

Governor Expected Momentarily To Sign Bill Giving 32nd District Additional Judge for Two Years

By REDDY

An example of what can be done when people of West Texas set their heads and pool their forces is found in final approval by Governor Ross Sterling of the water priority rights bill which had been sponsored through three sessions of the legislature by Senator Walter Woodward of Coleman with the support of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce and other groups.

The bill gives domestic and municipal users of water superior rights to those of irrigationists and power companies, with power companies' rights listed last.

There you have the principal for which West Texas has fought for five years and longer. It will protect our section of the country from activities of hydro-electric power developers and promoters, who under the old statutes were allowed to obtain large allotments of water from streams having their origin in West Texas.

There is no substitute for water to quench thirst of man and beast; there are substitutes for water as a developer of electric power.

The principals found in the Woodward bill should be held inoperative by West Texas, and all Texas. It provides that future allotments to Texas streams, made by the state board of water engineers to hydro-electric developers shall be subject to the right of political subdivisions to take that water for municipal or domestic uses without paying for it, or without having to institute condemnation proceedings. It will have no effect, however, on permits already granted, but renewals of permits will come under its terms.

The order of priority set up by this new law, which becomes effective immediately, is: first, municipal and domestic uses including water for people and livestock; then, manufacturing, irrigation, mining and recovery of minerals, power, navigation, and recreation and pleasure. The law also directs the state water board to make surveys to determine the water needs of the several regions of the state and their potential supply, to the end that distribution may be equitable and in line with priority rights established.

It appears the city hall fifty-station-auditorium-jail building project is doomed unless enough citizens of the city take up the nerve of what is what is needed, to assume leadership in an educational campaign to present to the people all facts connected with the project.

The Herald wishes to obtain the names of all Civil War veterans residing in Howard county. If it would appreciate also the age, birthplace, years of residence in this county, names of surviving children, the name of the regiment with which each served. A short account of experiences during the war also would be appreciated.

"A Brighter Day is Near"—headline in Kansas City Star. The sort of statement Will Rogers punned about in The Connecticut Yankee—"you won't live to reach the end," you know. But the man speaking in the interview under the headline was W. J. Bailey, co-manager of the Federal Reserve Bank in Kansas City.

He said, in part: "In what way can government help the farmer, or any class of the population?" the governor was asked.

"The government can help by keeping out of competition with business and industry," he replied. "Government can help by some legitimate supervision or regulation, but not by trying to control production or prices. It is doing both, for example, when it goes in to vast projects for the reclamation of land. There's too much land now, or too much high priced land for the production of crops that can't pay the overhead. Yet the government is bringing more land into production through reclamation projects. The reverse process is the one indicated—the returning of land into forestation."

Individualism The Solution

"It all goes back to the one lesson in the history of the American people has taught and which we can't get away from, and that is that our nation's development can continue only if we preserve the individualism to which we owe all we have accomplished to the past. I think it is going to be preserved. There is a strong reaction right now against centralization and that is one of the hopeful signs that we are getting back on the right track. The self-reliant, pioneering spirit that built this country is reasserting itself against the pretensions of government and politics. There is alarm about communism just now, but it is chiefly the alarm of politicians."

HELD FOR CHICKEN THEFT

A negro was being held in the county jail today charged with the theft of a chicken. He was arrested by city authorities and turned over to the county. It is alleged he stole six chickens belonging to A. G. Hall.

Members of the Howard county bar are expediting momentarily to receive word that Governor Ross Sterling has signed the bill giving to the 32nd judicial district an additional judge and extending court sessions in the various counties. They expect that the announcement of the bill has been signed will be accompanied by one naming the new judge.

The bill, should it be signed by the governor, will add approximately five additional weeks a year to terms of court in Howard county, bringing the number to 22 for the year.

Judge Fritz R. Smith, according to the bill, would hear all criminal cases in each of the counties. The present district attorney and district clerk would serve both judges.

