

A WEEK AT A TIME

by J. M. KIN

NOT SO HOPELESS

The condition of the sailors trapped in the Submarine Squalus, under 240 feet of water off Portsmouth, N. H., was never so hopeless as such a condition might have caused twenty or even ten years ago. Men who go down to the sea in ships have given thought to safety devices in these past years. And landmen who have thought perhaps we were paying too much for the thinking we were getting done by officers of the United States Navy, can realize that the development of safety devices that might save the lives of 33 men is well worth the time of ten men for a lifetime. The knowledge of such safety development can not help but make the navy more efficient, for who can not serve better if he knows nothing is spared for his safety and welfare?

WE MAKE APOLOGIES

We make apologies. We wanted to honor the members of the Senior Class of 1939, Slaton High School, by carrying pictures of every one of them. Pictures had been made, but they were all sent out of town to another printing company, and that printing company didn't want to do anything like taking some extra pains so the Slatonite could use the pictures that belong to the members of the Class. And so we couldn't get the pictures, though we started trying about six weeks before the end of school. We are sorry.

A PLACE TO EAT

In a city like ours there is a demand for services in a good many fields. Drugs, hardware, furniture, plumbing, Automotive, gasoline and fuel, the various utilities and others are some of the fields that are adequately provided for. But not until now has a restaurant worthy of the patronage it should command here been established. That deficiency will be supplied when Vasker Browning has installed his new fixtures in his new place at the corner of Ninth and Garza. Beautiful blue and—wait until it is completed and then you will have an invitation to visit and patronize what promises to be one of the South Plains' most popular eating places.

New Hampshire Visitor Knows Sub Victims

Mrs. N. A. Gardner, son Pat, and daughter Billie Jean, of Portsmouth, N. H. is a guest this week of her sister Mrs. Ed Meyers. This is the first meeting of the two sisters in 27 years.

Mrs. Gardner is much interested in the Submarine tragedy that occurred so near her home this week, and especially since her husband is in the Navy and took part in the rescue operations. She is personally acquainted with many members of the crew of the ill-fated boat.

Charles Whaley reports the fishing good. Caught some that long.

Charles Marriott and son Charles Jr. and Vasker Browning were transient visitors at Justiceburg last weekend. They caught some nice crappie and bass—enough for a good fish dinner for their three families.

MRS. ROBERT COLLINS

Wedding Of Miss Weaver Announced

Mrs. Roy Boyd announces the marriage of her sister, Miss Irma Joye Weaver to Robert Collins of Lubbock, the wedding having taken place last February 25th at the Baptist church of Littlefield.

The bride is a graduate of Texas Technological college and will do work toward her master's degree this summer.

Mr. Collins is employed at Walker Smith Wholesale Grocery. They will make their home in Slaton where Mrs. Collins is a teacher in Junior High School.

Kennedy Elected To State Board Soil Conservation Body Is Forming

W. G. Kennedy of Bailey County was elected to the State Soil Conservation Board at a meeting in Plainview last Monday. Representatives from 48 of the 51 counties of District 1 were in attendance at the meeting. Kennedy had previously been named permanent chairman of the district.

The district representatives will meet at Temple as the state board, which will supervise the creation of soil conservation districts. Districts will be limited to 3000 square miles in size and are to be formed as follows:

1. Fifty—or a majority—of the landowners within a proposed district may file a petition with the state board asking that the district be formed; 2. the board conducts hearings in the district to determine the desirability and necessity, in the interest of public health safety and welfare, of the creation of such a district; 3. If the board on the basis of information gathered at these hearings, determines there is a need for the formation of the proposed district, the board shall order an election in the proposed district; 4. If two-thirds of the landowners voting in the referendum favor the creation of the district, the supervisors, who shall appoint two supervisors, who shall obtain from the Secretary of State a certificate of the due organization of the district; 5. The landowners in the district then shall elect three additional supervisors to complete the five-member board of supervisors. All five supervisors shall be landowners in the district from which they are elected and shall be actively engaged in the business of farming or animal husbandry.

Miss McClintock Presents Pupils

Miss Lorene McClintock presents the pupils of Jeannette Ramsey Olive in piano recital, Friday evening at 8:15 o'clock at the High school auditorium. These are the pupils other than the graduates who have been presented in individual recitals. Though Miss McClintock has had charge of the pupils for a brief time, she feels a worthy pride in the development of the members of the class and invites their friends to come and hear them.

CORRECTION

Mrs. W. K. Heaton of Ft. Collins, Colo., sister of Mr. W. R. Lovett, attended the funeral of Laura Jane Lovett May 12. Rev. C. E. Fike assisted in the funeral services.

Leonard Jones Severly Injured Struck By Car On Hiway Sun. Night

Sunday night, May 20, about 10:15 Leonard Jones was struck and seriously injured by a car driven by Tony Angerer, who immediately stopped and rushed the man to Mercy Hospital, where he now is receiving treatment.

X-Rays made Monday revealed a collar bone, right arm and one rib broken. The victim also suffered from shock, cuts and bruises about the face and the upper part of the body, mainly the arms.

The accident occurred on the west side of the City Hall, on the east side of the two-way street that is the highway. Angerer states that he did not see the youth until a fraction of a second before hitting him and Jones says that he did not see the car until it was upon him. Another car was advancing from the south and passed the scene immediately after the collision.

Jones, who was on an errand for his sick mother, was crossing from the city hall lawn and Angerer was driving south in the right lane of the divided street, he asserts. Elwood Kahlich, who was in the car with him, bore out his statement.

Leonard Jones, 21, is the son of Mrs. Flora Jones and resides on E. Panhandle St. They have lived here 8 years.

Tony Angerer is employed at the Heinrich Bros. Service Station and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Angerer who have lived near here for many years.

Several boys playing on the city hall lawn witnessed the accident, it is said.

Miss Allison And Carl Hyatt Marry

Vows of a double ring ceremony were exchanged before an altar of fern and greenery Sunday morning, May 21 at 8:30 o'clock by Miss Frances Allison, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Allison of Rockwood and Carl Hyatt of Ralls, in the First Methodist church chapel. Rev. E. B. Hicks of Ralls officiated.

After a short trip the couple will be at home in Ralls where Mr. Hyatt is publisher of the Ralls Banner. Mrs. W. R. Wilson of this city is the mother of Mr. Hyatt.

Vacation School At Presbyterian Church

A Vacation Church School will be held at the First Presbyterian Church for two weeks, starting Monday morning, May 29, at 9:00 o'clock. The Christian and Presbyterian Churches are cooperating to hold the school. Any child between the ages of 4 and 12 years is eligible to attend. Children from any church or those not related to any church are invited to attend the school.

The teachers and workers tentatively selected for the school are: Mrs. Earl Reasoner, Virginia Brasfield, Mary Brasfield, Emily Darwin, Rev. J. Paul Stevens, Mrs. P. M. Porter, Roberta McCain, Marion Bechtel.

For two weeks of wholesome religious instruction, coupled with character building recreation, see that your children attend this Vacation Church School. There will be no charge for any child.

FORMER BAPTIST PASTOR VISITS HERE AND PREACHES

Rev. and Mrs. F. A. Whitely of Manilton, Ark. visited in Slaton the past weekend in the homes of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Florence, C. V. Young, T. O. Petty, and Fred Stottlemire.

A few friends gathered at the Florence home Sunday for lunch and an old time visit.

Rev. Whitely preached at the Baptist church Sunday night where he met many old friends of other days when he was pastor here. Although there were many faces missing from the congregation that he knew in the past, he could look over the crowd and recall many pleasant memories.

GOOD-WILLERS: Rep. Alvin Allison, right, and Rep. Cecil Rhodes, left, will leave June 15 as ambassadors of good will to Mexico to represent Gov. W. Lee O'Daniel, center, who declined an invitation of the Mexican government himself to visit Mexico this summer. Allison and Rhodes will leave Laredo by train and also will visit in Acapulco on the Mexican coast. The two Texas representatives have been invited to address the national Mexican congress by Rafael P. Gamboa, a member of the chamber of deputies.

Mrs. J. D. Rankin Dies In Car Crash Takes Two Lives

Mrs. J. D. Rankin of Portales, was one of two to die in a head-on collision two miles south of Clovis Saturday evening. With her 15 year-old son, J. D. Jr., driving, her husband and seven-year-old daughter on the back seat, they were returning from shopping at Clovis when they met a car driven by John D. Spriggs, 16, of Portales. Within forty feet of the Rankin car, the Spriggs car suddenly swerved across the road and the collision resulted. Mrs. Rankin died instantly, her chest crushed. Spriggs' younger brother, Marvin, 14, riding with him, died three hours later in the hospital. John D. said "the steering gear hung." He remembered nothing more, he said.

Four are still in the hospital: Young Spriggs with bruises and cuts is not considered seriously injured. Young Rankin with a crushed lung is in critical condition; the little girl with a fractured skull and cuts and bruises is not considered in danger and the elder Rankin, though suffering many cuts and bruises will be discharged from the hospital this week.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Rankin of Slaton went to Portales for the funeral of Mrs. Rankin, which was held there Monday. Interment was at Lubbock Monday afternoon.

