Klapproth Presides In Local Court

Damage Suit Trial Delayed To Tuesday; Guilty Pleas Heard

Judge Charles L. Klapproth of Midland is presiding in special district court here this week, hearing some cases in which Judge James T. Brooks disqualified himself.

One of these, Ida Inez Short, executor, vs. Texas & Pacific Railway company, was called for trial Monday morning, but delayed at the plaintiff's request until Tuesday morning, to give attorneys time to file pleading answering the defendant's formal answer to the original petition.

The court decided to hear plea of guilty to criminal charges Monday afternoon. The district attorney indicated several such pleas were expected.

Luther Man Is Hi-Jacked

L. F. Lawrence Loses $6 Cash To Sunday Visitor

L. F. Lawrence, postmaster and storekeeper at Luther, reported to the sheriff here Monday morning that he was held up at his store at 7 p. m. Sunday by an unmasked man who took $6.40 in cash.

Finger print experts Monday were taking pictures of tools used to force an entrance into the Tamsit & McGlinis shop on East Third street during the week-end.

The sheriff's department reported that nothing of value was taken.

Singing School Opening Monday

Beginning Monday a two weeks' singing school will be held at the Church of Christ, Fourteenth and Main streets, with Thomas R. Cobb, widely-known instructor, in charge.

There will be sessions at 4:30 p. m. and 7:30 p. m. daily and all people of the community are urged by church officers to attend.

The course is being offered without charge to all who wish to attend.

The afternoon sessions will be especially for school children.

Misses Maymie Hair and Florence Cotton are spending a few days on the Stone ranch near Stanton, guests of Mrs. Anne Stone and daughter, Miss Macon Stone.

Railroad Labor Accepts Wage Reduction of Ten Per Cent In Final Agreement With Roads

CHICAGO, (AP)—The unionized forces on United States railroads accepted a 10 per cent wage reduction for the year beginning Feb. 1, making an unprecedented decision in the expressed hope of stimulating the revival of business.

Negotiations that started Jan. 15 ended this afternoon as the representatives of nearly 2,000,000 rail workers agreed to the proposal of the employers and the representatives of more than 200 railroads promised an earnest and sympathetic effort to maintain and increase employment.

Basic rates remain the same, but a flat 10 per cent will be deducted from each railroad worker's pay check from tomorrow until Jan. 31, 1933, when the agreement automatically terminates. The railroads expect to save $215,000,000 by making the reduction apply to unorganized employees as well as the brotherhood and union men.

New Phase in Relations

It was a momentous occasion, widely heralded as a possible spur to renewed business activity, as the men whose wages are protected by contract capitulated to the arguments of their employers. In addition to the immediate importance as a relief measure to the stricken industry, it marked an entirely new phase in the relationship between railway capital and labor.

For the first time, on a nationwide scale, presidents of railroads and heads of labor organizations sat at a conference table and proceeded amicably and unburiedly to work out a solution to their problems. At no time during the 17 days they were in session or were deliberating their next move, was there any outward display of animosity between the two groups.

There were no threats, no references to strikes and lawyers were admitted to the conference room only at the final session to help work out the articles of agreement.

To Study Retirement Plan

The labor delegation tried to have a definite standard set for the stabilization of employment. It sought to bargain for a six and one-half per cent deduction and it made a half-hearted attempt to start a joint study of the six-hour day. But in the end the unions bowed to what they recognized as the urgent needs of the railroad industry and the demands of the public welfare and accepted the full 10 per cent cut.

The concessions granted to the workers were substantially those that had previously been described by their spokesmen as unsatisfactory. The railroads pledged their "earnest and sympathetic" efforts to keep up present forces and increase them if possible, with each road negotiating with its men for that purpose. They agreed to refer to a joint commission the subjects

City Extends Time For '31 Tax Payments

Sixty-Six Per Cent Collected; Water Reduction Planned

Payers of taxes on property in the city of Big Spring will be given until March 15 to pay 1931 taxes, without penalty, it was announced Monday following a meeting of the board of city commissioners.

City Manager E. V. Spence said that collections of current taxes to Monday totaled $73,739.16, or sixty-six per cent of the total levied.

In spite of that fact that water department revenues have declined considerably and 1932 is the "peak" year for payment of interest and principal on bonded indebtedness, the city is "in the clear" by a narrow margin and can operate through the remainder of the fiscal year on a cash basis.

The revised budget for the second half of the fiscal year, which ends March 31, was based on collection of 60 per cent of all taxes levied.

The extension period will close fifteen days before the fiscal year ends, when the budget for the next fiscal year will be finished.

City officials were of the opinion that a number of small taxpayers would be able to pay their taxes by March 15, thus giving the city funds aside from operating expenses and the sum needed to interest and sinking funds to help relieve unemployment.

The commission is more especially anxious to collect as much tax as possible because the greater the collections the brighter will be prospects for a change in the water rates, which is contemplated for April 1.

With funds now available the city has only sufficient money from tax collections to care for interest and sinking funds and must pay operating expenses from water department revenue.

Personally Speaking

Jeff Nicolis, suffering from typhoid fever in a local hospital, was reported still in a serious condition last night. He has been ill 30 days seriously for the past week. He resides in Martin county.

Lee Bivings, an uncle of Dr. Chas. K. Bivings and cousin, Yancy Bivings, of Birmingham, Ala., arrived Saturday for a visit here. Mr. Yancy Bivings left Sunday afternoon; Mr. Lee Bivings will remain for several days.

John Wolcott has returned home from A&M College to spend the remainder of the year at home due to trouble with his eye. After having almost lost his eyesight he was advised by his doctor to give his eyes a complete rest for several months.

Mrs. Sarah Ransom, of Dallas and Charlene Moore are visiting Mrs. L. E. Eddy for the week.

Mrs. Clarence Mann, accompanied by her two sons, Robert and Louis, and Mr. and Mrs. Wood Bennett, motored to Abilene Sunday to take Dorothy Mann and Margaret Bennett back to business college, after a week spent with their respective parents.