Factor Target Of Gangs Cops Are Convinced

Jack Diamond Believed After the Master Swindler

CHICAGO, May 19 (UP)—Reports that gangs in at least three cities were hunting John "Jake the Barber" Factor to kidnap or kill him spurred police or two continents on today in their search for the former hair-cutter whom they accused of taking millions of dollars through sale of fraudulent oil and mining stocks.

Federal and city detectives who raided Factor's 14-room apartment only a few minutes after he was reported to have left admitted they believed he might surrender and face swindling charges in England rather than chance of being killed by Jack "Legs" Diamond of New York or kidnaped by a midwestern gang.

The police said they believed that Diamond and Factor, once friends, had been playing a deadly game of hide and seek for months and trying to toy each other with bullets because Factor refused to divide with Diamond the millions he made in England after fleeing to that country with a forged passport furnished him by the New York gangster.

The officers pointed out that shortly after Diamond went to Europe last year, presumably in search of Factor, he was shot five times. Three weeks ago Diamond was shot again and almost killed. It was known that after Factor was indicted in Florida on charges of selling approximately $1,000,000 worth of "ocean land" he secured the aid of Diamond in fleeing to Europe. Officers understood there was an agreement that in England the smooth talking ex-barber was to operate a huge swindle and divide the profits with Diamond. They say he was so successful he snubbed Diamond and that the feud developed.

Coupled with this were reports that gangs in New York, St. Louis and Chicago had been hunting Factor for weeks to kidnap him knowing he had made millions in Europe and could pay huge ransom, yet could not afford to police for protection because the police wanted him also.

The possibility that Factor might surrender was seen in advance made by his attorney, Arthur L. Schwartz, to the British and American detectives seeking him here under a complaint sworn out by Geoffrey Hazard, British consul to Chicago. This complaint charged that Factor, with the aid of Green and others, sold more than $2,000,000 worth of worthless stock in England, promoting the sale through a financial weekly paper which he published himself.

There also have been reports that Factor won large amounts at gaming tables in Europe, including among his victims the Prince of Wales, who quit the game when he learned he was playing against "Jake the Barber."

OPINIONS OF OTHERS

The Family and the Nation

Paris News: PERIODICALLY we are greatly disturbed by the news that marriages are falling off and that di-vorcees are on the increase. And so on the heels of this news there comes numerous declarations as to how serious this evil is, and even more numerous suggestions as to how it may be speedily checked.

No intelligent man or woman who will give any thought to the problem needs to be told how serious it is.
It menaces practically everything he holds dear in our social order. It touches not only the lives of those immediately implicated; it involves somehow the very foundations of sociability. It means that in something fundamental to our social well-being and happiness we are not succeeding as we ought to.

Nor will any intelligent man or woman close his ear to any of the many suggestions which will presently be given as to how the solution of this problem must be approached to be effective. We shall be told that it ought to be made more difficult to get married and less easy to get a divorce. We shall be told that the problem is not merely an economic one, although it is that too, in part; they will say that it is individual in so far as anything can be individual; and they will tell us that it is also a social problem.

In the meantime there are those who have given much thought not merely to the present situation, but to the historical aspect of it also,
and the conclusions of those thinkers may be worthy of consideration.
They will tell us that the family is the basic unit of civilization; that where any community or nation has clung to this basic family unit, its prosperity has not been endangered, and where the integrity of the family unit was assailed, there decay was inevitable.

The historical significance may be clear to everyone; but more clear even than that is the logic of it. It is within his little group that the ideals are developed which are so necessary to human progress and permanence; and it is through this group that these ideals are maintained. When for any reason the integrity of this group is threatened we are told then all civilization is threatened, for, it can not be too often repeated, the family is the unit on which the whole structure of civilization is built.

In proportion as we can bring ourselves to realize the importance of this fact; in proportion as we can keep out the theories of this or that, or fade of one kind or another from our thinking about the family in that proportion we may avert the danger of which the increase of divorce and decrease of marriages is only a symptom. Whatever can be done in the home city by any other educative influence outside of the home, to keep before us the fact that except as we maintain the family intact the outlook is a dark one—this is worth doing. No nation can continue to be great, except its greatness is based on an enduring family relation.

