LULAC, COMA Protest Ordinance

Concerned citizens and representatives of LULAC and COMA called a press conference last Saturday to express concern as to the actions of the City Council and specifically T.J. Patterson and Maggie Trejo in hastily passing a city ordinance which restructured the Lubbock Board of City Development.

"Our concerns about the ordinance were expressed by Tomas Garza yesterday and basically include the fact that the new ordinance excludes true and equal minority representation on the Board and the fact that the ordinance is vague and has not been thoroughly researched in order to insure proper expenditure of tax monies," said spokesman Genaro Chavez, District 1 Director.

Chavez said that the organizations wholeheartedly supported the concept of the ordinance but realized that a few clauses are detrimental. "Many within our organization have sought changes for the past 10 years. Our basic objective yesterday was to delay passage of the ordinance to insure ample time to read and acquire adequate input from all the citizens of Lubbock and determine what flaws this law may have. Ample time for consideration is essential in changing an ordinance that has governed our City for 60 years."

In writing this ordinance, different time frames were mentioned which include one week to six months. "In actuality, the final draft and to our knowledge the first date it was made available was November 18, 1985. The Ordinance was first read November 21st and passed on November 22nd. In our opinion, 5 days is not ample time to adequately consider a change of this magnitude," Chavez said.

Since the inception of discussions between the city and the chamber, the organizations said that they continually tried to communicate with their representatives, Trejo and Patterson to obtain information on the ordinance. "We received no response. Trejo and Patterson have said that we have not asked them to meet with us.

It surprises us that the time was not taken to contact us since they should realize that LULAC has always been very concerned about appointments to boards, equal representation and directly responsible for single member districts which enabled the election of Trejo and Patterson." stated Chavez.

Paula Montoya, COMA president, said that in addition COMA's track record presently has proved the devotion to economic development in Lubbock. "It is evident that professional courtesy should have been extended by Trejo and Patterson to COMA members for their effort if the basis of the ordinance was sincerely developed for overall Economic Development in and for Lubbock," she said.

In closing the organizations asked the Lubbock City Council to first: Insure parity for

Agricultural Nomads

from The Daily Texan

Fort Stockton -- Sabino Armencariz and Martin Garcia were working out in the fields a few months ago when an airplane flying overhead sprayed them with pesticide.

"It was greasy and wet. We felt dizzy from the effect of the pesticide," Garcia said in Spanish. The insecticide they were sprayed with had moderate to low toxicity.

Eight farmworkers who said they were sprayed complained to the Texas Department of Agriculture. The parties involved have agreed not to let farmworkers re-enter freshly sprayed fields for at least 24 hours after the spraying.

These farmworkers who travel from town to town following crops and seasons are America's version of South Africa's blacks. They are of a specific ethnic group Hispanics. They work long hours for low wages. Their description of their treatment by contractors and growers compares to the way South Africa's government treats blacks.

Situations sometimes erupt in violence. Efforts at unionization pit the Hispanic union organizers against the farmers and growers, with the workers caught in the middle — who to support?

One farmworkers' union in West Texas plans to march from Fort Stockton to the UT System vineyards to push for a union contract and to declare a boycott on the Ste. Genevieve wine those fields produce, said union director Jesus Moya. An investigation under way by the union will determine if it has grounds to sue the UT System and others involved in the winery.

The workers complain they have been arbitrarily fired. They say they are promised a job working a certain number of hours per week, but when they relocate to the site, they are fired after a few weeks with no reason given. They have also complained the contractor paid them subminimum wage.

It is illegal to pay workers less than $3.35 an hour, minimum wage, even if the worker is paid for each basket he or she gathers rather than by the hour. But if there is not a lot to pick — toward the end of the harvest there usually is not much left — workers paid on a piece rate sometimes don't make minimum wage.

Workers at the UT System vineyard and other West Texas growers center their complaints on their wages. "They haven't been paying us overtime sometimes," said the 23-year-old Armencariz. "They said since we're farmworkers, we weren't going to get paid at the same rate because we're doing farm labor.

"They've been taking advantage of a lot of workers," he said.

The "they" to whom Armencariz refers are growers and contractors who employ the workers to labor in the various fields. One packing company kept no records from 1981 to 1983 on the 179 farmworkers it employed, a 1984 court case shows. Federal law requires companies to keep records.