Miss Lovell Hilburn of the Settles hotel staff has been notified of the death of her mother at the family home in Oakland, Calif.

Mrs. Carlos Slaughter of Sugarland, who has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. B. Gilmore, plans to return home Tuesday. She will be accompanied by her sister, Miss Katy Gilmore.

Mrs. R. C. Strain has returned from Lamesa, where she paid a week's visit to her daughter, Mrs. Lee Hanson.

Miss Lena Kyle has gone to Houston to begin training as a nurse.

H. V. Billings left Saturday for Oklahoma City, being called there by the illness of his father.

W. G. Riddle, the new district manager of the Southwestern Bell Telephone company, with headquarters in Midland, was here Monday.

Mr. Riddle is one of the best-known telephone men in the state and will spend much of his time in Big Spring, which has the largest exchange in his district.

Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Baker had as week-end guests Mrs. Baker's mother, Mrs. E. W. Osburn, and niece, Miss Ella Mae Osburn of Abilene and Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Williams of Midland.

What Is It All About? This Invasion Of China By Japanese Armed Force

The Japanese, finding the rest of the civilized world either too busily occupied or grown too fat and impotent to take any action against them, having jumped on to the mainland of Asia and begun to dominate China in earnest.

Since the Russo-Japanese war the Japanese have felt that their destiny lay in first establishing their rule all over Asia, somewhat along the pattern of Genghis Khan, and then gradually making themselves a dominant world power. In order to accomplish this, their first object has been to possess themselves of all the islands lying between the peninsula of Kamchatka and the Malay peninsula, in this way blanketing the coast of Asia and insuring their line of sea communications for their oil and fuel, which they get from Borneo and the Dutch East Indies, Sumatra and Java. They have already taken the Kurile islands and part of Sakhalin, to the north of their own islands. From Kyushu, the southernmost island of their group, they have extended their line through the Rikuku island to Formosa and the little island of Botel Tobago, which is just sixty miles away from our northernmost Philippine possession.

Philippines and Borneo Remain To Be Taken by the Japanese

There remain yet to be taken the Philippine Islands and Borneo. These will undoubtedly be pounced upon at the first favorable opportunity. If for instance, we give independence to the Philippines, it will not be long before some Japanese officer, agent, merchant, or traveler will be abused or killed there, and the Japanese will occupy the islands in much the same way that they have Manchuria.

At the conclusion of the Russo-Japanese war the Japanese armed forces were in possession of Manchuria. This the Japanese believe they were deprived of by the action of the United States particularly. Before their war with Russia the Japanese had formed a military treaty with Great Britain, by which one nation was obliged to help the other in case she was attacked by more than one power. This treaty was for the purpose of leaving Japan free to fight Russia without the intervention of another power. In other words, Japan was fighting England's battle in the Far East to keep Russia away from the ice-free ports on the Liaoting peninsula in the Yellow sea. The treaty was abrogated through the influence of the United States, and the Japanese hold the United States responsible for this. Our exclusion laws are also a sore spot with the Japanese.

The root of their antagonism and mistrust, however, lies in the simple physical fact that the United States is the only great white power whose shores are washed by the Pacific ocean. Proportionately we are really a greater Pacific power than we are an Atlantic power. We are on the east side of the Pacific and Japan is on the west side. We aspire to the trade of Asia and so does Japan. We have more raw materials, vegetable and mineral, than Japan has, and she believes that she must obtain some additional ones or lose out. She considers an armed contest with us a certainty in the future.

These are some of the reasons back of her seizure of Manchuria, and she will hold it if she possibly can.

Why Manchuria Is Necessary To Japan's Scheme of Expansion

Manchuria is a tremendously rich province. It is the granary of China. Its crops of kneeling or giant millet, look very much like our cornfields and extend as far as the eye can reach. This wonderful grain is used by man and beast. The stalks are used to thatch houses and are made into clothing. The soy bean grows in Manchuria under the best conditions. It is an immensely precious crop. The bean oil is used in soaps, paints, and a multitude of other preparations, while the bean cake makes a "wonderful" fodder for domestic animals and cattle. Manchuria is rich in lumber, coal, and possibly oil. Enormous reserves have always been derived from it, hence she who held Manchuria had a powerful weapon with which to deal with the rest of China, Korea, and Japan.

Manchuria has always been filled with bandits, roving bands who live by robbing and pillaging. All through Manchuria the fields are tilled in the daytime by people who come from walled cities or villages to which they return at night, while the bandits hold away outside.

The Japanese tried hard to colonize Manchuria, but they totally failed as pioneers. They could not plow the ground, fell the trees, or build up a civilization in the way the Chinese did. From China the immigrants came by the millions. Families, consisting of a father with three or four wives and fifteen or twenty children, would drive in with their bulks, mules, and ponies hitched to great carts, take up a stretch of land, and in an incredibly short time clear it, plow it, seed it and reap crops. During the twenty years after the Russo-Japanese war, more than 15,000,000 Chinese came into Manchuria. The Japanese were tremendously jealous of this, but as they wanted the benefits they had to stand by and watch. Few actual Manchurians remain, probably not over 20,000 or 30,000 of pure blood.

These Chinese believe that the time has come when their exploitation by foreigners must cease. They realize, however, that without an industrial backbone they cannot produce gunpowder, cannon, airplanes, automobiles, poison gas, and other munitions of war which they must have to engage in modern war with highly civilized nations. Biologically the Chinese believe they will one day rule the world, as they are the healthiest, strongest, and most enduring, and more prolific than any other people. Whenever they come into contact with other races they swallow them up. They have absorbed every conquering race that has come among them. They hate political power and look on politicians merely as people who attempt to extort money from others.

This view, however, has been changed greatly in the last twenty years because they know that they have to stand together against the foreigner. This has led to a development of national spirit.

