How to Raise Poultry

By Dr. L. D. LeGear, V. S., St. Louis, Mo.

Dr. LeGear is a graduate of the Omsker Veterinary College, 1892. Thirty-six years of veterinary practice on diseases of live stock and poultry. Eminent authority on poultry and stock raising. Nationally known poultry breeder. Noted author and lecturer.

ARTICLE XIV WHEN EGG-MAKERS GO ON A STRIKE

Broody Hens Represent an Economic Loss When Not Needed for Hatching—Harsh and Cruel Measures Not Needed to Overcome Broodiness.

Editor's Note—This is another story in a series of 52 stories on poultry raising written by the well known national poultry authority, Dr. L. D. LeGear, V. S., of St. Louis. The entire series will appear in this paper. Our readers are urged to read them carefully and clip them out for future reference.

In a recent radio talk, Raymond Hitchcock stated that even though he had called all his hens together and scolded them severely, they still refused to lay any eggs for him. Not many people would employ the famous comedian's method for trying to get eggs but many of the ways used to break hens of broodiness are just as ridiculously ineffective. It is really important that better ways of overcoming broodiness should be known. A broody hen is an unprofitable hen especially where incubators do all the hatching. Consequently the sooner her broodiness can be broken up the sooner she can begin once more to earn her board and lodging.

It is a mistake to frighten a broody hen by tying red ribbons to her tail, plunging her into cold water, or confining her in a closed box without food, water or light. Such methods belong to the dark ages of poultry raising. They do not actually cure broodiness but only put the hen in poor flesh and health. The only way to get a hen out of this condition is to get her mind off the subject, so to speak, so she will once more begin eating and drinking in normal fashion. One good way to accomplish this is to confine one or more broody hens in a small coop with a vigorous male.

Broodiness can also be easily and humanely overcome through the use of broody coops. The important thing in using such a coop is to get the broody hen into it the very first day she shows any signs of that condition. If this is done she will forget her broodiness in less than half the time that will be needed if she is allowed to stay on the nest, two, three or four days. The longer broodiness is allowed to continue the harder it is to overcome and the greater will be the loss of egg production. I shall describe two broody coops that I have found exceptionally effective.

For just one hen, make a coop 2 by 2 by 2 feet. The sides are to be of slats for ventilation, and the top solid for protection. Using a single rope, or wire fastened to the center of the top, hang this coop from any convenient rafter or branch of a tree. Such a coop will sway with every gust of wind and with every step the hen takes. That will keep her so busy trying to retain her balance that she soon forgets her broodiness.

The second form of broody coop I wish to describe may be used with good effect, when a number of hens all decide to go on a strike at about the same time. This coop should be 3 by 4 or 4 by 5 feet and two feet deep. The sides should be made of slats or poultry netting and the floor either slatted or solid. A good roof should extend far enough on each side to give protection from the rain. This coop should be at least 2 or 3 feet off the ground to allow for good circulation of air all around the hens. This is very important, as broody hens should be kept cool. From three to six hens may be placed in this coop and kept in it a day and night. It should be put in a cool, shady spot instead of the sun.

Plenty of good fed and clean water should be kept within easy reach of broody hens the whole time they are confined in a broody coop. This is very important and should not be neglected under any circumstances.

Hens so confined constantly fuss among themselves, which tends to make them forget their broodiness. Seeing other fowls at liberty also helps considerably to speed up the end of broody spells. This method should have the desired effect in from three to five days. It is a particularly good method not only because of its effectiveness but because it is absolutely humane.

Better than any method of curing broodiness is the plan for eliminating it, now being successfully used by many poultry raisers. With careful breeding it is possible to develop a strain of non-sitters or hens that will not go broody. Only hens that do not go broody should be used for breeding and if care is used in selecting just the right hens, broodiness can be practically eliminated in a few generations.

A broody hen, unless needed for hatching eggs, is simply a nuisance and an unnecessary nuisance at that. It is so easy to break up the habit there is no reason why it should be tolerated and a great many reasons that every poultry raiser knows well why it should not be tolerated. But to be successful, one must not make the mistake of using harsh methods once so much in vogue.

The right way is always the cheapest and best. That is why I recommend sane, humane methods of curing broodiness. They work along scientific lines by not trying to scare the hen out of her broodiness, but by replacing the brooding idea with something else. This method brings 100 per cent success because it leaves the hen in excellent physical condition ready and willing to resume her profitable job of laying eggs. Diplomacy and gentle methods are just as superior to force when dealing with feathered strikers as they usually are with the human variety.

Dear Sir:— I want to write you something about your medicine.

