THE DIT COMMITTEE
The Dies Committee on Un-A merican Activities is receiving a great deal of publicity as we be-lieve it ought. There were a great many people who hooted at the idea at the beginning of the investigation, but some of the things that have been brought to light have proved the investigation was really needed. The Committee has shown that there are people walk-ing behind the benevolent protection of American citizenship and working in the freedom afforded by the American government who are trying to destroy this freedom, to exchange it for the tyranny and oppression that prevails in Russia or Germany. When such things go on, Liberty is abused and Liberty is in danger. Our Congress should make such laws as are necessary to abolish such organizations as are conducting these campaigns against Liberty and to ship back to their respective lands of tyranny such people as direct their efforts as Fritz Kuhn and the agents of Stalin have done in America. Nobody in Germany or Russia could even hint at the treason these people have openly advocated in America and hope to live forty-eight

COTTON, COTTON, COTTON

The mild suggestion of Governor O'Daniel a few weeks ago that Texas should observe a cotton Christmas should have more enthusiastic support and publicity. By 2. Cotton istmas is meant a Christmas where useful gifts made, in part at least, of cotton should be given. The giving of a single mattress or a few cotton comforts or a lot of cotton garments would not mean much, but if the six million of real and lasting value, it would stimulate the use of a commodity we grow too much of and use too

Mercy Hospital Celebrates Local Institution Has Served Ten Years

Mercy Hospital celebrates next Monday the tenth anniversary of its opening in Slaton. Established at a time when prices were high ents home talking to themselves and all building was enormously expensive, the Hospital found many difficulties and discouragements the first few years of its existence. But the devotion of the Sisters of Mercy and the high degree of organization and the quality of ser-vice rendered by the hospital have brought it through the trying times so that now it is established on a sound basis.

The plan and equipment of the hospital are equal to that found in many large city hospitals and far superior to that found in most cities of a size comparable to Slaton. Operating rooms were planned, and X-Ray and other equipexperience and science could devise.

No formal open house is being held for the anniversary, but friends will call and offer congratulations for the ten years of service rendered the community by a hospital that is recognized as first class by all authorities in the South west.

U.S. Ships May Be Registered Under European Neutral Flags In Effort to Circumvent Law

(EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst and not necessarily of this newspaper.)

MARITIME: Neutrality

Having fought for and having won "cash and carry" neutrality, the United States promptly sought ways to circumvent it. While American vessels and seamen loared along the waterfronts, crafty minds were thinking up at least two ways of maintaining maritime traffic despite neutrality: (1) chartering foreign ships, a perfectly legal method used sels and seamen loafed along the

With its next meeting still a week With its next meeting still a week away, the maritime commission was almost certain to refuse requests for transfer of some 90 U. S. vessels to Central or South American regis-try. When the idea was first broached, President Roosevelt sup-ported it. Later, after getting a lec-ture from Secretary of State Cor-dell Hull, he told reporters that the more he thought about it, the more more he thought about it, the more convinced he became that it wasn't right, Reason: It would place sister American republics in a neutrality position different from our own.

position different from our own.

Loud as the complaints of American ship owners were those of lesser European neutrals whose thriving U. S. commerce was stopped by the neutrality law. Two loudest objectors were Eire and Belgium. The former sent its minister, Robert Brennan, to tell the state department that Eire should be excluded from the "combat zone" because she is neutral and will remain so; because Eire needs U. S. products; because Eire doesn't beproducts; because Eire doesn't be-lieve U. S. ships would be endan-gered visiting her ports. Belgium sent her Ambassador Count Robert Van Der Straten-Ponthoz to inquire about transferring U. S. ships to Bel-gian registry. gian registry.

Certainly, commented the President, objections to Latin-American transfers wouldn't prevail in the case of European neutrals like Ire-land. It was a pretty safe guess, therefore, that U. S. ships may soon sail under European flags.

