SOCIAL EVENTS OF SLATON AND COMMUNITY DURING PAST WEEK

Win One Class.

Mesdames Todd, McMeen and Scott were hostesses to the Win One class last Thursday afternoon at the attractive Todd home in South Slaton.

One of the most interesting, and one might say comical diversions that afternoon was the trios attempted. The guests drew slips of paper with the title of a song thereupon, and it was found that there were three slips alike. Three ladies were asked to sing together the song they had drawn. Great talent was displayed here.

We shall not forget the "visit to the portrait gallery" and the "car contest."

A dainty ice course was served to over thirty guests.

The Win One class is the banner class in our Methodist Sunday School, and we shall endeavor to keep it so throughout the year, spiritually as well as socially.

Our next meeting has been planned a lawn party. Each member is to ask her husband as a guest for the evening. —Reporter.

Honoring Guest.

Miss Ailene Tucker entertained her house guest, Miss Gladine Blackwell of Commerce, with a "42" party last Thursday evening at the home of Dr. and Mrs. W. A. Tucher. Progressive "42", unique contests and music, furnished delightful entertainment for the guests.

Wafers and brick ice cream were served at the end of a pleasant evening to the following: Misses Gladine Blackwell, honor guest, Margaret Smith, Beryl Abel, Lucille Rowley, Virginia Montague, Elizabeth Burton, Eunice Florence, Ailene Tucker; Messrs. C. W. Wilks, Bill Huckabay, Howard Hoffman, Wilson McKirahan, Flake Young, Lonnie Barton, Dale Watson and George E. Bennett.

Presbyterian Auxiliary

On Monday, August 20 the Presbyterian Auxiliary met with Mrs. J. G. Levey. The afternoon was devoted to Foreign Mission Study, China being the subject.

Many interesting talks were given under leadership of Mrs. W. Donald.

The food sale to be held on Sept. 1 will be in charge of Mrs. J. G. Levey. These sales are all held at Mr. Brannon's store and will continue through the winter months.

The study for Aug. 27 will be Home Mission and will be with Mrs. H. McKirahan.

Culvert Club.

Misses Dorothy Levey and Vertezuma McReynolds were hostesses to the Culvert Club at the Levey home August 16th. The guests were refreshed during the games of Bridge and "42", and delicious cake and brick cream in gold and white were charmingly served at the close of the very successful little party.

Misses Madeline Scott and Grace Stonefield of Amarillo, Faye Kenyon of Cooper, Irene Levey of Amarillo, and Mrs. W. T. Reitmeyer of Hitchcock were out-of-town guests.

Two of the most interesting meetings of the Culvert Club for this season were unavoidably omitted from the paper.

July 26th Misses Wilks and Hardesty entertained the Culvert Club in a charming manner.

A contest of birds was the first attraction. All score cards and counting pads were beautifully decorated in blue birds.

After the regular games delicious refreshments of cake and ice cream were served, carrying out the decorating scheme of blue and white.

August 2nd the Misses McAtee entertained the Culvert Club with an afternoon party. The decorations in gold and white with shasta daisies carried out a lovely color scheme.

Delicious cake and ice cream with orange-ade were served to the regular club members and Misses Julia Alice Florence of Slaton, Amy Burns of San Saba, and Mrs. W. T. Reitmeyer of Hitchcock, as guests. —Reporter.

Missionary Society

A very interesting meeting of the Society was held at the church Monday. Devotional exercises were conducted by the Vice President, Mrs. W. E. Wilson in the absence of the President. The program was from the Missionary Voice and led by Mrs. K. C. Scott. Scripture lesson John 6. In this chapter we have the miracle of feeding the five thousand, and he reminds the vast multitude that followed that some of them were only doing so for the signs and wonders and his mission was to deal with the Spiritual. The lesson to us was to be loyal and faithful followers of our Lord, marching on with sturdy hearts and perfect faith in Him who said "Be ye faithful unto death and I will give you a crown of life," also, "Go ye therefore and teach all nations, and lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world." The lesson was very fitting for the topic was "God Seeking China."

First number was a dialogue by Misses Whitehead and Brewer, "The Missionary Society that lost its voice." Next was Christ winning China through Training Centers, Churches and Evangelistic Centers and Missionaries by Miss Lewis. Next was a letter from Miss McCurdy, a missionary in China, by Mrs. McClintock. Each one of the different topics deserve special mention and were very helpful and beneficial. A short business session was held and decided to sell cake, cream and lemonade Saturday. Mesdames Hoffman, Whitehead and Brewer were appointed to arrange for the sale.

BAPTIST REVIVAL.

The Baptist revival which began Sunday morning is growing in interest daily. Good crowds are attending and hearing splendid sermons delivered by Rev. Hardesty.

The song service, under the direction of J. E. Cox, is also a splendid feature of the meeting. Mrs. Ray Stephenson presides at the piano, which adds much to the song service.

CLEAN UP THE ALLEYS.

The alleys of Slaton are getting in bad shape again. Every property owner is requested to thoroughly clean all alleys adjacent to their property, or they will be subject to a fine. Another inspection will be within a week.

T. J. ABEL, Chief of Police.

Activities About School Buildings

The report that has spread to the effect that our school would last only four months, is unfounded and is calculated to injure Slaton. The citizenship of our city is too wide awake to the interests of the boys and girls to allow any such thing to befall them and will always maintain schools that are equal to the best in the South Plains.

The budget was made to care for a full term, economically administered, and at the same time to give the teachers and pupils a chance to do reputable work. No citizen will be satisfied with less. This budget is now in the hands of the Equalization Board, composed of men who are in perfect sympathy with every interest of the city and community and who will see that the schools are properly cared for.

Questions are asked about the plans for girls' uniforms. Nothing will be done until after the opening of school and then, in an advisory way, "The Simplified Dress" idea may be adopted. This would give a chance for individuality of taste and at the same time encourage sane and economic dressing. Then we feel that we shall have the same splendid cooperation we have had heretofore. In the meantime, we advise that our girls use their own pleasure and convenience in selecting from their wardrobes such dresses as they may have suitable for school wear.

To which buildings will each child be assigned? In answer to that question, we wish to say: Unless you have moved to where you are much nearer to another building than the one you attended, report to the same one you attended last year. Of course all High School pupils will report at West Ward.

BOOK COVERS. The law is very strict in its demand that the books be covered. This regulation has not been carried out heretofore and each teacher has subjected herself to a when she failed to comply with the law. We will begin from the first and demand compliance. Arrangements are being made that these books can be kept covered at a minimum cost to the children and under the immediate supervision of the teachers.

A very small amount will be received from each pupil at the beginning of school and when a new cover is needed it will be issued to the pupil. This will avoid the trouble and worry consequent to repeated calls upon the parent for pennies for book coverings. We shall be able to carry out the law consistently.

Our patrons will please take notice that there are a few optional courses given in school for which the State does not furnish texts. These books will have to be bought by the pupils. All English Classics must also be purchased by pupils. The teachers are furnishing these at actual cost and carriage. This is done after consulting those who have handled the books heretofore at a loss, on account of having so many copies left on hand. We mention these matters that all may be prepared to meet these little items as they may come up.

New students are reporting to us daily, especially for High School work. We are planning to take care of these fine young people. We want every young man and young woman who can possibly do so, to attend school.

We shall not be satisfied unless our school serves the community in inspiring the young people to a better equipment for living and serving. As a school, we should so direct that a proper mental, moral and physical development should result in each and every boy and girl. Our teachers are holding, conscientiously, to the threefold plan of training and we believe that the theoretical stage of these efforts are long since past and now we are realizing and reaping the benefits of these trainings.

School opens on Sept. 10th. Football entrants will report for practice on August 29th, at the High School building.

APPRECIATION.

Having recently sold my meat market, I desire to express my sincere appreciation to the general public of Slaton and surrounding territory for the splendid business they have given me. We have the best people on earth and the best country, and I expect to remain with you.

Sincerely,
NEAL ATKINS.

TECH CELEBRATION SPECIAL.

Mr. S. W. Coburn of the Southwestern Syndicate of Fort Worth, has been here during the past week getting up a Tech Celebration Review of Lubbock, which is presented in this issue of the Slatonite.

Drug and Drug Sundries, toilet articles, confectioneries, hot and cold drinks, cigars, etc. of the best known brands at Teague's Confectionery.

SLATON WILL BE HOST AT TECH CELEBRATION NEXT TUESDAY

All Lubbock County is to be host to the people of Texas at the big celebration at Lubbock next Tuesday, Aug. 28th, to celebrate the location of the Texas Tech on the Plains.

