CBO Report Arms Both Sides of Minimum-wage Debate

Boosting the federal minimum wage as President Barack Obama and congressional Democrats are proposing would increase earnings for more than 16.5 million people by 2016 but also cut employment by roughly 500,000 jobs, Congress' nonpartisan budget analyst said Tuesday.

In a report containing ammunition for both supporters and opponents of the Democratic election-year proposal, the Congressional Budget Office said gradually raising the minimum from $7.25 hourly to $10.10 would lift 900,000 people above the federal poverty level by 2016. That is out of 45 million who would otherwise live in poverty without an increase.

But the analysis also noted a downside: About 0.3 percent fewer jobs, higher costs for business owners and higher prices for consumers.

The study was unveiled as the Senate prepares for a March debate on a plan by Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, ramping up the minimum in three steps to $10.10 by 2016. The proposal is backed by Obama and is a keystone of Democrats' campaign-season plans to highlight their effort to make incomes more equitable, but it faces strong Republican opposition and long odds of approval by Congress.

The analysis, which examined increases very similar to Harkin's, immediately added fuel to the partisan dispute over the proposal. It put authoritative weight behind longtime GOP claims that increasing the minimum wage would cost jobs by forcing companies to spend more on wages, putting Democrats on the defensive.

"This report confirms what we've long known: While helping some, mandating higher wages has real costs, including fewer people working," said Brendan Buck, spokesman for House Speaker John Boehner, R-Ohio. "With unemployment Americans' top concern, our focus should be creating — not destroying — jobs for those who need them most."

The budget office said its estimate of employment losses was approximate. It said the actual impact would likely range from a very slight employment reduction to a loss of 1 million workers.

"If and when Democrats try to push this irresponsible proposal, they should be prepared to explain why up to a million Americans should be kept from having a job — beyond the work already lost due to Obamacare," said Senate Minority Leader Mitch McConnell, R-Ky., using a favorite nickname of the GOP's favorite election-year target — Obama's 2010 health care overhaul.

Democrats cited other studies that they said concluded employment would not be reduced. They said job-reduction claims are overblown and outweighed by the benefits to workers and the overall economy as low-paid employees spend more money.

The CBO job-loss figures "do not reflect the overall consensus view of economists which is that raising the minimum wage has little or no negative effect on employment," Jason Furman, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, said in a blog post with council member Betsy Stevenson. Instead, they emphasized the millions who would gain higher wages and the 900,000 boosted above poverty.

They were echoed by Harkin, who said: "As the CBO report affirms, an increase in the minimum wage will help lift families out of poverty."

After 2016, Harkin's measure would require the minimum wage to be increased annually to reflect rising inflation.

The study also examined the impact of boosting the minimum wage to just $9 hourly by 2016 and leaving it at that level afterward.

That lesser increase would have smaller effects: About 100,000 fewer jobs, higher wages for 7.6 million workers and 300,000 people lifted out of poverty.

The report said the increase to $10.10 would add $31 billion to the earnings of low-wage workers. But it noted that only 19 percent of that increase would go to families earning less than the poverty threshold, while 29 percent would go to families earning more than triple the poverty level. That is because many low-wage earners are not in low-wage families.

But in addition, income would decrease by $17 billion for families earning at least six times the poverty level because that group would be affected most by lost business income and price increases.

The report said that besides boosting wages for people earning less than $10.10 hourly, some people making more than that amount would also see higher earnings as bosses adjust their pay scales upward.

Some people's incomes would grow as their earnings increase, causing them to pay more taxes. But for others, income would fall — reducing their tax burden — and still others would begin collecting unemployment insurance.

As a result, the budget office said federal budget deficits would probably decrease slightly for a few years but then increase slightly after that.

The budget office estimates that the 2016 poverty level would be $24,100 for a family of four and less for smaller families.

Aumenta apoyo a legalizar indocumentados en EEUU

Cada vez más estadounidenses se pronuncian a favor de resolver las condiciones migratorias de los indocumentados antes de reforzar la vigilancia de la frontera sur.

De acuerdo con los resultados de una nueva encuesta de Gallup, divulgada este semana, ahora son más las personas que piensan que la prioridad en el proceso de una eventual reforma migratoria es responder a las necesidades de los indocumentados.

Un 44% consideró "extremadamente importante" para Estados Unidos desarrollar un plan que atienda la situación de los más de 11 millones de personas que radican en el país en esas condiciones, frente a un 34% que pensaba así en 2006.

