A WEEK AT A TIME

by J. M. RANKIN

PULL IN YOUR EARS

Pull in your ears. The season is open for fakers, hot-checkers, grafters and skin-em-alive peddlers. Every fall when the seasonal crop money starts in West Texas—or any other part of the world for that matter—the grafters get on their horses and start an intense drive for cash. In exchange for that cash they are willing to give coft talk, high powered salesmanship, oily lies or any other commodity that has no cash value. Nearly everybody will meet one or more, and most of us will be sucked under once this fall. Refer strange solicitors to the Retail Merchants Secretary patronize door to door peddlers at your own risk, and accept checks from strangers if you can spare the money. Others do. Why not you?

NO FLOODS

Occasionally West Texas has a tornado that lasts a few minutes. Sometimes there are lives lost and often much property destroyed. But rarely is it more than a hour before rescue and rehabilitation begins. The unfortunate cities and countryside in New England not only suffer destruction and death, but several days of the storm aggravate the conditions and make it extremely difficult to carry aid to those who have been rendered homeless in the floods. Our section of the country has its deficiencies but flood is not one of them.

TRANSFERING LOYALTY

Having lived for nine years in the shade of a fine American Elm tree, we had about decided that would be our favorite tree. But seeing J. C. Burton's row of black walnut trees on South Eleventh makes us wonder if we hadn't better change. The walnut is substantial and hardy, not liable to frost damage, has rich beautiful foliage and resists pests. Grows as fast as elms and lives longer than any can hope to live. Anyway if we had a black walnut in the back—or front yard, we wouldn't cut it down.

FAIR WEEK

Charley Guy is out gallivanting around in California so we hasten to throw in a few words in favor of the South Plains Fair that is showing this week. And we mean showing. And showing something. There are horses and cows and pigs and hogs. Some of tremendous size and others famous for quality as well as size. There are samples of the best that West Texas can produce in the way of farm crops and livestock—and when it is the best West Texas can produce we mean it is the best in the world. You can't go to any fair anywhere and see better stock than are to be seen here. And the same goes for the other departments. And if you just want to go out for a heck of a good time, we recommend the fair for that. Two more days left. Do go.

EUROPEAN DEMANDS

Europe may at least begin to adjust herself to Hitler's proclaimed demands which he states are the end of his demands there. But he made no guarantees that he would not make demands for annexation of American territories. There are counties in Texas that have heavy German population. We hope Hitler does not move to annex them and hold plebiscites in them.

BACK YARD GARDENS

We got into one of these back yard gardens last week. Dr. E. C. Foster in a moment of inadvertence invited us to come and bring a paper sack or two. We did. He loaded us up with one-eyed peas and tomatoes and okra

Kid's Day At Fair Attracts Throngs

Ah but Wednesday was a day! Ten thousand children were there by ten o'clock, and more crowded in every minute of the day until nightfall when it seemed the grounds were full. Wednesday was Kid's day at the Silver Jubilee Edition of the Panhandle South-Plains Fair. Even if you didn't have much of a fair you could always get a crowd out to a free show, but when a fair is built on twenty-five years of experience and prestige as this one is—well, you've really got something then.

At eight o'clock, school buses began passing through Slaton, northbound. The perfect fall weather had things fixed so there was no excuse for staying away—except cotton gathering and when weather is perfect, there is no hurry to get all the cotton picked in one day. So they went to the Fair. They tromped up and down the Midway, they looked at the cows and gaped at the high horses and goggled at the fat hogs. They went to the sideshows and drode the concessions. Some got lost and bawled for mother and some got lost and mother bawled for them. All in all a good time was had by all.

But Kid's day didn't use up the fair. There are still two more days. Today and tomorrow. If you don't make it there one of the two days, you won't have another chance for a year.

W. E. Hinson Died Sunday Night

W. E. Hinson, farmer, 62, a native of Alabama, and a resident of Slaton since 1915, died at his home east of the city Sunday night. He was buried Monday afternoon after funeral services at the local Assembly of God Church. He is survived by his wife, five sons, Monroe, Ernest, Percy, Elmer, and J. D., and two daughters, Mrs. Bertie Meyer, and Mattie Lee, all of Slaton. A sister, Mrs. Eddie Hinson of Waco was present for the funeral.

Danielle Cites 20 Ways To Say, "I Love You"

There are twenty different ways of saying those three popular monosyllables, "I Love You!"

So says Danielle Darrieux, dainty denoiseille of the French cinema who is making her American screen debut in the star role of Universal's "The Rage of Paris," which comes to the Palace Theatre on Tuesday and Wednesday. She manages to squeeze most of the twenty into her present film.

"One of the sincerest ways to say 'I Love You,' is with your eyes," says Mlle. Darrieux. "They speak a language of their own."

La Darrieux scores heavily there. Already 50,000,000 Frenchmen have voted her eyes the most beautiful in all of the world, and 50,000,000 Frenchmen can't be wrong!

The school girl, Danielle asserts, can whisper "I Love You" in a tremulous voice accompanied by shy blushes and other evidences of embarrassment to get results whereas "Miss Sophisticate" through inflection of her voice can give the phrase an entirely different meaning.

The Sweetest Way
"The 'I Love You' of the sweetheart, and the 'I Love You' of the wife, differ widely," says the star who at 17 fell in love with and married Henry Decoin, noted French writer. "But when the sweetheart is the wife, the expression is the sweetest thing in the language," she adds.

"Say it any way you want to, but when you do say 'I Love You,' say it with sincerity."

In "The Rage of Paris," Mlle. Darrieux is cast as a French girl, jobless and hungry in New York, who takes a job posing in the nude for a famous artist and then goes to the wrong address. She is disarming when the owner of the place, a handsome young advertising executive walks in.

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., is co-starred with La Darrieux as the "ad" man, Mischa Auer and Helen Broderick are featured comics and Louis Hayward is Fairbanks' rival.

Oil Mill Reopens After 30 Days

Slaton branch of Claytor and Anderson oil mills will begin operation October 3 after a shut-down lasting since August 29, during which time necessary repairs to machinery were made and new cotton seed were received.

Recent idleness of operation came after a 31-day work period and some carried-over seeds were left from last season to be crushed after October 3 along with fresh material from this season's cotton crop. New seeds have been coming in periodically this week. Roy Mack, manager, says he expects enough new seeds to come in from now until October to open the season of operation on a full-time basis.

About 75 men on the Slaton payroll will work three, eight-hour shifts. Mack expects a much shorter season this year, decreased about 65 per cent by shortened acreage and damage done by insects. Seed prices, he says, in comparison with prices of other farm products are somewhat higher than they were last year.

Carruth Narrowly Escapes Death In Flames Monday

H. L. Carruth narrowly escaped a flaming death when his feed mill went up in a blaze late Monday afternoon. Carruth, owner of the mill located at 400 North Ninth street, had poured three gallons of gasoline into an engine and evidently left some in the can which was near the machine's exhaust, he explained later.