I have been suffering from stomach trouble and Pellagra for twelve years. I have tried many Doctors, and got no relief, and saw one of your advertisements in March, 1929. I sent for a treatment of your Rx 139, for stomach trouble and Pellagra, and I am in better health than I have been for twelve years. I can recommend your medicine to anyone who is suffering with stomach trouble and Pellagra. I would have written sooner but I wanted to know that it was doing me good, before I said anything. You can use this letter as reference or anyway you see fit. My Post Office address is Scottsboro, Ala., R. No. 3, Box 91. I am an ordained Minister, a member of the North Ala., S.A.C. Conference. Citizens' Military Training Camp at Fort Sam Houston

Using the explanation, demonstration and imitation method of instruction, the veteran regular organizations of the 9th Infantry, 12th Field Artillery and 2nd Signal Company, supplemented by reserve officers of the 90th Division detailed to assist in the conduct of the camp, are rapidly whipping the student companies into the proper semblance of military units. A progressive schedule of military drill with daily reviews of the previous day's work, constant correction of errors and repetition for the more awkward students, has begun to produce marked improvement throughout all organizations. The spirit of competition, injected into the whole camp program, has accomplished the desired purpose of stimulating the student's normal longing to excel. Recognizing the fact that the average American youth possesses boundless enthusiasm and an unlimited reservoir of energy for participation in the things he likes to do, camp officials are of the opinion that the success of the camp, viewed from all angles, is dependant upon their ability to interest the students in the camp activities and secure from them a wholehearted response.

The extent to which this has been achieved in this camp was readily apparent to the several hundred visitors to Foch Field Wednesday afternoon as they observed the student companies under their own cadet officers march for the first time in review before Col. G. McD. Weeks, Camp Executive Officer, in a manner that would have been creditable to much more seasoned troops. The best lines in the parade, as the student companies swept by the reviewing stand, were accredited to Co. LX, commanded by Capt. L. H. Barnhill.

Daily rating of companies on the cleanliness and neatness of quarters, kitchens, company barracks area, and the appearance and percentage of attendance at military and athletic formations will be made by Maj. Paul Murray, senior instructor.

Maj. L. A. Lavature, camp surgeon, reports the general health of the students as splendid. Inspection by his staff of medical officers, twice daily, insures the careful observance of camp sanitary regulations by all companies. The number of students report on sick call is constantly diminishing, according to Maj. Lavature.

The athletic activities are considered of great value to the student in keeping him fit and developing individual initiative. For this reason each student is required to enroll for one of the several sports offered.

Preparation for the track and field meet on July 3rd is receiving serious attention by high school and college track and field stars enrolled in the camp from every section of the state. Medals for first, second and third place in all events will be awarded at the close of the camp.

STILL RED-BLOODED AMERICANS
Some persons claim that young people today are short in their moral standards. This is a mistake. They may be freer in their actions but they are better informed on social pitfalls than were their brothers and sisters a generation ago. We read about slick-haired shies and flapping flappers but we overlook the army of wholesome young Americans who are interested in manly and womanly sports.

Artificial civilization has not taken away from the majority of us our delight in the primitive things of life—camping, hunting, fishing, horseback riding, mountain climbing, etc. A large percentage of magazines and books are devoted to stories of action, adventure, frontier happenings and deeds of heroism.

"What is there about pistols that appeals to the red-blooded individual?" asks Major W. D. Frazer, in the American Rifleman. "Is it an appeal to love of beautifully finished, perfectly functioning instruments of precision that gives the urge to buy these alluring mechanisms? Or is it an inherent love to excel in an unusual game of skill, that induces men to devote time, energy and perseverance to a sport whose mastery frequently carries with it a romantic distinction?"

HINTS FOR THE HOME.

With summer days here, much thought is being given to the best way to protect summer foods. And more than usual interest seems to center around automatic refrigeration.

Small wonder—slaves to the ice-cream freezer that we are! Quite aside from the necessity of protecting baby's milk and commonplace provisions—who could remain indifferent to the prospect of endless frozen dainties had without even a turn of the crank?

With the growth of automatic refrigeration which brings it closer to the average household, the latest development perhaps being the combined stove and refrigerator, both of which are operated by gas, at a low cost per month for refrigeration which makes this combination a real economy.

New home-makers just outfitting the home find the combined units space and time-saving, and a great convenience. For established homes with perfectly good gas stoves, the refrigeration unit may be had separately.

CHANGING OIL IN THE CRANK CASE

The importance of crankcase changes should not be minimized—even when good oils are used—Many oils, like Gulf Supreme Motor Oil would go many miles beyond the danger point if there were no foreign substances accumulated in the crank case.

