

A WEEK AT A TIME

by J. M. RANKIN

YOU OUGHT TO GO Did you ever go to school? We mean since you were sent nearly every morning by your parents. Well, the Slaton school authorities are trying to get you to go a part of a day this week—today to be exact. You ought to go.

YOU CAN SEE If you will go, you can see some worthy specimens of the work that has been done this year by the greatest asset this or any other country has—our children—under the direction of as faithful and hardworking group of teachers as you will find anywhere.

AND YOU CAN SEE And you can see in the west part of town some physical equipment that should make us all blush for the buildings and furniture with which we afflict the helpless children who have to go there.

BUILT A ROOM AT A TIME Our first impression of the Junior High building was that it surely must have been built a room at a time. Our impression was confirmed and we were told that is approximately what was done.

NO LIGHT CONTROL As we remember there is only one room in the building that has proper lighting. Paint has been smeared on the windows in place of buying shades that can keep out the sunshine when there is sunshine, and then raised to admit light when there is no sunshine.

POLITE SUPERVISORS It may be known that annually there comes from the State Department of Education a Deputy State Superintendent of Schools who makes an inspection of the work and equipment of the schools. You may ask why he has not made some of the brutal criticisms so frankly set forth in this essay. We have been in the position of the local school executives and have met these supervisors and we know they are men. They have political jobs that depend on the votes of the people every two years. They are polite and they are reticent.

WE TAKE LIBERTIES Having no political aspirations, we take the liberty of setting out some of the deficiencies prevailing in the West Ward School, in the hope that if a sufficient number of people can be interested and a sufficient agitation initiated we will not rest until we have a building that is equal in sanitation, conveniences, and general equipment at least to the rural schools in all the South Plains Counties this writer knows anything about.

NOTHING PERSONAL All this and none of this should be interpreted as a criticism of anybody, but of all of us. True, this community voted last fall by an overwhelming majority to issue bonds to build. True the School Board has made application for WPA funds that will enable us to build as we need to build. True the WPA funds were exhausted before our application could be approved in Washington. But we need to be pressing every day in every way to have decent housing and teaching equipment supplied to a group of children we know are as able and intelligent and precious as anybody's, and a corps of teachers as able and willing as is to be found in any school.

TROUGHS TO DRINK FROM On the west side of the smaller building is a handsome trough from which the tiny children may—and do—drink. The water comes up through faucets pointing upward. Little children do not know better than to apply their mouths to the faucets and suck water up as it flows. What avails a health teaching program if this is the

Colored School Winner In Crosbyton Meet

Slaton colored school students have brought honor to the city and to the schools by winning the all-around championship in the District Interscholastic League held in Crosbyton. Numerous winners were scheduled last week to attend the state meet at Prairie View colored college near Houston.

Slaton's colored entries in the district meet won three firsts in declamation, first in sub-junior spelling, first in debate, first in tennis, first in track, second in essay writing, second in industrial arts, second in soft ball, second in tiny-tot story telling, second in quartet, second in tiny-tot singing, second in senior spelling and third in junior spelling.

At the State meeting at Prairie View they won 2nd in tennis doubles; 3rd in tennis singles and 3rd in the 100-yard dash.

High School Campus To Be Beautified

The east side of the high school campus, that has been notorious as a weed producer is being landscaped so it can be a spot of beauty the city can be proud of, both for ourselves to see and for the thousands who must pass along beside it on the highway each year. Water pipes have been laid and outlets in kind of sanitary drinking fountains supplied. An epidemic could find no better place to begin than in the West Ward School of Slaton.

No East Texas gourd dipper could be more dangerous. The cloak rooms are mostly nails driven in the walls of the halls. Those windswept halls that have no heating equipment and are necessarily as cold as a grave on most any day and bitterly cold when the weather is severe. The surest thing about these cloak rooms is that three-fourths of the hats and coats hung in them will be on the floor when the owners come after them.

Slaton Students Win At Austin

Miss Marion Bechtel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Bechtel, was winner of second place in the music festival in Austin, sponsored by the Texas Music Teachers Association.

She will be given a trip to Kansas City next Christmas to attend an annual meeting of the National Music Teachers association. Miss Bechtel was entered in the 17 year old piano solo division.

Slaton Trackmen Place In District

Slaton tied with Olton for fourth place at the recent track and field meet held in Lubbock the past Friday and Saturday, April 14-15th, with a total of 11 points.

Little Theatre Makes Debut

First Offering Of Group Well Received

Slaton's Little Theatre broke out with an initial play after a five-year lapse, that really took the hearts of the house full of patrons who saw "So You're From Missouri," last Thursday night.

Starring in a difficult role, Mrs. Layton Eckert played perfectly the wife, naive, surprised, grieved, hurt, and finally convinced and repentant—though maybe the latter a bit with tongue in cheek. At times she led a full chorus of willing women apparently wrenched by treacherous men.

Lettermen Given Sweaters and Silver Medals

Reserves receive sweaters in chapel. Coaches Curtis Hamilton and Jack Miller had charge of the chapel services at High School Wednesday afternoon when they distributed the awards and gave recognition of services to the school athletes.

After This Year, No More Sweaters

Coach Hamilton, "there will be no sweaters awarded until after the mid-term exams have been passed." He further explained that these sweaters were made possible by the contributions of the Athletic Council, the benefit football game played last fall and the series of Fun Nights that have recently ended.

Slaton Winners in District Tournament

All-round championship in district three of the Interscholastic league was won by Lubbock in the two day meet that ended at Texas Technological college Saturday, April 15th.

School Exhibit Is Prepared

Patrons Invited To View Work Done

The Slaton school system today is observing School Visitation Day, and there will be no classes in the afternoon, when about 500 parents and friends are expected to visit the schools and view the work and progress of the various groups, according to Superintendent Joe E. Webb, who is being assisted by the principals, Roy Boyd, John Jenkins, K. S. McKinnon; teachers and pupils to make this occasion an interesting and noteworthy one.

The pupils will be used as guides, beginning at 1 o'clock this afternoon and the exhibits will be open for inspection as late as the crowds justify. Said Mr. Jenkins: "There are approximately 285 students in Junior High; 190 in Woodrow Wilson; 220 in West Ward and 325 in High school and we are trying to display the representative work of each student."

Miss Edith Marrs' art students will have a showing of particular interest in Junior High, as these youngsters have original figures and scenes they have drawn and colorful book jackets, of imitation batik, that they have made.

At high school the science, agriculture, home economics and typing departments will offer unusual displays, in addition to an Old Fiddler's Contest at 2 o'clock. There is a wealth of talent already entered in this competition and some 20 prizes will be awarded, being contributed by the local merchants.

Art Exhibit

Tues. April 25. The Slaton Art Club will have their annual exhibit Tuesday evening at the clubhouse and will receive their friends and patrons of the arts, from 8 until 10 o'clock.

