Scattered Showers Bring Relief

Cotton Crops Fruiting And Condition Good

Scattered showers in the county within the last week brought relief from the extreme heat and from dry weather that had begun to show its effect on some crops. Both north and south of Slaton rains have fallen to give adequate moisture for growing crops, and all crops in that territory should be rated as 100% normal except that most of the cotton is two weeks late. However, this year has seen the most remarkable arresting of stalk growth in the cotton that experienced observers have ever seen. The hot dry weather came at just the right time to force the stalk into fruiting, and all cotton is now heavily loaded. No insect pests have appeared in threatening numbers.

Scout Troop No. 30 In Camp At Post

Colored Scouts Of S.P. Have Summer Outing

Troop 30, BSA of Slaton went to Camp Post Monday for a short camp at the South Plains camping headquarters. Troop 30 is the only negro troop in the South Plains Area Council. The Scoutmaster is S. B. Gregg. White leaders of scouting in Slaton are convinced that Scouting is a great service to the negro youth. They learn fast, are intensely interested and willing to apply the teaching of scoutcraft in their lives. Through the leadership of Dr. Roy Lovelless, Gilford Welch, and Odie Hood, the Scouting supporters of Slaton made it possible for the colored lads to make the camp.

BUILDING ACTIVE IN SLATON

Medical Offices Being Built

Dr. W. E. Payne Builds On Square

Dr. W. E. Payne has under construction a modern office building at the corner of Lubbock and Panhandle Streets. It will be 28 x 40 feet, of brick and tile construction, fireproof, and incorporating the latest weather proofing engineering as applied to this climate.

Seven rooms and a laboratory will make up the plant which is designed to serve as a clinic and office building. The inside walls will be soundproof, and the latest equipment available will be installed.

The new building has been the dream of Doctor Payne for many years, and is the result of definite planning for the past three years. Doctor Payne thinks he has drawn plans for the building more than a hundred times. The new structure will front the Square and will be a source of pride to all the community as well as to the man who has the greatest interest in it.

Lloyd Tucker Builds Station On Ninth

Up on Ninth Street Lloyd Tucker is doing a lot of paving. He is having laid this week some four thousand square feet of concrete as entrance and floor for the fine new retail gasoline station that will be ready for business he hopes about September first. He plans to dispense the famous Texaco products from the new station.

The building has been planned for service according to the long experience of the trade and for beauty as well. It will make a worthy improvement on a corner that was no credit to any town before the construction began.

SANDERS HOME REDECORATED

Mrs. H. G. Sanders is in the throes of a redecorating job at her home at 500 West Garza. Painting to freshen up and beautify the entire interior of the home is being done by a corps of painters this week.

Martin Jewelry Store Has Been Remodeled

M. G. Martin has just completed a redecorating and remodeling of his jewelry store on Garza Street. Paint has been applied to the interior so it looks cool and clean and inviting and makes a suitable background for the new display fixtures he has installed. He has brightened up old fixtures so as to show to the best advantage his stock of jewelry, cut glass and silver.

Whitehead Building Renovated

E. A. Whitehead has renovated his building at the corner of Garza, Panhandle and Ninth. Some time ago he fitted up a suite of private offices upstairs for himself. They are as beautiful and well-appointed as any in the West. Now the lower part of the building has been repainted in neat black and white. A lease has been made on the lower floor of the building and it is expected that the new operator will open for business soon with retail gas and oil.

Slaton Bakery Remodeled

The Slaton Bakery is dressing up with some new fall scenery. The entire front of the building has been remodeled so as to give more room for the display and retail department of the business. The awning over the walk has been rebuilt so as to afford ample protection to the entrance and to admit better light to the front of the store. Manager Hickman thinks he will be better than ever able to "pass the biscuits" now.

CROW-HARRAL HAVE NEW USED-CAR LOT

Crow-Harral Chevrolet Company has purchased the iron building on East Lynn street and are remodeling it for a used car base and paint and body shop. Dick Ragsdale will be in charge of the department generally but any of the Chevrolet force will show the cars and help with the service they offer.

South Plains Fair Will Feature Rodeo

Directors of the Panhandle South Plains Fair Association announced this week plans for a nightly feature for the 25th annual Fair and Silver Jubilee to be held in Lubbock, Sept. 26 to Oct. 1. The plans call for the staging of one of the most outstanding rodeos ever to be held in this section of the southwest.

It was announced that the arena director of the rodeo had not been selected but assurance was given that it would be one of the biggest names in the rodeo world. The program will include many special features and will present performers of international fame. Negotiations are being made to secure some of the finest rodeo stock in the entire United States.

This year's night grandstand attraction will be one of the outstanding in the southwest and one of the best ever offered by the Panhandle South Plains Fair Association. With world champion cowboy and cowgirl entrants, this year's attraction promises to be most spectacular. It will be a fitting climax to many of the splendid rodeos presented in the southwest this fall.

West Texas Deaf Form Ass'n Sunday

Local Man Heads Eleventh Chapter

The annual meeting of the West Texas former students of the State School for the Deaf was held at Two-Draw Lake Sunday. More than seventy-five former students attended the gathering, and this number was much augmented by families of members and by visitors from Dallas, San Angelo, and Amarillo.

After a mutton barbecue dinner, the assembly organized the eleventh chapter of the Texas Association for the Deaf. The main purpose set out for the organization is to look after the interests of the Deaf in the State of Texas.

The following officers were named: Ernest T. Lynn of Slaton, President; Mrs. Roy Riddling of Littlefield, Vice-President; Mrs. Earl Maddox of Littlefield, Secretary; Earl Maddox, Treasurer. Trustees are Carl Howell, Olton; Ira Slayden, Dickens; and Walter Boggs of Post.

The next meeting of the newly organized chapter will be held September 11th at Lubbock.

DOCTOR TRAVIS BRASFIELD AND WIFE VISIT HERE

Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Brasfield, Sr., of Route 2 have been enjoying a short visit from a son, Travis W. Brasfield and his wife, Florence, who arrived August 12.

Brasfield is a former resident of Slaton, having completed his High School training in the schools of this city. In 1934, after completing his B. A. at the University of Arkansas, he received a scholarship from the State University of Iowa at Iowa City, Iowa. There he received the M. S. degree in 1936. Since that time he has held the position of research assistant in Botany, working with Professor G. W. Martin. In June of this year, Travis received his Doctor of Philosophy degree from the same institution.

