self, and is stricken to the earth.

II. A Convicted Sinner (vv. 3-9).

Stricken down by a brilliant heavenly light, he finds himself talking to the Lord Jesus. He hears from

His holy lips the solemn indictment

In a single sentence the Lord disposes of the persecuting zeal and the sinful skepticism of this proud young Pharisee, and Saul enters into Damascus not as the haughty persecutor, but as a man trembling and astonished at his own sin. He spends three days shut in with his own soul and God, not seeing, not caring to eat, losing all consciousness of earth, but entering into communion with God. By God's grace the old life is pulled up by the roots as it is displaced by the new life in Christ Jesus.

III. An Obedient Disciple (vv. 10-

12)Ananias was the "I am here, Lord" type of Christian to whom the Lord can confidently commit His important business. All we know of him is what is contained in this chapter, but it is a very beautiful and enviable record. God is able to work directly on any human soul and accomplish His end (as He did with Saul on the Damascus Road), but His usual manner of working is through faithful human agencies. One wonders how much would be accomplished for God if every Christian were as willing and ready as was Ananias to do the Lord's bidding in seeking out and helping a struggling soul. The greatest of all Christian leaders, the apostle Paul, was led out into his life of loyalty and service to Christ by a humble layman. Repeatedly God's Word by precept and example stresses the vital importance of personal work on the part of laymen and women. The leaders of Christian work during the coming generation are now in the Sunday School classes of our churches, perhaps in a little wayside chapel in the country, in the village church, in the mission or settlement house, or in the great city church. IV. A Converted Brother (vv. 17-

19) The fears of Ananias that Saul might still be a worker of evil (v. 13) are soon overcome by God's assurance that in the praying Saul He had prepared for Himself "a chosen vessel" (v. 15) to bear the gospel to the Gentiles and to kings, as well as to Israel. It is interesting to observe that Saul knew nothing of that subtle hypocrisy known as being "a secret believer," for at once he made open confession of his faith in baptism. and "straightway he preached Christ in the synagogues that he is the Son of God" (v. 20).

Secret Prayer Life It is possible for a Christian to accomplish more for the Kingdom of Christ by a faithful secret prayer life than by the most public active life without it .- John R. Mott.

CONSTIPATED? Don't Let Gas, Nerve Pressure Keep You Miserable

When you are constipated two things happen. FIRST: Accumulated wastes swell up the bowels and press on nerves in the disse-tive tract. This nerve pressure causes head-aches, a dull, lary feeling, billous spells, loss of appetite, and dissiness. SECOND: Farity digested food starts to decay forming GAS, bringing on sour stomach, acid indigestion, and heartburn, bloating you up until you sometimes gasp for breath. Then you can't eat. You can't sleep. Your stomach is sour, You feel tired out, grouchy, and miserable. Adlerika gives you the DOUBLES ACTION you need. This efficient carminative cathartie relieves that awful GAS almost at once. It usually clears the bowels in less than two hours. No waiting for overnight relief. Sold at all drug stores

When Billie Burke broke her ankle she was considerate enough to pick a perfect time in which to do it. She tripped as she was leaving the "Maiden Voyage" set, and snap went the ankle. But it happened that all of her walking shots had been made. She was due just to sit in the rest of the picture anyway.

How'd you like to look ahead to taking a beating? That is what Walter Pidgeon has been doing. For 'Six Thousand Enemies'' is slated as his next picture, and the script calls for him to be soundly beaten by one of the six thousand-with a husky pugilist selected by the casting department for the role. Pidgeon has been using his spare time between scenes of "Penthouse" to practice up a bit, but he is none too optimistic about his own skill, even though the script does put a limit on the amount of damage that is to be done to him.

