

Moisture Level Key To Grain Storage

Watching moisture content of grain crops as well as taking simple precautions can insure safe storage after harvesting, says an agricultural engineer for the Texas Agricultural Extension Service.

Richard Withers points out that an aeration system for grain cooling and moisture control is needed if the grain is stored more than two to three months.

"Harvesting efficiency can be improved significantly with some crops by harvesting at moisture contents of 18 percent or above. When grain is harvested at a moisture content higher than that recommended for safe storage, mechanical drying must be done," notes the A&M University System specialist.

Moisture contents for safe storage vary with crops. Withers suggests these moisture percentages for efficient storage: corn, 13; flax, 8; rice, 12.5; sorghum, 12-14; soybeans, 11-12; sunflowers, 8; and wheat, 12-14.

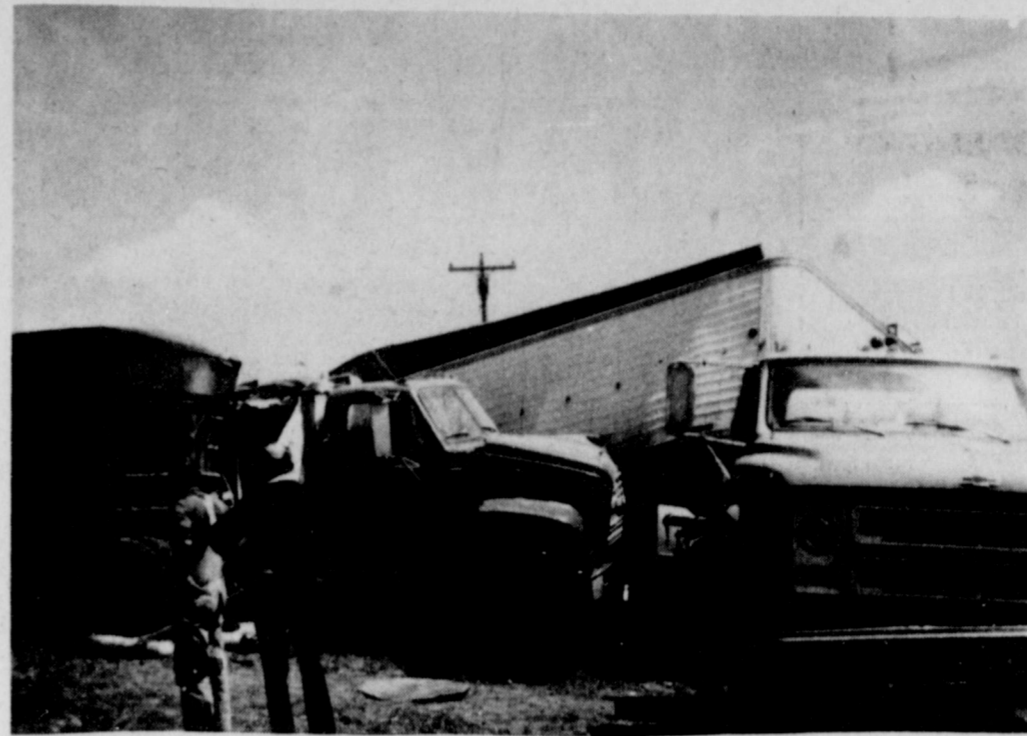

"The higher the grain temperature and moisture content, the quicker the grain must be dried mechanically to prevent mold," Withers points out.

"For example, when grain is at 90 degrees F. and has a moisture content of 18 percent, the moisture content must be reduced to 15 percent within about six-to-eight days. If the temperature is reduced to 70 degrees F., the allowable time to reduce moisture is about 30 days. Of course, in this example it is assumed that grain is being aerated during this period."

According to Withers, aeration systems for cooling grain and controlling moisture migration within the grain should supply about one-tenth cubic foot per minute (cfm) of air flow per bushel.

"Fans must be designed to provide this flow rate against

SPILLED TRUCKLOADS OF CORN--Both these huge trucks were full of corn prior to a collision which dumped corn over a wide area north of Littlefield Thursday. The dual truck accident was one of three investigated by Louis Cardinal and Jim Williams of the Texas Department of Public Safety from Muleshoe. Minor injuries were received by one of the drivers in the accident.

Police Report

Members of the various local law enforcement agencies have found themselves very busy during this week with numerous incidents to check or investigate.

During the past several days, arrests have been logged for theft of a gun, one driving while intoxicated and hit and run, an arrest on a burglary indictment and a minor in possession of liquor.

Thefts reported included stolen tools from pickups at a local motel; a CB (Citizens Band) base station and cash; a mail box shot, as well as a barn in the Enochs area; cylinders for a John Deere Disc and hoses and wrenches and a CB mobile from a vehicle.

Several minor accidents have also been investigated by city and state law enforcement officers.

the pressures developed in pushing air through the grain. If unheated air drying is carried out in the bin, an air flow rate of three-and-a-half to four cfm per bushel is required," contends the engineer.