A spark evidently set off the gasoline tin when he attempted to crank the engine. Carruth found himself virtually cut off from escape by a rising sheet of flame. Escape barred through an open door, he dived through a glazed one injuring his head. He also sustained head and hand burns.

Loss was estimated at $1,900, partly covered by insurance.

Wild Week-End For Slaton Motorists

Minor Auto Mishaps Cause One To Wonder

It was a wild night for Slaton motorists. Even a wild week-end. But especially Friday night when the Tigers went to Snyder and a lot of Slaton fans along for company. Five—nay, six automobile mishaps marred the otherwise untroubled joy of the Slatonites over the win of Tiger over Tiger. First and least the Slatonite staff reporter had a flat. Supt. Joe Webb left somebody back into his car at the Western Union station. Smashed fender. Billie Rust managed to burn out the condenser in her and her father's car. Rodney McReynolds managed to ditch his transportation, but got it out practically whole. Clyde Rowe thought he was driving an annual oiler and burned out four rods. Mr. and Mrs. Irby Smith started home with light hearts, only to be side-swiped by a truck. Door ripped off, driver (Irby) thrown out, car rolled over into the pasture. All able to get home next morning, but Mr. and Mrs. Smith went to San Angelo Monday for X-Ray examinations.

G. B. Alford went to Plainview Saturday and a gay, carefree motorcyclist motored right into the middle of the car. Motorcycle practically wrecked and car badly damaged. No insurance. Sunday night about eight o'clock Shorty Greenfield of Post, returning to Post from Levelland in a pick-up met a car from Goldthwaite headed north. Both were on the same side of the road. Head-on collision with no serious damage to people but plenty to radiators and front ends of automobiles.

Some people wonder if the automobile will ever be a success.

Slaton Defeats Snyder, 18 - 0

The Slaton Tigers had a rough time of it in the Snyder game Friday night. They defeated the Snyder machine by an 18 to 0 win.

Dickson ran 56 yards for the first touch-down. The try for point failed. A pass of 27 yards from Tucker to Stotts in the second period was another touch-down for the Slaton eleven. Again in the second quarter, another pass from Tucker to Austin was good for six points.

First downs for Slaton were 11, Snyder, 6. Slaton had 3 penetrations to Snyder's none. Slaton attempted 8 passes, four being good. Snyder attempted 12, 5 good and two intercepted. Fumbles for Slaton were 7 and those recovered 6. Snyder fumbled 4 times and recovered 5.

Slaton sent in 12 substitutions to Snyder's five.

The outstanding players for Snyder were: Shield, Popejoy, Keller with Hagrove as Captain.

The Tigers have a two-week lay off before they tackle White Deer here the 7th of October. The White Deer game promises to be a real football game, and probably the strongest Slaton will tackle this season.

Called Cotton Loans May Get Delay

Lubbock—Sale of cotton involved in Commodity Credit Corporation loans which are being called in a number of West Texas counties may be postponed until at least April 1st, according to a proposal made by the Honorable George E. Rathell, Secretary-Treasurer of the Commodity Credit Corporation, from Washington, in a meeting with a committee of producers in Lubbock Monday.

The producers committee, representing about fifteen West Texas counties and headed by Mr. Joe M. Rose of Dickens as chairman, requested of the Commodity Credit Corporation in presenting their case to Mr. Rathell that no liability be placed on the producer. Mr. Rathell did not approve this request but made a tentative proposal for the Commodity Credit Corporation under the terms of which the suggested postponement of sale would be made until April 1st, prior to which time plans for a final disposition of these loans might be made.

Mr. Rathell stated that in any event none of the cotton involved in these loans which are being called would be sold by the Government until he has had time to return to the Washington office and confer with his associates and submit a report to the committee headed by Mr. Rose of Dickens.

Mr. Rose stated that when the Commodity Credit Corporation had reported to him he would advise the members of his committee and the County Agents in the territory involved.

The particular cotton now involved in this matter includes cotton stored at Haskell, Hamlin, Lorenzo, and Snyder as well as cotton formerly stored at Jayton.

'Sell-Out' of Czechoslovakia Fails to Erase War Dangers

By Joseph W. La Bine

Foreign

A month ago, long before Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler challenged the world at his Nuremberg Nazi congress, before Geoffrey Dawson's London Times editorialized on the advisability of giving Germany her way, Great Britain showed signs of weakening in the struggle to keep Czechoslovakia intact. All summer her Viscount Runciman had tried to make peace between Prague and 3,500,000 Sudeten Germans who wanted autonomy and eventual annexation by Germany, yet nothing was accomplished. Moreover, though Britain was pledged to aid France, who has a pact with Czechoslovakia, it has long been apparent that what England wanted, above all, was peace.

Fortnight ago, as Berlin and Prague veered on the edge of war, Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain took his first airplane ride, speeding to Fuehrer Hitler's chalet at Berchtesgaden in a desperate effort to stave off a conflict that would certainly involve all Europe. Next day he flew back, hastily calling his cabinet into session. To France went an invitation: Would Premier Edouard Daladier and Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet come to London for a conference? They would, and did, rushing across the channel like hungry dogs after a bone.

By this time it was apparent Europe's two greatest democracies

PREMIER MILAN HODZA
He was down, but not out.

were playing ball with Adolf Hitler, were willing to sacrifice Czechoslovakia to keep Der Fuehrer satisfied. After a week-end's study, the French statesmen went home. A few hours later, from simultaneous cabinet meetings in London and Paris, came announcement of the scheme that spelled Prague's doom.

The scheme: (1) Cession to Germany of Sudeten areas in Czechoslovakia which are overwhelmingly German; (2) a plebiscite to determine future status of Sudeten areas where German population is more than 50 per cent; (3) international guarantee of Czechoslovakia's remaining boundaries.

It was plain that Prague had been sold down the river without a hearing, since the British-French plan received French cabinet approval before Czech Minister Stefan Osusky was officially notified in Paris. When he finally was told, Minister Osusky's lips trembled as he asked newsmen: "Do you want to see a man convicted without a hearing? Here I stand."

Though immediate responsibility for the sell-out was directed first at Neville Chamberlain, observers soon placed it on France's doorstep. Actually, Premier Daladier had inspired the English conversation with Hitler, had urged Britain to back down on Franco-British agreement of April 29 to defend Czechoslovakia. But whatever the cause of this capitulation, it probably cost both Premier Daladier and Chamberlain a good-sized chunk of public support. As before, democracy had capitulated before the bluff of a totalitarian state.

Still left to straddle was Czechoslovakia's unequivocal opposition to the scheme. Shouted Premier Milan Hodza: "In the name of the lawful authorities of this state I declare that . . . the government will defend completely the integrity of the state. A plebiscite would be unacceptable." While Hungary and Poland began looking for liberation of their minorities in Czechoslovakia, while Soviet Russia considered coming to Prague's aid, a moot question was whether the orphaned nation might not become another Spain, in which Communistic Russia and Nazi Germany would furnish the manpower for a civil war.

