MAN HELD IN DUAL SLAYING INDIFFERENT

EL PASO, June 1.—Joe Marin, 67-year-old Spanish mine owner, calmly faced the knowledge today that Texas will demand his death for killing two lawyers here yesterday, but Marin seemed indifferent to that fact.

The Spaniard walked into the offices of Frank Lyons, 44, and Herbert Oppenheimer, 37, yesterday, waited until a woman secretary left and then shot them to death. Oppenheimer was killed as he sat in a chair and Lyons was shot through the back as he started to flee.

Marin walked into an adjoining adjoining office, placed his pistol on a table and asked that the police be called. Disdainfully ignoring the excited crowd which gathered, he seated himself at a table, lit a cigaret and waited until officers arrived.

In a statement issued after he was taken to jail, Marin said the two lawyers swindled him of $250,000 and that they had harassed him during the last four years.

Friday Night is Time of Good-Will Visit to McClung

Next Friday night is the date set for a good-will trip to be made to McClung community by Slaton people, according to announcement of Chamber of Commerce officers.

Rain prevented this visit being made on the original date which was scheduled for May 24, hence the new date was set.

A big crowd for the McClung trip is hoped for, and a large attendance of McClung people at the meeting is expected, according to leading citizens of that community.

The delegation will leave the city hall lawn here at 7:45 p. m., according to W. H. Smith, chairman of the public relations committee of the Slaton Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Smith said a good program will be rendered, and that Slaton people are invited to make their plans to visit McClung Friday night.

Lobo Wolves at Johnston Ranch, Not Dangerous

Not so many years ago, Lobo wolves, in large numbers, roamed the prairies of the South Plains. They are dangerous animals, and were menaces to cattle raisers of this section.

Lobo wolves are scarce now, however, and are seldom seen in this section. However, there are two of them—just puppies—at the old Igo Ranch headquarters on the Johnston Ranch Recreational Park, located on the Slaton-Idalou highway, about seven miles from Slaton.

These puppies are not dangerous at all, according to H. L. and Jim Johnston, who had them in Slaton last Friday afternoon. In fact, they said, they are very playful and want to make friends. Folks going to the Johnston Ranch for recreation may see them at any time, the Johnston brothers said.

He plans to further benefit the lake by getting a large shipment of "East-Texas bull-frogs" within the near future. He also is endeavoring to get some red fox squirrels to turn loose in the trees at the lake.

Two Draw is now the scene of many happy fishermen each day, although no big catches have been reported this season, everyone seems to be catching their part of sizeable fish. —Post Dispatch.

Good-Will Visit At New Hope has Large Attendance

Friendship ties between Slaton and the New Hope community, nine miles west of here, were drawn tighter Friday night when 50 Slaton citizens visited that community, meeting with 150 New Hope people in a good-will program at the school building.

J. N. Townsend, principal of the New Hope school, delivered a cordial address of welcome to the Slaton visitors, to which response was made by Horace Hawkins, president, T. A. Worley, Jr., vice president, and L. A. Wilson, secretary of the Slaton Chamber of Commerce, and by W. H. Smith, chairman of the public relations committee of the Slaton Chamber.

Four musical numbers were given by pupils of the New Hope school. Vocal solos were given by Misses Mary Schram and Ophelia Wall, a violin solo was rendered by Casey Fine, of Posey, and Miss Alene Cooksey and Miss Frances Guffin gave a piano duet. Miss Guffin, who is violin teacher in Slaton public schools, has been teaching a class at New Hope during the past several weeks, in addition to her work in the local schools.

H. L. Henderson, J. L. Cassaway and L. A. Wilson, of Slaton, sang a trio, after which Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Clark, of this city, rendered several Hawaiian selections, playing their steel guitars. This feature of the program proved to be highly popular with the crowd, and several encores were required before the pair were allowed to finish.

At the end of the program, ice cream was served, furnished by the Slaton delegation, and cakes were served by the New Hope women.

The meeting ended at 10 o'clock, those attending declaring it to have been a very enjoyable event.

Rotary Program Last Friday had Three Speakers

Three speakers appeared on the luncheon program of Slaton Rotary Club last Friday. Tom J. Abel spoke on "What I Have Learned About Peace Officer"; T. E. Roderick discussed "How the World's News is Gathered and Disseminated"; and C. Lem Sone talked on "The Advantages and Disadvantages of Elective Courses for High School Pupils".