Chinese Trades Unions Strong In Use of the Boycott Weapon

Their great weapon is the commercial boycott, which they extend through their trade unions and social organizations to every part of their domain. It was in Hongkong a few years ago when a boycott was declared against the English. On a given day all the domestic servants—nurses, butlers, maids, cooks, chauffeurs, gardeners, janitors, and laundresses—left their employers' houses. Ricksha men, artisans, mechanics, and every individual who had anything to do with the British stopped work. The British were astonished. Volunteers were called to do the work of the departed Chinese. In the clubs and hotels young Englishmen ran elevators, cooked meals, and cleaned the rooms, while overtures were made to the Chinese tongue to get the servants to come back. Only when the conditions they had made were complied with did they return.

Recently the Chinese declared a boycott against Japanese goods. They hate the Japanese more than any other people on earth. They call them the "dwarfed outer barbarians."

In war and preparations for war, the methods of the Japanese conform to their general psychological make-up. Espies acquire the greatest merit in Japan. They are sent everywhere in all sorts of guises and disguises. They are placed in the prospective enemy's service and left there for years, to work up in it to positions of responsibility and trust so that they can better gain information. Every advantage is taken to work into the good graces, the friendship, and the confidence of the foreigner. The most elaborate system of espionage is maintained by them, especially in and with regard to the United States.

After the Russo-Japanese war a wave of egotism swept over Japan. Her people thought they could conquer the world, but when they saw what happened in the war in Europe, they realized that the Russian troops whom they had fought were poor, torn by internal dissension and insurrections at home, and that if they ran into troops such as Germany, France, England, or America put into the field the story would be a different one.

Japan is very vulnerable. She is dependent upon outside supplies for almost as great an extent as England is. Her line of communications for this purpose runs to Asia by way of Korea, and for her oil, tin, and other needs, to the Malay peninsula. Submarines acting against these lines of communications could probably destroy the ships carrying these essential supplies.

Japanese in No Way Afraid of the United States Naval Power

However, Japan is in no way afraid of our naval power. She has a mandate over the Mariana or Ladrones Islands which extend up within 600 miles of Hawaii in a continuous chain from Japan, and

Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Hartman have returned from Fort Worth where they attended the annual convention of the Texas Band Teachers Association.

The membership voted to meet in 1933 at Waco. Everett McCracken, Waco, was named president. Other officers include Earl M. Irons, vice-president; Major Dunn, Texas A&M College, secretary; D. O. Wiley, Simmons university, Abilene, treasurer; Ralph Frazier, Pampa, sergeant-at-arms; E. M. Sheppard, Temple, chaplain.

It was voted to have an all-state band play in Fort Worth during the annual convention of the Texas State Teachers association next Thanksgiving Day.

Mr. Hartman declared that Big Spring should have a well-represented band at the Fort Worth meeting. A movement was started for Texas to be represented in August 1933 at the Chicago World Fair by an all-state band, which would assemble in Lampasas. Mr. Hartman declared Big Spring has players who would be serious contenders for places in such a band provided they could receive sufficient support from citizens of the town.

A standardized course for high school instruction on musical instruments was adopted at the convention, where 85 cities were represented. Mr. Hartman said that of the 85 towns represented only four had bands, supported by a band tax, one of which was Big Spring.

Cotton Law Held Invalid

FRANKLIN, Texas (AP)—District Judge W. C. Davis held the law restricting cotton planting to 50 per cent of last year's acreage to all crops unconstitutional.

The court denied T. Lynn Robertson county attorney, an injunction against Fred L. Smith, state claimed Smith was planning to plant more than the specified proportion to cotton.

An appeal to the tenth court of civil appeals will be made immediately and the case probably taken to the supreme court.

Judge Davis held the law was tyrannical, that it abridged property rights, was passed to raise the price of cotton and not to conserve the soil as claimed.

Scout Board of Review To Meet Tuesday Evening

A board of review for Boy Scouts of all local troops will be held at the First Christian church Tuesday at 7:30 p. m. All troop committeemen are asked to be present, as there will be an important meeting for planning local observance of national Boy Scout week, February 7-13.

AMERICAN OIL PLANT FIRED UPON

Japan Considers Sending Full Army Division To Shanghai

WASHINGTON (AP)—Lieutenant Commander P. W. Rutledge of the U. S. destroyer Simpson, notified the navy department that Japanese warships began shelling Nanking, capital of China, without warning.

The Simpson was moved to avoid the line of fire, Rutledge cabled.

There are about 200 Americans in Nanking.

France and Italy formally notified the United States that they were cooperating in the protest of Japanese tactics at Shanghai. Great Britain suggested renewed protests.

The American consulate at Swatow, 500 miles down the coast from Shanghai, reported that a Japanese-Chinese clash was imminent there.

Evacuation of approximately 4,000 Americans in various trouble centers appeared likely.

SHANGHAI (AP)—A Japanese destroyer turned a machine gun on the American Texaco Oil company plant when alarmed by shooting of firecrackers by Chinese in a religious ceremony. No damage was done. An American destroyer was anchored nearby. The company asked the American consul to file a protest. Fortunately the bullets failed to fire oil storage tanks.

Congress Reforms CONGRESS, in both its branches, is getting along pretty well these days, thank you.

Both houses have shown remarkable alacrity in handling the reconstruction finance corporation legislation.

Perhaps congress has reformed. Possibly it has caught a vision of the need for greater cooperation as between the two branches.

At a time when the democratic party has a golden opportunity to make hay while the republican sun is setting, the fact is that the party leaders in congress are doing nothing of the sort.

Friends of Liquor Hard to Please

SENATOR Bingham certainly are hard to please. For the past two years they have been trying every way possible to get a vote in congress on the subject of prohibition.

Senator Bingham and his wet friends said that the vote was ill-advised, taken at the wrong time, and is therefore without significance.

SYNOPSIS: Dangers ahead threaten Trueman Rock. Amy Dabb is jealous of his love for Thiry Preston; Thiry's father, Gage, is mixed up in some mysterious business, possibly cattle rustling, and her brother Ash is a cattle rustler and an enemy of Rock. Rock is trying to save Thiry from disgrace.

