here for a month's visit in the homes of relatives. Mr. Sikes is the son of W. L. Sikes and a brother of Mrs. Delma Hodge and Bill Sikes.

Henry Rockwell of Houston, vice president of the Rockwell Bros. Lumber Co., was an overnight guest of Fagan Genn, local manager of one of the Rockwell yards, July 4th.

Claude Young, Jr., and his friend, John Hilton, were week end and July 4th visitors in the home of the former's parents. They are enlisted in the U. S. Army and stationed at Ft. Bliss. While here the young soldiers rode on one of the floats in Slaton's 4th of July parade.

Mrs. Douglas Keese and children returned Sunday night from Colorado Springs, Colo., after visiting a few days with Mrs. Sam Wilson's sister, Mrs. Cecil Sims. Mrs. Wilson remained for several weeks visit.

SLATON PHARMACY. Formerly Red Cross Drug.

Farming As Sport Seems Successful

C. E. Lilly farms his place a mile south of Slaton. Nearly everybody around here knows he lives there and some who pass by realize that somebody farms the place. But a visit however, brief to the place will convince that a real farmer lives there and makes things go.

A beautiful stucco house set in a grove of trees looks east to the older grove where the old house used to stand. Huge barns are located south of the house to make the place look like the kind of farmsteads you read about in the story books. There are fruit trees around the place; they always look good whether they get by the frosts and make any fruit or not. This week cherries are ripening, and during the writer's visit three boys galloped from one tree to another with the assurance of young Lilly, twelve years old, that "cherries won't hurt you" and grazed heavily on the purple globes.

Vegetable gardens flank the house and tall poles set by the REA stand sentry and hold the lines that bring electric light and power to a real farm. Though the farm lands are of sandy nature and nearly level so there has never been much run-off of water, they are terraced and the land is contoured and cultivated on the level.

With no particular bent for public speaking, Lilly remarked: he wanted to show his horses, of which he has a considerable herd. The sire is a huge black percheron, the writer guessed to weigh eighteen hundred pounds, and practically was red in the face when told the big fellow weighed two thousand sixty. Two big grey mares lead the balance of the herd with weights of eighteen and seventeen hundred each, questioning the question, "Are horses stylish enough to be profitable now?" Mr. Lilly allowed they were getting cheaper all the time and that since he had traded part of his Eastland County ranch for a half section of farm land near Abernathy, he'd have to get rid of some of them. He also submitted that it was so much less trouble to hitch up a tractor, he hardly ever used the horses in the farming operations.

Crops on the Lilly farm are as most of the crops around Slaton above average for the time of year. Cotton is up and cleaned out, having been cultivated once to twice. Feed is nearly all knee high and as clean as anybody's cotton crop. Moisture now in the ground is adequate for two or three weeks unless the weather is hotter than it has been even this month. Nothing is failing yet for lack of moisture, though no protest would be made if rains should come this month.

Lilly is active in the farm and other civic organizations in the county, has for years been a member of the school board and is president of the local Farm Assn. He has this week conducted examinations for compliance supervisors who will measure the farm land of the county beginning next week. Mrs. Lilly is active in the women's organizations and was busy with that once popular social manifestation known as quilting when callers interrupted. Farming seems to be an outdoor sport at the Lilly farm and it also seems to be a profitable commercial enterprise.

Business Depends Upon Credit!

Credit—commercial credit, in particular—supplies the capital required for business to turn sales into money required for operation, expansion, and profits. In this, every business and business house cooperates. This credit takes many forms, most important of which are: loans on merchandise, accounts receivable, stocks, bonds and mortgages; and discounting and re-discounting of notes. Each of these operations is a necessary part of modern business. Citizens State Bank is proud to be a part of this important system and offers you any business advice that its experience has garnered.

JEROBOAM: A MAN WITH A GREAT OPPORTUNITY

LESSON TEXT - I Kings 11:26-31, 37-40. GOLDEN TEXT - In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths. - Proverbs 3:6.