Mr. Abel began his address by saying he had learned from his experience that most people are "in favor of law enforcement if it doesn't affect me and my folks". He declared that the problem of enforcing prohibition laws is one of the worst problems now existing for enforcement officers and said the public would be astonished to know how many prominent people are regularly guilty of violating these laws.

The speaker urged proper home training for children and that proper examples be set by older people, declaring these things would solve the greater part of crime problems that have grown so rapidly among the youth of the land.

Mr. Roderick, in speaking on his subject, reviewed ancient methods of spreading news, and then traced the development of the telegraph since 1844, told of the system of trans-oceanic cables which connect the nations of the world, and referred to radio and other quick means of communication that have revolutionized the world's history in recent years. He said there are now 161 cable stations in the world, which use over 200,000 miles of underwater cables. Great news associations, he stated, are organized to collect, assemble and disseminate the world's news every day, and through the service of these agencies the people of the whole world are in constant and immediate communication with what is happening all over the earth.

C. Lem Sone said elective courses in high schools might not be advisable if it could be known that all high school students would attend college, where they could pursue special studies. For pupils who cannot attend college, elective courses provide means of giving them special training for their life's work, which may mean untold benefit to them, he said. One disadvantage, the speaker declared, is that unless the pupil is guided in his choice of electives by parents and teachers, he may choose courses which will bring him the least benefits in practical life, and which he is not naturally adapted to.

Visitors at the meeting included: Lige Robertson, Hubert L. Allen, and Walter Royalty, of Lubbock; and Phil Davis, of Dallas.

The program for next Friday will feature three speakers and a vocal solo by Lloyd A. Wilson. Walter B. Hestand will talk on "General History of Pure Food Regulations"; Ed B. Carroll will discuss "Problems of a Public Utility Service Man"; and W. H. (Bill) Smith is to speak on "Problems in Railway Transportation Brought About by the Rapid Development of the Automobile".

John W. Hood and Claude F. Anderson, who attended the convention of Rotary International at Dallas last week, were at the meeting here Friday, and promised to give the club a report on the convention at some early date. Abe Kessel, who also attended the convention from the local club, left Dallas late last week on his trip to Europe.

SNAKES ARE SCARCE.

The Johnston boys say that very few snakes have been seen there this spring, and especially, none are to be seen in the lowland canyons.

WE MAKE ERRORS.

It is human to err. That's why lead pencils are equipped with erasers. The editor of the Spearman Reporter and the editor of the Claude News have been talking back to each other on account of the mistakes made in their papers. One says that the other cannot spell, and the other gets back at him by pointing out the typographical errors found in the other's paper. Foolishness!

Perhaps there is no job under the sun, or any other luminary, so exacting, or one that required such an unlimited amount of knowledge of every conceivable subject, as editing a newspaper.

The joke about the doctor burying his mistakes, the lawyer charging double fees for his mistakes, the merchant marking up his mistakes to his customers, the banker charging interest on his mistakes, the congregation being too fast asleep to notice the preacher's mistakes, and the teacher whaling the pupils for his mistakes, and the editor being told by everybody he meets of his mistakes, is funny or not so funny, just as you happen to be provided with a funny bone. But after reading a big stack of exchanges and sizing the papers up, we are prone to conclude that few newspapers, if any, escape without errors—and it is a wonder that more errors are not made.

For instance, take this issue of The Slatonite, count the words, the lines, the paragraphs, the columns, then go to work and write the same amount of matter and see how often you will have to consult the dictionary.

Then suppose you have to do work on the hop in the quickest time possible, with a hundred and one things to bother and interfere while the work is being done. Then suppose you have to hustle to go to press whether you are ready or not, and you will likely be able to form an idea of the woes of the average printshop. It is also a fact that the very best proof readers sometimes fail to catch errors, and there are times when the very best efforts of the proof reader and crack compositor bring tears of rage to the eyes of the editor—after the paper is out and in the mail.

However, we try to avoid error as much as possible, and trust to fate for the rest. Heaven surely has a comfortable seat on the front row for editors—so why worry.

REAL SWORD PLAY IN DOUG'S NEW FILM

To play in a picture with Douglas Fairbanks means real work. To fight with D'Artagnan and his three musketeers means actual combat.

"The Iron Mask," Mr. Fairbanks' newest United Artists Picture, which is coming to the Palace Theatre, Slaton, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, is filled with thrilling scenes of battle. One of the most exciting of these episodes is the fight between the four musketeers, D'Artagnan, Athos, Porthos and Aramis, and the guards of Cardinal Richelieu.