Chapter 31 THE SHOWDOWN "And here's another—more of a stumper," went on Amy. "Last night John had some men to the house, as usual. They talked and smoked. When I heard your name I listened. Some one, I think it was Mr. Hesbitt, answered whoever had used your name first. I don't know that it is those on ridin' for Preston, I'll not share the opinion you men have of him."

"I'm bound to tell you that Rock's talk is not queer. I'll gamble it's true. I never knew him to lie. And no old rider or cattlemen on that range would say it, even if he thought it."

"That's straight talk. I like it and thank you. It makes what I wanted to say easier."

"You think I'm a bloodthirsty devil?" burst out Rock, repelled, yet sorry for her. "I don't want to kill another man. I won't, if I can help it."

Next morning about eleven o'clock, Rock strolled out of the hotel on his way to see John Dabb. Rock asked to see John Dabb, and was shown into that individual's private office.

"I'm not sure that you're not a little drunk," said Rock, leaning over to Dabb. "The old woman here gave Amy the worst of that affair. She was pretty and vain—and had a way with the boys. But she was good, and if they ever knew otherwise they lied. I was in love with Amy, perhaps a little more so than I was with Thiry. I know Amy knew this. I'm sure she was fond of me, but there were other boys. What I want to make clear to you, Dabb, is that Amy was never serious about me. I mean never in love as it was in her to be. And I'm satisfied that she never has been yet. Even with you."

"This is straight talk," said Dabb, leaning over to Rock. "You're not a little drunk, are you?"

News OF THE Day IN Pictures

CHINESE FLEE RIVER HOMES AS JAPANESE ATTACK

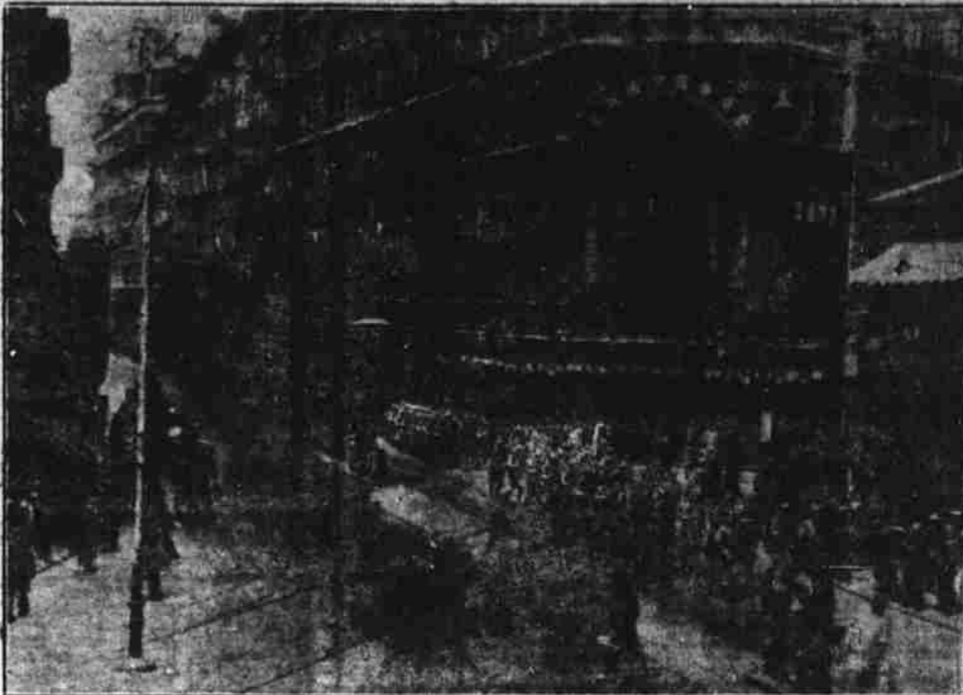

Thousands of Chinese who live along the Wosung river (above) attempted to flee from their homes as the Japanese bombarded Shanghai. The Wosung touches both the international settlement and the Chinese city of Shanghai.

JUDD LAWYERS EXAMINE EVIDENCE

MARINES GUARD U. S. INTERESTS IN SHANGHAI

While Japanese troops occupied the Chinese quarter of Shanghai, United States marines in the international settlement prepared to defend American interests if fighting endangered the settlement. They put up barbed wire barricades along the settlement boundaries and were ready for any emergency. Here is a detachment of United States marines marching through one of Shanghai's main thoroughfares.

IN KENTUCKY TRIAL FIGHT

Attorneys Allen Prewitt (left) and Reid Prewitt won a point in their defense of their father, Judge Henry R. Prewitt, when the Kentucky court of appeals refused to force the judge to admit reporters of the Knoxville News-Sentinel to his court at Mt. Sterling, Ky., scene of murder trials of Kentucky miners.

On Guard In China

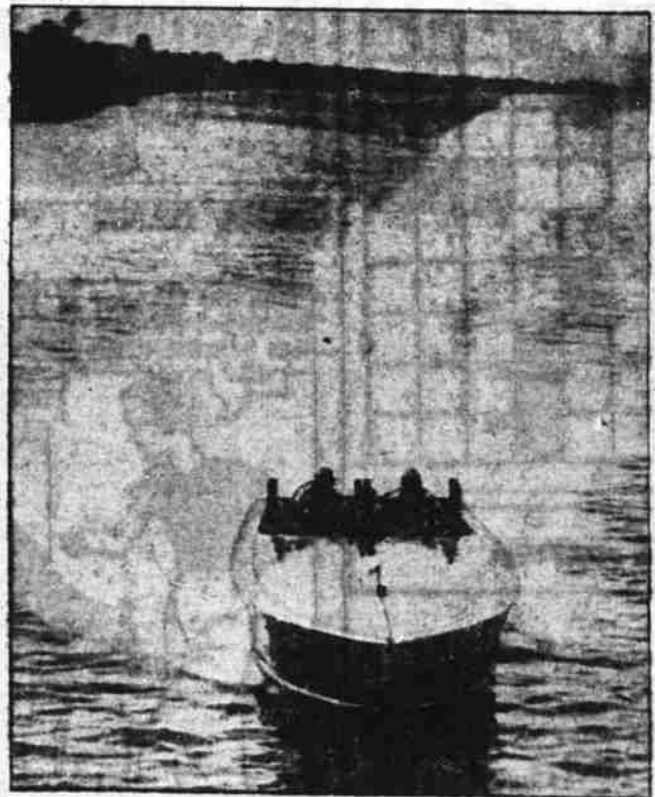

Col. R. S. Hooker is in command of the 1,225 United States marines stationed at Shanghai, China, scene of the most recent trouble in the Sino-Japanese controversy.