AIR SCHOOL

ATLANTA, Ga. (INS)—The nation's first "University of the Air" will begin operation here soon. Arrangements have virtually been completed for the inauguration of a complete college course, with diploma and all, to be given by radio from the campus of Oglethorpe university here. Approval by the federal radio commission for the transaction of the station, WTL, paved the way for radio first classroom bell to ring.

VACCINATION

HARTSFORD, Conn. (INS)— Compulsory vaccination will remain on the statute books of Connecticut though still somewhat tempered by permitting local school authorities to say whether an unvaccinated child shall be permitted to attend school. The state legislature turned aside by a large majority a bill that would have done away with compulsory vaccination. Hundreds of parents objected to vaccination at a public hearing on the bill.

HIVES

When a diseased condition has many causes there seldom is available for its treatment any single effective remedy. This is certainly true of hives.

Hives, or urticaria, as it is technically known, is not a disease, but merely a symptom. However, it is always an annoying and sometimes a dangerous symptom. In urticaria there is a more or less limited swelling under the skin. This swelling, due to the accumulation of lymph may be brought about, in the urticaria sufferer, by merely running the edge of one's finger-nail or any blunt point over the skin.

Sometimes the urticarial swelling may become extensive, forming large blisks or even involving an entire limb. In rare cases the swelling may effect the larynx and threaten life by blocking the windpipe.

An acute attack of hives may be accompanied by a general sense of discomfort, headache, vomiting and diarrhea. It is not uncommonly due to the patient having eaten some food article to which he is sensitive. Spoiled foods, preserved or canned meats and shellfish are common offenders.

Occasionally eating too much of one article not common to one's diet may bring on an attack of hives.

Since in such cases the digestive tract is involved, it is good sense to abstain for at least a day from all foods, taking only water.
A saline cathartic may help in cleaning out the intestinal tract.
If the symptoms are severe, home treatment should not be relied on and medical help should be secured.
If the skin condition is troublesome, relief may be secured by the application of a mild solution of water and vinegar.

It is also advisable to discover what food article has been responsible for the attack and to make note of it as a food to be avoided.

Tomorrow: Chronic Hives.

HOLLYWOOD—“Heavy, heavy hangs over their heads,” but the microphones suspended over talkie actors are getting lighter.

The new “dynamic m. i. k. e.” weighs but two and one-quarter pounds and is much smaller than the old-style cylindrical microphone weighing 18 pounds. It is supposed to give better recording results, too.

The picture begun as “The Devil Was Sick” has had its title changed to “God's Gift to Women.” That is Frank Fay, of course, who has the title role.

Fay no doubt will suffer as much thereby as did Lew Cody, who struggled along for years under the dire effects of “The Butterfly Man,” or Charles Rogers, who felt the sting of that publicity-bestowed sobriquet, “Darling of the Debs.”

JUST FOR THE NAME

Betty Compton has the top billing in “The Virtuous Husband,” (which on the stage was “Apron Strings”) but has practically nothing to do with the story, which is the romance between Jean Arthur and Elliott Nugent.

Miss Compton merely walks in occasionally, smiles a sophisticated tolerant smile, and walks out.

QUACKIES

The talkies, the barkies, the mousies (if you may so call Mickey's microphoned squeaks)—and now the quackies. Christie has made a comedy in which chickens and ducks enact all the roles, with human voices synchronized to their active bills. The novelty is called “A Fowl Affair”—it would be.

Mad Pursuit
BY JESSIE DOUGLAS FOX

Chapter 6
A HAPPIER DAWN
NORA fought to thrust such horrible thoughts aside as she heard the moans from the suffering Nicholas. If it had been herself, she tried to reason, no one would have heard a groan from her.

Her father was like that too. He thought he was dying if he had a cold in the head.
But ever her troubled mind recalled Dr. Madroni and his gesture of cutting off the injured hand, and the fear that Nicholas might die perished.