Every family in Slaton and in Slaton trade territory is EXPECTED to attend and to prepare lunch to supplement the barbecue that Lubbock agrees to furnish.

Do not go to Lubbock to be entertained, but to help entertain.

Lubbock is supplying the barbecue, bread, coffee, onions and pickles. Every family in and about Slaton is EXPECTED to contribute fried chicken, deviled eggs, potato salad, boiled ham, bologna, and such other articles of food as are staple and readily prepared. You are expected to bring enough for from two to six families; all you can and whatever you can. There will be perhaps 25,000 people present and we must help and DO OUR PART.

Bring the food you prepare to the City Hall by 9:30 o'clock Tuesday morning, where it will all be assembled and hauled to Lubbock on trucks, leaving here about 10 o'clock.

It is strictly up to Slaton and community to do our part in this matter. Lubbock County people have adopted the motto "Lubbock County Eats Last." Remember, we are the hosts. The visitors are our guests. Let us rise to the occasion.

This is done under auspices of the Slaton Chamber of Commerce.

C. OF C. FOOD COMMITTEE.

This "Bird" Seems Peeved Because Tech College Was Located on Plains

The following doggerel was taken from a recent issue of the Ballinger Ledger:

The Texas Tech.

Thank heaven the agony is over,
Praise God the Tech is located,
Thirty-four towns are sadly in mourning,
While Lubbock is greatly elated.

No doubt you've heard of the Texas Tech,
That famous school on the line of
New Mex.,
It's out on the treeless plain,
In the land of sandstorms and sand.

Where the Coyotes yell,
Cowboys raise H———l,
"And the Prairie Dog kneels,
On the back of his heels,
And fervently prays for rain."
—"Pets."

J. W. McKinney, pastor of the Church of Christ, takes a shot at "Pets" in the Ballinger Ledger, in the following manner:

Yes, the Tech is located,
And, gosh, we rejoice,
To know that old Lubbock
Is the committee's choice.

But we fail to get the drift,
Of "the sandstorms and sand,"
For we have the best
Of the Lone Star's land.

And the coyotes yelp,
Why, say, old top,
We chased them to the 'sticks,'
Down below the caprock.

Why the cowboys you speak of
They don't raise Cain,
'Cause their editor competitors
Have put them to shame.

And practically all our land
Is tillable, you know,
And we don't have room
For the trees to grow.

We've had lots of rain
From whence we opine,
We should never have known
If your light did not shine.

We're glad the prairie dog
Hasn't forgot his old home,
Although we have chased him to Regions unknown.

And if rain results
From his proverbial spiel,
While he calmly kneels
On the back of his heel.

We hope he continues
For the Tech has a home
Out here in a country
Truly called God's own.

Where prosperity reigns
Supremely, though fair,
Now come on out buddy,
And enjoy the pure air.
—J. W. McKinney.

Slaton is proud of the fact that Lubbock secured the Tech College, although we have as much right to feel peeved as any other town. So far we haven't heard a single complaint from any competing towns in the Plains and Panhandle country. All the complaints are coming from disgruntled towns below the caprock—a country where the moss is still flourishing on the backs of a large per cent of their citizenship. Practically all the progressives from that section of the State have already located on the Plains, and the remainder are just waiting until they can accumulate car fare.

COME TO THE PLAINS, then you'll decide to locate in the Slaton country, which is in sight of the Texas Tech.

Those who attend the Tech Celebration at Lubbock on August 28th, will witness a spirit of true co-operation between every section of this vast and fertile area of Texas.

THE MERCHANT TAILOR

Important to All Women
Readers of This Paper

Thousands upon thousands of women have kidney or bladder trouble and never suspect it.

Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of the kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

You may suffer pain in the back, headache and loss of ambition.

Poor health makes you nervous, irritable and maybe despondent; it makes any one so.

But hundreds of women claim that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, by restoring health to the kidneys, proved to be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Many send for a sample bottle to see what Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine, will do for them. By enclosing ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., you may receive sample size bottle by parcel post. You can purchase medium and large size bottles at all drug stores.—Advertisement.

Odd Deep-Sea Creature.

"Old Man of the Sea," long famed, or something extremely like him, has been discovered. A bileous marine monster fish, but with almost a human head, has been captured by the crew of the barque Duque d'Aosta off the Brazilian coast. The creature's head has a well-defined nose, ears and gaping mouth, its general appearance being that of an old man. One spike projects from the monster's forehead. It is probable that early mariners, who told wild tales of having seen mermaids, mermen and demons when in tropic seas, had in reality seen some such rare creature of the ocean depths.

Cutting Teeth
Made This Baby
Deathly Sick

"When my baby began cutting his teeth he became deathly sick and his constant crying almost broke my heart," writes Mrs. D. H. Tidwell, Grand View, Texas, "but as soon as I started giving him Teethina he got over it and next day was laughing and playing as if nothing had ever been the matter with him."

Teethina is especially designed to allay the irritation and feverish conditions that are the cause of so much fretfulness in teething children. It soon stops the pain, relieves the trouble and gives the distracted mother rest and comfort.

Teethina is sold by leading druggists or send 30c to the Moffett Laboratories, Columbus, Ga., and receive a full size package and a free copy of Moffett's Illustrated Baby Book.—(Advertisement.)

Have Cotton Wrap Match Thin Dress

Separate Coats and Capes of Light Materials Are Gaily Decorated.

The separate coats and capes created by the great dressmakers, whether for afternoon or evening wear, stress a lavish use of embroidery, observes a Paris writer in the New York Tribune. Capes made of cotton materials that match cotton summer dresses are elaborately beaded and embroidered.

Swinging grace characterizes many of the new topcoats, which vary only in their trimming, as they are all three-quarters to seven-eighths long and cut with a full bias flare. An attractive three-quarters length flaring coat is developed from green cloth and white buttons engraved in black.

One designer makes jackets of knee length that flare midway between waist and knees, with the top portion of the jacket cut perfectly straight. This type of jacket is particularly adaptable to crepe de chine, although he also develops them from cloth. This designer shows coats of crepe de chine which are made in the fashion of a perfectly straight sack overcoat covering the entire dress. The coats differ from those of last year in both collar and embroidery.

The collar used this season is like a huge roll and the embroidery covers the entire surface of the coat. Occasionally monkey fur is used for the collar, but one may say that there is relatively no fur used this season with the exception of silver fox.

Another firm has several very excellent cloth coats. One particularly attractive model is of green and gray wool combined. The outside of the coat is of the gray applied with green, while the inside is of green.

Topcoat of Green With Cloth Single Pocket and White Buttons.

When the coat is open it shows a full-length section of the green, which appears more like a dress than a lining. The impression given is that of a two-piece garment.

A model of black satin is one of the most successful coats of the season. Bright-colored embroideries are used to enliven the collar and the inside of the wide sleeves.

Restful Wallpapers for Cozy Bedrooms

They are simply irresistible—bedrooms.

They are the innermost sanctuary of the house.

They are the rooms for confidences. They are, of all rooms, nearest the heart.

What woman does not thrill with joy when she has the chance to "do over" a bedroom—perhaps a drab room with no meaning or life or personality?

There are literally hundreds of delightful wall papers for her to choose from—for designers have excelled themselves for bedrooms. She can have exactly the kind of bedroom to suit her individuality—and a bedroom must suit, for late at night when one is tired, one does not wish to be jarred; and early in the morning it is tragic to be irritated.

There are sunny yellows that the grayest morning in the world cannot discourage.

There are papers where flowers bloom so sweetly that the blackest winter morning can't be cheerless.

Use Buckle to Close
This New Fall Coat

This smart new fall coat is of navy blue material. It is cut with charming simplicity and attains distinction by the closure, a single broad buckle of dark blue enamel. Fine beaver trims the collar and cuffs.

Sports Clothes Draw
Approval of Women

There was a time not so long ago when sports clothes were for the purpose of costuming one for golf, tennis, riding and so forth. Today all this is changed. Perhaps it signifies that life is a game and should be treated as such. At any rate, the practical influence of sports clothes makes itself felt on nearly all occasions. This is due no doubt to the simplicity and comfort found in these modes. A prominent moving-picture actress wears a charming frock which had its inspiration from a sport model. It is of cream silk crepe piped with red on collar, cuffs and pockets. The overblouse is of the regulation cut and comes well over the plaited skirt. A circle embroidered in red incloses a space for monogramming, which is quite the latest fad for blouses of this sort.