Según los datos de Gallup, un 43% se pronunció a favor de reforzar la seguridad en la frontera con México, donde el gobierno ya cuenta con 21,000 agentes de la Patrulla Fronteriza, antes de resolver las condiciones de los indocumentados.

El resultado actual no representa un cambio respecto a la encuesta de 2006 en lo que se refiere a la seguridad fronteriza, ya que en ambos casos fue un 43% los que lo consideran importante, aunque dicho porcentaje llegó al 53% en 2011.

Gracias a los activistas

Salvador G. Sarmiento, coordinador de la Red Nacional de Jornaleros, afirmó el martes que este cambio de mentalidad se debe a la insistencia de las organizaciones pro inmigrantes, donde se incluye la participación de los mismos indocumentados.

"Es por la valentía, el trabajo y esfuerzos del trabajo inmigrante. De gente trabajadora, de muchos indocumentados que se han arriesgado para poder compartir lo que han vivido en este país", dijo.

Mencionó que las políticas de la actual administración del presidente Barack Obama han generado el incremento de manifestaciones a nivel nacional y a su vez el que la sociedad estadounidense haya cambiado su punto de vista.

"Esta encuesta refleja ese consenso reciente, en el que la igualdad para los indocumentados debe depender de una política de desgaste", añadió el coordinador de la Red Nacional de Jornaleros.

Agregó que las deportaciones han sido tantas que una gran cantidad de indocumentados se han arriesgado y han participado en las movilizaciones nacionales con el fin de presionar al Gobierno para que, al menos, las suspenda.

"La red nacional de jornaleros pensamos que hay un consenso que está creciendo. La gente merece la inclusión y la población de inmigrantes no debe tener que esperar para ser incluidos", agregó.

Suavizan su postura

Entre 2011 y 2014, según las encuestas, tanto demócratas como republicanos han suavizado su postura respecto al reforzamiento de la seguridad fronteriza.

Para 2011, casi siete de cada 10 de los republicanos decía que era "extremadamente importante" asegurar la frontera con México, así como uno de cada dos independiente y cuatro de cada 10 demócratas.

Los resultados del sondeo indican que en 2014 los defensores de esa postura eran 12 puntos menos en el caso de los republicanos, 11 puntos en el de los demócratas y 6 puntos los independientes.

De acuerdo con el gráfico de la evolución de esas posturas, el cruce de líneas se observa poco después de mediados de 2011.

La encuesta de 2014 señala que aún en una situación en la que tuvieran que escoger entre una postura y otra, el 51% dijo que optaría por hacer frente a la situación interna de los inmigrantes, frente a un 46 por ciento que mencionó la seguridad fronteriza.

Gallup explica que los líderes políticos cuentan con márgenes mínimos para actuar respecto a la reforma migratoria integral debido a que las diferencias entre ambas posiciones son menores.

Los resultados de 2014 se basaron en una encuesta telefónica nacional realizada entre el 6 y 9 de febrero entre 1,023 personas mayores de 18 años, con un margen de error de 4 puntos porcentuales.

This week, Judge Doty issued a 30 day order for demolish on the Villa Del Norte apartments, 1913 Baylor. That means the owner has 30 days to bring the apartment complex up to code. If the owner does not accomplish that within the 30 day period, the City can take further action against the owner including, but not limited to, demolishing the apartment complex.

Councilman Hernandez Statement Regarding Traffic Project on Avenue Q between 19th & 50th Streets

Yesterday, I received the following e-mail from the City of Lubbock's Director of Public Works: "FYI. As a result of numerous pedestrian and vehicular accidents (some fatal) on Avenue Q, TxDOT has a developed a project to construct medians on Avenue Q from 19th Street to approximately 200 feet south of 50th Street. Traffic Engineering staff has met with TxDOT in an effort to minimize the effect on businesses along Avenue Q, and still improve safety. TxDOT will hold a public meeting when their plans are complete."

City Councilman Victor Hernandez stated, "First of all, let me publicly thank TxDOT for applying for and being awarded approximately $600,000 from the Hazard Elimination Program which will be used to help address pedestrian and vehicular safety issues along Avenue Q from 19th Street to 50th Street."

According to the TxDOT website, "The Hazard Elimination (HES) Program is part of the Highway Safety Improvement Program (HSIP). The basic objective of the HES Program is to reduce the number and severity of crashes. The program objectives are accomplished through "highway safety projects."