Fred Allen is one of the few radio stars who does not own a farm. He hasn't a car, either; he prefers to live in a hotel and ride in taxis. Most of the big-time radio stars feel that they can't get along without a country home. Frank Black, Paul Whiteman and Benny Goodman have farms in Pennsylvania; Lanny Ross and Lowell Thomas each own acreage in New York state; Tommy Dorsey's place is in New Jersey, and Morton Downey's in Connecticut, And if you don't believe that they really turn into farmers whenever they get a chance you ought to hear

Those radio introductions are likely to go haywire, as did one in which Pat O'Brien was involved the other day. He went to the midget auto races in Hollywood with Norris Goff, who is "Abner" of radio's famous "Lum and Abner" team. Barney Oldfield, the former auto racing champion, introduced them as follows: "Norris Goff, better known as 'Abner' on the radio, and Pat O'Brien, who plays 'Lum.' " age to speak out, through its department of state. It has said the Hitler action in overpowering the peoples of Europe, the minority races, is a dastardly thing. There was nothing else that could be done about it. Secretary Hull and Under Secretary Welles, of the department of state, have left no doubt in the minds of other nations, however, that we, as a people, are angry about what Hitler has done. But again: we can do nothing more than protest, because the United States has no business going to war over some other nation's troubles. But while our state department has been getting on record with its disgust, and there has been a great to-do about strengthening our national defense just in case trouble would break out and involve us, Washington bureaucrats and some selfish elements in congress have been foiling correction of our greatest weakness. President Roosevelt has used his most patriotic voice to force action by congress in development of airplanes for defense, in construction of new battle boats and has moved strongly for production of equipment, guns, and the like.

friendly and none can see any reason for that friendship ever to be disturbed, "no man can forecast the future."

"The shortage of nickel," said the report, "might be a weakness sufficient to determine the issue of a war."

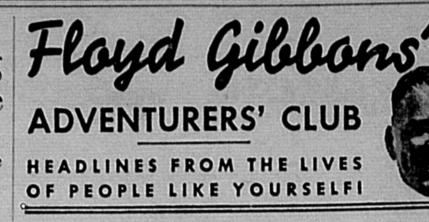

I discussed this question of war essentials with various members of the house-Representative Murdock of Arizona, Representative Francis Case of South Dakota, Representative Scrugham of Nevada, among others. To a man they said that the will of congress was being thwarted by bureaucrats who are unwilling to encourage American industry. Mr. Scrugham, for instance, a former governor of his state and a mining man, told how the bureau of mines had reported there was no worthwhile nickel deposits in Alaska. The same agency has found no reason to encourage American capital to develop manganese deposits in the United States. Mr. Case has been trying to get congressional action on measures to get some use of the metal deposits of South Dakota, but always selfish corporate interests. seeing no further ahead than the

"Siberian Melodrama"

HELLO, EVERYBODY: Here's a yarn that sounds as if it might have happened out in the old Wild West when two-gun hombres fought it out in the streets and booted and spurred cowpunchers cleaned out dance halls with well-directed volleys from their six guns.

I don't know whether those things ever happened out in the West. All I know is what I see in the movies. This incident I'm going to tell you about sounds like the West, but it happened way over in the eastern part of Siberia, and it happened to Samuel C. Taylor of New York City.

You know, we had troops in Siberia for a couple of years after the World war. Sam Taylor was one of them. He was with a platoon of 60 men from Company D, Thirty-first United States infantry, stationed at the little Siberian town of Uglonaya. The town itself was nothing but a railroad station and a few houses. The soldiers were living in half a dozen box cars that had been taken off their wheels and set on the ground beside the track. But though the town was small it was affording plenty of excitement.

It was about the middle of January, and for days the Americans had been watching an army go through the town. It wasn't a hostile army-but at the same time it wasn't a friendly one either. It was a Bolshevik army moving to attack Vladivostok, not far away as distances go in Siberla.

Sam says there were thousands of them, well equipped with machine guns, and lugging enough field pieces to blow those 60 Americans and their box cars to Halifax. But they couldn't be bothered with the Americans. Taking Vladivostok was more important.

Sam Acted as Provost Guard at the Station.

