BOARD of CITY DEVELOPMENT and CHAMBER of COMMERCE NEWS

RAYMOND LEE JOHNS, MANAGER

In order that farmers of our community might have a direct quotation from the office of the County Agent on regulations governing disposal of feed grown this year on Government soil conserving acres, we have written that branch of the Agricultural Department and received the following information: "Regarding land planted in 1938 to Buck Wheat, Sweet Sorghums, Sudan Grass, or Millet, harvested for grain, feed, syrup, or silage, the question has been raised as to the consequences as to the producer harvesting Sudan Grass or sweet sorghums in the bundles and selling the bundles to another producer who might either thrash the grain or place the stalks in a silo. Sudan or Sweet Sorghums sold in the bundles are sold at the risk of the person who produced it. If the grain is thrashed, or if the feed is made into silage, the acreage on which these crops were grown is classified as used for soil depleting crops, regardless of the fact that the crops were sold before being thrashed or made into silage." Interpreting the above ruling it is a violation of the AAA program for either sweet sorghums or sudan grass to be made into silage.

Further quoting: "Either sweet sorghums or millet if cut for hay will not be classified as soil depleting in connection with the 1938 program."

A letter has been received in our office from Radio Property Exchange of Abilene, stating that soon that firm, which acts as a clearing house for the buyer and seller as pertains to all kinds of real estate and businesses, will inaugurate a new type of radio program designed to create good will among Texans but also to advertise over a wide area the advantages and privileges to be gained by locating in our great State. Your local Chamber of Commerce has been asked to cooperate with the exchange by furnishing data which will display our city and its surrounding territory to the best advantage as far as historical interest, cultural advantages and outstanding business opportunities are concerned.

We are gathering material for the occasion and when we are informed of the date and time of the broadcast you will find notice to that effect in this column. Keep your ears open for news of Slaton, for you and you and also you help to build our city's chain of progress from day to day.

Do you know exactly what to do in case of fire?

According to M. A. Pember Insurance Agency, local representative of several of the leading insurance companies, building fires are one of the most common destroyers of life and property. Once a minute on the average there is a building fire somewhere in the United States. Despite these facts, he states, many persons have never been called upon to report a fire, or to accept responsibility in seeing that it is properly dealt with.

As a cooperative measure during National Fire Prevention Week, October 9-15, M. A. Pember urges every man, woman and young person to familiarize themselves with the exact procedure to be followed in case it becomes necessary to report a fire. Given below are some of the rules suggested by him:

1. Plan what you intend to do if fire comes, then do it calmly and sensibly.
2. Make up your mind beforehand that you are not going to become excited.
3. Write the telephone number of your fire department where it can be found quickly by any member of the family.
4. Learn the correct operation of hand fire extinguishers.
5. When using a hand extinguisher the fire should be attacked at its base.
6. If the clothing catches fire, tear off burning portions if possible. Attempt to smother the flames by wrapping victim in a woolen cloth.
7. Do not allow the victim to run or move about.
8. When sleeping in a strange building, learn the location of the nearest exit before retiring.
9. If caught in a burning building, remember that smoke is thinnest near the floor. Make your way to safety by crawling or crouching.
10. When inside a burning building, close as many doors as possible in order to keep the fire from spreading.
11. If it is necessary to jump from a window, first throw out mattresses or bedding to break your fall.
12. If fire breaks out while you are in a crowded room, give the alarm quietly and unobtrusively so as not to create a panic. It is unwise to shout "FIRE!"
13. When the firemen arrive, remember to stay out of the way. Give them the best possible chance to work.
14. Remember that life always comes before property.
15. Remember that death rides with the fireman in his race to reach a fire. Don't handicap him by thoughtless acts.
16. When you hear the siren or gong stay safely on the sidewalk.
17. If driving a car, do not race after fire apparatus or park in the vicinity of a fire.
18. Never under any circumstances park your car in front of a fire hydrant.

mittee.
Programs will be alternated between the two groups, with two chairmen in each class. Mary Nell Culver and Johnette Foster, of the clothing class, and Phyllis Atnip and Inez Drewry of the foods class, were selected.
Representatives to the Senior home economics club are Marion and Thelma Jo.
A name for the club will be selected by popular balloting with each girl placing her choice in a box in the foods laboratory.

