Topics and Times Of Slaton Today

The "dog days" are upon us. Thursday, June 21, was the official opening day for summer, according to the almanac division of the year, but those of us who have been experiencing days of more than 100 degrees for the past weeks will bear testimony to the fact that the almanac is all wrong.

Thursday was the longest day of the year, the sun officially rising at 5:20 a. m. and officially retiring to his "little nest in the West" at 7:58 p. m.

The annual West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention has grown so big that a city the size of the present Slaton could not hope to entertain it, but it has not grown so big that Slaton contestants cannot carry off some of its prizes.

Worland McAtee, representative of this city in the "My Home Town" contest, won eighth place in the oratory out of a large starting field. He won his way into the finals with eleven other contestants. When the size of West Texas and the size of the convention is considered, this is indeed a creditable showing.

Slaton's entertainment during the hot summer months is like that of all other American cities, baseball. No other sport is so genuinely American, so characteristic of this nation, as baseball.

Football has its day during the cool autumn and the colder winter, but try and get someone to play football or to watch it during the hot summer days.

That a sport is popular enough to draw crowds in weather like this is proof positive that it is a sport that will be long in dying.

During the past several weeks Slaton has seen a remarkable interest and activity in the development of boys' work.

Next Monday evening at 8 o'clock there will be a meeting in the club house which will have for its purpose the reorganization of all the forces which have been active in this way.

Everyone is invited to attend the meeting, as it is not confined to any one sect, creed or denomination. It is a chance for all Slaton to unite for a good cause.

Negro Woman Is Wounded As She Stops a Quarrel

Adelle Bailey, negro woman, returned to Slaton Wednesday from Lubbock under a $500 bond on charges of aggravated assault following her arrest as aftermath of a shooting which occurred in "the flats" late Monday night.

Meanwhile Christine Davis, also known as Elberta Henry, is nursing wounds from a .38 caliber pistol used by Adelle, and probably reflecting that discretion is much the better part of valor when one attempts to horn in on a private quarrel.

According to story told by the negroes to Chief of Police Les George, it all came about this way:

Adelle and Ophelia Lawrence were having a little private quarrel over a situation caused by the eternal triangle of one man and two women. They were arguing in the middle of the street at about 1 a. m. Tuesday.

Christine decided that a razor would settle the argument, and she gave warning that she was coming to separate the disputants. She advanced in military formation, brandishing the razor. The negroes scattered, but not Christine. She started after Adelle, who had meanwhile secured a pistol. Adelle fired low twice, one shot entering Christine's left thigh above the knee and penetrating the right knee. The other passed through the left thigh. Her wounds are not regarded as serious unless complications set in.

Second Half City League Season To See Changed Teams

The second half of the city league baseball season was to have opened Thursday evening with a game between the Oil Mill and Texas Avenue teams.

Four teams have replaced the six which battled during the first half of the season. The G. R. M. team and Texas Utilities team of the first half have combined under the management of Fred Stephens, and will be known as the Oil Mill team, the team playing under the name of Santa Fe the first half will be known as the G. R. M. team, under the management of G. R. Miller; the North Side and West Side will combine under the management of "Speedy" Cannon; and the Texas Avenuers will continue as during the first half, with the change of management from Charlie Murray to Tom H. Johnson.

Following Thursday's game, G. R. M. and West Side will play Friday; Texas Avenue and West Side will play Monday; G. R. M. and the Oil Mill will play Tuesday; and G. R. M. and the Oil Mill will play Wednesday.

Postal Rates To Be Changed, Says Notice Received

A complete change in the postal rate system will be in effect after July 1, allowing many benefits to the patrons, according to a notice received here by Postmaster James Bates. The change affects practically every phase of the postal rate system with the exception of letters, it was said.

Included in the changes will be the reduction of postal charges on private mailing or post cards. The present rate is two cents while the new rate will be lowered back to one cent, regardless of rate or distance. A letter can be registered from $50 to $1,000 by the new regulation, $100 being the old registry maximum. All rates on air mail will be lowered, five cents an ounce being the charge over the old rate of 10 cents for each half-ounce. Ten cents will be charged for each additional air mail ounce.

Lower Rural Rates.

Lower rates will be allowed on all rural parcel post also, it was learned. A new feature in the system which will be of much benefit to local merchants and mail order business will be the installation of the business reply system. A merchant can send out addressed reply cards without postage provided that he sends as many as 1,000 cards. Postage must be paid on the cards only when they are returned answered to the sender. The sender must deposit a certain estimated sum with the postmaster to insure payment of the answers, however, the regulation states.

Various other changes are to be put into effect on July 1, which affect every phase of the postal system, the announcement stated.

Workers' Absence Slows Scout Drive

Only slight progress was made this week in the drive for funds to make up Slaton's part of the budget for Boy Scout operations in the South Plains area council, due to the fact that many of the workers were out of town attending the Fort Worth convention.

The remainder of this week, however, will be used to clean up all prospective donations which have not been solicited, and it is expected that as a result of this drive there will be more than the goal of one thousand dollars attained.

The two teams which have been most active in the drive thus far are Abe Kessel and G. J. Catching, and J. W. Hood and Walter Olive. Other workers include H. G. Sanders, O. Z. Ball, Harry Burris, M. A. Pember, W. H. Smith, and Tom H. Johnson.

W. P. Knox, area scout executive, was in Slaton Wednesday, but said that no official report on subscriptions obtained could be made, due to the absence of some of the most active workers.

The check-up report on what has been done will be made at a meeting Monday to be held at the club house on West Garza.

Democratic Convention Highlights

HOUSTON. — The twenty-sixth! That is the date toward which everyone here is looking, for on that date the Democratic National convention opens its doors.