Why Good Perfumes Are Very Expensive

Napoleon before and after battles bathed his head and shoulders in perfume, Doctor Mason writes in a recent Mentor Magazine.

He used perfume as a substitute for a bath. That was why perfumes were invented—to counteract lack of sanitation. Running water and the bathtub enable us to get near each other without scent camouflage.

Maybe you wonder why good perfumes are so expensive. It takes 3,000,000 roses to yield one pound of rose essence.

Evening Capes.

Stunning evening wraps, cape mantles type, are made of ribbon and marabou. The ribbons are wide and edged with marabou, each band of ribbon being sewed onto a georgette silk foundation. The wrap is lined with silk crepe. Fog gray satin ribbon and gray marabou, made on gray silk georgette and lined with clover pink silk crepe makes a wrap that is a summer dream.

There are such quaint old patterns straight from revolutionary walls that even if a trolley jangles by outside it seems unreal and far away.

And if you are one of those people like the man who said he could bear "anybody but a person who smiles before breakfast"—there are quiet papers of dignified elegance that fit no matter what mood.

And what they all express is a deep peace that brings "—innocent sleep, sleep that knits up the ravelled sleeve of care."

There was a time when people made bedroom papers with restless figures—birds that never alighted on flowers half an inch away from them—and other unsatisfying pictures that drove the one who had to lie in bed and watch them into a mild insanity. And then the day of geometric figures—that one counted and counted going in all directions while one gradually went mad.

But those times are past—and the newer papers for bedrooms are restful, peaceful, quiet—papers that never annoy as one sees them day after day. —Milwaukee Sentinel.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How Barnabas Showed a Generous Spirit.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christian Character Illustrated by Barnabas.

I. Barnabas, the Man (Acts 4:36).

His original name was Joseph. When he became a Christian, he was renamed Barnabas signifying the change from the old life to the new. This was a common custom, for example, Simon to Peter and Saul to Paul. The name means "Son of Prophecy" or "exhortation and consolation." This shows not only the nature and spirit of Barnabas but that he possessed the gift of hortatory preaching. The exercise of this gift made him a son of consolation.

II. Barnabas, the Philanthropist (Acts 4:37).

So fully had the divine love permeated the very being of Barnabas that seeing the need of his fellow-believers, he sold his property and brought the money and laid it at the apostles' feet. His generosity expressed itself in deeds, not in pious words and promises. He counted nothing his own while his brethren were in need. He was in no sense obliged to do this as there was no such thing in the early church as a binding law of a community of goods. Private ownership of property was recognized, Acts 5:4.

III. Barnabas, the Christian Statesman (Acts 11:19-30).

The violent persecutions of the church scattered the disciples. As they went they preached the Gospel, and churches were established. The most conspicuous of these was at Antioch, the capital of Syria, because it became the most important center in the spread of Christianity. Everything went well as long as the Gospel message was preached to the Jews only. The idea held among the disciples at that time was that the Gentiles were excluded. But at Antioch certain of these disciples deliberately preached Christ among the Greeks. The seal of the Lord was upon this ministry and great multitudes believed and turned to the Lord. The news of this revolutionary preaching reached the ears of the church at Jerusalem and caused not a little excitement and discussion. The church decided to send a committee to Antioch to look into the matter.

1. Barnabas Sent to Antioch (vv. 22-24). Fortunately in this case they sent the proper man. Barnabas was a good man and full of the Holy Ghost and faith. Therefore, he had spiritual discernment and broad sympathy. Good men are quick to see good. When he came to Antioch he saw the grace of God and was glad. If we have grace in ourselves, we will be able to see grace in others. He exhorted and urged them forward in their work. Men like Barnabas are much needed today in our churches—men of vision and Christian courtesy and sympathy.

2. Barnabas Goes After Saul (vv. 25-26). The work so prospered that help was needed, so Barnabas went after Saul. These men had been together before. After Saul's conversion, he came to Jerusalem and tried to join himself to the disciples but they were afraid of him. Barnabas befriended him (Acts 9:26-27). He saw that Saul was really a converted man. Being a good man he could see there was good in Saul. Barnabas thus introduced Saul to his great work as apostle to the Gentiles.

3. Disciples Called Christians (v. 28). After a year of teaching by Paul and Barnabas, the name Christian was given to the disciples. The name was associated with the teaching. Paul taught the vital oneness of the believer with Christ so it was natural that the disciples should be called Christian.

4. Barnabas and Saul go to Jerusalem With Alms (vv. 29-30). Because of the oneness of Christians with Christ and with one another, the distress of the brethren at Jerusalem must be relieved by the gifts of the believers at Antioch. These gifts had a powerful effect in removing the suspicions of the brethren at Jerusalem.

Keeseville, N. Y.—"I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound too highly for the good it has done me. I was so much troubled with female weakness I could hardly do any work. I saw your advertisement in the paper, and read it to my husband. He said, 'You had better try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound', so I bought six bottles, and by taking it I am not troubled as I was. I am gaining strength and getting fleshy. My female troubles have vanished and I have never felt so well. The Liver Pills are the best I ever took. The new army cook for British soldiers may not go on duty without being shaved; he is not permitted to smoke in the mess hall, and must have clean hands and finger-nails.

WHY TAKE LAXATIVES?

Discovery by Science Has Replaced Them.

Pills and salts give temporary relief from constipation only at the expense of permanent injury, says an eminent medical authority.

Science has found a newer, better way—a means as simple as Nature itself.

In perfect health a natural lubricant keeps the food waste soft and moving. But when constipation exists this natural lubricant is not sufficient. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus secures regular bowel movements by Nature's own method—lubrication.

As Nujol is not a medicine or laxative, it cannot gripe and, like pure water, it is harmless and pleasant.

Nujol is used in leading hospitals. Get a bottle from your druggist today.—Advertisement.

Weak and Miserable?

Is a lame, aching back keeping you miserable? Are you tortured with sharp, stabbing pains? Feel weak, tired—"all played-out"? Then look to your kidneys, for these are common signs of kidney weakness. There may be headaches and dizziness, too, with annoying bladder irregularities. Don't risk serious kidney sickness. Help your weakened kidneys with Doan's Kidney Pills. ## CHAPTER XIX—Continued.

His white face loomed over hers. She closed her eyes. He rained kisses upon her face, but no more upon her mouth. On her closed eyes, her hair, her cheeks, her neck he pressed swift lips—lips that lost their fire and grew cold. Then he released her, and, lifting and righting her in the saddle, he still held her arm to keep her from falling.

For a moment Madeline sat on her horse with shut eyes. She dreaded the light.

"Now you can't say you've never been kissed," Stewart said. His voice seemed a long way off. "But that was coming to you, so be game. Here!"

She felt something hard and cold and metallic thrust into her hand. He made her fingers close over it, hold it. The feel of the thing revived her. She opened her eyes. Stewart had given her his gun. He stood with his broad breast against her knee, and she looked up to see that old mocking smile on his face.

"Go ahead! Throw my gun on me! Be a thoroughbred!"

Madeline did not yet grasp his meaning.

"You can put me down in that quiet place on the hill—beside Monty Price."

Madeline dropped the gun with a shuddering cry of horror. The sense of his words, the memory of Monty, the certainty that she would kill Stewart if she held the gun an instant longer, tortured the self-accusing cry from her.

Stewart stooped to pick up the weapon.

"You might have saved me a hell of a lot of trouble," he said, with another flash of the mocking smile. "You're beautiful and sweet and proud, but you're no thoroughbred! Majesty Hammond, adios!"

Stewart leaped for the saddle of his horse, and with the flying mount crashed through the mesquites to disappear.

CHAPTER XX

The Secret Told.

Late in the night Madeline fell asleep. In the morning she was pale and languid, but in a mental condition that promised composure.

It was considerably after her regular hour that Madeline repaired to her office. The door was open, and just outside, tipped back in a chair, sat Stillwell.

"Maw'nin', Miss Majesty," he said, as he rose to greet her with his usual courtesy. Madeline shrank inwardly, fearing his old lamentations about Stewart. Then she saw a dusty, ragged pony in the yard and a little burro drooping under a heavy pack. Both animals bore evidence of long, arduous travel.

"To whom do they belong?" asked Madeline.

"Them critters? Why, Danny Mains," replied Stillwell, with a cough that betrayed embarrassment.

"Is Danny Mains here?" she asked, in sudden curiosity.