Councilman Hernandez further stated, "I will be meeting with members of our staff (traffic engineering and public works) and Frank Phillips TxDOT Director of Traffic Operations to discuss using a holistic approach to the proposed safety project including the use of reduced speed limits, an increase in the number of street lights, and the use of medians at key locations to create pedestrian crossing islands" (or refuge areas - also known as center islands, or median slow points). For additional information on refuge areas please see, "Proven Safety Countermeasures, Medians and Pedestrian Crossing Islands in Urban and Suburban Areas," http://safety.fhwa.dot.gov/provencountermeasures/fhwa_sa_12_011.htm.

Nonetheless, there remain significant potential obstacles to using a holistic approach to solving these serious safety issues, the main concern being the TxDOT "Turnback Program." The Lubbock City Council recently approved an initial inquiry to be made to TxDOT (City Council Resolution Number: 2013-R0459*, December 19, 2013) in which the City of Lubbock could agree to "the transferring of all maintenance of certain non-controlled-access state highways to the City of Lubbock", including Avenue Q. The Texas Transportation Commission (Commission) is scheduled to review the City of Lubbock's inquiry at their February 2014 meeting. Should the Commission agree with the City of Lubbock's position then, a formal contract would be presented to the Lubbock City Council for consideration and possible approval.

Dilemma - The turn back proposal is premised on the idea that any roads turned back to the City of Lubbock would be in good condition. Therefore, all improvements to be made by TxDOT would have to be made prior to turning back those roads to the City. The $600,000 Hazard Elimination Program funds are limited to Avenue Q. The City has no authority to control the speed limit on Avenue Q until after the turn back has occurred. A public hearing on the proposed changes to Avenue Q is being planned but not until after negotiations between the City and TxDOT are completed. And, as to additional street lighting, coordination with LP&L would need to take place. Finally, the overriding issue of TxDOT wanting to "let" the Avenue Q safety project by the end of this coming summer as well as turn back the roads to the City of Lubbock as soon as possible creates an urgency which must be dealt with.

cluded by saying, "In speaking with TxDOT District Engineer Doug Eichorst this morning, I was encouraged by the willingness to work together on all issues affecting Avenue Q and the proposed safety project. Balancing the safety needs of pedestrians and vehicles using Avenue Q, as well as the needs of the adjacent businesses, is of paramount importance to me and the citizens of District 1."

*Part of the proposal is that a 5 year (ending in 2019), in-kind street maintenance agreement would be in place as between TxDOT and the City of Lubbock with a value of $2.7 million.

It should be noted that TxDOT has already conducted a speed study of the area in question.

Lucky me I live in Lubbock was the bumper sticker I grew up with in the 1960s.

Lubbock is my home. It has been the home of my parents...my uncles and aunt... and my grandparents.

Growing up just off of 59th Street and "College" Ave (now university) I learned the value of honesty and hard work...of commitment to the community.

I learned that service to others is not restricted to regular business hours. Out for a family dinner my brother, sister, mother and I would wait in the station wagon while dad made a house call on a sick child.

As a youngster I joined in the political campaigns of my Uncle Waggoner. I have come to appreciate his vision when he crafted the first state-wide water resource plan. Thanks to his efforts we enjoy a coordinated plan for wise management of our precious water.

I witnessed the studied review of my uncle Warlick. Not one for the spotlight Warlick taught me the importance of understanding a challenge and the options for action over simply reacting without forethought.

You know my family and I am hopeful that you will give me the opportunity to introduce myself.

As I grew up I was mentored not only by my parents and family but by my teachers. My high school band director Doyle Gammill at Monterey High School offered me a relationship where I learned to be more. Later, as a member of the "Goin Band from Raiderland" under Dean Killion I performed with passion and sharpness. I worked with a young Robert Duncan when he was president of the student body at Texas Tech and I was a student senator.

Leaving Lubbock for six years to finish my education I gained perspective.

Three years in Indiana completing my Ph.D. I learned about winter.

An internship at the Temple Texas VA Hospital taught me about service to our veterans.

Two years on the faculty at UT Southwestern Medical School shaped my research skills.

In 1990 I came home to Lubbock. Here I raised my son and daughter. I worked hard to build a successful private practice.