Mrs. Holt Delegate General Conference

Mrs. J. D. Holt, president of the Methodist Missionary Society, was a delegate to the General Conference of Women's Missionary Societies of North West Texas held in Pampa, April 11 through 13th.

Slaton Volunteer Firemen's Ball Next Thursday

The Slaton Volunteer Firemen's Annual Ball will be a feature of next week in the city. Always a popular event, arrangements that have been made this year assure patrons of a most pleasant evening.

Slaton Takes Part In Plainview Show

Duchess Hope Hennington and her Maid-of-Honor, June Scott from Slaton to the Panhandle-Plains Dairy Show in Plainview, participated Tuesday evening in the Pageant and the Coronation of Peggy Pinkney of Amarillo as Queen of the Annual event. Escorts of the Slaton representatives were James Stotts and Richard Ragsdale. Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Lee Johns were chaperones of the group.

Piggly-Wiggly Store To Be New Business

Clarence Byars, long-time resident of Slaton and owner and operator of Byars Grocery at the corner of Garza and Lubbock is closing out his business here this week.

He will go to Seagraves where he has built a new building to house the new Piggly-Wiggly store he will open there next week.

Mr. Byars expressed himself as regretful to leave a city where he has so many friends and where he has enjoyed a patronage that has helped him make a store here that could be of broad service to the people of the community. But he apologetically explained that he guesses old towns always hold attractive vistas that in this case he couldn't resist.

PAUL WINS RECOGNITION FOR GENTILE CHRISTIANS

LESSON TEXT--Acts 15:23-29; Galatians 2:1, 2, 9, 10. GOLDEN TEXT--A man is not justified by the works of the law, but by the faith of Jesus Christ--Galatians 2:16.

Persecution from outside was soon followed by what was even more serious--difficulty within the Church. If Satan cannot destroy God's work in one way, he cunningly tries another plan. Although the first council at Jerusalem (Acts 11) had decided that "to the Gentiles also hath God granted repentance unto life," the question did not stay settled, for there were persistent Judaizing teachers who now contended that even though the Gentiles could be saved, they had to come into the Church by way of Judaism and first fulfill the Jewish rite of circumcision.

I. A Serious Difference of Opinion--Grace Versus Law

The story of how this vital and fundamental question came up is found in the early verses of Acts 15. The entire future of the gospel ministry was in a sense dependent on the solution of this problem. Christianity is the only religious faith in the world that presents justification by grace as the way of redemption; all others follow (more or less) the path of salvation by works. The question now was: Shall works of the law be mingled with grace--can Jesus Christ alone save men, or is salvation through Jesus Christ plus something else? How was such a serious question to be settled? Should argument and strife be permitted to go on until the stronger party prevailed? Better judgment indicated the desirability of

II. A Christian Method of Settlement--Council not Controversy

There may be times when it becomes the duty of the Christian worker to take an uncompromising stand for the truth of God and refuse to be moved, come what may. But certainly there should be no such spirit in dealing with differing interpretations of Scripture on the part of sincere and earnest Christian brethren. How much would be gained in the Church today if, instead of magnifying differences and permitting personal desires and ambitions to intervene, men were willing to sit down in the spirit of Christ around the tables of Christian council and brotherhood, presided over and directed by the Holy Spirit (see Acts 15:28).

The whole question was honestly and carefully considered by the second council at Jerusalem, with the result that there was a vindication of the preachers of God's grace. After presenting a plain disavowal of those who had troubled them and subverted their souls (what a serious thing it is to teach error concerning God's Word!), the council being of one accord, gave recognition to Paul and Barnabas as men who had "hazarded their lives for the name of the Lord Jesus" and were worthy of confidence and support.

No man should think more highly of himself than he ought. Humility is a Christian grace which well benefits a sinner saved by grace. But the Bible abounds with admonitions to honor one another, to recognize the laborer as being worthy of his hire, to give recognition to those who are over us in the Lord. The brethren at Jerusalem were thoughtful and courteous enough to so honor and encourage Paul and Barnabas. We could well follow their example in recognition of faithful servants of Christ in our own church or Community.

III. A Momentous Decision--Salvation by Grace

The final decision of the council is sent not only by Paul and Barnabas, but also by a committee from Jerusalem, a gracious gesture of fellowship. Courtesy is not out of place in dealing with even such difficult things as controversies on Christian doctrine--in fact it should be most in place in such a situation.

As a matter of record (a wise procedure in such a case), a letter was sent which, after addressing the Gentiles as "brethren," reviewed the history of the matter and then, without mentioning circumcision at all, puts upon the Gentiles "no greater burden than the necessary things." And what were these? Those things which relate to purity of life as those who were enjoying Christian liberty. The law of Moses need not be kept as a ground of salvation. They were saved by grace. But grace can never be the cloak of careless living, nor can liberty in Christ be interpreted as license to live in sin. We are set free in Christ, not that we may sin, but that we may "go and sin no more."

Small Waists and Becoming Necklines

THE neckline is a very important detail in making your dress becoming. The 1719, designed for large fit, has a plain, deep v-neckline which is especially flattering. Darts at the waistline tend to make you look inches slimmer. This is a particularly comfortable dress to work in, with its deep armholes, slashed sleeves, and easy waist. It's easy to put on and to iron, too, thanks to the button-front. A diagram design, it may be all-ished in a few hours. Calico, gingham, percale or seersucker are nice for this.

For slender, youthful figures, the heart-shaped, frill-trimmed neckline of No. 1726 is perfectly charming and as flattering as can be! The pointed basque bodice diminishes your waistline to practically nothing, and the wide-shouldered sleeves and flaring skirt accent the slender youth of the silhouette. Make this pretty dress of silk crepe, taffeta or prints, and see if it doesn't win you many compliments!

The Patterns.

No. 1719 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50 and 52. Size 38 requires 4 1/2 yards of 35-inch material; 4 1/2 yards of braid.

No. 1726 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 14 takes 4 1/4 yards of 39-inch material; 1 1/2 yards of pleating or ruffling.

Send your order to The Sewing Circle Pattern Dept., Room 1324, 211 W. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. Price of patterns, 15 cents (in coins) each.

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disruption of Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurried, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking--its risk of exposure and infection--throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood. You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pains, swelling--feel constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder may be burning, scanty or too frequent urination. Use Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to get rid of excess poisonous body waste. They are antiseptic to the urinary tract and tend to relieve irritation and the pain it causes. Many grateful people recommend Doan's. They have had more than forty years of public approval. WHAT to EAT and WHY

C. Houston Goudiss Gives Practical Advice on Feeding 'Teen Age Child; Describes Some Special Food Needs of Both Boys and Girls

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

BEGINNING around the twelfth year in girls and the thirteenth year in boys, the rate of growth is greatly accelerated. Then children require large quantities of food to meet the needs of their rapidly maturing bodies and they usually develop huge appetites. Unfortunately, however, they are often inclined to overlook the foods that are most necessary to health, to eat at odd hours, and to stuff themselves with rich combinations that may severely tax the digestive system.

