Flood Waters In 'Dust Bowl' Take 7 Lives

One Body Not Yet Recovered; Streams Beginning To Recede

GRANADA, Colo., June 1. (AP)—"Dust bowl" residents today began digging out of the mud and debris deposited by floods which had claimed seven lives and had widely damaged property.

With indications pointing to the end of the high waters, crews continued to search for the last body, that of John Garzie, farmhand, who was believed to be buried in sludge.

His perished with three members of the Simon Gonzales family near Springfield, Colo., in the most tragic episode of the week-end floods, the family's quarters being caught when high waters of Butte creek suddenly surged through the Gonzales bunkhouses.

Waters Within Banks Water was still running high in most of the ordinarily dry creek beds and arroyos, but in most cases was confined to the banks.

The high water, which sent the Arkansas and Republican rivers out of their banks, came on the anniversary of the 1935 Memorial day floods which killed more than 100 persons and caused an estimated $13,000,000 property damage in Colorado, Kansas and Nebraska.

Long-time residents in the Granada and Garden City, Kan., areas said the Arkansas reached its highest crest since 1921, when the river caused a disastrous flood at Pueblo.

The Butte creek reservoir near Springfield was full for the first time in a number of years. R. J. McGrath, water commissioner, said he believed the water would not flow over the spillway.

The Cimarron river was out of banks north of Boise City, Okla. Two bridges were washed out on the road between Boise City and Camp, Colo.

Rising waters of the North Canadian washed out a bridge and inundated lowlands near Canton, Okla.

Granada residents were busy today cleaning up the damage left by high water in this town of 400 Friday. Holly, in the same section, was marooned from highway travel with two bridges gone.

High waters killed nine persons in the district in July, 1935.

Although the $94,350 bid of the firm of Templeton & Cannon of San Angelo was the lowest of three submitted Friday for construction of the new postoffice at Big Spring, no contract has been formally awarded.

Query on the contract was made after reports that the Templeton & Cannon bid had been accepted finally.

Here's a photo of the group of approximately 100 men who Thursday devoted a day to cleaning up of the local cemetery. Many of them were volunteer laborers, who gave a day's time to the civic project.

Others were unemployed men whose names were listed with the re-employment service, and whose labor was financed by contributions of local citizens.

DALLAS, June 1.—Grass at the Texas Centennial exposition, which opens here June 6 and continues through November, will be chigger-proof.

Chemicals that instantly kill old fashioned "red-bugs" have been sprayed on 2,500 cubic yards of bermuda used in decorating the grounds, A. L. Simpson, supervisor for the Dallas park board, said today.

The process will be continued during the exposition, so that visitors will not be required to resort to old-time remedies for killing the pests.

Garbage Haul Offer Draws Few Replies City Contracts Available On Regular Truck Service

Reception of the city's proposal to institute a garbage disposal service was lethargic at the best since it was announced last week.

Only about half a dozen residents have taken trouble to inquire about the service and none have signed contracts as yet.

A year ago a group of civic workers bombarded the commission to provide for such a service, but when petitions carrying a communal clause were circulated, the clamoring died.

Last week the city revived the issue by offering contracts which insure two hauls a week for 50 cents a month. The cost was to be added to the water bill and similar collection methods were to be applied.

Full information on contracts can be obtained at the city water office on request.

Boat Mishap Fatal To Big Spring Man

Louis E. Craig Killed As Craft Swept Over Dam At San Angelo

Louis E. Craig, 34, Big Spring automobile salesman, was killed instantly Sunday afternoon when a boat in which he was riding plunged over the Ben Ficklin dam near San Angelo, Craig received a head injury and was drowned when he was hurled below the dam.

The body was quickly recovered, from about five feet of water.

Roy Stallings of Big Spring, who was with Craig, jumped from the boat before it went over the dam and swam to safety. It was understood Craig could not swim. Miss Billy Johnson of San Angelo also escaped injury.

Reports from San Angelo said that the motor on the boat in which the group was riding went dead, as the boat neared the dam, and that the wash from another craft which circled closely swept the boat over. Water was flowing over the dam.

Craig and Stallings, with Johnny Miller and O. L. Williams, all of Big Spring, had gone to the lake at San Angelo Friday night, for a week-end fishing trip.

Willis R. King of Big Spring, Craig's father-in-law, completed arrangements Monday to have the body returned here. An Eberley funeral coach was dispatched to San Angelo and was due to return Monday afternoon.

Craig, employed by the Keisling Motor company here, is survived by his widow, two children, his mother, two sisters and a brother.

All the relatives have been notified of the death, and the widow was expected to arrive here tonight from El Paso. The brother, Neal Craig, resides at Amarillo; one sister, Mrs. Rosie Foster, lives in Albuquerque, N. M., and another sister, Mrs. Ellis and Craig's mother, live in Memphis, Tenn. His father died there a few months ago.

