1931 Cantaloupe Movement Equal To Preceding Year; Cars Re-Iced Here

Re-icing of cars of cantaloupes from California at the Southern Ice and Utilities Company's loading rack here Friday afternoon was only 18 cars less than for the corresponding period of 1930, according to E. A. Kelley, manager.

The 1930, mark was believed, however, with Saturday's re-icing. More than 100 cars were handled yesterday by the ice company.

In each instance, the initial cantaloupe car arrived May 8. From that date to June 19, inclusive, 1590, 2392 cars were re-iced. This does not include other re-icing, such as fruits and vegetables moving out of the Imperial Valley, and routed over the Texas and Pacific Railway.

Kelley predicts that 7,000 cars of cantaloupes and 2,000 cars containing other perishable goods, will be handled this season here.

The season will last until about August 15, when the movement of fruit will show a marked decrease.

20-Acre Unit Plan Tried In Flush Region

East Texas Curb Would Bring Recovery Says A.P.I. President

TYLER, June 20 (AP)—Proration umpires and oil operators in the East Texas field were checking to determine the extent today of the voluntary action undertaken by oil operators in shutting in their wells to a limit of 300 barrels of production per 20-acre unit in an emergency effort to curb proration.

The plan was proposed by Tom E. Crullif, president of the Independent Petroleum Association of Texas.

LONGVIEW, June 20 (AP)—The Crullif voluntary proration plan allowing 300 barrels of oil daily for each 20 acres took effect at 10 a. m. today.

Some operators started running the new quota yesterday but a few expected to wait until Monday.

Hubert M. Harrison, general manager of the East Texas Chamber of Commerce, announced that its directors had approved the plan by mail referendum.

The plan would make daily production in East Texas total approximately 220,000 barrels, instead of 339,000 barrels, last week's daily flow.

TULSA, Okla., June 20 (UP)—E. B. Reaser, president of the American Petroleum Institute, said that news of the crude oil and gasoline price increase in California was "pleasing" to the industry.

"It proves that proration has been actually accomplished and, when observed, brings its own reward. I believe the industry could recover quickly if East Texas would accept the plan," Reaser said.

By WILL ROGERS
Well all I know is just what I read in the papers, or what I see in a movie, or what I see in a picture. I was making a movie here the other week of Booth Tarkington's "The Cat and the Hat." That's what it was called. But its liable to be released under the title, "Riches Traded for Virtue of the Gangsters." Lost! Well in the picture my family and I are one of the Mediterranean Queens, and we go to Morocco or some country down there where it's hot, and full of Arabs and Combs, and Riffs. Well I will say one thing for Hollywood. If you want a couple hundred real "Arabs" in a scene, you just let the casting Department let it be known that you do and you get that many real Arabs. Anytime when the sun you want, its in Hollywood. I believe you could stand up a hundred Equinox and if you want the Walking Wall in Jerusalem you can get that with the original cast, in fact the Producer of the Pictures will join in with the mob, the way business has been lately.

Now among these Arabs, and Turks, and Foreign Legions, and if we needed a few big "Senagambians" Big colored boys, in their bare skin. Well out here there is an awful lot of Prize Fighters, and "Awful" is right, and every old time Pug is here, and among em is a lot of Ex Colored Fighters that work around the Pictures.

Well we had the greatest gang on the street scene in Algeria, or wherever it was. I was raised down south, by and with colored folks around Claremore, in their colored Rogers, that their folks belonged to our family, (they took the name you know when they was freed). They got more humor and good nature than any race in the World. Well there was two or three of these old Boys that hadnt been spoiled. One was Sam Baker, a pretty good fighter three or four years ago. He fought Willis, and was a trial sparring Partner for Dempsey. Then there was I think it was Lester Albert Johnson, and Vir Alexander.

Well the Director couldnt get me on the set for laughing at these birds kidding each other about fights. I believe Sam Baker talked the best fight of all. They got him to fight about the time he was sent to Island, Ore., to fight a friendly war, he was making the famous march through the Buckwheat field, bowing em over on one and two knees.

Well listen just a minute to Sam Baker, and you will get an earful of modern Fisticuffs. I was working down here in Hollywood, wasnt bothering a Soul. I had a nice part, suttie uniform, taking care of the front door at a high hat Club. Dis Gentleman had been assassinating around all up and down, and it seemed like in Oakland, another "Colored Boy, or something was to go out in the fourth round, and didnt, he stayed till the sixth, and could a stayed for a week, but his seconds throwed in a towel, when all that had happened to him was that he was jes going against de rules. He jes wouldnt lay down. Well I had fit up around Portland, and I had been "Big Shot" and eat mighty regular up around there, so they sent for me to come to Portland. Well I aint been training en nothing but Close Ups, down here in Hollywood, but they told me they will fix things, and they also had em fixed when I got there.

"I is called on by a couple of Gun men, who inform me that there is One Thousand dollars, and its mine to keep, hold or destroy, BUT here the Guns come into the scene. That I was to go out in the first round. First round understand. Not to get my dates mixed and dive in the second, but the 1st. Another Colored Boy crossed us, and we been hunting for him for two weeks. But we sent going to hunt for you, you are right here where your body will be found. If you carries all this out according to de affidavit, you gets another thousand, and if you dont you is carried out. You aint to hit this Gentleman in de face. He got a Movie Contract in view, and he dont want to jepson his chances. You play for his stomach, but you dont pay hard. You make it look like you is going somewhere but aint. You jes headed that way, thats all.

"Den they showed me they still had their Guns, and then rubbed em under my nose, and axed me if I could smell em. I told em I had a cold, but could get a sort of iden what was around. Well den I got to thinking to myself after dey is gone. Here I am in my old stamping grounds of Portland, and I got a lot of folks that thinks I am still the "Big Shot," so dey is liable to bet on me, and if they sees me taking a nose dive, they liable to have some G-men see. So I call em back and ask em about this, they say, there aint going to be but two Pistols in that Hall that night and these is both of em. And you want to have that six foot five ready for nap not later than the first round see.