Mothers may find it exceedingly difficult to deal with their offspring all through the 'teens, when physiological changes are taking place which mark the transition from childhood to maturity. For along with the development of his fast growing body, the child's emotional life undergoes a profound and disturbing change. The boy or girl who was formerly amenable to direction suddenly exhibits a desire for independence. He becomes jumpy and irritable, and the wish to direct his own life extends even to his choice of food.

Mothers must mobilize all the patience and forbearance at their command—must make it their solemn duty to see that their adolescent children have the foods they require for growth, for stamina, and for building resistance to disease. For the stress and strain of adolescence will be far more easily weathered by boys and girls who are properly nourished.

Quality Important as Quantity
During the years of greatest growth, boys and girls frequently require more food than their fathers or mothers. But it is essential that the diet be well balanced and of the highest nutritive value. It should include an abundance of easily digested energy foods, such as breadstuffs, potatoes, cereals and macaroni products, as well as liberal quantities of the more concentrated fuel foods, such as butter or margarine. There must be an ample supply of high quality protein—which is furnished by meat, fish, eggs, cheese and milk—to build the new muscle tissue required to cover the lengthening frames of the boys and help build the rounded contours of the girls.

Need for Minerals and Vitamins
There must be ample amounts of the various minerals—especially calcium and phosphorus for the teeth and bones, and to help build sound, healthy nerves; iodine for proper functioning of the thyroid gland; iron for building increased quantities of rich red blood. Every vitamin must be included in the adolescent's diet to promote normal health and development, but vitamin A is especially valuable at this time of rapid growth, and vitamin B is also required in liberal amounts to meet the extra demands of increased activity and growth.

A Quart of Milk Daily
It is highly desirable that the diet should include a quart of milk daily, because milk is such a splendid source of calcium and vitamin A, as well as other necessary minerals and vitamins. If children have been brought up with a wholesome respect for this master food, they will continue to drink it during their 'teens.

However, if they complain about taking it as a beverage, mothers should see that it is supplied by way of cream soups and sauces, with cereals, and in nutritious pudding desserts, which can be enriched with eggs, thus providing additional proteins, minerals and vitamins.

Fruits and Vegetables
Fruits should be eaten freely—at least twice a day—and the high-calorie dried fruits, such as prunes and dates, may be used to advantage along with bananas, oranges, grapefruit, apples and other fresh fruits, as well as the many varieties that come in cans.

Cooked and raw vegetables should be provided liberally—if possible, at both lunch and dinner. Dressing cooked vegetables with butter or margarine will increase their fuel value, and make them more satisfying for hungry boys. Girls, who are often finicky eaters during their adolescent years, can usually be tempted with crisp, raw vegetables served in the form of salads; and protein can be added by means of eggs, cheese, fish or chicken.

Boys Need More Food Than Girls
There is a marked difference between the fuel requirements of 'teen age boys and girls. Both must have a well balanced diet. But the boys need many more calories, and therefore should have a more generous allowance of highly concentrated foods which supply necessary fuel with a minimum tax on the digestive system.

They should have cereals in generous-size portions—and it's advisable to choose part of the cereals from those retaining the bran and the germ. And they'll welcome nourishing desserts, such as custard, tapioca, bread and corn-starch puddings.

Girls Warned Against Reducing
Girls, on the other hand, may become fussy and try to cut down radically on the fuel foods, with the foolish idea of keeping fashionably thin. This must not be permitted, because it may result in under-nutrition, which opens the way to fatigue and nervousness, and may lead to serious disease.

In addition to wholesome, nourishing food, 'teen age boys and girls should have plenty of rest, sunshine and healthful outdoor exercise. And they also deserve the sympathy and deep understanding of their parents.

YES, a certain grandmother surprised everybody—even herself. She had always enjoyed making hit and miss rag rugs in cheery colors. Then one day her favorite grandson brought home the girl he was going to marry. She was a bright young thing, and chattered away about color schemes for her new home.

When the wedding day arrived this gift was a great surprise; even Grandmother was amazed at how handsome it looked at the foot of the stairs in the new house.

Women everywhere are using their leisure to make their homes more attractive, with slipcovers; curtains; bespreeds and lampshades. They are again taking up embroidery and handwork so that they may beautify their homes and there is a revival of interest in old time hand crafts.

Mrs. Spears' Book 1, SEWING for the Home Decorator, and No. 2, Gifts, Novelties and Embroidery, clearly chart the way for you. 'Batter Up!' Echoes Once More —But Woe to the Poor Batter

The sharp crack of bat against ball resounds throughout America April 17 as another big league season starts. All summer long the man at the plate and the man behind it face two of baseball's toughest assignments. The photograph below shows how easily a catcher or batter can be beamed by a pitched ball which goes 60 feet, 6 inches in less than half a second. Both must think with lightning rapidity.

Joe DiMaggio, New York Yankee slugger, demonstrates a batter's coordination of mind and muscle. Especially noteworthy for both safety and success is the way Joe keeps his eyes on the ball from the time it leaves the pitcher's hand.

In the above two pictures DiMaggio illustrates how he puts his shoulders and full weight behind the bat as he brings the old hickory around to connect with the ball. Notice that full attention is still on the ball, a rule that holds in any sport.

Jolting Joe's strong follow-through is shown to advantage in these last two continuous action pictures of his swing symphony.

FOR the first time in a lifetime during which she has shown deep interest in motion pictures, the Dowager Queen Mary of Great Britain recently visited a motion picture studio. She was shown around his studios by Alexander Korda, and watched a group recording war songs for the picture, "Four Feathers." She also saw two reels of the picture.

Some years ago Myrna Loy rebelled against playing siren roles. She showed what she could do in the part of a delightful wife in "The Thin Man," and since then she's been playing delightful wives until she's sick unto death of them, too.

So now she'll turn siren again, as "Lady Esketh," in "The Rains Came," the picture version of that very good book that everybody was reading a year or so ago. After that she'll play another young woman who is something less than perfect when she is co-starred with Spencer Tracy in "Sea of Grass," in a role that will have to be considerably rewritten if the censors are to approve of it.

A picture based on the life of Rudolph Valentino is to reach the screen at last. It is one of the five productions to be released through United Artists in 1939-40 by Edward Small Productions, Inc. And various old newspaper men are waiting for it with considerable interest, wondering how certain parts of that biography will be fixed up so that they are fit for the screen.

Two Texas cities, Fort Worth and San Antonio, took particular interest when two recent R. K. O. pictures were released. One was Douglas Corrigan's "The Flying Irishman," because it was in San Antonio that Corrigan worked as a newsboy to support his mother after his father deserted the family. Fort Worth wanted to see "The Story of Vernon Castle," with Ginger Rogers and Fred Astaire, because it was at Benbrook field, Fort Worth, that Castle crashed his plane to avoid colliding in mid-air with another.

Incidentally, Mrs. Castle, who acted as technical director for the picture, is very much pleased with Astaire's portrayal of her famous husband. She wasn't so well satisfied with the agile Ginger's performance as his wife, because, as she said, she couldn't imagine herself as a blonde.