Many will be the colorful personalities taking part in the sessions. Of course there will be Clem Shaver with his gavel. And everyone looks forward to the keynote speech of the brilliant Claude G. Bowers.

Bowers, a New York editorial writer, historian and editor, attracted great attention by his address at the last Jackson Day dinner, which is considered a masterpiece. It is believed this speech led to his selection as the keynoter. It was beautifully written, effectively delivered. Everyone is sure Bowers will surpass himself at the convention.

Senator Robinson is expected to be extremely active at the convention, and New York's bright, well-dressed Mayor Walker, a brilliant, shining personality if ever there was one, is expected to put real "pep" into the proceedings.

William G. McAdoo will be there, and will, it is believed, play a prominent part. And then all will be greeted at Houston by Jesse H. Jones, Houston philanthropist, financier and publisher, who became the hero of the city when he led the fight to have it selected for the convention. Jones has thrown his hat in the ring, too, as a favorite son of Texas.

Other convention personalities will include, among many, John Taggard, "Big Bill" Brennan and Governor Moody of Texas. Senator Heflin, the prominent orator, one of the most forceful fighters in politics, is expected there, too.

Pumper And Hose Wagon Is Bought

Purchase of a combination pumper and hose wagon to increase the fire-fighting apparatus of Slaton was effected by Mayor Reese and the city commission last Tuesday.

The cost of the apparatus was $1,000. The pumper has a capacity of 750 gallons, and is an American-LaFrance make.

The purchase was made through Dallas agents of the American-LaFrance company, but the apparatus will be shipped to Slaton from the factory at Elmira, New York.

The city officials met with the Dallas agents while on their return from the firemen's convention at Denton last week. Decision to buy the American-LaFrance truck was made at a special meeting of the commission, as the regular meeting, scheduled for last Friday, was not held.

Friday Rotary Meet To Hear Debate On Capital Punishment

Capital punishment, the question which has recently become of great importance as a subject of discussion since the recent child murders which occurred in widely separated parts of the United States, will be debated at the Rotary club luncheon here Friday noon.

The subject is, "Should Texas Abolish Capital Punishment," and speakers are John W. Hood and Abe Kessel for the affirmative and Walter Olive and Joe K. Rogers for the negative.

Caravan Of Slatonites Returns To This City From Ft. Worth Thursday; McAtee Wins Eighth Place in Speech

Edgar Savage Ends Career As Athlete By His Graduation

SHERMAN. — Edgar A. Savage, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Savage, of Slaton, was a member of the graduating class of Austin College at Sherman. Savage received his bachelor of arts degree from the institution.

Savage has taken a leading part in the activities of the college and has been unusually prominent in athletics. He was a member of the Kangaroo football team for three years. Savage has been a member of the Sherman club, West Texas club, and served for two years on the Men's Executive committee, the judicial branch of the men's self-governing organization.

Slaton Band, However, Fails To Place In Contest

The large delegation of Slaton people who attended the West Texas Chamber of Commerce annual convention at Fort Worth the first three days of this week returned to Slaton late Thursday afternoon, very weary, but proud of the showing they made at the convention.

The auto caravan which left here early last Sunday morning left Fort Worth early Thursday morning, and arrived in Slaton late Thursday afternoon.

WORLAND MCATEE WINS EIGHTH PLACE

Slaton's band failed to place in the band contest held in connection with the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention at Fort Worth; but Worland McAtee, Slaton's speaker in the "Home Town" contest, won his way into the finals, though he was not among the first five winners.

Messages to this effect reached Slaton Wednesday afternoon, as soon as telegrams could be forwarded from Fort Worth after the announcing of the winners.

Mrs. J. E. McAtee, mother of the Slaton speaker, received a telegram from him immediately after the awards of places had been made in the oratorical contest. A later telegram to the Slatonite from L. A. Wilson verified this and gave information on the band contest.

The showing of young McAtee is considered very creditable when the number of entries in the oratory is considered. He finished eighth among the eleven finalists out of an original starting field of approximately 30.

Walter R. Ely, Jr., of Abilene, winner of the contest, was also winner last year. The other winners are: Nell Pauline Giles, Bowie, second; F. A. Newth, Jr., Vernon, third; Paul Stevens, Abilene, fourth; Elvin Self, Rankin, sixth; Worland McAtee, Slaton, eighth; Henson Allgood, San Angelo, ninth.

Sam Staggs, president of the Rotary club, and vice-president of the Chamber of Commerce, was elected as one of the board of directors of the regional chamber of commerce. He was not in attendance at the Fort Worth meeting, however, as he is attending the international convention of Rotary clubs at Minneapolis, Minn.

Installation of these officers will take place next June 25, in a joint installation with officers of the Blue Lodge who were elected recently.

Texas Avenue Is Technical Leader End Half Season

The first half of the city baseball league season ended Wednesday evening with the Texas Avenue team the technical leader in percentage, with eight victories and two losses.

The Santa Fe team, by trouncing the West Siders Wednesday by a score of 8 to 1, went into undisputed possession of second place, and lacks only half a game of tying the Texas Avenuers. A tie game between the Santa Fe and Texas Utilities, which resulted when the teams met June 1, is the only barrier holding the Santa Fe nine from a tie with the Texas Avenuers for first place.

Until Wednesday's game the West Siders had the same chance to tie Texas Avenue that the Santa Fe boys now hold. Nick Deavers, however, held them to four hits, one a home run by Chick Garland, while his teammates pounded Roberson, Garland and Minor for eight runs. Five errors committed by the West Siders were instrumental in the defeat, the eight runs made by the Santa Fe nine coming from only six hits. Deavers struck out eight batters.