"Well they goes on out, and I says to myself, there aint no sensible arguing against a thing like that. Sammy you is out now. I goes down to the Gymnasium and makes out like I is training, but I is just hopping around eating all I can get slipping a little Gin on the side. I aint worrying about him, any more than he is about me. He knows I am fixed and I knows I am fixed. But I do wants to make it look like as good as I can. I been setting around here in these Pictures so I figure I can do me some tricks and there I hang with both hands down, he steps in and starts hitting me, one after the other. "East Lynne," With Ann Harding, Opening At Ritz

Old Favorite Takes On New Heart Appeal

Clive Brook, Conrad Nagel Support Queen of Films In Picture

Never before in the history of the audible screen has an entertainment vehicle been so elaborately planned as Frank Lloyd's production, "East Lynne," the Fox Movietone, starring Ann Harding with Clive Brook and Conrad Nagel in the chief supporting roles, which opens today at the Ritz Theatre for a 3-day run. Under the personal supervision of Mr. Winfield Sheehan, Vice President and General Manager in charge of production of Fox Film Corporation, four months of exacting research work was performed before the first camera crank was turned.

Mr. Sheehan sent scouts to England, where the play, "East Lynne" originated and others to Vienna, Paris and other continental cities that serve as production locales. For detailed and accurate data.

Even the courts of Europe were invaded for none other than one of Queen Mary's most informed ladies-in-waiting was signed for the purpose of lending absolute accuracy to the mannerisms of the grand dame who appears in "East Lynne." Minute studies were made of every actress who ever played the role, Isabel, Old newspaper reviews were copied and every manuscript ever written was obtained. Consumers, too, traced down the clothes worn during the time the story takes place.

With the information at his command Mr. Sheehan then went ahead with his own plans. He assigned Tom Barry and Bradley King to write the Movietone version of "East Lynne" and Frank Lloyd who receives the directorial award from the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, to direct the production.

Next came the selection of players. Every important female star aspired to the role of Isabel, but it remained for Ann Harding, beautiful heroine of "Holiday," and one of Broadway's most prominent actresses to be given the assignment. The signing of Miss Harding was no simple matter, for she was under contract to a rival producer, but Mr. Sheehan's determination and diplomatic negotiations finally won him her services. He then signed Clive Brook, Conrad Nagel, Cecilia Loftus, Beryl Mercer and O. P. Heggie for the important supporting roles. Brook was cast as Lyson, Isabel's lover, while Nagel was assigned the role of her husband, Carlyle.

Mr. Sheehan next placed Joseph Urban, noted designer and architect under contract to design the luxurious settings. And as a final stroke he engaged Richard Fall, famous Viennese composer, to write incidental music.

Then started weeks of constant and arduous rehearsing, for not until every phase of the production has been rendered letter perfect did actual shooting start. Previews would indicate that Mr. Sheehan and the Fox Film Corporation have been fully repaid for the time, study and effort they put in on this Movietone production, for "East Lynne" is hailed as the greatest photoplay ever produced since the screen began to talk.

'Rango' Shows Jungle Life

Malay Tiger Hunter and Son Only Humans In Cast

Human drama as well as natural drama are interwoven in "Rango," the adventure-story epic which comes to the Queen Theatre on Friday and Saturday.

"Rango" is concerned with the lives, and the difficulties in preserving them, of four individuals—two humans and two apes.

An old Malay tiger hunter and his son are the humans. They live in a bamboo shack on top of poles out of tiger-reach in the heart of the Sumatra jungle.

The apes are "Tua," the father, and "Rango," the little two-year old son.

The heavy villains of this exciting story are the tigers who prey upon man and beast alike and who fear nothing.

A population of many other kinds of strange, amusing and fearsome beasts plays in the "mob scenes" as extras.

SILVER LAME GOWN AT COURT OF ST. JAMES

PARIS (AP)—Mrs. Harry Synes Lehr, widow of the widely known New York cotton leader, chose a gown of silver lame for her recent presentation at the court of St. James.

FATHER'S DERBY SUPPLIES DESIGN

PARIS (AP)—The design of father's derby has been borrowed for mother's summer chapeau. The newest hats to wear with street costumes are designed with flat rounded crowns and brims which curl at the side. The most fashionable models are made of coarse chalk white straw, banded with white straw, banded with white grosgrain ribbon, finished with crystal slides. They are designed particularly to wear with black wool or silk summer tailors.

Jackie Cooper and Robert Coogan, Mitzi Green and Jackie Searl To Be Seen At Ritz During Week In 'Skippy'

With scrappy mutts to play with, new trashpiles to explore, the breakfast cereal to be tumbled through before its inundation with cream and sugar—who wouldn't, maybe, be a little laggard going to school, a little slack in washing behind the ears, a little slow to get rid of mud turtles, grasshoppers, and other kindred menagerie?

A short trip to Shanty Town on the other side of the tracks, down to Sooky's house, with tomboy Eloise dogging your steps, into Mrs. Wayne's jam and jelly, face-to-face with the dog-catcher—and your favorite mutt, Penny, hasn't a license—who wouldn't feel the throb of a thrill, a lump in their throat?

New games to play, new scraps to solve, suspicious new neighbor kids to be tried out, land of a shenanigan kid day wonders—Shanty Town; who wouldn't shed a tear for its passing? And even if your father didn't well, perhaps didn't really, sign the board of health warrant for the passing of this juvenile heaven—wouldn't you, none the less, sigh at the loss?

With just a little manner of three dollars standing between Penny, that's Sooky's dog, and puppy heaven, who wouldn't try to give a show to save a life, even if Eloise did have to pay big for reciting her new poem?

And when you think your best friends are going to be evicted, your playground spoiled; when you think your worst enemy has triumphed, and even your father seems aligned against you—and the fun suddenly shines through, wouldn't you throw your hat in the air and cheer and cheer and cheer?

Well, that's just what audiences—the kids when the papas and mamas give them a chance—down at the Ritz Theatre are doing this week, on Friday and Saturday.

For "Skippy," Paramount's living talking, breathing, wailing picturization of Percy Crosby's famous kid cartoon, is in town. And it has been cunningly dialogued by Don Marquis; and cleverly directed by Norman Taurog.

If you liked "Tom Sawyer," you'll love "Skippy."