Casting Henry Fonda in a leading role in "The Story of Alexander Graham Bell" was what's known as a natural. Fonda himself was delighted. For when he was in high school he decided that his career in life would have something to do with the telephone business, if he had anything to say about it.

During his last two years in high school he worked as a "trouble shooter," and when he got his degree from the University of Minnesota his thesis was on communication systems, especially the telephone and telegraph. It was just by accident that he worked with a Little Theater group and finally landed in the movies.

The first radio program to arrange for an exhibit at the New York World's fair is Dave Elman's "Hobby Lobby." A special building is being erected, and thousands of specimens of hobbies will be on display. In addition, Elman has arranged for hobbyists who have been on his programs to appear at the exhibit and explain their hobbies.

ODDS AND ENDS—Hollywood's glamour girls who appear as guest stars on "The Circle" broadcasts usually demand that Cary Grant play opposite them... Isabel Sheridan, stand-in for Joan Bennett in "The Man in the Iron Mask," is Mary Pickford's cousin... A perfect piece of casting seems to be that of Ronald Colman for the hero in "The Light That Failed"... Warner Brothers won't screen "John Dillinger, Outlaw" after all—too many people didn't like the idea... Bing Crosby's going to work with 75 children in "The Star Maker"—probably at least one of them will become a star.

Pull the Trigger on Lazy Bowels, and Also Pepsin-ize Stomach!

When constipation brings on acid indigestion, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste, and bad breath, your stomach is probably loaded up with certain undigested food and your bowels don't move. So you need both Pepsin to help break up fast that rich undigested food in your stomach, and Laxative Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels. So be sure your laxative also contains Pepsin. Take Dr. Caldwell's Laxative, because its Syrup Pepsin helps you gain that wonderful stomach-relief, while the Laxative Senna moves your bowels. Tests prove the power of Pepsin to dissolve those lumps of undigested protein food which may linger in your stomach, to cause belching, gastric acidity and nausea. This is how pepsin-izing your stomach helps relieve it of such distress. At the same time this medicine wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your bowels to relieve your constipation. So see how much better you feel by taking the laxative that also puts Pepsin to work on that stomach discomfort, too. Even finicky children love to taste this pleasant family laxative. Buy Dr. Caldwell's Laxative—Senna with Syrup Pepsin at your drugist today! (Adv.)

How Women in Their 40's Can Attract Men

Here's good advice for a woman during her change (usually from 35 to 42), who fears she'll lose her appeal to men, who worries about wrinkles, loss of pep, dizzy spells, upset stomach, and moody spells. Use Dr. Caldwell's Compound, made especially for women. It helps Nature build up physical resistance, thus helps give more vivacity to enjoy life and assist calming jittery nerves and disturbing symptoms that often accompany change of life. WELL WORTH TRYING!

TEXAS DAY OBSERVED BY WEDNESDAY STUDY CLUB
Mrs. Webber Williams was hostess to the Wednesday Study Club April 19 in their observance of "Texas Day." Mrs. R. B. Bechtel, leader of the program, gave "Interesting People in Texas," including Howard Hughes, multi-millionaire movie

HIS FIRST STARRING ROLE

Young Mickey Rooney, who is in the past has "stolen the picture" from many a famous star, comes into his own at last as a full-fledged star himself. Rooney makes his first solo starring appearance in the title role of Mark Twain's classic tale of boyhood joys and sorrows "The Adventures of HUCKLEBERRY FINN." The picture opens Saturday Prevue at the Palace; also Sunday and Monday.

Director and famous aviator; Mrs. Roy Largent, who, with her husband, is a scout for the White Sox baseball club; and Louis Ford, one of the foremost authorities on Diesel engines.

"Health Projects in Texas" was given by Mrs. S. A. Peavy; followed by a talk from Mrs. Kirby Scudder, "Why Federate." Mrs. Scudder's talk was very timely, as the District Federation of Women's Clubs will meet early in May at Pampa. Mrs. Tess Bruner has been elected as delegate from this club.

The hostess used blue bonnets and cherry blossoms to decorate the home and served a salad plate in colors of purple and white to the members and five guests, Mesdames R. G. Loveless, J. O. Quattlebaum, jr., Nick Carter, Royce Pember and Silas Wilson.

CORRECTION: Bertram Kessel, a Junior at Texas University, spent the Easter holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Kessel.

How the plus of OIL-PLATING brings you more than an oil-change

YOU KNOW right off that the fresh oil needed in your crankcase today, isn't to lubricate the crankcase. Either your oil is in the bearings and up to the cylinder head every turn of your engine, or your lubrication isn't 100%.

Now what's the chance for any of the general run of oils to stay up while you've parked the car, for instance? Just about as much chance as there is for a geyser to stay up all by itself! Then every time you start, don't pistons get up to the top before oil gets up from the crankcase? You kill that risk by changing now to OIL-PLATING.

The "magnetic action" of Conoco Germ Processed oil—patented—makes OIL-PLATING stay on inner engine surfaces throughout all your stops, starts and runs this Summer. Your Germ Processed oil keeps a steady hold on the "Full" mark, too, as you'll see—by changing today to Your Mileage Merchant, Continental Oil Company

Weekly News Analysis
Axis Adopts 'Confusion' Plan
To Force More Concessions

By Joseph W. La Bine

EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst, and not necessarily of the newspaper.

Europe

Almost forgotten by war-mad Europe this month has been little Albania, whose conquest by Italy recently started the cauldron boiling.

from Rhodes and other islands of the Dodecanese group, Italy could strike at either Greece or Turkey.

Northeast Europe, Poland, fearful of invasion yet jealous of her independence, risks German invasion from north and west as the price for a military pact with Britain.

Western Europe. Mysterious German troop movements have brought reinforcements on both sides of Belgian, Swiss, Dutch and Danish frontiers, any of which might be crossed in a brisk German coup.

Result. Though forced by public opinion to stiffen, Mr. Chamberlain's government still hopes to woo Italy from the Axis and make peace by appeasement.

Domestic

In New York marine underwriters boosted war risk insurance. The treasury announced $385,436,000 in gold fled to the U. S. in March, while $49,000,000 more arrived in two mid-April days alone.

Spain. The civil war is over but Italian troops are still arriving in defiance of the Italo-British Mediterranean pact.

Balkans. Italo-German thrusts converge here, focused on Rumania, Greece and Turkey.

Mediterranean. Gaining nothing by howling for French Tunisia in northern Africa, Italy has changed her tactics, reverting to silence.

While a Gallup poll was reporting that 65 per cent of the U. S. population favored boycotting German-made goods, congress was busy creating a foreign trade program that would fight the Reich with its own weapon, namely, barter.

There was, however, a debt. The destitute had to be fed and clothed. First, the local authorities did it; then the states and then the days of the real dance began.