Withers cautions that for certain crops designed for the human food industry, drying with heated air dryers may result in severe loss in grade and potential income as well as a loss in germination if the grain is to be used for planting.

"Grain temperatures should not exceed 110-120 degrees F. if germination is planned. Temperatures above this level should be allowed with extreme caution, particularly for food grains," adds Withers.

He also suggests some simple precautionary measures before storing crops.

Checking potential sources of water leaks into bins and sealing them with a good non-drying caulking compound is important. Also make sure air vents are protected from blowing rain.

"Where rust spots exist on galvanized bin surfaces, clean the surface with a wire brush and apply a good quality zinc or rust inhibiting paint," advises Withers. "Also plan for alternatives in your harvest and storage operation in case emergency drying or protection against insects is needed."

Thomas Bennett of Amherst was cited for failure to yield right of way after failing to see a vehicle driven by Esther Keith of Los Angeles, Calif. and pulled in front of the Keith vehicle.

A spectacular crash 5.8 miles North of Littlefield at 12:15 p.m. resulted in two huge trucks smashed, but only minor injuries to one of the drivers.

The police report said both vehicles were south bound when the huge truck driven by Felix Puentes Cristan signaled left and made a right turn as another large semi-truck driven by Billy Clifton Harrell attempted to pass on the right. Both drivers were cited, Cristan for improper use of turn signal and Harrell for following too closely.

The Consumer Alert

by John L. Hill
Attorney General

AUSTIN—A recent Federal Trade Commission regulation abolished "holder in due course," a doctrine that dates back more than 200 years to English common law.

Our Consumer Protection Division attorneys say you've probably come in contact with holder in due course if you've ever signed a long-term contract for something like a washing machine, although you may not have known it unless you later had trouble with the merchandise.

This is how holder in due course worked: You bought the washer from an appliance dealer on an installment contract. The dealer wants the money right away, so your contract is sold to a financial institution. You are then notified to make your payments for the washer to the financial institution.

If the appliance breaks down a month later, and the appliance dealer refuses to fix it even though it is under warranty, you might have decided to stop your payments. If you did so, the financial

The Sandhills Philosopher

Editor's note: The Sandhills Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm has drawn up a political platform of his own, but of course he's not running for anything.

Dear Editor:
The same as everybody else except the people who wrote them, I have not read the entire platforms of the Democratic or Republican parties, but I have paid enough attention to catch on to some of the main planks and I am forced to say they don't suit me. I knew they wouldn't suit me before they were written. A man who can't develop his own prejudices ahead of time isn't going to have any fun with politics. Might as well try to keep a delegate from waving a sign.

Anyway, just to be doing, I have drawn up a platform of my own, facing up to the issues as I see them!

TAX LOOPHOLES: Some people are in favor of closing the tax loopholes. I don't want them closed. I want them pointed out. CHILD CARE: A good idea. All children should take care of their parents.

BUSING: I'm in favor of outlawing busing in the Panama Canal.

ABORTION: It's not necessary to dodge this issue, the other candidates have already done it for me.

EQUAL RIGHTS: I'm in favor of equal rights, but am violently opposed to equal wrongs. Let somebody else get mugged. Of course women are free to think whatever they please, so long as they get the meals on the table on time.

FOREIGN POLICY: It will be continued till we run out of money, at which time it'll be the other countries' turn to foreign-policy us.

UNEMPLOYMENT: There should be a job for everybody who wants one, and none for those who don't.

EARTHQUAKES: Who needs them when we've got people like the citizens of Beirut?

INFLATION: Everybody else should lower his prices and leave mine alone.

If I've left out any issue, it was intentional.

Yours faithfully,
J.A.

Public Notice

Southwestern Bell, in accordance with the rules of the Public Utility Commission of Texas, hereby gives notice of the company's intent to implement a new schedule of telephone rates in Texas effective October 7, 1976.

It is expected that the requested rate schedule will furnish an 18 percent increase in the company's intrastate gross revenues.

A complete copy of the new rate schedule is on file with the Public Utility Commission at Austin, Texas, and with each affected municipality, and is available for inspection in each of the company's public business offices in Texas.

institution could have sued you and probably forced you to continue paying even though the washer didn't work. That's because, under holder in due course, the institution has no responsibility for seeing that the product, or the dealer, lived up to the warranty, but you still had the responsibility for making the payments.

The FTC rule, titled "Preservation of Consumers' Claims and Defenses," now requires that any business that sells or leases goods or services print a large, bold notice on its installment sales credit contract stating that, in effect, there is no holder in due course defense for the financial institution or whoever ends up with the contract.

This means that the consumer keeps the right to make legitimate claims that arise from a defective product or service no matter to whom the contract is sold.