Jackie Cooper, with the serious old man bubbling from boyish features is ideal in the title role; and he is ably supported by Robert Coogan, the "Kid's" own kid brother, Mital Green, Jackie Searl, Enid Bennett and Helen Jerome Eddy. You'll find it "irritatingly" very much worth your while.

HOW'S your HEALTH

Edited by Dr. Ingo Goldstein Academy of Medicine

MAN'S MONEY VALUE

The value of an individual human life cannot be measured in terms of money.

What mother, for example, could say how much her child is worth to her, except in the endearing terms of "millions and millions."

And yet to society as a whole each individual has a monetary value. It costs money to bring a child into the world, to feed, clothe, house and educate it.

These costs can be estimated. If not for specific individuals, at least for groups of individuals.

It is of value to know these costs for they can serve as an intelligent basis on which to determine compensation for personal injury and in directing and stimulating trends in public health work.

It is also a help in certain circumstances to be able to conceive of one's self and associates in terms of business investments, for no community and no civilization can long survive if its essential affairs are conducted contrary to good business.

Dr. Dublin and Lotka have written a book on "The Money Value of Man." In it they calculate the average cost of being born at $200. The average cost to the parents of bringing up a child to the age of 18 is $7425.

To the community, however, the costs are substantially higher, for out of every 100,000 children born only 57,182 will reach the 18th year due to premature death. 42,818 will have dropped out of the running.

As an economic investment child-rearing represents a loss which good business sense would urge one to safeguard with all the means available.

In society someone has to pay the bill for premature death, for sickness and for all impaired lives. Ultimately these costs are assessed upon all living and productive persons, adding to their economic burden.

This realization is devoid of sentiment, but it is wholesome and deserves to be dwelt upon.

Hollywood Sights

By ROBBIN COONS
HOLLYWOOD: The ambition to write after finishing in pictures is the profession of dozens of Hollywood actors.

Some who are making money actively at it while picture fortunes are still in the air can be counted on the fingers of two hands.

Elsa Landi, with two novels already published and a third forthcoming, and Carman Barrow, the girl who is same to Hollywood as a writer before becoming an actress, lead the list.

Lois Moran has had magazine articles published, and writes constantly. Joyce Compton is working on a novel, and Estelle Taylor penables seriously.

LESSONS IN WRITING

Ann Harding has engaged a young secretary whose principal duty will be to instruct her in the art of the short story and literary construction generally.

To David M. Rivers the life of a successful writer begins as the student in a room to be devoted to the preparation to travel being a feature to anticipate.

He has a first novel under way no matter how long it takes to write. He does not care how long it takes to write, but he does care how long it takes to get it published.

He has had only one or two weeks vacation since he passed through Hollywood more than a year ago with all thousands of actors abandoned and was drafted for a leading role in "Johnny's End."

He has picture ambitions too, to get to the top, but after that, "I want to be through with pictures and write," he says.

"Just how writing is a luxury, I hope to make enough out of it to get out of it as a profession. I'll be happy if I can have even one good novel published before I die."

CHICKEN ARM

The wave of economy which has swept the studios, effecting more efficiency in operation and a minimization of costs, as well as the exclusion of time-taking visitors, has given rise to numerous "chicken arms." Why is this studio called Jack Warner's chicken ranch?

To which the answer is of course, "Because the studio manager is always running around saying 'Cut! Cut!'"

Mrs. T. A. Ashley, Mrs. J. P. Watkins, and Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Hayden of Huntington Park, Calif., spent Friday in Sweetwater.

Miss Grace Gaddis, of San Angelo, is spending the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Seth H. Parsons.

Mad Pursuit
BY JESSIE DOUGLAS FOX

SYNOPSIS: Nora Lake, beset by disappointments, seriously considers Jonathan Thayer's proposal to sleep with him. He would leave Jonathan, whom he had wed after hastily concluding that Nora had helped her father, Julian Lake, in his plot to pose as the painter of the late Nicholas Thayer's pictures. When Frances, Nora's cousin, returns from a stay in a sanatorium, she tells Nora that her estranged husband, David Lindsay, is to return to her and their two children. Until that moment Nora had thought Fran and young Dr. Ficus More in love, although when Nora had told him so he had called her blind and kissed her. Then the reunited Lindsays leave for Arizona. Nora wondering whether Fran had lacked the courage to go with Fergus.

Chapter 34 JULIAN SEES HIMSELF

AFTER the train carrying David and Fran and their children had gone they all came back to a house that seemed empty and forlorn.

Pettie Baker lay in the hall with his black nozzle between his brown paws.

"Poor old Pettie, you miss them, don't you?" Nora whispered.

He thumped his tail once on the floor and was still.

Fergus had to hurry off at once. Aunt Em said she would have time for three lessons; Hallic disappeared into her tiny room. Love went on. The people that you loved dropped out of your life and you had to go on as though nothing had happened.

Someone was playing a tattoo on the front door and Nora tried out to find her father there.

He looked very shabby, but there was still an air of shabby gaiety about him. She had agreed to see him, she expected a broken man, a faded painter, but he was unchanged.

"Don't look at me as though I'm a changed man. It was a bad break, but such things will happen."

She drew him into the back parlor and closed the door. He asked her what had happened until she told him what Damon intended to do.

"I'll go away again. She won't find me."

"Julian, you can't! Go out to Damon and tell her you're willing to go through with it."

"I can't do that."

He walked the room. Suddenly, he laid bare the dark secrets, the small things that had humiliated him and burned in his heart. The terrible struggle to keep from breaking down, to come at last to some kind of recognition. He had had no talent, and even earnest work had not brought him anything but jeers. But he had gone on hoping. Nora had only half guessed these things, but as he talked she remembered days when he had, pained when they had not been, feverishly hopeful over some poor daub.

"Everyone laughing at me. And I thought some day I'd show them."

He was walking up and down the before her the story of those years. Even these last weeks that he had spent at Cape Cod had been an unbearable struggle to go on with the craft he loved. He had slept in the barn of an artist, eaten there and when he could, penniless, too proud to let her know.

"I'd earn my dinner with a story, by making them laugh at me. God, I knew that too!"