Craig was born July 17, 1904, in Little Rock, Ark.

Protest Cut In PWA Grant Ruling On Government Aid Would Affect Application On Reservoir

Protest of the city of Big Spring against a proposed cut in the amount of PWA grants from 45 to 30 per cent was wired to Paul V. Betters, counsel for municipalities before the senate finance committee.

With the protest went wires to Senators Morris Sheppard and Tom Connally urging them to oppose the suggested cut.

Big Spring is vitally interested in the proposal since its application for a $500,000 dam project has been given final approval and lacks only the allotment of funds.

Cutting of the grant from 45 to 30 per cent would mean that the city would have to vote a $500,000 issue instead of a $275,000 issue which would be necessary under the present status.

The city's application is made on a $800,000 basis for the dam, which if constructed, would be located below Moss Springs in southeastern Howard county.

Zioncheck Held On Order Committing Him To Hospital

Rep. Marion Zioncheck of Washington was arrested today and charged with an order committing him to the Gallinger hospital with being "of unsound mind."

Earlier, district officials had issued an order to arrest Zioncheck "on sight."

That was after the congressman, wearing an old sweater and wrinkled trousers, paid calls at the White House executive offices and the office of the district attorney.

In Traffic Scapes He left a brief case containing empty beer bottles and a can of moth balls at the executive office, saying "these are for the president."

After conferring with an assistant district attorney, Zioncheck rang his automobile into the rear of another car. He skirted several pedestrians and drove through a stop light, and then disappeared.

Irrepressible congressman was out on his new spree after a few hours at his apartment, where he had gone early Sunday on his release from jail. He posted $25 bond for his freedom on a charge of disorderly conduct Saturday night, when he hurled bottles, a typewriter and a suitcase full of clothes out of his apartment window.

Mrs. Zioncheck left the apartment for a "rest" yesterday, and had not returned today. She disappeared after an uproar on 24 hours, during which the Zionchecks repeatedly ejected Mrs. Benjamin Scott Young, an elderly writer, from the apartment she had sublet to the congressman last December.

Mrs. Young remained in the hospital today for treatment of bruises, nervous shock and an injured hip. Her lawyer, Samuel Herick, Jr., said he had not yet decided whether to take legal action against the congressman.

Arrangements Made To Direct Conquered Kingdom From Addis Ababa

ROME, June 1. (AP)—Benito Mussolini, creator of the new Roman empire, today divided Ethiopia into five parts.

His cabinet approved a project by which each part—Eritrea, Amhara, Galla and Sidamo, and Harar and Somaliland—becomes an administrative division.

The cabinet announced that each division represented a homogeneous organism "technically, geographically, historically and politically."

Addis Ababa was named the capital for the new administrative organization with a vicery in charge, to be aided by the vice governor-general and chief of the general staff, the latter handling military affairs.

Fate Of Missionaries In Africa Still Unknown

ADDIS ABABA, June 1. (AP)—The fate of 53 missionaries in the Ethiopian interior, 41 of whom are Americans, is still unknown, Dr. T. A. Lambie, field director of the Ethiopian mission service, said today.

Dr. Lambie's own headquarters in the capital were untouched during the rioting which followed Emperor Haile Selassie's flight and preceded the entrance May 6 of the Italian army.

Dr. Lambie's efforts since then to reach the missionaries in the interior have failed thus far.

He has pledged allegiance to Italy for the 15 stations of the Sudan interior mission which have been in Ethiopia for nine years.

Explaining his work, Dr. Lambie said: "We never have and never will, as a mission, enter politics."

"If the government is Italian, we shall support the Italian government—even as the Lord said, 'Give unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's and to God the things that are God's.'"

Dr. Lambie explained his work was solely to convert heathens to Christians and therefore his missions could work under all governments.

Neither was injured, as the car in which they were riding turned over on its side. They were returning to Texas from Kansas City, where they had been visiting relatives.

Pastor Faces Murder Count

'Sensational Disclosures' Promised By Lawyers For Ekridge

HOUSTON, June 1. (AP)—It was indicated today that the state attorney would ask the death penalty, and the defense acquittal on grounds of temporary insanity, in the trial of Rev. Edgar Ekridge, charged with murder of Police Chief Ed O'Reilly of Orange.

Both sides announced ready when the case was called at 10 a. m. Witnesses were excused until tomorrow. The case is before Criminal District Judge Langston G. King's court.

Testimony with "sensational" disclosures was promised by the defense for Rev. Ekridge, who used to wear two guns while he fought vice and crime from his pulpit in Orange.

J. J. Collins of Lufkin, chief defense counsel, indicated Ekridge's defense would be based on a plea of insanity.

The defense attorney, claiming his client was in fear of his life at the time of the shooting said "sensational disclosures" would be made during the trial.