Heavy Hitting.
Ray Pierce and Bill Deavers were the heavy artillery for the Santa Fe club, Pierce getting a double and a single, and Deavers socking two singles. Garland for the West Siders hit a home run and a single.

Tuesday afternoon the Texas Avenuers retained their hold on first place by overwhelming the G. R. M. shopmen by a score of 9 to 0. Petty held the shopmen to one lone hit; a slow roller in front of the plate which Husband beat out, Mosely, Splawn and Jochetz were the heavy guns in the Avenue attack. Mosely also pulled the fielding sensation of the day, turning an apparent hit into a double play.

The standing of the teams at the close of the first half is:

TEAM	P.	W.	L.	T.	Pct.
Texas Ave.	10	8	2	0	.800
Santa Fe	10	7	2	1	.777
West Side	10	6	3	1	.666
North Side	10	3	1	0	.300
Texas Util.	10	2	7	1	.222
G. R. M.	10	2	7	1	.222

This standing includes the forfeit of a game scheduled for May 14 between North Side and Santa Fe, postponed on account of rain. Due to disbanding of the North Side team, the game was forfeited to the Santa Fe team.

Two tie games yet remain, a 5-5 tie between West Side and G. R. M. last May 8, and a 4-4 tie between Texas Utilities and Santa Fe June 1.

Safety Meet To Be Held Next Wednesday

An effort to retain the Slaton division's record of leading other Santa Fe division points in attendance at regular safety council meetings will be made when the next bi-monthly meeting is held here June 27.

The meeting is scheduled to start at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning, June 27, and will be held in the reading room and the general public is invited to attend.

Youth Drives $3 Ford 1,300 Miles To Win $5 Wager

NEW YORK.—The rusty, road-scarred and battered remnant of the $3 1918 Ford touring car which Perry Munday, nineteen years old, bought in Columbia, Mo., and drove 1,300 miles to New York on a bet with a classmate at the University of Missouri that it would carry him that far, rested in front of the Munday home yesterday.

The fenders were jagged and seemed to hang precariously; the top was missing, the left front wheel, innocent of a tire, rested dejectedly on the rim; where a windshield had been there remained but the frame. The seat cushions were swollen with the rains. There was an odd tilt to the steering wheel, and the entire vehicle gave the impression of having been carefully but firmly squeezed between two good-sized tractors. But there was an air of sufficiency about it. It had done its job, Munday said.

Five-Dollar Bet Starts It.

A bantering remark from a classmate at the university, where Munday is a sophomore, precipitated the journey.

"That rubber won't last you ten miles," William Sparrow Tracy, of Buffalo, Mo., had remarked shortly after Munday had made his $3 vehicle purchase.

"I'll carry me home if I want it to," Munday retorted, his pride in his business acumen stung.

"Five dollars says it won't," Tracy said smoothly, and Munday's itinerary was an irrevocable fact.

The journey began Saturday afternoon, and after taking a friend as far as St. Louis, Munday wired his father, Dr. Bert Munday, that he was on his way home via "The Black Dog." The parent sought anxiously to learn whether his son was traveling on some new special railroad train, but could gain no information. The next telegram was from Richmond, and another several days later from Elmira read: "I'll soon be home if the Black Dog holds out."

Rain Every Day of Trip.

Yesterday Munday was treating abrasions on the palms of his hands, sustained in the course of long contests at the crank handle.

"It's a great engine when you get it started," Munday declared. "But try and start it." He says he gave a man in Cleveland fifty cents for cranking the car an hour and ten minutes. His official log of the trip recorded the following facts: Gas used, sixty-seven gallons; traveling time, six days; flat tires, three (a remarkable record) bearings burned out, one; stopped by police officers, twice; average speed, twenty-five miles an hour. It rained every day of the trip, Munday says. He slept wherever he could in Terre Haute; Richmond, Ind.; Cleveland; Erie, and Elmira. On the last night of his trip, when he was twenty-six miles from home, he says, he was stopped by policemen because he had no lights, and, determined not to be thwarted in his drive for his goal, Munday called a general-store owner out of a fireman's meeting in a Jersey village, and persuaded him to open his store and sell him two lanterns. With the lanterns bobbing on front and rear he proceeded triumphantly to his home. The last tire trouble occurred ten miles out from New York, and Munday removed the casing and came in on the rim.

As evidence of its academic origin, the machine bears on the rear panel the erudite inscription: "We believe in companionate marriage and theological cosmography."

Thirteen Has Been Lucky Number For U. S. As a Nation

The Pullman company has trouble selling seat thirteen in chair cars. Yet why thirteen should be considered an unlucky number no one knows. The United States is not an unfortunate nation, yet has "thirteen" written all over it, comments the Outlook. There were thirteen colonies, the first flag had thirteen stars and thirteen stripes. Our quarter dollar has thirteen stars over Liberty's head, thirteen leaves in the olive branch held by the eagle, thirteen thunderbolts in his talons, thirteen bars in the shield, thirteen feathers in each wing, and thirteen letters spelling "quarter dollar." And it is perfectly good money.

There are a lot of other thirteens in American history which proved fairly fortunate for Uncle Sam's folks. Isn't it time to put an end to this thirteen nonsense?

Romance Blends With History In Scenes of Rugged Old Normandy

PARIS.—Something of the somber pride of the Norman barons lingers over the cliffs of the Seine valley behind Rouen. There scarcely is a kilometer without evidence—in crumbling, theatrically silhouetted battlements—that Normandy once was a land of knightly fighting men.