In August 1936, Brasfield was married to Miss Florence Brown of Ainsworth, Iowa and the marriage was kept secret for almost a year. Mrs. Brasfield is enjoying her first visit to Texas and the former home of her husband.

Doctor and Mrs. Brasfield are leaving shortly for a short stay with his brother, Shelborne, in Austin Thence they are enroute to Perkinston, Mississippi where Mr. Brasfield has accepted a teaching position for the next school year in Harrison-Stone-Jackson Junior College.

Tess Bruner got back from his vacation Tuesday. He hasn't been gone anywhere much except on a vacation. He says you don't have to travel to have a vacation, just sit in a cool spot and think of the boys rassing the mail sacks in the heat.

On Eleventh Street. A frame building with a three-room apartment will face the south and will be a welcome addition to Ward's home and to the city in General.

AAA Cotton Will Be Liquidated Soon

1933 Program To Be Finally Closed

College Station—Holders of C-5-1 certificates, known as "brown" certificates and "participation trust certificates of the cotton producer's pool", may now turn them in as the final liquidation of the pool will soon be made, according to Geo. Slaughter, chairman of the Texas Agricultural Conservation Committee.

The liquidation of this pool completes the activities of the first AAA program, that of 1933. The original holders of the certificates were among the farmers who elected to take cotton options in the producer's pool as part payment for removal of cotton from production.

These producers received an advance of 4 cents per pound and later were given an opportunity to sell out to the pool or to receive a second advance of 2 cents per pound. Those who chose the second advance surrendered their original certificates and received those designed as C-5-1, which entitled them to share in the proceeds of the sale of the pool cotton after deduction of the original option price of 6 cents per pound, the two advances, and other expenses of the pool.

The pool will be liquidated at the rate of $1 per bale to the original holders of the certificates and to transferee holders on record or before May 1, 1937. Holders to whom May 1, 1937, will receive the purchase price plus 4 percent interest, all not to exceed $1 a bale.

Certificates to be tendered for sale to the pool should be attached to the proper forms, which will be furnished by the secretary of the county AAA association, and mailed to D. F. Mellette, Room 206, Old Post Office Building, Washington, D. C., before December 31, 1938.

Famous Musician Is To Play Here

Friday afternoon, August 26, Robert E. Bruce acclaimed as one of the world's greatest cornet soloists, will appear in person in Slaton at Teague Drug Store. Naturally he will give a program of his specialty and will also have for display a huge collection of rare and valuable instruments. The public is invited to hear Mr. Bruce and see his collection of musical instruments.

PROWLERS BUSY SATURDAY EVE

Saturday evening was an interesting time for householders in West Slaton. Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Martin got home, opened up the house and went to the kitchen. A few minutes later they went to the bedroom and found the window screen had been taken out by means of a forked stick that had been cut from a tree on the lawn. Nothing else had been disturbed. The purse was found next morning in the alley with the sixty cents it had held, missing.

Officers were notified, but to date houses visited that evening were those of J. A. Elliott and G. E. Welch, through no entries were made and nothing was taken.

SLATON FIRE DEPT. WILL EAT TONIGHT

The Slaton Fire Department will have a chicken barbecue at the fire hall tonight, according to announcement of Fire Chief Wilson. Members of the force and some invited guests will attend and then be allowed to judge whether the chickens have died in vain.

An obsessed scientist slowly driving his victim to insanity; a social parasite carefully building a case of blackmail against his host—a gentle mannered lady who plotted the death of her own kin. Together they made polite conversation—while tragedy and death drew nearer and nearer.

How a straight-thinking young man untangled the lives of this strange company and restored happiness to the household of Casper Kneeland makes one of the most fascinating mystery stories you've ever read.

AT EVENING TIME

By Madeline A. Chaffee
© McClure Newspaper Syndicate, WNU Service.

The "Briny Toyshop" was closed for the day. Its tiny show window still displayed an enticing array of delightful playthings, but the latch was hard down on the door, and its little lady proprietress had retired to her favorite low rocker by a rear window facing the sea.

The most persistent youth in the small sea-faring village rattled the door, but in vain. Miss Matilda Bell did not even hear. There seemed more than ordinary magic in the glowing spell cast by the sun at this close of day. The old-fashioned garden sloping to the rocky shore seemed a fairy place. The sea was man-hued, dusky, wondrous, and its melody came pleasantly to Miss Matilda. There were dreams in Miss Matilda's eyes as she watched; not the happy, hopeful dreams of youth, but the deeper, sadder dreams of one who has lived long.

Miss Matilda was so much a part of her surroundings that she had ceased to notice them in detail. Her mind had flown back nearly 50 years, to the time when she had not the faintest thought of ever being a little, elderly, sweet-faced lady sitting by herself in the twilight.

To the time when she was a young, adventurous girl pledging her troth to a dashing young naval officer. Even now her eyes grew dim as the memories came drifting in on the breeze. Dream pictures blotted out the garden, the rocks, the sea itself, and Miss Matilda felt herself in the arms of her young lover, so tender, so dear—

And he had sailed away, full of hope and happy anticipations of the day when he should return to make her his wife. Miss Matilda's eyes blurred. That day had never come. There had been a fire aboard the ship—and the young officer, who belonged heart and soul to Matilda Bell, had given his life for another.

Years had taken away that first tragic grief, but Miss Matilda had loved too deeply to forget. How she wished she had been with him! Sometimes he seemed to speak to her in the voice of the sea, and she would say that she was coming—some day soon, very soon—coming to be with him.

On the rocks below Miss Matilda's cottage two figures were silhouetted against the dull red sky.

"But, dear girl!"—the man's voice was tender, serious—"you don't know what the life is. I do—and I wouldn't condemn any woman to it, least of all—you. It will be a torture without you—but it wouldn't be fair to take you."

The girl's straight, sweet gaze held his steadily.

"But, Tom, don't you see I want to go? It may be years before you come back. Our marriage—that-is-to-be is going to be

Wise and Otherwise

"A child must have a chance to express its ideas," says a psychologist. Yes, but not on plain wallpaper!

"Girls were quicker in their movements eighty years ago," says a writer. They got a bustle on then.