Want Ad Week Brings News

Because Want Ads are a necessary and daily part of American life and because we have heard so many people say "The Classifieds are the only advertising I read," we have gathered an unusual number of want ads for this week. We invite your attention to these little stories of the things your neighbors has for sale. You will find there advertised some things or some services you need. You can patronize these advertisers with confidence that they live here and are sincere in their offerings in this issue of your newspaper. The Ed.

Showers Cool With Slight Falls

A shower that put up to three-fourth of an inch of moisture in some spots Wednesday afternoon drove planters out of the fields where approximately seventy-five per cent of the cotton is already planted. Reports are not available about the area covered, but it was apparently very limited. The shower brought relief from heat that has been unseasonable all this week.

MR. KOEHLER DEAD

Mr. George Koehler, formerly of Southland, died at Corpus Christi Monday May 22nd and will be buried here early next week, the date having not yet been agreed upon.

Revival Now In Progress

Rev. D. E. McGinn, pastor of the Assembly of God located at the corner of 8th and Powers St., announces that they have begun a revival, Sunday May 21st being the first day of these special services.

Rev. and Mrs. Morris Lefkowitz are conducting the revival and everyone is invited to attend church at 7:45 each night.

This evangelist is a converted Jew of Oklahoma City, with a widespread reputation as a preacher of the Word of God. There will be special singing in the Hebrew tongue at these meetings.

Among the topics for discussion will be: "Hitler in God's Program", "A Court Trial," "Why the Jews Rejected Christ," "From Judaism to Christianity—A Personal Testimony" and "Where are the Dead?"

Chief Wicker Nabs Thief Friday Night

Chief of Police R. L. Wicker arrested J. J. Samples Friday night, May 19 at the filling station of A. B. Dozier on the Slaton-Post highway just outside the city limits, where he had robbed the cash register and stolen a 22 rifle. Previously he had stolen an automobile from Vance Swain of Lubbock.

Samples was held in county jail after his failure to post bond of $1,000 set by Justice of the Peace Walter Davies of Lubbock.

Brother Of Jim Bates Buried May 19

Jim Bates, has received word that his brother, Willis (Bill) Bates, 58, died Saturday May 13 and was buried Friday May 19th at Los Angeles, Cal., his home for several years.

Mr. Bates was an army officer in the World War and was buried with full military honors. He was coach at the University of California at the time of his death from a heart attack. Previously he had coached in Winfield, Kansas, and was well known in college and military circles. He was a native of Vermont.

His widow survives him, also several sisters and his brother, Jim, who lives here.

Rachel Darwin Marries In Dallas

Miss Rachel Darwin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Darwin of Dallas, formerly of Slaton, and John Quincy Adams, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Q. Adams, sr., were married recently at the East Dallas Presbyterian Church with Rev. J. E. McLean officiating.

Until 1937 the Darwins were Slaton residents, then they moved to Dallas where Rachel was employed as a stenographer with an insurance firm. Mr. Adams is the manager of a grocery and market store there.

C. M. LANE FAMILY HERE

C. M. Lane, manager of the City Drug Store is now a full-fledged citizen of Slaton having moved his family to the city. He had delayed this long so Christine, his daughter, 7, would not have to change schools so near to the end of the year. The family consists of Mr. and Mrs. Lane and Christine and a son, Bill, 5. They are in residence at 315 West Lynn.

Tea Honors Miss Wootton

Breakfast Given At Lubbock May 21st

Miss Minnie Will Wootton, bride-elect of Bryan Williams, was honored with a tea shower Saturday afternoon, May 20 at the home of Mrs. Harry Stokes. Other hostesses were Mesdames W. T. Davis, R. D. Hickman, R. D. Bechtel, W. M. Cates, K. L. Scudder, L. A. Harral, S. G. Wilson, F. A. England, and O. O. Crow.

Mrs. England greeted guests at the door and the receiving line was composed of Mrs. Stokes, Miss Wootton, Mesdames L. B. Wootton, mother of the honoree; Bryan Williams of Post, mother of the groom elect; and W. H. Rogers of Lubbock.

Mrs. Harral, program chairman, arranged for piano selections by June Scott, Dickie Ragsdale, Marion Bechtel and Mrs. K. S. McKinney, with Mrs. Vern Johnson singing to the accompaniment of Mrs. Allen Farrell.

The dining table was covered with a cream lace cloth over blue satin. A bowl of pink roses and blue cornflowers centered the table. On the dining room wall was a basket of running roses and bowls of snapdragon and baby's breath were placed on the piano and various tables.

Elizabeth Stokes and Corrine Cates presided over the guest book, and Mesdames Hickman and Crow at the tea table. Mrs. Bechtel bid the guests goodbye.

A blue satin down coverlet was presented the honoree by the hostesses.

Breakfast at Lubbock

Sunday morning, May 21, Mesdames Doris Minor, Nancy Nell Wingo, Lynn Bain and Mary Beth Tomlinson, all co-ed friends of Miss Wootton, entertained for her with a breakfast at the F. R. Friend residence. Flowers and greenery were used to decorate the tables.

Included in the guest list were Mesdames L. B. Wootton of Slaton, and Bryan Williams of Post.

J. A. Paulk Is Buried Here May 18

Funeral rites were read for J. A. Paulk at the Church of Christ Friday afternoon May 19 at 4 o'clock with Bro. McCormick of the Leveland church officiating.

The deceased lived here for ten years before making his home in 1933 in Leveland. He was about 72 years of age and a member of the Church of Christ. For several months he had been in ill health and died Thursday May 17 in Leveland. Entombment was made in Englewood cemetery with a Leveland funeral home in charge.

Survivors include his wife and several children, all of whom were at the funeral services.

Soft Ball Fever Begins To Rise

To The Slatonite:

What is wrong with the Soft Ball Fans of Slaton? Do they want to have a soft ball league here this year? If so why doesn't some one get it started? I have been informed that 2 Communities have organized teams that want to play in the league if Slaton has one.

I am sure that there will be one organized if the right person will get behind the proposition. Slaton has bought and paid for soft ball lights. Why not get organized and use them?

PAUL THINKS IN WORLD TERMS

LESSON TEXT—Romans 1:1-17. GOLDEN TEXT—For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ; for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth.—Romans 1:16.

"I see chaos . . . only one thing will stop this coming chaos . . . a sweeping spiritual revival. Unless we have such a reawakening of religious forces we shall have a depression within the next 10 years that will make the last one look like a Christmas eve program." So wrote a prominent business advisor recently, as quoted in the Practical Commentary. His view is shared by others not only in business but in governmental circles. Religious leaders, some of whom until recently were presenting glowing pictures of the beautiful fellowship of the peoples of the earth in a modernistic faith which is far from the gospel, are now either silent or prophets of despair. Faithful witnesses for God have long seen the approach of this day, and like prophets of old have warned the people to turn to God. God still lives. The good news of the gospel has lost none of its redeeming power. The Light of the World is ready to shine in the darkness. Now is the time to preach.

I. The Gospel (vv. 1-6). Paul knew himself as the bond-slave of Jesus Christ, recognizing that he had been set apart by God for the exalted purpose of preaching the gospel. The word itself means "good news," that is, any good news. But because there is but one bit of good news in the world entitled to a place of supremacy, it has come to mean the good news of the grace of God in Christ Jesus.

Note the three points made by Paul. First, it is "the gospel of God," good news from God. "Humanly speaking, from every reasonable standpoint, God can have only one message for fallen, rebellious men—a message of judgment and death. If there is to be good news from God, then God Himself must undertake to change the relationship between man and Himself so that He will be able to bestow His richest blessings upon men. This is the good news, that God is undertaking to save men from the judgment and doom that man deserves" (Wilbur M. Smith).

Then observe that this salvation was prophesied beforehand (v. 2). This gospel we have is not something suddenly prepared to meet an emergency. It was prepared before the foundation of the world (Eph. 1:4; Rev. 13:8). And in verse 3 we read that the good news is "concerning his Son." He is the only Saviour, and unless it is concerning Him that we are to speak, the news is not good news.

II. The Gospel for the Whole World (vv. 7-15). Religious cults flourish only where conditions prosper them. "Buddhism, we are told, succeeds best in warm climates. Mohammedanism flourishes among people of low culture. The gospel of Christ breaks through all barriers of geography, climate and race, and has proved itself to be equally adapted to men of 'all nations'" (LeRoy M. Lowell).

Paul was called to preach to Greek and barbarian, to Jew and Gentile, to the wise and the unwise, to every living soul. What is more, he regarded himself as a debtor to them, and that is the spirit that brings forth a sacrificial determination to make Christ known to the ends of the earth. Let us recognize that we too are in debt to the whole world because we have the gospel that men need. Then in Christ's name let us as honorable men and women pay our debt. Perhaps some who would not wait overnight to pay the grocer for what he has delivered, have never felt the slightest compunction about standing in debt to all men for the preaching of the gospel.