Now, They're Seeking Money To Pay Their Fiddlers
Now, the time has come to begin paying off the debts. The states and the cities and the counties have been looking for money to pay their fiddlers.

People

Dropped, at his own request, Thomas R. Amlie, former progressive Wisconsin congressman, from consideration as a member of the interstate commerce commission.

Sentenced, in New York federal court for smuggling, Mrs. Edgar N. Lauer, wife of a New York state supreme court justice.

Chosen, as "American mother for 1939," Mrs. Elias Compton of Wooster, Ohio, mother of Nobel prize winner, Dr. Arthur Holly Compton; Massachusetts Institute of Technology Pres. GREECE'S METAXAS Britain was nice, Italy even nicer.

though British Prime Minister Chamberlain offered a weak "guarantee" of protection to Greece and Italy, Premier Metaxas took pains to proclaim joyfully that Italy promised to respect the Greek frontier.

By mid-April the post-Albanian crisis had subsided but another was plainly in the offing. Newly strengthened, Italy and Germany are expected to jab soon at any of 20 possible points, confusing the democracies so badly that all dictator demands will be granted.

Time Has Come to Pay the Fiddler
New Tax Sources Must Be Found

Supreme Court Decision Opens Way to Tap Salaries of Federal, State and Local Government Employees; Never Has Nation Had Such Gigantic Debt.

By WILLIAM BRUCKART

WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON.—Court decisions as a rule are difficult things for laymen to understand. True, most everyone who hears or reads an opinion by a learned justice will know what the result is—whether one side or the other wins.

For that reason, as well as the fact that many persons do not have the time or the opportunity to examine court decisions, I have been wondering whether it is clear exactly what happened when Mr. Justice Stone recently read the decision in the case involving taxation of federal and state employees.

Pay of Federal Employees Tax Exempt for 69 Years
For the last 69 years, the pay of any federal official or employee could not be taxed in any form by any state or local government.

As a matter of fact, I believe that those who were privileged to listen to Justice Stone that day heard an opinion that is going to go a long way in changing the course of government from the federal government to the lowest township.

And beyond that, the decision told another story. It told the story that our national, state and local governments are hard up for tax sources.

Never Before Has the Nation Had Such a Gigantic Debt

It can not be construed otherwise. Never before in our history has the nation had such a gigantic debt, a debt of more than 40 billion dollars.

In the lush days when most folks were working and there was good business, the taxes rolled in and there was little or no thought about spending money for new roads, new post offices, new county courthouses, new city halls, new bridges and so on.

There is one thing, however, of which we may be sure: the jobs, the political plums, the 5-thousand and 10-thousand dollar jobs have suddenly become less juicy.

What Effect Will Additional Taxes Have on Jobholders?

Very important also, in my opinion, is the effect this additional tax will have upon the mind of the jobholder. You know, a jobholder very frequently is most willing, even anxious, to spend the taxpayers' money.

To make it complete, now, we ought to have the same kind of reciprocal taxation of income from federal bonds and bonds issued by state and local governments and their agencies.

Now, the time has come to begin paying off the debts. The states and the cities and the counties have been looking for money to pay their fiddlers.

Floyd Gibbons' ADVENTURERS' CLUB

HEADLINES FROM THE LIVES OF PEOPLE LIKE YOURSELF!

"Rails of Death"

HELLO, EVERYBODY:

Well, sir, for a long time I've been warning young fellows to stay off of side door pullmans. I've seen so many adventure yarns about lads who have come to grief beating their way on freight trains that I'm pretty well convinced it's a dangerous pastime.

If those aren't enough reasons, I could probably think up some more. But there comes today's distinguished adventurer—Edwin F. Eckdahl of Young, Saskatchewan, Canada—another fellow who has come a long, long way to join our club.

Ed started railroad work in the early part of the century, braking on the Pennsylvania. His run was out of Logansport, Ind., and those were the days when the men had to contend with the old style link-and-pin drawbar and when air brakes were few and far between.

Ed says every brakeman tried to get a few air-braked cars up at the head of the train, where they'd help a lot in holding back the other cars, but some of the old die hard conductors wouldn't allow that.

Tops of Cars Covered With Thin Ice.

It was one day early in 1906 that that happened. Ed's train pulled out of Chicago about 10:30 on a cold winter night with a light train of meat and merchandise.

He lost his balance and was forced to step off the flat running board. covered with a coating of thin ice, and my first job was to go over the tops and chip that ice from the running boards on the ten or twelve cars I was to use for braking.

Ed had ice clips on his shoes to keep him from slipping. They were pretty dull, but he thought they'd last him one more trip. He worked his way along until he was about ten cars back of the engine and then, near the I. C. crossing at Riverdale, the train hit a slight curve.

The instant he did his feet shot out from under him. He started sliding off the top. "I was on my back," he says, "but when my legs were over the side I managed to turn over on my stomach—and, as luck would have it, a nail that had worked up from a board in the car top caught in my coat.

"I knew if I slid off I wouldn't have much of a chance. All I could do was hang on—and get back on top if that was possible. It was cold weather and the position I was in was tiring me out. The longer I stayed there the worse it would be."

His Hands Slipped on the Smooth Ice.

Ed knew he couldn't look for any help. The engineer would think he was in the caboose and the conductor would think he was in the engine. His lantern had shattered and gone over the side when he fell and he couldn't signal with that.

"I tell you it kept me busy," he says. "I didn't know how long that nail would hold me, or how long the cloth of my coat would stand the strain. But believe me, I stuck tight with all the strength I had."

It was a long, slow process. "By wriggling my body as a snake would," he says, "I was able to bring it forward a little. I had to melt quite a bit of ice to get myself in a fairly safe position and even then the wind and the swaying of the car threatened to throw me off at any minute. And then I ran into another obstruction."

The Nail Holds Him Back From Safety.

It was that nail which had caught in his clothing. In the beginning it had saved his life. Now it was holding him back, keeping him from moving any farther forward.

He began to get a bit panic-stricken then. He clawed at the top of the car with futile hands. And suddenly his groping palms struck on another nail worked up out of the boards like the first one.

Several Reasons Advanced for 'Keystone' Nickname
The nickname "Keystone" used for Pennsylvania, says the Philadelphia Inquirer, is of doubtful origin, but the theory given most credence is that it was so named because of its central position among the states at the time of the adoption of the Federal Constitution.

"No, no," June insisted. "You were always so sweet to Mother. You and Grandma both."

"It was not what we did to her," the old man said. "It was what we permitted to be done." And he asked, "You tell me, astonishingly: 'June, will you take me some day to the man who lives in the cabin by the pond?'"

"Uncle Jim?" she exclaimed, surprised and puzzled.

"You call him that?" the old man asked.

"He likes me to," she confessed.

"I think he is a good man," said Grandpa Hurder slowly. "I have been wrong. I mean to tell him so."

June hesitated, deeply puzzled; but she only said slowly: "I don't know where he is now. He's gone."

The old man looked at her, she thought, in something like dismay at this intelligence, while she explained.