Today the cliffs boast no functions more glorious than scenery and foothold for a new forest. The valley has triumphed over the hills. Brindle, white-faced cattle, fortunes on the hoof, graze the plains below Richard Cœur de Lion's last chateau. Busy troika bring American cotton to Rouen and British coal to Paris. Cheese, cream and commerce have proved more lasting possessions than feudal halls.

Napoleon predicted the importance of the Seine some day would weld a single city of Paris, Rouen and La Havre. The Norman cities and the valley would be the losers. Rouen always has rivaled Paris—once as a capital, now as a tourists' center. Few itineraries omit it. Most guide books are too preoccupied with its historical and architectural marvels to do justice to its present.

Sparkle of Rouen.
Jeanne d'Arc died in the Place Vieux Marche. It is a fish market. For the visitor the simplest means of locating the plaque and the new statue which marks Jeanne's pyre is to sniff the seaweed. The city's most praised vista is from the foot of the Rue de la Grande Horloge, past the arch of the great clock to the facade of the Cathedral of Notre Dame. The two smaller clocks in the tower of the Grande Horloge is said to be the oldest in the city for seven centuries. The Grande Horloge is said to be the oldest clock in the world. It is impossible to determine whether it is accurate. The two clocks in France agree.

The sparkle of Rouen is centered about the quais. It is an inland port. The cafe terraces overlook the river. Among the charms of the quais there is also, from the corner of the Rue de la Haranguerie, a glimpse of the ancient Church of St. Vincent. Looking upward from the end of the street the gray old church seems mellowed as the dusky spirit of the Inad. Closer approach reveals that much of its effect is due to its sorrowful state of repair. Not far away is a mariners' outfitting shop, with a display of rope and fishing tackle in one window and of assorted perfumes in the next. The tradition of the sea are bred in the Normans.

The traditions of the soil have left an equal mark. The people of Rouen are handsome, substantial and rich. The city is filled with peasant families whose herds and fields have yielded leisure and retirement. According to a French author—Parisian, of course—the conventional Norman prayer is: "Oh, Lord, I ask you not to favor me with good things. I merit only that which Thou wouldn't give."

but tell me where they are and I will go and take them."

The hill of Bon Secour was designed for those for whom no panorama is worth an exclamation unless the climb has been tortuous. All the city and valley are spread below. On the hill are two dance casinos and tea gardens, and beyond them the church and a basilique and statue of Jeanne d'Arc. Except for the view of city and river, there is more delight for the ear than the eye. The church basilique architecturally are lamentable. The great bell of the church tolling vespers is rich as the tongue of eternity. When its echoes die the casino saxophones wail their litany. The devout parents of Rouen attend vespers while their children dance.

Road Winds Into Hills.

There is a road from Rouen to Les Andelys winding through hills to the north of the valley route, skirting a forest carpeted in lilies-of-the-valley. The highway dips to the plain to pass the chateau at Pont Saint Pierre. From the brow of the hill above the town may be seen the blue hill of the Deux Amants. It is a lovers' leap with an authentic local touch. The peasant boy of the legend could win his girl only on condition that he carry her up the hill. The size of the Norman meal is fabulous, and the young women of the province are buxom. Almost at the crest he collapsed and dropped his burden over the cliff. He threw himself after her, and the hill since has been shrouded in a blue fog. The Chateau Gaillard is the tomb of the last Norman defiance of the French kings. Its ghostly walls brood over the valley, disturbed only by the rumble of the wheels of farmers' carts on the bridge below, the whistle of wind driving a storm over the hills, or the bellow of a twenty horsepower racer streaking along the river road in the hands of an heir of one of Richard's barons. Only the shell of the castle remains. Richard built it, Henry IV drew its fangs and Richelieu completed its humiliation.

From Les Andelys and the Chateau Gaillard to the trim village of Vernon the peasants have obliterated the barons. The placid white highway runs through orchards, meadows and walled farms and hamlets of thatched roofs. In the summer roses climb indiscriminately over walls and roofs. Train schedules through the valley are wisely inconvenient. It is a fifty-kilometer invitation to drive or walk. Calvados is sold in every village cafe. Only one other valley of the world produces such aromatic fire from the juice of apples. In the Shenandoah, calvados is known as the applejack.

Flip Of Coin Gives Girl More Damages

CHICAGO.—"Heads and she gets $15,000, tails and we'll give her only $12,500," jurors deciding a damage suit against the Checker Cab company agreed and so brought in a verdict for Mary Dibell, twenty-four years old. Twelve dimes were on the floor. The goddess of nine smiled at the jury and turned her back three times, so Miss Dibell received the $15,000.

The jurors admitted the liability from the first, but after deliberating for more than nine hours were unable to agree on the amount to be awarded. Miss Dibell suffered a fractured skull on March 4, 1927, when the driver of the cab in which she was riding fell asleep and the machine crashed into a safety island.

Sunday Shows Voted By Chicago Suburb

CHICAGO.—Sunday film shows in fashionable Wilmette are not so much a matter of morals as a solution of the servant problem. Citizens of the North Shore voted 2,779 to 450, for motion pictures on the Sabbath. The voting was unofficial but is expected to guide the council in the matter. Daniel Stiles, vice-president of the First National Bank of Wilmette, believes the servant problem is responsible for the change in sentiment. Householders say servants insist upon picture shows for Sunday afternoons. Being compelled to come to Chicago for entertainment, they frequently are late in preparing the Sunday evening meal.

Prince of Wales Called Good Rider In Spite of Falls

LONDON. — Most Americans who have never hunted in the English shires think that the presence of the Prince of Wales out hunting denotes a gala occasion. But when they arrive in Britain, they soon learn to regard him as the English do, a popular and pleasant member of the field, getting his three days a week by being almost magically ubiquitous.