"And they call America the land of free speech," said the disgruntled Scot when the telephone operator told him to put a nickel in the box.

The best husbands are those who marry young. If a man waits till he has money it hurts more to pay it out.

true partnership, Tommy boy, and it must begin by my going to South America with you now. I can face anything—with you!"

The two silhouettes suddenly converged into one as Tom said huskily:

"Bless you, sweetheart, you're coming with me. We'll play the game of life squarely—together."

And up in the little dusky window above the garden, with the sea still crooning a low love song, Miss Matilda had come into her own.

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

Trim kitchen windows with oilcloth shelf edging.

WE ARE indebted to one of the readers of this column for this idea. She was so enthusiastic about the book, SEWING, for the Home Decorator, offered with these articles that she wrote a nice letter of appreciation and also described this clever idea of her own for making her kitchen gay. All of us know how often kitchen curtains must be laundered. Yet, we like interesting windows in this room as well as any other. Well, here is the answer with the minimum of work.

The curtains themselves are as easy to wash and iron as a dish towel—no frills, just hems. But don't make them too skimpy. A full width of 35-inch-wide material is not too wide. Cut away the selvage at the front edge and hem it with a 1-inch hem. Use a 2-inch hem at the bottom. This gives the curtains body so they will have smart crisp lines. The casing at the top should be just wide enough for the curtain rod. And don't forget to allow for shrinkage if the material is not pre-shrunk.

If figured material is used, choose colors that will harmonize with the shelf edging along the top of the window and the tie-backs as shown in the sketch. The thumb tacks used for the shelf edging may also add color interest.

NOTE: Every Homemaker should have a copy of Mrs. Spears' book, SEWING, for the Home Decorator. Forty-eight pages of directions for making slip-covers and curtains; dressing tables; lampshades and many other useful articles for the home. Price 25 cents postpaid (coin preferred). Ask for Book 1, and address Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplaines St., Chicago, Ill.

On the Highway

Some of the most important rules for safe driving:

Never drive fast over a road you don't know like a book.

Learn what you can expect of your car.

Always expect the worst. If there's a tree beside the road ahead, figure a car may come from behind it. If there's a house near by, a child may run across the road there. If there's a parked car, count on its cutting suddenly onto the pavement.

Signal your intentions to all persons who may be affected by your acts.

How Women in Their 40's Can Attract Men

Here's good advice for a woman during her change (usually from 35 to 42), who fears she'll lose her appeal to men, who worries about hot flashes, loss of pep, dizzy spells, upset nerves and moody spells. Get more fresh air & hrs. sleep and if you need a good general system tonic take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made especially for women. It helps Nature build up physical resistance, thus helps give more vivacity to enjoy life and assist calming jittery nerves and disturbing symptoms that often accompany change of life. Sentinels of Health

Don't Neglect Them!
Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter the kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure. When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out. Frequent, scanty or burning passages may be further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance. The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

There are enough unanswerable queries in any intelligence test to induce a man to say all intelligence tests are silly.

Most of the wild daring things are done by a humanity drowsy from ennui.

Why the classics are famous, and deservedly so, is because the chaps who wrote them said the smart things first.

AT EVENING TIME

By Madeline A. Chaffee
© McClure Newspaper Syndicate, WNU Service.

The "Briny Toyshop" was closed for the day. Its tiny show window still displayed an enticing array of delightful playthings, but the latch was hard down on the door, and its little lady proprietress had retired to her favorite low rocker by a rear window facing the sea.

The most persistent youth in the small sea-faring village rattled the door, but in vain. Miss Matilda Bell did not even hear.

There seemed more than ordinary magic in the glowing spell cast by the sun at this close of day. The old-fashioned garden sloping to the rocky shore seemed a fairy place. The sea was many-hued, dusky, wondrous, and its melody came pleasantly to Miss Matilda. There were dreams in Miss Matilda's eyes as she watched; not the happy, hopeful dreams of youth, but the deeper, sadder dreams of one who has lived long.

Miss Matilda was so much a part of her surroundings that she had ceased to notice them in detail. Her mind had flown back nearly 50 years, to the time when she had not the faintest thought of ever being a little, elderly, sweet-faced lady sitting by herself in the twilight.

To the time when she was a young, adventurous girl pledging her troth to a dashing young naval officer. Even now her eyes grew dim as the memories came drifting in on the breeze. Dream pictures blotted out the garden, the rocks, the sea itself, and Miss Matilda felt herself in the arms of her young lover, so tender, so dear—

And he had sailed away, full of hope and happy anticipations of the day when he should return to make her his wife. Miss Matilda's eyes blurred. That day had never come. There had been a fire aboard the ship—and the young officer, who belonged heart and soul to Matilda Bell, had given his life for another.

Years had taken away that first tragic grief, but Miss Matilda had loved too deeply to forget. How she wished she had been with him! Sometimes he seemed to speak to her in the voice of the sea, and she would say that she was coming—some day soon, very soon—coming to be with him.

On the rocks below Miss Matilda's cottage two figures were silhouetted against the dull red sky.

"But, dear girl!"—the man's voice was tender, serious—"you don't know what the life is. I do—and I wouldn't condemn any woman to it, least of all—you. It will be a torture without you—but it wouldn't be fair to take you."

The girl's straight, sweet gaze held his steadily.

"But, Tom, don't you see I want to go? It may be years before you come back. Our marriage—that-is-to-be is going to be

Wise and Otherwise

"A child must have a chance to express its ideas," says a psychologist. Yes, but not on plain wallpaper!

"Girls were quicker in their movements eighty years ago," says a writer. They got a bustle on them.

"And they call America the land of free speech," said the disgusted Scot when the telephone operator told him to put a nickel in the box.

The best husbands are those who marry young. If a man waits till he has money it hurts more to pay it out.

true partnership, Tommy boy, and it must begin by my going to South America with you now. I can face anything—with you!"

The two silhouettes suddenly converged into one as Tom said huskily:

"Bless you, sweetheart, you're coming with me. We'll play the game of life squarely—together."

And up in the little dusky window above the garden, with the sea still crooning a low love song, Miss Matilda had come into her own.

HOW TO SEW

by Ruth Wyeth Spears

Trim kitchen windows with oilcloth shelf edging.