Chief O'Reilly was shot down in the Orange business district May 29, 1935. Ekridge was alleged to have ridden up in his automobile and fired a charge from a shotgun. He then drove across the Sabine river into Louisiana.

Lorraine Batters Break Loose In Fourth Inning And Defeat Bulldogs, 14 To 7

BIG SPRING TEAM GETS 9 TO 2 WIN

(By HANK HART) While his mates were banging the offerings of two Lee's pitchers for fifteen hits and making the majority count, carrot-topped Ray McMahon breezed through to hold the Pirates to eight scattered hits as the Big Spring Rebels won out, 9-2, over Lee's Store Pirates Sunday afternoon.

From the first inning when successive doubles by Treadway and Hart counted the opening run, the Rebels led. Both Bucs runs were unearned, coming as the result of two wild throws.

Ed Blackwelder started on the hill for the Lee's aggregation and weathered batting storms during the first five innings, but he retired at the end of that period and "Fut" Moody took over pitching duty. He fared little better but managed to stick through the remainder of the route.

Biggest gun in the Big Spring attack was Roscoe Van Zandt, gigantic left hander. Roscoe was retired on three pitches when he faced Blackwelder in the first frame, but they couldn't get him out in his other three trips. He got to the Lee pitchers for a brace of singles and a long two-base blow.

Close Cropped Greens Likely To Hold Par Busters Take To Course For Practice Rounds; Play Opens Thursday Biggest Hazard In U.S. Open Tourney

A view of the clubhouse at Baltusrol Golf Course, N. J., where the U. S. Open will be played June 4-6, with Sam Parks, Jr., of Pittsburgh (shown above) defending the title he won last year at Oakmont in his home town. Critics figure there won't be too much trouble through the fairway, because of the breadth; that the par-busters' mettle will be tested mainly on lightning-fast greens of they're clipped close.

SHORT HILLS, N. J. (AP)—Par and yardage of the Baltusrol golf course, where the 1936 U. S. open golf championship will be played, June 4-6.

No. 10-155 yards, par 3—An exceptionally large green for so short a hole, but well trapped at the left. The green sits high above the tee.

No. 11-402, par 5—Trouble on both sides here, and the fairway from the tee is not too wide. Not even Jimmy Thompson is likely to get home in two. The hole usually plays against the wind.

No. 12-340 yards, par 4—One of the most beautiful holes on the course. The tee is out in the clear but the woods form a great horseshoe in back of the green and halfway down the fairway.

No. 13-365 yards, par 4—There is another small lake near the tee and to the right of this one but again it is no hazard. The green is well trapped and favors a drive to the left.

No. 14-400 yards, par 4—A new green and a new tee make this one of the finest holes on the course. The new green will be used for the first time in the open. The fairway rises gently all the way and the green is trapped well on the left and protected on the right by a ditch fronting the old green.

No. 15-149 yards, par 3—This is the only hole on the upper course which was originally on the old Baltusrol course. It is a pitch shot, but the green here is also very large for the length of the hole.

No. 16-439 yards, par 4—The green on this one has been rebuilt. The approach is wide open, sloping down from tee to green.

No. 17-563 yards, par 5—This is a dog-leg to the left, with well placed traps most of the way. The payoff here is a well hit second to the right of the fairway, from where the green opens up for a pitch.

No. 18-465 yards, par 4—Probably the poorest hole on the course, it has been changed several times and has played to two different greens. It demands a tremendous drive from the tee out of the woods and along a ledge. The green runs away to the right on an annoying slope.

Kress Proves He's Capable Pinch Hitter

'Cinderella Kid' Does Best Playing When Put Under Pressure

WASHINGTON, June 1 (AP)—Ralph (Red) Kress, the "Cinderella Kid" of the Senators in 1935, is playing a return engagement in that role.

Listed as a utility infielder with little prospect of regular play as the season began, Kress jumped into the breach to replace Buddy Myer at second base for Washington and then moved over to shortstop when Cecil Travis was shifted to the outfield.

Kress' comeback last season provided a fiction-like story. Cast in part-time roles and a variety of positions, he was hitting only .140 when the Senators released him to Chattanooga.

Then came the break that gave him a new lease on his major league life. While he was at home packing his bags, Travis was injured and Myer was removed by an umpire from the first game of a double-header.

Washington rescinded Kress' marching orders and rushed the chunky redhead back into uniform for the second game. That was just the opportunity he needed. Red banged out four hits in four times at bat, got the shortstop job for good and batted so well he had raised his average almost to .300 when the season died.

He was the forgotten man of the Senators this year. They wanted youth and Travis was given the shortstop job. But Kress didn't give up.

The season opened and Myer, the 1935 American league batting king, found himself in the grip of a hitting slump he couldn't shake. Finally, when a stomach ailment also attacked him, Myer went out. Another perfect spot for Kress, the guy who does his best playing under pressure, when the odds are against him. He slipped in and built a .366 average for 10 days.