III. The Gospel for the World's Salvation (vv. 16, 17).

Paul was not ashamed to take the gospel into the very heart of that ancient world, the magnificent city of Rome. Had he come with some new philosophy of life which had no power to transform men, he might well have been ashamed, but he knew that what he had would meet the deepest needs of humanity for deliverance from sin and sorrow and eternal death. He knew that the need of the "up and out" was the same as that of the "down and out"—namely, the redeeming grace of God—the gospel which is "the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth" (v. 16). Why should we who follow Christ be so timid when Paul could be so bold? Certainly we should not speak to men about this good news in an apologetic, "hope-you-won't-mind" attitude. Men need Christ. We know Christ will meet their every need. Let us not be ashamed to tell them about Him in the home, in the church, in the office, on the street, in America, in China, in Africa, yes, even to the very ends of the earth.

HOUSEHOLD QUESTIONS. For Glue Stains.—White vinegar will remove glue stains.

An Appetizer.—Celery stuffed with crabmeat salad can be used for variety on an appetizer tray.

Keeping Linens White.—Stored linens will not become yellow if the inside of the linen closet is painted a deep blue.

For Shiny Linoleum.—Dissolve a lump of sugar in the water when washing linoleum or oilcloth and a brilliant polish will result.

A Good Sink Brush.—A worn whiskbroom makes a fine sink brush if you cut off the worn bristles clear up to the stiff part. Always rinse clean after using.

Heat Brown Sugar.—If dark or light brown sugar is too hard to measure, heat it in the oven, then measure it quickly while it is soft. Store it in the refrigerator or bread box, where it will remain soft.

Burnt Aluminum.—If you burn an aluminum saucepan when cooking, boil an onion in it. The burnt part will rise to the top like scum and leave the saucepan clean.

Parental Co-Operation Should Bear Fruit. A school-teacher, after examination of the pupils in her class by the school nurse, wrote the following note to the parents of a certain little boy:

"Your boy Charles shows signs of astigmatism. Will you please investigate and take steps to correct it?"

The next morning she received a laboriously written reply from the boy's father, which read as follows:

"I don't exactly understand what Charlie has done, but I have walloped him tonight and you can wallop him tomorrow. That ought to help."

CONSTIPATED! Gas Crowds Heart. For thirty years constipation caused me headaches and pains in the back. A vital gas blowing crowded my heart. Adierka helped right away. Now I eat sausage, bananas, pie, anything I want and never feel better. Mrs. Mabel Schott. Two things happen when you are constipated. FIRST: Accumulated wastes swell up bowels and press on nerves in the digestive tract. SECOND: Partly digested food starts to decay forming GAS, bringing on sour stomach, indigestion, and heartburn, or bloating up until you sometimes gasp for breath. Adierka gives double relief with 110 U.S. PATENT ACTO-N. Adierka relieves STOMACH GAS almost at once. It often clears bowels in less than two hours. No griping, no gas affects. Just quick results. Recommended by many doctors for 25 years. Sold at all drug stores.

Constipation Relief

That Also Pepsin-izes Stomach

When constipation brings on acid indigestion, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste, and bad breath, your stomach is probably loaded up with certain undigested food and your bowels don't move. So you need both Pepsin to help break up fast that rich undigested food in your stomach, and Laxative Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels. So be sure your laxative also contains Pepsin. Take Dr. Caldwell's Laxative, because its Syrup Pepsin helps you gain that wonderful stomach-aid, while the Laxative Senna moves your bowels. Tests prove the power of Pepsin to dissolve those lumps of undigested protein food which may linger in your stomach, to cause belching, gastric acidity and nausea. This is how pepsinizing your stomach helps relieve it of such distress. At the same time this medicine wakes up lazy nerves and muscles in your bowels to relieve your constipation. So see how much better you feel by taking the laxative that also puts Pepsin to work on that stomach discomfort, too. Even fussy children love to taste this pleasant family laxative. Buy Dr. Caldwell's Laxative—Senna with Syrup Pepsin at your druggist today! (Adv.)

A Forlorn Heart

Windsors Mark 2nd Anniversary

Two years ago, on June 3, 1937, a king married a commoner at Monts, France. Still exiled from his native England, apparently resigned to a life of inconsequence, the duke of Windsor lives contentedly in France with his American born wife, the former Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson. Some day he hopes to return to England with "the woman I love." Meanwhile the Windsors make the most of an uncomfortable situation.

Above: They frequently appear at public ceremonies, as when this picture was taken with Maximo Real del Sarte, who presented them with his medallion of Queen Victoria, which will become part of a monument to be erected at Biarritz. Right: An unusual camera study of the duchess.

Above: Night club life like this has recently become less important to the Windsors. Left: Grace Moore, American singer, who stirred a controversy among British at the Riviera when she gave the duchess the royal honor of a deep curtsy in public last winter. Below: Last autumn the duke and duchess of Gloucester visited the Windsors in Paris, giving rise to reports that Edward and his wife may soon return to the British Isles.

Star Dust

- A Promising Newcomer
Warning Bing Crosby
Radio Vets Team Up

By Virginia Vale

WHEN you see "Wuthering Heights" you'll probably want to know something about Geraldine Fitzgerald. She plays the part of "Edgar's" sister, who marries "Heathcliffe," and she makes a definite contribution to every scene in which she appears.

She was born in Dublin, Ireland, in 1914, was educated in a convent school, studied painting for a while, and then joined the Gate Players. The Gate Players did repertoire, so Miss Geraldine got experience in all sorts of roles. Then she was asked to make pictures in England, and did; she appeared in "The Turn of the Tide" and "The Mill on the Floss," and went right back to the theater.

But this time it was the New York theater, where she was seen in "Heartbreak House." Hollywood discovered her then. Warner Brothers gave her a contract, (with six months off each year for the theater), and she made tests on the Coast, and then returned to Ireland.

She wouldn't believe that she ought to return for "Dark Victory" until she had received three letters and a cablegram; she'd known people who rushed to Hollywood and then sat around and waited everlastingly for things to get started. But she finally returned, was borrowed by Samuel Goldwyn for "Wuthering Heights," and made "Dark Victory."

If Bing Crosby is ever found mysteriously dead a lot of the other singers in motion pictures will probably be questioned by the police.

Some one of them will certainly be driven to commit the crime by the way in which the young man sings. For example, he strolled into the Universal sound room not so long ago, took the pipe out of his mouth, sang four songs, one after another, put his pipe into his mouth again and went home. The recordings were perfect—you'll hear them in "East Side of Heaven," which is probably his best picture to date.

All of which won't seem remarkable to you unless you know what a complicated business this matter of recording sounds can be.

Mr. Crosby has been known to astound fellow-singers even more by eating a heavy luncheon before he had to sing, without its affecting the result at all.

Erno Rapee, Jane Froman and Jan Peerce will be co-starred in a gala musical revue which has been signed to replace the Screen Guild show on the Columbia network for the summer months, beginning June 11. There will also be a 16-voice mixed chorus.

The three stars are radio veterans, but this is the first time that they have appeared together. Rapee is one of the best known musical directors in America, Jane Froman has made a name for herself in both movies and radio, and Jan Peerce has long been a protegee of Rapee's as well as one of the screen's popular singers.

The Andrews sisters like nothing better than a practical joke. Recently, while making a personal appearance at a theater in Brooklyn, N. Y., they tried to enter an amateur contest at a neighboring theater.

The master of ceremonies wanted to hear their act before they went on, and they told him they would do their version of the Andrews Sisters' original version of "Hold Tight."

When they finished he sadly shook his head. "Sorry, girls, but I can't use you," he said. "That was the worst imitation of the Andrews Sisters I ever heard."

ODDS AND ENDS—Rudy Vallee, who recently announced on the air that he'd like to direct pictures, recently wrote and acted in a dramatic skit on his weekly broadcast, as well as acting as master of ceremonies, directing the music, and doing a bit of singing. Lewis Stone is proud of his record in pictures, but he's prouder just now of receiving an award for driving 500,000 miles in 34 years without having a traffic accident. C. Houston Goudiss Describes the Role of Phosphorus In Nutrition; Tells Where to Obtain This Mineral

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

THERE are at least 11 different mineral salts which are essential to the structure or functioning of the human body. But of these, only four—calcium, phosphorus, iron and iodine—require the careful consideration of the home-maker. That is because a diet which furnishes adequate amounts of these four will automatically provide the others. But when the diet is deficient in any one of these four minerals, disastrous consequences may result.

It is therefore of the utmost importance that every homemaker should know something of their functions, and what foods supply them. In this article, we shall deal specifically with phosphorus.

Versatile Phosphorus

It has been said that if the biographies of the elements could be written, that of phosphorus would be the most interesting of all. That is because there are 14 different ways in which compounds of phosphorus may function in the body. In fact, it is doubtful if any other inorganic element enters into such a diversity of compounds or plays an important part in so many functions.