Another case, which reached the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals, records documented workers making less than $1 an hour. "It's particularly aggravating that this kind of stuff still goes on," said Randall Marshall, a Texas Rural Legal Aid attorney who works

LULAC Foundation President Re-elected, Announces Stay-In-School Campaign

The recently re-elected head of the LULAC Foundation--Washington, D.C. Attorney Eduardo Peña, Jr.—says the Foundation will focus its efforts in the coming year in support of the LULAC program to combat the high dropout rate of Hispanic students.

LULAC National President Oscar Moran has called for a national program conducted by LULAC councils throughout the country to reduce the alarmingly high dropout rate of Hispanic students. Current studies indicate that 5 out of every 10 Hispanic students drop out before graduating from high school.

"We have an opportunity to use the great volunteer resources of LULAC to make a contribution toward solving this serious national problem," says Peña. "And we must act now in order to avoid tragedy later. The future of many communities in our country will be molded by Hispanic hands.

Hispanics will comprise the majority population in many areas by the year 2000, suggesting that the social and economic vitality of these areas will depend on the social, educational and economic status of Hispanics themselves."

Peña was re-elected to his third term as President of the LULAC Foundation at its annual meeting Oct. 24 in San Diego. Headquartered in Washington, D.C., the LULAC Foundation is an affiliate of the League of United Latin American Citizens (LULAC), the largest and oldest national Hispanic organization in the United States. The LULAC Foundation develops and funds projects for the Hispanic community in education, health, communications, and economic development.

Peña said the stay-in-school program will use the nationwide network of LULAC chapters to provide tutoring and counseling to Hispanic students, particularly those in high school.

The LULAC Foundation President of LULAC, serving as head of the membership group from 1978-79.

Also elected as officers of the LULAC Foundation were: Manuel Gonzales - Vice Chairman. Gonzales, a jobber and wholesaler in Waco, Texas, was LULAC National President from 1975-77.

Paul Garza, Treasurer. Garza, President of Garza & Associates, an urban affairs consulting firm based in Laredo, Tex., was LULAC National President from 1955-56.

Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor:

On Dec. 10 we must go to the polls to decide yes or no on the 2 items on the ballot.

The basic proposal in the amount of $12,756,000 will include:

1) New elementary school at 89th & Chicago.

2) New elementary facility in Arnett-Benson area - (The administration is proposing an early-child center Pre-K thru 2 to help over-crowding at Walfarth, McWhorter and Tubbs).

3) Junior High south of the Loop (The bond committee wants the location moved further west than 80 & P where the courts say it must be built).

4) Additions to Bean, Harwell, Hodges Elementary.

5) Baseball field for Coronado High School.

6) New classrooms and a water therapy center for Ballenger School.

7) Diagnostic Center
8) $300,000 for site acquisition
9) Library expansions for Alderson, Hutchinson, O.L. Slaton, Overton, Posey, Wheatley, McWhorter, and Parkway.

It looks good until you find that the wording on the ballot for the basic package is to vague with no guarantee that what is proposed will actually ever happen.

Hispanics Health Solutions Cry for Accurate Data

By Jane L. Delgado.

In 1976, Public Law 94-311, mandating collection of Hispanic data by the federal government, was enacted. The intent was to provide decision-makers the basic informational tools necessary to understand the characteristics, trends, and needs of the nation's fastest growing minority group.

Today, almost ten years later, experience in the health field shows that Hispanic data is either non-existence, fragmented, or methodologically limited. The implications for policy, planning, and program development are extremely serious. For these and other reasons, The National Coalition of Hispanic Mental and Human Services Organizations (COSSMHO) has now made improved health data collection, analysis, and dissemination one of its first health priorities.

The importance of data - and the power it gives decision makers - should not be underestimated. Knowledge is power. Ours is a society that bases many decisions on information, and right now Hispanics do not have the knowledge tools to compete with the rest of society. Too often, without proper data we cannot provide the quantitative justification for the health policies and programs that we through experience know are needed. Nor can we track the changing health status of our youthful, rapidly-growing population and plan appropriately for the future.

The implications for the health of Hispanics are far-reaching:

Will we be able to decrease needless infant deaths?

Improve the nutritional status of our children?

Detect cancer in its first stages and promote early treatment?

Target subpopulations at high-risk for drug and alcohol abuse?

Our successes will depend, in part, upon the information we have and how wisely we use it to leverage resources for immediate and long-range purposes.