The old cattleman nodded gloomily. "Yep, he's hyar, all right. Slop'd in from the hills an' he hollered to see Bonita. He's locoed, too, about that little black-eyed hussy. Why, he hardly said, 'Howdy, Bill,' before he began to ask wild an' eager questions. I took him in to see Bonita. He's been there more'n a half-hour now."

Rapid footsteps with an accompaniment of clinking spurs sounded in the hallway. Then a young man ran out upon the porch. He was a handsome, frank-faced boy. A sight of Madeline he slammed down his sombrero and, leaping at her, he possessed himself of her hands. His swift violence not only alarmed her, but painfully reminded her of something she wished to forget.

This cowboy bent his head and kissed her hands and wrung them, and when he straightened up he was crying.

"Miss Hammond, she's safe an' almost well, an' what I feared most ain't so, thank God," he cried. "Sure I'll never be able to pay you for all you've done for her. She's told me how she was dragged down here, how Gene tried to save her, how you spoke up for Gene an' her, too, how Monty at the last threw his guns. Poor Monty! We were good friends, Monty an' I. There's Nels an' Nick an' Gene, he's been some friend to me; but Monty Price was—he was grand. He never knew, any more than you or Bill, here, or the boys, what Bonita was to me."

Stillwell's kind and heavy hand fell upon the cowboy's shoulder.

"Danny, what's all this queer gab?" he asked. "An' you're takin' some liberty with Miss Hammond, who never seen you before. I see you're not drinkin'. Come, ease up now an' talk sense."

The cowboy's fine, frank face broke into a smile. He dashed the tears from his eyes. Then he laughed. His laugh had a pleasant, boyish ring—a happy ring.

"Bill, old pal, stand bridle down a minute, will you?" Then he bowed to Madeline. "I beg your pardon, Miss Hammond, for seemin' rudeness. I'm Danny Mains. An' Bonita is my wife. I'm so crazy glad she's safe an' unharmed—so grateful to you that—why, sure it's a wonder I didn't kiss you outright."

"Bonita's your wife!" ejaculated Stillwell.

"Sure. We've been married for months," replied Danny, happily. "Gene Stewart did it. Good old Gene. I guess maybe I haven't come to pay him up for all he's done for me! You see, I've been in love with Bonita for two years. An' Gene—you know, Bill, what a way Gene has with girls—he was—well, he was tryin' to get Bonita to have me."

Madeline's quick, varying emotions were swallowed up in a boundless gladness. Something dark, deep, heavy, and somber was flooded from her heart. She had a sudden rich sense of gratitude toward this smiling, clean-faced cowboy whose blue eyes flashed through tears.

"Danny Mains!" she said, tremulously and smilingly. "If you're as glad as your news has made me—if you really think I merit such a reward—you may kiss me outright."

With a bashful wonder, but with right hearty will, Danny Mains availed himself of this gracious privilege.

Stillwell snorted. The signs of his phenomenal smile were manifest, otherwise Madeline would have thought that snort an indication of furious disapproval.

"Bill, straddle a chair," said Danny. "You've gone back a heap these last few months, frettin' over your bad boys, Danny an' Gene. You'll need support under you while I'm throwin' my yarn. Story of my life, Bill." He placed a chair for Madeline. "Miss Hammond, beggin' your pardon again, I want you to listen, also. You've the face an' eyes of a woman who loves to hear of other people's happiness. Besides, somehow, it's easy for me to talk lookin' at you."

Walking off the porch, he stood before the weary horse and burro. With the swift violence characteristic of men of his class he slipped the pack from the burro and threw saddle and bridle from the horse.

He untied the pack and, taking a small, heavy sack from it, he came back upon the porch. Deliberately he dumped the contents of the sack at Stillwell's feet. Piece after piece of rock thumped upon the floor. The pieces were sharp, ragged, evidently broken from a ledge; the body of them was white in color, with yellow veins and bars and streaks. Stillwell grasped up one rock after another, stared and stuttered, put the rocks to his lips, dug into them with his shaking fingers; then he lay back in his chair, head against the wall, and as he gaped at Danny the old smile began to transform his face.

Danny regarded Stillwell with lofty condescension. "Now, Bill, what've you got here, say, offhand?"

"Oh, Lord, Danny! I'm afraid to say. Look, Miss Majesty, jest look at the gold. I've lived among prospectors an' gold mines for thirty years, an' I never seen the beat of this."

"The Lost Mine of the Padres!" cried Danny, in stentorian voice. "An' it belongs to me!"

Stillwell made some incoherent sound as he sat up fascinated, quite beside himself.

"Bill, it was some long time ago since you saw me," said Danny. "Fact is, I know how you felt, because Gene kept me posted. I happened to run across Bonita, an' I wasn't goin' to let her ride away alone, when she told me she was in trouble. We hit the trail for the Peloncellos. Bonita had Gene's horse, an' she was to meet him up on the trail. We got to the mountains all right, an' nearly starved for a few days till Gene found us. He had got in trouble himself an' couldn't fetch much with him."

"We made for the crags an' built a cabin. I come down that day Gene sent his horse Majesty to you. Never saw Gene so broken-hearted. Well, after he sloped for the border Bonita an' I were hard put to it to keep alive. But we got along, an' I think it was then she began to care a little for me. Once I went to El Cajon an' run plumb into Gene. He was back from the revolution an' cuttin' up some. But I got away from him after doin' all I could to drag him out of town. A long time after that Gene trilled up to the crags an' found us. Gene had stopped drinkin', he'd changed wonderful, was fine an' dandy. It was then he began to pester the life out of me to make me marry Bonita. I was happy, so was she, an' I was some scared of spollin' it. Gene's dog-gone hard to buck against! I had to give in, an' I asked Bonita to marry me. Well, she wouldn't at first—said she wasn't good enough for me. But I saw the marriage idea was workin' deep, an' I just kept on bein' as decent as I knew how. So it was my wantin' to marry Bonita—my bein' glad to marry her—that made her grow soft an' sweet an' pretty as—as a mountain quail. Gene fetched up Padre Marcos, an' he married us."

Danny paused in his narrative, breathing hard, as if the memory of the incident described had stirred strong and thrilling feeling in him. Stillwell's smile was rapturous. Madeline leaned toward Danny with her eyes shining.

"Miss Hammond, an' you, Bill Stillwell, now listen, for this is strange I've got to tell you. The afternoon Bonita an' I were married, when Gene an' the padre had gone, she left me for a little, an' when she came back she wore some pretty yellow flowers in her hair. She said some queer things about spirits rollin' rocks down the canyon. Then she said she wanted to show me where she always sat an' waited an' watched for me when I was away. She led me around under the crags to a long slope. It was some pretty there—clear an' open, with a long sweep, an' the desert yawnin' deep an' red. There were yellow flowers on that slope, the same kind she had in her hair.

"When I heard the strange crack of rollin' rocks—heard them rattle down an' roll an' grow faint—I was some out of my head. But not for long. Them rocks were rollin' all right, only it was the weatherin' of the cliffs.

"An' there under the crags was a gold pocket.

"Then I was worse than locoed. I went gold-crazy. I worked like seven-teen burros. Bill, I dug a lot of gold-bearing quartz. Bonita watched the trails for me, brought me water. That was how she come to get caught by Pat Have an' his guerrillas. Sure! Pat Have was so set on doin' Gene dirt that he mixed up with Don Carlos. Bonita will tell you some staggerin' news about that outfit. Just now my story is all gold."

Danny Mains got up and kicked back his chair. Blue lightning gleamed from his eyes as he thrust a hand toward Stillwell.

"Bill, old pal, put her there—give me your hand," he said. "You were always my friend. You had faith in me. Well, Danny Mains owes you, an' he owes Gene Stewart a good deal, an' Danny Mains pays. I want two partners to help me work my gold mine. You an' Gene. Go fetch him; an' right here in this house, with my wife an' Miss Hammond as witnesses, we'll draw up a partnership. Go find him, Bill. I want to show him this gold, show him how Danny Mains pays! An' the only bitter drop in my cup today is that I can't ever pay Monty Price."

Madeline watched the huge Stillwell and the little cowboy, both talking wildly, as they walked off arm in arm to find Stewart. She imagined something of what Danny's disappointment would be, of the elder man's consternation and grief, when he learned Stewart had left for the border. At this juncture she looked up to see a strange, yet familiar figure approaching. Padre Marcos!

Mention of Padre Marcos, sight of him, had always occasioned Madeline a little indefinable shock; and now, as he stepped to the porch, a drunken, stooped, and sad-faced man, she was startled.