On the afternoon of January 18, Sam was acting provost guard at the railroad station. It was a bitter cold day. A cutting wind was sweeping past the station and Private Pat Strong, on sentry go, was stamping up and down the platform. Two Bolshevik troop trains had strong enough to suggest dictating terms to the Reich, whose economic position had grown intolerably weak. Then, overnight, all semblance of "policy" collapsed. The events, in sequence:

(1)-Hitler grabbed Czechoslovakia, whose boundaries were guaranteed last autumn by France and Britain. Mr. Chamberlain said it was no concern of his.

(2) Two days later Mr. Chamberlain suddenly whipped about-face, accusing Hitler of dishonesty and unwarranted aggression.

(3) Russia, for 15 years unwelcome in British circles, was asked to join London in a pact to "consult" in case of future German aggression.

(4) Britain reversed its course again and made no protest when Hitler occupied Memel, whose ownership by Lithuania was guaranteed by British-French signature of the Memel statute.

(5) Britain backed down on its pact with Russia, refusing any stronger measure than the useless "consultive" treaty,

The substance of these disjoined events is that Britain's "appeasement" policy has given way to no policy at all. It can well be doubted that London sincerely hoped its Russian overtures would have more than a temporary jolting effect on German territorial ambitions. For Britain still wants nothing to do with Moscow: in fact, the fondest Tory hope is that Germany and Russia will eventually lock horns, fighting out the issue of Naziism versus Communism to the ruin of both,

Britain will be happy so long as Hitler drives eastward, confining his ambitions to such objectives as Danzig, the Polish corridor and Rumania, ultimately reaching into the Russian Ukraine to invite war with the Soviet. This conclusion is inevitable because the most concrete result of Mr. Chamberlain's umbrella waving thus far has been a French-British military pact to aid Switzerland, the Netherlands and Belgium against German aggression.

Congress

Europe's Czechoslovak and Memel crises (see EUROPE) have brought quicker, more definite reaction in the U.S. than most people realize, Last January, when President Roosevelt made timid suggestions that the present neutrality law should be changed, a terrific up-roar ensued. The same uproar returned when he asked a special $358,000,000 defense appropriation a few weeks later. But the new Eurov pean situation has brought a remarkable show of inter-party solidarity, admittedly temporary, but strong enough to give France and Britain a strong moral support and warn Reichsfuehrer Hitler that he is not wanted on the western hemisphere:

(1). Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles received both Democratc and Republican praise for his

Mr. Murdock's statement causes me to ask the question: since it is our national policy (at present, at least) to spend billions of dollars under the guise of making work, why not designate some few of the millions for worthwhile national development?

Reference was made the other day to testimony given two years ago before the senate finance committee. I looked it up and found that the late Francis P. Garvan, then president of the chemical foundation, had caused an investigation to be made of Alaskan metal resources. The report brought in bya Wisconsin university professor, who did the searching and digging on the ground, makes one wonder what undercurrent of influence has prevented the development of metal claims, such as nickel and tin, up there. Very few of the national legislators knew of the testimony,

Buying for Reserves Would Start Brand New Industries

In my conversations among Rocky Mountain congressmen, I could not avoid the conclusion that capital funds held in the United States will not be put to work on such things without some encouragement from officials in Washington. I know that some representatives and senators are of the opinion that the federal government ought to offer to buy these war essentials here and disregard foreign sources. They believe that a commitment to buy for reserves, if made by the federal government, would start brand new industries going in many, many parts of the United States. All of the while, however, we have the bureau of mines and the war department sitting back and making it hard for Americans to develop America. This whole situation would be hardly worth analyzing were it not for the facts: 1. The federal government is spending billions for defense, along with other billions that are being wasted, and, 2. It is a measure of safety to have all, or as much as possible, of the things we would need, in event of war, where they can be handled by Americans for Americans. And it is more important, too, because numerous reports' have reached Washington in the last year to the effect that German, or Belgian or British capitalists have been making overtures to holders of American mining claims for operating leases on properties that yield such things as essential war metals. It is my belief that sooner or later congress will learn that the bureaucracy, which it created, has wasted too much time; it will learn that foreigners own all of the metal resources here-and we will be buying back the finished material at the prices foreign monopoly cares to establish-just as we are now by " just pulled in on a siding, and Bolshevik soldiers had crowded into the station where they could buy hot tea and vodka. And as Pat Strong paced up and down the platform a big Russian said something to him in Russian. Pat couldn't understand him. He came to port arms while the Russian stormed and gesticulated, and finally grabbed Pat's gun. Pat tried to pull the gun away, but the Russian was a powerful brute. He spun Pat around and threw him in a snow bank. A couple more Americans came running up. He threw them into the snow bank, too, and made a mad dash for the station.