His horses, waiting at the meet, give a good idea of their master's taste; very few are clean bred, or "picture horses;" all have severely hogged manes; all must go in plain snaffle bridles, with the favorite red rubber rein. But all have keen heads, "jumping humps," and all look like going.

Of course, to the newcomer, any number of sleek blood horses, with fancily braided manes, silver buttoned and cockaded grooms at their heads, and crested blankets over their loins, seem more in the royal tradition.

But the principle that fine feathers make fine birds does not hold good with horses. Very, very few of these showy ones can keep the prince in sight across a big country when hounds really run. He will take on anything that comes along—the bigger the better. Often I have seen the whole field turn off a place where he has jumped. And, as is inevitable, I have seen his plucky horses turn over properly at an unjumpable place. Then, although no one has found a way to stay on a horse that is upside down, the American newspapers burst out with headlines about "Prince of Wales Thrown From His Horse Again," and the ignorant wonder why the Prince "doesn't ride better."

As a matter of fact, he rides very well indeed, even in the land of top-notchers. From our point of view his chief fault is a somewhat insecure seat due to overshort stirrups and over-long reins, which make it impossible properly to collect a horse at a fence or help it recover when it makes a bad jump.

Prince Henry is a more finished and less spectacular horseman; he rides more blood horses and goes across country in the fox hunter's way rather than in the way of one seeking to duplicate the thrill and speed of a race. In fact, this love for jumping big fences at speed seems to exclude much of the science of fox hunting from the Prince of Wales' mind.

He is a notoriously bad pilot for one

When Pain Comes

Two hours after eating

What many people call indigestion very often means excess acid in the stomach. The stomach nerves have been over-stimulated, and food sours. The corrective is an alkali, which neutralizes acids instantly. And the best alkali known to medical science is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained the standard with physicians in the 50 years since its invention. One spoonful of this harmless, tasteless alkali in water will neutralize instantly many times as much acid, and the symptoms disappear at once. You will never use crude methods when once you learn the efficiency of this. Go get a small bottle to try.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting excess acids. 25c and 50c a bottle—any drugstore.
"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

who wishes to see much hound work. He stays with the pack when hard and daring riding straight across country will do the trick; but makes most awful cuts when it becomes a question of hound sense and the ability to outguess a fox. He has even run risks of committing the unpardonable, as he was told by an irate and outspoken master! He enjoys no privileges whatsoever in the hunting field, probably one reason why he likes it so well. He takes his turn at fences, is pushed and shoved in gates, or holds them open for the next one, and gives sixpence to the old fellows with their caps out. Often I have seen him the first person off his horse to help a fallen rider, for he has a great deal more spontaneous kindness and solicitude than most.

Two-Year-Old Boy Smokes Big Cigar To Cure Measles

NEWARK, N. J.—Joseph Fillimon, two years old, was taken with the measles a week ago and when the family physician arrived at the home here he found the afflicted youngster in bed gravely smoking a cigar. The amazed physician went out into the hall to call the mother, and almost fell over Michael, three, who was sitting on the floor playing with his blocks and puffing handily at a black stogie. There was nothing left for the speechless man to do but call the health department and retire as gracefully as he could.

Dr. Charles V. Craster, health commissioner, received the report on Wednesday, seized his hat and coat and departed for the home of the precocious Fillimon children. His automobile drew up before the home and his eyes fell upon John, seven, who was taking his rest upon the porch and smoking a cigar.

"How long has this been going on?" asked Dr. Craster.

"I've been smoking so many years that I can't remember when I did start," replied John, slipping aside the ash.

Commissioner Craster bounded into the home and there sat Michael gazing longly at the long ash he had produced on the end of his cigar. Commissioner Craster shook his head worriedly and walked into the sick room, where he also found little Joe placidly smoking a cigar. The commissioner took the cigar from Joe's mouth, which enraged the child. It was easier, the health official mused, to take candy from a baby than to take a cigar from a two-year-old.

The yell of rage brought Mrs. Fillimon into the room.

"Get the supply of tobacco from those children," he ordered.

"Well, they always have smoked," Mrs. Fillimon replied. "I can't see any harm in it. Their father approves of it because it will make them good, strong men. They got their wine regular, too, to make them strong."

"Mrs. Fillimon appeared puzzled and hurt that all this fuss should be made because she and her husband wanted the boys to grow up hale and hearty."

"Joseph was weaned from his bottle a year ago on cigars," Mrs. Fillimon volunteered when the silence became oppressive. Commissioner Craster nodded.

"Michael, he was weaned that way, too," Mrs. Fillimon added, and the commissioner nodded again.

"The youngest I've got is four months old," Mrs. Fillimon concluded. "I reckon we'll wean him that way, too, in a year or so."

Office Boy Becomes President of Firm

WATERTOWN, N. Y.—Thirty-four years ago Harvey R. Waite went to work as an office boy for the Agricultural Insurance company. At the annual meeting held here a few days ago he was elected president, succeeding the late Percy H. Willmott. During his entire connection with the company Mr. Waite has been stationed at the home office in Watertown.

Excavation Shows Medal Idea Not New

PONTIAC, Mich.—The ghosts of the "gray nineties" probably are enjoying a laugh at the ultra-moderns.

The "modernists," as represented by the Oakland Motor Car company, thought they had something new and smart in the way of an automobile advertising novelty when they marked the introduction of the Pontiac six by striking a medal. It bore a likeness of Pontiac, famous Ottawa chief, and was inscribed "Pontiac, Chief of the Sixes."