The club will meet every other Friday. The next meeting will be held October 14th.

YOUR MILEAGE MERCHANT backs up his personal assurance of easy winter starting and oil economy by OIL-PLATING YOUR ENGINE
—more than an oil change!

JUST because this is in print instead of coming direct from Your Mileage Merchant's lips doesn't change the fact that he backs every word personally. How does he go through with that? By giving your engine the only OIL-PLATING. That's not mere words; it's what patented Conoco Germ Processed oil does.
Activated by an added man-made compound—added to oil's best natural qualities—added to the best refining—this exclusive Germ Processed oil adds itself direct to the inner engine surfaces... unites so thoroughly that every working part stays constantly OIL-PLATED.
Does the chrome plating on the bumpers drain down every time your car stops? Neither does OIL-PLATING in your engine. When you want to start up again, after hours of wintry parking—after nights or even weeks in the coldest garage—you've got ready lubrication faster than instantly!—in advance of the fastest oil-circulation. For drainproof OIL-PLATING has stayed lastingly plated all the way up, to make things slide lightly and swiftly for your starter and battery. That also tells you why you're rid of costly starting wear. And OIL-PLATING stays in as long as you use Germ Processed oil. The gauge-stick backs Your Mileage Merchant!

Tucky's Brake & Electric Co., Expresses Optimism With Action In Opening Of Completely Equipped Shop

"We believe there can be no better proof of the economic stability of a community than evidence of a constant flow of new population and an ever-growing commercial horizon. These are the evidences which convinced me that no better time could be selected for the opening of this shop which I have been contemplating for many months. Our reception by the public has amply rewarded my confidence in the selection of Lubbock as the location for our shop and I have overlooked no opportunity to extend our services to the fullest usefulness of the entire trade territory. I am grateful of this opportunity to express my appreciation for the consideration I have received from Slatonites, and other of the rural population adjacent to Lubbock. This shop stands ready to confer with our neighbors on all their farm power plant, truck, automobile or other automotive electric problems. A genuine welcome awaits you at Tucky's Brake & Electric Company, where we will always be on our toes to render courteous, speedy service, in caring for your every need."

Offering a word of congratulation to Tucky McDavitt and his business associate, Bob Mansell, The Slatonite reporter found these aggressive business men most sincere volunteers to The Slatonite's Community Building Program.

With the suggestion to Slatonites and the rural population of this section that you leave your car at Tucky's while you enjoy a matinee, or do your shopping, Mr. McDavitt assured your reporter that he would thoroughly inspect your car, determining your needs, if any, and make an extreme effort to keep your car in expert repair at all times. Such examinations place you under no obligation, yet they insure you of knowledge of the exact DRIVING CONDITION OF YOUR CAR, thereby safeguarding you against unsafe driving risks.

Among the electrical parts offered are Delco Remy and North East, with a complete line of Packard cables. Their services are varied and too numerous to mention here, but it is interesting to note that every preparation has been made to render instant service on trucks, tractors, Delco farm power systems and all other problems of the rural population.

A fitting slogan has been selected by this new firm: "We Are Better Qualified To Serve You."

The Slatonite staff is happy to welcome this institution of service to the commercial life of the community and we take this opportunity to endorse its services with the fullest recommendation. It is a pleasure to extend Mr. McDavitt's cheerful message to his many friends among our readers.

JOYFUL SERVANTS ELECT

Joyful Servants Sunday School class of the First Baptist Church met the 30th with Juanell Hart and elected officers. They are, president, Peggy Lou Sargent; vice president, Juanell Hart; secretary, Nelda Jim Ward; treasurer, Billie Ruth Sledge; reporter, Elizabeth Shaw.