Excessive carbon, road dust, particles of metal and unburnt gas deteriorates oil in the crank case more than the actual wear of even the highest speed motors.

Gulf chemists did a good job when they succeeded in blending paraffine and naphthene base crudes into a servicable lubricant—possessing the good qualities to be found in these crudes.

Don't neglect the change—your motor will give double service if this is done periodically—or after long trips extending farther than five hundred miles.

COLLEEN MOORE GLORIFIES THE "WHOOPEE" MAKERS

Colleen Moore, typifying the 1929 version of the modern American girl, comes to the Palace Theatre, Slaton, Sunday and Monday in her newest First National picture, "Why Be Good?". according to an announcement by the theatre management.

Always a favorite with Slaton theatre goers, Miss Moore undoubtedly will draw more than her customary throng of followers for "Why Be Good?" is regarded as one of the most entertaining pictures in which she has ever appeared. The story which was written especially for her by Carey Wilson, deals both humorously and seriously with the age-old conflict of ideas between present and past generations. The broadmindedness of young America, is "necking", sensuous dancing, brief skirts, hip flasks and irresponsibility, so often the subject of horrified discussion by middle age, is pictured just as it exists. Miss Moore is seen as an up-to-the-minute young working girl, whose careless attitude is tempered with a fund of common sense typical of the girls of today.

Opposite the piquant star of "Why Be Good?" is Neil Hamilton, whose portrayal of Digby in "Beau Geste" won him a host of admirers. Edward Martindel, Bodil Rosing, Louis Natchaux, Lincoln Stedman and John St. Polis also appear prominently in Miss Moore's support in this modern comedy-drama.

"Why Be Good?" was produced by John McCormick, with William A. Seiter directing.

Lubbock School Teacher Endorses Orgatone

"I've Taken One Bottle of Orgatone And Feel Like a Different Person," Says Mrs. Schnitzer.

Mrs. Fred Schnitzer, of 2006-9th Street, Lubbock, Texas, who has been a resident here for several years and a school teacher, made a remarkable statement regarding Orgatone.

"About two years ago" she continued, "I started having indigestion and it has grown steadily worse all the time. I was very, very nervous, and was severely constipated, and was forced to take strong laxatives most all the time. I had very little appetite and didn't eat much on account of the food souring on my stomach and causing gas to form. I was just in a run-down condition and was so nervous, couldn't sleep at night and always seemed to be tired and worn out."

"Orgatone was recommended to me by a friend and I saw where it was advertised so highly, I decided to try it. I have just taken one bottle and certainly feel the difference. Nothing I ever tried before taking Orgatone benefited me as Orgatone has. I am getting wonderful results. My indigestion doesn't bother me any more, and I sleep like a log every night. I have a good appetite and eat anything I want. I am not nervous and restless any more, and know that Orgatone has done me a world of good. I feel if I hadn't taken it I would have had a nervous breakdown. I am glad to recommend it to anyone suffering as I did."

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called patent or secret remedy but a new scientific bile treatment containing no alcohol or other false stimulating drugs and is sold in Slaton by the Teague Drug Store, who are direct laboratory agents. Adv.

Congress Members Have Coffee Shop in Capitol

Representative Louis Ludlow, of Indiana, likes his coffee. He is shown here patronizing the new Coffee Shop in the Capitol while he reads letters from his constituents.

WASHINGTON.—So that the nation's law-makers can have their coffee and a bite to eat without the formality of a regular meal, the House of Representatives has opened a coffee shop in the Capitol. It is in the room formerly used as the private dining room of the Speaker just across the hall from the House restaurant.

Since Congress usually convenes at noon, many members find it inconvenient to spare the time to eat in the regular dining room, Representative Underhill, of Massachusetts, sets, chairman of the Committee on Accounts, explained. They like to take a cup of well-brewed coffee and a sandwich or a piece of pie and it is for that reason the Coffee Shop was opened with its counter and stools and urns.

Then, too, some members drop into the Coffee Shop for a cup of coffee or a glass of iced coffee in the middle of the afternoon.

"Most of the members of the House like their coffee," said Frank Verdi, who manages the restaurant service for the Government. "The new shop is proving quite popular."

THE FUTURE OF ELECTRICITY

In the opinion of experts the present demand for electric service should be trebled in the next ten or fifteen years.

A survey of the past quarter-century in electrical history gives more than adequate grounds for such a forecast. Practically all the vast progress that has electrified thousands of communities, many of them small and isolated, and revolutionized the life of our wage-earners has been made in twenty-five years.