Some of the most critical data needs are also the most basic: mortality, morbidity, risk factors, and service utilization.

Mortality. Right now, we don't even know how many Hispanics die each year. The problem is two-fold: some states don't have Hispanic identifiers on death certificates; among the others, there is no uniformity of identification. As a result, we know very little about the leading causes of death among Hispanics - such critical problems as heart disease, cancer, and infant mortality.

Morbidity. The nature and extent of acute and chronic illness among Hispanics is poorly documented. Rates of diabetes have been found to be as much as three times higher among Hispanics than whites in some parts of the country, but we have no statistical basis for determining the national scope of the problems. Likewise, communicable diseases - including venereal disease, hepatitis, and various intestinal infections - are known to be more common in some Hispanic areas. The

The ballot will read as follows:

"The issuance of bonds for the construction and equipment of school buildings and the purchase of sites therefore in the amount of $12,750,000 and the lowering of the tax in payment thereof".

Another concern I have that we should think about is the "Early Child-Hood Center" for Arnett-Benson area.

This one facility is to help 3 different schools. It has some disadvantages:

1) The location is going to be a disadvantage to at least 1 school and maybe 2 schools.

2) Is the school board going to build it on 1/2 block where there will be no school ground, like they did with the school being built at 7th & Ave. T.

3) Will it be a great hardship for parents to separate little ones from bigger sisters and brothers going to 2 different schools.

In 1977 the last bond election we had several items then, but never completed, are once again on this bond election. With the wording so vague on the ballot, we probably will not see everything built that has been recommended.

It is the second proposal that is concrete in the ballot. What you vote for is what we will see, although if it does pass they will not start placing air-conditioning in schools for at least 3 years from

Jan. 1986. All studies show that a school that has air-conditioning the students do a lot better in school. As you know all new schools built have air-conditioning placed in them. With the majority of the new schools being built in South Lubbock. If we vote yes for proposal 2 what we will be doing is equalizing the schools throughout the Lubbock school system.

One thing for sure is that we must make up our minds to vote yes or no on Dec. 10 and go to the polls and vote. We are Lubbock, Texas and we can make the difference, it's in voting that we can make things better for all of us.

I hope this is of some help to everyone. For the last year and a half I have attended all the school board meetings and will do justice to everyone in District 1 if you vote for me - Linda DeLeon on April 5, 1986. If you can help with my campaign or if you have questions on the bond election contact me.

Las Soluciones Para la Salud de Los Hispanos Piden a Gritos Información Exacta

Por Jane L. Delgado

En 1976, la Ley Pública No. 94-311, que ordenaba el acopio de información sobre los hispanos por parte del gobierno federal, fué promulgada. El propósito era proporcionar a los encargados de adoptar las decisiones los instrumentos de información básicos para comprender las características, tendencias y necesidades del grupo minoritario de crecimiento más rápido de la nación.

In these and other categories, the data needed would have these characteristics: (1) reflect a uniform method of identifying Hispanics; (2) allow for comparisons among Hispanic subpopulations and between Hispanics and non-Hispanics; (3) represent alge enough numbers to permit stratification by age, gender and other characteristics within accepted standards of statistical reliability. There will be many complicated policy issues and political arenas to watch in the upcoming months and years.

One of the first: a pledge by the Director of the National Center for Health Statistics, Dr. Manning Feinlieb, to include a Hispanic identifier on vital statistics forms - including birth and death certificates.

There will be many complicated policy issues and political arenas to watch in the upcoming months and years.

One of the first: a pledge by the Director of the National Center for Health Statistics, Dr. Manning Feinlieb, to include a Hispanic identifier on vital statistics forms - including birth and death certificates.

In these and other categories, the data needed would have these characteristics: (1) reflect a uniform method of identifying Hispanics; (2) allow for comparisons among Hispanic subpopulations and between Hispanics and non-Hispanics; (3) represent alge enough numbers to permit stratification by age, gender and other characteristics within accepted standards of statistical reliability. There will be many complicated policy issues and political arenas to watch in the upcoming months and years.

Encuesta Federal Arroja Nuevos Hallazgos Sobre La Salud de el Hispano

Por Dora Delgado

Ignorados por años por el gobierno federal, los hispanos al fin están recibiendo su merecida atención.