TEN RUNS SCORED IN BIG FOURTH

LORLAINE, May 31 (Sp1)—Harvey Munn's Loraine timber experts shelled Cramer, Coahoma pitcher, for 12 hits and 10 runs in the fourth inning here Sunday to build up a comfortable lead that enabled them to coast to a 14-7 victory.

Smith succeeded Cramer on the mound for the Bulldogs in the fourth stanza, but Loraine's big guns rumbled again in the eighth for four more runs. Twelve of Loraine's 14 marks were earned runs.

Coahoma's seven runs were scattered through five innings. Cramer had allowed only one hit until the fatal fourth.

The Bulldog line-up was bolstered by the addition of two Big Spring Coahoma Oil players, Pepper Martin and Miller Harris. Martin, playing at short, got two hits and scored one run. Miller, center fielder, scored only one hit and failed to tally.

Potter went the full nine innings on the mound for Loraine. Loraine plays Coahoma on June 12, and the Coahoma team is attempting to arrange a game with Trent at Coahoma Sunday.

Olympics Lure Chicago Star

CHICAGO, June 1 (AP)—The ease with which Ray Ellinwood, of Chicago, won the Big Ten quarter-mile title indicates that the Western conference is going to have an outstanding candidate for a 400-meter berth on the Olympic squad.

Ever since the 21-year-old sophomore ran the 440 in 49.5 seconds to establish a new indoor record last winter in his first varsity competition his performances have been such as to mark him as definite Olympic timber.

Young Ellinwood is giving no great thought to possible Olympic triumphs. He hopes to represent the tryouts for the fun of it.

"After that," he says, "things will pretty much take care of themselves. Either I will or won't make the team. But I'll always like to run."

Taking stock of himself, the slim, dark-haired boy who transferred to Chicago's "new plan" of higher education after two semesters at Purdue, can't remember when he hasn't been running.

CHILD LABOR AND TEXAS DEMOCRATS. The convention of Texas democrats adopted a resolution trying national support by their party for the pending child labor amendment to the constitution.

The child labor amendment, submitted a dozen years ago and still lacking the required legislative endorsement by the states, has been defeated five times by the Texas legislature because of its objectionable provisions.

It is thoroughly inconsistent for the democratic party, or any other party, to pledge itself to the preservation of state rights, and coincidentally to express approval of the child labor amendment now pending.

Man About Manhattan

NEW YORK—It would be practically impossible to persuade Maxwell Anderson to take up residence in the city again. Like Eugene O'Neill, who virtually has become a recluse, the playwright has retreated to rural surroundings and it is there that he composes his dramas.

Anderson's country place is in a lonely glen far back from the road near Haverstraw, New York, a hamlet perched on the rim of the Hudson. There is an endless expanse of trees and sky, and throughout all hours of the night one can see the lights in his study.

Another playwright who wants no part of Manhattan as a permanent abode is Lynn Riggs, who clings persistently to his beloved southwest. Indeed, Riggs won't write about anything but that sector. At least, all of his plays to date have been cast in rural settings.

Far from shunning the audience at its radio broadcasts—held in the Hippodrome—one sponsor encourages hilarity to provide atmosphere for its entertainers.

The Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

WASHINGTON—Some straight-from-the-shoulder talk was handed the president at his recent informal after-dinner conference with senate liberals.

It was all in friendly spirit, intertempered with much jesting and laughter. But there was no pulling of punches in the serious moments.

Sen. Bob LaFollette, Wisconsin progressive, spoke pointedly on the failure of the treasury to follow up the president's recommendations for a tax on corporation surpluses with a carefully worked-out bill.

Felix Frankfurter, who was present, agreed with this. The president was non-committal. In a discussion of the democratic platform, the president was advised to include a strong anti-monopoly plank.

"If you don't do that," he was also advised, "the republicans will beat you to the punch. There is a strong undercurrent of popular resentment against monopoly and the administration had better bestir itself and do something about it."

A reporter asked King about the matter. "Oh," he replied, "I really didn't want to go to the convention. Furthermore, they are just a bunch of socialists."

Sen. William H. King is the veteran senior senator from Utah. But at a meeting of the state democratic committee of Utah he was overwhelmingly defeated in the selection of delegates to the Philadelphia convention.

These bonds are guaranteed by Dominican customs receipts, and the collector of customs is an American appointed (through a treaty arrangement) by the president of the United States.

The other day, Sen. Millard Tydings of Maryland, who recently married Joe Davies' daughter, rose in the senate and proposed that the United States relinquish all financial control, such as exist in Santo Domingo, over Latin American governments.

But what they eat is of no importance. The important thing, to the white-skinned surgeons of the public health service, is how they react after a trip to the operating table.