"Senora, will you grant me audience? It is a matter of great moment, which you might not care to have any one hear."

Wonderingly Madeline inclined her head. The padre gently closed one door and then the others.

"Senora, I have come to disclose a secret—my own sinfulness in keeping it—and to implore your pardon. Do you remember that night Senor Stewart dragged me before you in the waiting-room at El Cajon?"

"Yes," replied Madeline.

"Senora, since that night you have been Senor Stewart's wife!"

Madeline became as motionless as stone. She seemed to feel nothing, only to hear.

"You are Senor Stewart's wife. I have kept the secret under fear of death. But I could keep it no longer. Senor Stewart may kill me now. Ah, Senora, it is very strange to you. You were so frightened that night, you knew not what happened. Senor Stewart threatened me. He forced you. He made me speak the service. He made you speak the Spanish yes. And I, Senora, knowing the deeds of these sinful cowboys, fearing worse than disgrace to one so beautiful and so good as you, I could not do less than marry you truly. At least you should be his wife. So I married you, truly, in the service of my church."

"My God!" cried Madeline, rising.

"Hear me! I implore you, Senora, hear me out! Do not leave me! Do not look so—so— Ah, Senora, let me speak a word for Senor Stewart. He was drunk that night. He did not know what he was about. In the morning he came to me, made me swear by my cross that I would not reveal the disgrace he had put upon you. If I did he would kill me. Life is nothing to the American vaquero, Senora. I promised to respect his command, but I did not tell him you were his wife. He did not dream I had truly married you. He went to fight for the freedom of my country—Senora, he is one splendid soldier—and I brooded over the sin of my secret. If he were killed I need never tell you. But if he lived I knew that I must some day.

"Senora, I pray you, do not misunderstand my mission. Beyond my confession to you I have only a duty to tell you of the man whose wife you are. But I am a priest and I can read the soul. The ways of God are inscrutable. I am only a humble instrument. You are a noble woman, and Senor Stewart is a man of desert iron forged anew in the crucible of love. Quien sabe? Senor Stewart swore he would kill me if I betrayed him. But he will not lift his hand against me. For the man bears you a very great and pure love, and it has changed him. To love you above the spirit of the flesh; to know you are his wife, his never to be another's except by his sacrifice; to watch you with a secret glory of joy and pride; to stand, while he might, between you and evil; to find his happiness in service; to wait, with never a dream of telling you, for the hour to come when to leave you free he must go out and get himself shot! Senora, that is beautiful. It is sublime, it is terrible. It has brought me to you with my confession. So I beseech you in my humble office as priest, as a lover of mankind, before you send Stewart to his death, to be sure there is here no mysterious dispensation of God. I pray you, Senora, before you let Stewart give you freedom at such cost be sure you do not want his love, lest you cast away something sweet and ennobling which you yourself have created."

CHAPTER XXI

News of Stewart.

Blinded, like a wild creature, Madeline Hammond ran to her room. She felt as if a stroke of lightning had shattered the shadowy substance of the dream she had made of real life. The wonder of Danny Mains' story, the strange regret with which she had realized her injustice to Stewart, the astounding secret as revealed by Padre Marcos—these were forgotten in the sudden consciousness of her own love. She liberated the thought that knocked at the gates of her mind. With quivering lips she whispered it. Then she spoke aloud:

"I will say it—hear it. I—I love him!"

In a nature like hers, where strength of feeling had long been inhibited as a matter of training, such a transforming surprise as sudden consciousness of passionate love required time for its awakening, time for its sway.

By and by that last enlightening moment came, and Madeline Hammond faced not only the love in her heart, but the thought of the man she loved.

Suddenly, as she raged, something in her—this dauntless new personality—took arms against indictment of Gene Stewart. Her mind whirled about him and his life. She saw him drunk, brutal; she saw him abandoned, lost. Then out of the picture she had of him thus slowly grew one of a different man—weak, sick, changed by shock, growing strong, strangely, spiritually altered, silent, lonely like an eagle, secretive, tireless, faithful, soft as a woman, hard as iron to endure, and at the last noble.

"Oh, it is all terrible!" she cried. "I am his wife. His wife! That meeting with him—the marriage—then his fall, his love, his rise, his silence, his pride! And I can never be anything to him. Could I be anything to him? I, Madeline Hammond? But I am his wife, and I love him! His wife! I am the wife of a cowboy! That might be undone. Can my love be undone? Ah, do I want anything undone? He is gone, gone! Could he have meant—I will not, dare not think of that. He will come back. No, he never will come back. Oh, what shall I do?"

And on the morning of the next day, when Madeline went out upon the porch, Stillwell, haggard and stern, with husky, incoherent word handed her a message from El Cajon. She read:

"El Capitan Stewart captured by rebel soldiers in fight at Agua Prieta yesterday. He was a sharpshooter in the federal ranks. Sentenced to death Thursday at sunset."

CHAPTER XXII

The Ride.

"Stillwell!"

The old cattleman stood mute before her, staring at her white face, at her eyes of flame.

"Stillwell! I am Stewart's wife!"

"My Gawd, Miss Majesty!" he burst out. "I knowed somethin' terrible was wrong. Aw, sure it's a pity—"

"Do you think I'll let him be shot when I know him now, when I'm no longer blind, when I love him?" she asked, with passionate swiftness. "I will save him. This is Wednesday morning. I have thirty-six hours to save his life. Stillwell, send for Link and the car!"

She went into her office. Her mind worked with extraordinary rapidity and clearness. Her plan, born in one lightninglike flash of thought, necessitated the careful wording of telegrams to Washington, to New York, to San Antonio. These were to senators, representatives, men high in public and private life, men who would remember her and who would serve her to their utmost. Never before had her position meant anything to her comparable with what it meant now. Never in all her life had money seemed the power that it was then. If she had been poor! A shuddering chill froze the thought at its inception. She dispelled heartbreaking thoughts. She had power. She had wealth. She would set into operation all the unthought means these gave her—the wires and pulleys and strings underneath the surface of political and international life, the open, free, purchasing value of money or the deep, underground, mysterious, incalculably powerful influence moved by gold. She could save Stewart.

When she went outside the car was there with Link, helmet in hand, a cool, bright gleam in his eyes, and with Stillwell, losing his haggard misery, beginning to respond to Madeline's spirit.

"Link, drive Stillwell to El Cajon in time for him to catch the El Paso train," she said. "Wait there for his return and if any message comes from him, telephone it at once to me."

Then she gave Stillwell the telegrams to send from El Cajon and drafts to cash in El Paso. She instructed him to go before the rebel Junta, then stationed at Juarez, to explain the situation, to bid them expect communications from Washington officials requesting and advising Stewart's exchange as a prisoner of war, to offer to buy his release from the rebel authorities.

There was a crack, a muffled sound bursting into a roar, and the big car jerked forward to bound over the edge of the slope, to leap down the long incline, to shoot out upon the level valley floor and disappear in moving dust.

Madeline endured patiently, endured for long interminable hours while holding to hope with indomitable will.

No message came. At sunset she went outdoors, suffering a torment of accumulating suspense. Night fell. She prayed for the sun not to rise, not to begin its short twelve-hour journey toward what might be a fatal setting for Stewart. But the dawn did lighten, swiftly she thought, remorselessly. Daylight had broken, and this was Thursday!

Sharp ringing at the telephone bell startled her, roused her into action. She ran to answer the call.

"Hello—hello—Miss Majesty!" came the hurried reply. "This is Link talkin' Messages for you. Favorable, the operator said. I'm to ride out with them. I'll come a-hummin'."

That was all. Madeline heard the bang of the receiver as Stevens threw it down. Favorable! Then Stillwell had been successful. Her heart leaped. Suddenly she became weak and her hands failed of their accustomed deftness. It took her what seemed a thousand years to dress. Breakfast meant nothing to her except that it helped her to pass dragging minutes.

Finally a low hum, mounting swiftly to a roar and ending with a sharp report, announced the arrival of the car. If her feet had kept pace with her heart she would have raced out to meet Link.

CADILLAC GARAGE

Located at 919 Ave. I, Lubbock, Texas. Telephone 620. Are the Official Sales and Service in This Section for "Cadillac," the "Standard of the World."

Cadillac automobiles are without doubt America's finest automobile, for in equipment and appointments type 61 have many features that are notable, both for beauty and convenience, the appearance commends itself to the most cultured taste. The performance of this 61 type is identified with a power plant which is the "Standard of the World," and acme of multi-cylinder engine design. All these improvements are represented in the expert work of Cadillac engineering whose staff of engineers have a nationwide service organization.