CRIME:

O'Hare-Capone

Who killed Cock Robin was never a greater mystery than who killed Edward J. O'Hare, Chicago race-track owner whose assassination in early November set off the biggest early November set off the biggest gangland witchhunt since Alphonse Capone went to prison in 1932. Rea-sons: The murder came just before Capone was released, and O'Hare was known to have associations with Capone. Two theories to date:

(1) That O'Hare, as interim man ager of the Capone gambling syndi-cate, was "rubbed out" because he refused to turn back the reins when "Scarface Al" was to be released.

(2) That O'Hare was slain by dissenting Capone mobsters who feared he would return the reins to Scar-face Al.

The deeper federal and city in vestigators probed the mystery, the more complex it became. The more embarrassing, too, especially for one Judge Eugene J. Holland of Chicago municipal court, who was asso-ciated with O'Hare in a real estate enterprise. Officials wondered if there could be any connection be-tween this and the fact that only 28 of the 12,624 Chicago gambling cases

Two days before Capone's mysterious release in Philadelphia, a 21-year-old named Russell Stoddard was held by Los Angeles police after a mysterious stabbing. Only two years have passed since Franklin Roosevelt sent the senate his first nominee to the Supreme court—Alabama's Sen. Hugo L. Black. Since then, one by one, have come Liberal Stanley Reed, Liberal Felix Frankfurter and Liberal Bill Douglas. With only four Roosevelt appointees, the nine-man court was still theoretically anti-New Deal. This month died Justice Pierce Butler, 73-year-old conservative, a Catholic from Minnesota. When his successor is named, the New Deal will have an undisputed liberal majority which will last at least another generation. Among possible successors observers listed another midwest Catholic, Michigan's Frank Murphy.

Harass Business With Suits While Seeking Its Co-Operation

One Government Agency Presses Litigation Against Industry, While Others Urge It to Get Ready for Wartime Production; Lollypops Being Investigated.

> By WILLIAM BRUCKART WNU Service, National Press Bldg., Washington, D. C.

washington.—There were two news stories emanating from official sources here recently that seemed to emphasize an unusual contradictory situation that obtains
contradictory situation that obtains

T used the Aluminum company only as an illustration, and it happens to be a good one. There are something the 50 arms officers conin present national government pol-icies. One of the stories had to do with a projected expansion of our military services. Representative Vinson of Georgia is prepared to ask congress at its next session to spend an additional $1,300,000,000 on spend an additional $1,300,000,000 on our navy. Other house leaders are submitting an army expansion pro-gram that will cost a record-break-ing $1,670,000,000.

Now, no one can deny the impor-tance of national defense. They may differ as to how much of a structure is required, but not as to the prin-ciple. It always is well to remember that few nations, or individuals, pick a fight when they know they are due to meet real trouble—which is to say that a strong army and navy are essential to peace.

These two announcements con-cerning military plans were made known on different days. It so hap-pened that on the day that the army program was given to the newspapers, the department of justice was distributing a statement telling of what it believed to be a great victory in court over a corporation. That story concerned the anti-trust action against the Aluminum Company of against the Adminish Company of America. The department lawyers were obviously in high glee because a New York judge had admitted some 36 documents into evidence in the proceeding. Mention was not made that the judge had rejected something like 140 other documents, or exhibits as they were called, but much glory was claimed for the government's side.

It is not for me to say whether the gigantic Aluminum company has vi-olated a law: that is the function of the court. The thing that I object to is the apparent role of the govern-ment lawyers in this and numerous other proceedings. Their attitude is almost the same as though they were engaged in private litigation instead of serving and seeking justice in be-half of all of the people. It is an attitude that is dangerously near to persecution, rather than prosecution, and it is wrong.