This mineral is indispensable for all the active tissues of the body and likewise helps in regulating the neutrality of the blood. It is found abundantly in nerve tissue.

Needed for Teeth and Bones

Its most significant role, however, is to team with calcium in giving rigidity to the bones and teeth. Approximately 90 per cent of the total phosphorus of the body and 99 per cent of the calcium are found in the bones and teeth.

Both these minerals are required in generous amounts, but almost twice as much phosphorus as calcium should be supplied every day. Moreover, children should have about one-and-one-half times as much phosphorus as adults, to meet the requirements for growth.

The muscles and soft tissues need phosphorus as well as the bones, and in the dietary of the child, they must share with the bones, the phosphorus that is provided by the food. Hence, the greater need for this mineral during childhood.

Phosphorus and Rickets

If a child's diet is deficient in phosphorus or calcium, or if conditions are not favorable for their proper absorption, rickets will occur. This devastating nutritional disease may result in deformities of the chest and pelvic bones, as well as the more familiar bow legs and knock-knees.

Investigators have spent many years in discovering how to prevent and cure this disease which has made life miserable for so many children and which has far-reaching effects that carry over into later life. For example, adults who have bow-legs or a pigeon breast as a result of childhood rickets, are always self-conscious because of their defects. And motherhood may be far more difficult for young women whose pelvic bones were deformed by rickets in their early years.

A Low-Phosphorus Diet

It was found that rickets may be associated with a low-phosphorus diet, even when the calcium content is high. And investigations also determined that there is a seasonal tide of blood phosphorus which corresponds to the amount of available sunlight. This led to the realization that sunlight—which we now know helps the body to manufacture vitamin D—is closely related to the proper utilization of phosphorus. And today it is well established that rickets can be prevented, or cured, by a diet containing liberal amounts of phosphorus, calcium and vitamin D. Vitamin D can be obtained from direct sunshine, but where this is not available in adequate amounts, cod-liver oil, irradiated foods, or those fortified with a vitamin D concentrate will supply this necessary substance.

Make Use of Sunlight

As we approach the season when the greatest amount of sunshine is available, homemakers should see to it that not only the children, but every member of the family spend as much time as possible in the sunlight. This will help to promote the proper utilization of phosphorus and calcium. And both teeth and bones will benefit, as well as the general health.

Where to Find Phosphorus

Every homemaker should acquaint herself with the foods that supply phosphorus most abundantly, so that she will be prepared to include this mineral in the diet every day. Egg yolk and dried beans are both valuable sources of phosphorus. So are whole grain cereals and lean meats. In fact, cereals and meats have this in common—both are rich in phosphorus and deficient in calcium. Whole grain breads are likewise important for their phosphorus content. And on a percentage basis, cheese ranks very high as a carrier of this mineral.

Cocoa also contains a large percentage, though it must be remembered that, as a rule, only small quantities of cocoa are consumed at one time. Many nuts, including almonds, peanuts, pecans and walnuts, furnish significant amounts. And this mineral is found in dried fruits such as raisins, figs and prunes, and in much smaller quantities in vegetables, such as spinach, cauliflower, string beans, carrots and brussels sprouts.

Milk supplies phosphorus, though not in such generous amounts as calcium. However, if you follow the rule of a quart of milk daily for every child and a pint for each adult, you will contribute materially to the phosphorus and calcium content of the diet.

Questions Answered

Mrs. S. E. N.—The three- or four-year-old child who wakes early should not be allowed to go for a very long period without breakfast. For this reason, seven o'clock is recommended as a good hour for his first meal of the day. After such an early breakfast, however, a mid-morning lunch of milk and crackers will be necessary. A child of this age may be expected to go to bed not later than seven o'clock.

"DEAR MRS. SPEARS: I need an idea that will pep up my kitchen windows. Everything is up to date but the curtains. They look old fashioned. The color scheme is red and white, but please don't tell me to use red and white checked gingham because I have done that before.—J. B."

Alright, no checked gingham! How about some nice crisp dotted swiss with the widest red rick rack you can find for the edge? Then make a border around the top and sides of the window by pasting scalloped red oilcloth on the window frame, using wall paper paste. Cut the oilcloth in strips first, then mortise the corners by cutting them on the bias. Start marking the scallops at the corners, as shown here, making the center top scallop wider than the

RAYMOND LEE JOHNS, MANAGER

Another school year is closed, and 38 more seniors have been graduated from the high school into a different life. Let's this week think about what another year of operation of its public schools has meant to Slaton. New honors have been won for individuals, for the school, and for Slaton. Much accomplishment has been made too on the part of all these herein mentioned. Children and teachers alike have worked long hours cooperating and concentrating on the things that will make valuable citizens out of boys and girls when they become men and women.

Ball games have been won, literary honors have been received, with each division of the schools doing its part to make all this possible.

All this is in the past and we are looking to the future of next year for greater accomplishment, so let us here PAY TRIBUTE TO THE PAST and CONCENTRATE ON IMPROVING THE FUTURE IN VIEW OF WHAT THE PAST HAS BEEN.

Congratulations! to students, to teachers and to all others who have dreamed, cooperated and worked for the schools, and long may you continue to so do.

We are happy to recognize the improvement going on in Slaton, in the way of new home building, remodeling of old homes, and the improvement of business and industrial concerns. In the words of the Indian, IT IS GOOD.

Let's carry it even farther: LOOK AROUND YOUR BUILDING AND SEE IF THE SIGN PAINTED THERE IS YOURS HOW OLD IS IT? Does it need replacing?

ROTARY NEWS

Captain W. W. Legge of the State Highway Patrol was guest speaker at the Rotary Club last week. Captain Legge told the Club how the Highway Patrol had reduced Texas highway deaths in the past year. The concentration took the form of strict patrolling and of rigid enforcement of speed laws. The fact that many lives were saved in the past year should be soothing to the feelings of any who might have had to pay a fine for speeding; those fined might also reflect that they themselves might owe their lives to this rigid enforcement. The Patrol it seems doesn't care whose life it saves—just so it saves them.

On March 17th, this year, we insured our house and furniture thru A. B. Griffith, owner and operator of The Griffith General Agency of Slaton, Texas, for $1300.00.

On the 2nd day of May, about forty-five days later, the house was struck by lightning, fire resulted and house and contents were a total loss.

On May 11th, Mr. Griffith delivered checks for the entire amount of insurance.

Our policies burned with the house, but Mr. Griffith paid the full amounts without any hesitation whatsoever.

We appreciate the splendid insurance service rendered us and take this means of expressing our appreciation.

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS BY JOSEPH W. LaBINE

U. S. Medical Group Hits Claim That 40,000,000 Require Care; Call Health Program Needless

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

MEDICINE: 40,000,000?

Basis for the Wagner bill now before congress is the claim that 40,000,000 U. S. citizens are without medical care. If passed, the measure would provide federal subsidies for care of the indigent sick, amounting to $100,000,000 the first year. Such socialization is strenuously opposed by the American Medical Association, which surveyed local physicians of 747 counties in 37 states to disprove the government.

Forty million people constitute roughly one-fourth the population. Of 20,000 physicians surveyed, 17,000 (or one-fourth the physicians in territories canvassed) reported free medical service to 2,611,451 persons each year, plus 1,909,713 hours of free hospital service each year. If all physicians furnish free service on this basis, A. M. A. figured that 10,000,000 of the 43,000,000 people covered in its survey are getting free service. On a nation-wide basis, multiplied by four, this would mean U. S. physicians are already taking care of the 40,000,000 needy citizens Uncle Sam would help.

Possible, though unsubstantiated, A. M. A. fallacies: (1) "Free" services may include those to solvent patients guilty of the good old American custom of not paying doctor bills; (2) not asking free services (nor would they ask help under a U. S. program) are thousands of medicine's "forgotten men," low-salaried white collar workers who can neither get relief nor pay doctor and hospital bills.

Socialized medicine is one side of the problem, but A. M. A.'s President-elect Dr. Rock Sleyster of Wauwatosa, Wis., thought he knew a more basic side. Nationally known as a brain authority, President Sleyster pointed out that 10,000,000 of the nation's 130,000,000 people bear in their bodies seeds which may result occasionally in a feeble-minded child. Holding that mental troubles are the "greatest unsolved medical problem," he gloomily commented that medicine's strides in prolonging life have cost "far more than the goods are worth" if such protection from sickness brings unwillingness to battle against economic troubles.

CONGRESS:

Taxes

Most U. S. business men have an opinion on why the nation is glutted with idle capital. Their explanation: Too much federal spending and excessive business taxes discourage new enterprise. By coincidence, Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney's temporary national economics committee began investigating this problem just after the senate passed its huge farm bill, inciting a new congressional argument over economy and tax revision versus early adjournment.