Business

In the U. S. last year were $65,648,000,000 in securities wholly or partly exempt from federal income tax. Of these, $50,522,000,000 were eligible for assessment if the U. S. should change its mind about exempting government securities (federal, state, local). In 1937, this investment brought security holders an estimated $1,544,000,000 interest, which at the 4 per cent normal tax rate would yield $62,160,000. Actually, the tax would be higher, since most exempt securities are held by individuals and corporations paying a higher tax rate.

For years, men have run for office on a promise of outlawing tax exempt securities, and next winter's congress will have a chance to fulfill the promise. Backed by White House favor, new tax measures will include not only this feature, but also a plan for levies reciprocally arranged on salaries of state, local, federal officers. Still uncertain is a proposal to broaden the tax base by including lower income brackets.

Labor

Mushroomed in little more than a year from 20,000 to 400,000 members, C. I. O.'s United Automobile Workers of America is headed by Homer Martin, one-time preacher, is run by young zealots who split last June into two factions accusing each other of communistic leanings. Result was President Martin's dismissal of three vice presidents and a secretary-treasurer, temporary suspension of another vice president.

Fearful lest his pet union be torn asunder, disliking U. A. W.'s publicity, John L. Lewis finally secured Homer Martin's permission to intervene after the latter insisted U. A. W.'s autonomy be preserved. To Detroit went C. I. O.'s Sidney Hillman and Phillip Murray for a two-week study.

Outcome was labor peace, temporarily at least. Though Homer Martin won his autonomy plea, he gave in on other points, allowing Peacemakers Hillman and Murray to decide whether U. A. W.'s suspended officials shall be reinstated. In the future, they will help U. A. W. settle inter-union squabbles.

Politics

Among candidates in Pennsylvania's primary election were Philadelphia Mayor S. Davis Wilson and Gov. George H. Earle, both running for Democratic senatorial nomination. Candidate Wilson lost, was subsequently indicted for misconduct in office by a grand jury summoned by Candidate Earle. In another phase of the campaign, Atty. Gen. Charles J. Margiotti ran for gubernatorial nomination, using as campaign fodder the charges that Governor Earle had extorted money from state contractors and employees, and "sold" legislation.

Appointed to investigate was a Dauphin county grand jury. Almost immediately Governor Earle sprang into action, summoned the legislature and rushed through special bills which would defeat the grand jury's investigation, would instead leave the quiz up to the governor's hand-picked legislative committee.

Fortnight ago this committee met, yawning politely over six days of perfunctory testimony. Not until Accuser Margiotti himself took the stand was there much interest. His testimony: (1) That Governor Earle's administration leaders had "sold" legislation to beer and movie interests for $150,000; (2) that Governor Earle prompted him to go ahead with the probe of Philadelphia politics; (3) that the governor had borrowed money from Matthew H. McCloskey Jr., contractor working on many state jobs. When Witness Margiotti had finished, administration critics admitted he had been permitted to speak more freely than they expected.

Still to be heard from were scores of witnesses including State Rep. Charles Melchiorre, Philadelphia Democrat, and Governor Earle himself, whose senatorial campaign will be decided a bare two months hence. Also to be heard from was the state Supreme court which is deciding legality of the legislature's "rubber stamp" bills, one of which would remove District Atty. Carl B. Shelley from supervision over the grand jury quiz. In his place would be Atty. Gen. Guy K. Bard, a governor's appointee. Moreover, no one knew if the grand jury would be permitted to investigate before the legislative committee concluded its hearings.

Medicine

Hand in hand with hard times goes poor health, an outgrowth of public inability to pay doctor bills. Since Depression, government has supplied health service to relief clients, but thousands of borderline cases have gone unaided. Last July, President Roosevelt called a public health conference in Washington, where envoys of the potent American Medical association fought a federal plan for compulsory sickness insurance. Their reason: A. M. A.'s historic opposition to socialized medicine.

But medicine, like other professions, has suffered with depression. Since a crisis loomed, since the national health conference offered other proposals less disfavorable to highly ethical U. S. doctors, fortnightly ago A. M. A. called an emergency meeting of its house of delegates at Chicago.

A. M. A.'s PRESIDENT ABELL
Ethics appeared to be changing.

Opening day they heard Dr. Irvin Abell of Louisville, Ky., president, explain that A. M. A. "has constantly opposed any attempt on the part of . . . governments to make medical care a political issue." They also heard President-elect Rock Sleyester of Wauwatosa, Wis., whose state house of delegates had just recommended a trial of sickness insurance, warn that: "It is . . . our duty to oppose in every way . . . unsound doctrines."

Second day, delegates voted to take every concession government offered, so long as government was sickness insurance, which would work like social security. Favored were: (1) Hospital service insurance, particularly as a community project; (2) extension of U. S. public health service; (3) creation of a federal department of health; (4) disability compensation; (5) help for indigent.

Wherever government must be mixed with medicine, A. M. A. favored local and state control. Explained a resolution: "The role of federal government should be principally that of giving financial and technical aid."

If A. M. A.'s resolutions showed a trend to changing ethics, an even greater trend was shown in the suggestion offered by Dr. Charles A. Dukes of Oakland, Calif., who wants district groups of physicians to advertise their service and its cost. Though it never reached a vote, the Dukes resolution received approval of a committee on miscellaneous matters, indicating what may be expected at A. M. A.'s next annual convention.

Domestic

Massachusetts sent 3,200 delegates campaigning for the 1940 convention. Wisconsin's 700 carried milk-pails and Maine sent Rudy Vallee, who joined the navy at 15 and was sent home sick. Thus, at Los Angeles convened 150,000 members of the American Legion. Before the week-long meeting opened, most fireworks had exploded. Resolutions were mostly against isms and aliens, and Chicago was virtually assured the 1939 convention. Slated for certain election as national commander was Stephen F. Chadwick, Seattle attorney, whose three opponents withdrew one by one.

War

In Spain, where Europe's Czechoslovakian crisis was bound to have an effect, Germany reportedly withdrew much of her war equipment from Generalissimo Francisco Franco's insurgent army, while all fronts settled down to watch the game of diplomatic chess being played by Britain, Germany and France. Only action was at Spanish Morocco, where 35 died in a loyalist uprising, and at the Ebro front, where loyalists recaptured trenches previously taken by rebels. Hopefully awaited at Barcelona, where air raids had just killed 31, was an agreement by combatants to cooperate in preventing future civilian bombardments.

● In China, while one invading Japanese force reached within 75 miles of besieged Hankow, nine Nipponese warplanes flew over Canton and made five direct hits on the Stout Memorial hospital, operated by the American Baptist mission. Shanghai harbor, which once teemed with warships of all lands, showed by a nose count to have no British vessels, two French, three Italian, two American, seven Japanese.