Si es suficiente o debidamente enfocada es todavía objeto de debate, pero una nueva ola de investigación de la salud hispana puede haberse iniciado la semana pasada cuando los primeros estudios de la Encuesta sobre la Salud y Nutrición Hispana se dieron a conocer en la convención anual, noviembre 17-21, de la Asociación Americana de Salud Pública.

La tan esperada encuesta, conducida en 1982-84 por el Centro Nacional de Estadísticas de la Salud del Departamento federal de Salud y Recursos Humanos, es el primer intento, a gran escala, para medir la salud hispana. Información inicial examina la salud de los mexicanos americanos en el Suroeste. Más tarde, el Centro dará a conocer información sobre los cubanos americanos en el Condado de Dade, Florida, y sobre los puertorriqueños en Nueva York y áreas circundantes.

Hallazgos de los primeros diez estudios, sobre las enfermedades cardiovasculares y el estado de la salud de las madres e hijos, demuestran que:

* Solo el 23% de los hombres y 19% de las mujeres en comunidades mexicanas americanas sufrieron de hipertensión, principal factor en los ataques al corazón. En comparación, el 36.2% de los hombres y el 24.8% de las mujeres de la raza blanca, y el 41.5% de los hombres y el 42.1% de las mujeres de la raza negra sufrieron de esta condición.

* Los mexicanos americanos fumaban cigarillos en un porcentaje levemente mayor (43%) tendían a fumar en un porcentaje menor (24%). Sin embargo, las mexicanas americanas tendían a fumar en un porcentaje menor (24%) que las mujeres de la raza blanca (33%).

* Una tercera parte de los mexicanos americanos eran obesos en comparación con un cuarto del resto de la población. Sin embargo, la determinación de un peso apropiado para este grupo hispano es un tema para futura investigación.

* Comparados con el resto de la población, los mexicanos americanos tenían niveles de

* Las visitas a menores frecuentes entre los mexicanos americanos. Cerca de un tercero parte de los que tenían niveles riesgosos de colesterol, por ejemplo, no habían visitado al doctor en el año anterior comparado con un cuarto de la población blanca y un quinto de la población negra. El estudio recomienda que el gobierno desarrolle programas de detección intensivos para este grupo hispano.

* Ninguno de los 1,388 niños, de entre las edades de 4-11 años, tenían niveles altos o riesgosos de plomo en la sangre que afecta el crecimiento y desarrollo neurológico de los niños.

* El porcentaje de los niños mexicanos americanos, de entre las edades de 6-17 años, con problemas de la audición fue similar al porcentaje en el resto de la población (4%).

* El porcentaje de niños mexicanos americanos que no pasaron la vista (13.8%) fue mayor que el de los niños de la raza blanca (9.5%) pero menor que el de los niños de la raza negra (14.6%).

* Aproximadamente el 10% de las mujeres mexicanas americanas, entre 15-44 años, usaban píldoras anticonceptivas y el 15% estaban esterilizadas. Ambos son porcentajes similares a los del resto de la población.

El anuncio de los hallazgos marcan el fin de ocho años de planificación y desarrollo de la encuesta que fue requerida en el 1977 por la Academia Nacional de Administración Pública para conseguir información confiable sobre la salud de los tres principales grupos hispanos.

Encuestas anteriores, en donde se examinaban tanto como a 20,000 personas, no incluyeron suficientes números de hispanos para poder hacer una correcta evaluación de su salud.

La encuesta HHANES (Sus siglas en inglés) contiene información computarizada sobre hábitos dietéticos, estado nutricional y dental, presión sanguínea, altura, peso, usos de droga o alcohol, inmunización, indicios cancerosos, depresión, niveles de pesticidas en el cuerpo y enfermedades tales como la tuberculosis, la diabetes, enfermedades del corazón, del riñón y del hígado, entre otras.

Un Presidente Preocupado

CIUDAD DE MEXICO En estos días, ante las dificultades que atraviesa el país que preside, el Presidente de México Miguel de la Madrid Hurtado tiene la preocupación y la angustia reflejadas en su rostro como captó la cámara del fotógrafo. En días pasados el Presidente pidió una vez más al pueblo mexicano toda su ayuda moral y política para juntos poder luchar contra las dificultades de cada día que en el caso de México parecen multiplicarse...

Aplazan el Juicio del Movimiento Santuario

Arizona. (UPI) El juicio a 11 trabajadores del Movimiento Santuario de contrabando de extranjeros ilegales a Estados Unidos fue aplazado nuevamente debido a la enfermedad de uno de los acusados.