That's where Sam came into the picture. As provost guard, he rated a sentry box down at the end of the platform. He saw the fight just as the Russian broke loose and started into the station, and he came out on the run. With the other three Americans at his back he started after him.

Says he: "I went bursting into the station as if the whole U. o. army was stepping on my heels. That station was full of Bolshies, singing, talking and yelling. Lots of them had rifles, some of them had hand grenades tied to their belts. But I didn't have time to look over the grenade situation just then. That big Russian had found himself a rifle. I was five feet inside the door when I spotted him, but he must have seen me first because he was raising his gun.'

It Was a Question Who Would Shoot First.

Sam had a .45 automatic, and it was a question of whether he or the Russian could shoot first. Without even taking time out to think, he whipped that automatic up and let go. The big Russian dropped. For an instant there was a dead silence in the station. "Those Ruskies were surprised," says Sam, "and so was I. For a second-well-I almost opened fire on the whole bunch of them, but I caught myself just in time."

It was a tough spot and Sam knew it. Here was a whole roomful of wild Russians and he had just shot one of their pals. If he started out the door, some of them would be sure to begin shooting. If that happened, there'd be general disorder, with 60 Americans fighting a whole troop train full of Bolsheviks. And what was more to the point, it would be curtains for Sam.

"I had to use my head," he says, "and I decided I'd bluff them. I stood in the middle of the floor, waved my pistol over their heads and pointed to the door. And then happened the thing that probably saved my life. In swinging my arm I tightened my grip on the pistol to keep from dropping it. And in doing that I squeezed the trigger too hard. BANG! Off she went again. That bullet struck somewhere behind the bar and down came a lot of glassware."

Sam says the falling glass created a terrible racket. The Russians must have thought a shell had burst in there. They turned and stamneded for the door, and Sam says they went through it like a Kansas tornado. In ten seconds there wasn't a Bolshevik in the place.

"And where were the other three fellows?" says Sam. "They were outside, turned into a rear guard. When they heard those shots inside and saw all those Ruskies piling out, they ran for camp to tell the others the Russians had eaten me alive and were coming to cat them, too."

Sam says he certainly did NOT feel like a hero when he went into that station. He just didn't have time to think about it. "It was only after I got inside," he says, "that I realized I was in a swell pickle. I've often thought afterwards, suppose I hit one of the grenades those Russians had tied to their belts."

Boy, that WOULD have been an adventure. Copyright-WNU Service.

CORTUNATE indeed is the brideto-be who is planning a lovely spring wedding, in that fashion is not setting down arbitrary rules in the matter of bridal array but rather is encouraging fancy-free individual choices.

This departure from stereotyped traditional dress is particularly evidenced in the matter of color. The prospective bride who has secretly cherished the idea of an eye-appeal ing subtle tint for her nuptial gown and veil instead of traditional white,

As to the styling of the gowns, sentiment runs high in favor of fullskirted types with quaint, fitted bodices or hiplength basque effects. There is a pronounced flair this spring for exquisitely sheer weaves for both bride and maids, such as marquisette, mousseline de soie, or nets of sheerest type.