We decided to meet once a month. After the business meeting the social meeting was held and refreshments were served to those present, including Mrs. W. F. Martin.

HOMEMAKERS MEET

The Homemakers Club met last Thursday, Sept. 29, in the home economics department, and Mary Leslie Culwell, president, presided. The club voted to pay dues, and also to select a name. Up to now the club has never had a name, but one will be announced at the next meeting. The Slaton chapter will be affiliated with State and National organizations this year.

At the latter part of the meeting Jerry Taylor made a report on her trip to Dallas, and gave us some plans made by the State Council for club activities.

The year-book committee plans to have the year books out by the next meeting. This committee consists of Marita Shelby, Maxine Conner, Lucille Shelton, and Juanita Powers.

Lubbock Landscaping Authority Confident Of South Plains Financial Security

"I am happy to join the business leaders of Lubbock in extending my sincere good wishes to the members of the staff of The Slatonite for their very worthwhile program of community building . . . a characteristic of this publication for many years. Our business is following a steady upward trend and we can see nothing but prosperity ahead for all lines of business in the South Plains area."

Interviewing C. J. Simpson, Lubbock manager of the Baker Brothers Nursery whose many years of service has gained widespread popularity for this alert firm, The Slatonite reporter secured the above message of confidence in the security of South Plains economic structure, together with the splendid tribute to members of The Slatonite for which we are grateful.

Through the highly efficient services offered by this firm, hundreds have been aided in obtaining just the proper combinations of colors in landscaping their lawns and gardens. The happy results of their consultation with this authority are emphasized in the growing numbers of satisfied patrons who point with pride to the charm and warm beauty of their shrubbery and trees which grace their lawns and gardens.

Officials of Baker Brothers Nursery will gladly confer with you on any of your landscaping problems and offer suggestions relative to the types of shrubbery, shade and fruit trees most suitable to your particular requirements. It is also interesting to note that this firm has gained widespread recognition for their ability to transplant trees of almost any size prevalent in this section. Their methods afford speed and careful handling, assuring one of expert care in the transplanting of your most cherished trees and shrubs.

According to recent rulings of many city administrations, Landscapers must submit to an examination of their ability in the pruning of trees and otherwise demonstrate their ability to carry on this highly specialized work before offering their services to the public. The personnel and directorate of Baker Brothers Nursery have not only met all such requirements, but this firm is bonded as an additional guarantee of your complete satisfaction when dealing with them.

Mr. Simpson returned to Lubbock Tuesday after a hurried business trip to Colorado Springs, Colorado, where he secured a splendid lot of seasonal Evergreens for distribution to their South Plains patronage and Mr. Simpson suggests that those interested in these magnificent plants should lose no time in making their selection from this newly received shipment while there is time left to set out such plants in order that they will have sufficient time to take root before the cold weather begins.

We are pleased to extend Mr. Simpson's cheerful greeting to his many friends of the Slaton area and we take this opportunity to offer our word of praise for the untiring efforts this business man is offering the public in extending beautification facilities to the greater number of homes throughout this section.

Among the 1100 students who enrolled in John Tarleton College, representing 152 counties and 10 states, is Mary Lou Allen of Slaton.

SYNOPSIS

Young Rex Hale calls on Casper Kneeland, friend of his father, in New York, and finds him proudly successful but strangely preoccupied. He tells Hale of his wife's death while insane, invites him for the summer to Halcyon Camp, his home on Long Island, and promises him he will be "useful" as his secretary there. Hale is joined at lunch by Fred Ainsworth, an unpopular college mate, also at Halcyon, who leaves him with a feeling of unpleasant mystery. He is met at the train by Mrs. Wilbur Nash, whom he questions about the menace, and experiences a disturbing premonition. The premonition is barely eased by the comfortable hospitality of Hosanna, Kneeland's elderly sister, and her friend, Ruth Forbes, middle-aged sophisticate. In his room, Hale finds a soiled paper, printed, "This place dangerous. Hale meets the rest of the strange group—Dr. Craig, psychiatrist friend of Bert Kneeland, nervous young son of Casper, and beautiful but moody Joan Kneeland, niece of the house. Ainsworth drops in at his room, questions him about his reactions, and tells him of Bert's hopeless Mrs. Nash suggests that Ainsworth has some hold on them. Returning from a swim, Hale finds in his room a clever sketch of skull and crossbones.