Business Being Harassed By Whole Flock of Suits

The announcement regarding the Aluminum trial recalled that there were a whole flock of other suits being pressed against nearly every kind of business in the nation. The department of justice seems to be trying to get some kind of a record in its efforts to harass business, and this is not surprising when one considers that Thurmand Arnold, the former professor, is guiding this policy and that Attorney General Frank Murphy is more of a crusader than even the late Theodore

Thus, upon examination I found that there were some 25 or more proceedings being pushed by the government, actions that may be called "major litigation" in that they involve some of the main units of American Industry. I have reciproceedings of American Industry. of American industry. I have no in-tention of offering a defense for any of them because I do not know the facts. It is, however, signifi-cant that these actions are going forward from one governmental agency while other groups are call-ing upon American business to make itself ready for wartime production being bought here, and there was lit-tle control of these purchases by our military services.

Whether this condition brought about the creation of a control board within the army and navy, I do not know. It is nevertheless a fact that the control board soon was created and purchasing missions from Eng-land and France have to consult with that board.

Long Range Planning for War Reserves Proceeding

Mention should be made, in this connection, of the frequent state-ments from official sources of the long range planning for war re serves that has been going on. This serves that has been going on. This program has been in process of development since 1921, but it obviously has taken on new impetus since fire broke out in Europe. Business has been advised repeatedly and in various ways that it must consider itself at the beck and call of its government in event of war. And that is thoroughly sound. But how, I wonder, can these two things go hand and hand; how can business be encouraged to make itself ready in case of national emergency and go about

WASHINGTON .- There were two | ery which the national defense re-only as an illustration, and it hap-pens to be a good one. There are something like 50 army officers, concerned with inspection, consulta-tion, guidance, in the various plants of the Aluminum company. There are dozens more, yes, several hun-dreds of army officers and naval officers doing like work in scores of other great manufacturing plants. You can see them crawling all over skeletons of ships in shipyards. They have to make inspections to make sure the specifications are met. They are to be found in experimental laboratories, using private funds and private facilities for tests looking to improvement of the various things used in war. All of which is fine; it is a co-operation business ough to give, but, again, there is posed that question of how can govern-ment get all of these things done while a group of theorists, paid by the same taxpayers, devote their time to prosecution of the most flim-sy interpretation of law violations? sy interpretation of law violations?

When I was digging around on the list of pending government prosecutions I found the so-called "big three," Ford, Chrysler and General Motors, in the automobile field, were being prosecuted for alleged violation of anti-trust laws in automobile installment financing upon what surely is a strange basis. When the surely is a strange basis. When the suit was started it was simply a charge of unfair competition in the matter of financing. The thing has simmered down now, however, and the issue actually is whether it is violation of law for using methods of financing installment buyers in a manner that results in less cost to the buyer.

Hold It's Wrong to Provide For Cheap Auto Financing

That is to say, the present issue whether it is a violation of law to set means of cheap financing. From all of the facts I have been able gather, our government, through its department of justice, actually is as-serting in court that it is wrong for the automotive companies to maintain financing corporations which will result in a saving to the pur-chasers of motor cars. If that is not silly, then I have a cock-eyed mentality.

One ought not pass over the temporary national economic commit-tee which has been sitting, off and on, for more than a year. The committee is supposed to be leading the way to a new national economic policy, a new method of doing business in the United States. It may, but I doubt it. Thus far, about the most tangible results—certainly the most tangible results-certainly, the most important effect—of the in-vestigation and hearings is the op-portunity that has been accorded government theorists to expound their ideas. For them, it has been a great opportunity. Dozens of them have been able for the first time in their lives to see their opinions set down in printed form in the committee record of the hearings.

Of course, in referring to the T. N

E. C., one surely ought to call at tention to the great number of wit-nesses from commerce and industry and the gouging and sniping of them that has been going on by a group of "thinkers" who serve as lawyers for the committee. One ought to mention also to the half-baked testimony presented in a numitself ready for wartime production in event of need.

It will be recalled how President Roosevelt told a press conference not so long ago that there were "raids" being conducted on our war resources by some foreign powers. That is, material usable in war was being bought here, and there was life.