If a consumer is referred by a seller to a certain financial institution to arrange financing, a different notice must appear on the contract stating, in effect, that consumers are now allowed to assert legitimate claims against the lender or the financial institution.

The FTC ruling means that a consumer will have a legal defense in court if he or she decides to stop payments on faulty goods or services and the party holding the contract decides to sue.

There are certain business transactions not covered by this rule, which is meant to rectify problems consumers sometimes have faced in installment loan situations. The rule does not apply to (1) commercial transactions between two businesses

(2) items purchased for professional use, such as a dentist's equipment, (3) any loans not related to a specific consumer product, (4) lay-away purchases, (5) credit card purchases, (6) and any loan agreed to directly by a consumer and a financial institution.

Our Consumer Protection Division attorneys suggest that a consumer with a complaint about merchandise or services bought under an installment contract first try to resolve a dispute with the original seller before withholding payment. Write a letter and keep a copy for documentation.

If the seller refuses to correct the problem, write the financial institution, explaining the situation. The company may try to assist in resolving the problem.

What's a better treat for hungry youngsters than a combination of creamy smooth pudding and peanut butter? Blend 2 1/2 cups cold milk into 1/2 cup chunky peanut butter in a bowl. Add 1 package (4-serving size) butterscotch, chocolate or vanilla instant pudding and pie filling. Beat slowly with a rotary beater or at lowest speed of electric mixer for about 2 minutes, until well blended. Makes about 2 1/2 cups or 5 servings. This is a great after-school treat, and, better yet, you can make use of an individual serving thermos for a nutritious school-lunch dessert.

Storyhour for pre-school age children was held Wednesday morning at the library with 36 children attending, the flag was raised and the group said the pledge of allegiance and sang America. The children were given a Clown poster and spots to put on each time they come to storyhour. Two games were played and the Good Morning song and If you're Happy and you know it, were sung. Two filmstrips were shown to conclude the program. Two HECE girls helped Anne Camp with this storyhour, they were Cheryl Crabtree and Jason Scheller. They gave the children a treat as they left the library. The library will honor Blanche Lenderson as "Artist of the Month" for September. The library was notified by the Texas State Library of its continued membership in the Texas Library System, with all the privileges therein. Some of the benefits of belonging to the system this year include: Interlibrary loan of books and material from other system member libraries; Reference books as a permanent addition to the library in the amount of $918.00; The McNaughton revolving collection of books (300); Spot booking of 16mm films; a film circuit of 5 films a month; Workshops several times a year to update and gain new knowledge in library related subjects; and professional consulting services as needed. All help toward excellence in library service to the patrons.

The library has the following 16mm films for the public use in September: The Art of Meditation; If I Had A Million with W.C. Fields; Williamsburg-Story of a Patriot; The Legend of Sleepy Hollow; and The Caterpillar and the Wild Animals. These films may be used by anyone who can provide their own projector and screen, who will agree to take care of them or pay for any damages to the film, and return to the library promptly. The past month the library showed two children's films with 75 in attendance. Mrs. Eugene Howard showed two films to residents of the nursing home with about 23 attending and the Lion's Club showed one film at their meeting with about 30 members attending. Mrs. Barbara King used "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow" for her Junior High History class at Morton, with 28 attending. This shows the varied uses for the films, and the library is happy to add this to their many other services.

Ford-Dole Chances

Current polls indicate the Republican presidential ticket may, after all, have a chance against the Democratic ticket. Much may depend on televised debates between President Ford and Governor Carter.

The new reasoning is based in part on the developing underdog theme of the Ford campaign, the President's new speaking ability (demonstrated in Give 'em Hell style at the convention), the suspect speaking ability of Jimmy Carter and an alleged Carter vagueness on the issues.

Certainly the last few weeks have proven more positive than had been anticipated by some Republicans. The party is united, with Ronald Reagan and supporters backing the Ford-Dole ticket. The President struck a sympathetic chord among voters by pitching his campaign on peace, prosperity and his two-year record as earning him a four-year term of his own.

Though Carter had led Ford two to one after the New York convention, an incumbent President has undeniable public relations advantages. And President Ford has surprised and impressed many with a new aggressive speech-making ability.

Carter remains the favorite. But a spirited race, not a foregone conclusion, is in the making. And President Ford has become a more effective campaigner than his own entourage foresaw.

Who Will Feed Them?

The American people are told regularly these days that the world's population is increasing by leaps and bounds (primarily because of too little birth control.) The question inevitably follows: "How are we to feed all these people?"

The answer is that Americans are not going to feed them. A serious look at the growth of world population shows that by the year 2000 it will double. There's no way even with superhuman effort, sacrifice and giveaways, that the American people, and perhaps a few other philanthropic countries, can feed such masses.

The only solution is that under-developed countries and their people learn to feed themselves or limit births. This is not just the simple, common sense solution to the only solution.