Her father came in at midnight, singing in his thin tenor. She ran to the head of the stairs calling for him to be quiet. But he continued and she ran down to him and caught his arm.

"Nicholas Thayer's very ill."
"What is it? Anything con-tious?"
She put her finger to her lips and followed her father into his own room.

"Well, if it's blood poisoning, I can't do anything. You'd better go to bed and forget him."
"But it's serious."
"It's the very devil had to happen here," her father said irritably.
"If only he'd waited until he had left us."

Julian wrenched at his collar and flung on the floor.
"I'm going to turn in," he said.
She looked at him, a pitiless judgment in her eyes. He tore off his coat and began to pull at his shirt as though he were the one who was suffering.

"I've been everywhere to get some money. And that damn cook Magdalena hasn't come back.
Where's my dressing gown?"
"I gave it to Nicholas."
"Pretty soon you'll give him the roof over our heads."

"We haven't that to give. Mrs.
Nevers has come back and she'll want the villa."
"What a mood you're in!" he cried.

When he was irritated it was Nora who, he said, was in a black mood, but she was too used to this to notice it.
"We'll see that he goes to the hospital in the morning."
"He won't go," she said patiently.
He shrugged. "When you're tired you look as plain as your grandmother. Don't wake me early. I'm all in."

It was as though her father had taken off the pressing of his mind and let her see what underlay his charm; weakness and irritability and his eternal preoccupation with himself. She wondered suddenly if he had ever loved her mother, that tempestuous Irish girl that he had met on one of his saults and married out of hand.
The only ones that her mother had kissed when she was seven, and that her father never spoke of her.

seen her grandmother with just such a small heeler beside her, to beat milk when she lay awake at night. How long ago that was, like another life lived in a dream in the white New England house beside the cranberry bog. Her grandmother had been dead for ten years.

"Oh I must go home!" Nora thought.
To be dependent on no one but herself, to belong somewhere, to have deep roots! How she longed for this!

She had told Julian that their life had been like rushing along in a railroad train and looking out of the window to see other people in their homes while having none themselves.

The nostalgia of the last day centered itself in this burning desire.
Nicholas roused and looked at her.
"What time is it? Haven't you gone to bed yet?" Then he pulled his long legs over the side of the bed and began to move about the room, his hair tousled, his face haggard with pain.

"I can't hear this, I tell you. I won't!" he flung out. "aven't you some drug? Give it to me!"

She gave him the sedative again and watched him sink back on the bed. How these few hours had changed him, his eyes sunken in black pits, his face shadowy and wan. He lay with his face turned from her, one arm trailing on the floor, his legs sprawled out on the white flat bed. From time to time he muttered to himself. Each time he groaned a knife blade clove her heart.

The room in the flickering light seemed heavy with pain. Pain turked in the long shadows the lamp cast against the ceiling. His voice harsh and low spoke out like its echo.

"What's the use of it all? Futility.
All futility. Work. Struggle. We're all under a death sentence." At length she heard him breathing evenly; and her head drooped back and she slept. When she woke, it was almost light. She never forgot that pale dawn, the trees looming gray, then black, against a rosy sky, the grass sparkling and far below the red cupolas of the city shimmering in the sunrise.
Nicholas was awake, lying there watching her. He met her eyes almost diffidently.

She asked, "How do you feel?" "Better. It's painful, but bearable. And I'm hungry."
"Let me see," she stooped over him. The swelling of his wrist was much reduced. The hand itself did not look so ugly. "I'll bring you some breakfast," she told him.

She smiled but she was trembling over the long strain of the night.
Once outside the door she leaned back against the wall and cried as though her heart would break. She wiped her tears on the back of her hand, knowing all at once that she too was ravenously hungry.
(Copyright, 1930, Jessie Douglas Fox)

What does Nora seek through prayer Monday? Perhaps her plea to Nicholas answers his question.

Perry Eastman Called 'Find'
For Tennis by Tulane Coach

NEW ORLEANS, May 12 (AP)— Mercer Beasley, Tulane tennis coach, who has developed half a dozen nationally known tennis players, has found another to add to the list.