Over my years in Lubbock I have served on a long list of community agencies and boards. The American Cancer Society, The National Kidney Foundation, The Bio-Ethics and Diabetes Boards of Covenant Medical System, the Parenting Cottage, and several boards for the Northwest Conference of the United Methodist Church.

In 2009 I was appointed to the City of Lubbock Board of Health. In 2011 the Board was told by the mayor at the time that the Health Department would be closing. I was told that there was "nothing that could be done to stop it".

In respond to this threat to our health I spearheaded the effort to keep the Health Dept open. I saw the importance of public health for our city. Partnering with the County Medical Society and a broad grassroots effort we collected 6,000 signatures on a petition and presented it to the mayor. With this strong community effort we watched as the council voted 7-0 to keep the Health Dept open.

You can beat City Hall! As chairman of the Board of Health for two terms I know that we can improve our city. I know that relationships and cooperation can be forged... that citizens are interested... and that it matters.

Rather than follow the usual path of politics and tear down my opponent about her record I prefer to tell you what I will do as your councilman.

1. I will not have to apologize to the citizens about not studying a problem before a vote is taken. I pledge to not give away 1.2 million dollars in taxpayers money to fund salaries without knowing how the money is spent. Just as I have done in writing the position paper that was used by the City Council in the battle against the menace of synthetic drugs I pledge to bring a strong review and diligent study before a vote is taken. I will not cast my vote without knowing what I am voting on. I will not need to apologize.

2. I don't think we should gain more debt before we ferret out wasteful spending. I understand that we must take care of our buildings while providing for a new fire and police station but we need to be good stewards of our tax dollar and monitor any and all use to ensure it is doing what is needed. I will not throw money at a problem nor accept short-term solutions that cost us more later.

3. In representing the Board of Health for five years I will insist on full transparency in the process of government. I will open up the conversation channels with my district and the citizens of Lubbock. I will not support deals made behind closed doors or favors to special interests. You will be able to find me and I will reach out to you for help in seeking solutions.

People who know me will tell you that I don't offer "double speech" or meaningless praise. I will give you an honest answer and will stand for the citizens of Lubbock.

As is seen in the spirit of my campaign slogan I will give the citizens of Lubbock...

Passion
Dedication
And a Drive for Excellence
Because Lubbock is a great city and I believe we can do better.

Calle 13 sorprenderá con el nuevo sencillo de su próximo disco

La banda puertorriqueña Calle 13 lanzará este martes el segundo sencillo, "El aguante", que se incluirá en su próxima producción, "Multi-Viral", que saldrá a la venta el 1 de marzo y que coincidirá con el inicio de su gira en Buenos Aires.

La publicación del disco completo coincidirá con el arranque de la gira en Latinoamérica, que en una primera fase llevará al dúo puertorriqueño por Argentina, Paraguay, Uruguay, Chile, Venezuela, Colombia, Costa Rica y México.

Calle 13, encabezado por su cantante René Pérez "Residente" y su hermano Eduardo Cabra "Visitante", ya había lanzado el año pasado el tema "Multi-Viral", que realizó en colaboración con el fundador de WikiLeaks, Julian Assange, y en el que denuncia la manipulación informativa y ensalza los movimientos sociales de protesta.

La canción, cuya letra asegura que "una noticia mal contada es un asalto a mano armada", fue compuesta por el cantante "Residente", junto a Assange, con el que se reunió en la embajada de Ecuador en Londres, donde el fundador de WikiLeaks está refugiado.