Director Allan Dwan issued a call for the fifty most experienced swordsmen in Hollywood to enact the Cardinal's henchmen. Mr. Fairbanks, Mr. Bary, Mr. Sanford and Mr. Corrado, who play the four loyal musketeers, are expert in the handling of the tapered blades. The fight which they waged was a terrific one.

Many were the bruises which resulted from the fray. The studio's hospital was called upon for arnica, gauze, adhesive tape and iodine, to care for the wounded combatants. Four against fifty seems tremendous odds, but this quartet of gallant guardsmen put up a real battle. The wounds which they inflicted upon their adversaries were minor, but many.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK?

By Edson R. Waite, Shawnee, Oklahoma

The career of Al Rockett, General Manager of Production of the First National Pictures, Inc., of Burbank, California, should be an inspiration to all American boys whose parents are too poor to give them all of the modern advantages in the way of education, etc.

This fine, young man is now earning and receiving a salary of one hundred thousand dollars a year—real money, not stage money, and he is worth it to his company.

Attending high school in Cripple Creek, Colorado, Al was ambitious to pursue a musical career; upon the death of his father, he helped his mother to support his younger brothers, earning money by playing the piano in a Cripple Creek dance hall.

Moving to New York, he worked for various moving picture companies, learning all angles of the business. He conceived the idea of filming the life of Abraham Lincoln; in partnership with his brother, Ray, he organized his company, investing every dollar he had saved, and made desperate efforts to raise the necessary additional capital wherever he could. After surmounting heart-breaking obstacles, the film was produced and secured the medal for the best picture of the year.

Appointed assistant to Richard Rowland, then Vice President and General Manager of the First National in New York, Rockett soon demonstrated unusual talent as a business executive.

In 1927, Rockett was sent to Hollywood as a Supervisor in charge of one of the several First National Companies and was designated to film the war story, "The Patent Leather Kid." The picture, with Dick Barthelmess in the title role and with Al Santell directing, was made at Camp Lewis, Washington, and cost over a million dollars. It was a great success and contributed materially to Rockett's reputation in the industry.

In 1928, Al was made General Manager of Production, with a salary greater than that of the President of the United States.

I prophesy that this sterling young American boy will some day find himself at the very top of the moving picture industry of the United States.

At a recess session of the City Council the same night, they voted unanimously to work with the club ladies and give every aid.—Scurry County Times.

BREAKING UP BROODINESS.

About this time every year, when the summer heat sets in, the hens of most any laying flock are likely to go broody. One factor in maintaining high egg production during the spring and summer months is to break up broody hens as quickly as possible after they become broody.

This is vitally important for two reasons. In the first place, if they are allowed to sit on fertile eggs for even a few hours, the germs will develop, which is one cause of heavy loss in marketing eggs from farms. In the second place, the longer a broody hen is allowed to sit on the nest, the longer it requires to get her back into laying condition, and consequently the greater the loss in egg production. As soon as a hen is observed to remain on the nest at night, she should be removed and placed in a broody coop, where she can be properly fed and watered. The broody coop should have a slat bottom in order that the air may circulate from beneath and thus tend to keep the hen from sitting. The body will be kept cooler and the hen will get over her broodiness. While confined in the coop, she should be fed and watered regularly in order that she may get back into laying condition as quickly as possible.

Of course, the old rule that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure holds good in the case of broodiness as well as anything else. Broodiness is something that can be bred out of a strain of birds by a good breeder, just as winter pause is bred out, and persistency of lay, intensity of lay, and early maturity, are bred in. Breeders cull broody hens on sight. If the broody bird can be caught the first night and be put immediately into the broody coop for 24 or 48 hours, they will usually be over it and get back into lay promptly. However, if they go broody two or three or four days be-

HALE COUNTY FIRST TO PAVE ITS HIGHWAYS

PLAINVIEW.—Thirty-five miles of concrete paving will be laid in Hale county this year, following the letting of the last contract on highway 9 at the May meeting of the state highway commission when a contract was let to Carl Pleasants of Amarillo for the paving of the segment of the road from Hale Center to Abernathy. The contract on the paving from Hale Center through Plainview north to the Swisher county line was let at the April meeting to Cook and Stuckey of Ottawa, Kan.