● In Palestine, 13 British air force planes clashed with rebelling Arab tribesmen, killed 130 to write another chapter in the Holy Land's war between Jews, Arabs.

Aunt Tibby's Trunk

By D. J. WALSH
Copyright—WNU Service.

"BUT, Mazie," remarked Bert Howard to his pretty little wife, "it isn't quite fair that Aunt Tibby should want to come back so soon; it's less than three weeks since she left, and she had been here six months. I have no objections to your aunt; she's a nice old lady, if a bit eccentric, but you always work so hard entertaining her that you wear yourself out. Between worrying over her comfort and fussing about the safety of that old cowhide trunk, home becomes a place of torment for me instead of a haven of rest."

And then Mazie, whose bobbed crown of glory was decidedly of the shade beloved by Titian, and with a temper to correspond, replied thus: "If you were properly interested in the welfare of your family you'd want to keep Aunt Tibby here all the time! Do you fancy that she herself would be so particular about that old cowhide trunk, as you are pleased to call it, if it didn't contain valuables? She told me—no, I won't say she exactly told me, but she gave me to understand, and, I know all the family have the same impression—that in it she carries her stocks and bonds. She has bequeathed the trunk to the one in whose home she happens to die."

"Mazie!" exclaimed Bert, putting his arms around his wife, "waiting for 'dead men's shoes' is some business! Do what you can for your aunt without making your family unhappy, but put all such ideas as you've just mentioned out of mind; they are unworthy of you!" and Bert stopped to kiss his wife good-by.

The first evening of Aunt Tibby's arrival Mazie began, "Barbara! do sit still! You'll make Aunt Tibby nervous!" or "John! don't walk so heavy!"

Aunt Tibby had been with them several weeks when she came down with a cold. The doctor called pronounced the trouble pneumonia. "Which at her age," said he (Aunt Tibby was 86), "is a serious matter. You had better get a nurse." Aunt Tibby had been so humored by her niece, however, that the nurse could do little to suit her, and Mazie was obliged to fetch and carry, to run up and down stairs until, ten days later, Aunt Tibby sank into her last sleep.

After the funeral the relatives who had gathered from far and near demanded that the will be read at once. So the old cowhide trunk was brought down to the living room and opened in the presence of all. It contained Uncle David's army uniform, a few books, half a dozen packages of old newspapers—and a long letter written by Aunt Tibby herself. This was addressed to her relatives in general and was a sort of confession. In it she stated that her income since Uncle David's death had been limited to a pension of $6 a month. That in some way the story had been circulated that this old trunk contained valuables and she had never contrationed out of mind; they are unworthy of you!" and Bert stopped to kiss his wife good-by.

Too often, we are inclined to look upon traffic guides and regulations as irritating restrictions designed primarily to keep us from having a good time, when the truth of the matter is, they have been devised solely for our convenience and comfort.

The trunk was left with Mazie, as she was the only person who displayed the least desire to possess it. After everyone had departed she threw her arms around her husband's neck and cried, "Oh, Bert, can you ever forgive me?" Judging by the sigh of contentment she uttered Bert's answer was satisfactory.

Aunt Tibby was right; the trunk did prove a magic casket for Mazie. It stood in the upstairs hall where she had to pass it many times a day and whenever she was seized with envy, stubbornness or a desire for fiery she could not afford, one glance at the old trunk was sufficient to dispel such feelings in a twinkling.

On the Highway

It is a curious trait in human nature that we will take off our hats when a woman enters an elevator, and be most apologetic if we bump into somebody inadvertently; but the instant we get our hands on a steering wheel we damn all mankind—woman and man alike.

Lesson for October 2
THE ONE TRUE GOD

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 20:2, 3; Isaiah 45:22; Mark 12:28-34; I Corinthians 8:4-6.
GOLDEN TEXT—And thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thine heart and with all thy soul, and with all thy might—Deuteronomy 6:5.

Today we begin a series of studies which should be of unusual value, a consideration of the Ten Commandments in the light of the teachings of Jesus and related New Testament passages. It is appropriate to point out that, far from being out-moded, the Ten Commandments are really the basis of all moral law. They need a diligent re-study and re-emphasis in our day of disregard of moral standards. As interpreted by the Lord Jesus and applied to our daily living, the truth of these commandments should be brought home to every boy and girl and man and woman in our Bible schools.

The lessons begin at the right point, for the first commandment properly deals with our conception of God. What a man thinks about God determines his entire outlook on life. We begin right when we declare that there is but one God.

I. The Truth Stated—There Is One True God (Exod. 20:2, 3).

Jehovah means "I will be what I will be," or "I am that I am." (Exod. 3:14). His very name declares God to be the self-existent, eternal one. How infinitely gracious then is the use of the word "thy" in verse 2! He—the great I AM—is my God.

There are many things concerning which we do not speak dogmatically. There are even Christian doctrines about which spiritual and earnest men may honestly differ, but regarding God we say with absolute assurance and complete exclusiveness—there is but one true God. If He is what He claims to be, if God is not to be declared to be a liar, then it is beyond the realm of possibility that there could be any other God. Hear it, ye men and women of America who in an enlightened land and age bow down in heathenish worship "before the god of gold, the god of self, the god of wine, the god of success, the god of fame, the goddess of pleasure, the god of licentiousness." The one true God says, "I am Jehovah . . . thou shalt have no other gods before me."

II. The Truth Explained.

1. God is our Deliverer (Exod. 20:2). He who brought Israel out of the bondage of Egypt is the one, and the only one who can deliver men from the bondage of sin. If you think that a sinner is not in bondage read Titus 3:3 and Romans 6:16 and then read the verses following in both passages, and not only see but follow the way of deliverance.

2. God is our Saviour (Isa. 45:22). Again note that "there is none else" who can save. "Neither is there salvation in any other; for there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved" (Acts 4:12).

It was this verse that led one of the world's greatest preachers, Charles Haddon Spurgeon, to accept Christ as his Saviour when he was just a humble lad. Perhaps some boy or girl who reads these lines may do likewise, and become a great instrument in God's hand. Teacher, perhaps the Spurgeon of the next generation will be in your class today. Win him for Christ!

3. God is Love (Mark 12:28-34). In I John 4:8 the truth is stated in all its glorious simplicity. "God is love." He not only loves us, and calls on us to love Him, and enables us to love both Him and our neighbors, but He "is love." Love is of the very essence of God's nature. He is the source of all true love. He is love.

It was for this reason that Jesus replied to the question of the scribe as He did, directing the whole life of man into love toward God and his fellow man.

It is worthy of careful note and emphasis in our teaching that the recognition and appreciation of this truth on the part of the scribe brought him near to the Kingdom of God, but not into it. He was "not far from," but he was not in it. It is terrifying to think how close men may come to entering without doing so. Reader, have you entered into eternal life through Jesus Christ?