Lollypop Industry Actually Is Under Investigation

I have no way of knowing the government is spending in all of these trials and investigations. Nor is it possible to know what the cost to business has been. E. C. has had half a million dollars and it will get some more. The department of justice has been hiring lawyers by the bagfull. The fed-eral trade commission likewise has been jumping onto business practices from great industries like steel and cement on through the list to the manufacturers of lollypops. (Don't laugh at that last one lieves that there is a large monopoly of lollypoppies.) But to name a few others among the nation's industries that eage me nation's industries that eager government prosecutors are using to make reputations for themselves as lawyers, we find these: milk, oil, steel, building material in all phases, sulphur, rubber, glass, motion picand hand; how can business be encouraged to make itself ready in case of national emergency and go about that job wholeheartedly while the same government, supposed to be operating as a unit, is attacking and seaking to destroy the very machin-

HEADLINES FROM THE LIVES OF PEOPLE LIKE YOURSELF

"The Color of Death"

You know, if Death can be said to have a color, most people would say that color was black. Maybe a few of us would pick red as the most appropriate hue for some of the more violent forms of the thing. But to Elizabeth Murphy of Queens, N. Y., the color associated with death and danger. -and adventure, is khaki. And khaki it will always remain

There's a doggone good reason behind Elizabeth's way of thinking, and that reason goes back to the days when she was a girl in Ireland, living with her mother and dad. Back to July 6, 1921, when, if you'll remember, the Black and Tan revolution was going on in the Emerald Isle!

Maybe you'll remember, too, that that was a pretty tough evolution. The Irish fought a guerrilla warfare, and the English sent some pretty tough customers over to keep order. All through that mix-up, Elizabeth's family ran a pub, or bar, in the little town of Dingle, County Kerry, and on that fateful July day two "Tans." as the British troopers were called, walked in and called

"Tans" Start Drinking in Murphy Barroom.

"We lived in the rooms upstairs over the bar," says Elizabeth, "and each member of the family, from mother and father on down, did his or her bit behind the bar. On this particular day mother and I were on duty, mother behind the bar and I on the outside handing trays of drinks around. The "Tans' sat down and drank steadily, and after several 'small paddies' one of them began to get obstreperous and nasty, and poor mother tried to quiet him down by being extra nice to him."

But mother didn't have much success with the fellow. She had bar

But mother didn't have much success with the fellow. She had barely started talking to him when he began to get abusive, and then threat-ening. And mother thought it would be best to change the subject. The surly fellow was wearing a pair of brand new khaki pants and in order o get his mind on something beside threats and violence she said. You've got on a fine new pair of pants. That material would make s lovely skirt."

The fellow turned suddenly to Elizabeth, "Would you like a skirt made out of this stuff?" he demanded. And without thinking, Elizabeth said, "No, I wouldn't care for it." And the next minute she knew she had said the wrong thing!

"At the time I said it," she says, "I had no idea of casting any aspersion on the king's khaki, but this brave bucke flew into a rage. 'So you don't like the color, ch?' he shouted. 'Well, I'll make you like it!' "

And the next thing Elizabeth knew, he had her by the throat!

Crazed Soldier Terrorizes Daughter of Inn Keeper. "He grabbed me with his right hand," she says, "and he kept choking and choking, and at the same time shouting over and over again, "Do you like it?"—Do you like it?" without even giving me a chance to answer. It would have done him no good if he had, for by that time my Irish temper was up and I'd prefer to choke rather than make a sign that I had

But all of a sudden Elizabeth nears something that cooled off that temper of hers. A revolver shot! At the same moment, the second "Tan" leaped up from the table where he had been sitting quietly all the time, caught hold of his partner and made him let go of Elizabeth's throat. And then Elizabeth saw the revolver. It was in the hand of her attacker. While he had choked her with his right hand he had fired that shot with his left. He had missed. The bullet had flattened against the hinge of the door. But now Elizabeth knew she was dealing with a man in a mood to commit actual murder—and she was scared to death.

The second "Tan" was remonstrating with the first, "Would you shoot the girl?" he was saying. The first "Tan" roared, "Yes, I'll shoot her. I don't care who she is!" Another argument was starting, and Elizabeth, thoroughly frightened by this time, tried to smooth it over. "It's all right," she said. "He wasn't aiming at me."