"Doctor Craig goes in for research," Mrs. Spencer Forbes commented acidly. "He makes experiments. He has germs up there. Probably he'll end by killing us all off."

"Ruth!" Miss Hosanna's manner was preoccupied, her gaze detached. She had uttered the little protest from force of habit. Rex suspected that she had not really taken in what her friend had said.

"I wouldn't put it past him," Ruth Spencer Forbes went on in her characteristic drawl. "No animal, human or otherwise, is safe here. I shall always believe he killed that dog and cat!"

"Ruth! It's dreadful of you to run on like this. What will Mr. Hale think of us?"

Miss Hosanna was really aroused now, and almost annoyed, almost, but not quite. She could never be really annoyed by anything her Ruth said.

"He'll think as I do, after he has observed our dear doctor a little. Craig is a vivisectionist. Every time he looks at me I know he's considering my possibilities on the dissecting table. I told him one day they were far beyond him, and he agreed politely. He'd love to have a scalpel in your brain, Hosanna. He thinks you're a little touched on the question of food, and he's right."

"I don't know why you have to talk like that," Miss Hosanna sighed.

"It's no reflection on you. He thinks we're all more or less crazy, and of course we are. What's your particular mania, Rex?"

"You."

Hale didn't know how she had learned his first name, and he didn't care. He was enjoying his luncheon. The race and his subsequent nap had given him a fine appetite. As a side interest he was watching Joan Kneeland. Odd what a tragic look her charming face wore at times. He tried to catch her eyes and failed. She was staring straight before her with a rather fixed look.

"Will you take me for a walk this afternoon, Miss Kneeland?" he asked her. "I begin to feel the urge to know all about this region and its traditions. I want to see the Lovers' Leap and the Water Fall and the Wishing Spring."

"There isn't any Lovers' Leap or Wishing Spring," Joan said practically.

"Then we'll make some. We've simply got to have them. Whoever heard of a camp in the woods that didn't have little things like that? How about right after lunch. A little stroll from two to four would suit me down to the ground."

Rex let his tongue have its way. She had made him feel on the float this morning that she rather liked his irresponsible chatter.

"We'll make it two to three," she said.

"What this young man really needs," Mrs. Spencer Forbes murmured, "is a quiet afternoon by the fireside with a congenial mind. With an older woman, say, who understands him and will let him talk about himself all the time."

"I can't resist that program," Rex admitted. "Shall we say the living-room, from four to five?"

Mrs. Spencer Forbes nodded.

"See that you don't wear him out in the meantime," she warned Joan. She strolled out of the dining-room with the air of having no further use for either of them.

The walk was a slight disappointment to the young man. The wood paths, of which there were many, were so narrow that two could not walk abreast in them—a flaw Hale at once discovered and referred to critically. The road was too rough for good walking. They went forward in single file, perforce, and Joan showed her companion, rather perfunctorily, the spots where she was planting wild flowers. He expressed admiration, also perfunctorily. She was making him feel that his voice could not reach her across the vast gulf between them.

"They don't thrive," she admitted. "The soil is too sandy. Nothing does well in it but these evergreens."

"We'll have to get some richer earth for them and bring it here. I'll help you," Hale promised. "I'm quite a gardener. I wrote an essay once on how to tell the trees from the flowers. I can always distinguish them, unless I'm confused by seeing flowers on the trees. Pomegranates mixed me up badly. It was so hard to tell where the tree ended and the flowers began."

"Are you ever serious?" Joan asked suddenly.

"Not if it can help it. I'll try to be if you'd rather I was."

She shook her head.