Nora sat still. For her father had stripped himself of all his glamour and showed her it was his hope that some day he would succeed. It was dreadful for her to see him with the look in his eyes of a dog who has been kicked.

"I'm a failure and what's worse—a fool."

"Don't, Julian, don't," she whispered.

But now he could not stop. He cursed himself for having brought her nothing but misery. She saw clearly that in this last dreadful thing he had done, he had thought of her and Aunt Em and Hallic, of what money could do for them.

"Money, it's always money. The secret of happiness—if there is any such thing—is money."

He called himself a vagabond, a failure, a fool. He did not listen to her as she told him that she still believed in him. For he had stripped away the last illusion. He had faced himself at last and his long-buried sense of frustration and fear sprang out at him in full force to throttle him.

"You only an old vagabond," he said at last sinking down on the couch.

"Julian darling, we're both vagabonds," she laughed with a dread-ful broken note in her voice. "No matter what Damon does we can bear it."

The name of Damon roused him to fresh anger. He accused Damon now in his half-maddened state for his downfall, for the jarring laughter that would always follow the mention of his name. He turned on her all the force of his hatred of himself. He scarcely knew what he was now, but it was fright-ful.

When he ceased yelling Damon had very still and Nora did not dare to go near him. He might break down and she could not bear that. Her father had thrown a brilliant starlight on his past, and she saw now why she had loved him so deeply even when he was most rash and impractical; for he had struggled toward an ideal. And falling that, he seemed to care for nothing else.

"She did not know how long she sat there in that silence. She could not find a word to say, and she did not dare to put her arm about his shoulders. If he should break down she felt as though it would be the end of everything.

Then at last he looked up. The old Julian with his fire and charm stood before her.

"I must make her see; she can't do what she means to do."

"What do you mean?"

"I'm going."

"Where?"

"It's a place I have to find alone."

"I believe in you," she lied staunchly.

But he smiled at her, flung open the door, tramped down the hall. She saw him run down the steps like a boy. But when she went to the window to watch him go past she saw he was a shabby old man who walked as though he had lost his purpose. She stood there until he disappeared, tears blinding her.

The day passed somehow. She spent part of it looking up and down the street to see if her father were not coming back. She should have gone with him. But she knew he would not have allowed it. He was going to Damon. Perhaps Damon would not go on with the suit. But if he did... if Julian were sent to prison...

How empty the house was! Without the children it seemed forlorn, only the sound of Hallic's typewriter tapping so steadily. Mr. Dusenbury had only allowed her to have the morning to see Fran off. But after seeing her father she could not go back to the office.

She walked about, waiting for Fergus to come home. But when he returned he had his office hours to keep. At last the patients were gone. Nora went in to him.

"Fergus, Julian's been here. He was going to see Damon. He hasn't come back. Fergus, I'm frighten-ed."

"Steady now," he said, "nothing's happened, has it?"

"No, but something may."

"Do you want me to drive you out there?"

"If you would, Fergus?"

He wrapped her up in the rug when they got in his car, but she shivered as she turned to ask him, "You shouldn't go away like this should you?"

"It's all right, Nora."

She clung to his strength now, but she had never known the drive to be so long. She leaned forward as though she could urge on the car that jolted and bumped over the road. Far off she could see the river with its floating cakes of ice. At last they were on the driveway. Deep violet shadows lay on the snow and the sun struck gold from the windows of the old house.

"Go and ask Fergus, if Damon is there. If she's all right."

She sat huddled under the rug, her face so wild and white that Fergus could not bear to look at her. She watched him disappear. Fergus found her sitting like a bird huddled in its feathers when he returned to her.

"Damon isn't home. She and your father went for a walk along the river."

"Oh, Fergus!"

"Oh, Fergus!"

She sprang from the car. Nothing could keep her now from going with him. They walked toward the river and found a trodden path that ran beside it, and skirted the woods. Nora hurried beside Fergus without a word. As far as they could see this path was empty. She clutched his arm. Her father couldn't have gone anything. But she remembered those wild threats he had made against Damon.

"Oh, Fergus, I can't see them anywhere," she cried. "I can't see their footprints. Do you suppose—"

The Movietest

A Game of Skill for Everybody!

As usual, The Big Spring Herald does the unusual. Fascinating as it may be—delightful as it is, THE MOVIE TEST will mean still more to the readers of the Big Spring Herald.

THE MOVIE TEST is going to be PROFITABLE. FIFTY Cash Prizes are to be awarded—prizes that will be well worth winning.

Yet no person entered in THE MOVIE TEST will be required to compete against any other person from the standpoint of obtaining subscriptions. It isn't that kind of a contest.

THE MOVIE TEST IS "A GAME OF SKILL FOR EVERYBODY." The school boy has the same chance to win as the college professor. The stenographer has the same opportunity as the bank president.

This engrossing new feature calls upon you to make use of common brains with which you were born. It calls for good, common "horse sense"—in other words a type of mental ability that is just as apt to be found in a grammar-school pupil as in a university graduate.

Haven't you often wondered just how much natural ability you have?

THE MOVIE TEST is your one big chance to find out. —AND YOU CAN WIN A CASH PRIZE at the same time.

FATHER'S DAY

By Lloyd Middlecombe
Father is a noble soul
And pays up all the bills;
He helps us out of many a hole
And boosts us up the hills.

We don't know how we'd get along
If it weren't for our Dad;
When life's old way gets rough
And long
He helps us all feel glad.

He gets up early Sunday morn'
And shines up the sedan,
Forgets the links for Sunday school,
Stays for church like a man.

Tis a long time they have waited,
But I'm pleased right now to say—
They've finally fixed the calendar
And made this Father's Day.

Old shroud-like shower curtains had to go in the beautifying of the modern bathroom and the new ones seem gorgeous enough to hang on windows.

For a bathroom in orchid, with green fixtures, a design of lotus blossoms and rushes in yellow will produce a delightful atmosphere.

But still the designers are not content. Soon the stores will show that the artist's have left the quiet waters to make our dreams of strange fish, branching coral and other sea life come true!

Sharlow, New Metropolitan Singer, Won Fame By 'Taking Every Hurdle'

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—When the Metropolitan Opera company wafes its silvery arias toward the golden horseshoe this winter there will be numbered among its songsters a stately, dark-haired soprano who began her march toward opera portals from North Dakota prairies.