Though the senate junked President Roosevelt's Florida ship canal, its farm bill spending spree gave the house courage to pass the record $773,420,000 naval appropriations bill. Tax revision apparently has a green light from the White House, but last January's anti-spending talk has been forgotten under pressure of 1940 elections. Net gain: Nothing.

If this is a neutralizing factor, General Electric Chairman Owen D. Young discussed a greater neutralizer before Senator O'Mahoney's committee. His argument: Government should remove threats and restraints to business, thereby making the administration's spending policies effective in putting idle capital to work. Said he: "I do not believe in... giving a stimulant and then neutralizing it," meaning that spending should only be used to boost lagging purchasing power. Crux of Mr. Young's argument against the undistributed profits levy is that most industries must expand with earnings retained for that purpose, an experience of both General Electric and U. S. Steel, whose Chairman Edward R. Stettinius preceded Mr. Young to the stand. G. E.'s chairman believes the excess profits tax should be modified to stop penalizing business.

With $2,000,000,000 in "nuisance" taxes and corporate levies expiring

OWEN D. YOUNG
Why neutralize a stimulant?

this year, congress is scurrying around to replace them, remembering—but possibly revolting against—the President's admonishment that (1) total revenues must not be decreased, and (2) low income levies shall not be boosted. Already circulating are plans to tap new tax sources for $3,160,000,000 by looking to liquor and tobacco; personal income, corporation income and manufacturers sales taxes; tariffs, and taxes on state employees and securities.

RACES: Settlement?

During the World war anxious Great Britain enlisted Arab aid with a hasty, ill-considered promise of independence in Palestine. Britain also enlisted Jewish funds by promising to make Palestine a homeland for Jews. Twenty years after Versailles the bloody "holy war" which has kept British troops busy in Palestine shows no sign of abating. Last winter an Arab-Jewish conference in London failed because delegates refused to sit at the same table. Confronted with more pressing crises in Europe, Britain finally decided to dictate a settlement.

Released in London was a white paper decision providing gradual relaxation of British overlordship between now and 1944, during which 75,000 more Jews would be allowed to enter Palestine. Then, with population standing at 40 per cent Jewish and 60 per cent Arab, Britain would try to get delegates together to frame a constitution for the new independent state.

Observers thought Britain's haste to reach a settlement had precipitated chaos. Since 20 years' experience has demonstrated that Jews and Arabs will not live under the same flag, it was quite obvious Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain might have made more permanent peace by following the original plan: Creation of independent Jewish and Arab states separated by a British neutral strip.

SPAIN:

Manna From France

What happened to Loyalist Spain's huge gold reserve is a perplexing mystery, especially to money-hungry Gen. Francisco Franco, who needs it to rebuild his war-torn nation. Part of Spain's gold rests in U. S. banks, another—and larger—part in France. Rumor has it that still more was shipped secretly to Mexico to support fleeing Loyalists.

Several months ago France and Britain hoped to woo Dictator Franco away from the Rome-Berlin axis with reconstruction loans which neither Italy nor Germany could furnish. Rejecting direct Anglo-French help, Senor Franco joined the Axis and turned to international bankers.

Seen recently in Paris was Paul Van Zeeland, former Belgian premier, internationally known economist and banker, sounding out private French banking sentiment on a $100,000,000 loan to Franco Spain. Planned by French, Dutch and Swiss firms, one-fourth of the loan would be underwritten in France, where bankers have overridden government objections. Premier Edouard Daladier wants no truck with Franco Spain unless a permanent neutrality agreement is extracted in return.

Little does General Franco care about Premier Daladier's attitude, however. Thoroughly angry over Spanish gold held in French banks, equally angry over the 40,000 Basques who are drawing 15 francs a day out of funds brought with them from Spain, Franco would gladly borrow from private French bankers. He might even find it expedient not to repay the loan until these bankers talk their government into returning Spain's gold.

Hoan's 'Good Government' Plea Ignored by Washington Press

Milwaukee Mayor's Criticism of Relief Administration Practices Neglected as Mayor LaGuardia Furnishes Usual Newspaper Copy.

By WILLIAM BRUCKART
WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

WASHINGTON.—It has come to be quite a habit for mayors of cities and governors of states to come rushing to Washington for appearances before congressional committees. They appear as out of the blue sky; rush to the capitol; testify before a committee; repair to a hotel suite and hold a press conference and gain a lot of publicity, and go back home. They usually come for just one thing—money.

Visitations to Washington, therefore, have become fashionable as a political game. And if, as a result of the words of alleged wisdom dropped from the lips of the self-appointed purveyors of people's thoughts, new checks should be forthcoming from the United States treasury—"ah," they say, "we got it for you."

The traffic in mayors and governors, especially mayors, has grown so heavy that it is seldom news, except for the mayor's home town; and, frankly, the news writers describe them as being worth about a dime a dozen from a strictly news standpoint. I don't mean to neglect the governors when I stress the number of mayors. It is a fact that there are more mayors who come, hat in hand and a bouquet to toss to themselves later, than there are governors. It is just like the fact that there are more freshmen in high school than there are graduates from college, because hundreds of them drop by the wayside.

Hoan Flays Relief Spending

Those preliminaries ought to explain why the appearance here the other day of Mayor Daniel W. Hoan of Milwaukee, Wis., failed to get anything like the attention it deserved from the press. Now, Mayor Hoan is a socialist. He is, however, an individual who thinks about city administration along many practical lines, thus differing from the mine run of mayors who are concerned only with re-election or a political promotion. The mayor came to testify, but the mayor wasn't in the capital city just to beg for money for Milwaukee. He saw some things around here which he believed were wrong, as national policy, and he talked about them.

Said the Milwaukee mayor, in substance: you fellows are spending a lot of money for relief of the destitute; you are wasting a lot of that money, and it ought to be stopped. It ought to be stopped because you are letting the states and the cities get into the habit of coming to Washington for money and more money. They are, therefore, getting out of the habit of justifying to the people of their communities the necessity of expenditures they are making and money their poor are using. In other words, you ought to make the states and the cities kick in with a greater share for the support of those on relief, and force them again to recognize that taxes must be paid for waste, as well as proper use of funds. And, more important than anything else, you ought to put this relief business on a pay-as-you-go basis and stop getting further into debt.

Those were not Mayor Hoan's words, of course. Yet I have presented them as substantially what his testimony meant, and seldom, in recent years, have I heard better sense spoken to a committee of congress. To me, it was almost startling testimony, the more so because it was offered while another committee was looking into President Roosevelt's request for $1,750,000,000 for relief in the next year. It should be said just here that Mr. Roosevelt's appeal for the annual relief appropriation was, or appears to be, modest. That is, the amount is modest if it is all he will ask for. There are those who expect that he will ask congress next winter for a deficiency appropriation when the projected sum runs out.

Charges States Shirk Relief Responsibilities

Mayor Hoan appeared to believe that some of the states were, and are, shirking their responsibilities. It is so easy to come to Washington and tell a congressional committee that "our people are destitute and we have no money to care for them." Aside from the mayor's belief, it ought to be observed that the mayors and the governors are prone to think only of how much money they can pay out without having to assess their own taxpayers for it. They are not to be concerned with federal policy in relief matters, and they are all too willing to avoid references to their own responsibility. They apparently have a new slogan: "Pull Uncle Sam's leg."

Another mayor was around town at the same time that Mayor Hoan was here. He was Mayor LaGuardia of New York. Nobody seems to know exactly where "the Little Flower" should be catalogued, politically. He once was a member of congress as a Republican. That is, he was a Republican when he came in, but he wandered around into three or four different political parties and seems now to be among the bell wethers of the American labor party. Anyway, the New York mayor is a great little testifier in favor getting all of the money for New York city that is possible—so long as it comes from the federal treasury.

Mayor LaGuardia is a great favorite among many news correspondents in Washington. He is what is called "good copy." That is to say, he always is ready with comment on—well, on about any subject. Picture it for yourself; if you were a writer and had to have stories for your next edition and you found the mayor of a great city willing to talk, Mayor LaGuardia will talk, a plenty! Let there be no misunderstanding about that.

LaGuardia's Statement Politically Expedient

Surely, then, a casual reader can understand why the comparative statements of mayors of two great cities had the effect on me that I have attempted to report. One of them giving consideration to the future of the nation as a whole, a statesmanlike examination of a parliamentary policy; the other apparently thinking only of protecting the political hide of himself.

So, I say that Mayor Hoan's testimony was almost sensational, while Mayor LaGuardia was singing the same old refrain of "gimme, gimme." And I believe thoroughly that the words of the Milwaukee mayor will sharpen the wits and stir the courage of those men and women in congress who are seeking an honest solution for the relief problem that is now scarcely less repulsive than a festering sore.

It was quite by coincidence of course that Mayor Hoan's observations should have come about the time that a house subcommittee should have unearthed some evidence concerning uses of WPA money that actually stinks. I do not know about the truth of the evidence, but it is a matter of official record now.