NO EYE-TROUBLE FOR THIS LASS

True, Jill Bennett of Hollywood is having her eyes examined by an optometrist, but that's only a formality in the taking out of $100,000 insurance on the big orbs that have won their owner distinction even in the movie capital, where winsome eyes are common.

GAR WOOD SETS NEW SPEED MARK

Beach Millinery

Golf Club Whistles

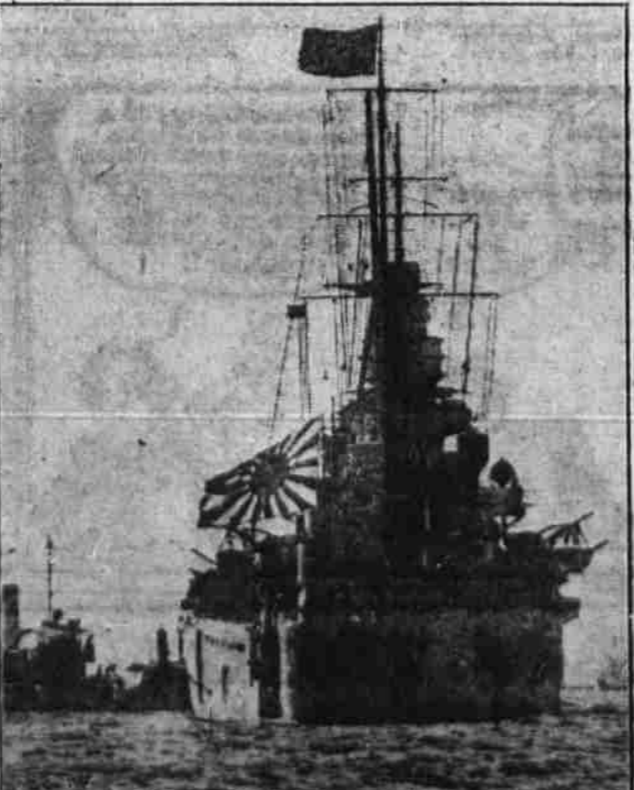

Willie Dunn of Chicago, winner of the first United States open golf championship, is shown with his "whistling golf stick," which is a champion figure skater from allotted so it will shriek like a police siren. She was chosen to whistle when properly swung, while compete in the winter Olympic a faulty stroke brings only silence, games at Lake Placid, New York.

Held In Massacre

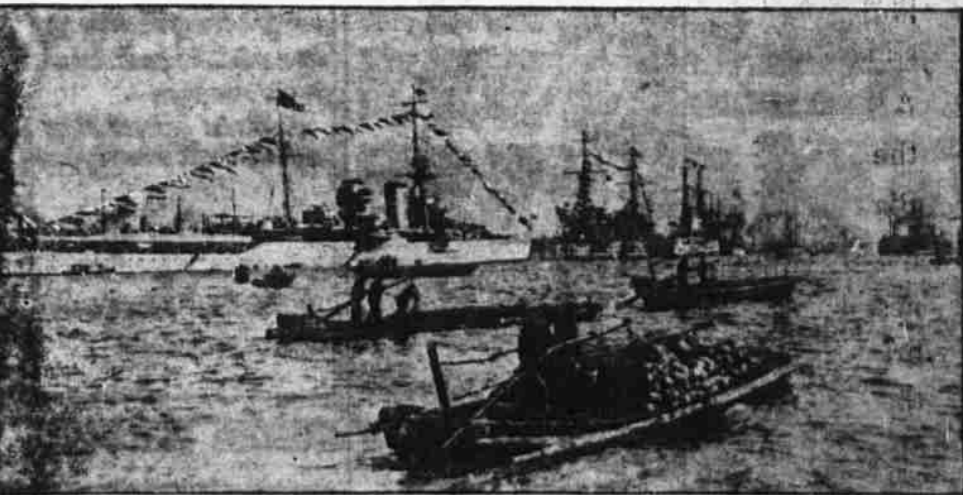

Oscar Young (above), brother of Harry and Jennings Young, brothers who killed themselves after being sought for the slaying of six posemen near Springfield, Mo., faces trial as an accessory in the septuple slayings following his admission that he supplied guns used by the killers.

JAPANESE CRUISER AT SHANGHAI

This is the Japanese cruiser, Haguro, one of the 40 Japanese battleships that participated in the occupation of Shanghai by Japanese marines. The Japanese ships shelled the Chinese fort at the mouth of the Whangpo before landing marines who engaged the Chinese in heavy fighting.

JAPANESE WARSHIPS IN ATTACK TO SEIZE SHANGHAI

On the Whangpo river near Shanghai, China, scene of attacks by Japanese gunboats on forts of Shanghai in maneuvers to seize the city, there usually are so many foreign battleships that their presence interferes with commercial travel. This picture shows a line-up of French, British, Japanese and American ships.

SCENE OF FIGHTING IN SHANGHAI

In a carefully planned advance preceded by a shelling from ships in the harbor, Japanese marines augmented by armored cars captured the Chinese quarters in Shanghai. Chinese troops were swept out of the native city and Chapel district, shown on map, after severe fighting. Clashes occurred on the borders of the international settlement where the United States holds large interests.

Mrs. Allgood Married To T. A. Roberts

Ceremony Takes Place At Home of Mr. Day Saturday

Mrs. Louella Allgood, formerly Howard county home demonstration agent, and Thomas A. Roberts were married Saturday evening at the home of the Rev. R. E. Day, leaving Sunday morning for a short honeymoon in El Paso and vicinity.