As to lace for the wedding gown it is ever a favorite the more so this spring in that enthusiasm for lace is so general throughout all fashiondom. The gown pictured fits into the springtime wedding scene with queenly grace. Its artful soft styling brings skirt fullness to the

It's Pretty to Wear And Easy to Make

I SN'T the dress with paneled skirt and lifted waistline (No. 1716) a lovely thing for larger women to wear? It's so simple, so soft and slenderizing, with a bodice that fits perfectly, because the shoulders are shirred and the waistline gathered. Make this of silk crepe, georgette, chiffon or flat crepe. Wear flowers or a jeweled pin at the becoming, deep vneckline.

For slim figures, the bowtrimmed bolero frock (No. 1705) is particularly flattering, and it's new as tomorrow morning! The dress, even without the bolero, is a real charmer, with its high neckline, flaring skirt and tiny waist. Thin wool, flat crepe or silk print are pretty materials for this.

The Patterns.

No. 1716 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. With long sleeves, size 38 requires 5 yards of 39-inch material; with short sleeves, 4% yards.

No. 1705 is designed for sizes 12. 14, 16, 18, 20 and 40. Size 14 requires 4¼ yards of 39-inch material, and 11/2 yards of ribbon for bows. To line bolero takes 13% yards.

Stagecoach Welcome Visitor

One of the most thrilling events in the community in the early days was the appearance of the stageland Plain Dealer. The bride either wears white orchids or carries roses in the pink of her gown, while the attendants' flowers are of deeper hue. Call for Plaids

No matter how entrancing her gown, a bride fails at looking her prettiest if her headdress and veil do not flatter. Here again is fashion indulgent to the spring bride, in that the new fantasies of tulle and flowers and lace include every possible type, suited to every individuality. Best of all, in the modern way of doing things there is no fuss or flurry at the last moment to get the veil pinned into shape by nervous unskilled fingers, for that has been taken care of in advance by specialists. All that is required of the bride-to-be is to take her milliner into confidence long before the happy day or the consulting adviser in the wedding bureau where you are supposed to come and ask questions, as established nowadays in all highclass establishments. If it is a period type, or a youthful ingenue headdress, or a stately coronet, if it be a simple inexpensive piece or a most elaborate one let your needs be known and by some magic, it's there before your very eyes.

The various types of headdress shown in the little inset pictures are typical new trends such as are available in shops and specialty departments that cater to seekers of bridal array.

and named Mrs. Forrest president. Now there are only three other charter members residing here, Mesdames A. B. Robertson, A. L. Robertson, and J. S. Edwards.

With stern resolve and honesty of purpose, this group has withstood discouragements and failures, to contribute much to the spiritual and material growth of Slaton.

Believing that, "We are called to share the best we have," they have accomplished much in a material way; securing an organ for the church; aided in building the church and both parsonages; provided interior decorations and furnishings for the church and parsonages at various times and adopted Jewel Hughes from the M. E. orphanage at Waco, clothing and educating her.

Missionary in Mexico

Miss Vada Gilliland, missionary in Mexico, was a member of the Methodist church when she gay her heart to the cause.

The missionary society donated a fund for the State University dot mitory in Austin and many of the members have been honored for their outstanding work. Mrs. S. II. Adams' name was placed upon the Belle Bennett Memorial in Nash ville, Tenn., and the society has its name in the book of Remembrance at this same memorial. The most recent undertaking of the Missionary Society is the furnishing of the lovely new parsonage completed last year.

From 1928 to 1934 Mesdames A. E. Whitehead, J. F. Merrill, R. H. Todd were presidents, then Mrs. J. E. Eckert served for four consecutive years.

Cemetery Road To Be Paved

County Commissioner Ben Mans ker announces that within th next thirty days paving will b begun or road leading from the highway Englewood Cemetery, the total distance to be paved being 202 Met. A twelve inch caliche base has already been laid and impacted, so little additional preparation will be required before the hard surfacing can be done. This is a project that has been sorely needed, but was hardly hoped for by Slaton people and Commissioner Mansker's success in getting approval comes as a distinct, but pleasant, surprise to many who have had to use the road under extremely unfavorable weather conditions.