WE ARE indebted to one of the readers of this column for this idea. She was so enthusiastic about the book, SEWING, for the Home Decorator, offered with these articles that she wrote a nice letter of appreciation and also described this clever idea of her own for making her kitchen gay. All of us know how often kitchen curtains must be laundered. Yet, we like interesting windows in this room as well as any other. Well, here is the answer with the minimum of work.

The curtains themselves are as easy to wash and iron as a dish towel—no frills, just hems. But don't make them too skimpy. A full width of 35-inch-wide material is not too wide. Cut away the selvaige at the front edge and hem it with a 1-inch hem. Use a 2-inch hem at the bottom. This gives the curtains body so they will have smart crisp lines. The casing at the top should be just wide enough for the curtain rod. And don't forget to allow for shrinkage if the material is not pre-shrunk.

If figured material is used, choose colors that will harmonize with the shelf edging along the top of the window and the tie-backs as shown in the sketch. The thumb tacks used for the shelf edging may also add color interest.

NOTE: Every Homemaker should have a copy of Mrs. Spears' book, SEWING, for the Home Decorator. Forty-eight pages of directions for making slip-covers and curtains; dressing tables; lampshades and many other useful articles for the home. Price 25 cents postpaid (coin preferred). Ask for Book 1, and address Mrs. Spears, 210 S. Desplains St., Chicago, Ill.

On the Highway

Some of the most important rules for safe driving: Never drive fast over a road you don't know like a book. Learn what you can expect of your car.

Always expect the worst. If there's a tree beside the road ahead, figure a car may come from behind it. If there's a house near by, a child may run across the road there. If there's a parked car, count on its cutting suddenly onto the pavement.

Signal your intentions to all persons who may be affected by your acts.

How Women in Their 40's Can Attract Men

Here's good advice for a woman during her change (usually from 35 to 42), who fears she'll lose her appeal to men, who worries about hot flashes, loss of pep, dizzy spells, upset nerves and moody spells. Get more fresh air 8 hrs. sleep and if you need a good general system tonic take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made especially for women. It helps Nature build up physical resistance, thus helps give more vivacity to enjoy life and assist calming jittery nerves and disturbing symptoms that often accompany change of life. Sentinels of Health

Don't Neglect Them!
Nature designed the kidneys to do a marvelous job. Their task is to keep the flowing blood stream free of an excess of toxic impurities. The act of living—life itself—is constantly producing waste matter. The kidneys must remove from the blood if good health is to endure. When the kidneys fail to function as Nature intended, there is retention of waste that may cause body-wide distress. One may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes—feel tired, nervous, all worn out. Frequent, scanty or burning passages may be further evidence of kidney or bladder disturbance. The recognized and proper treatment is a diuretic medicine to help the kidneys get rid of excess poisonous body waste. Use Doan's Pills. They have had more than forty years of public approval. Are endorsed the country over. Insist on Doan's. Sold at all drug stores.

There are enough unanswerable queries in any intelligence test to induce a man to say all intelligence tests are silly. Most of the wild daring things are done by a humanity distraught from ennui. Why the classics are famous, and deservedly so, is because the chaps who wrote them said the smart things first. Except Conditionally
Free and democratic people cannot be forced to obey. There's too much wildcat in them. Have opinions, but don't necessarily make propaganda of them. There is no self-confidence like that of the man who thinks he can tell a toadstool in the woods from a mushroom.

"I'll vote for electric cookery"

- Before Mother got her Westinghouse range, I could almost yell my head off and she would never come to my distress. Always said she was too busy cooking. She was fussy and grumpy, too—all because of that hot kitchen of ours.
- But now, I just barely whimper and I get all the attention I want. Our meals are cooked automatically... and that gives Mother time to take me out for the afternoon. Foods taste better too... because the wholesome flavors are sealed in.
- Yessir—I'll vote for a Westinghouse electric range everytime—because its faster, cheaper and, well—it's just better, that's all.

Failure of Democratic Purge Gives Republicans New Fear

Politics

If Franklin Roosevelt ever planned to "purge" his Democratic party of undesirables, he now knows the purge has failed.

News of purge failure has recently sent the most dour conservative into ecstasies. For once, it appears, Franklin Roosevelt's domination over the party is at ebb tide.

Is purge failure helping untangle badly twisted United States political lines? Decidedly the contrary. Is purge failure eliminating Franklin Roosevelt as a third term? Probably not.

Originally the purge idea sought to transform the Democrat party into an instrument of coherent liberalism, implying formation of an equally coherent conservative party on the other side.

Deeply tanned from his 20-day fishing trip to tropical Pacific waters, Franklin Roosevelt was back in his 48 states last week, still mum about third term rumors that have kept newsmen busy since he left.

Kentucky

Blue Grass politics was red hot as Kentucky prepared to choose a Democratic senator. At Jackson, Former Sheriff Lee Combs and his brother attended a rally for their own faction, then walked brazenly into a rally of opposition forces.

When the smoke cleared, Lee Combs was shot dead. A few minutes later his father organized infink to search for William Combs, who was no relative but the alleged slayer.

KENTUCKY'S ALBEN BARKLEY It was surely a fine day.

Said Police Chief A. S. Sizmore: "I'm a Republican so I'm not on either side. They were all het up from politics."

Two days later Kentucky went to the polls. At Versailles, Gov. A. B. "Happy" Chandler muttered, "Down the hatch" as he chivalrously voted for his opponent, Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley.

By midnight it appeared that Happy Chandler should have voted for himself. "Dear Alben," with presidential blessing, was renominated and political theorists tried to figure out what it meant.

Since 1931, when Japan marched into Manchuria, Tokyo and Moscow have been "on the brink of war." Last week they appeared to be fighting two wars: In one, at the isolated Russian-Manchurian-Korean frontier nobody knew who was winning.

Amidst a barrage of incidents, communiques and curt notes, Asia's two powers were attempting to settle ownership of a shell-pocked hill near the village of Changkufeng.

Russia-Jap hostilities in this sector date back to 1931 when Japan marched into Manchuria and looked longingly at land patrolled by Russia's autonomous Siberian army.

Already tired of one war (see below), Japan was anxious to avoid another. Finally Ambassador Mamoru Shigemitsu at Moscow received word to open peace negotiations. Last week it appeared proud, stubborn Japan would have to eat crow if she wanted peace with prouder, more stubborn Russia.