She had seen Uncle Jim at her mother's funeral, in the undertaker's little chapel where frugally the services were held, and again later in the cemetery. He was decently dressed, so that she hardly recognized him in this unaccustomed sobriety of garb. She saw him watching her, and wished to smile, but that would not under the circumstances have been seemly.

She had gone next day to his cabin in the wood, only to find it closed, secured; but there was a note on the door addressed to her. It promised that he would come back soon; but he had not yet returned. . . .

During the fortnight after her mother died, and for the first time in her life, June began to be happy. The girl thought this was a strange thing, a shameful thing; yet it was true. For the world began to smile, and in surprising ways.

Clint was tender to her, but so were others too. The world, after her mother's death, turned in so many ways a new countenance toward June. Mrs. Bowdon gave her a heavy sympathy; Aunt Evie told her that she was a brave fine girl. Rab made her smile sometimes with a jesting word; and her cousin Asa began to pay her, with a quizzical light in his eye, certain mysterious attentions. He brought home one day, smuggling it into the house at dusk, a flat parcel.

"Don't open it here," he warned her. "And don't let anyone see it. Take it up to your room. Try it on. I think it will fit all right. Try it in front of your mirror. Try doing your hair some other way."

The parcel, she discovered, contained a gown different from any she had ever worn before, the skirt disarmingly shorter than the ankle-length Mrs. Bowdon's strict command had long since imposed. June was a little terrified at her own aspect in the mirror; but by and by interest banished terror. There were unseemly lumps which marred her contours here and there, but when, valorously experimenting, she removed her underclothing and put on the new dress again, these lumps had disappeared and left smooth and gracious lines.

June hugged this secret happiness till Asa found a chance to ask her whether the gown fitted. She told him then:

"Yes, perfectly. I don't see how you knew the size."

"I've an accurate eye," he assured her.

She almost laughed under her breath. "I can't imagine you going into a store and buying things like that."

He said with an amused promise in his tones: "I'll surprise you again." And he was as good as his word, bringing her one day another parcel. When she opened this one, she was enraptured; but it was hours before she ventured to try on, even behind the bolted door of her room, the astonishing garments therein contained; and it was days before she risked wearing some of them, soberly concealed beneath the fusty dark dress which was her usual garb in the house.

She asked Asa one day why he had fetched her these secret lovely things; and he said with a smile in his eyes:

"A girl has a right to them, June. If you ever want to impress some young man, just wear that dress."

She colored richly, and wondered whether he knew about Clint, and dared not ask for fear of his reply. Yet Asa was a delicious fear; she hugged him importunately.

She could not wear the new dress. It would be seen. But she wore the undergarments Asa had given her, under her accustomed garb. And she saw Clint more and more often.

One day they had appointed to meet by the river, and June was waiting by the knoll above the stream when the canoe appeared. She saw in a faint dismay that Clint was not alone, and thought of flight; then she recognized in Clint's passenger the kindly old man who had come with Clint to Uncle Jim's cabin that first day.

Clint, when they landed, made good-humored apologies: "Mr. Tope was bound to come along, June," and her mother's headache, and the fact that there was no milk in the ice-chest, so that Aunt Evie had to go next door—everything.

"I'm excited," she confessed.

Tope nodded, and Clint came to her side. "I'll walk a little way with you," he said. So she bade Tope good-by, uncertainly, and she and Clint went up the slope together. When they were out of hearing, she said with something like a shudder:

"I'd almost forgotten about that night." She looked at Clint squarely. "Clint, what is it? What did he want? Who is he?"

But Clint told her reassuringly: "He's all right. A fine old fellow." The young man chuckled. "You see, he married Miss Moss, and I guess she sent him out to look you over, June. She's almost like my own mother, you know."

He was able in the end to reassure her. Before they parted, still out of sight of the houses on the hill, they planned to meet next morning at Uncle Jim's cabin in the wood. Then she told him good-by, and saw something in his eyes, and guessed what was in his mind; and she waited, gracious and consenting. But in the end he only clasped her hand and said:

"In the morning, then!"

She went away from him up the slope, smiling to herself. It had been easy to read the impulse in his eyes; she had seen and welcomed it. She had belonged to him in her thoughts long ago. Yet she could smile now at his restraint, sure of him as she was of herself. Their hour would come.

When she reached the house, it was to learn that Grandpa Bowdon had died half an hour before.

CHAPTER IX

June, to her own astonishment, wept for Grandpa Bowdon as she had not wept for her mother. His going touched her deeply; and she went to her room and stayed there for a while alone. Then Asa knocked at her door, and when she opened, he knew how to comfort her.

"He was ready to go, June," he said. "Don't feel badly. And—it was just like snapping a string. No hurt, no pain."

And he bade her come downstairs. "The old folks need you," he urged. "You and Rab and I, we've got to carry them over the hump, you know."

She wished suddenly, desperately, to see Clint, to be with him now; but since she could not, she smiled at Asa, and dried her tears, and went down with him, her head high and steady. Through the rest of that afternoon and evening, she carried her share of the burden here. . . .

The appointed hour was not yet come next morning, when June slipped away to the woods to meet Clint; but he would have seen the report of Mr. Bowdon's death, would know she needed him.

When she came through the sunlit woods, up the path to the cabin on the knoll, he was there as she expected. He saw her approaching and was swift to meet her.

June stood still as he drew near, and she was trembling and shaken. He came toward her, his hands outstretched; and without knowing how, or caring, she was in his arms—and happy there.

"I shouldn't have stayed with you, yesterday," she said, after a long time. "I might have seen him again, if I'd come home."

He urged: "June, June, you couldn't have helped. And you liked being with me, were happy. That's what he'd have wanted for you."

"I never was really afraid before," she whispered. "Not for myself. But I am now, Clint. Oh, I am now. Afraid for me and you."

"I'm going to take you away," he cried. "Away from all this here!"

"You can't," she protested. "Grandpa and Grandma Hurder—they just have to have me there."

Yet she agreed by and by to meet him that night, after the others should all be abed.

They had supper before dark, in June's kitchen. Rab had stayed with Grandma Bowdon while Aunt Evie ate her supper; but when his mother relieved him, he came back, and June served him, and he said approvingly:

"You're carrying a load, June. Good lass. I wish I could give you a hand."

"It's a woman's business," she told him. "You do more with them, keep them going."

"I've got to leave them tonight," he confessed. "I'm due in court in Providence in the morning. It's just an appearance, but the judge down there is a crank. And I have to see my client tonight."

When he had finished, he went home with Uncle Justus; but half an hour later he stopped in again. June was washing the last dishes.

"Father's gone to sleep in his chair," he told her, smiling. "He'll wake up and put himself to bed by and by. I'm going over to say good night to Mother and Grandma."