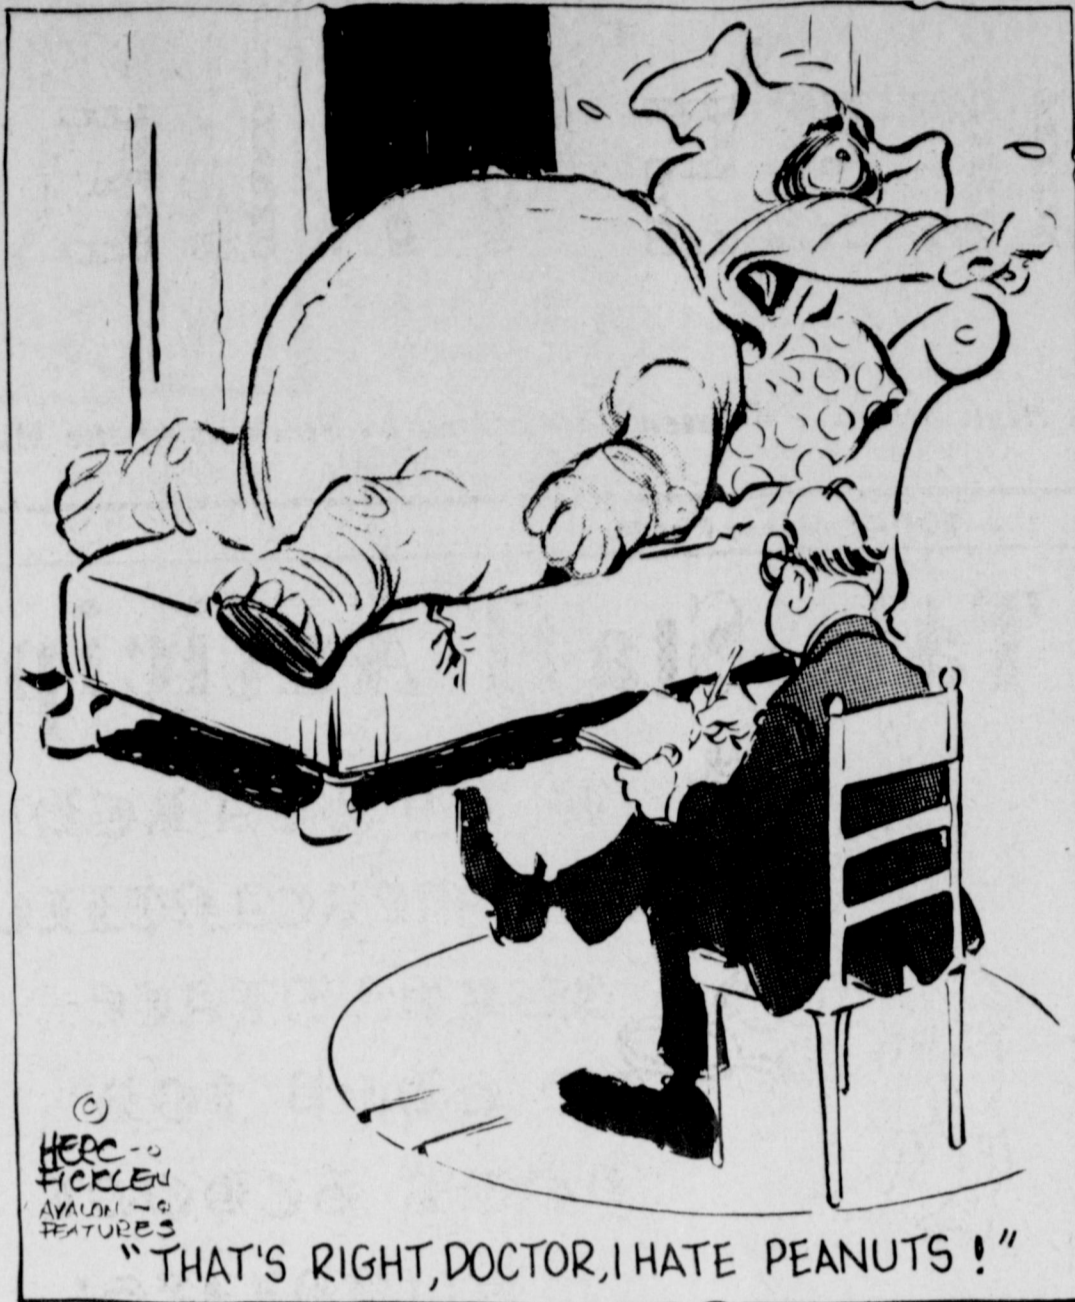

Americans can help others learn to take care of themselves, plan intelligently so that the future can be met and extend some emergency aid. But America's food surplus is today a vitally important commercial export—and in recent years has been the salvation which enabled the country's export-import scales to be balanced and the dollar strengthened worldwide.

School Discipline

It is well to take stock of our local schools every so often, and the beginning of the new school year is a good time to re-view local conditions.