And Cyra Sharlow declares she is there because, along the march, she took a hurdle every time it loomed ahead—and refused "to get scared."

She was born in Jamestown, N. D., where her father was a teacher. Before long the family moved to St. Louis, where he worked as a river boatman, a policeman and anything else he could get to support his family and where 13-year-old Myrna took all the piano lessons for which she could scrape pennies together.

"What a voice!" said Marcus Epstein, her piano teacher, when he heard her sing one day. "You'll have to cultivate it."

"I can't afford to," said Miss Myrna.

"You can't afford not to," was the terse rejoinder.

A great-uncle of means came to the rescue and provided the wherewithal for two years' study in St. Louis and another two in New York.

Then came an offer to sing minor parts with the Boston Opera company and a chance to take her first hurdle. Mme. Nellie Melba, the prima donna, fell ill and was unable to sing to Mimì in "La Bohème." Miss Sharlow was asked to sing the part on a few hours' notice.

"No, of course, I wasn't scared," she said. "The only thing I was afraid of was that Melba would get word in time to sing."

Since then she has made first appearances in "Romeo and Juliet," "Aida," "Cavalleria Rusticana," "Maidame Butterfly," and a number of other operas—all on a few hours' notice.

She learned role after role just as she could "pinch hit" when the time came.

She has made appearances abroad at Covent Garden in Naples and in Paris, and has sung with the Chicago Grand Opera company, the Cincinnati Grand Opera company and the Columbia Grand Opera company on the Pacific coast.

Mme. Sharlow is married to T. E. Hitchcock, an American newspaper man, and is the mother of a six-year-old son whose favorite singer is Al Jolson and who lives for two ambitions—a new bicycle and, some day, a conductor's baton.

She is one of three Americans who will make their debut this winter with the Metropolitan. The date and vehicle of her debut have not yet been decided.

Fashion Decrees Still Longer Skirts; Knees Now Completely Out Of Sight

BY DIANA MERWIN
(Associated Press Fashion Editor)

PARIS (AP)—Longer skirts is the latest fashion cry.

The daytime frocks and suits exhibited at the last style collections displayed skirts from two to three inches longer than early spring models, putting knees completely out of sight.

The fashionable woman this summer will wear her luncheon and shopping frocks 12 inches from the ground, while formal afternoon gowns have "dropped" to six inches from the floor.

Only two exceptions to the new dictum mark the mode. Sport skirts are worn no longer than four inches below the knee and informal dinner and evening frocks terminate at the ankles.

The ankle length frock for restaurant dining is one of the favorite fashions these days, although formal evening gowns miss the floor by less than an inch.

With the rule for longer skirts has come a tendency to accented hemlines. Many daytime suits and frocks have hems scalloped, pinked, piped or faced underneath with a color lighter than the frock.

A favorite evening elegance is the transparent hem ruche which Frocks of lace, net or filmy chiffon are worn over kneelength slips or different colored combinations ending in trousered shorts, permitting ankles and slippers to be at least partially revealed.

The transparent hem ruche has produced more colorful and interesting designs in evening slippers, one of the newest being a toeless sandal worn without stockings.

Chic Women Now Put Gems Aside; Necks Unadorned

PARIS—Yes, we have no diamonds, pearls, or rubies today, seems to be the summer cry of chic women now seen at smart gatherings in Paris.

Jewelry of all kinds is conspicuous for its absence. Bare necks and arms are the rule, which must be pleasing to all the numerous beauty specialists, for it means that their goods and their services are naturally more in demand than ever before.

For now the skin must be in tip-top shape with nothing to distract the attention from the forearm and shoulders and no strings of pearls to draw the eye away from the throat itself.

Some say the family jewels had to be pawned because of the prevailing hard times on both sides of the water. Others think that the women can't keep up their insurance and have sent their jewels to their banks.

Perhaps if the real truth were told, it would be something on this order:

As soon as costume jewelry, like every other known fashion, became so common, it was bound to go the way of all good things. Then, too, fashions today are not the kind that can stand cheap things. They must be the real stuff or none at all, say the smart designers. So when you see any jewelry about these days, you may be pretty certain they are real.

Old shroud-like shower curtains had to go in the beautifying of the modern bathroom and the new ones seem gorgeous enough to hang on windows.

The colorful magic can provide for the bath a setting like a forest pool or a tritic lagoon, or adapt itself to any simpler scheme of decoration.

Water lilies and lily pads, floating gracefully on a stream, are the theme of one ensemble, shower curtain, window curtains and wall-paper all in harmonious designs and colors.

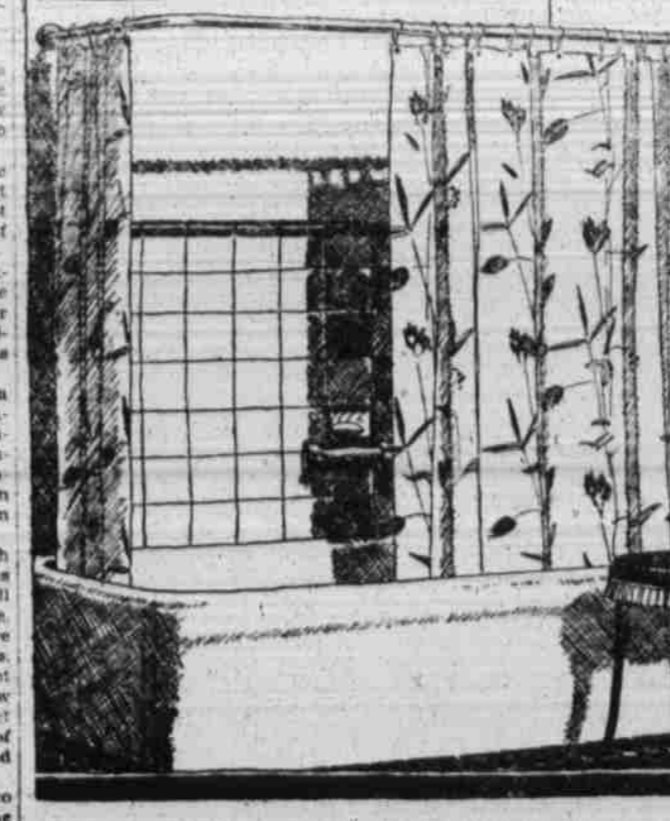

An iris design in purple on a pale orchid background is the feature of another ensemble on an interesting corded rayon. The morning tub is a new event with scenery like this and with pale green fixtures, green towels and green paper all in harmonious designs and colors.