El Juez de Distrito en Tucson, Arizona, Earl H. Carroll, juntó con anunciar que rechazaría cualquier nueva demora del juicio, fijó las audiencias.

Un jurado de 15 miembros fue seleccionado el 5 de Noviembre, pero los testimonios han sido demorados por los abogados de la defensa, los que han pedido que el caso sea desechado en base a que el gobierno ha realizado una acusación selectiva.

La acusada Mary Kay Doan Espinoza, una trabajadora laica de Nogales, Arizona, no pudo presentarse a las audiencias debido a que dijo que sufría problemas en la espalda.

El juez canceló la sesión pero dijo que una nueva ausencia de los acusados por enfermedad no será permitida para demorar el juicio.

JULIO IGLESIAS.

Julio Iglesias entrará al "Boulevard de la Fama"

MIAMI, (EFE).- El cantante español Julio Iglesias ascenderá el próximo 7 de noviembre al "Panteón" de las celebridades de Estados Unidos, al recibir la codiciada estrella del "Boulevard de la Fama" en Hollywood, California.

El más internacional de los artistas españoles añadirá su nombre en el célebre Boulevard de la mesa del cine, entre los de los monstruos consagrados del espectáculo, como Frank Sinatra, Richard Burton, Rock Hudson o Neil Diamond.

La estrella de bronce

y mármol será entregada por el alcalde de Hollywood durante una ceremonia popular, informó a "EFE" la oficina de prensa del cantante en Miami.

Este galardón, que quedaría instalado en el popular Boulevard de Hollywood, es uno de los más prestigiosos reconocimientos artísticos dentro del mundo del espectáculo.

Tras conquistar el mercado estadounidense, el pasado año, Julio Iglesias se convierte ahora en el segundo hispano, después de Ricardo Montalbán, en obtener el codiciado trofeo.

El cantante español será también la principal atracción en una fiesta que se celebrará el 31 de diciembre en el hotel Essex House de Nueva York, donde un millar de invitados pagarán 3,000 dólares por cabeza para verlo actuar.

Julio Iglesias comenzará mañana en Brasil una gira de actuaciones que lo llevará el 29 de noviembre a Panamá, el 7 de diciembre a Trinidad y Tobago, dos días más tarde a Santo Domingo y el 12 de diciembre a Atlantic City.

Tras conquistar el mercado estadounidense, el pasado año, Julio Iglesias se convierte ahora en el segundo hispano, después de Ricardo Montalbán, en obtener

90 millones para filmar la vida de Pedro Infante

MEXICO, (NOTIMEX).- Con una inversión de alrededor de 90 millones de pesos (unos 281 mil dólares), Sonia y Luis Infante López llevarán al cine la vida del ídolo Pedro Infante, informó Angel Infante, hermano del desaparecido actor y cantante.

Dijo que la cinta se centrará principalmente en la infancia del actor sinaloense porque es obvio que la mayoría del público mexicano conoce aspectos generales sobre todo de su época de gloria. Sin embargo, es poco lo que se sabe de sus primeros años de vida y de cómo se desarrolló en su familia.

El guion de la cinta es de Angel y se empezará a rodar a mediados del próximo año, luego de varios meses de trabajo para reunir datos biográficos del actor, quien está considerado como una de las principales glorias del cine nacional.

Angel Infante indicó que actualmente se llevan a cabo proyectos para seleccionar al niño, de cinco años, que hará el papel del actor y posteriormente se seleccionará el elenco.

Pentágono suspende compras a Rockwell

WASHINGTON, (EFE).- El Departamento de Defensa suspendió al menos durante un mes, los contratos con la empresa "Rockwell International" al declararse ésta culpable de 20 delitos de fraude y falsificación de documentos.

La compañía "Rockwell International", el segundo mayor contratista del Pentágono durante 1984 con 6,200 millones de dólares en operaciones, reconoció sus delitos y acordó pagar más de 1.4 millones de dólares al Departamento de Defensa en concepto de compensaciones.

Aún así, agregó que no tendrá impacto en el programa de construcción del nuevo bombardero estratégico "B-1B", cifrado en 28,000 millones de dólares.

Un portavoz de la compañía, Jim Vallela, dijo que "Rockwell" ha colaborado con la Fuerza Aérea en las investigaciones y que tiene la suspensión de nuevas confianza en que sirva operaciones con la de satisfacción al Pentágono.