In the first place, capable school administrators—from the superintendent and principals on down—are not as easy to find as some imagine. The really good officials in this field are the subject of much competition.

Parents of children—many of whom have been raised on progressive theories which are now largely discredited—have an obligation to cooperate with school authorities in every way possible and to make their task easier as they attempt to guide, train and educate the children of the community.

Children must be disciplined, as well as educated, for if they are not disciplined they cannot be educated. This is one point parents must keep in mind. Also, it should be remembered that proper disciplining never hurt anyone, and is a prerequisite in our social order.

AUSTIN—Texas school children are back to the books and as the new school year begins there are some interesting questions that might merit some consideration.

Compulsory school attendance laws in the United States have existed since 1642. They initially were developed to diminish child labor, to improve society by building the educational level of the citizenry and for other similar reasons.

In recent years, state laws have expanded the number of years that students are required to attend schools. Today there is a growing interest among both educators and non-educators to allow more flexibility in allowing exemptions to the attendance requirements.

Entry ages have been set lower in many states to include kindergarten age students. Exit ages have remained relatively stable in most states or have increased despite the change in social attitudes.

While in the past there has been strong resistance to fundamental changes in compulsory attendance laws, today with increasing financial problems, more students completing graduation requirements early and changes in parental attitudes, reform may be in the future.

Texas law presently provides that 21 is the age limit for exit from public school, with the exception of blind or deaf students for whom the limit is 22. Age 17 is the limit on compulsory attendance.

This compulsory attendance age has been less and less acceptable as early graduation from high school continues to gain popularity. Over the past five years, there has been a dramatic incidence of this phenomenon nationwide. The percentage of early graduates rose from 2.2 per cent in 1971 to 7.7 per cent in 1974.

A survey by the National Association of Secondary School Principals indicates that student attitudes and motivations have changed so that they want to have more personal freedom and to accept more responsibilities.

As a result, the use of minimal competency examinations and more flexibility in age requirements have emerged. Several states—California, Colorado, Florida and Virginia—have passed laws requiring standardized tests to be administered in order for students to advance in school. In Florida,

A Laugh from OSHA

WASHINGTON—I never cease to be amazed at the mindless and astonishing ways that federal bureaucrats devise to waste our tax dollars. One marvel follows another.

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) of the Department of Labor is perhaps the most controversial of the alphabet-soup regulatory agencies that have sprung up in Washington.

OSHA's foolish, arbitrary and capricious regulations like the one that requires each farmer to place toilet facilities and running water in his fields have reduced many a grown man to tears. I myself have often felt rage, frustration, anxiety or despair upon reading them and then battling to get them modified to conform, at least a little bit, with the circumstances of the real world.

Thus OSHA's latest effort, a pamphlet entitled: "Safety With Beef Cattle," came as a welcome relief. I nearly split my sides laughing as I read it.

This brochure, which OSHA produced at a cost to you and me of $10,000, would be grossly insulting to farmers if it weren't so hilariously funny. Anyone reading it would have a hard time deciding whether it was written for morons or by morons or both.

The "safety tips" that the bureaucrats of OSHA—many of whom, I suspect, would not be able to tell one end of a cow from the other—have to be read to be believed. Let me give you a few examples:

"Hazards are among the main causes of accidents."
"When floors are wet and slippery with manure, you can have a bad fall."
"Ladders that are not strong or have broken steps can cause a bad fall. If yours is broken, do not climb it."
"Tired or hungry or frightened cattle can bolt and trample you."
"Bare feet or sneakers aren't safe around cattle. Wear heavy shoes."

Such rubbish insults the intelligence of everyone who has ever worked on a farm or ranch. I can't imagine a more frivolous waste of taxpayers' money.

OSHA apparently agrees with me. It is attempting to suppress distribution of the existing 100,000 copies of the brochure pending publication of a revised version. OSHA is refusing to hand out copies of it even to U.S. Senators.

The only reason for OSHA's suppression of this brochure is to protect its already poor reputation among farmers and ranchers by trying to prevent public knowledge of its abysmal stupidity.

I'm for handing out all 100,000 copies of "Safety With Beef Cattle." It provides the most graphic illustration possible of the positively astounding ways in which federal bureaucrats waste money. It should be read by every taxpayer.

compulsory attendance law was lowered to age 14.

An important point to be understood is that flexibility should exist. Whenever a student successfully completes competency requirements, perhaps he or she should be allowed to graduate.

At the same time, the use of these testing measures would indicate the success of the learning experiences in our schools.

Texas does have a permissive attendance statute that allows some flexibility in attendance requirements. The existing age does not have as much flexibility however, and students are generally "kept" in school until they are 17.

It could be that more flexible language would be beneficial in Texas' compulsory attendance laws.

WASHINGTON NEWS REPORT

Ford-Dole—A Good Chance?
Two Debates?
Carter & Military—

WASHINGTON, D. C.—As the presidential campaign gets underway in earnest, political experts in Washington are divided on the question whether Jimmy Carter will win an easy victory.