Perry Eastman, Tulane sophomore, red-haired and with the physique of Clifford Sutter, fifth ranking national player, is the youth to whom Beasley looks to carry on "Eastman," Beasley declared.

"has taken to the game remarkably well and I believe he is destined to go up. He has just started and he is good already. Of course, it will take time, but he has the touch and determination. Watch him a year from now."

This from the man who coached Frankie Parker, now a member of the national boys' doubles championship team; Clifford Sutter, national intercollegiate champion and ranked fifth in the nation; Mrs.
John Van Ryn, nationally ranked woman star, and Ellsworth Vines, the California sensation.

Beasley watched Eastman beat Jay Topper, number one man of the University of Illinois, recently. Topper is a veteran on the Illinois team which has lost only two matches in the Big Ten the past four years.

lege for Women, Connecticut State College, Bartlett Research Laboratories, United States office of forest pathology, Yale, and the local state experiment station will join in the conference.

PRINCE AND FAUTER

PITTSBURGH (INS)—Royalty has been discovered in the south-side tenement district of Pittsburgh—or at least the appearance of royalty. George Manko, 7, is almost a replica of Crown Prince Michael of Roumania. When their photographs are put side to side, they both show the same color hair, eyes, and expression. Shown the photograph of the Prince and George, the son of a miser, said:
"That's me—but not my shirt and tie."

Tenth Birthday of Auxiliary Of Presbyterian Church Observed With Program

Annual Offering Taken for Causes Supported by the United Auxiliaries; Attractive Program Given by Members

The Woman's Auxiliary of the Presbyterian Church met Monday afternoon at the church to observe the tenth birthday of the auxiliary, with a program especially prepared for the occasion.

The subject was "African Womanhood and the Children of Our Missionaries of the Congo." Mrs. Owen was the program leader. Mrs. E. L. Barrick opened the program with a devotional service.

Mrs. W. C. Barnett, auxiliary president, gave many interesting facts concerning the school being built in Africa to which the birthday offering of the auxiliary will go.

The playlet, "Voices from the Wastebasket," was well presented by Misses Emory Duff, Sidney Anderson, Graham Poehner and E. E. Fahrkamp.

Miss Edith Jeanette Barnett played a piano selection arranged from the opera, "Martha" by Edward Dorn. Mrs. M. N. Meiner sang, "What Will You Give to Jesus?"

Mrs. Fred M. Campbell and Mrs. R. L. Owen read helpful papers on the following subjects: "The Great Problem in Our Congo Mission" and "Girls' Homes at Our Five Stations; the Central School for Missionaries Children."

Four little girls passed blue and white baskets (the auxiliary colors) for the generous offering.

A birthday cake with ten blue candles was then brought in and Mrs. H. W. Caylor and Mrs. W. R. Holman, charter members of the auxiliary, were asked to light the candles. Mrs. Caylor remarked, "This is one time in my life when I am glad to be called old."

Delicious angel food and punch were served to a large number of members and visitors.

First Baptist W.M.S. Finished Series of New Testament Lessons

The W.M.S. of the First Baptist Church met Monday afternoon at the church for a Bible Study conducted by Mrs. C. S. Holmes.

Mrs. Holmes finished the sermon on the Mount and the Galilean ministry.

The following members were present: Misses R. E. Day, R. Reagan, R. L. Gentry, K. S. Beckett, L. N. Adams, Travis Reed, G. H. Hayward, Joe Mittel, R. C. Hatch, W. B. Buchanan, J. P. Dodge, C. C. Coffey, Ella Crawford, W. R. Douglas, J. C. Douglas and Susan Bennett.

Mrs. M. G. Claybrook, president of the West Side Baptist W. M. S., Mrs. H. W. Deering and Mrs. E. L. Whitaker were visitors.

The next Monday meeting will be an all-day meeting at the church, the last until fall.

Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Kuykendall returned Sunday from Paris, where they had gone to attend the funeral of Mr. Kuykendall's father.