June nodded, intent upon the dishes, intent upon her own thoughts. It was half after seven. Clint had said he would be waiting, a little distance down the road, at eight; but she had no hope of coming to him so soon. Grandpa and Grandma Hurder were in the sitting-room; and once she looked in on them. They had not heard her approach; and Grandpa Hurder was just leaning over to pat Grandma's hand where it lay on the arm of the chair; June watched and her throat swelled with tears unshed. And then Asa came in. "Any water hot, June?" he asked. "I've got to have a cup of tea." He sat down while she put the kettle on the stove, talked to her casually till it boiled. She found a tea-ball, and he brought a milk-bottle half empty from the ice-chest, and poured a little milk into the cup.

"There isn't any cream," she said. "I'm sorry."

"Milk's all right if you use enough of it," he assured her, smiling in that dry way he had. "That's the way with most things, June. Too little's starvation; too much is as bad. But enough's all right." He drank in little sips, watching her. "You're like a rosebud, swelling as it gets ready to bloom."

And he declared: "Hey, you're blushing, child. High time you heard some pretty things about yourself, if your own cousin can make you blush with a compliment." He put his arm around her, kissed her cheek. "How about this Jervies fellow?"

He saw her start with dismay.

and laughed, and promised: "I won't say a word." He disappeared.

Later Aunt Evie came into the kitchen. "Those old folks won't sleep a wink," she said gently. "I'm going to give them some milk." She saw the bottle where Asa had left it, and poured the milk into a stew-pan, scratched a match.

June was suddenly cold with remembered terror. She told herself she was a fool, a fool, a fool. People had drunk warm milk before!

Rab came in from out of doors, wet with the increasing rain; he crossed to where Aunt Evie stood by the stove and embraced her. "Night, Mother," he said. "I'll be back by noon tomorrow."

"The funeral is at four," she told him evenly.

"I know," he assented. "I'll be here." He grinned at June. "Good night, kid."

Aunt Evie poured the milk into two glasses, and June went with her into the other room.

The girl was full of a great tenderness for these old folk. Under Aunt Evie's calm insistence they sipped their milk obediently; they set the empty glasses by; they lay down to sleep like children, side by side.

June took the glasses, started toward the kitchen to wash them. Behind her she heard Aunt Evie say: "No. I'll leave the windows closed. It might rain in. And you don't need any air. You'll be asleep so soon."

She was always thus calmly bent upon having her own way; when she came back into the kitchen, she looked at the girl keenly. "You all right, June?" she asked.

"Oh, yes," June told her guardedly.

"You must go to bed," Aunt Evie directed. "As soon as you are done here. Good night, child."

Her hands flying, she slipped out of her clothes, changed swiftly into the dress Asa secretly had given her. She stood for a few minutes before the mirror, busy with her hair. At last she was satisfied. Some one radiant and lovely looked back at her from the mirror there.

She turned out the light at last, and in the darkness descended to the lower hall. She found a heavy coat and drew it on, then opened the front door.

A gust of rain wet her cheek, and she remembered another night when she had thus gone running to meet Clint. But then she did not know he was waiting. It was deeply contenting to be sure tonight that he would meet her here.

"Darling! You're shaking all over!"

"I'm excited," she confessed, laughing softly. "I—never did this before, and I've got a new dress on." He kissed her again, and she confessed: "And I thought of the night Mother died. It rained then too, remember. So I was scared."

"Not scared now," he urged, and held her close.

"Never with you," she promised him.

So presently he put the car in motion, allowing it to coast silently down the hill. Another car overtook them from behind and passed at speed.

Neither Clint nor June would remember, afterward, much about the motion-picture they saw that evening. In the dim obscurity of the theater, their eyes were much more often turned toward each other than toward the screen. And after a time Clint whispered: "Are you liking this? I think it's dull."

She smiled at him. "I don't think it's dull," she said. "You see, it's almost the first one I ever saw."

Jesse Stuart, Kentucky Poet, Writes of Magic and Romantic World of Childhood

Sun in the sky. The oak-stained autumn sky. Wind in the sassafras sprouts. The great skies that sweep over the W-Hollow and the stream sings a song: "It was when you were young here that the hollow looked like a fairyland to you. It was the scene of your childhood. You can remember the martins around the boxes in early spring fighting the English sparrows. You remember Uncle Mel used to throw clouds out of the garden at the sparrows and try to run them out for the martins. You remember the bee stands under the plum trees and the bees working on the white plum blossoms!"

"You remember the flags by the W-Branch in white, purple and yellow blossoms and the bees working on them. You remember the smell of the hot young corn in the little bottoms—and you remember the watermelon patch and the creek where you left your clothes when you went in swimming by the sycamore."

"You owned the hills then—all of the W-Hollow—but you didn't have a deed for those wooded acres with its millions of wild flowers and its foxes, rabbits, squirrels, turtles and terrapins. It was a heaven here to you. The sun came over the timbered hills in the morning—ran down a blue pathless sky and dragged a patch of red in the long summer evenings over the green chestnut trees on the ridge.

"You remember it was heaven to you, a paradise of earth where there was poetry on the ground, the nodding flowers, the green hair of April! It was a heaven of childhood with the log shack and tumbling barns and cornfields. But time came by and stole that far-away fairyland from you!"—Jesse Stuart, Kentucky Poet of W-Hollow, in the Southern Literary Messenger.

Word Pecten Defined
The word pecten is Latin for comb, and is used in zoology for a number of comblike organs of different structure. One of these is the comb on the underside of the claw of the middle toe of herons, whippoorwills, night hawks and barn owls. It is used in cleaning and dressing the plumage, and is probably of assistance in removing bird lice.

Hats With Veiling Galore Are in a Capricious Mood

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

MILLINERY has indeed come into its own this spring. The new hats are everything a spring hat should be—the most refreshingly springlike hats that have graced fashion's stage for many a season. In them romance in millinery has been recaptured.

The very ecstasy of spring breathes through the flowers that bedeck the pretty straws and through the ribbons and fantastic scarf trimmings on colorful felts and suedes, likewise through the dainty lace and immaculate lingerie trims, new this season, and through the glorified spring colorings and beyond all the final touch of charm is achieved via mists of frivolous whimsical veiling that swirls and whirls and cuts pretty capers throughout the entire picture.

You can be as choosy as you like in selecting your spring bonnet. Whether you decide on one of the very new and amusing elfish tall crowns that style the latest models or whether you declare in favor of a crownless type, whether your hat be huge of brim or have no brim at all (flower toques with pert bon-bon colored veils are quite the rage) whether it be a breton or Gibson girl sailor you choose, or if you are ultra enough to want one of the very smart Paris-inspired bonnet types that tie under the chin, no matter in what direction fancy leads you, you can't go wrong in fashion's eyes.

New in crowns is the postillon. See it pictured in the group to the left above. This model in miniature blue (an attractive blue featured this season) felt is trimmed with contrasting plaid taffeta ribbon and an all-over crisp blue veil. Plaids and stripes have invaded the millinery world with great display. Hat and bag sets of striking plaids or stripes are among the fetching creations.