But just a few days ago a laborer excavating near the Oakland six unearthed a medal of almost identical size and bearing another inscription. Chief Pontiac's features. On the reverse side was the inscription: "Pontiac Motor Car Co., Pontiac, Mich., Western Assembly Line." Investigation revealed the medal was struck in 1896 to celebrate the introduction of the "Western Assembly" line of buggies which the reverse side of the medal asserts, "are worth 100 cents on the dollar in gold." Thus the Pontiac buggy company which later evolved into the Oakland Motor Car company, appears to have beaten Oakland to the idea by a margin of about 32 years.

A metropolitan paper made a grievous error recently when it printed "Landlady Slaps Head" as headline. It should have read, "Landlady Slaps Head," but we think the error is excusable. The way the news has been going in his office, no doubt the habit of habit ended the typographer!

Officer Arrests World War Buddy

NEW YORK.—When the Sixty-ninth Infantry was in France Privates William O'Day and John O'Neil were "buddies," fighting side by side. Yesterday afternoon O'Neil, now a patrolman, was called upon to arrest O'Day.

John Keating discovered the loss of his watch while in St. Gabriel's park. Reporting this to O'Neil, he said he suspected O'Day. When the watch was found in O'Day's possession he was arrested, charged with grand larceny.

"Where do you live?" O'Neil asked O'Day.

"At 326 East Twenty-third street," answered O'Day.

"Why, Bill!" exclaimed O'Neil, recognizing O'Day, "I hate to do this, but I must do my duty."

O'Day was locked up in the East Thirty-fifth street station. On the way there he and O'Neil talked over the fighting days.

Men Who Predicted Auto To Fail Prove Selves To Be Wrong

PONTIAC, Mich.—Back in 1903 two bright young students at Lehigh university collaborated in writing a pessimistic thesis which scornfully criticized the automobile as "a rich man's toy, a useless invention with no future."

Their treatise was based upon personal experience with several popular cars of the day, including the long-forgotten Knox, which reared a lone and sizzling cylinder head right up through the floor-boards.

The students experimented also with some of the first four-cylinder cars which then were breasting a stream of adverse advertising sponsored by the single cylinder manufacturers who drew discouraging comparisons between the complexity of "handling four small horses instead of one big, powerful horse."

But one cylinder or four, the young essayists condemned the entire horseless carriage idea as unsound, impractical and doomed to certain failure.

Today, a quarter of a century later, both of the former Lehigh students are actively refuting their collegiate conclusions. One of them has just placed in operation a $3,000,000 addition to a $25,000,000 group of automobile factories. He is A. R. Glancy, president and general manager of the Oakland Motor Car company. The other is Paul Gerhard, president of Paul Gerhard Motors, Omaha, Nebr., who sells the Oakland and Pontiac sixes which his former college chum manufacturers.

Egyptians Hatched Eggs Artificially Since Pyramid Days

CAIRO.—Egg-hatching has been accomplished by artificial means in Egypt since the days of the Pyramids.

Egypt egg-hatchers' union is one of the oldest trade organizations in the world. There are but few apprentices, and these come from families which have been in the business from time immemorial.

An old saying in Egypt is that artificial incubation has been practiced so long that the Egyptian hen has about given up all hopes of ever becoming a clucking mother.

The incubator used here is practically the same as that used thousands of years ago. It is a dome-shaped affair, about five yards in diameter, built of mud brick. There is a hole at the top, the hut being divided into six compartments, with a small passage in the center. Each compartment has two platforms which hold about 500 eggs. In all the incubator has space for approximately 6,000 eggs.

The fire for heating is in a trough which encircles the hut, chaff being used for fuel. With the top closed, the fires are allowed to smoulder five days. The top is then opened, and the fires damped down to smouldering until the fourteenth day. From that time on the heat from the incubating eggs is sufficient to keep the eggs at the right temperature, and on the twenty-first day the little animated balls of fluff begin popping out and start looking for something to eat.

The egg-hatchers all come from the village of Birma in the Delta.

Marries Rich Girl, Keeps His Old Job

CHICAGO.—Albert Rhyner, of Marshfield, Wis., who yesterday married Miss Marian Connor, daughter of W. D. Connor, millionaire Marshfield lumberman and former lieutenant governor of Wisconsin, today said he expected to keep his job as conductor on the North Shore Electric railroad.

Their romance dated from school days and continued after Miss Connor went to study music in Chicago and New York.

Money Made Without Income Tax Is Used To Establish Museum

COPENHAGEN, Denmark.—A somewhat unusual reason for endowing the capital of his native country with a new national museum has been given by a Danish cigarette manufacturer named Lauritz Anderson, whose death in Shanghai has just been announced.

Anderson emigrated to China in his early life and amassed wealth by manufacture. Two years ago he announced that in his will he had left $250,000 toward the cost of erecting in Copenhagen a new national museum, and he gave as his reason for this bequest that he had earned money abroad without paying income tax in his own country.

When making melon pickles, divide fruit into three parts of white, red and green pickles. Prepare syrup of one cup water and one pound sugar (beet or cane) to each pound fruit. With syrup for white pickles boil one lined lemon for flavoring. For red, spice with cloves and color with "red hots." For green, use cinnamon and green vegetable color. Seal separately.

More Are Killed By Autos Than Disease

NEW YORK.—Automobiles kill more New Yorkers than diphtheria, scarlet fever and typhoid combined, said Health Commissioner Harris yesterday. In five years the toll has been 5,092, almost 2,000 of them children under fifteen years.

"It is particularly sad," said Dr. Harris, "that so large a proportion of the victims are young children. Most of them have no other place to play than in the streets, and that is the story. We must, of course, establish more playgrounds."