He is favored but the acceptance speech President Ford delivered to G.O.P. delegates at Kansas City undoubtedly turned on the party stalwarts and others.

Debates between Ford and Carter can be very influential. Ford won a point in welcoming television debates even though President. In the past most Presidents have felt they would be giving away a prestige advantage.

If there are also debates between Bob Dole and Walter Mondale, these too will be of great interest—and a historical first for the nation.

The Republican candidate stole the initiative in suggesting debates. Ford calculated that being briefed on the issues, with more experience, he will show up well against the idealistic Carter. That's why he's seeking four ninety-minute debates.

It was a gamble the President had every reason to take. Polls showed him trailing the Georgian 2 to 1. Debates are also a Republican's chance to counter normal left-Democratic bias in the media, which in the immediate post-Ford era wrongly pictured Ford as a bumbling, half-wit.

For a time the media, comedians and others had the people believing it. Democrats and Republicans who had known him so long on Capitol Hill knew better.

The same treatment was meted out to Harry Truman. He was pictured, and believed to be, so incapable for months before the Democratic convention in 1948, fellow Democrats were looking for someone else to run. Democratic Senators asked Eisenhower to run as a Democrat!

Republican candidates have an advantage in the field of military service. Ford served honorably with ten battle stars in the Navy during World War II. Dole has a great war record, with serious wounds and high decorations.

Carter went to Annapolis and missed the warthereby and Mondale has no war record at all.

One of the troubles with modern civilization is the men and women who think they know it all.

"LABOR IS LIFE"

Carlisle

Let's talk about labor — work, if you please, for that is what labor is. Labor has come a long, long way since ancient times when work was closely related to slavery. Aristotle described a slave as "a tool with life in it." In the Middle Ages, labor gained dignity and respect as slavery declined and Christianity spread. Then, later in the 1700's and 1800's the industrial revolution created conditions that led to the modern labor movements. Today labor has gained respect, wages and working conditions hitherto unknown before.

Labor is life. Work is satisfying. Through his work a man accomplishes, and creates, and provides for himself and his family. When deprived of the opportunity or ability to work, man often becomes depressed, even ill.

I Corinthians 3:9 tells us that "We are laborers together with God." We are His hands, feet, voice, and compassionate heart here on earth to spread the gospel, lift up the poor, eradicate ignorance and destroy disease.

Honor God and Labor this week by attending church.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedom which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny, the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Medical Malpractice Boasts Health Care Cost

The state's medical malpractice study commission has approved a report that shows the malpractice insurance crisis has boosted health care costs. At the same time, the problem has shrunk availability of care. The report also says the crisis could stifle medical advances.

Many doctors are forced to practice "defensive medicine" because of the threat of malpractice suits, says Milton Davis, M.D., a study commission member. Doctors have to use medically unnecessary tests, x-rays and consultants to be protected legally in the event of a suit. Unfortunately this makes patients' bills go up.

Doctors don't like this trend but have no other choice if the present situation continues. If a doctor gets sued, whether deserved or not, his insurance goes up, in some cases up to $30,000 a year. Some doctors' premiums have risen around 625 percent in about five years. Eventually some costs are passed on to the patients, Dr. Davis says. He is chairman of study commission Subcommittee II, the group that submitted the report in Austin on Friday

Further, potentially valuable medical innovations may be avoided completely because of the legal risk, thus depriving the public of improvement in medical care.

Army's Cash Bonus Expands Top Limits

The U.S. Army's Cash Bonus Enlistment Option for non-prior-service enlistees entering active duty on August 31 or thereafter has been expanded significantly, it was announced here today by the local Army Recruiting Office.

Previously, the bonus was limited to $1500, and applied to only six MOS (Military Occupation Specialties). Effective August 31, a total of fifteen MOS will be eligible for cash bonuses, with nine of them paying $2500 and six paying $1500.

Under this new expansion, a $2500 bonus will be available to non-prior-service enlistees who choose the job specialties of Radio Operator, Radio Teletype Operator, Light Weapons Infan-

The crisis has multiple causes; it is not the fault of any one group but it affects everyone, says Dr. Davis, a Dallas physician.

Volunteers Cited For Scout Success

Pointing out that Scouting and Cub Scouting provide a type of training for boys from eight through 17 that is difficult to duplicate in other kind of youth activities, President Max Tidmore, of the South Plains Council, Boys Scouts of America, cited the volunteer leaders who make Scouting succeed.

"The men and women who volunteer as leaders in the Boy Scouts of America are responsible for a special type of educational impact on youth," Tidmore said.

Adults who volunteer to serve in Scouting work through organizations that use the program as a part of their own youth program or serve in the South Plains Council or its seven Districts.