"No. It's a pleasant change to have someone around who isn't worried and unhappy."

Rex, who was leading, stopped short, turned, and faced her.

"Miss Kneeland," he asked very seriously, "why are you worried and unhappy?"

For an instant he thought she was about to tell him. She hesitated, then hedged.

"Why is anyone anything else?" she asked. "How can anyone be?"

"It's very odd to hear you say

"I was just saying that this is the life!"

that," he told her. "You have so much to live for."

"Have I? That shows how much you know about it."

She had closed a door in his face and had closed it definitely. Gone was the understanding of those moments in the sea and on the float only a few hours ago. He took his cue.

"I'm rather cheerful myself," he said easily. "It's natural. I came back to America feeling forlorn and expecting to be at loose ends all summer. Then everything changed with a rush. I called on your uncle, he invited me here, and here I am. It's incredible luck."

She gave him a strange look.

"Do you think so? Do you really expect to be happy at Halcyon Camp?"

"Of course I do."

"Then be happy—if you can."

He turned in silence, and continued the journey along the narrow path. A repentant voice came from behind him.

"I was a beast," it said. "I'm sorry. Do be happy. I really want you to be."

"Thank you."

"You know," she went on slowly, "you're so cheerful, when all the rest of us are so down, that it's a sharp contrast. Sometimes it's a pleasant one. Sometimes it's a strain."

"I see."

Neither spoke again for some time. Then Joan returned to the subject of the wild flowers. They both held to it, as to a blazed trail, till they got back to the house.

Kneeland came for his week-end the next day, which was Friday. Hale was in his own room when his new employer arrived. Sometime after six he heard Kneeland's car, or one he assumed was Kneeland's, making its difficult way along the impossible road. He suppressed an impulse to go down stairs and meet his host. They would have plenty of meetings, no doubt, between now and Monday morning. He descended at seven for the cocktails he had learned were served at that time. Everyone was there, as usual, dressed for dinner. Casper Kneeland was talking rather pompously as Hale entered the living-room. He stopped long enough to shake hands and mutter a perfunctory greeting. Then he went on impressively.

"I was just saying that this is the life," he declaimed. "Here you all are, cool, calm, and comfortable, sitting around a fire and hearing the sea boom outside, while unlucky wretches like me slave in the hot city. It was almost a hundred in New York today. I don't believe it's more than sixty here this minute, even with the fire. I've worked in my shirt sleeves all day, and with my collar off."

"But think of the reward, sir," Ainsworth purred. "Rolling up more millions in your great factory while poor devils like Hale and Craig and me wonder how we're going to pay our laundry bills."

The effect of the comment was immediate and striking. It stopped Kneeland's outpourings as thoroughly as if it had been a hand on his mouth. He frowned, and turned to the fire.

Banks came in with cocktails. Kneeland aroused himself and drank two. Hale spoke of his woodland walk. No one was interested or pretended to be. In despair he threw a conversation ball to Mrs. Spencer Forbes. She could be depended on to catch and return it while there was life in her. They all went in to dinner while she was giving her impressions of Mrs. Wilbur Nash. The impressions were witty and entirely merciless. Miss Hosanna said "Ruth!" and smiled forgivingly. Mr. Kneeland checked his sister's warning discourse on raw oysters with a lifted forefinger, he left the table. It had been a hard job to keep those people going. He had experienced a ceaseless undersense that something was wrong.

In the living-room Joan was already seated between Miss Hosanna and her uncle. In desperation Hale drifted toward the piano.

"Must you sing, old man?" Ainsworth asked anxiously. "I know you always had the urge at Ithaca, but I thought you might have lived it down."

"I'm worse than ever."

Hale, who had had no notion of singing till then, resolutely sat down before the instrument. He had a pleasant barytone voice, fairly well trained, and he could play well enough to accompany himself without annoying his hearers. He sang a Spanish love song. Joan rose and came to the piano, anticipating the action of Mrs. Spencer Forbes, who obviously had the same impulse.