MAXIM LITVINOFF "The time has come..."

to terminate these endless incidents." Foreign Minister Litvinoff matched Tokyo's proposals with an even better set:

(1) Immediate cessation of hostilities, with mutual withdrawal behind a fixed line.

(2) That line to be determined by the Russ-China treaty of June 26, 1886.

(3) Appointment of a bilateral commission, two Russians, one Manchukuan, one Jap, to negotiate for redemarcation of the line on basis of the 1886 treaty.

While Japan boasted after two weeks that 1,500 Russ soldiers had been killed and wounded against 180 on her own side, two tattered Soviet deserters walked into her Siberian camp to air their grievances against Moscow.

They deserted because their fathers, well-to-do Kulak farmers, had been heavily taxed, heavily oppressed in the Soviet drive for collective agriculture. "Our slogan is defend the fatherland of liberty," one said, "but how can we soldiers defend such a system when the cows, horses and even their barns are taken away."

To Japan it looked like Russia's poor Siberian administration was her ally.

Last week weary Japanese troops were still more than 100 miles down the flooded Yangtze river from their goal, Nanking, long since deserted by the Chinese government. While defending troops claimed the invaders had been repelled in battle after battle, crafty Japs were evidently resorting to brains instead of brawn to capture another part of China.

In the past Manchuria and Peking governments were undermined by palm-rubbing Tokyo agents and disgruntled Chinese officials. Result in each case has been a puppet state, completely divorced from China. Last week at peaceful Canton, only a few miles from Britain's Hongkong, came reports of secret negotiations to sway South China from the central government.

Promising to prevent recurrence of disastrous bombings which left Canton a bloody shambles last month, Jap agents would set up an independent government closely allied to Tokyo.

Meanwhile Japan refused to stop her bombing attacks on Canton. For two successive days last week war planes swooped down with their cargoes of death, finally striking within 400 yards of the foreign settlement where thousands had taken refuge. Next day Canton's Catholic cathedral was struck while hundreds cowered in terror within.

Miscellany

Back to London last week from darkest Africa came Missionary John Harris with a strange tale. His story: In Bechuanaland lives Ramonolwana Senan, believed to be 140 years old yet still in good health and boasting all but one tooth. He has a son more than 100 years old, and a daughter 16.

Twenty thousand bathers at New York's Rockaway beach sought relief from sticky weather last week. In the distance were unimportant rumblings of thunder. Suddenly the air was splintered by a bolt of lightning that zig-zagged 300 feet down the beach, killing three, felling hundreds. Next day investigators wondered if a huge steel bridge, passing almost immediately over the beach, might have drawn the freak bolt.

When she was first launched, England's proud Queen Mary was queen of the Atlantic. Then came the French Normandie to set a westward passage record of 3 days, 22 hours, 52 minutes. Last week her powerful engines churned the Queen Mary to a new record, clipping 1 hour, 14 minutes off the Normandie's mark.

Fondled like the museum piece it is, Douglas (Wrong Way) Corrigan's $900 transatlantic airplane was unloaded in Manhattan last week.

ELI: RESPONSIBILITY FOR OTHERS

LESSON TEXT—1 Samuel 3:1-14; 4:12-18. GOLDEN TEXT—Train up a child in the way he should go. Proverbs 22:6a. PRIMARY TEXT—When God Spoke to a Boy.

JUNIOR TEXT—When God Spoke to a Junior. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Should We Do as We Please? YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Challenge of Christian Fatherhood.

The responsibilities and privileges of fatherhood need special emphasis, and the lesson of today gives excellent opportunity for such consideration. Too often the rearing of children, which is almost inevitably largely in the hands of the mother, is entirely delegated to her, and the father becomes the man who pays the bills, occasionally carries out a severe act of discipline, but otherwise is almost a stranger to his children.

Girls as well as boys appreciate and respond to the loving and understanding fellowship of a father who really improves the opportunity to build himself into the lives of his children.

Eli is a striking illustration of a man who had attained an honorable position in life and who had discharged his public duties with success, but who failed his own boys, because of weak indulgence. Not a few Christian workers have followed in Eli's path.

I. A Weak Father and Vile Sons (3:1-3).

The sons of Eli were wicked men who dared even to use the service of the temple for the gratification of fleshly appetites and lusts. (See 2:12-17, 22.) Eli protested against their most flagrant sin (2:23, 24), but evidently he had lost his influence over them, for they did not hearken.

It is not always true that the wickedness of a son is the result of weakness in the father, nor is it always the case that weak fathers have vile sons. Often the sons live far better lives than their fathers, and frequently a godly and faithful father suffers the heartbreak of having a wayward son. But usually "like father, like son" is true. Boys learn from their fathers—not so much by words of admonition, as by deeds. Let us tell our boys how to live by first living a consistent Christian life, and then lovingly but insistently requiring of them during their days of irresponsibility conformity to the standards of God.

II. Judgment—Personal and National (3:12, 14; 4:17).

Sin brings a horrible harvest of sorrow, suffering and judgment, not only to the individual but to his family, and ultimately to the nation. No man can ever divorce himself from his relationship to his family. His people will suffer for his waywardness, perhaps more than he suffers himself. The nation is made up of homes, and consequently when the family suffers the nation will suffer too.

There is a strange theory current that social and political entities have an existence apart from the people who make them up, that our people can drink and gamble and steal and kill, and yet somehow we will still be the "land of the free and the home of the brave." America is what the families in your community and mine are, and our families are what we are. May God help us to be better fathers, mothers, brothers, and sisters.

III. Responsibility and Opportunity.

This division of our lesson is drawn from no special portion of the Scripture lesson, but is presented to place squarely before us the fact that we (and we are speaking specifically to fathers) have a plain and inescapable responsibility for our family life, as well as to emphasize the fact that this is not a responsibility of which we should be afraid. It is God's gift of glorious opportunity.

Eli was a personal success as a priest. He had many commendable qualities, not the least of which was his gracious recognition of the ministry of Samuel, who had grown up in his presence and yet who was recognized by Eli as the messenger of God. (Compare Mark 6:4 and I Tim. 4:12.) But he missed life's greatest opportunity by losing his own boys. Sad to say, many a father has followed him, yes, even we are sorely tempted to make our business (and it may be the "business" of the Lord) the thing of primary concern, and let our children fit in where they may, or not at all.