Strength of personality apart from good character will not assure success but will, on the other hand, cause only intensified failure and disaster. We may even add divine promises of blessing which are given on condition of right living, and the man of courage and strength without good moral or spiritual character will only dissipate both promise and power and will become what is even worse than a failure—a bad example and a leader of wickedness. I. Opportunity and Treachery (vv. 26-28). Opportunity misused may become a curse, but that is the result when a man takes what might be a blessing and turns it into a blight. The life of Jeroboam is a warning against such sinfulness and at the same time it offers us an occasion to encourage young people to make the most of their opportunities for the glory of God. That which commended Jeroboam to Solomon was that he was a man of courage and industry (v. 28). That combination will carry a man or woman to unlimited heights. The world is so full of timid and lazy folk, that the one who has a heart of valor and a willingness to work hard stands out in bold relief. Every sensible employer knows that fact and is quick to lay hold of and advance such an individual. Times are hard and work is scarce, but opportunity still knocks at the door of the boy or girl, man or woman who is brave and diligent. The sad thing was that there was treachery in the heart of Jeroboam. Had he been willing to wait God's time he would have received all that he did ultimately receive and more, but his strength of personality did not include good character, and he at once began to plot against the king who had given him his chance to develop and advance. Let us teach our young people to be loyal and true, as well as to be brave and ambitious. II. Promise and Condition (vv. 29-31, 37-39). God had reached the end of His patience with Solomon. He who had begun on his knees in the house of God, seeking wisdom that he might rule his people aright, had come to the end of his life in apostasy and in wicked indulgence of the wishes of his heathen wives. Through His prophet Ahijah, God made known the purpose to divide the kingdom into ten tribes and two—a separation which knew no reunion while Israel was in the land. Jeroboam was promised the ten tribes with the assurance of the great blessing which had been given to David, but this was definitely on the condition that he would "hearken—walk—do—keep" (v. 38) God's statutes. The fact that he failed only emphasizes the folly and wickedness of the man, for he went on his way to destruction in spite of opportunity and blessing. Men are doing the same thing today. Oh, that we who teach this lesson might be enabled to stop some such prodigal on this coming Lord's Day. III. Danger and Exile (v. 40). Although Jeroboam in accordance with God's promise did ultimately come to his throne, it was by way of danger and a flight into Egypt. Solomon determined to destroy him and Jeroboam had to flee into exile. If he had gone God's way to the throne and had abided God's time, he might have spared himself both danger and exile in a heathen land. Perchance some one who reads these lines is just now languishing in the exile of an Egypt of despair because he has failed to obey God. To such a one we say, do not follow Jeroboam who went from exile on to greater sin and sorrow. Turn back now, seek God in confession and contrition, and if need be, in salvation. Get back to God's way and enjoy His blessing. In making application of the lessons learned from the life of Jeroboam, let us not fail to point out that all down through the historical records he is referred to repeatedly as the man "who made Israel to sin." "Jeroboam's sins were not the sins of a common man. It is only kings, and kings' counselors, and popes, and bishops, and ministers, and elders, and such like, who can sin and make nations and churches and congregations to sin. But they can do it. And they are doing it every day. . . . The commonest and meanest man among us has more than enough of this terrible power of both sinning himself and making other men to sin" (Alexander Whyte).

To Be Saved

When a man is saved he is saved from something that does him harm. But that isn't all. He is saved to something that is good for him and everybody he comes in contact with.

Star Design Doilies Crocheted in String

Pattern 6350.

It's such fun to have a bit of crochet under way—something that's going to add beauty to your home! Get busy on these handsome star doilies. They're perfect for luncheon or buffet sets. And so easy to crochet in mercerized string. Of course they can be used separately to beautify occasional tables as well. Pattern 6350 contains instructions for making doilies; illustrations of them and of stitches; photograph of doily; materials needed. To obtain this pattern send 15 cents in coins to The Sewing Circle, Household Arts Dept., 259 W. 14th St., New York, N. Y. Please write your name, address and pattern number plainly.