Después de que acabamos de bajar todos los liachos de la troca, Mama sugirió que fueramos todos a la Iglesia y dieramos gracias por todo lo que habíamos logrado. Maclavio y su familia acordaron lo mismo. Como no sabíamos donde estaba, Chencho nos guió hasta allí. "Esta es nuestra Iglesia," nos dijo al llegar. "Se llama San José", agregó apuntando al templo.

Aunque la Misa ya estaba por terminar, entramos de todo modo. Estaba tan llena de parroquianos, que no había ni un solo asiento vacío. Lo único que pudimos hacer, fue permanecer de pie hasta el final de la Misa.

Estaban saliendo todos y chencho nos pidió que nos quedáramos un rato con él, mientras saludaba a algunas amistades. Fue allí donde conocimos (por medio de Chencho) algunas familias que llegaron a ser unas de nuestras mas valiosas amistades. Su sinceridad y franqueza, dejaron en mi memoria, unos recuerdos inborrables. EN esa misma Iglesia de San José, hice mi primera comunión.

Son muchos los nombres y las personas que conoci en Ft. Stockton. Algunos se me escaparon de mi mente. Los que hé podido retener son los nombres de algunas familias — que por una u otra razón no hé olvidado a la fecha — como la familia Benavides, los Terrazas, Urias y Nuñez.

Quizas sea porque con algunos de estos, me pasé la mayor parte de mi niñez. Con unos de ellos, compartí mi adolescencia, durante mis años de escuela primera.

En Ft. Stockton, nacieron dos de mis hermanitos, menores.

Durante algunos años, nos sonreía diariamente la vida. Papa siguió trabajando en el mismo empleo por varios años. A los dos años de haber llegado allí, nos cambiamos a otra casa mas grande. Dimos el enganche en ella y en vez de renta, seguimos abandonándola hasta el día en que fue nuestra.

Nosotros hubiéramos querido vivir allí para siempre, pero esa no fué nuestra suerte. Una tarde, en que llegábamos de la escuela, nos extrañó ver allí a Papa. Casi siempre llegaba como a las seis de su trabajo. Al acercarnos, oyimos las voces de Maclavio y Chencho discutiendo un asunto grave con mi Papa. Yo y mis hermanos, tratamos de darnos cuenta del caso, pero Mama nos hizo su mún conocida señal de retirada.

Después de la cena, nos dijo Papa que nadie se retiraría de la mesa porque tenía algo que decirnos. Maclavio y Chencho, hacia rato se habían ido. Solo alcanzamos oír cuando le dijeron a Papa que les diera a saber su última decisión.

"Bueno," dijo al fin mi padre, fijando los ojos en los mas grandes de sus hijos". Parece que Irmos de aquí".

with the union.

"One plaintiff testified he worked seven to eight hours a day and made $7," Marshall said. "That just shows the kind of abuses that still go on."

Marshall said most cases his office handles involve minimum wage violations, violations of the Migrant and Seasonal Agricultural Worker Protection Act or breaches of employment contracts.

In some cases, records are falsified to show one person being paid for the labor of several people, with one receipt given for the labor of more than one person. "That's a common violation we have seen over the years," Marshall said.

One Saturday two weeks ago, at a plant where bell peppers are packed, a child almost two-thirds as tall as the broom he wielded swept bell peppers from under a conveyor belt. When photographers and a reporter approached, a woman quickly scuttled him inside, out of sight.

In the fields, several small children were working side by side with grownups picking bell peppers. The kids, with nothing better to do on weekends and no place else to go, help their mothers and fathers fill their bushels. The children in some cases make no money when they help their parents, if the parents are paid on a per-hour basis.

"Those kids are out there helping their parents get money to help put food on the table," Marshall said. Children can help make money when the contractor pays on a piece-rate basis.

"Children as young as 12 can work in the fields, as long as they're paid the same," Marshall said. But some of these children are not yet 12, or even close. They just have nothing else to do on weekends but work — at an early age.

Education is erratic for the children of families that follow the harvests. Families work from June to October at one location, and the child starts school in September. When the harvests are over, the family uproots the child and moves back to the Valley. "That kind of thing happens a lot," Marshall said.

Families are not the only agricultural nomads. Many men live together and send the money they make back home to support their relatives.