Mrs. I. R. Harris left Monday night for Clark, Louisiana, where she was called by the critical illness of her father who suffered a stroke of paralysis about a year ago.

Medals to Be Given To Two Good Junior Hi School Citizens

At the graduation exercises of the Junior high school Thursday evening the Cushing Medals, will be awarded by Wm. F. Cushing, of the Cushing Ranch, a member of the Sons of the American Revolution.

These medals go to two Junior high students, Woodrow Campbell and Juanita Campbell, who were selected by a vote of the student body as the best representative citizens of the Junior high. The basis of the selection was: dependability, cooperation, clean habits of speech and courtesy.

There are only eight or ten cities in Texas in which these medals are given. In most of these the S.A.R. chapters are active. Mr. Cushing is said to be the only S.A.R. in Big Spring and the medals are a personal award which he instituted last year to keep up the good work which the society is fostering all over the country.

Two medals are awarded each year to grammar grade students, one to a boy and one to a girl.

Herald Patterns

A Dainty Frock for the Growing Girl.

7158. Taffeta in pastel white was used for this pleasing model. It is also suggested for organdy in white or light shades—blue, green or pink are very pleasing. For handkerchief linen it is very appropriate. The yoke portions extend over the shoulders and form short sleeve caps for the upper part of the arms. Here the yoke portions are lengthened by a circular ruffle. The long waist sections of the dress are lengthened by a deep circular flounce. A sash of ribbon holds the fullness of the dress at the waistline.

Designed in 4 sizes: 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. It will require 2 1/2 yards of 32 inch material for a 12 year size. The width of ribbon will require 2 1/4 yards. To finish with bias binding as shown in the large view will require 3 3/4 yards 1 1/2 inch wide. Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 15c in silver or stamps by The Herald.

Send 15c in silver or stamps for our UP-TO-DATE BOOK OF FASHIONS, SPRING, 1931.

Lace and Chiffon Latest Table 'Linens'

By MARGERY TAYLOR, Interior Decoration Editor, McCall's Magazine, Written for The Big Spring Herald

Table linen, to be really smart will now have to be in the spirit of the meal—different for each occasion.

This means that white is no longer supreme and that "linen" may be almost anything from chiffon to lace. The breakfast tray, the bridge table, afternoon tea, the "cocktail hours" and the late supper, as well as the traditional meals of the day, each require an appropriate setting.

To start the day cheerfully breakfast should now be served on the gayly cloth, solid-colored, bordered, printed, checked or striped. The cloth should hang over only a few inches and the napkins should be small.

For the breakfast tray, pastel-colored cloths in a bright smooth fabric are most favored. They shouldn't be large enough to get in the way.

Luncheon, most frequently a mealless meal, should have its feminine spirit reflected in such linens as sheer net embroidered in color, a very heavy Rodier-designed linen or a colored damask. Even for a formal luncheon, the cloth should be only a few inches larger than the table.

For tea, imagination and whim may run riot as to the cloth. Fashion at present calls for chiffon in plain and printed patterns. If the cloth fits the table exactly, it will be considered particularly "right." Italian linens, embroidered and inset with flowers, are correct and need not fit absolutely.

Where lace-trimmed cloths are correct for tea, the all-lace cloth is correct for receptions. Gingham or other beverages require those miniature oblong napkins, not

Now one may tell the meal by the napery. more than 4 to 6 inches. Fine linen damask is almost essential for dinner. A black damask with a silver sheen can be made very effective, and ivory, gold and green are becoming popular. The dinner cloth should be the largest, with a drop of about 13 inches.

The Water Bucket

BY BOBBY CAMPBELL

Rob Scott, secretary of the Sand Belt Golf Association, erred, according to local county club solons, in figuring the individual standings of players.

Another well known grid coach has gone wrong. Harry Taylor, the corise checked by who succeeds Bill Hissett at San Angelo high school as head football coach, will take upon himself a wife.

Bob King has been elected captain of the 1932 Ranger Bulldogs. King galloped around in the backfield last year with such stellar young men as Chuck Kuck Bird, the heavyweight and Dangerous Dan.