And again the wrong thing had been said. For the surly "Tan" whirled on her suddenly, whipped up his revolver again and cried, "You think so? Well, this time I won't miss!"

Then the battle started in earnest. The second "Tan" grabbed his arm and tried to wrest the gun from him, and at the same time he shouled to Elizabeth to run, "And boy," says Elizabeth, "I Elizabeth Escapes Clutches of Tormentor.

She dashed out of the bar and into the house next door. The neighbors there had heard the shot and wanted to know what was the matter. Elizabeth didn't even stop to explain. She dashed through that house to the back door and out into the yard. And the neighbors, knowing what sort of thing can happen in a country that is fighting a revolution, ran along behind her.

There were three of them in that neighbor family. Elizabeth climbed the fence into the next yard, and they followed. That next yard led to a carpenter's workshop, and the carpenter, and his workmen, when they saw four people dash through his place without even a word of ex planation, decided they'd better run, too. Out in the street more people

"There was quite a little bunch of us, all on the run to gether," says Elizabeth, "by the time things quieted down and somebody shouted to us that the "Tans" had left the locality and we would have no more to fear from them.

Elizabeth says that now she looks back on it, she can see a certain amount of humor in the situation of half a town running because one amount of humor in the situation of hair a town running because one drunken "Tan" had fired a revolver, but doggone if she could see it then. "I have always believed," she says, "that I owe my life to that "Tan' who interfered with the other one. And wouldn't it have been awful to have died all because of a pair of khaki pants?"

By RUTH WYETH SPEARS

BY WAR the most admired toy in a gay and modern nursery was a red and black striped Scottie with a gleam in his pearl-button eye. A college girl in the family pilfered the pup for a mascot which the kept perched on her desk. The baby cried, and another Scottie had to be made. The same pattern was used for an applique for Sonny's pillow which met with enthusiastic approval.

CHAPTER XVI-Continued

It was on the way home that Jane had said to Baldy: "I feel like a selfish pig."

Why, my dear?"

"To take your precious prize be-fore it is cold. It doesn't seem mind."

"It isn't a question of right or wrong. If things turn out with these wrong. It things turn out with these new people as I hope, I'll be paint-ing like mad for the next two months. And you'll have your work cut out for you as my model. They like you, Jane. They said so." He had driven on steadily for a time and had they said. "I never

He turned his lighted-up eyes upor "Janey-I wanted you to have

She had laid her hand on his arm in a swift caress. "You're a dar-ling-" and after a while, "Nothing can take us from each other, ever,

Never had they drawn closer in spirit than at this moment. But they said very little about it. When they came to the house, Baldy went at once to the garage. "I'll answer that letter, and put in a good afternoon looking over my sketches." He did not tell her how gray the day stretched ahead of him—that golden day which had started with him.

Jane changed to a loose straight hat, feeling actual physical freedom in the breaking of her bonds, she swung along the path to the little grove. It was aromatic with the warm scent of the pines, and there was a cool shade in the heart of it. Jane had brought a bag of stockings to mend, and sat down to her homely task, smiling a little as she thought of the contrast between this afternoon and yesterday, when she had sat on the rim of the fountain and watched Adelaide and the peacock. She had no feeling of rancor hat, feeling actual physical freedom cock. She had no feeling of rancor against Adelaide. She was aware only of a great thankfulness.

She was, indeed, at the moment steeped in divine content. Here was the place where she belonged. She the place where she belonged. She had a sense of blissful escape.

Merrymaid came down the path, her tail a plume. The kitten followed. A bronze butterfly floated across their vision, and they leaped for it—but it went above them—joyously towards the open blue of the sky. The two cats gazed after it, then composed themselves carefully like a pair of miniature lions—their paws in front of them, sleepytheir paws in front of them, sleepy-eyed but alert for more butterflies, or for Jane's busy thread.

And it was thus that Towne found her. Convinced that the house was empty, he had started towards Baldy's studio. Then down the vista of the pine grove, his eye had been caught by a spot of golden color. He had followed it.