4. God is our Father (I Cor. 8:4-6). Paul is speaking of the eating of meat offered to idols, and points out that such false gods are really nothing. This is true not only of the idols of wood and stone, but of supernatural beings, demons worshipped by primitive peoples. There are such spirit beings, active even in our day in such cults as spiritism, but they are not divine, not true gods (v. 5).

The true God is a Father, yes "the Father," of whom are all things and we in Him (v. 6). As there is but one God, there is also but one Lord, Jesus Christ through whom the one God has wrought all things, and through whom we also come to God. If we have Christ we have all; if we have not Him we have nothing. Is He your Saviour?

SYNOPSIS

Young Rex Hale calls on Casper Kneeland, friend of his father, in New York, and finds him proudly successful but strangely preoccupied. He tells Hale of his wife's death while insane, invites him for the summer to Halcyon Camp, his home on Long Island, and promises him he will be "useful" as his secretary there. Hale is joined at lunch by Fred Ainsworth, an unpopular college mate, also at Halcyon, who leaves him with a feeling of unpleasant mystery. He is met at the train by Mrs. Wilbur Nash, whom he questions about the message, and experiences a disturbing premonition. The premonition is barely eased by the comfortable hospitality of Hosanna, Kneeland's elderly sister, and her friend, Ruth Forbes, middle-aged sophisticate. In his room, Hale finds a soiled paper, printed, "This place dangerous." Hale meets the rest of the strange group—Dr. Craig, psychiatrist friend of Bert Kneeland, nervous young son of Casper, and beautiful but moody Joan Kneeland, niece of the house. Ainsworth drops in at his room, questions him about his reactions, and tells him of Bert's hopeless love for his heiress cousin, and that Mrs. Forbes is down and out. The whole group seems to get on each other's nerves. Later, Hale sees Hosanna furtively meeting a shabby man in the woods. The maid tells of the recent poisoning of a cat and dog.

CHAPTER II—Continued

Under the stare of Craig, Joan flushed and then spoke quickly, as if reaching for a verbal life-line.

"I've promised Mr. Hale a race with you," she said. "Why not have it now? From here to the shore. I'll be referee."

"All right," Craig spoke without much interest, but he took in the young man with one of his X-ray glances, as Hale mentally classed them. Both men rose and stood ready for the start.

"Dive when I say go," Joan directed. "Swim any way you like so that you reach the shore." Suddenly her voice was full of vitality and the exuberance of youth. "One, two, three. Go!"

Hale and Craig went into the sea on the last word. A second later they were shooting through the water side by side. Hale had not expected an easy victory. Now he was disconcerted to see Craig's dark head already a trifle in advance of his own. No reserve in the doctor's kit, so far. He was plainly putting in his best efforts from the take-off, and counting on the shortness of the race to hold them to the finish. Hale quickened his stroke, came abreast of Craig, and held his place there. To his deep disgust he could not pass his rival. Craig was plainly having a good time. He had even sent Rex a flashing smile as he passed him. The smile seemed a strange phenomenon on that dark, rather dour face. It lingered, too, as Craig again gained a few inches of headway. Hale could see it as he set his own teeth and called on all his reserve strength.

Craig, apparently, was out to beat him and to break all records from float to shore. The sleek dark head gained a few inches more. That would not do. It would not do at all with Joan Kneeland looking on. Desperately Hale called on the fighting heart that wins victory when hope is gone. The shore was close now—a matter of a hundred feet away, of fifty, of twenty. The two heads, his and Craig's were on a line again. He saw Miss Hosanna and Mrs. Spencer Forbes, motionless on shore, watching them. That infernal head was still on a line . . . His heart seemed to fill his chest. His lungs were bursting. His eyes were starting from his head. For an instant he saw nothing. In the next instant the firm sand of the beach was under his feet. He staggered through a few yards of water, fell, rose again, fell once more, and finally cast himself flat on the dry sand, breathless and gasping. Simultaneously something flopped beside him, gasping also. Miss Hosanna and Mrs. Spencer Forbes hurried toward the two prone figures, then tactfully stopped and hesitated. Hale expelled a few mouthfuls of water, and feebly turned his head to meet Craig's eyes. Both young men grinned sheepishly. On a common impulse each waved away the hovering women who again tentatively approached.

"Apologies, Hale," Craig brought out the words with difficulty when he had caught his breath. "I forgot that pneumonia of yours. It wasn't a fair contest, but you won." "Nothing like it. I'm sure you were here when I landed." "It was a tie, if I ever saw one—the prettiest tie you can imagine." The irrepressible Mrs. Spencer Forbes had joined them at last. "My thanks, kind sirs," she drawled. "You gave us a real thrill." Both men sat up. Both were wobbly, but both were still grinning. Craig became professional. "Any brandy in the bath-houses? Hale is looking a bit blue." Miss Hosanna produced a small flask. It was her excellent habit to carry this to the beach in case of chills, she explained. Her friend supplied congratulations and tributes. Craig handed the flask to Hale, and ordered him to take a stiff drink. He also took one himself.

"Lie flat on the sand," he ordered, "and let the sun beat on you. Oh, yes, I'll be mighty glad to lie down again, too. That wasn't a fair proposition," he amplified.

Hale laughed that off. The two lay down in perfect communion of spirit, while Mrs. Spencer Forbes prattled on, and Miss Hosanna offered more brandy. "Asinine of me to set that pace," Craig muttered. He seemed really concerned. Hale found himself rather liking the man. It had been a fine race. Mrs. Wilbur Nash strolled up, looking flamboyant in a scarlet bathing suit and cap. The Nash cub, in the background, revealed his meager frame in a one-piece garment of somber black. Joan appeared from the water and congratulated the swimmers. Ainsworth and Herbert added themselves to the little group, which began to take on the character of an assemblage. Craig ordered Hale to lie still a bit longer. He himself also sprawled contentedly on the sand, making no effort to contribute to the brisk conversation of the spectators.

"I'll back Hale to best you in the same match within two weeks," Ainsworth told Craig. Hale shook

"What I really want to know," Mrs. Nash admitted, "is how you like the people you're with."

"I like very much the person I'm with now."

"All right. But you can't carry on with me as you do with Mrs. Spencer Forbes. I'm a respectable widow with a son who has high standards for his mother's conduct."

"Has a scandal started in 18 hours?" Hale was amused.

"If it had, it wouldn't be anything new. The people in this lonely neck of the woods haven't much to interest them. They're talking their heads off about Halcyon Camp."

"What are they saying?"

"You're asking me?" Mrs. Nash smiled. "Well, they're saying for one thing that everyone in the house hates everyone else. I suppose we must except Hosanna. She's a good old soul, and of course she's fond of her brother and her nephew and niece. But as for the others—I've watched these people ever since they came here the first of May. I'm in and out all the time. There's something queer about them. I don't know yet what it is, but I don't like

CHAPTER III

At the house Miss Hosanna soothed him with hot oyster stew and womanly sympathy. He had done a foolish thing, she told him. She sat beside him before the fire in the living-room and watched him enjoy the stew. Hale gulped down the stew, kissed Miss Hosanna's plump hand, which wriggled in surprise under such attention, and went up to his room. Rose had been there. It was in perfect order. But as he approached the davenport between the windows, to stretch himself out and take the recommended nap, something caught his eye. It was something white, tucked partly under the davenport's silk-covered pillow.