A subcommittee investigator presented statements to the effect that WPA money was used to build lakes in Tennessee "without reference to the need for recreational facilities considered on any statewide or community basis." The statements were attributed to a member of the Tennessee fish and game commission, and the investigator's conclusions were that the money had been diverted in this manner in order to increase the value of real estate held by several politicians.

The investigator and his sources of information named ex-Senator George L. Berry and Gov. Prentice Cooper, of Tennessee, as holders of land which benefited by the WPA-built lakes. This is the same Senator Berry who sued the Tennessee Valley Authority for a million dollars or so on account of damage claimed to have been done by construction of one or more of the TVA dams. The then member of the United States senate charged that some of his marble quarries were under 50 feet of water as a result of TVA dams.

Move Started to Publish WPA Salaries

As a part of this general WPA use and misuse of millions of dollars, Rep. Joe Martin of Massachusetts, has started a move to find out how much money is being paid to those who run WPA. He has introduced a resolution to have the WPA headquarters here supply the house with a complete list of salaries paid under WPA. You know, there have been many charges tossed about concerning the salaries paid out of WPA funds—and the lack of work done for them. In other words, Mr. Martin wants to know some facts why only about 60 cents out of each WPA dollar ever gets down the line to the poor devil out of a job and with a wife and children to feed.

This action on the part of Mr. Martin seems to link into contentions long made that numerous politicians have placed their pets in WPA top jobs where, if need be, they could be quite influential, politically. Mr. Martin tried to obtain the information about Massachusetts, but Col. F. C. Harrington, WPA administrator, refused to make the facts public. He contended that disclosure of the salaries would be "embarrassing to those who receive them." Mr. Martin told the house, however, that federal salaries should always be a matter open to the public and he believed there is no more right to secrecy about WPA salaries than about the salary of the President or a member of congress.

It will be interesting to see if the house votes the order to make the list public, but it will be more interesting to see the amounts of those pay checks.

HEADLINES FROM THE LIVES OF PEOPLE LIKE YOURSELF!

"Fog of Death"

HELLO EVERYBODY: Well, sir, the Vikings of old used to sail the seas in oared galleys that were hardly bigger than the motor cruisers in which we plough through our lakes and rivers today. I'll give them a lot of credit for their nerve. But they had oars to row with and sails to carry them along. They knew where they were going and they had a pretty good chance of getting there. I'm betting a lot that there wasn't a Viking in any age who would have put himself in the spot Peter Gear of Sunnyside, L. I., found himself in. Not for any amount of money.

It happened in September, 1927—and here's how. Pete got a job on a coal barge. And one of the first trips that barge was sent on after Pete joined the crew, was a tow out to sea with a load of coal for a ship that was to meet them a hundred and ninety-five miles out in the Atlantic.

The rendezvous at which they were to meet was south-east of Block Island. A tug was to take the barge out. Five men composed the barge's crew. Four of those fellows—Pete included—had never been out to sea before. The fifth man was a regular sea-going bargeman.

Trip Was Like a Moonlight Excursion.

On the afternoon of the day appointed, the tug came along and the barge was hooked on behind it. Pete says the trip up Long Island sound was like a moonlight excursion. But after they passed Montauk Point, the sea was mighty rough. The four landlubbers immediately got seasick.

It was a hard night for those lads—but it was going to be a lot harder before they got back. The next day, when they arrived at the appointed spot, there was no sign of the boat they had come to meet. The tugboat captain told the bargeman to drop anchor and he would circle around and see if he could find the other boat. He cast off the tow line and the tug steamed away. Soon it was out of sight. There was nothing in sight, as a matter of fact, but water and more water. They were nearly two hundred miles from the nearest land. Then, half an hour later, a thick fog settled down over the anchored barge.

Says Pete: "We were lying in our bunks, too sick to move, when the regular bargeman came in and told us about the fog. He explained that we were anchored in the shipping lane, and that was a dangerous position. We would have to keep the fog bell ringing as long as the fog lasted. Otherwise we would most likely be run down by one of the liners which were continually passing through that part of the ocean."

And that was only the beginning. The troubles crowded thick and fast after that. It was night now, and the bargeman went aloft to hang a riding light. He was hardly up there when he fell to the deck and lay still, his leg broken. "Then," says Pete, "the nightmare began."

Pete went out and started ringing the fog bell.

Pete Hauls Injured Bargeman to His Bunk.

Pete picked him up and carried him to his bunk. The other three men were still lying in their bunks, the ghastly pallor of seasickness on their faces. When he had done what little he could for the injured man, Pete went out and started ringing the fog bell.

The night wore on, and the fog showed no sign of lifting. Pete yanked away rhythmically on that bell, tolling a monotonous dirge. His arm was getting tired. His hand was chafing from its constant contact with the bell rope. Every minute he expected to see the bow of an ocean liner looming over the barge. Every minute he expected to hear a thud and a crash of splintering timbers as some huge craft cut them in two.

Pete began to feel that he couldn't hold his arm up to pull on that bell rope any longer. He went into the cabin and tried to rouse one of the seasick men. Not one of them would get up. Pete was seasick himself, but these fellows felt a lot worse. In vain he told them of the dangers of leaving that bell unmanned. They didn't care whether the barge went down or not. In fact, one or two of them hoped it would.

Pete dragged himself back to the bell. He was sick—sleepy—aching. But he couldn't quit. His life depended on it. And so did the lives of those other four men in their bunks. Dawn came, and still he was jerking away on that rope. Still the fog hadn't lifted. All morning long—all afternoon—he stuck to his post. Both his hands were so raw now that he had to hook his elbow through the bell rope and pull it with his arm.

Night came—and still Pete was at it. His whole body was stiff now. He ached in every muscle and joint and bone. His arm was working mechanically now. He scarcely realized that he was pulling that cord.

Pete Rings Bell for 36 Hours Straight.

And for two nights and a day Peter rang that bell. Never will he forget the nightmare of that experience. On the morning of the third day he couldn't take it any longer. He didn't quit. He just fell asleep—right where he was—from sheer exhaustion.

When Pete awoke again the sun was just disappearing over the western horizon. But the fog had lifted. There was no sign of the tug. When the fog came down it had been unable to find the barge—and it still hadn't found it.

All that third night they waited. On the fourth day Pete sighted a plane. It circled around in the skies and then headed back toward land again. "When it turned around," says Pete, "I thought that pilot hadn't seen us." But the plane had spotted the barge. It had been sent out from New London for that very purpose. And on the fifth day the tug boat came out and reclaimed its lost tow.

It didn't take Pete long to get over the effects of his adventure. Now he looks back on it as quite an exciting experience. There's one thing, though, that makes Pete mad. He worked himself to exhaustion trying to keep some vessel from sending that barge to the bottom. "But in all that time," he says, "I didn't see a single one of those big liners that I was in such fear of."

Patent Office Was Established July 4, 1836

Article I, section 8 of the Constitution of the United States provided that congress shall have power "to promote the progress of science and the useful arts by securing for limited times to authors and inventors the exclusive rights to their respective writings and discoveries." The first act of congress, passed April 10, 1790, placed the granting of patents in the hands of the secretary of state, the secretary of war and the attorney general. Thomas Jefferson, as secretary of state, personally examined many petitions for patents. By act of July 4, 1836, the patent office was established under a commissioner of patents and the general outline of the patent law fixed. When the department of the interior was established by act of March 3, 1849, the patent office was transferred to its jurisdiction. On April 1, 1925, it was, by executive order of President Coolidge, transferred to the department of commerce.

Tope nodded, and he asked after a moment: "Do you know whether the front door was bolted or locked, the night your mother died, before you went to bed?"

"Yes," she said. "Uncle Justus bolted it. I don't know why, when the door blew open. It scared me. I knew it had been fastened, and I thought there must be someone in the house. But I didn't wait to find out. I just ran."

"Mr. Taine bolted it, did he?" Tope repeated thoughtfully.

She said: "Yes, after Mother was in bed, I came to the head of the stairs, and I heard him tell Grandpa Hurder the door was fast. He remembered suddenly: "And he tried to slip upstairs during the evening before Mother died. Aunt Evie saw him, called him back."

Tope was silent for a moment, and he asked then a new question: "If you went back, where would they likely have you stay?"

"There isn't any room at Aunt Evie's," June explained. "It's just a small house, you know. I'd have to stay at Grandpa Bowdon's."

"They've put Mr. Hurder upstairs, in the Bowdon house," Tope reported. "The back room on the west side."

"That's a spare room," June assented. "Grandpa and Grandma Bowdon used the east rooms."

"If you go out there, then, you'd probably have the front room on the west side."

"I suppose so."

"I'd want you to try to arrange to take care of him," Tope told her. "To sit up with him tonight—in the room with him." He considered. "They may not let you; but if you're in the next room, you can hear, listen."

"The stairs are between," she said. "But the doors are just across the hall, opposite one another."

"Are there locks on the doors in that house?" Tope asked gravely.

"Locks, yes," June said. "There are locks everywhere. Even the closets are locked. Grandma Bowdon always carries a bunch of keys on her belt."