Yet the field open for possible

The triumphant result of more than three years of experimentation in talking pictures on the part of William Fox and his vast organization will be shown beginning Sunday at the Lindsey Theatre, Lubbock, when "In Old Arizona," the first feature length Fox Movietone drama will make its premiere locally and delight its audiences—though that phrase is probably too mild.

Based on a thrilling and romantic story of the old southwest in the late '90s, its main incidents center about the escapades and pursuit of a notorious bandit, "Cisco Kid," his love affair with a fiery half-caste girl and her affair with a young Irish cavalry sergeant sent to capture him.

Thrilling and interesting though they be, they are secondary to the refreshing novelty for patrons of hearing their favorite players speak their lines. That means more than a score of them, for the principals, Edmund Lowe, Dorothy Burgess and Warner Baxter, are supported by the most brilliant cast that ever has appeared on the screen, headed by Farrell MacDonald, Ivan Linow, Joe Brown, Frank Campeau, Tom Santschi, Roy Stewart and James Marcus.

Those who have seen "In Old Arizona" acclaim it the prime achievement of the Fox studios, notable for its many successes. The direction is the joint work of Raoul Walsh and Irving Cummings.

development has barely been touched. Electrification of homes and factories is far from complete and new uses for power are being discovered almost daily.

Mass production and distribution of power, through the medium of interconnected electric systems, serving hundreds of communities and countless homes and factories, has steadily raised the quality and efficiency of service while decreasing the cost. The day of the small plant giving un dependable and frequently interrupted service to a few customers at a relatively high cost, is over.

No imagination can accurately foretell the future. Uses of power will be evolved that as yet are undreamed of. The home and factory and farm will reach standards of prosperity and efficiency that far exceed anything within present human knowledge. The electrical age is still gathering momentum and moving forward at a dazzling pace.

Shipments of helium gas from the Federal plant near Amarillo are being made in cars especially built for the U. S. Army Air Corps.

Jack Dempsey announces that he might fight again for a million dollars. That strikes us as just another way of announcing a permanent retirement from the ring.

NEWS OF WASHINGTON'S DEATH.

The news of the death of George Washington, which occurred December 14, 1799, was first published in what is now Ohio, January 7, 1800. The paper publishing it was the Western Spy and Hamilton Gazette, of Cincinnati, and a copy of it is in the possession of the Historical and Philosophical Society of Ohio at Cincinnati. A paper was then published at Chillicothe, but it is not likely that the news reached it earlier. The news of the death filled a column and a half of the Spy, and the page was surrounded by a faint black border.

Three weeks from Washington to Cincinnati is not rapid news transmission in these days of telegraph, telephone and radio, but must have been a good record then. The Ulster Gazette, published at Kingston, N. Y., did not print the news till January 4, 1800, and that issue has been considered so exceptional that thousands of facsimiles have been printed, some of them having been sold as copies of the original edition—Ohio Newspaper.

Rodeo to Feature Big Celebration at Amarillo, July 3-5

WILD WEST PERFORMANCE ARRANGED FOR ENTERTAINMENT OF VISITORS.

Miller and King's Master Rodeo, to be staged at the Texan Ball Park, which has a seating capacity of 7,500 under the auspices of the Tri-State Fair, at Amarillo, July 3, 4 and 5, is offering some of the greatest exhibitions of wild-west performances ever staged in the Southwest.

Due to the fact that the Panhandle Plains wheat harvest will be on, President Wilbur C. Hawk has arranged for night as well as afternoon programs, thus enabling all farmers and business men to avail themselves of the entertainment.

Texan Ball Park has been equipped with 26 flood lights and other lighting effects will make the big arena in front of the grandstand as light as day.

Included among some of the world's star performers will be Vaughan Craig Johnson, known as the "Sweetheart of American Rodeo"; Tommy Kirnan, champion trick rider and roper; his wife, Bea Kirnan, known as the favorite horse lady of America; William King, Colorado's best known performer, and many others.

The price range for the Rodeo is announced at $1, and box seats, $1.50.

Among the many features to be offered will be wild cow milking contests, bronc riding, calf roping, bulldogging, maverick race, brahma steer riding, trick riding and roping, high jumping horses and high schooled horses.

On the night of the Fourth of July a magnificent fireworks display has been arranged. This feature alone will be spectacular.

Officials of the Tri-State Fair expect the largest gathering in Amarillo on July 3, 4 and 5, and the Rodeo management is emphatic in their promise to give a real entertainment. There will be a good many people going from here to attend both day and night performances.

CHURCH OF CHRIST.

The solemn charge to every preacher is to preach the Word, preach the Gospel. When a man gets so liberal that he cannot do that, he is too liberal to be in the pulpit. When a man tells you that he is not going to preach any doctrine, you know that he is not going to preach the Gospel. We should teach the doctrine of Christ, abide therein, for in so doing we both save ourselves and those who hear us.