An attendant slips the cage door ajar, bags a monkey with a net, stretches him out on the operating table, while Dr. Charles Armstrong gives him a shot in the arm with a hypodermic needle. The monkey is put back and another is bagged.

One of the oddities of the art game is that practically any male artist is an expert at sketching women, but only rarely are women artists able to imbue men with authentic masculinity.

Ritchie Cooper (she's a girl) is an exception. Recently she was commissioned to illustrate—of all things—a prize-fight story, practically an unheard-of assignment in New York.

They say Don Bestor, the maestro, doesn't have to wear glasses. . . . Just does it as a gag.

INDUSTRIAL GAINS NOTED DURING APRIL

"If humans will react like these monkeys, we could prevent such disturbances as the abandonment last summer of the Boy Scout jamboree. The secret is merely a little nasal spray with paric acid."

LOUISIANA CRUDE ALLOWABLES FIXED

NEW ORLEANS, June 1 (UP)—The state department of conservation has set the oil allowable for Louisiana fields for June at 216,975 barrels daily. Total South Louisiana allowable was set at 146,225 barrels and North Louisiana 70,750 barrels of which 60,750 barrels was assigned to Rodessa field.

The April increase was led by expansion of activity in the steel, automobile, building and machine tool industries, the report said.

The survey noted that domestic trade increased more than seasonally in rural areas, while the increase in urban sales was slightly less than the usual seasonal amount.

Chapter 11 DISGRUNTLED HUSBAND

Suddenly it occurred to Dirk that Hope might have returned to her hotel in Manhattan. This was doubtful, since she owed them money, but there was a chance. Felling that the management might give him some clue as to where else to look for her, the Jameson hotel. He remembered that, too, found the address of the hotel in the telephone book, of the first drug store he passed.

The Hotel Jameson was a dingy hotel in the east thirties. A dingy lady at the desk repeated after him, "Miss Devine, Miss Hope Devine."

She consulted her records and reported that Miss Devine had left some time before.

"I remember her now. A dark little girl—a music teacher. The colored elevator boy was her pupil. She didn't leave an address."

Dirk asked if there was any mail for Miss Devine. Perhaps a postmark might be a help. It was important that he find her, he said.

The lady went listlessly through the files of letters. There was nothing for Miss Devine.

"I hardly thought there would be. That was one thing I remembered about her. She almost never got any mail. You know most girls get at least—wait a minute."

She had a conference with a boy who had just returned from lunch.

"Funny, that," she presently explained. "Miss Devine was in just this morning and got her trunk. It was—she had left it as a sort of security."

"Know where she went?" Dirk asked the boy.

No. She had merely paid her bill, and left.

Dirk left also. He thought he understood. Rupert had no doubt given Hope money the night before, and she had come in forthwith to redeem her trunk of romance, and left at an incongruous hour for such an errand, but so long as she had accomplished it—

He had no doubt he would find her at Lowrie Wood.

He was right. Mary informed him that Mrs. Joris had returned shortly after he left.

"She had been to church, sir—to early service."

So that was explained.

"You realize, Mister Dirk, that Mrs. Joris is the daughter of a parson."

This, Mary felt, was a timely rebuke to young gentlemen who seldom went to church at all. Mister Rupert's marriage had bewitched the servants by its unexpectedness, but it held the flavor of romance, and they were tasting it with relish today. The odd thing was for Mister Dirk to speed after the bride as soon as she stepped out.

"She brought her trunk back with her, sir... In the taxi. Jane helped her unpack it. It's just gone down in the store room."

"Where is Mrs. Joris?" Dirk asked.

"In her room, sir. And Mister Rupert wishes to see you as soon as you come in."

Dirk went upstairs to find Rupert sitting on the edge of his bed, a brown dressing gown over his pyjamas. Rupert's eyes were bloodshot, his cheeks blue and unshaven. The mop of his black hair was wet, and the bronze bowl beside the telephone beginning to fill with cigarette stubs. The room was full of smoke, and the stale odor of whisky.

It was a plain room, crowded with books. Dirk could remember the time when Rupert cared for nothing but to pore over books and ride his pony. Cooon Joris, whose portrait had always reminded Dirk of Rupert, had been a sybarite and a spender. Rupert's tastes, on the contrary, had been Spartan simplicity—except in what concerned Elton. Nothing had been too lavish, too beautiful for her.

Dirk had opened a window, and the currents of smoke began to flow toward it. Rupert frowned at the light. He said,

"Hell of a mess I'm in. I've been talking to Connelly." He indicated the telephone. "Where were you last night?" he added, staring at Dirk.

"I was in Jersey," Dirk answered. "With Isabel."

"Well, do you know anything about it?" demanded Rupert. "I haven't cared to question Timothy. He left the woman in, of course."

"She's not a woman," Dirk said, oddly on the defensive. "She's a girl. Eighteen, I should say."