Cadillac, America's pride in fine cars, will naturally be stirred by the knowledge that Europe, Australia, South America and the Orient have joined her in conferring upon Type 61 the most successful year in Cadillac history.

For many years discriminating people in these lands have studied the Cadillac with an interest only less keen and appreciative than that of Americans, to whom the Cadillac by nationality and birth belongs.

As they have become better and better acquainted with the Cadillac, their admiration for its brisk, dependable, powerful performance has ripened into deep and abiding esteem. Accordingly, at the courts and in high official and social circles of these lands "Cadillac" cars are strongly favored and classed with the best of their own fine motors.

The Cadillac emblems appear with increasing frequency on the highways and byways of all nations of the earth, causing the hearts of Americans to beat more quickly.

Cadillac owners and many other Americans here at home, we believe, will feel something of this same legitimate pride at the thought, that in foreign countries, as well as in its own country, Cadillac is acclaimed "Standard of the World."

Mr. Joe Hilton, owner and manager, asks that you call at their showroom and look these new models over and see what you think of them. There are ten different body types to select from in open and closed cars, in every way a worthy successor to the models which have succeeded it, as a visit to their show room will absolutely convince you.

Therefore in this Tech Celebration and Expansion Trade Review of Lubbock's industries we take pleasure in referring our readers to this leading establishment for Cadillac cars, the "Standard of the World," and first-class official service.

This they have done and therefore are enjoying a large amount of business throughout this territory, and are well versed upon anything pertaining to land in this and adjoining counties.

As we all know the question of title is the first and last thing in buying land and always causes confusion to a certain extent, but with this capable concern in our midst they have eliminated this trouble, and we want to compliment this efficient firm on the success that they have attained in this comprehensive service they are rendering to the people of this county. THE TEXAS CO.

"Wholesale Only"

Located at 606 Ave. H, Lubbock, Texas. Telephone 274. Wholesaling Gasoline and Motor Oils of Superior Quality.

The Texas Company of Lubbock are wholesaling to their dealers a grade of gasoline and oils that are superior in quality. You might wonder just what we mean by saying this. "In ye olden days," high "test gasoline" really did indicate something to be desired in gasoline, and the "specific gravity" was a big item in judging as to the efficiency of a motor fuel. But the great advance and importance in internal motors has brought out an entirely new phrase of gasoline production. Gasoline nowadays must have a low end point and the United States Government laboratories have worked out specifications that must be met, having not less than 58-60 specific gravity. "Good gasoline" vaporizes rapidly and uniformly. It undergoes complete combustion in the motor; will start the motor promptly, accelerates quickly at all stages of car operation. It should be remembered by the motorist that in buying a low priced gasoline because it is cheap will react on the buyer just as unpleasantly and unprofitably as buying a cheap, shoddy suit of clothing, for you get only what you pay for in either case, and in the case of cheap gasoline you are not even giving your motor a square deal. Then relative to motor oil, if you were an aviator you'd have to use oil you could trust. Your life would depend upon it. The same principle of lubrication applies to your car, regardless of the make. That is why gasoline and oils sold by the dealer who handles Texas Company products are far superior to many other like concerns, for at all times you will get the best gasoline, oils, or service, for at these concerns they will give you prompt, efficient, and courteous service at all times, and in this big Tech Celebration and Expansion Trade Review of Lubbock's various establishments we can do no better than refer our readers to this local concern's dealers for metropolitan services.

MARTIN'S BAKERY

(Confectionery and Fountain)

Located at 1013 Broadway, Lubbock, Texas. Telephone 218. Is One of the Modern Baking Institutions of This Section. "Butter-flake" Bread is Made With Milk, Rich, Pure, Delicious.

Martin's Bakery is a model industry operated upon twentieth century lines, making a full line of fine cakes, pies, pastries and their famous "Butter-Flake" Bread.

Its plant is modern and up-to-date in every particular, clean and sanitary throughout. The business is conducted along progressive lines and we are proud to say that it is a credit to the city of Lubbock.

To be able to make certain of getting absolutely good bread and bakery goods only the most healthful ingredients are used in the process of manufacture. Analysis has proven them free from anything injurious, consequently they are not only health protecting but health-giving.

A visit to the plant of this company is very interesting to the uninitiated, as the business of this bakery has increased so rapidly, and improvements have been made from time to time until today they have a model industry. Everything in the plant is clean and sanitary and it is the policy of this bakery not only to make bakery goods that will pass inspection, but to turn out products that are as near the acme of perfection as modern machinery and up-to-date methods will permit.

If the public could only comprehend how these products are manufactured by this company and could understand how absolutely pure and health-giving their "products of quality" are, there would not be a family in this vicinity which would not be a patron of this concern.

They also have in connection one of the finest fountains in this section of the state. They serve the finest lunches and fountain delicacies, always served in the most sanitary manner. In the confectionery department one will at all times find a full line of WHITMAN'S Fine Chocolates. Then they serve Clover Leaf Ice Cream, made in Lubbock.

The manager, Mr. R. H. Martin, has been closely allied with the business interests of this section and has been instrumental in the upbuilding of a greater Lubbock, and the institution which he presides over, and should receive the patronage of the people.

IF EDITORS TOLD THE TRUTH.

A short time ago the editor of a paper in Indiana grew tired of being called a liar and announced that he would tell the truth in the future, and the next issue of the paper contained the following items:

The Reverend Sty preached last Sunday night on "Charity." The sermon was punk.

Dave Canky died at his home here Tuesday. The doctor gave it out as heart failure. Whisky killed him.

Married: Miss Sylvia Binn and Jim Doe, last Saturday at the Baptist parsonage, by the Rev. Gordon. The bride is a very ordinary town girl who doesn't know any more about cooking than a jack rabbit and never helped her mother three days in her life. She is not a beauty by any means and has a gait like a duck. The groom is an up-to-date loafer. He has been living off the old folks at home all his life and not worth shucks. It will be a hard life.

Died: Aged 56. Deceased was a mild-mannered pirate with a mouth full of whisky. He came here in the night with another man's wife and joined the church at the first chance. He owes us several dollars for the paper. He died singing "Jesus Paid it All," and we think he was right, he never paid anything himself. He was buried in an asbestos casket and his friends threw palm leaf fans into his grave, as he may need them.

It is unnecessary to say that this editor is no longer publishing a newspaper.—Canadian Pharmaceutical paper.—Exchange.

The Abilene trade excursion was in Slaton late yesterday afternoon for about two hours and was greeted by an immense crowd. An extended report will be given later.

Mrs. J. S. Lanham has returned from Canyon after a several weeks' absence. She has been doing special summer work in the State Normal there, preparatory to teaching in the public schools here for another year.

ROYALTY MOTOR COMPANY

Located at 1011 Thirteenth Street, Lubbock, Texas, Telephone 444. Are Official Sales and Service for Dodge Bros. Motor Vehicles.

The Royalty Motor Company of Lubbock is one of the truly progressive firms, who are at all times striving to give their customers metropolitan service, and with the marked improvements of Dodge Brothers new line of motor vehicles, in the production of which the factory has been gathering momentum since the first public viewed these new types. The factory has been receiving reports of enthusiastic approval from everywhere. While the basic characteristics of the familiar Dodge Brothers cars of recent days are still present, there is an air of distinctiveness that surpasses all previous efforts to build a moderately priced car of commendable appearance as well as quality. The wheelbase of this new type car is longer, with the rear springs changed to semi-elliptical, underslung and increased from 45 to 55 inches in length. In fact all the new features so popular with the public today are embodied in the new designs of the Dodge Brothers Motor Vehicles which includes Touring cars, Roadster, Coupe, two type of Sedan and screen and panel side of commercial cars of three-quarter ton capacity. All steel bodies, as first introduced by Dodge Brothers in their open passenger cars several years ago are now used in all their entire line.

and lower body, longer wheelbase combined with the new cars have improved the riding qualities as well as the general design, all of which affords real riding comfort. The reduction in body height lowers the center of gravity, thereby reducing sideway. While rebound shocks are effectively dissipated by the improved front and rear springs, all of which makes for the new type a car of better roadability than ever before. The many notable features of the Dodge Brothers Motor Cars will be interesting to everyone, for obviously they are making their entire new line more attractive in every way, though still retaining the essential attributes to which Dodge Brothers Motor Vehicles owes their greatest popularity throughout the world and it seems quite evident that they have yet not reached their maximum of their potentialities despite their tremendous records of the past.