ALIKE BUT DIFFERENT

To judge from the mutual felicitations which were bandied between Mr. Coolidge and Mr. Hoover upon the nomination of the latter by the Republican party as its presidential candidate, one would be inclined to believe that the President and his secretary are the closest of personal friends, as well as close professional associates.

Yet the two are markedly different in at least one respect. Mr. Hoover is as clear and unmistakable in his statements as Mr. Coolidge is vague. Statements on three different occasions were made by Mr. Coolidge without removing the doubt in the minds of many that he would accept the nomination if offered him.

In contrast to this, Mr. Hoover plainly stated, when his position was forced by the late Senator Willis of Ohio, that he was not actively seeking the nomination, but would accept it if offered. Some statements made later by Mr. Hoover when he learned that he had been victorious over his opponents are worthy of being committed to memory by every school boy in this country.

TO KNOW IS TO SUFFER

The problem of rescuing General Noble and his more or less scattered crew is assuming tragic proportions. This is due in part to the establishment of radio communication which, while it permits us to hope that they can be rescued, at the same time acquaints us from day to day with their perils and sufferings and heightens immeasurably the dramatic tension of the struggle to surmount the barriers that lie between them and safety. Never before in history has the world been able to talk back and forth with the members of a lost Arctic expedition, and hence never before has its impatience to stretch out a helping hand been whittled to such a keen edge.

One is reminded of those instances in which miners have been entombed beyond immediate reach and yet have been able to tap their signals to their would-be rescuers, and of the case of the man entrapped in the S-4 when she was rammed and sunk off Provincetown. But none of these somewhat analogous situations has possessed a setting quite as arresting to the imagination as the plight of the Italian survivors, stumbling their slow way over the treacherous ice floes and through the raging storms that so far have delayed all attempts to rescue them. And there is another feature of this case that piles irony on irony. It has been surmised that in the midst of their agonizing fight for life, the group of which Noble makes one has been regaled over their emergency radio with the jazz concerts broadcast daily from the neighboring nations. So near must seem to them the oasis security of civilization and yet so desperately far!

It is often said that consciousness magnifies the pain of existence. Here is a confirmation of the fact on a scale a far from a quarter wholly unexpected. The radio has greatly extended man's consciousness of the world in which he lives, and on an occasion like this, therefore, it renders infinitely more poignant the emotions both of those in trouble and of those who feel their helplessness to aid. To know, who could swap the agonies of the relative Nivans of his absence? A little torture is a small price to pay for the chance which is still bright that many, if not all, of these gallant men will be rescued in time.—New York Herald-Tribune.

PLAY THE GAME

"There's a breathless hush in the close tonight —
Ten to make and the match to win —
A bumping pitch and a blinding light.
An hour to play and the last man in.
And it's not for the sake of a rib-boned coat,
Or the selfish hope of a season's fame,
But his Captain's hand on his shoulder smote —
'Play up! play up! and play the game!'

The sand of the desert is sodden red —
Red with the wreck of a square that broke;
The Galling's jammed and the Colonel's dead,
And the regiment blind with dust and smoke.
The river of death has brimmed his banks,
And England's far, and Honor a name,
But the voice of a schoolboy rallies the ranks:
'Play up! play up! and play the game!'

This is the word that year by year,
While in her place the School is set,
Every one of her sons must hear,
And none that hears it dare forget.
They all with a joyful mind
Bear through life like a torch in flame,
And falling fling to the host behind —
'Play up! play up! and play the game!'

AN HONEST MAN

By Dr. Frank Crane.

It is like the shadow of a great rock in a weary land to run across, as we do occasionally, a man who keeps his word.

You may be able to sue on written promises and contracts put in writing, which are usually binding, but somehow the man who does not keep his word strictly is a slippery customer and it is hard to get hold of him, even with a piece of writing.

The fundamental security for a man doing what he promises is, after all, character.

If a man has character and is upright you are safer in lending him money than if he gives you a mortgage on his farm. Doing business with a liar is never satisfactory. Somehow he will attempt to wriggle out of his promises.

It is easy to detect the strictly honest person. When he owes you money he does not avoid you, but openly and frankly pays you something on account right along, if he cannot pay the whole amount.

The test of the fundamentally honest man is his punctuality in meeting his engagements or in frankly explaining to you why those engagements cannot be met.

The courts are full of people trying to evade their plain engagements.

A man who is in debt sincerely tries to meet that debt whether it hurts him or not. It is very trying and very disturbing to our faith in human nature to find a person who is always looking for alibis, always seeking explanations for not doing as he said he would do.

The good loser, the man who loses and yet is cheerful is the man who is after all one of the chief pillars of the social fabric.

DOG SACRIFICES FOOD

ELKHART, Ind.—Doc, a "common cur" owned by Homer Mercer, has proven himself a brave, thoughtful dog.

Queen, a German police dog owned by George Herril, has been missing for ten days and many searchers had failed to find her.

Doc was observed to have acquired a new trick. Instead of eating all his food, he carried some away, presumably to bury it. When Mercer heard Queen had disappeared, he recalled having heard a dog howl and investigated.

The alert Doc led his master to a vine-covered wire fence under a tree and there was Queen with one hind foot caught in the wire. Doc had kept Queen from starving by carrying food to her.

Queen is hobbling about on three legs, recovering from her ten days' imprisonment.