She laid down her work and looked up at him. "You shouldn't have

"My dear child, why not? Jane, you are making mountains of molehills."

He sat down beside her. The little cats drew away, doubtful. "It was natural that you should have resent-ed it. And a thing like that isn't easy for a man to explain. Without seeming a-cad-" "There isn't anything to explain."

"No," she said, quietly, "it isn't that, although men like you think it is. A woman who has self-re-spect must know her husband has her respect. Her heart must rest in him."

He spoke slowly. "I'll admit that I've philandered a lot. But I've never wanted to marry anyone but you. I can promise you my future."

I can promise you my future."

"I'm sorry. But even if last night had never been—I think I should have—given you up. I had begun to feel that I didn't love you. That out there in Chicago you swept me off my feet. Mr. Towne, I am sorry. And I am grateful. For all your kindness—" She flushed and went on, "You know, of course, that I shan't be happy until—I don't owe you anything . ."

He laid his hand on hers. "I wish

"It was a great deal."
He looked down at her, slender and young and infinitely desirable.

he could not. Her dreams had come back to her—of Galahad—of Robin Hood . . . the world of romance had again flung wide its gates . . .

After Towne had gone she sat for a long time thinking it over. She blamed herself. She had broken her promise. Yet, he, too, had broken a promise.

She finished mending the stock ings, and rolled them into compact balls. The little cats were asleep— the shadows were stretched out and the sun slanted through the pines and have hot biscuits and berriesand honey.

Planning thus, competently, she raised her eyes—to see coming along the path the two boys who had of late been Evans' close companions. She spoke to them as they reached her. "Can't you stay a minute? I'll make you some lemonade."

They stopped and looked at her in a way that startled her. "We can't," Arthur said; "we're going over to the Follettes. We thought we might help."

She stared at them. "Help? What do you mean?'

Sandy gasped. "Oh, didn't you know? Mrs. Follette died this morn

Evans had found his mother at noon, lying on the couch at the foot of her bed. He had stayed at home in the morning to help her, and at ten o'clock she had gone up-stairs to rest a bit before lunch. Old Mary had called her, and she had not had called her, and she had not answered. So Evans had entered her room to find that she had slipped her room to find that she had slipped away peacefully from the world in which she exaggerated her own importance. It would go on without her. She had not been neighborly but the neighbors would ull come and sympathize with her son. And they would miss her, because she had added to the community some measure of stateliness, which they admired even as they resented it.

So he had done the things that had to be done in the shadowed house. Dr. Hallam came, and others. Even saw them and thay went. ers. Evans saw them and they went away. He moved in a dream. He had no one to share intimately his sorrow-no sister, no brother, no one, except his little dog, who trailed after him, wistful-eyed, and with

"There isn't anything to explain."

The full force of the thing that had happened did not come to him at once. He had a feeling that at any moment his mother might sweep in from the out-of-doors, in her white linen and flat black hat, and sit at the head of the table, and tell him the news of the morning.

He had had no lunch, so old Mary fixed a tray for him. He did not eat, but drank some milk. Then he and Rusty took up their restless wandering through the silent rooms. Old Mary, true to tradition, had drawn all the blinds and shut many of the windows, so that the house was filled with a sort of golden sloom. Evens were into his mathgloom. Evans went into his mother's little office on the first floor, and sat down at her desk. It was in perfect order, and laid out on the blotter was the writing paper with the golden crest, and he box of golden seals. And he had laughed at her! He remembered with a pang that they would never again laugh together. He was alone.

He wondered why such things hapgloom. Evans went into his moth-

He wondered why such things happened. Was all of life as sinister as this? Must one always find tragedy at every turn of the road? He had lost his youth, had lost Jane And now his mother. Was everything to be taken away? Would there be nothing left but strength to endura?