HOT WEATHER BILIOUSNESS

Have you noticed that in hot weather your digestion and elimination seem to become torpid or lazy? Your food sours, forms gas, causes belching, heartburn, and a feeling of restlessness and irritability. Your tongue may be coated, your complexion bilious, and your bowel action sluggish or insufficient. These are some of the symptoms of biliousness or so-called "Tropical Liver," so prevalent in hot climates. They call for calomel, or better still, Calotabs, the nauseous calomel compound tablets that make calomel-taking a pleasure. Calotabs give you the effects of calomel and salts combined, helping Nature to expel the sour, stagnant bile and washing it out of the system. One or two Calotabs at bedtime with a glass of water—that's all. Next morning your system feels clean and refreshed, your head is clear, your spirit bright, and you are feeling fine with a hearty appetite for breakfast. Eat what you wish and go about your work or pleasure. Genuine Calotabs are sold only in checker-board (black and white) packages bearing the trade mark "Calotabs." Refuse imitations. Trial package only ten cents; family package twenty-five cents, at your dealer's (Adv.)

Oilcloth Folders for Your Cooking Booklets

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS
EVERY efficient kitchen has a book shelf. The paper back booklets that all homemakers love to collect may be placed in bright oil cloth folders so that they will make a brave show along with the bound cook books.

The prettiest folders of this sort that I have seen were made in green and yellow to match the kitchen color scheme. The diagrams given here show exactly how they were made.

The folders are stiffened with cardboard so they hold booklets of different sizes neatly. The cardboard should be cut the size of the largest booklet in the group. The fabric side of both pieces of oilcloth should be entirely covered with paste to make it stick smoothly to the cardboard. Letter or write the general subject of the booklets on a label and paste it on the back. Place the folder flat under something heavy until it is dry.

NOTE: Book 1—SEWING, for the Home Decorator, and No. 2, Gifts, Novelties, and Embroideries, are now 15 cents each, or both books for 25 cents. Readers who have not secured their copies of these two books should send in their orders at once, as no more copies will be available when the present stock is sold. Your choice of the QUILT LEAFLET illustrating 36 authentic patchwork stitches; or the RAG RUG LEAFLET, will be included with orders for both books for the present, but the offer may be withdrawn at any time. Leaflets are 6 cents each when ordered without books.

Everyone should have copies of these two books containing 96 HOW TO SEW articles by Mrs. Spears, that have not appeared in the paper. Send your order at once to Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplains St., Chicago, Ill.

'America,' Largest U. S. Boat, Is Launched at Newport News

Picture Parade
JULY 15 is the proudest day in American maritime history. On that day the "America," new flagship for the United States lines and largest liner to be built in this country, slides down the ways at Newport News. How is a modern steamship built? These pictures tell the story. Above: Scale drawings of each plate on the "America," were made on a 15-foot working model of the hull. These models were used in making full-size patterns of the plates. Right: The man who welds the plates electrically. Note his Martian-looking helmet, leather outerleaves and heavy gauntlets, weapons of protection.

Above: Blading the low pressure turbines. Some 15,000 of these delicate metal blades are required for the turbine casing shown here, arranged in semi-circular parallel rows. Some 15,000 more blades will be fitted into the rotor which fits into this casing. Left: An early construction picture at Newport News where seven cranes swung to and fro amid a clatter of riveting machines that would put most July Fourth celebrations to shame.

Finally, the christening and launching of the finished vessel. Scheduled to enter service next spring, the "America" is 723 feet long, 93 feet in the beam and 75 feet deep from the promenade deck. It will accommodate 1,219 passengers in all three classes, and a crew of 639.

★ So On Through Life
★ Rudy in Another Role
★ Ingenious Quiz Program
By Virginia Vale

IT BEGINS to look as if those girls who made "Four Daughters" what it was (with the aid of John Garfield), have a life-time job. They appear again in the new "Daughters Courageous" with him, and will shortly make "Four Wives." The studio had intended to have them do "Four Mothers" as the next of the series, but now the wives will come first. Of course, they could go on forever, becoming grandmothers, widows, and then possibly "Four Second Wives." Just see what you, the public, started when you acclaimed the three Lane sisters and Gale Page in that first picture!