"Connelly says she gave her age as 21. You've seen her?"

"I talked with her last night, after you went upstairs."

"Was she sober?"

"Perfectly. Even solemn."

"This is no joke," remarked Rupert furiously.

"It is not," Dirk agreed. "But your asking if she was sober—" "I didn't know but we might have had a few drinks together."

"There was no evidence of that," Dirk assured him. "She was sober, and I might say, desperate."

Rupert glanced at him.

"Desperate?"

"For money. She was stranded here. Her hotel had put her out—was holding her trunk."

"But she has a family—according to the record. Her father, she says, is the Rev. Somebody."

"They don't live here," Dirk answered. "The bank where she had her funds closed. It may be her family wouldn't or couldn't help her, or she may not have wanted to tell them. She came to you, as a lawyer, to know what to do."

"She came to do what she did," replied Rupert. "It was a trick and she was using it."

He reflected with some satisfaction that she had got no money out of him, whatever the trick might net her in the end. He had in his billfold exactly the amount he had brought home with him the evening before, and his check book had not been touched.

Dirk said, "I'm certain it wasn't a trick. I'm certain your proposal came as a surprise to her. Wait till you see her. It may even be you frightened her into it, or—" as Rupert seemed about to go into a rage, "or offered marriage as the condition on which you would help her. She was without money, or food, or friends. She was in a panic, so she hunted up a lawyer, and you happened to be the one she found."

"You're ridiculous, of course," Rupert remarked. "She saw the state I was in, and she took advantage of it. No decent girl would have done that. If she was drunk, too, I could understand it."

"It's odd," said Dirk, "that you should mention decency. That was the only question you asked her. And, as Rupert stared, 'I think you made some allusions to her family, but you asked her, as I understand it, only one question. I don't think she could have invented that question, and if she's telling the truth about that, she's probably not lying about the rest. You asked if she was a decent girl."

Rupert was silent. He looked at his cigarette, crushed it out.

"No, I suppose she could not have invented that," he said finally. "However, I'll check on her antecedents and her decency, too. An annulment, under the circumstances, should be simple."

"I've already checked," said Dirk.

Again Rupert's brief stare. It was the memory of Dirk's face that Rupert had carried over from the night before. Dirk, newly arrived, standing in the hall, looking at him. There was an impression, too, of Connelly. He had telephoned Connelly and got the facts, or some of them. Then he had sent for Dirk, and learned that he had gone out.

"And you found?" said Rupert.

"I can assure you," Dirk answered, "that the girl is not only decent, but decidedly inexperienced."

Yes, he could assure him of that, and he wasn't going to have Rupert digging around, discovering the circus.

"You'll be telling me next," said Rupert, "that she didn't know I was tight."

"That's possible, too," Dirk admitted. "You carry it well enough. However, I shan't say that I only say that she's a nice girl who came to you in a panic, and that marrying her was your own idea."

Rupert lit another cigarette. The matter of Dirk's looking up the girl, checking on her story, had aroused his gratitude somewhat. . . . Decent and desperate. The combination might insure a quiet settlement of the affair. Connelly had promised to keep it out of the papers, if possible. Rupert himself had insisted the night before that the papers have it, though it had been too late for the Sunday edition.

Dirk has a very serious conversation with his brother, tomorrow.

M'Donald Opens His Campaign For State Land Commissioner

SAN MARCOS, June 1—The office of state land commissioner belongs to the people and I object to any efforts toward a self-perpetuating dynasty whereby the present commissioner, retiring after having been in office since 1880, seeks to hand the position on a silver platter to a deputy who has been on the public payroll since 1900," said W. H. (Bill) McDonald of Eastland county Saturday here in the first speech in his race for state land commissioner.

He charged that his opponent has entered the campaign without resigning from "a fat, appetitive position" and that his opponent should resign at once or withdraw from the race for "he should not expect the people of Texas to pay for his campaign."

An Ohio cobbler once tried to back down on an auction offer of 30 cents an acre for fertile Dawson county land.

OIL PRODUCTION OR EXPLORATION WORK EMBRACES PRACTICALLY ALL OF STATE

By H. J. STRUTH
Petroleum Economist

Oil literally "covers the map" of Texas. A study of the state's oil and gas industry, just completed by the Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association of Texas, shows that 80 per cent of the surface area of this state is now being actively developed for oil and gas.

The extent to which Texas is "in the oil business" is clearly shown by the accompanying map. Texas is a big state, comprising nearly 200,000 square miles. Yet, this survey shows that counties comprising a total area of nearly 213,000 square miles are being actively developed for the production of oil and gas. From this, it is at once apparent that oil embraces practically all of Texas and, obviously, dominates the economic welfare of the entire state.