Clint said urgently: "Inspector, I'm going to have a ladder ready, so I can get up to her room, get in the window if I have to."

"Yes," Tope said seriously. "That's good. Or so she can get out and down to us, quickly, if anyone tries to get at her. And I'll give her a revolver, show her how—"

The telephone interrupted him, and Miss Moss went to answer it. She turned to say softly, her hand over the receiver: "It's for June."

So June crossed to the older woman's side; she took the telephone in her hand. They heard her say: "Hello. Yes . . . Yes, Grandma."

And after a long time: "Yes . . . Yes, I'm coming."

And then: "Yes . . . They will bring me out, in a little while."

Clint felt his pulses pound with a deep terror; but he could not check her now. A moment later she said, "Yes," again, and put the instrument down and faced them all.

"That was Grandma Bowdon," she explained. "Grandpa Bowdon's funeral is this afternoon, late. She wants me to be there, and to go home with them afterward." She added slowly: "That's what I will do."

In the preparations that followed, Clint's hopeless protests were all overborne. June's dress, that new dress Asa had given her, was sooted and soiled. Miss Moss made Clint drive her to the nearest shop, and they brought home two or three dresses for trial, found one that would serve. When they thus returned, Inspector Tope had rummaged out his old revolver and was explaining to June its simple mechanism before she left for the funeral.

The ritual was scarce finished before Mrs. Taine came swiftly toward them. "It is hard for me to forgive you for this, June," Aunt Evie told the girl, in her low, whispering tones. "You have added much to the burden we have all had to bear today."

Clint saw Rab guiding old Mrs. Bowdon to their car; he heard June say calmly: "This is Mr. Jervies, Aunt Evie." Her eyes met Clint's, and she added proudly: "I'm going to marry him. I'll stay with you as long as you need me. If it isn't too long, then I'm going to him."

"That's all right," Mrs. Taine commented. "Mrs. Bowdon is not decided so quick."

Then Asa came to the side of her. He drew her cheek. "Hullo, June. Hullo, Jervies. Come, with a man like this one to take care of you, you'd better hang on to him."

Mrs. Taine said softly: "Asa!" The word hissed on her tongue.

Asa looked at Clint. "Why don't you keep her, Jervies?" he suggested insistently.

Clint cried: "I want to!"

But Mrs. Taine said: "Come, child." She took June's arm; Clint saw her fingers tighten cruelly. He started forward, but June freed herself, and she said calmly: "I'm coming, Aunt Evie. You need not hold me!"

And she nodded to Clint in a deep reassurance, and led the way toward the waiting car.

Tope had promised to meet Clint beside the road, on the way up Kenesaw Hill, as soon as it should be dark. It was still no more than dusk when Clint took the road up the hill; but at an angle the Inspector stepped out to halt him.

"Doctor Cabler's at the house," he said. "He and Mr. Taine stayed with Mr. Hurder during the funeral. I want to see him when he leaves. Go ahead, over the top of the hill."

Clint obeyed; and Tope explained: "Heale can't be here. He's laid up—a bad cold from last night. But he's lending us a couple of men."

And he said, half to himself: "Here are two women killed. A man don't often kill a woman unless he loves her, or has loved her."

They passed the two houses which still stood atop the hill; but Clint scarce noticed them. "You mean Mr. Leaford?" he cried, in incredulous astonishment.

"But a woman don't mind killing another woman," said the Inspector grimly, as though finishing his thought; and Clint looked at him with wide startled eyes.

Before he could speak the question in his mind, a man appeared in their headlights, a policeman in uniform; and they stopped. Tope opened the car door.

"Hello, Rand," he said. "Doctor still there?"

The policeman nodded. "And I've got the ladder," he reported. "Hid it over in the woods."

"Good man," Tope approved, and they got out and waited, till presently Doctor Cabler in his car came down the road. He stopped at a signal, and Tope spoke to him apart in low tones. When the Doctor drove on, the Inspector returned to them, and he explained:

"Mr. Hurder is better! Tomorrow will tell the tale, whether he's going to live. The Doctor thinks he will. He's given the old man something to make him sleep."

The house on this side all was dark, except that there was a lighted window in the kitchen. Tope was at the rear corner there. The window-blind was drawn; but by moving out a little from the house, Clint could see a rectangle of light where the window was. Some one was preparing supper—talking, probably. Tope stood just below the window, as though listening.

Inaction began to madden him, when at last there came an incident to relieve the strain: a door opened; someone came out.

Clint saw that this must be Justus Taine, a heavy figure of a man, walking with head bowed. He saw this man pause yonder by the ash-filled cellar of the Hurder house and stand for a moment beside the pit as though in some dark recovery, before he went on.

Later a light appeared in the Taine house, behind a curtained window; then nothing happened for a while.

Clint had time for thought, and he remembered his own suspicions of Justus Taine, and was glad Taine was no longer here in the house with June. But Tope had dismissed Clint's theory, and the young man remembered this, and his nerves drew taut again. When someone touched his elbow, he leaped like a startled horse, ready to cry out, but Tope whispered:

"Hush, steady, son!"

Clint nodded; he tried to speak, but his voice croaked dangerously. He lifted the ladder, Tope helping him; and they leaned it against the window-sill above them without a sound.

Clint climbed it instantly; he stopped with his head level with the sill. Since there was no light in the room, he could not see whether the shade was drawn or not; but he waited, striving to peer into the blackness behind the glass.

Once he looked down cautiously, and saw Tope's round figure huddled at the foot of the ladder, Tope's round face watchfully upturned.

He then saw June and Mrs. Taine come in, June with a lighted candle. Behind them he saw Rab and Asa in the hall, and Mrs. Bowdon's ample form.

And then his heart suddenly was in his throat; for Mrs. Taine had a glass of milk in her hand.

Mrs. Leaford had drunk a glass of milk that night she died; the Hurders too. There was to Clint something hideous and sinister in this innocent beverage now. He took an impulsive step higher, his hand raised to break the window in.

But Tope below him hissed a warning; and Clint leaned down to whisper desperately: "Mrs. Taine is giving her a glass of milk!"

"She won't drink it," Tope promised. "I warned her not to drink anything, or eat anything except what the others did."

And Mrs. Taine suddenly, still talking, withdrew.

June did not move. She watched the door. Clint waited, his pulse racing.

Then, after a long minute, Tope whispered: "Down!"

Clint was on the ground in an instant; and Tope breathed in his ear "The door."

Clint at first did not understand. Then he heard the click of a latch, and toward the rear of the house a figure did appear—Mrs. Taine, he guessed. She walked briskly away. They saw her figure in silhouette against the light when she opened the kitchen door of her own home yonder and went in.

Then Clint started to climb the ladder again.

"Careful," the old man warned him. "Don't show yourself above the window-sill. She might see you from over there."

But Clint could not resist looking once to be sure June was unharmed. He saw her carefully propping a chair under the door-knob; saw that the milk stayed untasted. She secured the door, and then blew out the candle, and so came to the window and opened it. She leaned here above him, and he whispered:

"All right, June?"

"Yes," she said slowly. "But Aunt Evie gave me a glass of warm milk. To make me sleep, she said. I promised to drink it when I was in bed."

"She's gone home," Clint told her reassuringly.

"Home?" the girl exclaimed. "She said she was going to stay with him. He's all alone. I'm going in—"

"No," Clint insisted. "Rab and Asa are still in the house. And she's coming back. Give me that milk, June. I want Tope to taste it."

She brought the glass and gave it to him. He said: "I'll be right here. All night."

"Poor darling!" she whispered. "In the rain."

"Near you," he told her. "I shan't feel it."

He took the milk down to Inspector Tope. The old man dipped a finger into it, touched the finger to his lips. "Can't taste anything," he said. "But I'll send Rand to have it tested, right now." And he directed: "You stay here!"

Clint nodded, and Tope started away. He moved past the corner of the house; and suddenly, when he was six paces off, he stumbled over something lying in the uncut grass, and fell heavily. Clint heard the breath go out of him with a grunt.

The young man moved swiftly toward him; but before he could come to Tope's side, the Inspector was on his hands and knees.

Clint whispered: "Hurt?"

And Tope said gravely: "There's another ladder here. I tripped over it." He added ruefully: "Spilled the milk. That's bad!"

"Another ladder?" Clint echoed. There was a dreadful clamor in his ears, his own pulse was pounding so.

Then from the window above them, June called very softly: "Clint, dear, are you there? Are you all right?"

"Yes, sweet," he whispered. "What happened?" she asked. "The Inspector fell down," he said reassuringly. "Didn't hurt him!" He climbed to her window, and her arms held him fast, her lips trembling against his own. "You mustn't be afraid," he urged.

"I'm coming back to you tomorrow," she declared.

"For good and all," he agreed. She said wistfully: "You could come in here, out of the rain." And she urged: "They've left Grandpa Hurder all alone. I want to go to him."