Let us look on the brighter side in closing our study and recall the inspiring contribution that has been made to our national life, to our spiritual life and our social advancement by those who have come out of the most humble of homes, with the most meager worldly advantages, but with the rugged characters—physically, morally, and spiritually stalwart—which have been nurtured in a true Christian home. It pays, not only for the person and for the family, but also for the nation, to have Christian fathers.

Coffee for Ginger Cookies.—Try mixing ginger cookies with cold coffee instead of water.

Napkins From Tablecloths.—When tablecloths wear thin in the center, cut up the outside into 12 or 16-inch squares and hemstitch them. These make napkins which will wear for some time.

Beautifying Wash Stand.—Rubberized cretonne if pasted around an unsightly wash stand will cover ugly plumbing and make a bathroom attractive.

When Sugar Gets Lumpy.—When sugar gets hard and lumpy, put it in the refrigerator for two or three days and you will find it will become quite soft again.

Onion Absorbs Paint Odor.—If an onion is cut in halves and placed in a room that has been newly painted it will absorb the odor of paint in a few hours.

Don't Soak Brushes.—If clothes and hair brushes become very dirty wash with water in which a little borax has been mixed. Dip brushes into water and wash with another brush covered with a light coating of soap. Never soak in water.

Shoe Health.—If your brown shoes are looking a bit scuffed, give them a dose of castor oil, rubbing it well into the leather and then polishing in the usual way with shoe polish. Castor oil gives brown shoes their color back again, and preserves the leather, too.

For Privacy.—If you live so close to the highway that passers-by can look into your home, try painting the screen doors with a very thin coat of white paint and you can look out, but people passing cannot see into your living room.

Deaf Musicians

Several schools for the deaf have full-fledged military playing standard instrument. The sense of touch is related to the sense of hearing. Therefore, with the aid of a developed sense of touch, they may learn to distinguish intensity, pitch and even rhythm. By careful training deaf musicians may learn to play their own playing. Easiest instrument for them, drum, which, of course, is a vibration instrument.

COPYRIGHT WILLIAM MACLEOD RAINE—WNU SERVICE

"Why, yes, was there a rumor I had been sick?" Jeff drawled.

"Have you seen Father? He hurried ahead of us to help you."

"No, but I've heard him. Listen." Three times a revolver barked.

"Sounds like it was up at the head of the street, somewhere near the Golden Nugget," Bob said.

He had guessed accurately. The bullets from that gun had been fired by Norris into the body of Sherm Howard.

"We'd better find your father, first off," Gray said. "He was fighting near the Ransom house half an hour ago. We might take a look over that way."

"My sister is here, too. I want to make sure she's all right."

They moved through the cottonwoods, Gray riding behind Bob. In the shadowy moonlight they caught sight of men approaching.

Gray shouted, "Who goes there?" The voice of Chiswick answered.

"That will be near enough, if you're not looking for trouble."

"We're L C men, Father," Bob cried. "Bob—and Pat—and the others."

Someone in Lee's party let out a yell of delight. In another moment the two groups had mingled.

"You have a wounded man," Jeff said, looking down at a form stretched on a door.

"You should know it, boy," a voice answered. "You were there when I got the pill."

Jeff Gray found himself trembling. He swung from back of Bob and walked forward. For an instant he had not been sure this was not a voice from the dead.

"Is it you, Hank?" he asked. "I thought—"

"Sure it's me. Chiswick and his lads got to the cabin in time to save me."

They carried the blacksmith to the Presnall house and put him into the room next the one occupied by Curly Connor.

Ruth showed up, white-faced. "Who has been hurt?" she asked.

"Hank Ransom. If you can't sleep, you can stay with Hank and kinda nurse him," Chiswick told his daughter. "Can't afford to leave a man. We're liable to be mighty busy when day breaks, and that will be right soon. Our friends from the W J M and the Lazy B ought to be here early. We'll have from twenty to thirty men."

"Is there going to be a fight?" she asked Gray in a low voice.

He answered gravely, "Up to them."

"You mean—a battle?"

"Not if I can help it. If we're strong enough the outlaws will give way. But I mean to capture Howard, Norris, Duke, Mile High, and two or three others. They are desperate men. I wouldn't expect them to surrender tamely."

"They may run away."

"Then I'll have to run after them. Don't worry." He smiled at her warmly. "This job is almost done."

The headquarters of the outlaws were at the Golden Nugget, the cowboys concentrated in the cottonwood grove across the street from Ma Presnall's boarding-house. Since the break of day there had been no firing. Both sides waited. A general battle in the streets would mean the death of a dozen men. Neither party wanted that.

Gray called Chiswick aside. "I'm going up with a white flag to the Golden Nugget. Any minute something is liable to start. We can't have that."

"They'll shoot you down sure," the cattleman protested at once.

"I don't think so," the officer demurred. "Howard doesn't want any massacre. He knows that won't buy him anything."

"What you going to tell them?"

"I'm going to tell them the truth—that I want Howard, Norris, and some of the others. The rest aren't in it. When they know that, the ones we don't want will melt away. They aren't in a sweat to buck the United States government."

"I'll go with you."

"I'd rather you didn't."

"Some of the boys will listen to me who wouldn't pay any attention to you. Five or six of them have worked for me."

"This is my bear-fight."

"It's mine too," Chiswick insisted. "We're busting up the gang that have been rustling my stock."

Jeff gave up with a shrug. He knew Chiswick could not be talked out of a position he had taken. He did not need to mention how great the risk was. The cattleman knew that.

After giving directions to Dan Brand, who was left in command of the cowboy forces, the two men walked up the street toward the enemy. Jeff waved a white handkerchief.

Yorke called from the door of the gambling-house to ask them what they wanted.

"Want to see Sherm Howard," Gray said.

From doors and windows up and down the street on both sides they could see men peering at them. Mile High came into the open.

"You can't see Sherm. He's dead."

Chiswick stared at the lank puncher. "Dead?"

"That's what I said."

This was stunning news. Jeff had depended upon Howard. Villain though the man was, he was a shrewd and wily schemer who used his brains. Sherm knew that wholesale killing in the open would be fatal to his cause. It would be his policy to avoid it and depend upon trickery to escape later. If it was true that he was dead, his influence against explosive violence would be lost. The marshal felt as does a man who has walked into a den of lions under a safeguard from the trainer, to discover too late that the man with the whip is not at hand to defend him.