Well, God helping him, he would

"I'm afraid—you must—"
He flamed suddenly. "Tm more of a One-Woman man than you think. If you won't marry me, I won't have anyone else. I'll go on alone. As for Adelaide—A woman like that doesn't expect much more than I gave. That's all I can say

Well, God helping him, he would endure to the end. . . .

He closed the deak gently and went out into the darkened hall. As he followed its length, a door opened at the end. Black against the brightness beyond, he saw the two lads. They came forward with some hesitation, but when they saw his tired face, they forgot self-consciousness.

"Baldy will take the boys to the grove, and do any errands you may have for him." She was her calm and competent self-letting him get control of his emotion while she directed others.

Baldy, coming in, wrung Evans' hand. "The boys and I will get the pine, and Edith Towne is coming out to help. I called her up to tell her—"

Baldy stopped at that. He could not speak here of the glory that encompassed him. He had said, "If death should come to us, Edith? Does anything else count?" And she had said, "Nothing," And now she was coming and they would pick roses together in the garden. And love and life would minister to a greater mystery . . . greater mystery . . .

When Baldy and the boys nad gone, Jane and Evans opened the windows and pulled up the shades. The house was filled with clear light, nd was cool in the breeze.

"Does it work?" Modern man is not impressed by a thing simply because great claims are made for it or it is intricately organized. After all, the important thing is, does it really work? Such a test "I don't want any dinner."

This entire section of the Gospel of Matthew is concerned with miracles. It is interesting to note how many of these events concern personal needs. There is scant comfort to the needy one to speak to him in generalities about a great God who is ready to help people. When I am in need I want to know whether there is any help for me. Jesus healed Peter's mother in the home, and then He went out and healed multitudes in the throng, but in each case it was a personal in-terest which He took and a per-sonal healing that was received.

Observe also that He met the need of all whether they were sick in body, mind or spirit. Someone may say, "That is all very well, but that took place when He was here on earth." Well, He is here now, workearth. Well, he is here now, working in and through the power of the Holy Spirit and in and through His children. The Lord Jesus Christ daily satisfies every need of His disciples, and often does so in ways which are miraculous in their sight.

ways which are miraculous in their sight.

II. Sacrificial Service Exemplified (vv. 18-22).

Following Jesus in discipleship is more than speaking sweet words of devotion or of taking part in the carrying out of some public worship ministry. To really follow Him is to "follow one whose vocation is such that there are incessant desured."

value whatsoever to our conception of 'treasure.'

"It is easy enough with a little imagination," Steward said, "to detect forms of European letters in petroglyphs. It would be remarkable if there were not such coincidences.

Is to 'tolow one whose vocation is such that there are incessant demands compelling the renunciation of home and the comforts of a settled life. Only the call of God can make one equal to the demands of such a hazardous life" (Edward E. Anderson).

Observe that even the demands which love may present on behalf of an aged father must not be per-mitted to stand between the disciple and his Lord. There is no thought and his Lord. There is no thought of unkindness or lack of consideration here, for as our Lord points out, those who are spiritually dead, although still physically alive, may well be called on to care for the physical needs of an aged parent, even in the hour of death, if the Lord Jesus has work for His disciple

Lord Jesus has work for His disciple to do elsewhere.

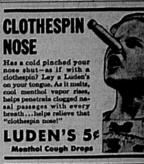

There is no thought of neglect of the duties of life, but rather of a placing of the Lord first, whatever else may take the second place. The blight upon many a Christian experience is that almost anything else which is of interest is allowed to take first place and the Lord to take first place and the Lord given any place at all.

III. Divine Power Demonstrated are unable to see the workings of God's power in the spiritual realm because they themselves have not been spiritually born again (I Cor. been spiritually born again (1 Cor. 2:14). For these the Lord here pre-sented the working of His mighty power in the realm of nature. Satan, who is "the prince of this world" (John (14:30) had evidently whipped the waves of the sea into a mighty storm, possibly thus hop-ing to drown Jesus and get rid of ing to drown Jesus and get rid of his divine adversary, but the Lord Himself speaks in the majesty of His eternal power and we read that "there was a great calm" (v. 26). Even His disciples were strangely astonished that the very "winds and the sea obey Him." Yes, the forces of nature respond to His slightest word. The winds and the sea obey Him. But what is even more wonderful is that the turmoil of a man's soul becomes a great and blessed calm when this holy Lord Jesus speaks the word of Lord Jesus speaks the word of woman who reads these words, will you not now by faith submit yourself to the One who can speak to you, who can meet and satisfy every one of your needs, and who can give you the blessed privilege of sacrificial service on His behalf in a needy world?