He drew it out. It was a square white card. He looked at it frowningly. This time there was no writing on it, but it held its message nevertheless. In the center of the card, drawn with pen and ink, was an elaborate skull with cross-bones. It was a more literate offering than the one of the night before. The a languid head and advised Ainsworth not to waste his money. Then he forgot Ainsworth and all the rest of them. Joan had sat down beside him.

"I'm ashamed of myself," she confessed. "I forgot completely."

"It was great fun. Did me no end of good."

Hale sat up, and steadied his swimming head. With a strong effort of will he grinned at the concerned look in her vivid eyes. "He'll brighten our lives a little longer," Mrs. Spencer Forbes predicted. "I assume you weren't really trying to kill him off, Joan. One with a less trusting nature than mine would certainly think you were doing that. Has she anything to gain by your death, my lad?" she asked Hale.

"Only the removal of an obstruction from her path," Rex admitted. "I expect to be there a good deal."

Miss Hosanna did not like such jokes and told her Ruth so. The party began to disintegrate. Joan returned to the water with Herbert and Craig. Ainsworth and Mrs. Spencer Forbes watched them from the shore. Ainsworth, Rex suspected, did not like water much more than the cat he resembled. Mrs. Spencer Forbes believed in keeping her blue bathing suit dry till the last possible moment. She strolled along the water's edge with Ainsworth, looking remote. Ainsworth's unpopularity with every member of the family was increasingly noticeable. Hale wondered why the devil the fellow continued to hang around. Miss Hosanna, with surprisingly white plump legs in ample view, was walking along the beach apparently investigating seaweed. Out on the float the Nash cub flocked by himself, practicing dives. His mother joined Hale and sat down beside him.

"Well," she asked alertly, "how do you like it?"

"It's great—and not too cold for one fresh from sunny climes."

"I don't mean the water. I mean life at Halcyon Camp?" Before he could reply she added, "Everybody's wondering how you will like it."

"Who's everybody?" Hale asked lazily.

"My son and I. No one else counts," the lady added.

"I'm having a great time," Rex testified. "Look at me. Yesterday I was a lonely orphan. Today I'm a guest at Halcyon Camp. There's contrast for you—and you ask me how I like it!"

That man Ainsworth, for example. He has some hold over them—some power. It sounds melodramatic, but it's true. They all hate him like poison, yet they let him stay on. Why? It worries me. I'm afraid of him. I'm afraid for Joan. She's awfully changed from what she was last year. She was the gayest young thing!"

She turned toward him and laid her brown hand on his arm. Her face was very serious.

"Mr. Hale, I'm hoping you will be a sort of guardian angel to her."

Hale laughed.

"That's a large order."

A sudden memory shot into Hale's mind. "There's work for you," Kneeland had said. He hadn't said what work it would be. Hale had no chance to say more now. Miss Hosanna suddenly appeared with hospitable words and gestures. She insisted that it was time for him to go into the house and have a nap before luncheon. He must admit his recent exhaustion and take care of himself. Hale got up willingly, staged an impressive parting with his companion, and left for the bath-house. Mrs. Nash's conversation had been a trifle heady.

card was clean. The sketch was well done—was, in fact, quite dashing. It could hardly have been made or left by the same hand that had written and conveyed the first message. Or could it? Hale didn't know. It irritated him. It wasn't funny. It wasn't disturbing. It was merely annoyingly childish nonsense. He wished whoever was back of it would let up. He tore it in two, dropped the pieces into the wastebasket, and simultaneously dropped the card from his mind.

He slept till he was awakened by the luncheon gong. He brushed his hair, shook the sand out of his new tan shoes, and went down to the dining-room. To his relief no one asked him how he felt. They had some tact, then. He was not to be regarded as a semi-invalid. He found Miss Hosanna, Mrs. Spencer Forbes and Joan alone at the table. Craig, Miss Hosanna said, was in his laboratory—a little room which had been fitted up or him at the top of the house. A tray had been sent to him there. He often worked in his laboratory from the bathing hour till tea time.

Charcoal of Ancient Trees May Date Culture of Indians of the Middlewest

Indian culture of the Middlewest and of Illinois, which University of Chicago anthropologists have shown to have been in existence at least 2,000 years ago, may be dated definitely to the exact year by study of charcoal from old campfires and burned village sites, Dr. Fay-Cooper Cole, chairman of the university's department of anthropology, said in announcing a novel research project.

The usefulness of the tree-ring method is now being determined by Dr. Florence Hawley, recently appointed research associate in anthropology. Doctor Hawley, who has proved that the tree-ring dating method is workable by using charcoal found in mounds and camp-sites, this week began field activities in Wisconsin.

Doctor Hawley's demonstration that charcoal remains of trees is as useful for dating purposes as are timbers and stumps, opened up the possibility of dating the middlewestern cultures. In the Southwest the dry climate has preserved timbers in buildings for centuries, but the moister climates of this section has rotted all early timber and tree stumps except those which have been burned into charcoal.

Doctor Hawley is gathering specimens of tree cuttings and borings from standing trees and stumps. These specimens, with the charcoal found by university expeditions will be used to compile a "master chart" of the region.

The Name Doris

The name Doris is of Greek origin. Two authorities agree on it. But when it comes to the meaning of the name, these same authorities disagree widely and strangely, for one says that Doris means "a sacrificial knife" and the other that it means "of the sea." No reason is given for the first meaning. The second is explained by the fact that in Greek mythology Doris was a sea goddess, daughter of Oceanus and Thetis and mother of the sea nymphs.

Doris is also the name of a small mountainous district of Greece and of a genus of mollusks. So it may likewise be a Greek word for a sacrificial knife. But as a name, it would seem that "of the sea" is the more logical meaning.

PAIN

Get rid of it

When functional pains of menstruation are severe, take CARDUI.
If it doesn't benefit you, consult a physician. Don't neglect such pains.
They depress the tone of the nerves,
cause sleeplessness, loss of appetite,
wear out your resistance.

Get a bottle of Cardui and see whether it will help you, as thousands of women have said it helped them.
Besides easing certain pains, Cardui aids in building up the whole system by helping women to get more strength from the food

Safety Warning To Parents, Teachers

Austin—State police voiced warnings today to parents and others charged with the safety of children to provide for their safe transportation to and from schools.

Safety officials particularly urged that drivers of vehicles transporting school children use caution in discharging their passengers. Never permit them to alight from automobiles or buses except at the curb nearest the school or other destinations, they warned.

Capt. Homer Garrison, Jr., assistant director of state police, declared that precautions should be taken this school year to avoid the recurrences of tragic accidents that, last year, killed 106 children between the ages of five and fourteen and injured 1,087.