In the air there was an electric tension such as that which just precedes a storm. Both the officer and the cattleman knew that neither of them would walk back down Main street again unless they did so as survivors of the gun duel that was imminent. Gray felt there might be one chance, not to escape a —shouts—oaths—hideous faces looming out of the fog. Jeff met Mile High and felt the crash of a gun-barrel on his hat. He closed with the tall puncher and clung fast to him, swaying with dizziness and hanging to the pistol arm that waved wildly trying to get a shot into Gray's body. Another face came out of the mist. An arm swept up and down. Mile High's grip relaxed. He staggered against a wall and slid down.

The noise of the guns had died down. Men came out from open doors cautiously, no weapons in their hands. Only three of the outlaws had taken part. Norris lay still in the dust. Mile High was unconscious, pistol-whipped. Clint Duke had vanished.

"All right with you?" Jeff asked his companion.

"Fine. And you?"

Gray's head was getting clearer. He stepped across to Norris and examined him. The killer was dead.

"Where is Duke?" the marshal asked harshly, speaking to all within hearing.

"He ran into Sanger's," someone said.

Jeff said to the cattleman, "Hang on to Mile High," and walked into Yell Sanger's store.

Duke was trying frantically to unbar the back door. He turned, crouched and panic-stricken, to meet the man advancing on him.

"Keep back!" he yelled, and fired.

A moment later he dropped, a bullet hole in his forehead.

The marshal steadied himself against the counter, then turned and walked slowly back to the street. He looked round on those in sight.

"Any more of you want to bust us wide open?" he asked grimly.

Nobody accepted the invitation. All men knew that law had arrived at Tail Holt to stay.

Jeff gave curt orders. "Every man of you shuck his guns. I'll put one of my boys in Sanger's store to check them when you turn them fight, but to avoid being the victims of a massacre. That was to tell his story, swiftly, convincingly.

"Who's running yore show?" Jeff asked.

Out of the Golden Nugget walked Morgan Norris. "I'm running it, fellow," he said. "If you want to know, I bumped off Howard because he was a double-crossing son-of-a-gun."

Gray spoke, his voice strong and clear, for all to hear. "I've nothing to say to you, Norris, except that I'm going to drag you to prison where you will be hanged for yore crimes. But I'll talk to some of the men you're leading astray. I represent the United States government. We're going to clean up this county. Tail Holt isn't going to be the home of a nest of rustlers, killers, and holdup men any longer. I'm serving notice. The worst of you are going to be rubbed out. The others had better get good right damn now. I'm going to get my men. By noon we'll have fifty cowboys with us. Take my advice and leave this murderer and his crowd. If you don't, you'll get in as bad as they are."

Norris moved forward, his figure veering as the crouched body of a tiger does. His thin, cruel mouth was set in a straight line.

"So you aim to drag me to the gallows, do you?" he snarled, his white teeth showing. "Me, Morg Norris! Why, you never saw the day, fellow, I couldn't bust you wide open."

Mile High walked into the street to join Norris. In a doorway to the left appeared Clint Duke, a revolver in his hand.

"Put up that gun!" ordered Chiswick sharply.

Norris' hand swept up from his thigh, a Colt's forty-four in it. There was a streak of light, a roar. Five guns blazed. Everybody vanished from sight except the combatants.

Lanes of fire crossed. Through smoke men's bodies loomed, shifting to and fro, padding here and there like those of animals. The crash of revolvers—the cursing of men—the sudden scream of one hit—all filled the air with dreadful tumult. A rift in the smoke showed Jeff a man on his knees, snarling oaths, still firing at him. The man was Norris. From the officer's gun flame darted. He felt a stab of pain and gave it no attention. Norris was sinking lower. His head touched the dust. The weapon dropped from his hand.

Chiswick was still on his feet. So were both the other outlaws. Smoke over. There will be no more helling around. Inside of two-three hours I'll let you know who I want. The rest of you will be free to go."

He put handcuffs on Mile High. Already the cowboys were arriving on the run. Chiswick held up a restraining hand.

"Hold your horses, boys," he said. "Everything is fine and dandy. A few of the dime-novel bad boys got all het up and we had to knock their ears down. The rest of the lads have decided to be good."

Jeff took over the Golden Nugget and the other saloons. None of the Tail Holt gang made any open opposition.

Before the hour was up, a dozen of the rustlers and outlaws were riding into the brush. It was time to be seeking other pastures.

Ruth met Jeff at the front door of Presnall's and drew him into the sitting-room.

"Are you all right—you and Father both?" she asked anxiously.

"All right," he answered cheerfully. "And our job is done. The boys will eat out of our hands now."

"Frank told me," she cried softly. "It was a crazy thing you and Father did. You promised . . ."

"So I did. We wouldn't have gone if we had known Sherm Howard was dead. But it turned out fine."

"Yes. Yes." She went on, with a little flare of possessive feminine ferocity. "But I won't have you doing things like that . . . now."

"Never again," he promised, smiling into her troubled eyes. "I've been talking with yore father. I'm going to quit the service and go into cattle."

"Thank God."

"You won't be afraid to marry me then, will you?"

Courage was in her eyes like a banner. For better or worse he was to be her man, as long as life lasted. She came to him, with a little gesture of surrender that won his heart.

Washington Letter to Blair Lobbied for Traders Over Indian Boundary Line

A letter written 170 years ago by George Washington, lobbying for the Virginia traders over a proposed Indian boundary line, came to light recently in the William L. Clements library, notes an Ann Arbor correspondent in the Detroit Free Press.

The British government was about to draw a boundary line west of which no white settlers would be allowed, leaving the territory entirely to the Indians. Some Virginian friends of Washington were furnishing provisions to the British garrison at Fort Pitt and feared that the proposed line would leave part of their route, in what is now southwestern Pennsylvania, in the closed territory.

The Virginian merchants, urging Washington to use his influence with Blair to reach General Gage, were anxious to keep the Cumberland-Pittsburgh route open because their Pennsylvania competitors would not be affected by the proposed boundary line, and Washington was to ask Gage whether three or four supply stations could be maintained along the Virginians' route.

Because Washington thought that Gage would have influence in drawing up the treaty, he asked Blair to place his letter before Gage, urging him to secure from the Indians permission for the supply posts desired by his friends.