Our house was almost full last Lord's day. Be there next Lord's day, we have some special announcements. A pleasant place to worship.

Daily Output Is Reduced by Short Pasture

Dairymen often fail to realize that pastures grow short and that the little grass that cows do find, is parched and has lost most of its food value, according to feeding experts at the College of Agriculture, University of Wisconsin.

Generally the cows are turned out into the pasture after milking-time morning and night, with no thought as to their feed. Often, too, the pasture is so far from the busy farmer hurrying to harvest his crops while the weather is favorable, that he neglects to visit the feeding places which mean so much to his cattle, to determine just how poor the pastures have become.

Most dairymen, however, realize that this is the time of the year when feeding is most important, not only to prevent a sudden slump in milk production, but also to build up the cows before they go into winter quarters. Experience has proven that a cow fed well in summer will yield well in fall and winter, and farmers who take care to watch their pastures will begin to feed a supplementary grain ration as soon as the grass begins to show signs of becoming scant or parched.

During this time of poor pasture a ration rich in protein is necessary. All first class pasture is fairly high in protein, but it is important to remember that midsummer grass is low in protein as well as being poor in quality, and as the summer season advances and the grass becomes scanty, more high-protein feed should be included in the grain mixture.

A good ration which is used by many farmers to supplement pasture feeding is ground corn, barley or hominy 200 pounds, ground oats 200 pounds, wheat bran 100 pounds and linseed meal 100 pounds. For cows producing one pound or more of fat daily, feed one pound of grain per day for each 4 or 5 pounds of milk.

The Round Rock cheese plant, established in 1928, did a $100,000 business its first year and is paying farmers of that section $10,000 a month for milk. Its output won second prize in the National Dairy Show and with a grade of 93.75 outscored many fine entries from Wisconsin.

POLITICAL PARTIES.

What is the difference between the Republican and Democratic parties in regard to the national policies for which they stand? Certainly, this question cannot be answered by analyzing the memberships of the two parties. Both have within their ranks prohibitionists and anti-prohibitionists, supporters and opponents of protective tariff, those for and against business monopolies, those who advocate a Department of Education and those who are opposed to the establishment of such a department, and so on in regard to practically every national question.

The leaders of the two parties, aware of this division of opinion within the ranks, apparently, have learned to steer clear of what are termed controversial matters within the party. In seeking to maintain harmony, they defeat the main purpose of the party—that of an agency through which the people may express their will in government administration—by attempting to ignore national questions that are of vital interest to the public.

A political party has been termed a science of government, but when it no longer sets forth definite issues, is no longer a medium through which the citizens are given a chance to define the policies of their government, then it has outlived its usefulness and becomes only a plaything in the hands of politicians, to a certain group a ticket to the gravy train. Yet, a party that adopts and supports well defined policies is a necessary element in a representative form of government and is essential to the welfare of that government.

Those who believe in America for Americans, restrictive immigration, public education, and similar policies, or those who take the opposite view, should have the opportunity of electing men to the administrative offices of the government who, they can be assured, will carry out these policies. If parties already in existence do not offer such an opportunity, then they have the recourse of forming a new party.

THE HYPOCRITE.

There are two kinds of hypocrites. One kind, and they are in the majority, hopes for gain by posing, and the other acts from a distorted sense of duty. The anti-moral attitude for a great number of people is responsible for the latter class of hypocrites. And it is with this attitude I wish to deal more than with the hypocrite.

I have often heard anathemas hurled at moral men, as though they were unclean lepers. This attitude, of course, is illogical and leads to moral decay in any community where it predominates. And these communities are not scarce as one might imagine. The most conspicuous was the community in which I landed when I arrived in Texas. I met many fine old people there, and the young men were something like an average, but there were some young men about as bad as they get.

There was a fine old lady there who was the leader in both social and religious affairs. I had always tried to behave as I thought a young man should, and felt proud of the name I generally had in consequence. But when that grand old lady talked to me she said, "You are classed as a model young man, and I have profound respect for young men who conduct themselves in such a manner; but"—and that "but" was as big as the side of a brick wall—"you are more detrimental to the community than the worst rowdy or scapegrace. You have more influence, etc."

Well, I didn't think that was very encouraging for young men to be models of rectitude; and told her so, after a seige of that kind of arguments.

I heard many young men in that community say, and I heard it in others too, "Oh, well, what's the use, we don't get any credit for being good anyway, just as well go the whole hog."