J. Gordon Bristow is among the villagers once again. He drops in like this every once in a while, to recuperate, no doubt, from strenuous and long hours spent in San Angelo.

Howard Reid of the Coahoma Reds, was in town Monday and made the assertion that unless some of his ball players desisted from planting cotton seed in holes in the ground, or something like that, the prospects for his club looked gloomier than they really are.

The Colorado Baseball Club will have a dance Thursday night, according to a cardboard received by us this a. m. We have turned it over to the shining lights of the social department of this newspaper.

Hillin Blasts Out Triple to Give Spudders Win Over Houston Bisons

WICHITA FALLS, May 18 (UP).—Ash Hillin won his own game here today with a triple in the ninth that scored two runs. He scored a moment later with the run that broke a 4-4 tie and gave the Spudders a 5-4 decision in the opening of a three game series.

PORT WORTH, May 18.—The Beaumont Exporters were defeated by Fort Worth 2-4 this afternoon at Lagrave field in the first of a three-game series.

Voight Fights For Amateur Crown

By FRANK H. KING ... WESTWARD, HO., DEVON, Eng., May 18.—George Voight, American contender for the British amateur golfing throne, Bobby Jones renounced, today marched half way through the field of the 1931 championship tournament to the third round.

It took the slim New Yorker only 30 holes against stern opposition to win his first and second round matches. He defeated T. H. Bowman, a farmer and Norfolk champion, in the first, 4 and 3, and then knocked off Francis Francis, athletic young officer from His Majesty's crack guards regiment, in the second, 1 and 2.

Voigt will play but one round today, meeting J. R. Abercrombie, of the Royal Liverpool club, who today defeated the American movie star, Douglas Fairbanks, 1 up.

White Voight was the big golfing attraction of the day, Fairbanks carried away the biggest gallery and held the post of it by fairly good golf rather than any "theatrical" activities. Fairbanks contributed to his own defeat, but marked himself a generous sportsman when he conceded his opponent's final putt. It was at least a yard away from the hole, a distance not always safe even for the best golfer.

Five Americans fell by the wayside today. Ross Thompson of Uniontown, Pa.; I. H. Phillips, of Santa Barbara, Cal.; Johnny De Paolo, of Los Angeles, Frank Sweeney, of London, but formerly from sunny California, and Fairbanks.

Voigt, Douglas Grant, former Californian, one Tom McQuire, of Stockton, Cal., won today and Charles Lewis of Hollywood, E. J. Hadden, of Oakland, J. H. Foreman, of Mamaroneck, N. Y., and H. E. Foster, former American now of London, and Crane play tomorrow. H. Scheffel, an American student at Oxford, scratched.

Texas Guinan Tank Soon To Say London Take Place of Seeking Her Cavalry Horse

NEW YORK, May 18 (UP)—Texas Guinan, queen of the wise crack, sees "international economic fiddle-faddle" behind the campaign in London to keep her out of the British night club field. "Any time," Texas told the United Press, "that a big shot like myself appears on the miffin-like horizon of Great Britain, the whole country gets stirred up. They spend all their time over there yanking nickels out of Yankee tourists, and when a Yankee comes along with an idea for yanking pennies out of their own pockets, they promptly go into the epileptic state."

"I might say that they will have a fine time trying to keep Texas Guinan out of London, and I want you to have a look at the cablegrams. In one is an offer from the Kikist club. This one is an offer from the Murray Club—the grand pappy of them all. And this one is from the Piccadilly. Why, they're clamoring for me instead of against me!" She is sailing May 22 and plans to take her white horse along. And if the hullabaloo of "Keep Texas Out" doesn't do hang, "I may take my white horse, down a lantern aloft in some belfry and to a Paul Revere down the middle of the strand," Tex added.

Home Town—

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 7) who capitalizes everything. There never will be any alarm about it among the people so long as they are allowed to feel they are doing their job for themselves. If centralization takes their job off their hands, people will feel they have less concern to protect their own. But the more they feel that what they have is of their own making the more care they will take to protect it. Our people are not given to radicalism. They are a property-owning, properly-creating people. They have a stake in their country and in its institutions. That is the greatest national buttress against all kinds of radicalism. It's a lesson centralization had better be learning."