In case you're interested in that picture Samuel Goldwyn has been making, bringing Jascha Heifetz to the screen, the title has been changed again. "Music School" has been abandoned in favor of "They Shall Have Music," which is going to be a bit harder on the men who fit the names of pictures into theater marquee.

When you see Brian Aherne in "Juarez"—if you haven't already seen him—you might pretend that you're a movie mogul and study his performance with the idea of offering him the role of "Christopher Columbus" in the movie version of that famous Italian's life. That's what Edward Small did.

On second thought, maybe you'd better not bother. For it would be a shame to do anything that would take your mind off the grand picture that Aherne, Paul Muni and Bette Davis made together. "Juarez" deserves all your attention.

For a long time it seemed likely that Rudy Vallee would be remembered as the man who started the "crooner" wave that swept over the country. Now it seems far more likely that he'll be famous as the fellow who discovered and developed more celebrities than anybody else.

Tommy Riggs, Edgar Bergen, Bob Burns—they're just three out of a list of more than one hundred radio celebrities who owe their fame to the chance that he gave them.

Those quiz programs, in one form or another, seem likely to go on forever, which is bad news for all the singers whom they have crowded off the airways.

One of the newest and most ingenious is that presided over by the two writers of mystery stories who sign their output "Ellery Queen." It's known as "The Adventures of Ellery Queen." Each week a mystery story is dramatized, with Mr. Queen and four guest detectives listening. As soon as Queen knows who the murderer is he stops the play, and each guest is asked to give his solution of the mystery. Then the dramatization is resumed and the author's solution given. It's lots of fun to follow from your own arm chair.

One of the radio singers for whom quiz programs hold no threats is Felix Knight, who's just had another renewal of his contract on that half-hour preceding the Vallee show. He appeared on it for one guest appearance, something like 81 weeks ago, and has been a regular ever since.

Lum and Abner are going back to their old home in Arkansas this summer, partly to make sure that they haven't lost their accents (as if they could!) and the homefolks are beginning now to prepare a proper celebration.

ODDS AND ENDS—"Tarsan Finds a Son," with little Johnny Sheffield as the son, is a lot of fun, and just about the time it was released Maureen O'Sullivan, who plays "Tarsan's" mate, was celebrating the birth of her first baby. . . Metro has once more temporarily postponed filming "It Can't Happen Here" . . . Now it's Benjamin Franklin whose life is to be screened. . . Joan Blondell gives her usual expert performance in "Good Girls Go to Paris, Too" . . . Whatever you do, don't miss lack Benny and his valet, Rochester, in "Man About Town." BAKED EGGS IN HAM NESTS
See Recipe Below.

Meals That Are Different

A slice of golden-yellow cheese with a time-mellowed sharpness of flavor is the perfect accompaniment for a piece of rich, juicy, apple pie—but all too often we forget that its usefulness doesn't stop there. There are so many varieties of cheese, and so many uses for each, that menu making with this versatile food is fun.

There are rich, full-flavored cheeses, cheeses with a tempting sharpness of flavor, and delicate, mild cheeses—cheeses to suit every taste, and for every use, from appetizer to dessert.

Because cheese is high in food value and comparatively low in cost, meals built around it are nutritious and economical, too. And if you're feeding a family that won't drink milk, remember that serving cheese is an excellent way of getting more milk into the diet, for most cheese is concentrated whole milk (or milk which has been partially skimmed).

This group of cheese recipes, which I've found temptingly delicious, will help you to plan meals that are different and very good to eat. There are new flavor combinations—the sharp tang of mustard added to the mellow taste of old cheese, pungent chives with cottage cheese, and an old favorite—ham and eggs with richly flavored cheese to bring out the best in both. These recipes, which have been tested in my own kitchen, are practical and easy to use.

Swiss Cheese French Toast.
8 slices bread
¼ cup butter
4 square slices Swiss cheese (¼-inch thick)
3 eggs
3 tablespoons milk
½ teaspoon salt
Dash pepper
Dash paprika
¼ cup butter
Remove crusts from bread. Spread one side of each slice of bread with creamed butter. Make sandwiches of cheese and bread, firmly pressing edges together. Beat eggs and add milk, salt, pepper and paprika. Melt remaining butter in a skillet. Dip sandwiches in egg mixture and fry in hot butter. When golden brown on both sides, remove from pan and serve very hot.