"I like that," Joan said. "Sing another, please."

He made room for her on the long piano stool, and she sat down beside him. He sang two more songs and then played a few Spanish melodies as an undercurrent to their talk. They said nothing of interest, but it was a pleasant half hour. At the end of it Casper Kneeland got up, came over to them, and dropped a hand on Hale's shoulder.

"Glad you have some parlor tricks, my boy," he commented. "They'll brighten us up. Just now I want you to come to my study for a chat."

In the study Kneeland waved Hale to an armchair, uttered a few platitudes, offered the young man a cigar, and took one himself. When the cigars were lighted and drawing well, he looked at Hale in frowning silence. Rex waited. He had long ago learned that when something important was to be said it was well to let the other fellow do the preliminary talking. He actually dreaded the first sentence, for he had a premonition of what it would be. It was what he had expected. Kneeland brought out, "Well, what do you think of us?"

Hale laughed.

"This is the fourth time I've been asked that question—and I've only been here forty-eight hours."

"Who were the other three?"

"Ainsworth was the first, I think."

"He would be," Kneeland commented grimly. "Who were the others?"

"Mrs. Spencer Forbes and Mrs. Nash. There was nothing personal in the question, I think. They were simply making talk."

"Perhaps. But I'm doing more than that. I want to know what you really think of the people here."

"Well, sir, since you put it that way, I can only say they don't hit me as quite normal. They've all got something serious on their minds. Most of us have, but we usually have the power to throw it off at times. These people haven't. They seem—I suppose obsessed is the word I want. Perhaps that's too strong. Perhaps it holds more than I mean. But they're all under high tension."

"You mean they're all worrying about something?"

"Not necessarily. In fact, hardly at all. Ainsworth certainly isn't worrying. He's having a grand time worrying everybody else. Craig is entirely selfish and self-centered. I suppose he's out for success and can't think of anything but that. Certainly he doesn't seem able to talk about anything but the human brain and its vagaries. Still, I don't get the feeling that he's worried."

Bermuda Mailmen Add Courtesy to Speed Record in Delivery of Mail on Island

The old adage that "The Postman Always Rings Twice," is topped in Bermuda by the fact that this colony's postmen frequently deliver mail within 20 minutes after letters are posted. Furthermore His Majesty's carrier thanks the receiver for accepting the mail—not only once but probably twice.

Mailmen in the coral islands in the mid-Atlantic are an extremely courteous lot. The cool, white houses that border the winding coral stone highways are visited by island mailmen who embody typical Bermudian courtesy in both manner and speech.

There are 31 postmen on the islands who know by heart all the family names in Bermuda that would confuse the average postman to the point of distraction. Rarely do the Outerbridges, the Tuckers, the Darrells, the Smiths, the Coopers and the Tringhams get the wrong mail. The islands postmen know all the initials that go with the old islands' names, and letters never go astray.

In Bermuda, where traffic is confined to bicycles and horse and carriage, although the swiftest transportation of the century, airplane service, is utilized in reaching the islands, the postoffices have set up quite a few records for speed in mail delivery that American postmen would find difficult to beat.

Delivery is made in less than six hours over the greatest distance on the islands, which extends from St. George's to Somerset, 24 miles in all.

"Bloody Hand" Coat of Arms

The "bloody hand" or "red hand" of Ulster forms part of the coat of arms of the former province, now Northern Ireland. It is supposed to commemorate the daring of O'Neill, a bold adventurer, who vowed to be the first to touch the shore of Ireland. Finding the boat in which he was rowed outstripped by others, he cut off his hand and flung it to shore, to touch it before those in advance could land. When James I forfeited the O'Neill estates in 1611 and created 200 new baronets on payment of a thousand pounds each, ostensibly for the "amelioration of Ulster," he allowed them to place on their coat armor the "open red hand," up to that time borne by the O'Neiles.