Black hats with colorful accents are an accepted mode for dressy spring wear. The crown of the black felt Watteau, shown above to the right, is sprightly decked with chartreuse and fuchsia flowers. The big bow at the back is of stiff chartreuse veiling.

Combining Jacket Being Modernized

The fussy "combining jacket" that mother used to wear has been superseded by a trim rubber cape which has many other uses besides keeping stray hairs from settling on a clean dress or blouse. Slipped on and off in a jiffy, it is ideal for repairing complexions and for washing up at odd moments when there isn't time to disrobe.

One of the newest make-up capes on the market has a little pocket in the form of a flower for holding hair pins, powder puff, or comb. The soft rubberized fabric takes to soap and water like a dish cloth, thus making it possible to keep its delicate pastel colors flower-fresh.

Fashion Designers Turn Lilac-Minded

Each season this flower or that flower is especially featured. Paris milliners have turned lilac-minded this spring, either trimming with lilac clusters or in some instances making toques and even tiny sailor hats of them. Wear a lilac spray on your dark or light coat, it is one of the popular flowers of the moment in fashion's realm. Carnations are also worn.

Shells for Lapels
Tiny bouquets of flowers are made entirely of shells and are to be worn in your lapel.

Silk for Action
Washable and noncrushable silks for active sportswear have been endorsed by Paris.

As Good as New
A softly shirred chiffon blouse in lilac or fuchsia will help to carry your black suit right on into spring.

RAYMOND LEE JOHNS, MANAGER

This will be a memorable day in the history of Slaton schools. You don't want to miss the occasion, so please visit both the ward schools, the junior high school and the high school sometime today. Whether you have a child in school or not, please go by and spend a few minutes on VISITORS' DAY and see for yourself results of the fine work being done by students in all the schools.

We have visited the schools on numerous occasions and have observed that the atmosphere is very satisfying and uplifting. The students are busy in every department and doing their work with a zeal that speaks well both for themselves and for their instructors.

There are a large number of champions among Slaton scholastics this year. We must not lose sight of the fact that these hard-working students are bringing honor upon honor to themselves, their schools and to their city as a whole.

As we see it, we have in Slaton as fine a system of public schools to be found in a city this size anywhere, in which the picture is one consisting of hard-working teachers and pupils, both aiming at sound accomplishments and working toward them in a steady, practical and honorable way. They are doing the job RIGHT and RIGHT is unparalleled whenever and wherever it prevails.

A few days past your chamber of commerce sent out letters to the various civic and fraternal orders in Slaton, asking the consensus of opinion on whether Slaton should have a July 4th celebration. Numerous of those organizations have called in or sent word endorsing such an affair. Looks like, folks, we're in for a celebration, AND LET'S EVERYONE DO HIS PART TOWARD MAKING IT THE BIGGEST JULY 4TH CELEBRATION SLATON HAS EVER HAD, if you decide to have it.

BEAUTIFICATION: Drive by the high school and note the activity east of the building. The ground has been turned there, pipes are being laid and we wouldn't be surprised if a lot of beautiful green grass springs up there in the near future. CONGRATULATIONS to all responsible parties!

STUDY CLUB SPONSORS BOOK REVIEW MONDAY NIGHT

Mrs. Alan Strout, Lubbock, gave a humorous and entertaining review of "With Malice Toward Some," the current non-fiction best seller by Margaret Halsey, at the Presbyterian church Monday evening April 17 at 8 o'clock. The Daughters of the Pioneer Study Club sponsored this popular speaker.

Mrs. Strout, who has lived in England, enlivened the review with her own experiences in a very clever manner. The book tells of the life and ideas of the English as seen through the eyes of the author, a sophisticated wife of a college professor who is sent there on an exchange professorship.

Earl Reasoner Home Completed

Much of the charm of the home recently completed for Mr. and Mrs. Earl Reasoner, at 955 West Lynn street, lies in its simplicity and arrangement.

This four room white frame home, trimmed in Autumn brown, with shutters at the many windows, has a tiny vestibule with a cedar lined closet for wraps at the front entrance.

The large living room, 20 by 16 feet, is finished throughout in natural woods, with a light brick fireplace, beside which are movable shelves for bric-a-brac. One wall is in knotty pine while the other three are papered, giving a very modern and interesting effect.

Green and rust with accents of blue and yellow are used in this room, that also has a dinette suite at one end in African gumwood. There is a large closet for storage that will later have a roll-away bed and through it, there is access to the service porch.

In the middle and on the west side, is the kitchen, in dark blue, white and apricot. One 10 foot wall is entirely covered with built-in features and there is a breakfast table at the window. A unique feature is the service shelf that is made of the back part of the fireplace that extends into the kitchen.

Horizontally striped paper is used in the bedroom, with a modern walnut suite of furniture, natural finish woodwork, and color accents in blue and white. There are two cedar lined closets with many built-in units and the bath adjoins.

It is enameled, in pastel pink and blue and silver wainscoting. The paper is a lovely marine scene and a dressing table is built in with a cosmetic shelf in the wall above the bath tub. The mirror over the table is lighted by twin chromium cylinders of light and the water heater is hidden in the attic, with a venetian window opening into the bath for necessary ventilation.

All the light fixtures in this compact, beautiful and cozy home are white and gold.

COTTON

The Only Cotton Being Bred on the Plains that Is Ginned on a Strictly One Variety Gin

10 Quick Facts About PAYMASTER Cotton

1. Early maturing—Exceptionally heavy poundage on first picking. The Plains country has the shortest growing season in the cotton belt—an annual average of only 198 frost-free days.
2. Long staple—Between 15-16 inch to inch and better depending on moisture and soil fertility.
3. Exceptional lint turnout—38.3 per cent on the first 100 bales picked in 1938 and 30.6 per cent on "snaps" on first 100 bales harvested in 1938—a high figure for staple cotton.
4. Fiber—A hard fiber of good spinning qualities.
5. Big boll—Average 50 to 60 per pound and over 90 per cent are five-lock.
6. Drouth-resistant—A deep rooting hearty plant that stands up well under adverse growing conditions.
7. Heavy yield—A high pounds-per-acre return that spells extra dollars per field, per season.
8. A strong open stalk of medium height—with light foliage which allows sunlight to hasten maturity on lower branches.
9. Priced at moderate cost.
10. A home product for home need—At last, the South Plains has a proven strain of cotton especially bred to fit its particular needs.

He helps Texans telephone

4 1/2 million times a day

This telephone man helps clear the way for more than 4 1/2 million calls that surge each day through the network of Bell telephone wires in Texas.

It's a big job, handling more than 4 1/2 million tailor-made telephone calls a day. It takes millions of dollars in telephone equipment. It takes the skilled work of 8,700 telephone people. And it takes money... more than 24 1/2 million dollars spent by the telephone company last year to operate its business in Texas. Of this amount, more than 10 million dollars went for wages... nearly 5 million dollars for taxes.

People at work in Texas... money spent in Texas... to give you swift, accurate, courteous telephone service at a reasonable price.