After telling the good old lady that her arguments were illogical, discouraging, she turned her batteries on an older man, a man of family, who was a prince of good fellows. I want to cite the result, and explain the why of the above named latter class of hypocrites in another issue.

Fly time is here, I'm sad to say, So I would add a fly-specked lay on

SAY—LISTEN.

A minister in a certain town in Alabama took permanent leave of his congregation in the following manner:

"Brothers and Sisters, I come to say goodbye. I don't think God loves this church, because none of you ever die. I don't think you love each other, because I never marry any of you. I don't think you love me, because you have not paid my salary. Your donations are mouldy fruit and wormy apples, and "by their fruits ye shall know them"

"Brethren, I am going away to a better place. I have been called to be chaplain of a penitentiary. "Where I go ye cannot come, but I go to prepare a place for you," and may the Lord have mercy on your souls."—Exchange.

HABIT.

Two students were discussing the life of an unselfish woman who in her declining years numbers her friends as legion. She is known and loved by hundreds of students on this campus.

"I wouldn't mind getting old, as she has; I wouldn't mind growing old if my life would be as full of love and satisfaction as hers is now."

It is certain that sometime in your life you have thought of some great life you would like to emulate. He or she was your ideal and you wanted to have the same fine and noble character, and make that person's traits yours.

School is the place where we choose our habits. We can choose the habits that will drag us down to a lower level as the years come on.

It may be your intention to follow one course of action while in school and an entirely different course after leaving, but by the very nature of things this is very improbable if not impossible. If you are a loafer in school then you will be a loafer out in life's great school. If you seek the low, the vile and the contemptible things now, your life will be fashioned after this tendency as the years roll on.

If on the other hand you apply yourself vigorously to the work you have to do, the habit of work will follow you through life and be a blessing. If you seek to cultivate the spiritual side of your nature and form good habits it will be a benediction to you in later life. If you seek to form those habits that are ennobling the coming years will be golden years and finally the man or woman you want to be will emerge out of the seeming maze.

Get away from the crowd and "check up" on yourself. Ascertain from original sources if you are the kind of boy or girl your father hopes you are and your mother believes you to be. Then if you are not measuring up to their ideal and your own, plan deliberately the habits you must eliminate and the habits you must acquire—then assemble together the nerve and "grit" requisite to hold your course as you have planned it, and you are truly the master of your fate.

If you systematically plan and execute a program of self-development based on broad, general lines, your life will grow. Sometimes the beacon, which is your ideal, may blur, but sufficient light will remain to guide, and out of it all will come a new life—a life for which no apologies need be made.

"It takes great strength to bring your life up square, to your accepted thought and hold it there."—Houstonian.

NEWS OF OUR NEIGHBORS.

Anton.
The construction of a $40,000 addition to the Anton school building is progressing nicely, and will be ready for occupancy by the time school opens this fall.

A newspaper, to be known as the Anton News, was started here last week. It will be operated by E. P. Reavis, recently of Hope, New Mexico.

Sudan.
$50,000 worth of bonds voted some months ago for installation of a waterworks system in Sudan have been sold to the Panhandle Construction Company, of Lubbock, and work of installation will begin shortly.

Muleshoe.
Business men here are enthusiastically sponsoring a better cow campaign.

A recent check-up shows that the bulk of trade in Bailey county is now being transacted in Muleshoe.

The Cone Grain Co., of Lubbock, is constructing another grain elevator in Muleshoe.

Olton.
Farmers of this section are interested in organizing a co-operative cotton gin.

A check-up of the storm damage here last week, while revealing much loss, yet indicates that loss principally due to poorly constructed buildings.

Wheat harvesting in this section is now in full blast. Recent rains indicate there will be a good yield per acre.

Levelland.
Three new brick buildings are in process of construction here, being erected by G. T. Adams, J. T. Hart and Carl Rattliff.

R. T. Hooks has purchased the City Drug Store of J. O. Lewis. Efforts are being made to locate a creamery here.

Floydada.
Floydada is to have free delivery of mail by Sept. 1st, serving 49 blocks in the city.

Anson.
Anson is doing a great deal of building. A theatre with a seating capacity of 550 is to be erected at an early date. The plans call for a modern theatre, three entrances and the foyer of tile. The floor will be of cement and tile. The dimensions for the building will be 30x20 feet.

Big Spring.
Big Spring's $55,000 Reed building which contains seven stores on the ground floor, and a twenty-five room hotel on the second floor, is nearing completion. Other buildings that are also nearing completion are the Alta Vista Apartment House, the Studebaker plant and the six-story Petroleum building.

Midland.
Midland recently opened the tenth city addition that has been added to the town since it became a thriving oil city two and a half years ago.