He urged that teachers instruct their students in safety particularly as to their conduct while walking or riding to and from classes. Capt. Garrison said parents and instructors alike should be able to forestall many school traffic accidents by warnings to:

Cross streets only at intersections, and then only after making sure that no vehicles are approaching.

Be guided by school patrols and other direct school traffic.

Not play games while walking to and from school and walk only on sidewalks.

Be particularly careful when retrieving footballs, baseballs and other paraphernalia from streets as most accidents to children happen at those times.

A number of Texas schools have adopted traffic safety subjects as a requirement for their students, Capt.
Garrison said. The state safety department, through its safety education bureau, is assisting them with this type of instruction.

BOARD of CITY DEVELOPMENT and CHAMBER of COMMERCE NEWS

RAYMOND LEE JOHNS, MANAGER

It was the sense of those present at the regular meeting Tuesday night of the board of directors that on some of the streets in the city trees were causing a great deal of discomfort to those who use the sidewalks. It was suggested that a good idea would be to trim trees that are causing such walking hazards.

The parking situation along the west side of the city square is a point in question at present. The east lane of 9th street running north and south in that particular block has been designated as the State Highway. Saturday nights especially that section is occupied by trucks and automobiles alike, causing a serious driving hazard as well as congesting the highway. Plans are to prevail upon the correct authorities and ask for curbing along the center of the unpaved section of the block, with paving in the east half of the present unpaved portion and metal knobs along the center of the lane indicating it as a State Highway, which adjustments would relieve the area from parked automobiles and give a clear highway passage through the city.

A Better Housing program formulated by the Manager and presented to the board at Tuesday's meeting was accepted in part and approved. With few desirable houses for rent now available in Slaton and an influx of newcomers, we believe the favorable upgrade climb of the city in commercial, industrial and civic progress warrants sore need of such a program. Literature pertaining to FHA loans and better housing and improvement advantages will be gathered and made available for distribution at the Chamber of Commerce offices in the City Hall.

Slaton's five gins have reported rather favorably on this week's business. Cotton is coming in rather rapidly and ginner report a better than average turn out for line cotton. Up to about three o'clock Wednesday afternoon some 429 bales had been ginned in Slaton, with exception of figures one gin did not disclose.

A publication of interest to game hunters was received in the office this week from the Game, Fish and Oyster Commission of Texas. Several copies of the bulletin called "Digest of Game,

CIVIC AND CULTURE CLUB

The Civic and Culture Club met, in regular meeting, in the home of Mrs. M. A. Pember on Saturday afternoon September 24th.

The club's president, Mrs. R. H. Todd, presided over the business session.

For which, Mrs. W. R. Lovett, program chairman for the afternoon, took charge of the meeting.

As a part of the program concerned Ireland and Scotland, each member answered roll call with an Irish joke or a verse from some Scottish poet. This was very interesting and provoked much laughter.

Mrs. Lovett told us Why the British Isles is the seat of one of the strongest governments in existence.

Mrs. S. H. Adams discussed Ireland as it was centuries past, and as it is at present. Mrs. Raymond Johnson talked about Scotland. She shamed us for always speaking of the Scottish people as "penny pinchers," and pointed out the fact that they were a sturdy race, capable of great romance and fidelity to each other. That they have given us some of the greatest poets and theologians of all time.

After the club adjourned, Mrs. Pember served a dainty refreshment plate, which still reminded us of the Irish.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. R. G. Shankle, on the second Saturday in October.

JUNIOR CIVIC AND CULTURE CLUB

The Junior Civic and Culture Club met at the home of Mrs. Walter Hord Tuesday night, Sept. 27.

Miss Edith Marrs, leader of program, assisted by Miss Waller, gave Fish and Oyster Laws of the State of Texas" are now available.

Smart New Fashions For Fall and Winter

BOTH these dresses are so pretty and so simple that you will want to make them up several times, in different colors. And with such beautifully simple designs, whose whole charm is a matter of line, you can use colors as gay as you please, now that gay colors are smart, and they look so pretty in the fall.

A Charming School Dress. This is a classic style in which growing girls always look pretty. The snug waist and flaring skirt are so becoming, and just grown up enough to delight them! In wool crepe, cashmere, gingham or jersey, with fresh white collar and sleeve bands, it will be your daughter's favorite school frock. Make one version of it in plaid.

Scalloped-Trimmed Day Frock. You should certainly have several dresses made like this—it fits so beautifully and looks so smart. Darts at the waistline give it becoming slimmness. The high square neckline and "shrugged shoulder" sleeves are very new. It's the useful kind of dress you can wear for shopping and business as well as around the house. Make it up in silk crepe, flannel, sheer wool or home-keeping cottons.

What to Eat and Why

C. Houston Goudiss Discusses Sugar, Sirup and Molasses; Describes Correct Use of Sweets, Peerless Body Fuel

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

THERE is an old saying that good things come in small packages. That is particularly apt when we pause to consider the nutritive value of sugar in its various forms. For two scant tablespoons of sugar supply as much caloric value as does three-fourths cup of cooked farina, or one and one-third eggs, or the lean meat of one lamb chop.

Sugar is a highly concentrated fuel food which burns quickly and completely in the body furnace.

The Sugar Bowl Is a Dynamo. It has been said that our present day civilization could not have reached its present heights without the driving force that sugar gives to men and women.

And it is a fact that until comparatively recent times, only the very wealthy could afford this quick energy food which we now consume at the rate of more than 4,000,000 tons a year, or more than 100 pounds annually for every man, woman and child.

This peerless fuel food was once regarded almost as a medicine because of its ability to relieve fatigue and sustain vitality. And no wonder! For sugar is transformed into heat and power in less time and with less effort than any other foodstuff.

A Real Stimulant. While starchy foods require an average of from three to four hours for digestion, the body begins to burn a ration of sugar from 10 to 30 minutes after it is eaten.

It reaches the blood and muscles in a few minutes—as rapidly in fact as alcohol! That is why concentrated sweets, which are largely sugar, are so effective in combating fatigue.

Athletic coaches are well aware of the unique power of sugar as a stimulant and restorative of energy. That is why school and college youths are so frequently given highly sweetened beverages and other concentrated sweets before engaging in athletic competition.

Military leaders also appreciate how it increases endurance, and sweets are an important part of the soldier's ration. During the World War civilians were urged to reduce their consumption of sugar in order to make larger amounts available for the army, and most people found it difficult indeed to forego this agreeable food.

Indispensable for Most People. Sugar is such an indispensable ingredient in cakes, cookies, pies, puddings and ice creams, it is so necessary in beverages, on breakfast cereals and with fruits that it seems a great hardship to do without it even for one meal.

We are extremely fortunate, most people will agree, to live in an age when sugar is so high in quality and so reasonable in price. In the Thirteenth century when sugar was introduced to England through India, it cost the equivalent of ten dollars a pound in the monetary terms of today.