The grade and drainage structures on highway 28 through Hale county east and west from the Floyd county line to the Lamb county line are being constructed now by McKelvey and Fields and this road will be ready for a hard-surface by the spring of 1930.

This work is part of the program for good roads being accomplished with the proceeds of the million dollar road bond issue voted in Hale county in 1927. It is estimated that after the paving of the 68 miles of state highways, approximately $250,000 will be left for the improvement of important lateral roads in the county. Hale county is the first South Plains county to pave its highways.

The Roswell-Carlsbad, N. M., road is being put into good shape for the summer travel. The road is being graded up and a gravel trench cut preparatory to the surfacing treatment. At the same time the new weed destroyer is having a try-out on the road. Traffic is not interfered with.

DOLORES DEL RIO IN "REVENGE"

DOLORES DEL RIO BARES FEET TO SIDESTEP COLDS.

Dolores Del Rio does not wear any shoes or stockings in any portion of "Revenge," the gypsy story which was produced by Edwin Carewe which opens at the Palace, Slaton, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday.

There is no scene in the entire production that shows the Mexican star with even a pair of sandals.

Dolores is subject to colds so she decided the best thing to do regarding her stockingless limbs was to keep them bare on and off the set. Consequently the star did not wear stockings at any time while she was engaged in the "Revenge" film.

A short pair of socks to protect her feet is all she wore when she finished for the day. These socks were made of various colors to match her dresses. They reached three inches above her shoe tops.

"Revenge" is probably the most colorful production Edwin Carewe has yet offered the public with Miss Del Rio as the star. It is laid in the Carpathian Mountains of Roumania and shows the Mexican actress as a tamer of wild bears.

Finis Fox adapted "Revenge" from a short story by Konrad Bercovici, called "The Bear Tamer's Daughter".

THOUGHTS ON DISCIPLINE.

I have said before that I believed in discipline. I believe it is a necessary adjunct to human existence, and a benefit to both parent and child. It benefits the parents by forcing them to give more consideration to the principles they wish to inculcate. It benefits the child by better fitting it to meet its followings in later life.

It takes so much discipline for the male child to make a man of him and fit him for properly meeting and dealing with his fellowmen. If he

As Santa Fe Sees West Texas Towns

Following are items, taken from "The Earth," Santa Fe railway system publication:

OLTON IS GROWING.—Olton, Lamb County, is growing rapidly. More than 100 farms were started in that locality in 1928. It is a good cotton country. Other important crops grown by most farmers in their diversification scheme are corn, wheat and sudan grass. Many farmers are engaging in dairying, hog raising and poultry raising.

NEW WEEKLY.—Kress, on the Santa Fe Railway in Swisher County, has a new weekly newspaper called the Kress Texan. H. H. Drake is the publisher and editor.

BEAT THIS EGG.—When Mrs. R. B. Hicks of Farmers Branch, Dallas County, went to her henhouse to gather eggs she wondered whether an ostrich had visited her premises. Investigation proved that one of her full-blooded single-comb Black Minorca hens had laid an egg weighing eight ounces. The egg measured eight inches in circumference the short way and nine and one-half inches the long way.

GRAIN TESTING.—A standard grain protein testing laboratory will be installed at Lubbock in time to test the winter wheat crop. The winter wheat which is produced on the plains of northwest Texas is very hard and high in protein, the kind of wheat millers pay a bonus for. Until recently the farmers had no way of getting their wheat tested and the new laboratory will be of value to the wheat producer in the future.

PIN MONEY.—Mrs. Joe Wolf, of Snyder, Scurry County, in 1928 sold from six cows 2,239 pounds of butter for $993.41, and in addition sold $104.30 worth of cream; total receipts $1,097.71. She spent $443.98 for feed during the year, leaving her net return $653.73. In addition she supplied her family table.

CREAMERY STATIONS.—A modern new creamery is in operation in Slaton. It is owned by the Red River Creameries, Inc., of Frederick, Oklahoma. Farmers and business men have bought stock in the creamery. About fifty cream buying stations will be established over the South Plains.

INTERESTING REPORT.—Produce dealers in Snyder report that the cream and poultry business is growing. One firm reports that on one Saturday this spring, it paid $4,110.30 to 391 customers who brought cream, eggs, and poultry.

PROSPEROUS BRADY.—Brady, on the Santa Fe Railway in McCulloch County, has completed fifty blocks of paving and is planning for more work of the kind. Brady is the center of a fine farming and livestock country. Crop conditions in Brady's trade territory are excellent.