Rug From Old Coat And Scraps of Felt

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

THE directions for making the rug in my book—SEWING, for the Home Decorator, have brought many letters from readers describing rugs that are new to me and very interesting. The reader who shares with us this idea for using pieces of heavy woolen and scraps of felt, tacked her rug to the side of the house and took a snapshot of it which she sent me.

(1) is made of the back width of a very heavy old coat. An allowance was made for a hem to add weight to the edge. The foundation may be pieced if a large section of heavy cloth is not available or felt purchased by the yard may be used for it.

Next, circles of felt in two colors, cut from old hats and discarded school pennants, are sewn together with heavy black thread as at A. These are then sewn in place as at B beginning at the center of the foundation. The large circles in the three center rows are two inches in diameter. Those in the next two rows are 2½ inches. All the small circles are one inch.

You can make slipcovers, all types of curtains and many other things for the house with the help of Book 1—SEWING for the Home Decorator. Just follow the pictures. Step by step you learn to make the lovely things you have been wanting for your home. Book 2—Gifts, Novelties and Embroidery—illustrates 90 stitches; also dozens of things you can make in your spare time to use or to sell. Books are 25 cents each. If you order both books leaflet on crazy-patch quilts will be included free. Address: Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

New Farm Program

Radio promotion of Goodyear products for farm use began September 26 over a huge Blue network of 48 broadcasting stations of the National Broadcasting company. Fifteen-minute daily sectional programs will be broadcast each Monday to Friday, inclusive, from 1:15 to 1:30 p. m. eastern standard time, 12:15 to 12:30 p. m. central standard time and 11:15 to 11:30 a. m. mountain standard time to farmers living between the Atlantic ocean and the Rocky mountains, and from Texas to Canada.

The new Goodyear broadcasts will supplement the National Farm and Home Hour, which for ten years has given American farmers up-to-the-minute news and expert counsel on rural problems. The new broadcast immediately follows the Farm and Home Hour program.

Information of vital local importance, including weather forecasts, shipping advice, commodity prices, sectional crop conditions and other such items will be featured in these regional broadcasts. Complete regional offices, competently staffed, and equipped to gather and make available the necessary regional news and information, will be set up and maintained. These will be in charge of farm experts who also will direct the program and see that they are keyed to local needs.—Adv.

NERVOUS?

Do you feel so nervous you want to scream? Are you cross and irritable? Do you scold those dearest to you?

If your nerves are on edge and you feel you need a good general system tonic, try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made especially for women.

For over 60 years one woman has told another how to go "smiling thru" with reliable Pinkham's Compound. It helps nature build up more physical resistance and thus helps calm quivering nerves and lessen discomforts from annoying symptoms which often accompany female functional disorders.

Why not give it a chance to help YOU? Over one million women have written in reporting wonderful benefits from Pinkham's Compound.

Watch Your Kidneys!

Help Them Cleanse the Blood of Harmful Body Waste

Your kidneys are constantly filtering waste matter from the blood stream. But kidneys sometimes lag in their work—do not act as Nature intended—fail to remove impurities that, if retained, may poison the system and upset the whole body machinery.

Symptoms may be nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—a feeling of nervous anxiety and loss of pep and strength.

Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

There should be no doubt that prompt treatment is wiser than neglect. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's have been winning new friends for more than forty years. They have a nationwide reputation. Are recommended by grateful people the country over. Ask your neighbor!

ORDINANCE NO 89

AN ORDINANCE OF THE CITY OF SLATON, TEXAS, DEFINING THE TERM "SIGNAL SYSTEM"; DESCRIBING THE OFFICIAL "SIGNAL SYSTEM" UNIT, REGULATING THE PLACING, INSTALLATION AND OPERATION OF SAME; REGULATING VEHICULAR AND PEDESTRIAN TRAFFIC ON THE STREETS OF SAID CITY OF SLATON, TEXAS, AT STREET INTERSECTIONS WHERE SIGNAL SYSTEM UNITS ARE INSTALLED; REGULATING "RIGHT" AND "LEFT" TURNS; PROVIDING FOR RIGHT AND LEFT LANES OF TRAFFIC AND DEFINING SAME; PROVIDING A PENALTY; EXEMPTING POLICE AND FIRE OFFICIALS, PHYSICIANS AND AMBULANCES RESPONDING TO EMERGENCY CALLS; AND DECLARING AN EMERGENCY.