For a bathroom in orchid, with green fixtures, a design of lotus blossoms and rushes in yellow will produce a delightful atmosphere. A number of apatel shades are available for various color schemes.

But still the designers are not content. Soon the stores will show that the artist's have left the quiet waters to make our dreams of strange fish, branching coral and other sea life come true!

Of course, you don't have to make your bathroom look like the stage set for an under-water ballet, for the art shimmering effects may be obtained in a variety of plain colors, in moires, heavy satins and failles.

All are perfectly waterproofed. The new process takes the most delicately colored fabric and Today's art has transfomed old shower curtain. Makes a shower curtain which really sheds water and is soft and washable. No, the new curtains don't crack or stick together in damp folds; they never get soaked, bedraggled or spotted with mildew. And even more wonderful—they don't give the faintest whiff of that chemical odor which seems to cling around most waterproofed things.

AKRON, O. (INS)—Sheep or goats probably will replace lawn mowers to keep down the grass on Akron's municipal airport this summer, according to R. E. Fulton, airport manager. "If the season is a rather wet one and the grass grows fast, we intend to experiment with the use of sheep or goats," he said.

"PEEK-A-BOO" FROCK STAGES COMEBACK
PARIS UP—A new version of the old "peek-a-boo" frock has swept into the style parade. Lace evening gowns shading from light brown to blue at the waist and back to brown at the hem are worn over blue slips which reach only to the knees. Another version of the style is a black and white printed chiffon dance frock, worn over a bright green foundation which consists of a bodice and full knee-length trunks.

COSTLY CROSSING STEP NEWCOMERTOWN, O. (INS)—It cost Arthur Summers $48, all the cash in his possession, to stop at a railroad crossing to allow a train to go by. While he was waiting, two robbers climbed from another machine and took his money.

INSECT ELECTROCUTION
AKRON, O. (INS)—A fly trap which electrocutes insects is the invention of a local electrician. An electric light inside of a charged cage draws the unsuspecting flies and they are killed as they strike the wiring of the cage.

The Water Bucket

BY BOBBY CAMPBELL

Hold that corks—the Lubbock sports writer has adopted a new complexion regarding just exactly what high schools should do in regard to recruiting football players for the next year. This, no doubt, was followed by a determined effort of Lubbock to entice into the fold one Willy Williams Flowers, a speedster whose antics on the Big Spring gridiron last year brought forth a huge amount of favorable publicity of the curly locked youth.

Vanderbilt To Obtain Divorce

By EARL H. LEIF United Press Staff Correspondent RENO, Nev., June 20 (UP)—Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., today filed suit for divorce from Mrs. Vanderbilt.

Extremes cruelty was charged in the complaint. Vanderbilt was represented by Attorney Sam Platt. A property settlement will be arranged later, it was announced between Platt and Attorney Wm. Woodburn representing Mrs. Vanderbilt.

The desert race in which Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr. failed a revolver as he pursued but failed to catch Peter Arno, the caricaturist, was believed today to have been arranged to provide grounds for a suit.

The flare-up was treated lightly by Reno authorities, especially after Mrs. Vanderbilt gave her own version of the affair—a version that coincided in few respects with Vanderbilt's original account. Woodburn, attorney for Mrs. Vanderbilt, who intended to counter today with Vanderbilt's "confidential" story, said the young author "made a mountain out of a mole hill."

Speaking for Mrs. Vanderbilt, Woodburn said Arno drove her home early last Monday from a party at a night club. Vanderbilt also attended, and drove home behind "with another girl," Woodburn stated.

THE MILEAGE QUESTION There have been all sorts of arguments introduced on the question of mileage limitation, for men engaged in train and yard service, most of which is based on the particular conditions governing the individual.

He either wants to work enough for a comfortable livelihood, with time off to enjoy some of the good things of life, or he wants to work every possible day or mile that can be squeezed in the month's earnings. Very few consider the question with the thought in mind that an improvement in employment conditions would result through a limitation in miles and overtime during the depression now on us.

Very few seem to realize that working excessive miles and overtime during the depression of business, such as we are now going through, is very apt to reflect badly on our present low daily rate of pay. And few seem to realize that this question must be considered and properly handled in the near future.

The chief obstacle to a limitation rule at this time, seems to be the seniority rule. The seniority rule is with doubt one of the cardinal rules of the wage schedules, now in effect. However, the principle on which this rule is based, is exactly the same principle upon which a limitation rule is based, and the adoption of a limitation rule would not in any way disturb the seniority rules of our schedules.

The limitation rule would have a tendency to more equally distribute the work among our extra and cut-off men. But the senior man would always have the same protection he now has under the seniority rule, that is, the right to the last laid off, in reduction of forces, the right of preference in the selection of runs or jobs.

The only thing he would lose is something he never had, that is, the right to work excessive miles or hours, without regard or respect to or for trainmen or yardmen, who are parties to the contract under which he works. We should not hesitate in adopting a rule, that would be a benefit to the majority, and in our efforts to conserve rules, let us not forget that humanity, sometimes rises above organization rules, and that sometimes rules must perish that may may live.

The man who makes seniority his God demands right to participate in all good things, but declines to in any measure give up a thing that would help to alleviate the privations, hardships and sorrows of the less fortunate, who through no fault of their own, are cut off or on the extra board.

The privilege to contribute to the support of the contracts, and scheduler, is not denied them, but participation in the benefits of these contracts is extended to the fortunate senior man. Our public trainmen need encouragement and help. There is much suffering among them, and there is much heartbreak.

Governor Murray Completes Staff In Two Slayings

OKLAHOMA CITY, June 20 (UP)—Selection of prosecutors in the trial of two deputy sheriffs charged with murder in the slaying of two prominent Mexican students at Ardmore, was completed by Gov. W. H. Murray today.