FAIR PLAY

The actress was appearing in a breakfast scene where eggs were being served, and a child sitting in a box made manifest his interest in the food. Stepping down to the footlights the actress tendered the youngster an egg; but his mother drew back her child with a sign of annovance.

"You should let the young man take it," said the actress quietly. "It is quite extraordinary for eggs to be passed from this side of the footlights."

Diagrammed here is the $150,000 snow cruiser designed by Dr. Thomas Poulter at Chicago's Armour institute for Admiral Richard E. Byrd's exploration trip to the Antarctic. It averages 10 miles an hour, and in its 27-ton body carries enough fuel for a non-stop New York-San Francisco trip and back. It carries a plane on its back. Each wheel has a separate motor and tires are changed by raising the axle internally, letting the body rest on the snow.

Two others in the ship were killed, and a third injured.

TEEN-AGE GIRLS ENJOY MAKING HOMEMADE BREADS

Homemade Breads-Hot and Cold

Yes, even girls in the 'teen age or types and who in all the world does not enjoy eating them? Bread after all is still very much the staff of life and fortunately our modern up-to-date experi-mental food kitchens are constantly developing for all of us a large num-ber of brand new—good-to-eat, hot or cold, bread recipes of the broadest possible variety.

The making of yeast breads the modern simplified way is certainly a far cry from some of the difficul-ties that our grandmothers or even our mothers may have experienced when they made it regularly-years ago.

In the first place, yeast is now readily obtainable both in moist or dry form. Furthermore we now know that we can help to regulate the rapidity with which the whole bread-making process can proceed by adding more or less yeast—more if we want to hurry the rising—less if there is no particular reason for speed.

Then too, we have learned to watch the temperature of the dough a little more care-fully and we know that if kept know that if kept at the just right temperature, neither too hot nor too cold, the bread can be trusted to rise as it should and to develop while ris-

develop, while ris-ing, the best possible homemade

Then we have learned some modern recipe adaptations of those nev-er-to-be-forgotten butterscotch rolls parker house rolls and coffee kuch-ens that our mothers used to make. All of which brings me to sharing with you now some of my favorite yeast and baking powder, hot and cold bread recipes. Here they are:

Yeast Bread. (Makes 3 medium loaves)

2 cups milk 1½ teaspoons salt

1½ tablespoons sugar 2 tablespoons shortening

2 cakes compressed yeast 4 cup lukewarm water % cup bread flour

Scald milk and to it add the salt sugar, and shortening. Cool until lukewarm. Soften yeast in warm water and add to the scalded milk mixture. Add just enough flour to make a stiff batter and beat well. Then add enough more flour to make a firm but soft dough. Mix well, turn out- on a floured board, and knead until the dough is smooth and elastic and until small blisters form on the dough itself. Place in a on the dough itself. Place in a well-greased bowl and brush with melted fat. Cover and place in a melted fat. Cover and place in a warm (not hot) place to rise. When dough has a little more than doubled in bulk, knead it down lightly and let it rise again. When light again, shape into loaves and place in well-greased bread tins. Grease top of loaves with melted fat. Let rise until bread has again doubled in volume. Bake 40-45 minutes in a hot oven (425 degrees). oven (425 degrees).

Miracle Rolls. 2 cups boiling water % cup and 1 teaspoon sugar 1 tablespoon salt

21/2 cups bread flour ½ teaspoon salt 1 teaspoon cinnamon

½ teaspoon soda

1 teaspoon baking powder 34 cup sour milk