Allí planificaron cómo

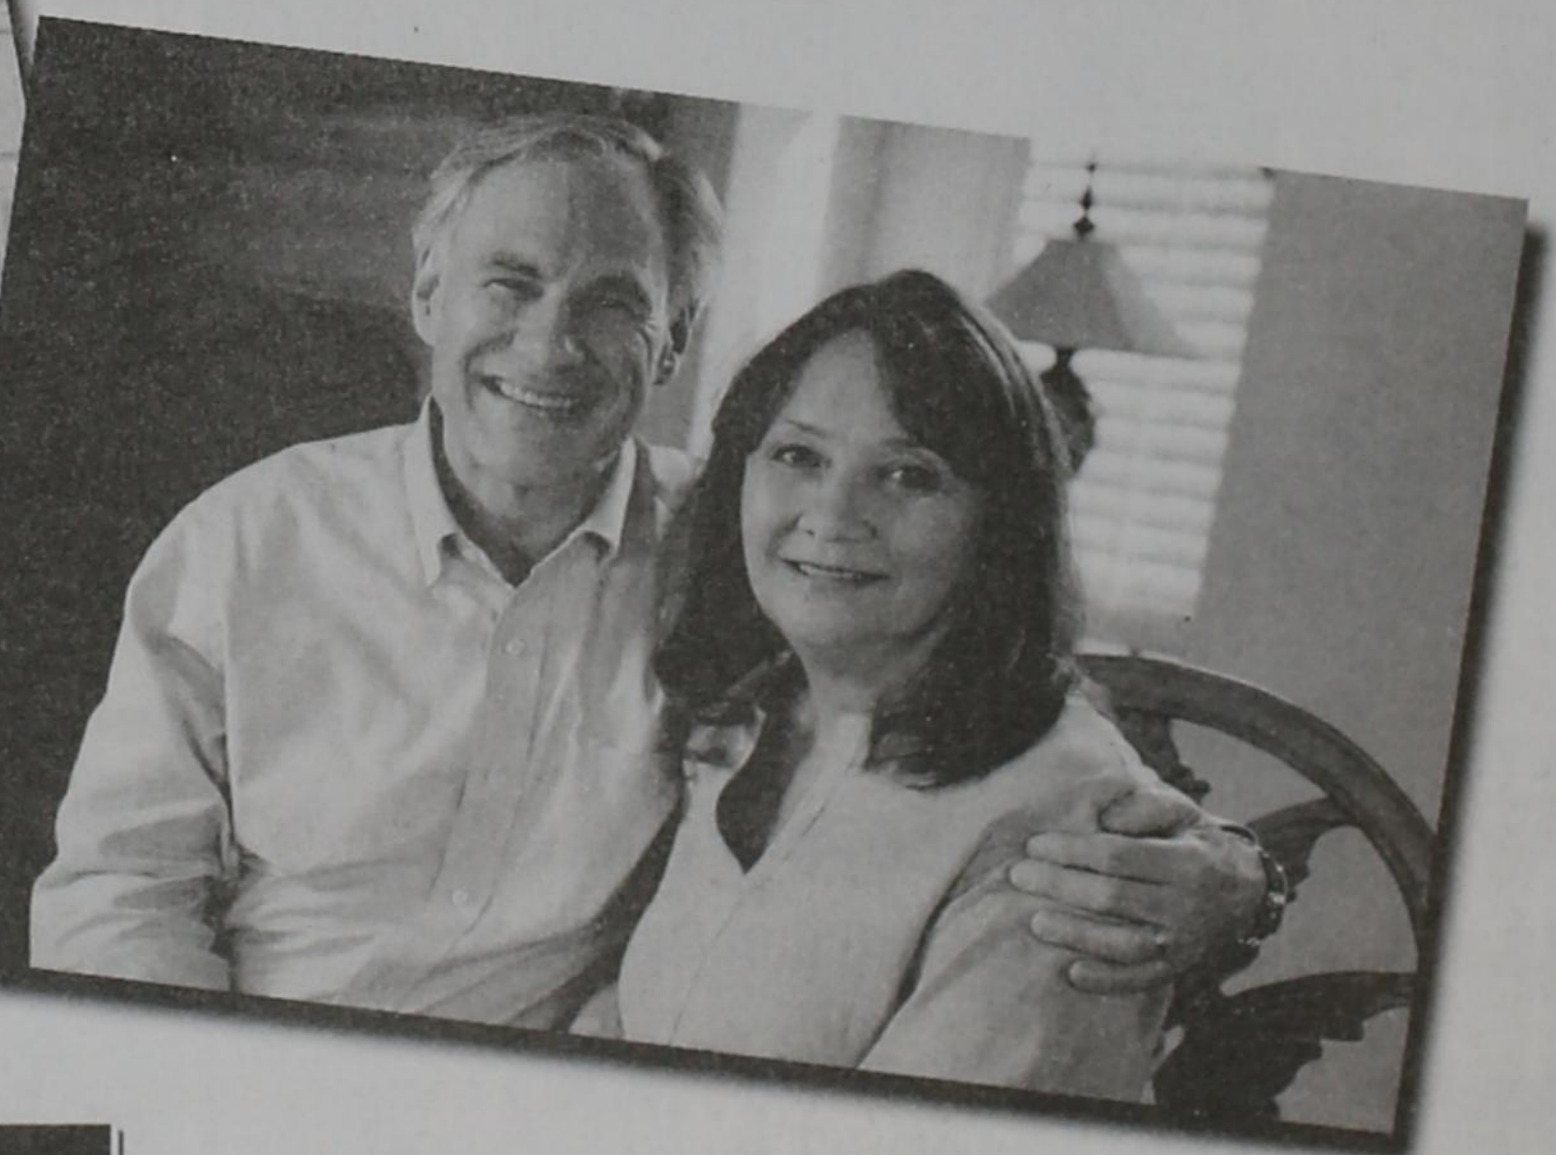

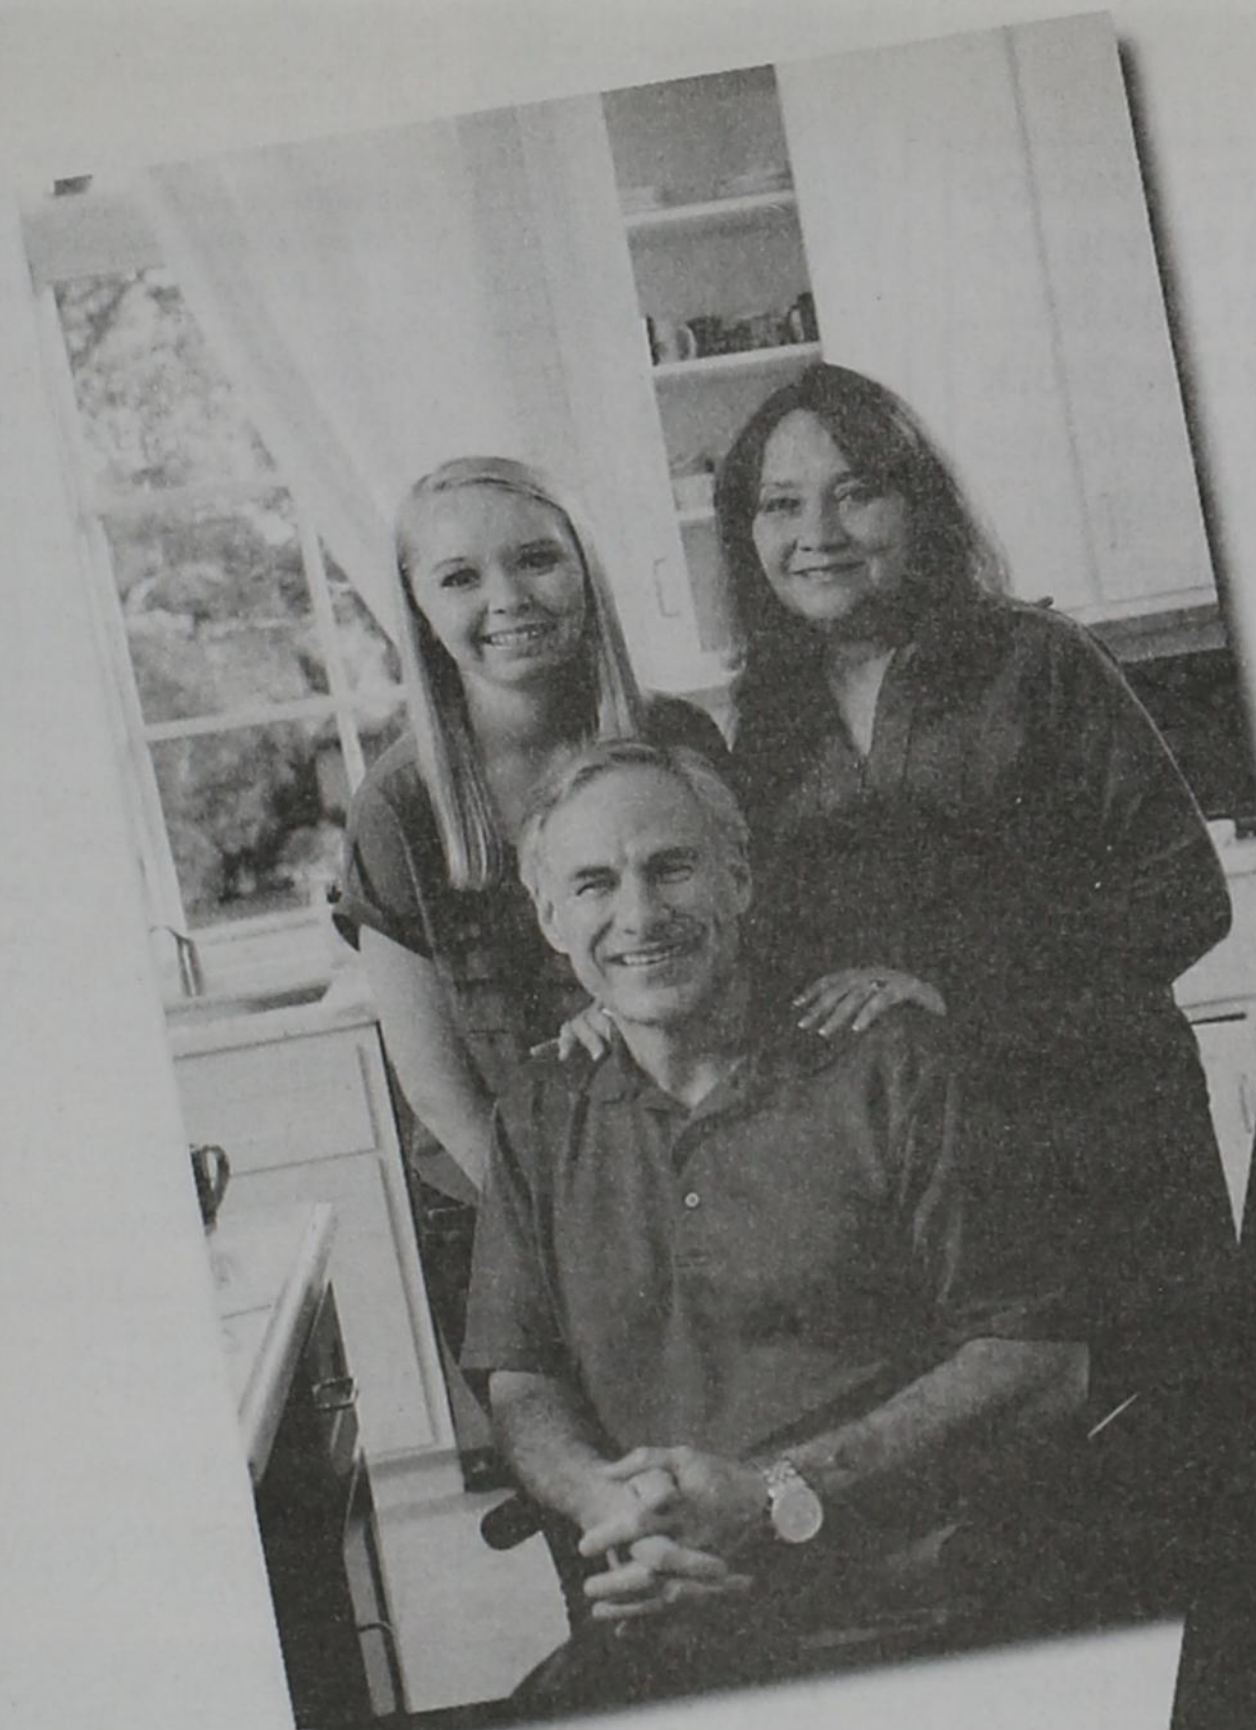

se elaboraría el tema: la idea consistía en pedir a los seguidores en Twitter de este grupo, ganador de 19 premios Grammy Latino y dos Grammy, que escribirían comentarios sobre la manipulación mediática y el mal periodismo, para, luego, trabajar sobre ellos, "manipularlos" y escribir la letra.

En el tema han colaborado además Tom Morello, exguitarrista de la banda estadounidense Rage Against the Machine, y la cantante israelita Kamilya Jubran, que canta algunos fragmentos en árabe. También se escucha la voz de Assange criticando la manipulación informativa y ensalzando el poder de la gente.

"Multi-Viral" es quizás la canción más efusiva, por la combinación del rock pesado y la guitarra de Morello, de los más de sesenta temas que han publicado en sus cuatro discos: "Calle 13", "Residente o Visitante", "Los de atrás vienen conmigo" y "Entren los que quieran".

Aumenta apoyo a legalizar indocumentados en EEUU

Cada vez más estadounidenses se pronuncian a favor de resolver las condiciones migratorias de los indocumentados antes de reforzar la vigilancia de la frontera sur.