AMERICAN LEGION AUXILIARY

The Women of America bord their full share of suffering and service which was necessary to make possible America's World War victory. For nearly every man who endured the hardships at rigors of camp, ship and battlefield, there was a woman at home living through long months of agonizing anxiety and pinching sacrifice. For every man serving at the front a woman was serving at home in support of his endeavors. After the war had been won and the men of the armed forces had banded together in The American Legion to carry forward their service to country in time of peace, it was natural that the women of their families should desire to continue serving with them. The results of this desire is the American Legion Auxiliary, the largest and most influential organization of women in the United States today. Established 1919 The establishment of the Womans Auxiliary was provided for by the first national convention of the Legion in Minneapolis, November 10-12, 1919. On November 1-2, 1921, the national constitution and by-laws Mercy Hospital were adopted with the followin Preamble:

Four years ago the wives of the Santa Fe shopmen banded together, took the name, Santa Fe Recreational Club, and the motto, "Wear a Smile and Be Worthwhile"-for the sole purpose of promoting friendship among the families of the shop craft.

The birthday of each member is observed by the presentation of a gift from the club and Friend Husband is the honoree at each quarterly meeting.

This year the yearbooks are a work of art, being made by Mesdames Grant, Kenney, Young, and Gerron , and bearing attractive handpainted covers.

This April that is just entering the calendar, the club will sponsor weekly 42 parties to add to their other treasuries, is ever in need of repletion.

Annually they give their pledge of $200 by means of their rummage sales, July 4th concessions, and serving the banquets and Rotary luncheons given periodically. Then they have been known to give the college boys some stiff competition selling subscriptions to the blatonite and Holland's magazine. But where they really do themsolves proud is at the yearly Band banquet when everyone gathers to cobble and gaze at this famous bunch of musicians.

To Have Flags Now every band needs a flag, and a good band should have more than one; and a superb band is justy entitled to three-how many do you think that the Band Mothers are getting for their little boys? Right! in the near future they will be waving United States, State and school flags!

Last year the club took the band to the National contest in Abilene and paid $2000 for the beautiful new uniforms that make all the girls go ga-ga whenever one heaves into view. Those caps for the baton girls were provided by them, too, and they must look pretty good, then again, it may be what they rest upon that gets the attention-anyway-it's a sight for tired eyes to see the band, bought and paid for by the Band Mothers, swing ino view on any avenue.

Bride's House On View At New York Hotel

ORE alive with color and freer in design than ever before. House M Beautiful's sixth annual Bride's House is open to the public at the Savoy-Plaza Hotel in New York.

This year the Bride's House is made up of five separate houses (35 rooms in all) ranging in size from two to six rooms, excluding kitches and bathroom. All five houses take inspiration from the various periods, although the eighteenth century pervades more generally than any other.

This being a year of color-tangerine, dramatic greens, blues, brilliant golds and reds predominate, blazing their way through the entire house. Basic in the decorating scheme is that color be made to flow from room to room, fusing them all into an harmonious whole. Thus, the gray damask curtains in the mirror room of one of the houses (the Devont paves the way for the gray walls of the room beyond; or the trace of chartreuse in the piano chair's satin seat finds its counterpart in the carpet of the living room.

The Kentwood Living Room of the "Bride's House"

Among the many decorating innovations, the most daring is that of using color schemes in five of the rooms as backgrounds for five distinct feminine types: blonde, chestnut, brunette, titian and silver gray. There are hostesses in these rooms to illustrate the striking color affinity possible with proper make-up.

The five houses, in order of size, are called the KENTWOOD (rooms) : yellow damask living room, gold striped dining room, blue stripe bedroom, man's bedroom, green library and guest room; the DEVON (E rooms): mirror room, gray living room, dining room, camelia and study; the PENNFIELD (3 rooms): modern living rooms ing room and peasant bedroom; the BEDFORD (21/2 rooms)? blue living room and bedroom.

Miriam Thompson, talented, young American decorator, planned the Bride's House, 'ending all her efforts to the living, dining and ballooms, while other experts decorated the kitchens and bathroums. Miss Thompson borrowed a pattern from her own life and supplied the he