BE IT ORDAINED BY THE CITY OF SLATON, TEXAS:

SECTION 1: By the term "Signal System" as used herein means a system of controlling traffic, both vehicular and pedestrian, by the use of signal units consisting of Red Lights, Green Lights, and Yellow Lights, used in connection with or without a bell.

SECTION 2: Hereafter, The City Commission of the City of Slaton, Texas, shall cause to be installed at street intersections designed by said City Commission, a Signal System which shall be displayed near the center of said street intersections by causing same to be suspended from wires over such street intersections, and in connection therewith there may or may not be an electric bell at or near such Signal System. The installation of the bell in connection with the Signal System will be at the discretion of the City Commission.

SECTION 3: All persons driving or operating automobiles or other vehicles, and all pedestrians, approaching any street intersection where such signal units have been installed, shall observe such units, and

(a) When a red light is exhibited in said signal system unit which is visible to approaching vehicular and pedestrian traffic, all such traffic shall come to a stop and remain stationary outside the street intersection until a green light is exhibited to such traffic in said unit.

(b) No traffic, vehicular or pedestrian, shall enter a street intersection when a yellow light is exhibited in said signal system. All such traffic that is within such street intersection at the time a yellow light is exhibited in said signal system unit shall continue, and promptly clear said intersection.

(c) All traffic, both vehicular and pedestrian, when halted by a red light exhibited in said signal system unit, shall remain stationary during the time the red, and yellow lights where same are used in unit, is exhibited in said signal system and visible to such traffic, and shall prepare to move promptly forward when a green light is exhibited in said unit system.

(d) When a green light is exhibited and becomes visible, both vehicular and pedestrian traffic shall move promptly forward.

SECTION 4: When a green light is visible to approaching vehicular traffic such vehicular traffic shall be permitted to make a right hand turn, but in so doing shall have regard for pedestrian traffic crossing at and near such street intersections, and such vehicle shall not exceed 5 miles per hour while making such right hand turn.

SECTION 5: Whenever there is placed on such signal units, under the direction of the City Commission a sign visible to approaching traffic which reads "No Left Turn" it shall be unlawful for any person driving or operating an automobile, or other vehicle, to make a left hand turn at that point.

SECTION 6: All vehicular traffic is permitted to make a left turn at any street intersections where a signal system unit has been installed, except where a sign has been placed on said signal unit system reading "No Left Turn."

SECTION 7: No vehicular traffic shall make a complete or "U" turn at any street intersection where a signal system unit has been installed.

SECTION 8: In approaching a street intersection where a signal system unit has been installed, there shall be two lanes of vehicular traffic. All vehicles approaching such street intersection, with the intention of making a right turn, shall approach within the right lane of traffic; vehicles approaching said street intersection, with the intention of making a left turn, shall approach same within the left lane of traffic. A "Right" lane of traffic is that lane of traffic nearest the curb or the line of vehicles parked against the curb; a "Left" lane of traffic is that lane of traffic which is nearest the center of the street.

SECTION 9: No vehicular traffic shall drive through any adjacent drive-way used in connection with a filling station or other business for the purpose of avoiding coming to a stop under the preceding paragraphs of this ordinance.

SECTION 10: All pedestrians using the streets of Slaton where such units have been installed, shall cross the streets promptly and on cross walks at such intersections, and shall not walk across such streets in a diagonal direction.

SECTION 11: In case of emergency, any policeman or traffic officer of the City of Slaton shall have the right to direct traffic in such manner as to prevent accidents or stopping of such traffic.

SECTION 12: All persons driving and operating automobiles and other vehicles, and all pedestrians using the streets of the City of Slaton, Texas, are hereby required to observe the rules and traffic regulations prescribed