Wink.
Wink is building for the future more substantial proportions. Some of the latest accomplishments are the securing of a new Vitaphone Theatre and the construction of a $225,000 school building with an auditorium seating capacity of 650.

Brownfield.
Brownfield is rushing its street paving. It is thought that the bonds which were recently voted will provide for the paving of several additional blocks.

Silverton.
Silverton's new high school building will cost $80,000, and will be completed by August 15.

FEEDING COWS.

High-producing cows rarely if ever get enough feed for their requirements on first class pasture; furthermore very few pastures are first class; therefore such cows need grain in addition to pasture. Cows on pasture when producing more than 20 pounds of milk daily, should be given 1 pound of grain to each 4 to 6 pounds of milk produced. The grain may be a mixture of ordinary farm grains, such as corn, oats, wheat bran, or barley, and should always be ground. For cows producing more than 30 pounds of milk daily the grain mixture should contain one high protein concentrate, such as an oil meal; otherwise the ration will be too low in protein in comparison with the carbohydrates and fats. Cows producing less than 20 pounds of milk do well on good pasture with no additional feed. They may produce a little more milk if fed some grain but the increased flow of milk does not ordinarily pay for the grain.

CHEMISTS AND AUTOMOTIVE ENGINEERS AGREE.

Automotive Engineers agree that a blended oil is the best for the modern motor—High compression motors with their smaller combustion chamber do not function well if coated with carbon—many oils that give excellent lubrication are loaded with carbon and soon fill the chamber and collect under valve seating and greatly reduce the efficiency of a perfectly good engine.

Gulf Refining Chemists have succeeded in combining the best properties of the paraffine and naphthene base crude oil into a perfect blend—This new oil possesses the goodness of both the cruds—resisting heat to a high degree and at the same time leaving considerable less carbon in the combustion chamber.

RAILROADS GIVE GOOD SERVICE

The people who ask for reductions in the cost of railroad service are often the ones who support proposed legislation which would add to the expense of operation.

In various states, bills limiting the length of trains, the working hours of employees, the installation of so-called "additional safety devices" and the like are suggested. Apparently their sponsors fail to understand that each new bill, if passed, would cause the railroads to spend hundreds of thousands of dollars which must be paid by the customers.

In the past few years railroads have immensely improved the speed and quality of service, and their safety record is not exceeded by any industry.

In spite of burdensome legislation and the highest taxes of any railroads in the world, our lines have provided the best service at the lowest rates.

Legislators would do well to consider the old maxim about 'riding a willing horse to death.'

India had in 1925 some 613,969 acres under opium.

FELT BAD AFTER EATING

"FOUR YEARS ago, I suffered with heart-burn and bilious indigestion. Whatever I ate disagreed with me. Gas on my stomach made me very uncomfortable. My tongue was coated and my color was bad. I needed a good laxative, and so my mother-in-law gave me some Black-Draught and told me to take it. I found it helped me very much, so I bought it for myself. Seems it was the very thing I needed. It is a fine family remedy, and I use it when I need something for constipation.

"I also give Black-Draught to my children whenever they need something for colds or upset stomachs. Our whole family takes a Black-Draught."—Mrs. G. C. Leary, 103 North Alston Ave., Durham, N. C.

Thrilling Speed

and flashing acceleration!

The COACH $595

Among all the delightful performance characteristics of the Outstanding Chevrolet—none is creating more widespread enthusiasm than its thrilling speed and flashing acceleration!

The great new six-cylinder valve-in-head engine responds to the accelerator with an eagerness that is literally amazing. Touring speeds are negotiated with such smooth, silent, effortless ease that you almost forget there's a motor under the hood. And when the throttle is opened wide—the pace is faster than the most experienced driver would care to maintain!

Back of this exceptional performance is a brilliant array of engineering advancements—typified by a high-compression, non-detontating cylinder head... automatic acceleration pump... hot-spot manifold... semi-automatic spark control... and a heavier crankshaft, statically and dynamically balanced.

Come in and drive this car. Learn for yourself, at the wheel, that no other car can approach it in the price range of the four!

WHY BE GOOD?

A First National Picture

Her greatest Whoopee picture since "Flaming Youth". The story of the good little bad girl who was "Thirsty for Kisses; Hungry for Love".

If a girl stays out after midnight, she's a runaway—if she doesn't she's a wallflower. If she kisses she's "loose". If she doesn't she's the loser. If she attends wild parties, she won't get the right kind of a husband—if she doesn't, she won't get any at all. If she says she walked home from the last auto ride, she'll never be asked on another. If she smokes, she's wild—if she doesn't she's a prude.