De acuerdo con los resultados de una nueva encuesta de Gallup, divulgada este semana, ahora son más las personas que piensan que la prioridad en el proceso de una eventual reforma migratoria es responder a las necesidades de los indocumentados.

Un 44% consideró "extremadamente importante" para Estados Unidos desarrollar un plan que atienda la situación de los más de 11 millones de personas que radican en el país en esas condiciones, frente a un 34% que pensaba así en 2006.

Según los datos de Gallup, un 43% se pronunció a favor de reforzar la seguridad en la frontera con México, donde el gobierno ya cuenta con 21,000 agentes de la Patrulla Fronteriza, antes de resolver las condiciones de los indocumentados. El resultado actual no representa un cambio respecto a la encuesta de 2006 en lo que se refiere a la seguridad fronteriza, ya que en ambos casos fue un 43% los que lo consideran importante, aunque dicho porcentaje llegó al 53% en 2011.

Gracias a los activistas

Salvador G. Sarmiento, coordinador de la Red Nacional de Jornaleros, afirmó el martes que este cambio de mentalidad se debe a la insistencia de las organizaciones pro inmigrantes, donde se incluye la participación de los mismos indocumentados.

"Es por la valentía, el trabajo y esfuerzos del trabajo inmigrante. De gente trabajadora, de muchos indocumentados que se han arriesgado para poder compartir lo que han vivido en este país", dijo.

"Esta encuesta refleja ese consenso reciente, en el que la igualdad para los indocumentados debe depender de una política de desgaste", añadió el coordinador de la Red Nacional de Jornaleros. Agregó que las deportaciones han sido tantas que una gran cantidad de indocumentados se han arriesgado y han participado en las movilizaciones nacionales con el fin de presionar al Gobierno para que, al menos, las suspenda.

"La red nacional de jornaleros pensamos que hay un consenso que está creciendo. La gente merece la inclusión y la población de inmigrantes no debe tener que esperar para ser incluidos", agregó.

Suavizan su postura

Entre 2011 y 2014, según las encuestas, tanto demócratas como republicanos han suavizado su postura respecto al reforzamiento de la seguridad fronteriza.

Para 2011, casi siete de cada 10 de los republicanos decía que era "extremadamente importante" asegurar la frontera con México, así como uno de cada dos independiente y cuatro de cada 10 demócratas.

Los resultados del sondeo indican que en 2014 los defensores de esa postura eran 12 puntos menos en el caso de los republicanos, 11 puntos en el de los demócratas y 6 puntos los independientes.

De acuerdo con el gráfico de la evolución de esas posturas, el cruce de líneas se observa poco después de mediados de 2011.

La encuesta de 2014 señala que aún en una situación en la que tuvieran que escoger entre una postura y otra, el 51% dijo que optaría por hacer frente a la situación interna de los inmigrantes, frente a un 46 por ciento que mencionó la seguridad fronteriza.

Gallup explica que los líderes políticos cuentan con márgenes mínimos para actuar respecto a la reforma migratoria integral debido a que las diferencias entre ambas posiciones son menores.

Los resultados de 2014 se basaron en una encuesta telefónica nacional realizada entre el 6 y 9 de febrero entre 1,023 personas mayores de 18 años, con un margen de error de 4 puntos porcentuales.

Llega Obama a México para Cumbre de Toluca

La alfombra roja se extendió hasta la escalinata del avión presidencial para recibir al mandatario estadounidense Barack Obama, quien a las 12:15 asomó en el marco de la puerta para saludar con la mano derecha extendida al aire a la comitiva del gobierno mexicano que le dio la bienvenida a la VII Cumbre de Líderes de Norteamérica.

Ahí estaba el jefe de protocolo mexicano, el embajador Alfredo Pérez Bravo, el canciller José Antonio Meade y el embajador de México en Estados Unidos, Eduardo Medina Mora, entre otros, para extenderle la mano y verlo partir en "La Bestia", el vehículo oficial del mandatario.

Camino al Palacio de Gobierno del Estado de México, a 80 kilómetros al poniente de la capital mexicana, se espera al final del día resoluciones conjuntas con sus homólogos mexicano, Enrique Peña Nieto, y canadiense, Stephen Harper, quien se encuentra ya en el país.

Los mandatarios tendrán múltiples reuniones con sus respectivos equipos para abordar temas de comercio, seguridad, fronterizos y migratorios.