The Royalty Motor Company is no exception of the usual high standards maintained by Dodge Brothers metropolitan organizations throughout the world and the manager, Mr. W. W. Royalty, extends a cordial invitation through the columns of this Tech Celebration Review of County Seat Industries for you to visit their salesroom and inspect this newest of Dodge Brothers Vehicles, assuring their customers of service that will please at all times.

In the Ready-to-wear department will be found styles that present a veritable symphony of graceful lines in various materials and shades for women and men for Fall.

The men of this section who have trade with W. J. Garrett's dry goods store during the short time they have been in Lubbock appreciate the greatest convenience and atmosphere of their exclusive clothing department, and have come to look upon it as the men's shop, where they can find the sort of wearing apparel that reflects their own good taste in clothes, for their stock of suits for Fall wear were never so well chosen or so comprehensive for your selection. There's a harmony of colorings and splendid weaves in this season's new and attractive patterns that will appeal to the refined tastes of the most discriminating dressers.

In fact every department of this store is complete in itself, handling even the smallest item for every need and occasion for every grown-up member of the family, and at such savings which only their policy of quick turnovers and large buying powers make possible.

One must look far and wide to find a stock that is more complete and attractive, for here you find not only the most popular vogues among society leaders, but the more conservative of modern garments that have met with universal approval, and it is a well known fact that W. J. Garrett's dry goods store has built up their large business in so short a time by selling good merchandise for less money.

We therefore take great pleasure in this Tech Celebration and Expansion Trade Review of Lubbock merchants and industries in complimenting the manager whose keen business judgment and foresight is responsible for the growth of this large business, and we predict that the future will see even greater strides in the progress of this business in Lubbock County.

Who Says They Don't?

Manners and the Motor

The Victorian era undoubtedly had its faults but it's passing has taken away a few things which the world would do better to retain. For instance:

The other afternoon three elegantly dressed young gentlemen, driving up Woodward avenue in a large open automobile, espied a young lady of their acquaintance being taken northward in a street car. They moved over under her window, attracted her attention by several blasts of their horn and, by signs and nods, indicated that she should alight at the next stop and climb in with them.

This she did and the last the writer saw was the four of them bowling merrily along in earnest, but obviously very juvenile, conversation.

But—and this is the point of the story—during all these goings-on not one of the elegantly dressed young gentlemen removed his hat.—Detroit News.

Linseed Oil Statistics.

The value of products of establishments engaged in the manufacture of linseed oil amounted to $71,032,000 in 1921, compared with $120,638,000 in 1919 and $44,883,000 in 1914, a decrease of 41.1 per cent from 1919 to 1921, but an increase of 58.3 per cent for the period 1914 to 1921. In addition, establishments manufacturing other products of chief value reported production of linseed oil to the value of $3,002,000 in 1921, $2,883,000 in 1919, and $1,286,000 in 1914.

Prompt Handling of Potato Crop

Government Bulletin Points Out Great Importance of Heavy Early Shipment.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Prospect, quick, careful handling of the early potato crop is the keynote of the marketing problem, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. The market season for any early potato district lasts only a few weeks and into that short time must be condensed the net results of the season's work and planning. Farmers bulletin 1316, just published, tells how the crop is sold in the leading early potato sections; the location, shipping points, and relative importance of the heavy early-shipping districts are shown; kind and source of information which the grower should use are described; and the grower told how to make the most of them in marketing his crop.

Factors to Study.

Study is better than guess work, says the bulletin. There are a number of factors to consider and the grower should keep in touch with crop news, shipment reports, and market quotations. Study of the best official reports until experience makes it possible to size up their practical meaning almost at a glance, is a practical and profitable part of the work of marketing.

Before the time of planting the grower who studies conditions will be able to figure with a certain degree of accuracy the probable market situation for early new potatoes. The price of early potatoes seems to vary according to the size of the main crop the year before and the quantity of old stock available for shipment after January 1, as well as according to shipments of the new early crop. For example the average price of new potatoes in 1917 was nearly double that of 1916, yet about the same number of carloads of new early stock were shipped in each of the two years. But the 1917 new crop followed a short old crop of which the shipments were light after January, while the 1916 new crop followed a heavy main crop.

Success in Marketing.

While the selling end of the potato question deals mainly with the crop when ready for market, it is well to bear in mind that success in marketing depends much on having the right stock at the right time. The variety should be one that is marketed in large quantities from the locality, thus making sure of carlot shipments throughout the season and of plenty of local cash buyers.

The bulletin contains much of interest regarding the various market outlets for the small grower as well as for the larger commercial planter and a copy may be obtained by writing to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., as long as the supply lasts.

Milk Production Reduced by Lack of Pure Water

Milk production is often lessened merely because the cows cannot conveniently get plenty of fresh pure water. The amount of water they will drink depends on the yield of milk and also on the amount of water in their feed. Cows in milk require on an average about 100 pounds or 12 1/2 gallons of water daily, while high-producing cows are fed succulent feeds they will naturally need less water to drink than when they receive dry feeds exclusively.

The cows should have access to salt daily. The average cow requires at least one ounce of salt a day and heavy producers still more. For best results the cow should have all she will use of both salt and water.

Prairie-Dog Eradication Saves Arizona Farmers

For every dollar invested in the Arizona campaign for prairie-dog eradication in 1922, there was a $15 return in the value of farm products saved from destruction by these pests, according to reports to the United States Department of Agriculture. The state and federal appropriation for the campaign was $30,000. Farmers estimated the value of crops, fruit trees, range grasses, or other products saved as a result, at $475,000, over fifteen times the amount put into the work.

Horse Show at Waterloo.

Waterloo, Ia., will hold a horse show exclusively for Belgian draft horses, September 24 to 30. Prizes in 46 classes will foot up $6,000.

Coarse Bird Poor Layer.

The coarse bird is almost invariably a poor layer. The skin of a good producer is thin, soft, pliable and velvety to the touch, while the poor producer's skin is tough, dry and thick.

Right Treatment for Sunstroke in Horses

First Step Is to Get Animal in Cool, Shady Spot.

Sunstroke, a disorder of the nervous system caused by exposure to the direct rays of the sun, is likely to cause trouble in hot weather, says the veterinary division of the Clemson Agricultural college.

In severe cases, death is sudden, due to paralysis of the nerve centers in the brain controlling the respiration and circulation. In the less severe cases there may be marked excitement, the animal becoming uncontrollable; or the opposite condition may be present, the animal appearing sleepy and depressed.

As the condition occurs in the open, and usually while the animal is at hard work, the first step is to get the animal in a cool, shady spot out of doors.

If there is excitement, all precautions should be taken to prevent the animal injuring itself. Then cold water, or better still, ice should be applied to the head. If ice is not available it is well to turn the garden hose on the animal's head. The cold water tends to relieve the congested condition of the brain, and the colder the better. The water should not be applied all over the body, but only to the head.

The animal should not be drenched, for he is likely to be unconscious and the drench will, in that case, pass into the lungs, where it may set up a fatal inflammation.

Following sunstroke the animal should be rested for several days, and brought back to hard work gradually.

Proper Care and Feed Will Help Draft Foals

With the draft horse market improving steadily, for the best quality animals, anyway, some recent experiments conducted by Professor Fuller at the Wisconsin experiment station will be of interest and practical value.

A lot of seven pure bred draft foals was given careful feeding for 182 days during the winter before last, on an average daily ration of 11.4 pounds of concentrates and 8.4 pounds of alfalfa hay. The grain mixture consisted of 90 pounds of crushed oats and 10 pounds of wheat bran. The foals made an average daily gain of 1.9 pounds, and averaged 1,141.4 pounds in weight at an average age of 377 days. The result of this work checked very closely with the trials of previous years, and it appears safe to conclude that, by proper care and liberal feeding, good draft foals can easily be made to weigh 1,000 pounds at one year of age.

Pigs Require Less Salt Than Other Farm Animals

Although pigs require less salt than other farm animals, they should be provided with it regularly. In a trial by Professor Evvard at the Iowa agricultural experiment station, pigs allowed free access to salt made better gains than those receiving no salt or others getting allowances of 1-64, 1-32, or 1-16 ounce per head daily. Salt may be supplied in a trough or a small self-feeder. If pigs have not had free access to salt they might at first overeat when allowed free access to it. Brood sows should also be supplied with salt which is best fed in a suitable box or self-feeder.