Tidmore explained that adults serve as leaders of boys in a Cub Scout Pack or Scout Troop, serve as instructors in one of the more than 100 hobby and vocational fields included in the merit badge program help Scout units as assistant leaders or on committees, or take part in activities, organizing Scout units, administering Scout camps, Solutions will require legislative action. Included will be a look at the authority needed to broaden the Texas State Board of Medical Examiners' functions.

The commission also approved asking for a law to develop a statewide loss control program and a data gathering system to report on medical mishaps. The

Volunteers Cited For Scout Success

Board of Medical Examiners could use this data to investigate improper conduct.

Doctors also are having to discontinue services to avoid the threat of suits and to obtain insurance. Insurance companies says general surgery and certain other procedures have become "high risk" because they are involved in so many suits. Many times a doctor can continue in practice only if he stops performing certain procedures for which he may be well qualified.

Decreases are noted in the spring cantaloupe and carrot crops.

Production of cabbage is 720,000 hundredweight (cwt.), up from last year despite a drop in yield per acre. The 1976 crop is valued at $3.492 million.

Cucumbers showed an increase, from only 127,000 cwt. in 1975 to 136,000 cwt. Although acres for harvest are up from 2,700 last year to 2,900, yield per acre is estimated at a low 47 cwt. for the second consecutive year.

With a boost in both acreage and yield, the 1976 green pepper crop shows an increase of 68,000 cwt. to 210,000 cwt., with an estimated value of $3.843 million.

Texas Vegetable Production Up for Spring '76 Quarter

AUSTIN—Statistics for nine Texas-produced fresh market vegetables show that production of spring cabbage, cucumbers, green peppers, tomatoes, watermelons, honeydew melons and summer onions has increased.

Value of all spring vegetables is approximately $45.121 million, Agriculture Commissioner John C. White noted.

increased from 1975, but yield is down. Cantaloupe production is down to 988,000 cwt. Carrots show a slight decline, to 636,000 cwt.

Total production of summer onions is up from only 1.404 million cwt. to 1.914 million cwt. Acres for harvest are 6,600, up from 5,200 in 1975. Yield per acre is up to 290 cwt.

Digging on the High Plains, which began during early July, has been slowed because of intermittent rainfall throughout the area, White said.

Harvest continues in Culberson, Pecos and Reeves counties, and is now complete in the El Paso and Presidio areas.

On Wall Street By Bob Hill
Because the cost of health care is skyrocketing in all areas of medicine, a massive campaign is being prepared to cut the ever-rising cost of health care through the use of price controls and the required usage of low-cost drugs.

By setting the maximum allowable cost, the federal government is placing a ceiling on how much it will reimburse medicare and Medicaid patients for drugs. There are four drug industry lawsuits trying to prevent the federal plan. Advocates of the generic substitutes over the brand-name drugs claim that pharmacists can effect savings of hundreds of millions of dollars from the $7 1/2 billion drug bill consumers pay annually for prescription drugs. They claim that generic substitutes are now available for 20 percent to 30 percent of the brand-name drugs now and in some cases, the generic substitutes would cut the cost of a prescription as much as 80 percent or more. The main argument of the drug industry against generic substitutes is that price ceilings such as the federal government is planning to impose will cause a deterioration in quality control and research with the result that fewer drugs become available. Also, claimed savings are "over-exaggerated." Generic drugs have been available in California since May and substantial savings are being claimed once doctors and pharmacists are made aware of the California permits. In some cases it will be difficult to persuade a physician to stop writing "Darvon" and write the generic equivalent which is "propoxyphene hydrochloride aspirin, phenacetin, and caffeine." Pharmacists are undecided about the generic substitute rules. Some believe the new regulation will cut their income by reducing profit margins on brand-name drugs. Others believe the new rule will enable them to do a much greater volume on a smaller inventory with fewer brand-name drugs.

Twenty Year Fight On Aunts Continues

As one entomologist recently put it, "20 years is a long time to be in an ant fight". But that's approximately how long the South has been trying to control the spread of the fire ant. Current estimates indicate an infestation of 133 million acres in a nine-state area, reaching from Florida to Texas. Fire ant mounds are an easily recognizable sight in agricultural areas, but the fire ant is an urban, as well as a rural problem, invading lawns, golf courses, parks, playgrounds, school yards, cemeteries and even homes. The threat this insect poses may be as minor as unsightly mounds on your lawn, or as major as a severe allergic reaction to its sting, resulting in illness, or even in death.

Controlling the fire ant is a problem, simply because there are not very many chemicals which are effective.

Mirex has, over the years, provided some good control. However, the nation's only Mirex plant, in Praires, Ms. was recently shut down by the manufacturer, Allied Chemical, and the plant was subsequently bought by the state of Mississ-pi. Mile Mirex is now being distributed by the Mississippi Authority for Control of Fire Ants, it is available on a limited basis, primarily to state-sponsored programs. This limited availability, coupled with the Environmental Protection Agency's restrictions on number of applications as well as places Mirex can be used, severely hampers the success of any control program.