STARRING TOGETHER FOR LAST TIME IN "TWO WEEKS OFF"

Dorothy Mackaill and Jack Mulhall in "Two Weeks Off"

The two popular movie stars pictured above in one of the love scenes in "Two Weeks Off," which will be shown next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at the Palace Theatre, Slaton, will no longer make screen love to each other in forthcoming pictures. Hereafter they will star individually. Their many successful co-starring pictures have won them enough popularity to star in their own right for First National Pictures, Inc.

AND THIS IS THAT THING CALLED "ELECTRICITY"

At last there is a satisfactory definition for electricity. The New York State Committee on Public Utility Information says:

"Electricity is something that starts the Lord knows where and ends in the same place. It is 1-36 of a second faster on its feet than its nearest competitor, backyard gossip, and when turned loose in Europe will get to the United States five hours before it starts. Nobody knows exactly what it is because it has never stood still long enough.

"Electricity is sometimes known as science gone crazy with the heat, and if you can understand its manoeuvres you can do anything with it except open a can of peanut butter at a picnic.

"Electricity was locked up in ignorance for centuries until Ben Franklin let it out with a pass key, and since then it has been pulling off more new stunts than a pet monkey.

"With it you can start a conversation or stop one permanently, cook dinner, curl your hair, press your trousers, blow up a battleship, run an automobile or signal Mars, and many more things are being invented."

POULTRY TIPS

By LEONARD I. BROWN

BUILDING ESSENTIALS.

While we are still on the general subject of poultry house construction let's consider some of the more obvious details which probably most everybody knows about but which are pretty important and ought not to be overlooked by anyone.

Roofs must not leak. We might call that the first commandment. Shingle roofs should have a one-third pitch. While composition or metal roofs can be built almost flat, any kind of a roof will be found to last much longer if it is given a reasonable slant.

Floors are important to the health and productiveness of the birds. We are now building all of our new buildings, even the small colony house, with solid concrete floors. They are easy to clean, very sanitary, rat proof, and comparatively inexpensive in any district where gravel and sand can be had close by. Always be sure to keep concrete floors well bedded with straw or some kind of litter, especially in winter, so that they will be dry and not too cold.

Wood floors can be made satisfactory if from 1 1/4 to 3 feet above the ground. If closer to the ground they make rat harbors and soon rot out. They should be high enough above the ground to let dogs pass under and to permit circulation of air to keep them dry. Sometimes even dirt floors will do, if the soil is very light, sandy and dry. Be sure to build the ground up several inches for the floor, above the level of the outside ground.

It is pretty important to take out the old dirt once a year and replace it with fresh sand or fine gravel and earth from some place where poultry has never been before. Dirt floors harbor rats, are dusty and unhealthy when the birds scratch about a lot, and are expensive in this way, that the litter does not last nearly so long on them as it does on a lumber of concrete floor.

If the house is a long one it wants to be divided up by partitions. Main partitions, solid for the lower three feet and wire netting from there up, or solid all the way up, should extend clear across the building every 25 to 40 feet. Secondary partitions should be built out from the back of the house, about half way across or at least to the front edge of the dropping boards, and from the dropping boards up to the roof, to prevent the birds from overcrowding in one section of the roost.

With a big supply that encounters overloaded markets at times, Gainesville fruit and truck men are discussing plans for a small commercial canning plant.

Mrs. R. H. Todd and three sons returned Tuesday from an extended visit with relatives at Dallas and Big Spring. Mrs. J. B. King, mother of Mrs. Todd, did not accompany them on their return, as she will make her home with a son at Big Spring for the present time.

Charles Hammett has returned to Slaton.

Mrs. L. J. Takor and children visited friends in Lorenzo Tuesday.

Mrs. William Price, of near Union, was called to Amarillo Wednesday by the illness of her daughter.

Joe Tate returned home Thursday morning from a business trip to Amarillo.

W. E. Olive is in Dallas this week transacting business.

Mrs. R. J. Murray is reported to be seriously ill at her home in Lubbock. Her mother, Mrs. W. H. Proctor, has been at her bedside this week.

Paul Owens is having a very fine gold letter sign put on his show window. Paul states, being in the gold business, he has to make a showing.

MUST AND DUST MUST GO.

Twenty-five years ago in this country a good road was the exception, rather than the rule. Now we have the greatest highway system in the world. The growth in use of the automobile was responsible for this development.

Money spent for improved roads is returned in social and industrial benefits. Highways are the foundation of community progress. Now a new phase of highway expansion is appearing, the building of secondary or feeder roads.

Roads are being extended into rural areas never before since methods devised for using them to give water to the rural community.