TRADE SCHOOL FOR GIRLS SAN DIEGO, Calif. May 19 (INS)—Miss Elizabeth Freeze, dean of girls at a high school here, is endeavoring to find a philanthropist willing to found a trade school for girls in San Diego. Her quest resulted from the over-crowded condition in trade classes for girls in San Diego high schools. In one class alone, she says, there were more than 400 girls enrolled with hardly room enough for them to stand. She would have courses in dressmaking, sewing, alterations, pressing, millinery, cosmetology, commercial art, cooking, waitress training, lunch counter dispensary, soda dispensary, and telephone switchboard operating.

WASHINGTON, May 18 (UP)—Calvary that deserves the name is soon to be no more, so far as the United States is concerned. Announcement to this effect was made by the war department, after long study by General Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff, and after exhaustive tests of modern substitutes for the horse.

"Calvary" is derived from the Latin "caballus," meaning an inferior horse. That is what the cavalry private has said for years. Now the cavalry, except for small units and perhaps for ceremonial purposes, is to be retired permanently and the "agern" cavalrymen will have to find some other object for his impressions.

He probably will find it in the light, fleet tanks, heavily armed capable of going almost anywhere a horse can go and probably some places where a horse would balk, capable of going there and coming back without being hamstringed. And without being shot down by an enemy sniper. It takes a powerful sniper to bring down a tank. Cavalry, the world war revealed, was so much cannon fodder—spectacular with lances, sabers and pinnons, but obsolete.

Mac Arthur's announcement was 1,000 words long but its essence was embodied in one terse paragraph. "The cavalry will undergo such general reorganization and re-equipment as will enable it best to perform its missions. This may require at least two types of cavalry regiments, one (horse) in which the horse and mule may remain only where they cannot be replaced by the motor for the performance of difficult, tactical missions, or for operations in difficult terrain where the horse and mule still give us the best mobility. A second type of cavalry (mechanized) in which the horse and mule shall have disappeared entirely." U. S. cavalry now numbers only 8,000 men. The new tanks, for which bids have been asked, will have a speed range of from 25 to 40 miles an hour. They will be the nucleus of the new "cavalry."

WOMAN IN ODD POST CLEVELAND, (INS)—Miss Lois L. Poperton is the first woman member of the Cleveland fire department. The position, equal in all respects to that of a regular fire fighter, was created by special act of city council. Miss Poperton previously served eleven years as junior secretary of the department.

The following is the list of graduates: Herman C. Clemens, Pauline Calvey, Henry Donelson, Maurice Cochran, Otella Fyrtum, Clark Hamilton, Beal Jones, Modelle Melin, Sarah Henson, Ernest Epley, Edward Pollock, Stanley B. Whitson, Mary Edith Sloan, C. S. Williams, Robert Smith, Cecil Hamilton, Clara Hamwood, Agnes Louder, Zelma Lee Moore, Billie Houston, Earl Eubanks, G. B. Shelburne, Jr.

The baccalaureate services were held the Sunday evening previous with Rev. H. A. Webb of Colorado delivering the sermon. Twenty-nine other Rev. Mr. Webb, who was then pastor at Midland, came over to Stanton and organized the Methodist church, and in view of that fact, many of Martin county old-timers were present to shake hands with their old friend.

The choir, composed from members of all the churches in town, and directed by Jack Barnard, leader of the Methodist choir, sang several selections from the numbers on the program.

BLOSSOMS ON DAY SET NEW HAVEN, Conn., May 19 (INS)—Mother Nature is working strictly on schedule according to officials of the state agricultural experiment station here. The station, through C. C. Stoddard, announced in March that apple blossoms would appear on May six. Promptly on that date the blossoms did appear on a majority of the orchards in this district. Examination of ten thousand trees helped prove the point. The date of blossoming is based on the fall of apple leaves in the autumn.