Mrs. Roberts is well known throughout the county for her work with the home demonstration clubs and is very popular in both town and country. She has lived here for the past four years.

Mr. Roberts is employed at the railroad shops and has made this city his home for many years.

Mrs. J. E. Brigham, Miss Bobbie Malone and Roy Lassiter were at the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Roberts will live on West Eighth street.

A Sure Cure For A Blue Monday

A sure cure for a blue Monday is to hunt out Sunday's (yesterday's) Dallas News and read the leading feature in the feature section called "When Father Changes to Clatter" or some such title, referring to baby feet. It is written by Mrs. W. A. Stall, of Big Spring, and is guaranteed to furnish from one to fifty laughs per person, depending on the person and the number of offspring he has.

Mrs. Stall is a sister of Jan (Belle) Fortune, whose clever and humorous lecture on "Seeing Europe on a Shoe-String" was recently delivered before the Hy-perion club.

Reputation As Poet Gained By Woman Of Garden City

Mrs. Leola Christie Barnes, daughter of Mrs. John Christie of Garden City, whose home is in Santa Anna, has been honored by having three of her poems selected for a reading before the Eunhill Literary school of London.

Mrs. Barnes, who has acquired international fame as a poet has a poem "Unlauded Glory" appearing in "Home and Abroad" which is published in Paris, France.

She is a friend of Gertrude Perry West, reputed to be poet laureate of America and Dixieland, and residing in Florida, to which state she has introduced Mrs. Barnes' poetry.

This poet, who has been one of those endorsed as poet laureate for the state of Texas by many prominent people including Senator Walter Woodward, of Coleman, a relative of Garland Woodward, is a member of the following societies: Poetry Society of Texas, Verse Writers Guild of America, Star Dust Manuscript Club of Washington, D. C.

Clothing Girls Study Practical Buying At Store

Mrs. Geo. Brown took the second-year girls of the Clothing Class to J. and W. Fisher's department store for a practical demonstration in purchasing Monday morning.

Mrs. Miller, Bernard Fisher and Mrs. Brown took up the points of selection regarding merchandise. The girls were shown the difference between full fashioned and circular hose and full fashioned feet; also the different grades of silk and rayon lingerie, the difference between the showy lace-trimmed models and the better grades of hand-made, pure silk models.

In the cotton goods department they learned how to distinguish between starched and unstarched materials and the finish of prints, the count in sheeting, the weave in ticking.

In the linen goods they were shown linens from southern Europe, Ireland, Russia and Italy.

The girls who went on this tour were Alta Mary Stalcup, Dorothy Rockhold, Dorothy Payne, Dorothy Coleman, Elizabeth McCreary, Faye Yates, Laura Bird, Louise Squires, Georgia Owen, Juanita Stusser, Pernie Mason, Vada Bell Thomas, Gertrude Martin, Willie Mae Heath, Barbara Freeman, Dorothy Mae Miller, Mary Margaret Hinds, Willie Mae and Lorcha Witt, La Verne Sims, Anna Bell Smith, Ellen Scott, Alzada Pamplin, Modesta Good, Jewel Kelly, Zan Grant, Frances Shank, Mario Bayan, Doris Barrett, Juanita Campbell, Johnnie Chaney, Bobbie Gordon, Ocel Nabors, Edna Straughan, Mattie Belle Thorp, Mrs. H. H. Squires was also present.

EX-RESIDENT MARRIED

Friends have received an announcement of the marriage of Copas Bowen, oldest son of the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Bowen, formerly pastor of the Big Spring First Baptist church, to Mrs. Nellie Fox Mergelle at San Antonio on January 17. Mr. and Mrs. Bowen will make their home in San Antonio.

INTERMEDIATE BYPU MEETS

The Intermediate B.Y.P.U. met at the First Baptist church Sunday afternoon with Mrs. Harry Stalcup's group in charge of the program.

Herald Patterns Sensible Designs Easily Used By The Home Dressmaker

7401 A MOST ATTRACTIVE STYLE

7401. Here is the prescribed silhouette of the season. Width at the shoulders, a small waistline and fitted hips. The waist portions are cut with deep points at center front and back, quite like the busque of the gay nineties. Yoke portions, and hold the skirt sections, which are cut with modified fullness that flares only a little, and hangs in soft folds to the instep. The sleeve may be finished in wrist length, close fitting below the pretty sleeve puff, or, the puff may finish the sleeve at the elbow, with a narrow band that ties in soft loops and ends. Metal brocade, velvet, lame, satin or chiffon is suggested for this frock, which will serve for afternoon wear, or for theater or early dining.

Designed in 5 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure. Size 38 will require 5 yards in 39 inch width if made with long sleeves. If made with elbow sleeves 4 5/8 yards will be required. To finish with bias binding as shown in the large view will require 4 yards, 1 1/2 inch wide. For the bands of contrasting material 1 3/8 yard of ribbon is required or 1 1/4 yard of 3/8 inch material. The width of the dress at the lower edge with fullness extended is 2 5/8 yards.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 15c in silver or stamps.

Dallas Visitors Honored By The Floyd Timmons

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Timmons gave a bridge party Saturday evening complimentary to Mr. and Mrs. Vogt Williams, of Dallas.

During the play Mrs. Walkup made high score for the women and received a lovely black sugar and creamer. Mr. Lane made high for the men and received a bottle of shaving lotion.

Low scores went to Mrs. Maddux, who was given an incense burner and to Mr. Grimes who won an astiray. The honorees were presented with a lovely large picture.

Aprioc Melba and coffee were served to the following: Messrs. Geo. S. Harvell, Geo. S. Grimes, L. T. Leslie, Jack Walkup; Mmes. Glenn Parmack, Bud Maddux and Johnnie Lane.

Co-Ed Class Plans For Benefit Play In Future

The members of the Co-Ed class met at the Presbyterian church Sunday afternoon and heard an interesting Bible lecture given by Miss Verbena Barnes. They also planned a benefit play to be given in the near future to raise money for song books.