The governor appointed J. M. Svinger, Payne county attorney, as special prosecutor in the trial scheduled for June 23. Former Deputy Sheriffs Cecil Crosby and William E. Guess face charges in the slaying of Emilio Cortez Rubio, nephew of President Pascual Ortiz Rubio of Mexico, and his companion, Manuel Garcia Gomez. The youths were slain when the officers attempted to question them as suspicious characters.

Svinger's appointment was announced after a conference between Governor Murray, H. Valdez, the Mexican consul here, and Attorney General J. Berry King. Valdez said preparations for the trial were progressing in satisfactory manner. M. C. Gonzales, attorney with the Mexican consul-general at San Antonio, will represent the Mexican government at the Ardmore trial.

In addition to County Attorney Marvin Schilling and Springs Assistant Attorney General Frank Dudley and former Assistant Attorney General W. H. Brown will represent the state.

Texans

(CONTINUED FROM PAGE 1) nomination to one of the aspirants. Texas has voted dry for a long time and Governor Roosevelt is a wet. Colonel House referred to him as a wet who was politically acceptable to the drys, but some of the leading prohibitionists have controverted that statement.

Morris Sheppard, Texas' senior United States senator and one of the authors of the prohibition amendment, announced he favored Gov. George White of Ohio for the presidency. Other Texas prohibitionists have varied preferences. They include William G. McAdoo, an old favorite among Texans, Sen. Joe Robinson of Arkansas, a neighbor, Sen. Cordell Hull of Tennessee, Harry Byrd, former governor of Virginia, and Sen. Edward P. Costigan of Colorado.

Favorite Son? There is a possibility that Texas will give its first free vote to some "favorite son" as it did to Jesse Jones of Houston in 1928. Dan Moody, former governor has been mentioned as a possible favorite son.

Democratic leaders are working against a recurrence of the split which delivered the state to the Republicans in 1928. The platform, as well as the candidate, will determine the extent of the shift from the normal Democratic majority. A Roosevelt booster said during a conversation recently that one of the state's leading prohibitionists, a man who voted for Herbert Hoover three years ago, had agreed to support Roosevelt if he should be nominated, on the assumption that the platform would not demand modification or repeal of prohibition and that Roosevelt would stand by the platform.

Sen. Walter Woodward of Coleman, one of the state's leading prohibitionists, stated same time ago he believed Roosevelt was the "most available" candidate. Woodward admits the New York governor for his stand on the power question. Tom Connally, United States senator from Texas, said in an address to the legislature that the economic question rather than prohibition, should be the paramount issue of the 1932 campaign. A few days later, Mrs. Claude de van Watts, state president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, said Texas women were going to demand that the candidate for whom they voted, espouse the cause of prohibition.

Membership Drive Next Step In State Cotton Use Work

AUSTIN, Texas, June 20 (INS)—The roster of officials of the Association for Increased Use of Cotton today was ready to launch a state wide membership campaign as a prelude to its campaign to increase and stimulate cotton goods consumption, according to J. F. McDonald, commissioner of agriculture.

The association hopes to be, McDonald said, a connecting link between the research worker who is constantly finding new uses for the snowy staple which constitutes Texas' chief agricultural crop, and the consumer, upon whose buying trends depends the prosperity of the south.

He invited the principal research agencies as the Cotton Textile Institute, the research bureau of the U. S. department of agriculture, and the various state experiment stations. Heretofore, he said, there has been no agencies to bring the findings of these agencies before the public, and the association hopes to fill that breach. McDonald was chosen president of the Texas division. Other officers: clerical were: Vice-presidents, G. D. Ulrich, general manager of Sugarland Industries; John D. Rogers, Navasota, president of the Texas Cotton and Textile Brokers Association; Miss Lillian Poole, Austin, state department of education; Secretary treasurer, D. T. Killough, in charge of cotton work, experiment station.

The executive committee: W. H. Lee, chairman of the agricultural committee, state bankers' association; A. H. Leight, dean of Texas Technical College, Lubbock; R. E. Nichols, president, Texas Press Association; W. A. Sherman, president, Texas Cotton Producers Association; James A. Smith, president, Texas Cotton Cooperative Association; Colonel C. S. E. Holland, former chairman, agricultural committee, Texas Bankers Association; and O. R. Martin, director of extension service, College Station.

An executive secretary and an advisory committee of three is to be named within the next few days.

Smitham Elected Vice President Of State City League

LUBBOCK, Texas, June 20 (UP)—The League of Texas Municipalities will operate under a different type of organization during 1931-32, having amended its charter at the annual convention at Lubbock June 15 and 16 to authorize the formation of at least 50 subdivisions in the state.

Twenty-eight of the subdivisions already have been created, with a regional president in each. Others will be created as the organization expands. At the fourth in size in the United States, with 44 cities having membership, the league will seek to take in a majority of the more than 800 cities not now represented. The organization will be brought closer to each city through the districting plan. Each division will hold an annual meeting to discuss its own problems before the state convention is held.

Regional presidents were appointed by the executive committee as follows: Mayor L. R. York, Abilene; Mayor G. W. Baines, Alpine; City Manager V. R. Smitham, Big Spring; City Manager R. G. Williams, Bryson; Mayor Edwin Flato, Corpus Christi; Commissioner A. McDougal, Del Rio; Mayor R. E. Sherman, El Paso; Mayor W. M. Tidwell, El Paso; Mayor M. F. Smith, Georgetown; Mayor E. S. Ireland, Hereford; Mayor C. G. Robinson, La Grange; Mayor J. J. Clements, Lubbock; Mayor Charles Brown, Mineral Wells; Mayor J. E. Reese, Nacogdoches; Mayor F. W. Hayden, Pilot Point; Mayor J. B. Cardwell, Plainview; Mayor L. G. San Angelo; Mayor C. M. Chamber, San Antonio; Mayor N. C. Walker, San Saba; Commissioner R. E. Colfer, Seymour; Mayor H. G. Tuck, Sherman; Mayor L. S. Kennedy, Terrell; City Manager Lee H. Powell, Tyler; Mayor E. J. Blackett, Victoria; Mayor A. Armstrong, Wharton; Mayor Walter Nelson, Jr., Wichita Falls; Mayor T. F. Bush, Waco; Mayor Walter Andrews, Weslaco.