Oil is actually the "chief" crop of Texas, for the official facts show that the annual value of the state's oil production now exceeds the total value of all farm crops produced. In fact, many thousands of Texas farmers have had their farm crops greatly augmented by the receipt of lease rentals, lease bonuses and royalties paid to them by the oil companies, in their constant search for new, dependable sources of oil supply.

82 Counties Inactive

While there are 82 "white" counties on the map, indicating no oil and gas developments in progress, it is true that practically all of these counties are also an important part of the Texas oil picture. In fact, oil and gas passes through a majority of them via underground, trunk pipe lines. Furthermore, because many of these "white" counties are adjacent to active oil and gas producing areas,

14 Entries In Florida Race For Governor

Colorful Campaign Ending With No Favorite Established

MIAMI, Fla., June 1 (UP)—Florida citizens, somewhat confused by the long ballot confronting them, will vote tomorrow in the first of two nominating primaries which will select state, district and county office holders.

The race for the governorship nomination, with the record number of 14 democrats entered, claims the greatest state-wide attention, followed by congressional contests in which five seats in the national legislative body are at stake.

Victory in the primary, or in a necessary run-off contests June 23 will assure election, although democratic nominees must go through the formality of seeking formal triumph over republicans in the November general election.

The race for the governorship nomination remains uncertain. Gov. Dave Sholtz was barred by law from election after serving four years.

Major Issues Lacking

The campaign has failed to develop major issues. Virtually all candidates have made their major planks the same: Opposition to sales tax; preservation of tax exemption for homesteads; repeal of the state law legalizing slot machines; adequate state aid for schools; abolition of the practice of legislators holding a state-paid position in addition to their law-making post.

Sholtz's administration has been attacked by the field. The Florida special canal issue failed to enter prominently in the campaigning. The Townsend plan bobbed up in two congressional races. One was in the new fifth district, where nine democrats seek the seat created by a realignment of congressional areas. The other is in the fourth district, where J. Mark Wilcox of West Palm Beach, author of the national defense plan under consideration by congress, is faced by two opponents who both claim Townsend club support.

What the governor's race hinges on issues it makes up in color and oratory. Round wagons have crossed the state.

"Let's have more fun out of life," is the slogan of Jerry W. Carter, William C. Hodges, Tallahassee lawyer, calls himself "Tomcatred Bull," advocate of tax exemption for homesteads. Judge W. Raleigh Feltway, asking for "All the way with Feltway," stresses clean government.

Miami has three candidates in the race, led by Dan Chappell, young attorney. Others are Stafford Caldwell, unsuccessful in the last governor's contest, and H. B. Gaultier, former mayor.

One of the most strenuous campaigners is H. F. Fats, former routing commissioner. Grady Burton has utilized a successful record as a county prosecutor to appeal for votes. J. B. Yearwood, a citrus grower, is running on a "business in government" platform. Fred P. Cone, north Florida banker, promises to apply business principles.

Other candidates in the race are Malle Martin, Creativeview business man; Amos Lewis, Marianna political leader; Peter Tomassello, Jr., former speaker of the house of representatives; and Carl Malple, Wakulla county farmer.

Calles on Trip to Visit Gov. Marland

SAN DIEGO, Cal., June 1 (UP)—Gen. Plutarco Elias Calles, former president of Mexico now in exile, left yesterday on an automobile trip to Oklahoma where he was scheduled to visit Gov. E. W. Marland.

Calles received an invitation from Marland shortly after arriving here last month. He has been resting at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Hortensia Torreblanca.

The former president was accompanied by his son-in-law, Fernando Torreblanca, and Luis Morones, labor leader in the Calles administration.

C- C MANAGERS TO MEET IN LUBBOCK

LUBBOCK, June 1—The chamber of commerce managers of West Texas will be co-hosts to approximately 150 managers throughout Texas who meet here for their 20th annual convention on June 11, 12 and 13.

Lubbock was the convention city for the Texas Chamber of Commerce Managers association in 1926, and these past 10 years will bring new sights and a new Lubbock to the visitors.

An informal gathering at the Hilton hotel, convention headquarters on Wednesday, June 10, is scheduled with registration starting at 4 p. m.

A complete and constructive program, based on problems confronting the chamber of commerce managers in Texas, has been worked out by Geo. S. Buchanan, Marlin, president of the TOCCM, Grady Ship, Longview, vice president, and Pete Smith, Longview, secretary, together with the fine cooperation of the various chambers of commerce in Texas.

Pen Fugitive Found Dead Believed To Have Killed Self During Battle With Posse BATON ROUGE, La., June 1. (AP)—Wilfred Lindsay, 23-year-old fugitive convict sought five days for the slaying of a state penitentiary official and his wife, died yesterday in a gulf battle with a 12-man posse. After an investigation, the coroner said Lindsay committed suicide with his last bullet. One member of the posse, an oil field watchman, was shot in the leg. Lindsay, who escaped from the state prison farm after killing Capt. Nelson L. Hime and Mrs. Hime last Wednesday, was trapped in a wooded section near the farm. Wade Fournet, a prison official, said Lindsay had kidnaped a prison guard named Hamilton and held him in the woods until Sunday morning, when Hamilton escaped and led the posse to the fugitive's hideout. Lindsay emptied his rifle at them and then continued to exchange shots with a pistol. Apparently realizing that escape was impossible, he sent his last bullet into his own head, the coroner said. Lindsay, serving a life term for murder, was a trusty in Captain Hime's home.