Refined sugar is now priced at a few cents a pound and one pound supplies over 1,800 calories! Moreover, when you buy a branded product, backed by a well-known name, you have the assurance that quality and purity are of the highest.

Moderate Use Desirable. Like all sources of great power, however, sugar must be handled with care. Too much sugar may prove as disastrous as too little. Possibly because of this, several false notions have grown up regarding this splendid food.

It is often charged that sweets cause indigestion, and it is true that when consumed in excess, they may ferment and result in irritation. Therefore, moderation should be the watchword.

But that is an excellent rule to follow in regard to all kinds of foods. For when consumed to excess, any food ceases to be beneficial.

It has also been charged that sweets are harmful to the teeth. But recent investigations suggest that the teeth are far more likely to deteriorate because the proper minerals and vitamins have not been included in the diet.

It is, however, desirable to restrict the amount of sugar given to children. That is because it quickly satisfies the appetite and may therefore decrease the consumption of other good and necessary foods, particularly those containing an abundance of minerals and vitamins. Children therefore can best take sweets in the form of sweetened puddings, gelatin, cooked and fresh fruits, and fruit juice and milk beverages.

The quick pick-up of sugar can be obtained in many forms besides the sparkling crystals of granulated sugar with which we are most familiar, or the brown sugar which is quite similar in composition, except for a larger moisture content, despite popular notions to the contrary.

Most fruits contain easily digestible sugars, the percentage in dried fruits ranging from 50 to 75 per cent. Milk sugar is also easily digested. Honey, molasses, corn sirup and the popular blended sirups are usually eaten in combination with other foods and are therefore unlikely to be consumed in too large amounts.

Corn sirup is often added to milk, fruits, vegetables, cereals, breads and desserts. It helps to make these foods more palatable and adds 60 calories with every tablespoon. It is so easily digested that it is often used in infant feeding.

Molasses provides significant amounts of both calcium and iron and is a good sweet for growing children. One and one-half tablespoons of molasses supplies as much calcium as one and one-half cups of diced carrots. It is a wise mother, therefore, who uses it in making the cookies that children like so well.

The mixed or blended sirups that are so popular with griddle cakes and french toast on cool fall days, also add palate appeal and energy values to the diet.

For in whatever form sugar is consumed, it remains nature's shortcut to press-the-button heat and quick, healthful stimulation.

Boy and Gal. Old Lady (to chauffeur, who is slow in helping her from her limousine)—James, you are not so gallant as you were when a boy. Chauffeur—No, madam, and you are not so buoyant as you were when a gal!

Yes and No. "I am pleased to see you. How is your husband?" "But, professor, I'm not married." "Dear, dear, then your husband is still a bachelor?"

The man who said that borrowing money was the same as borrowing trouble had got it wrong. Anybody can borrow trouble.

SAFE ALL AROUND. The Trusting Bride-Elect—Don't you think you'd better engage some plain clothes detectives to see that none of your friends lift any of our wedding presents? The Happy Man—Sure! And you notify your kid brother that he'll have to give surety bond before he can act as ring bearer.

Cleared Up. Passer-By—Hey, mister, did you know you have your right boot on your left foot and your left boot on your right foot? Ozark Ike—Well, I'll be dad-gummed! I been wearing them that way since '95, and I always thought I was club-footed.

Future Geographer. "Yes, stamp collecting is educational," said the fond mother to the visitor. "For instance, where is Hungary, son?" Without looking up from his stamp book the young philatelist answered promptly, "Two pages in front of Italy."

The Answer. He—What sort of a bracelet would you like? . . . Well, why don't you answer? She—Darling, silence is golden!

Handy. Mike—Get up, Pat, the ship's on fire! Pat (dreamily)—That's all right, Mike; it's on water, too.

HOW to SEW By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

M. S. writes: "I followed the directions in Book 2 for a fabric hat and it was so satisfactory that I wonder if you could tell me how to use a piece of woolen material that I have to make a hat for my little girl who is just starting to school?"

Here is a cunning schoolgirl hat that's easy to make. You need two pieces of goods—one for the hat and one for the lining. They may either match or contrast. Each piece should be 1-inch longer than the measurement around the largest part of the child's head. The depth of the pieces should be half their length. The diagram at the upper right of this sketch shows how to make a paper pattern for the hat. Cut a square piece of paper 1/2-inch wider and deeper than half the head measurement. Mark point A on the right edge half way between the top and bottom as shown. Points B and C are marked at the center top and bottom of the paper. The dotted lines are guide lines to help shape the curved lines between A and B and C and D. Point D is the center front of the top of the hat pattern and is placed on a fold of the goods in cutting each of the two layers. The diagonal line from A to C is the center back seam line.

Stitch the back seam of both hat and lining and press it open as at E. Now, place the two pieces right sides together and stitch as at F. Turn right side out, baste along turned edge and stitch as at G. Gather the top as at H and finish with a ribbon or a stitched fabric bow and a feather.

NOTE: Use what you have on hand to make things of real value. You can save by doing—instead of doing without. Mrs. Spears planned Book 2—Gifts, Novelties and Embroidery—to help you. Every page contains complete, clearly illustrated directions for things you can make at almost no cost. Enclose 25 cents and address Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplains St., Chicago, Ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Johns Honored At Shower

C. OF C. And Rotary Meet At Clubhouse

Wives of directors of the chamber of commerce and board of city development and members of the Rotary Club gave a reception and shower last Thursday night at 8 o'clock in the Slaton club house in honor of Mrs. Raymond Lee Johns, who was married August 27 to the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Johns of Slaton.

A varied program of music and a playlet was preceded by a welcome given Mrs. Johns by Mrs. J. H. Brewer and Mr. Johns by Mr. F. H. Schmidt, president of the chamber of commerce and board of city development. Mrs. F. H. Schmidt was master of ceremonies.

Mrs. L. A. Harral conducted singing with Mrs. Alan Ferrel at the piano. The playlet represented a day in the office of a chamber of commerce manager, with Mrs. Kirby L. Scudder, Mrs. Lee Green, Mrs. C. F. Anderson and Mrs. W. K. Fry playing the parts. Theme of the playlet led to the shower from which the honoree received many beautiful and useful gifts.

In the receiving line besides the honored couple were Mr. Johns' mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. Schmidt, and Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Brewer. About 65 guests signed the bride's book. After the gifts were opened and passed around among the guests, punch and cookies were served as refreshments.

Mrs. Johns is the former Miss Wilma Redding of Pansantowney, Pa., and is the sister of Russel F. Redding, who formerly was a member of the Textile engineering staff of Texas Technological college. She attended Tech last year.

Mr. Johns was given the position of manager of the Slaton chamber of commerce and board of city development late in August and was recently chosen secretary-treasurer-editor of the Slaton Rotary club. He received a bachelor of arts degree in journalism from Tech in June, and did graduate work at the college this summer.