Macaroni and Cheese.
1 cup macaroni (uncooked)
½ cup grated cheese
1 teaspoon salt
Black pepper
2 tablespoons butter
¼ teaspoon paprika
1 cup milk
2 teaspoons prepared mustard
Break macaroni in short lengths, cover with boiling salted water, and cook until soft (25-30 minutes). Drain thoroughly, and place layers of the macaroni, grated cheese, salt and pepper in a baking dish. Dot with butter. Garnish with paprika. Mix the milk and prepared mustard together and pour over the macaroni. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) about one-half hour.

Baked Eggs in Ham Nests.
Baked or boiled ham
Eggs
English muffins
America cheese (grated)
Line custard cups with thin slices of baked or boiled ham. Drop a raw egg into each cup, and bake them in a moderate oven, 325 degrees Fahrenheit, 15 to 20 minutes, or until the eggs are done. Split the muffins, toast them, then sprinkle each half generously with Hot Cheese Dreams.

(Serves 4-5)
6 slices bread
6 slices American cheese
½ cup chili sauce
6 slices bacon
Remove crusts from bread. Toast one side of each slice. On the untoasted side place a slice of cheese and a tablespoon of chili sauce. Cut bacon slices in halves and arrange two strips of the bacon on each sandwich. Broil until the bacon is crisp and brown. Serve with small sweet pickles.

grated cheese. Return to a moderate oven, 325 degrees Fahrenheit, to melt the cheese. Remove the egg and ham nests from the custard cups and place one on each muffin half. Serve immediately.

Cheese Souffle.
(Serves 5)
1½ cups milk
1 cup soft bread crumbs
1 tablespoon butter
½ pound American cheese (sliced thin)
4 eggs (separated)
¼ teaspoon paprika
2 drops tabasco sauce
¼ teaspoon salt
Combine milk, bread crumbs, and butter in the upper part of a double boiler and heat. Add the cheese, and stir until the cheese is melted. Beat egg yolks until very light, add paprika, and tabasco sauce, and gradually stir in the cheese mixture. Add salt to egg whites, beat until stiff, and fold into a hot cheese mixture. Pour into greased baking dish and bake in a slow oven (300 degrees Fahrenheit) for 1 hour and 15 minutes. Serve immediately.

Tomato Jelly Salad With Cottage Cheese.
4 cups canned tomatoes
¾ teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
1 bay leaf
½ cup celery (chopped)
1 tablespoon onion (chopped)
4 whole cloves
2 tablespoons gelatin
½ cup water
¼ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
Combine the tomatoes, salt, pepper, bay leaf, celery, onion and cloves. Cook gently for 10 minutes and strain. Soak gelatin in cold water and add to the hot tomato mixture, together with Worcestershire sauce, stirring well. Chill until set. Turn onto a large platter and serve with cottage cheese with chives in lettuce cups.

Appropriate Draperies
Linen, chintz and homespun draperies are appropriate in a colonial room, such as early American bedrooms where poster beds, patchwork quilts, hand-hooked rugs and roomy mahogany highboys furnish charm. Rooms furnished after the Southern colonial manner in lovely Chippendale, Sheraton or Heppelwhite pieces need find damask or satin draperies and upholstery.

Scratched Furniture
If furniture becomes scratched take a small paint brush, dip it into iodine and paint the place marred. When dry, polish with any good furniture polish.

Uncle Phil Says:

When to Shelve Patience

Patience isn't much of a virtue when it is spent in waiting for something to turn up.

The two most beautiful things in the universe are the stary heavens above us and the feeling of duty within us.

A high degree of education sometimes makes a man contemptuous of the rest of us.

It Pleases Him More
It is much easier for a woman to mend her husband's clothes than his ways.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste. Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fall to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery. Symptoms may be nagging headache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination. There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills.