Four More Dead In Anti-Jew Conflict JERUSALEM, June 1. (AP)—Police said today they had unearthed a collection of posters in hand-printed Italian declaring all Jews are "Communists and enemies of Europe and Christianity" after renewed disorders cost four more lives. Three Arabs, one a woman, were killed by police fire at Jaffa. A German Jew was slain in Jerusalem. An Arab committee in charge of a general strike called April 19 issued a manifesto deprecating the use of violence. The twenty-seventh Jewish victim of the unrest was shot to death in a Jewish quarter here. He was Franz Borshad, 45, a recent settler from Germany and the official collector for the German Settlers' association. NEWSPAPER GUILD TO BE LINKED WITH AFOL NEW YORK, June 1. (AP)—The American Newspaper Guild, at its third annual convention, approved affiliation with the American Federation of Labor. By a vote of 84 to 5, the delegates approved a resolution calling for immediate application to the A. F. of L. for affiliation as "an international union." Voting on the resolution was preceded by sharp debate over a majority report and two minority reports. The majority report said that "the interests of newspapermen are bound up with the welfare of all workers in the nation" and added that the A. F. of L. could best serve these interests. A minority report submitted by Julius Klyman of St. Louis, opposed affiliation, contending the A. F. of L. is "a crumbling institution which in its present set-up may not survive another six months."

TWO KILLED IN CAR CRASH NEAR WEINERT HASKELL, June 1. (AP)—Two men were instantly killed when their automobiles collided several miles north of Weinert late Saturday night. Henry Hartfield, Haskell farmer, and W. R. Wood, Canadian dry goods clerk, were the victims. Woods was enroute to the home of his father-in-law, W. E. Johnson, who lives south of Haskell, to meet his wife, who had been visiting her parents during the past week. Hartfield had spent the afternoon in Weinert on business and was en route home when the two cars sideswiped. His body was carried to Haskell by a passing motorist, who summoned an ambulance to the scene. Both men suffered fractured necks. Hartfield's body was badly mangled, a hip being broken, wrist fractured and his face and head crushed as he was thrown some 30 feet from his automobile. Wood, who is survived by his wife, will be buried in Canadian, while arrangements for Hartfield are indefinite, pending arrival of relatives. Hartfield leaves a wife and several children.

FORD BUILDING TO BE THE CENTER FOR CENTENNIAL EVENTS DALLAS, June 1.—The opening day of the Texas Centennial in Dallas June 6 will find many events originating in and revolving about the Ford exposition building. The principal feature, outside of the actual opening of the building to the public, will be the ceremony signalling the dedication of the "Roads of the Southwest" sections of trails and highways which have played a vital part in the history of this part of the country. The "Cavalcade of Texas," mammoth spectacle, which has been likened to a "grand opera" pageant, will introduce the "Roads of the Southwest" as a part of the elaborate opening day's program. The cavalcade, consisting of several hundred actors, livestock, covered wagons, cowboys, Indians, soldiers and other colorful units, will march over the nine sections which total approximately one-third of a mile and wind around the lagoon opposite the Ford exposition building. Another event which promises to draw much attention on the first day is the termination of the strangest horse race to be run in the southwest in years. This race will finish on the "Roads of the Southwest." The Lampasas race, as it has been called, will be sponsored by ranchers and entered by both men and women riders. About 200 entries are expected. There is no relay of mounts. Each rider must finish the 180 mile race from Lampasas to Dallas on the same horse. The race will begin June 3 and end on the "Roads of the Southwest" within the exposition grounds sometime June 6. Cash prizes will be awarded, and the Ford Motor company will present the winner with a saddle. A word picture of the Ford exposition building will be painted by Centennial radio announcers in Black - Draught Good Laxative Black-Draught has been kept on hand for all the family in the home of Mr. W. A. Lemons, of Independence, Va., since twenty years ago. Mr. Lemons writes that he takes it as a laxative in cases of "headache, dull, tired feeling, biliousness." "And I take it if I feel uncomfortable after a heavy meal," he adds. "I especially use it for sick headache. It certainly is good." "When a man says 'Black-Draught is good,' it is probably because he remembers the prompt, refreshing relief it brought in constipation troubles. Its benefits are felt because it is a simple, herb laxative, so natural in composition and action that thousands and thousands of men and women prefer it when a laxative is needed. -Adv.