But he said sternly: "No. Maybe that's what they want you to do. You stay here. If anyone tries to open your door—" He kissed her again. "Good night, sweet," he said. "And sleep sound."

He descended to the ground once more. "Mr. Hurder's alone," he reported to Tope. "She wants to go to him. I wouldn't let her."

Then June spoke, whispering, above their heads; and Clint was up the ladder in a bound.

"Rab and Asa have gone into Grandpa's room," she explained. "Asa wants to stay with Grandpa; but Rab's arguing about it. I can hear them talking."

She turned her head at some sound in the hall, whispered, "Hush," and crossed to listen at the door. Clint, even from where he was, could hear the murmur of their voices. Then this sound receded, and June returned to him.

"They're going," she reported. "Asa said he had to go to town later tonight, and he wanted to stand his turn with Grandpa now, and let Rab and Aunt Evie sleep. But Rab insisted it was all right to leave Grandpa, insisted that they both go home."

"I'll tell Tope," Clint assured her, and looked down. But Tope had vanished.

She urged in shaken tones: "I want to see if Grandpa's all right—if they did anything to him. Please!"

Clint hesitated. "I'll come in with you," he decided then. He climbed over the sill, and with their hands entwined, they crossed the room. Very quietly she removed the chair braced under the knob and opened the door.

"He's sleeping so peacefully, like a child."

When he descended the ladder, Tope had not reappeared; but Clint was content in the certainty that June was safe. He stood by the foot of the ladder, tense, ready for any alarm; and minutes drifted by.

Once there was a sound, toward the Taine house, a rumbling sound as though a garage-door had been rolled back on its track. If Asa were departing for town now, then Rab, or Uncle Justus, or Aunt Evie, might presently come this way. Clint was in a sweat of tense, fearful anticipation. He began to wonder why Asa did not start the car and go.

People on North Carolina's Banks Talk in Lingo of Queen Elizabeth

Inlanders who visit North Carolina's primitive and romantic Outer Banks meet many strange sights and sounds, not the least of which is the native dialect spoken by the "bankers" who inhabit the narrow rope of land stretching thread-like from Norfolk, Va., to Wilmington, N. C.

The dialect is a strange mixture of native dialect and Elizabethan English, spoken on Roanoke island, Ocracoke and other small fishing villages along the banks, and outsiders who sometimes stumble into the midst of this isolated colony are likely to be amazed by the language.

If the outlander asks a native for information about the fishing thereabouts, he may be told that "a foine toime to go fishing is at hoigh toide."

Because many other words and phrases are so similar in texture and construction to the phraseology of Queen Elizabeth's day, historians and philologists believe there is a distinct although unexplained connection between the two.

Some content earliest settlers brought their native English speech to the Carolina shores during the days of Queen Elizabeth, and that this has been preserved through generation after generation of natives who live on the "banks," seldom if ever getting very far away from their native hearth.

At Rodante they still sing the old English songs and ballads that were popular in the days of Ben Jonson and Shakespeare. The ghosts of Spencer and Chaucer, of Beowulf and Piers the Plowman are conjured up when one hears an able and affable man spoken of as "being wipped and couthe."

A plump, good-looking girl is a "throdly may." The old word "fleech" means to coax or flatter, and when a man fails to keep an engagement or do his part, he has "scooped" you.

When he dies he has "gone to leeward," and if he goes to "the country," he is visiting the mainland across the bay.

Persons visiting the "banks" are told of the "ghosties" where the old wrecks lie scattered along the shore, of hens that have "nesties," or men who are "fitten" for certain services because their "mother wit" makes them "mindable." A flask of whisky will contain not a pint but a "point," and the vine from which wine is made is the "wine" and not the "vine."

Lace Tunes to This Summer's 'Lovely Lady' Fashion Trends

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

IT'S fashions that trend to "lovely lady" types that will hold the spotlight during the coming months.

Which brings us at once to the theme of this story—lace, lovely lace! With the new styles going in so enthusiastically for feminine prettiness in hat, gown and accessories, the logical answer needs must be lace, as has been the answer throughout the centuries of fashions that have gone before.

With the craze for lace trims on hats, for billow masses of lace at throat and at wrist, with the return of the "baby waist" that is exquisitely sheer and entrancingly lace trimmed, with tailored laces for daytime wear, with sheer pleated laces for dress-up wear, with picturesque period frocks enchantingly detailed in lace, with lace playing a star role in boudoir fashions, with accessories even to gloves and bags and boutonnieres of lace, the current message of lace has become too vast, too all-inclusive for words.

You just have to let the bigness of the lace theme grow upon you as the pageantry of present and coming modes pass in review.

The important thing to say about modern laces is that they are so versatile in character that there's a lace for every occasion no matter what the challenge may be. For that matter it is not an exaggeration to say that an entire wardrobe could be planned of lace. There are fabriclike laces for tailored use, stunning laces for afternoon frocks, laces of grand dame elegance for formal evening wear, sheer laces of cobweb mesh that pleat up beautifully, two-way stretch laces for bathing suits and so on and so on without end.

The responsiveness of lace to every mood of fashion accounts for the fact that designers are acquiring the lace habit with an increasing enthusiasm as the possibilities reveal the growing tendency of lace producers to supply a type for every need.

The illustration presents three distinct types of frocks fashioned of lace. A new medium for the tailored sheer dress which will be found ever so practical for summer wear, is an interesting conventionally patterned two-tone lace as pictured to the left in the group. Bruyere designed this dress which has a grosgrain ribbon belt and two ribbon bows on the shoulder.

Utterly feminine and charming is the afternoon dress shown in the foreground to the right. Vera Borea designs this lovely frock of a delicate but firm lace that delineates big florals with sheer mesh between. The ruffles around the neckline and on the sleeves are indicative of Paris trends. In this dress of horizon blue lace the ruffles lend a beguiling feminine note with no suggestion of fussiness. For summer afternoon wear and informal evenings, there is wide favor expressed for pastel laces.

An interesting feature of sheer afternoon lace frocks is that many are worn over costume slips in contrasting color. Dark laces, very sheer, are also worn over light foundation slips. The monotone effect that demands a matching color for the slip is equally good style.

The model in the center shows an evening dress designed by Molyneux. It demonstrates how pleasingly sheer lace yields to pleated treatments. The straight-fitted sheath skirt is finely pleated, and the dramatic balloon sleeves are likewise pleated. The deep square décolletage is noteworthy.

Pleated Skirt in Summer Fabrics

Skirts and blouses are usually on the wane by the time really warm weather sets in and the lightweight suit usually is the only opportunity for continuing this casual style. But not so this year, at least if the prominence of spun rayon, linen and cotton skirts are any indication.

The pleated all-round skirt is especially good in summer fabrics, which may account for the increased popularity, and not only the skirt departments but the blouse and summer sweater departments are preparing for much activity instead of a lessening of it.

The practicality of the skirt and blouse or sweater is undeniable. It is easy to have a number of changes at little outlay and there is less necessity of laundering than with a number of one-piece frocks.

Feminine Frills On Shirtwaists

Sportswear is not being neglected, even among the frills and ruffles of the majority of feminine clothes, and the shirtwaist is making a conspicuous appearance, changed in some cases by the addition of pleated and gathered fullness, but still basically the same.

In some instances this style is seen with additional color contrasts, among them one shirtwaist dress with rose top and navy skirt, another with a pink and white striped top and pink skirt, and others solid pastel shirtwaist frocks with contrasting bright cummerbunds around the waist.

Smart Rainwear

That adage, "prepare for a rainy day," ever instilled in the minds of the young, has been taken literally in the realm of fashion. The modern interpretation of stylish rainwear is reflected in the very attractive rain cape here pictured. Surely some little girl's geography book must have inspired this all-America raincape in that it is printed with a map of the United States, rivers and mountains and borderlines included. It comes either with a babushka to match, as pictured, or if preferred you can get it with attached hood.

Watch for peg-topped pockets in daytime and evening skirts.

Charming Patterns For Cotton Materials

No. 1747: For junior sizes. A precious play frock, with snug, wide sleeves, basque bodice, high at the neck, and a very wide skirt in the swirling skating silhouette. Included are tailored shorts, with a fitted yoke that fits snugly. A perfect thing for outdoor sports and summer daytimes. Make it of calico, gingham or percale, and trim it with rows of ric-rac.

No. 1527: An ideal design for a woman's street cotton. The plain tailored skirt is topped by a narrow sash belt, tied at the side. The blouse is cut on basic shirtwaist lines, with a plain front panel, side fullness, round collar. Gay little frills give it a feminine, summery touch. For this, choose linen, gingham, dotted swiss or flat crepe.

The Patterns. No. 1747 is designed for sizes 11, 13, 15, 17 and 19. Size 13 requires 4 1/2 yards of 35-inch material for the ensemble; 10 yards of ric-rac.

No. 1527 is designed for sizes 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42. Size 34 requires 5 yards of 35-inch material; 2 1/4 yards of pleating or ruffling.