T-P. OIL CO., HELPS IN RECORD FLIGHT—When a couple of Fort Worth aviators named Reg Robbins and Jim Kelly dropped into the Texas Pacific Coal and Oil Company offices about a month ago to see whether that concern would furnish oil and gas for a flight calculated to break the Question Mark's record, company officials weren't excited much but said, "Sure, go ahead."

The Kelly-Robbins team went ahead and Saturday night, May 25, they cracked the three-motored, five-manned army Question Mark's sustained flight record to smithereens. "Columbus took a chance and so did we," T. P. officials said late Saturday, "and just looked what happened." But they added, "It wasn't such a chance at that; those two fellows looked as if they meant business."

The oil company kept an official of the firm at the municipal airport throughout the flight to see that nothing was lacking which the two fliers might need. The company told Kelly and Robbins it would provide gas, oil and rocker arm grease as long as the plane remained aloft.

In short, the company, a Texas concern headquartered in Fort Worth, helped make the flight possible. TP gasoline, TP aero motor oil and TP rocker arm grease were used throughout the record-breaking flight. Officials of the company were delighted Saturday night, May 25.

"Rocker arm trouble was what caused the Question Mark to come down," they pointed out, "and those fellows didn't use our grease." They showed a note from Robbins to William Fuller, manager of the airport, which stated in part that "that rocker arm grease of the TP Company sure does stay in there."

"Rocker arm grease! Rocker arm grease!" officials chanted delightfully. The company maintains an experimental laboratory here as well as a test plane—a Ryan Brougham powered with a J5 Wright Whirlwind motor, similar to the "Fort Worth".

If Kelly and Robbins stay up there a year," the oil company official declared, "we'll still pour oil and gas into their plane."—Ft. Worth Star-Telegram.

PROFITS ESSENTIAL TO SERVICE.

Just as it is true that nothing is free, so it is true that any business, to be successful, must be operated upon a basis of profit. Public utilities are no exception to the rule even though engaged in serving the public universally and continually.

"As a business, the utility is required to produce enough revenue to pay the operating costs for the quality of service which it can merchandise readily, to pay wages to capital sufficient to insure a ready flow of new capital as needed, and to provide some surplus," say M. S. Sloan, President, New York Edison Company. "It cannot be a successful and desirable public servant unless it is a business success."

A GREAT EMPLOYER.

The electrical industry, according to an authoritative estimate, employs over 950,000 persons in the field of power engineering alone.

This total would be appreciably increased if it included employees of electrified street railways, men engaged in maintaining and operating factory motors, workers in private plants not connected with manufacturing establishments, and technical men, employed in radio broadcasting and telephone and telegraph communication.

This is a phase of the electric industry, developed by private initiative, that its opponents never stress. Our prosperity and progress is largely the result of high wages and high standard of living this basic industry has made possible.

McAtee Wins in Speaking Contest and the time required to give each talk, were considered in awarding the decisions.

"The contestants and the subjects they chose to speak on were as follows: Worland (Peter) McAtee, "The Aeroplane, Today and Tomorrow"; James McCloskey, "Cancellation of World War Debts"; Walter Beach, "Athletics as Part of College Education"; Doland Blackwell, "Equal Rights for Women"; Joseph Maguire, "Should America Disarm"; John O'Neill, "Equal Rights for Women"; John Raffaelli, "Prohibition"; Claude Blanchette, "Equal Rights for Women"; Leopoldo Duran, "Athletics as Part of College Education"; and Charles Brogan, "Advantages of a College Education".

"The Rev. Joseph Maguire, C. S. C., vice-president of the University, in commenting on the extemporaneous speaking contest, said he thought it was a success.

"I was agreeably surprised by the showing made by the boys who took part. The idea of holding such contests is very good, in my opinion, and I would like to see another held next year."

"Elmore Borchers, professor of public speaking, also expressed the belief that the contest had been a success.

"Much good was derived by all who took part," he said, "because it showed them just what they really could do in the way of extemporaneous speaking. The value of such contests lies in the development of an ability to think on one's feet. I am sure all the boys profited by it."

"The contest for Preparatory students, which was originally scheduled for May 15, was postponed, and the date on which it will be held has not yet been announced. This contest will follow the same rules as the college contest with the exception that only ten subjects will be selected from, and the prizes are ten, six and four dollars for first, second and third places, respectively."