SICKLY, PEEVISH CHILDREN

Children suffering from intestinal worms are cross, restless and unhealthy. There are other symptoms, however. If the child is pale, has dark rings under the eyes, has breath and takes no interest in play, it is almost a certainty that worms are eating away its vitality. The surest remedy for worms is White's Cream Vermifuge. It is positive destruction to the worms but harmless to the child. 75c per box. Sold by

RESOLUTION ON DEATH OF A. G. TAGGART BY RETAIL MERCHANTS' ASSOCIATION

Whereas: It has pleased the Almighty to remove from our midst, by death, our esteemed friend and co-laborer, A. G. Taggart, who had for a short time occupied a prominent rank in our midst, maintaining under all circumstances, a character untarnished and a reputation above reproach;

BABY FLIES WITH "DADDY"
OTTAWA, Ont.—Billy Ayres, so far as is known, is the youngest flier in Canada and possibly in the world. He is three months old and has just completed his first air trip with his father and mother and the other members of the Ayres family.

Billy's father, Captain F. H. Ayres, pilots an air mail plane between Montreal and Rimouski. On a trip this week Captain Ayres took his wife and three children with him, Betty, five years old; Robert, three, and baby Billy.

LONG LETTER ANSWERED

NEW YORK. — Bridget Daly, 14, who came to this country only a week ago and obtained employment as a maid, wrote a long letter to her mother and then inquired how to mail it.

She was told to walk to the corner and place it in a mail box attached to a telephone pole. Instead of placing the letter in the mail box, she pulled a lever in another box and then stood to one side to wait for the postman.

Instead of a postman a half dozen pieces of fire apparatus drove noisily to the corner! As it was decided she had not rung the alarm with "malicious intent," Bridget was not arrested.

A man caught stealing $120 said he needed the money to get "tools to crack a safe." Another poor victim of circumstances!

Don't Make a Toy Out of Baby Babies Have Nerves

By RUTH BRITAIN

Much of the nervousness in older children can be traced to the overstimulation during infancy, caused by regarding baby as a sort of animated toy for the amusement of parents, relatives and friends. Baby may be played with, but not for more than a quarter of an hour to an hour daily. Beyond that, being handled, tickled, caused to laugh or even scream, will sometimes result in vomiting, and invariably causes irritability, crying or sleeplessness.

Fretfulness, crying and sleeplessness from this cause can easily be avoided by treating baby with more consideration, but when you just can't see what is making baby restless or upset, better give him a few drops of pure, harmless Castoria. It's amazing to see how quickly it calms baby's nerves and soothes him to sleep; yet it contains no drugs or opiates. It is purely vegetable—the recipe is on the wrapper. Leading physicians prescribe it for colic, cholera, diarrhea, constipation, gas on stomach and bowels, feverishness, loss of sleep and all other "upsets" of babyhood. Over 25 million bottles used a year shows its overwhelming popularity.

Each bottle of Castoria, you get a "Mother's Word," worth its weight in gold. For Mrs. H. Fletcher's package as you'll get a package. There are many imitations.

CHANGING PICTURES

An occasional change of pictures in a room has a freshening effect that is quite comparable to bringing in a bright bouquet of flowers. It is a mistake to leave the same pictures in the same positions year after year.

President's Yacht Mayflower Used By 5 Chief Executives

WASHINGTON.—The Mayflower, a wooden, coal-burning vessel, was built at Clydebank, Scotland, in 1897, and used as a private yacht by a wealthy New York business man.

During the Spanish-American war it was purchased by Uncle Sam, converted into a gunboat and spent much time in Cuban waters, capturing several prizes. It was returned to the Caribbean sea when trouble broke out in Santo Domingo; later it cruised in European waters, but was returned in time to perform the most interesting service of conveying the special envoys of Russia and Japan to Portsmouth, New Hampshire, when peace terms which ended the Russo-Jap scrap were arranged.

Congress authorized its use as "The Presidential Yacht," in 1907. Five Presidents, Roosevelt, Taft, Wilson, Harding and Coolidge, have trod her decks.

A slim, trim-looking craft, the Mayflower is 341 feet long, 36 feet beam, draws about 18 feet of water, makes about 15 miles an hour, now burns oil, carries four six-pound guns and has a crew of eight officers and 187 men, including 24 marines and a chaplain. It has sleeping quarters for the President, his wife, 14 guests and the crew.

Equipped with reception, smoking and dining rooms, library, piano, graphophone, orchestra and radio, the most luxuriously equipped naval vessel we have, free from military spirit, embodying the private and peaceful atmosphere of a mansion, the Mayflower offers a welcome means of escape from the strains which rest upon our Chief Executive which has been enjoyed more frequently by President and Mrs. Coolidge than either of his predecessors.

Indians Increasing, Now 343,000 of Them In the United States

Each of our forty-eight states and the District of Columbia has some citizens who are still classed as Indians. Oklahoma leads the list with about 119,000 — approximately one-third of the total number. Other states which rank high are, Arizona with 43,327, California with 13,331, Minnesota with 13,326, Montana with 12,648, Washington with 10,920 and Wisconsin with 10,498. Vermont has but 24, West Virginia 7 and Delaware 2.

According to the bulletin, Uncle conducts 184 well attended Indian schools, while some 30,000 additional Indian scholars are enrolled in various state public schools. In addition, more than 5,000 are provided for in mission and private schools.

Electrical Farming Studied By Colleges

WASHINGTON.—Agricultural colleges, farm experiment stations and other organizations in 24 states are now carrying on studies and experiments in the application of electricity to agriculture, according to a report just made public by the committee on the relation of electricity to agriculture.

The states are: Alabama, California, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, South Dakota, Texas, Virginia, Washington, Wisconsin.

"It is not to be expected that agriculture, the electric light and power industry, or any other group working alone can produce maximum results at minimum development cost on the problems of rural electrification," says the report. "Co-operation is essential for ultimate success." It is entirely proper to say that the mutual exchange of ideas between representa-