One additional recourse for homeowners is to make individual treatments which chlordane insecticide. Chlordane is one of the only commercially available insecticides for consistently effective control of fire ants. According to a recent EPA ruling, chlordane has been allowed for use of fire ant control "in view of the public health problem which may result from the fire ant sting and bite".

Oil Mill President Opposes Foreign Palm Oil Subsidies

Joe Rankin of Ralls, President of the Lubbock based Plains Cooperative Oil Mill, and Vice-President of Texas Farmers Union has called upon the Ford administration to "stop giving financial help to promote the production of foreign palm oil for export to the U.S."

Rankin charged that the administration has announced in a letter to Congressman Dawson Mathis (D-Ga.) that loans will continue to be approved by the U.S. to finance palm oil production in foreign countries. Mathis and others have protested the U.S. government subsidization of palm oil production for export, with sharply depressed soybean and cotton seed oil prices this summer.

Rankin, who farms in the Ralls area, says that the decision by the Administration to continue to approve the financing palm oil projects is bad news for High Plains cotton producers. "With the existing excess supply of vegetable oil in the world and the present depressed prices, the decision by the Administration to continue to approve the financing of palm oil projects abroad is tantamount to assuring South Plains cotton and soybean producers low prices for many years to come," Rankin said.

Congressman Mathis was told by Treasury Secretary William E. Simon that projects to produce palm oil for export coming up for consideration during the next twelve to eighteen months, "will be approved if the projects are viable." In the past, no projects have been approved unless they were considered "viable". Therefore, the new guidelines are nothing "new" but rather ratify the continuation for another year and a half the palm oil finance program presently in effect.

Rankin said that the Administration is "playing politics with the agricultural economy of the nation. The Administration must feel that it is more politically advantageous to assure the consumer temporary low-price vegetable oil than to protect the interests of agricultural producers and assure adequate long-term supplies at fair prices," Rankin said.

CANCER ANSWER LINE American Cancer Society
M. D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute

A man from Kansas City writes: "I have to wear dentures. Now I hear that they can cause cancer! What am I supposed to do - drink through a straw and eat baby food for the rest of my life?"

ANSWERline: No. There has been a link noted between poorly fitting dentures and some mouth cancers - but there also is a similar association between cancer and smoking, heavy drinking combined with smoking, poor diet and very, very hot food and drink. As long as your dentures fit well and your dentist checks your mouth regularly, you can sail past those baby food counters.

Question: Just what is a carcinogen?

ANSWERline: A carcinogen is a cancer-causing agent. For example, it can be the tar and other carcinogens in cigarettes; a chemical substance such as a dye that can cause certain cancers in humans; a virus in some animals; or something as intangible as radiation.

A Minnesota grocer writes: "I have family in Sweden, and they write me that they are trying to raise a new generation of children who won't ever smoke cigarettes! How is that?"

ANSWERline: This idea was reported on last June at the 3rd World Conference on Smoking and Health which the ACS and the National Cancer Institute co-hosted in New York City. Basically, the Swedish plan is a coordinated governmental effort to conduct intensive anti-smoking activities in maternity clinics and schools while tightening restrictions on cigarette advertising, smoking in public places, and by sharply increasing cigarette taxation. They are trying to make children born in 1975 become the first generation of non-smokers.

Reese Issues Challenge For Mahon Debate

Jim Reese, conservative candidate for U.S. Congress, today challenged the 75-year-old incumbent George Mahon to a debate on the issues. Said Reese, "The people of West Texas have a right to know where Mahon stands on the issues facing our area. After living in Washington for 42 years he seems to have forgotten the way the people back home think and feel about things."

"The presidential candidates have agreed to public debates to bring the issues before the voters. I feel we have an obligation to do as much for our people out here. Based upon some of Mahon's recent votes, I think he has some explaining to do."

The challenge was issued in a Lubbock news conference Wednesday morning.

Reese also called for citizens to ask Mahon to take positive action to fight forced busing.

Camp Program Is Utilized By Area Scouts

Training in Scout program skills was experienced by 364 Scouts from this area at the summer camp(s) of the South Plains Council, Boy Scouts of America.

As part of their year-round camping program, 56 troops attended Camp Post, Post, Texas and Camp Tres Ritos, New Mexico last summer, according to Bobby Moody.

In addition to the troops that used the outdoor training center(s) of the South Plains Council, 16 troops made trips that took them to such areas as Philmont Scout Ranch, near Cimarron, New Mexico, Explorer Post 806 spent six days in the Bahamas and Troop 708 went to Wisconsin Canoe Base.

The Scouting council was also represented at other Council camps including Lake City, Colorado, Sid Richardson Scout Camp, Fort Worth and Whennapa, New Mexico.

As a part of the council camping program, a total of 62 needy Scouts were provided financial assistance by local organizations and individuals, Moddy reported.