The fears of Washington and his friends, however, were groundless, because a report of March 7, 1763, by the Board of Trade, had provided that the boundary should run from Pittsburgh down the Ohio to the mouth of the Kanawha river, and in the subsequent treaty of Fort Stanwix the Iroquois ceded all claims to land east of the mouth of the Tennessee river and south of the Ohio.

Blair had seen the Board of Trade report, but sent Washington's letter to Gage anyway, and soon had a reply that the Virginian trade route would remain open. Unfortunately, four years later, Fort Pitt was abandoned, so that Washington's friends kept their trade route but lost their trade.

Washington's letter instead of a copy, was sent to Gage because Blair was pressed for time.

C. Houston Goudiss Discusses the Food Value of Ice Cream

Nationally Known Food Authority Describes Its Place in the Diet

By C. HOUSTON GOUDISS

6 East 39th Street, New York City.

ONE of the most significant contributions of modern nutritional science was the discovery of the importance of the protective foods—milk, eggs, fresh fruits and vegetables. These foods abound in the minerals and vitamins that help to insure normal growth and health, and safeguard us against the deficiency diseases.

In this group, milk and dairy products made from it assume a commanding position because milk is the best and most practical source of calcium and vitamins A and G. These substances should be consumed in much greater proportions than at present if we are to increase health and efficiency and improve our chances for longevity.

The first rule in providing adequate amounts of the protective foods is to allow daily a quart of milk for every child and at least a pint for each adult. This amount of milk need not always be consumed as a beverage, however. It may be used in cooked dishes or eaten in the form of cheese and ice cream.

Composition of Ice Cream

Ice cream is often regarded as a confection, but it deserves to be classed among our most nutritious foods. It is composed of varying proportions of cream, milk, sugar, flavoring and frequently a binder or stabilizer such as gelatin. The composition varies somewhat between the home-made and the commercial product, and the commercial product differs in various states. That is because standards governing the butter fat content differ widely so that the requirement ranges from 8 to 14 per cent. Most large commercial companies produce an ice cream with about 12 per cent fat.

Guard Against Contamination

Some states require the pasteurization of the milk or cream used in manufacturing ice cream; others stipulate that the entire mix must be pasteurized before freezing. These measures are desirable, as ice cream requires the same scrupulous care that should be given to milk and cream.

Because of the possibilities for contamination, several precautions should be observed in buying ice cream. Choose cream manufactured by a reputable concern. Be sure to buy from a dealer who keeps it well frozen, for ice cream that has been melted and frozen again may be dangerous, owing to the opportunity for the multiplication of bacteria while it was melted. See to it, also, that the dealer uses sanitary methods in dispensing.

Home-Made Ice Cream

An easy way to make certain of the purity of the ice cream you serve is to make this delicious dessert at home. Motor-driven freezers are available, as well as those that are manually operated. And the homemaker with an automatic refrigerator finds it easier to make ice cream than to prepare many less interesting and nutritious desserts.

Ice cream powders which simplify the preparation of home-made ice cream, can be obtained unflavored, or in a variety of flavors, including lemon and maple, in addition to the popular vanilla, chocolate and strawberry. The ice cream powders may be used with milk or a combination of milk and cream to produce a healthful dessert.

sert suitable for every member of the family. They also may be used for less rich but equally refreshing milk or buttermilk sherbets.

A canned freezing mix is likewise available and is especially nice in a fruit flavor as it contains pieces of the whole fruit.

A Comparison With Milk

If we regard one-sixth of a quart of ice cream as an average serving, and compare it with one cup of milk, we make the interesting discovery that there is a close relation between the two. The ice cream provides about 24 more calories and only a trifle less protein, calcium, phosphorus, iron and vitamin A. There is considerably less vitamin G, but ice cream is nevertheless considered an excellent source of this important vitamin.

A Healthful Food

It then becomes apparent why ice cream is considered as an excellent food, not only for adults but for children and convalescents, and why one outstanding authority urges the liberal use of ice cream as a means of increasing the vitamin A content of the diet.

Plain ice cream may be used interchangeably with simple milk puddings. Rich mixtures, such as those filled with nuts and crystallized fruits, rank with the heartier desserts and should follow a lighter meal.

Ice cream is so rich in nourishment that it should not be consumed indiscriminately between meals, but should always be considered as part of the day's ration. When that is done, one nutrition authority states that its beneficial effects can hardly be overestimated.

Effect on Digestion

One frequently hears the question, "Doesn't the eating of ice cream retard the digestion of other foods consumed at the same time?" The answer is that it does slow up slightly the emptying time of the stomach but this delay is without significance and is more than compensated for by the important nutrients it provides.

Many people believe that it is injurious to follow ice cream with hot coffee. But it has been demonstrated that just the opposite is true. The coffee raises the temperature of the food in the stomach and thus modifies the cooling effect of the ice cream.

Another common question concerns the effect of cake or pie a la mode. Experiments indicate that eating ice cream with cake or pie produces a more satisfactory gastric juice than when either of these foods is eaten alone. One must take into consideration, however, that cake or pie a la mode is a rich combination and plan the remainder of the meal accordingly.

Use More Ice Cream

It has been estimated that five billion pounds of milk are used each year in the production of commercial ice cream, which provides about three gallons of cream per capita. The amount of ice cream made at home raises this figure somewhat. The amount consumed may be further increased, because when properly made from ingredients, ice cream deserves rank with other dairy products among our most wholesome nourishing foods.

Texas
at her finger tips
...ready for your call
At the finger tips of your telephone operator stands many million dollars' worth of equipment in Texas... buildings, switchboards in 315 offices; two and a half million miles of wire... ready day and night to carry your voice the length and breadth of Texas, and beyond.
Last year it took more than 23 million dollars to operate this system for you. Part of this was for materials and supplies. More than four million dollars went for local, state, and federal taxes, to help pay for your roads, schools, police protection, and so on. More than 11 million dollars for wages to nearly 9,000 workers who are your neighbors in Texas, and who spent that 11 million dollars in this state... no small item in keeping Texas business moving.
The telephone company, like the men and women who operate it, is a part of Texas. Its investment here has been made to meet this state's need for friendly, dependable telephone service. It serves its own interests best by giving you the service you want, at reasonable cost to you.