Bankhead North Loop Is Designated By U. S.

As U. S. No. 30 North ABILENE, Texas, June 20 (UP)—Federal designation has been granted state highway No. 1-A, north loop of the Bankhead highway from Abilene to Metcalf Gap, making it "U. S. 30 North," W. R. Ely, Texas highway commission chairman, said here after his return from Chicago, where he attended a meeting of the Association of federal and state highways. The route is to be so identified on highway maps, and the Texas department will erect markers. The south loop of the Bankhead highway, No. 1, from El Paso to Texarkana, also via Abilene, continues as U. S. 80.

Second 'Milky Way' Discovered, Declares Scientists' Association

PASADENA, Calif., June 20 (UP)—The discovery of a second "milky way" was announced today to the 88th meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science by Dr. Erwin F. Carpenter of the University of Arizona.

This milky way, he said, was composed of approximately 60 nebulae, or star clusters. He estimated its distance from the earth at about 40,000,000 light years. The largest of the star groups, he said, was about 15,000 light years in diameter. The entire cluster measured about 700,000 light years in diameter.

"The hundreds of millions of stars in this new group," the scientist said, "truly can be compared with our own milky way." Some additional argument over the age of man on the North American continent was offered by M. R. Harrington of the Southwest Museum, Los Angeles. Remains found in the gypsum caves in Nevada indicates that man has been on the continent over 10,000 years, he contended.

This age was determined by the association with extinct animals. He said the caves showed three periods plainly. In the first, primitive man and camel horses occupied the caves. This was a period of great dampness and rainfall. In the second, a dry period, the ground sloth moved with primitive man and the camel horses. Later came still a dryer period when man disappeared until 2,000 years ago when the basket-maker Indians appeared.

Dr. Barnum Brown of the American Museum of Natural History said that discovery of weapons and bones of bisons on a dry fork of the Cimarron river indicated that primitive man was in the Colorado-New Mexico-Texas section in the pleistocene period. The type of bison, which was killed with an arrow, now is extinct. It was seven feet tall, he said. He estimated this bison hunt took place 20,000 years ago.

Chiggers Destroy Trees This Year

AUSTIN, June 20 (UP)—The ordinary "chigger" which causes such great physical pain and mental anguish to persons with a penchant for picnicking, is causing serious loss to owners of cedar timber lands this summer in central and west central Texas.

J. M. Del Curto, chief state entomologist, said a recent inspection of several trees disclosed the "chigger," or red spider, had established themselves by the thousands on several trees around Austin and were rapidly sucking away the sap of the cedars. Trees most heavily attacked have started turning brown and are drooping. Del Curto said.

The chigger is visible to the eye only through a microscope and its residence is discernible only when it has caused serious damage to the trees. This is the first summer in eight years that cedar trees have been affected, Del Curto said. He advised use of a sulphur spray on days when the temperature was high as the best method of ridding trees of the pests.

Child Labor Laws Are Explained In Gragg's Bulletin

AUSTIN, Texas, June 20 (INS)—Provisions of state child labor laws were explained in a letter mailed by R. B. Gragg, state labor commissioner, to all county judges. The letter was written, Gragg explained, not to correct any discrepancy in the administration of the law, but to establish closer contact between the labor department and those upon whom it depends in rendering aid to the working people.

County judges, the letter explained, have the authority to issue permits to juveniles between the ages of 12 and 15 to enter employment when it is necessary for them to contribute to the support of widowed mother, invalid father or other dependent members of a family. School children, regardless of age, are exempt from the permit provision and may enter employment during the vacation period except that they are not permitted to work in factories where dangerous machinery is used or in places of ill repute. The law also does not regulate child labor in agricultural pursuits, and children of any age may be employed as nursemaids, yard servants, and in private homes.

Practically all equipment for the project has been received and the building program for the community which will be located there during the 23-month construction period has been completed. There are housing facilities for several hundred men a commissary, kitchen, recreation hall, 15-bed hospital, blacksmith and machine shops, saw mill, a complete sewerage system, water works with filters and chlorinators, a laundry operated by electricity, a complete switching yard, railroad bridges and trestles.

The scene of construction activities is located in Llano county. A road has been built from Llano to the dam site and a daily bus line is in operation. A sub-postoffice station out of Llano is being sought. The Hamilton dam will be the largest of the six dams on the Colorado river for which the Emery, Peck and Rockwood Development Company of Chicago holds water rights. It will form the storage reservoir for the lower dams. It will impound water in the Colorado river, flooding 25,000 acres and furnishing storage of more than a million acre feet of water available for power to the extent of 40,000 horse power.

The dam from end to end will reach about 11,000 feet. It will consist of several structures, some connected and some isolated at points. It will vary in height in the different sections. The river section will be 140 feet high and will consist of twenty-eight 70-foot arches supported on buttresses. The Fegles Construction company, Minneapolis, has the contract for the dam, which will cost between $3,000,000 and $3,500,000.

MONCLOVA, Mexico (INS)—The state government of Coahuila has issued to the chambers of commerce and all business men invitations to cooperate in the festivities and program of events being arranged in Mexico City in connection with the World Press convention. The press congress will convene in the capitol early in the fall.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (INS)—Three cities are bidding for the next three annual national chencens.

Preliminary Work On Colorado River Dam Is Completed

LLANO, Texas, June 20 (UP)—All preliminary work connected with the Hamilton power dam project on the Colorado river, about 20 miles east of Llano has been completed and the excavation for the dam proper is under way. A quarry is in operation and sand production will begin soon. A rock crushing plant is being erected to crush 600 cubic yards of limestone each day it operates.

Practically all equipment for the project has been received and the building program for the community which will be located there during the 23-month construction period has been completed. There are housing facilities for several hundred men a commissary, kitchen, recreation hall, 15-bed hospital, blacksmith and machine shops, saw mill, a complete sewerage system, water works with filters and chlorinators, a laundry operated by electricity, a complete switching yard, railroad bridges and trestles.