Those attending were Mmes. Graham Foshee, R. E. Carter, W. C. Wilson, Lee Weathers; Mr. and Mrs. Kin Barnett; Misses Pauline Sullivan, Kittle Calloway, Ine Drake, Vallia Truie, Irene Knau, Agnes Currie, Margaret Moore, Jeanette Barnett; Messrs. Bob Schermerhorn, Irving James, John Carleton and A. S. Luther.

IRAN—IRAN BEATS DEVILS

IRAAN—Iraan defeated the Devils, Big Spring junior club, in the semi-final of the Iran invitational tournament 42 to 25 here today.

The Devils had advanced through the first two rounds by virtue of a default from Peaso and a 20 to 10 victory over the Omega quintet.

10-Cent Taxi And Transfer Service Grows

Bill Bonner, Long - Time Resident, Proprietor Company

The 10-Cent Taxi Co. is owned and operated by Wm. Bonner, long time citizen of Big Spring, "Bill" as he is familiarly known to most people for several years owned and operated the Bonner Grocery.

About a year ago last November, Bill decided to go into the taxi business. At that time the regular fare was 50 cents per person. He secured a number of Chevrolet automobiles and opened his taxi business and charged 10c for any trip south of Eighteenth street and 25c for trips beyond that distance.

He recently purchased two new cars which he added to his fleet of taxis. Today he offers a remarkably fast taxi service that has proved popular with Big Spring people.

The phone number of the company is 444 and it is located at 109 W. Second street.

SPORTS ON PARADE

By CURTIS BISHOP

According to an announcement issued the other day the Big Spring municipal golf course will be ready for play soon, and all would be members should hurry and pay their green fees to get in at the bargain rate. The course, you know winds hither and thither over the hills of the city park, and is quite a layout if we are able to believe all we hear. For one we never play golf, at least not much. To begin with we haven't any clubs or any balls. To end with whenever we feel in a golfing mood we just secure us a stick and walk out the highway, let the ground a round-ounding whack every minute or so, and exhaust our profane vocabulary meanwhile.

And speaking of golf brings to mind a joke we once heard about the sport. That is a respectable joke, it wasn't told in the locker room. Two players were playing the back nine on the local course and came to the seventeenth with a score of 40 each, not counting a couple of tosses out of sand traps that were not noticed by mutual consent and with any putt under ten feet conceded by their opponent, which is the way we like to play golf. But to continue. One of the players sliced his drive over to the right out of bounds, and the other player followed him over the fence, apparently to help him find it but in reality to see that he didn't pick it out of the rough and tee it up without penalty. After a fifteen minute search both players were raging furiously. Then for the first time they noticed a white-haired lady standing nearby and regarding their movements with interest.

"Gentlemen," she said sweetly "would it be cheating if I told you where they were?"

Spike Henninger's Couden crew stamped the Grand Prairie Oil and Gas team the other night 58 to 13, which is certainly some swamping since the second string was used almost all of the second and third quarters. The Coudenites swing into action next Wednesday afternoon against the Col-Tex Refinery of Colorado in the local gym, and are, Mr. Henninger points out, quite ready to battle the Big Spring High Bovies or the Lomax Hornets at any date their respective mentors might name.

It is doubtful, however, if the Oilers and the Steers come together again this season. Henninger popped off and popped off at the first of the year until George Brown finally consented to play the red and white cagers a game, and the results only added to the local string of victories. Of course Steel man was out for the Couden team and all of that, but nevertheless the Oilers were defeated. It was not good basketball for a high school club to play an amateur quintet. Amateur basketball is rougher, a little less polished. The Refinerymen do not practice every day as do the Bovies, consequently they are not as careful where their blows land or where their knees light when they take a tumble.

The Couden club is the outstanding independent amateur quintet in West Texas, and Henninger should spend his time upholding that reputation instead of sending rash challenges out to all the high schools in the district. If they want better competition than the various towns around here to offer there is still a man named George Elliott over at Odessa who protests heatedly that his Elliott Hotel club can lick the Couden aggregation any day in the week and twice on Sundays. Elliott evidently loves to pop off as much as Spike.

semblance of a city league may begin operations here next week. There won't be much of a circuit if it is true, but the East Fourth Baptists, the First Baptists, the Big Brothers Sunday School class of the First Methodist Church, and the Boy Scouts may start playing each other every time they can secure the local gym and figuring the results on a percentage basis. Which is something, even if it is not very much.

Texas Topic

By RAYMOND BROOKS

AUSTIN—A lively race for the state senate from the 26th district was assured, when Rep. A. M. Howley of Albany announced his opposition to the incumbent, Sen. Oliver Cunningham of Abilene.

Both are young men; both lawyers; both able debaters; both with records of public service upon which their constituents may judge them. The district is well divided between urban and rural voters and has no geographic advantages for one or the other.

Mr. Cunningham voted against the submission of the highway bond proposal; Mr. Howley in the house was one of its champions. Howley was author of the "Howley conservation bill" in the last legislature.

Mr. Howley, in sending out his announcement for the senate, declared he will hold his campaign to the single issue, "reduction in governmental expenses," rather than the necessary alternative of increased revenues. His platform is based upon his record of fighting for economy measures in the past legislature.

Youngest lieutenant colonel in the American army during the World War, he returned home to a successful business career. He is completing his third year as mayor of his home city, elected on a campaign for lower taxes, lower utility rates and lower city costs.

"He has effected a saving for the people of Amarillo of almost $1,000,000 a year through reduced utility rates and lower taxes," the paper said. "City taxes have been reduced 25 per cent, and city government costs out $240,000 a year, in a city that has stood at the top of business condition."

The fighting mayor's campaign pledge for congress is: "To fight the cruel concentration of our nation's wealth in New York city... to fight against further meddling in European affairs and any further reduction or moratorium on foreign debts... Congress should begin looking after the interests of the common working people."

Georgia has the greatest peach acreage, but California leads all states in size of peach crops.

New Service Offered; Have Your Character Analyzed By Handwriting

LORNE A. MILNE

Handwriting... penmanship, as it was called when it was the second of the three R's... may be going out of fashion because of the stenographer and her typewriter, but it still has one important function. It is growing in importance as a means of reading character. Graphology is being taken more seriously in the business and social life than ever before.