Japanese Millet Useful as Feed for Live Stock

Japanese millet may be used as a green feed, cured for hay or made to produce a seed crop. When used as a feed it has the advantage over other millets, in never having been known to cause kidney trouble in live stock; in other words, like timothy, it is practically fool proof as a feed. Many dairymen have used it as a soiling crop.

Dealers Sometimes Cause of Poor Quality in Eggs

Dealers are sometimes at fault in causing poor quality in eggs which consumers receive, by holding over quality eggs in a warm place after receiving them, and holding them for too long a period. Quality eggs will not remain good under these conditions.

Enemy of Quality Eggs.

The big enemy of quality eggs in the summer is heat. Any condition which will cause the overheating of the egg should be avoided.

Two Big Dairy Factors.

Cost of feed consumed and value of milk produced are the two factors which determine the profitability of a dairy cow.

Essential Part of Ration.

Green feed, in some form, constitutes an essential part of any well balanced poultry ration, whether for young chicks, growing stock or adult birds.

DAIRY

Some Requirements for Right Start of Calves

The dairy calf six to eight months old should be provided with salt. It is best to keep a small box in the calf pen or stall with salt in it at all times. The calf will then take just what is needed.

More than 56 per cent of the calf's body is made up of water; and for digesting the feed, regulating the body temperature, and other body purposes the calf needs 4 to 6 gallons of clean, fresh water every day. So the club boy should see that his calf has all the water it wants and that it is watered during warm days three times.

Sunshine is necessary for normal growth of the calf, but like most good things the calf can get too much; therefore, see that your pasture has plenty of shade to which the calf can go to lie down and chew its cud during the heat of the day.

When the dairy calf is weaned from skim milk, it should be eating grains and hay well. A good legume hay, like alfalfa, peavine, soy bean, or lespedeza, should be fed. This hay is necessary to furnish minerals to build bone, to supply protein for muscle building, and to furnish bulk for developing large feed capacity.

During the "fly season" a liberal use of the curry comb and brush will help keep the hair silky and the skin oily, both of which will tend to keep off flies.

Teach the calf to lead by the halter this summer. The best way to do this is to lead the calf to pasture each morning and back to the barn at night.

Tuberculosis Introduced Into Healthy Dairy Herd

Tuberculosis may be introduced into a healthy herd by any of the following means:

By the addition of an animal that is affected with the disease; therefore animals should be purchased only from herds known to be free from tuberculosis, or from herds under supervision for the eradication of the disease.

By feeding calves with milk or other dairy products from tuberculous cows; this frequently occurs where the owner purchases mixed skim milk from the creamery, and feeds it to his calves without first making it safe by boiling or pasteurization.

By showing cattle at fairs and exhibitions; reports have indicated that numerous herds have become infected through mingling with infected cattle at shows or by occupying infected premises.

The shipment of animals in cars which have recently carried diseased cattle and which have not been disinfected properly.

Community pastures; pastures in which tuberculous cattle are allowed to graze are a source of danger.

In most cases the outward appearance of the animal bears no relation to the degree of infection. The disease frequently develops so slowly that in some cases it may be months or even longer before any symptoms are shown; therefore be on the safe side and have your herd tested.

Cows Require Material for Production of Milk

To keep the summer milk checks up to normal, the cows require a little special attention at this time of the year. In spite of good pastures, grass is apt to be tough and not nearly so appetizing as it was in May or June. Hence the cows are going to stand around in the shade instead of putting away material for milk production.

This all means that the cows need a little grain at milking time during the late summer months and a little silage, too, if you have it. Green oats and peas or green corn are very good, as well as many other forage crops, cut green and fed during milking time. Here's a good grain mixture to be used while the cows are on pasture:

- 200 lbs. cornmeal
- 150 lbs. cottonseed meal
- 150 lbs. ground oats
- 150 lbs. gluten feed

Feed the grain mixture according to the way the cow responds. If a cow will not respond to grain feeding in the summer, she isn't worth keeping.

At the New Jersey agricultural experiment station the cows are being sprayed night and morning with a reliable spray that kills the flies. As a result, the cows stand better for milking and since they are not bothered with the flies they have time to eat their grain. Furthermore, when the milk is swatting flies and the cow is switching her tail around in his face he isn't apt to take much interest in how much milk the cow gives.

A good fly spray is a good investment.

Reckoning in Eggs. How long have you to work to earn an egg? The industrial state of Germany this month has been computed by a commercial correspondent in a novel way. An adult skilled workman, in order to earn 1 pound of margarine, has to work 2 hours 40 minutes; to get 1 egg, 15 minutes; 1 pound of fine sugar, nearly three-quarters of an hour; 1 pound of bread, 7 minutes; and 1 pair of boots, 30 hours. So a German skilled workman earns 4 eggs an hour.

JUMPING AT CONCLUSIONS!

—Probably you've heard men say "Rats!" They sit in their offices in town and raise Cain about the cow, the sow and the hen. Nothin' to it! didn't old man Smith try it? and didn't Bill Jones try it? etc.

—If those men could see the records as we can, could know what a difference it makes in the credit standing and in the bank balances of people who raise cows, hogs and poultry, they wouldn't have to jump at conclusions. 90 per cent of the trouble, when there is trouble, is with the men who manage them, not with the stock.

—This bank has no livestock to sell. We want to see prosperity in this community. Our records show that prosperity comes with cows, hogs and poultry on the farm.

—WON'T YOU LET US SERVE YOU?

Trust Your Banker.

If ever there was a time in the history of business when people, who have a little money to invest, should refuse to listen to the siren song of a very large number of agents scouring the country to sell stocks and securities of one kind or another, it is right now.

Millions of hard earned dollars have been poured into these rat holes simply because the agents have held out inducements in the way of interest above that which home institutions pay.

Buying of foreign and unknown stocks always puts us mind of the man who patronizes the Sears & Roebucks of the country. These same out-of-town purchasers, when hard times come along and they need credit, must then apply to the home merchant, whom they have ignored, for help. Just so with a good many investors who buy stocks they know nothing of and when loss comes, as it is doing with alarming frequency these days, then they must sneak around to the home banker for greatly needed help.

The home banker, who is generally honest and conservative and whom you have known all your life, will not advise you to go on Wall Street, neither will he try to steal your money; but he can and will tell you of good investments to make. He knows because he is in the money business. When you want a horse shod you don't take him to a plumber, you take him to a blacksmith shop because the man there is in the business. And it's the same with money; go to some man who knows, in whom you have confidence and in all money transactions he ought to be your banker.

Foster's Weekly Weather Bulletin

Washington, August 23.—North America is approaching strenuous times in cropweather and crops; winter grain for 1924 cropseason is doomed by a disastrous drouth and the finest producing sections for various crops is sure to be burned out by the blighting drouth of 1925; from March to July is sure to produce great loss. This is a new era in farming. It is no longer necessary for farmers to plant and sow their crops to be burned out by great drouths. The causes have been discovered and these disasters can be known to every farmer years in advance. For seven years the great drouths of the six continents have been foretold long in advance to those who seek such knowledge; but I can not be a philanthropist in these matters. We are entering a new era in farming, an era that will be more successful than ever before. Other agricultural features are now rapidly changing, favorably to the producers and the newly acquired knowledge of future rainfall shortages will enable the avoidance of great losses in seed, labor, crops, and tilling of the soil; these things are assured to those who reach for them. Old prejudices against planetary weatherology die hard, struggle against true scientific investigation; but that prejudice is dying out.

Sec. 5, Slaton and vicinity: South of 39, west of 90; warm Aug. 25 and Sept. 1; cool Aug. 29, Sept. 6; average warm; moderate storms and rain.

In a general way the weeks centering on Sept. 2, 10, 24, east of Rockies and of 2, 10, 18 and 31 west of Rockies' crest will be warm. The cool weeks of September, east of Rockies, will center on Sept. 5, 15 and 29, and west of Rockies' crest Sept. 5, 16 and 23.

Earthquakes are exactly of the same nature as lightning and thunder; the latter are as truly cloud-quakes as the former are earthquakes; they are caused by electromagnetism passing into or out of the earth and the former by it passing from one cloud to another. The moon is the trigger, or match, that sets off the earthquake bolt; the cloud nearing the earth, or another cloud, fires the lightning bolt and the moon, approaching an oppositely electrified part of the earth, touches off the earthquake bolt.

All storms are of two parts; in the hurricane the electric force comes down, passes into the earth; the magnetic forces, after gathering the clouds into a storm center, pass up and over to the other part of the storm which is a high with cool weather; the hurricane on the Gulf of Mexico and the high, or cold wave, in Saskatchewan, cause northern frosts.