If you go to consult a graphologist, more likely than not you will find him a serious minded, dignified gentleman of broad education who might grace any of the professions.

At least, that description exactly fits Lorne A. Milne, a leading graphologist, whose home and offices are in Chicago.

And today the Herald takes pleasure in announcing that the services of Mr. Milne have been secured for its readers. On page 7 in this issue you will find a coupon that will entitle you to a 300-word personal analysis of your handwriting by Mr. Milne, for only the cost of handling, 10 cents, and a stamped, self-addressed envelope for his reply. Your own analysis will be sent you, enclosed in a neat booklet.

Never before has it been possible to secure such a service as this for less than $5, the usual price a reputable graphologist charges for a handwriting analysis. But through a fortunate arrangement between Mr. Milne and the Herald, we are able to make this heretofore unheard-of offer.

Science

"Graphology is a genuine science," Mr. Milne will tell you.

"If you have any doubt about it, look in the dictionary." Upon looking in a copy of the Standard dictionary, here's what you find:

"Graphology is the science of estimating character or of determining personality by studying the handwriting."

"That one's character shows in his handwriting is a belief almost as old as handwriting itself and common to people all over the world," says Milne. "Old Nero was not so slow back in 58 B.C. or thereabouts, for he had discovered graphology and to a friend one day said of a third person: 'That fellow is treacherous; I know it by his handwriting.'"

"The first book to be written on the subject, however, did not make its appearance until the year 1632. It was written by an Italian, one Camillo Buldo, and it would not be of much help to a graphologist today. In 1830 the Abbe Flourens contributed something more on the subject, and from that time on it has been slowly but surely developed from an amusing pastime to one of the recognized sciences, founded on classified knowledge."

Just here Mr. Milne becomes emphatic.

Goes Farther

"You know the vogue all forms of personality study are having," he said. "Well, graphology is not only more accurate but goes further than psychology, psychoanalysis or any of the new systems of character study. It goes on from the point where all of them leave off."

"It isn't like fortune telling, then?" he was asked.

"It is nothing like astrology, the ouija board, phrenology or any of the mystical cults," he replied. "It is founded on the sound theory that your handwriting is a picture of your mind, reflecting your character traits and tendencies as accurately as a mirror reflects your features."

"In Europe graphology now forms part of the curriculum of the leading universities and is put to practical use in many ways. Business men, doctors and teachers all find it invaluable to them in their several professions. In England, Germany and Holland it is in almost general use."

"How did you happen to take up graphology?" Mr. Milne was asked.

"Purely as a hobby," he replied. "I had three sisters, each of a distinct type of character and entirely different from each other. As a schoolboy I noticed that each had an individual handwriting, and I began to analyze it. I found that certain characteristics of handwriting seemed to indicate corresponding traits of character. From an accidental beginning of the study I have gone on, devoting a lifetime to the science."

Experienced

Mr. Milne was born in Canada of Scotch ancestry. Whether the fact that the Scots like other members of the Gaelic race are psychically bent for character study, he doesn't know. When he was 9 years old his parents moved to a farm in South Dakota, and there he grew up like the son of any pioneer family of the west, and going to a district school. He went to Chicago and studied law. After being admitted to the bar, he practiced his profession for many years, meanwhile pursuing his study of graphology as a sideline. Finally the hobby became his profession.

Just here there should be pointed out the fact that a graphologist and a handwriting expert are two entirely different functionaries. The handwriting expert is the man who is called into court to determine the truth of graphology as a sideline. The graphologist, on the other hand, does for society what the psycho-analyst sets out to do. The handwriting expert may know nothing of graphology, and the graphologist might be an entire failure as a handwriting expert.

Mr. Milne, as a graphologist, not long ago read the character of G. W. Schwartz, Chicago handwriting expert, from his handwriting. Mr. Schwartz told of the incident himself, explaining that he disguised his handwriting in several different ways, as only a handwriting expert could, but that he couldn't fool Mr. Milne. "He made the same analysis from each of the samples sent in under various names," he said, "and it proved to me that graphology, to which I had never paid the slightest attention, really is a science in itself."

Here are some of the interesting things Mr. Milne has to say about graphology:

Part of Self

A person's handwriting is really a part of himself, since it is an expression of his personality. It is as characteristic as his walk or the tone of his voice.

School years are the formative period for handwriting. Just as they are of character, but by five years after an individual has left school he has settled down to a style of handwriting that is an open index to his character.

If you are planning to get married, you can learn more about your fiancé or fiancée from his or her handwriting than in any other way.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Cromulion, an emulsified croscote that is pleasant to take. Cromulion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, croscote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Cromulion contains, in addition to croscote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the croscote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germ.

Cromulion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

PERMANENCE

FOR more than eight hundred years the Tower of London has stood by the Thames. This bank, too, has all the qualities that give permanence, whether to a structure or to an institution.

There's one Right Size for Cigarettes

THE CHESTERFIELD STANDARD

Length of cigarette 2 1/2 inches or 70 mm.
Circumference 1-1/16 inches or 27 mm.

● Examine various cigarettes, and you'll find they are not all alike in size. Yet our scientists say their tests and research fix one definite size standard as the best. For a given length, our experts say, there is one right diameter . . . to make the draft right . . . to make the cigarette burn right.

Not only that, when the size is right, the cigarette lasts longer, and smokes cooler. And that "right" size is exactly the standard Chesterfield size.

A detail? Of course—but a mighty important one, figured in extra coolness and comfort. It's by constant attention to just such details that Chesterfield sets cigarette standards.

Notice how round and full each Chesterfield is—how firmly packed. There are two "electric detectives" on every packing machine, to check this detail also!

The right size . . . and the right quality. Chesterfield never changes either one. Measure them any way you want—with ruler, microscope, or test-tube.

Or measure them in the surest way of all—by milder and better taste. And you'll find—They Satisfy! Good, they've got to be good!
