by students in the four local schools. Open House will be held at each of the four schools in Muleshoe on Monday and Tuesday nights. Displayer here are some projects centered around the theme of "Americanism".

PEACE Justice Report

Thirteen speeding tickets filed in the office of the Justice of the Peace K.B. Martin lead the long list of citations issued by county and state officers during the past week.

Six citations were issued for expired motor vehicle inspection and for overweight vehicle; two were issued for running stop sign and failure to yield right of way and no motor vehicle inspection sticker and one each for no tail lights on truck, fleeing from peace officer; drunk pedestrian; no driver's license; defective stop lamps on truck and no registration papers on truck.

Muleshoe Mules have broken more than one record. Talk about a turnaround! Last year, the Mules had a 1-9 record, and just reversed that this year, to waltz through the season with a 9-1.

Don't get the idea it was easy, though. Take their game Friday night, for instance. Traveling to Morton to meet their longtime rivals, the Mules found the team really 'up' and on the warpath.

And even though senior Dean Northcutt established a new school record in yardage on the ground, breaking one held by Darrell Oliver since 1959 or 1960, it still wasn't easy to squeak by with the 13-12 victory over the Indians.

Going into the game Friday night, Dean had 1,070 in yardage for the year and added an additional 247 yards to that amount to become the new champion ground-gainer for Muleshoe High School. Oliver's school record had been 1,155.

Littlefield, who had started threatening late in the season, and Friona, who surprised the entire district, also share equal billing with Muleshoe in District 3-AA. Late Friday night, in a coin toss, Littlefield won the right to represent the district in playoffs and will meet Idalou next Friday, probably in Plainview.

Muleshoe struck quickly Friday night, and four plays after their first possession of the ball had moved it 66 yards, finishing with a 12-yard TD dash by Northcutt. George Villarreal then made the difference in what could have just as easily been a 12-12 tie ball game. He lifted the ball through the uprights to bring Muleshoe out to a 7-0 lead.

But, the Indians didn't retreat. They dug in, and held the Mules back as they capped an 80-yard drive with a TD by fullback Larry Moore. An attempt at the conversion failed, and the game was 7-6 at halftime.

Then, to add insult to injury, the Indians turned Moore loose again in the third and he sprinted 40 yards to another TD. Again, an attempt to conversion failed, but the Indians had tallied up a 12-7 score to leave the Mules uncomfortable and worried.

As the Indians were determined to hold the Mules, and stiffened up their defenses, the Mules had several turnovers on fumbles before quarterback Danny Wilson found Marcus Beversdorf in the open and he galloped 39 yards with 1:36 left in the third quarter. An attempt for two points failed, and the Mules had a very slim 13-12 lead over the Indians.

Defense marked the fourth quarter, and the tough Mule defense made several last ditch plays to stop the Indians when they were threatening. As the scoreboard clock was running out, Morton turned over the ball to the Mules who moved the ball inside the 20 and allowed the clock to run without attempting a final TD.

Basketball Ticket Sale Is Underway

Basketball Season tickets will go on sale tomorrow (Monday) at the principal's office on each of the four campuses and at the Muleshoe I.S.D. Business office. Price for the adult season ticket is $12.00 and student season tickets are $6 each. Basketball season tickets are good at each and every home basketball game including the Muleshoe Holiday tournament.

The purchase of either adult or student season tickets can represent a sizeable savings to those who plan to follow the Muleshoe teams this year. The school said, "We hope our student athletics will be supported, as in the past, each and every time they play at home or away. The price of admission at the games will be $1.50 for adults and $1 for students.

NEW SCHOOL RECORD--Senior Fullback Dean Northcutt is on his way as he sets a new school record in yardage on the ground. With 1,317 yards this year, he broke a record of 1,155 sets set by Darrell Oliver in 1959 or 1960.

Local Coaches Are Praised As Leaders

All Muleshoe's coaches were on hand for a 6:30 a.m. Breakfast Thursday, and heard themselves praised for their leadership qualities.

Paul Pynor, president of the Muleshoe Athletic Booster Club, said, "We have learned to love Coach Cumpston and everyone really likes him."

He was speaking of Don Cumpston, athletic director, who played football while a student at Bovina High School, graduate of West Texas State University and former coach of Sanford-Fritch. In 1975, Coach Cumpston was named Coach of the Year for Class A, while still at Sanford-Fritch.

Pynor added, "The coaches have taught the boys to believe in themselves and believe in the football program. Some of the boys wear black shirts, imprinted 'I Believe.'"

"I would like to personally thank each of the coaches for all the pleasure they have given me this year," he concluded.

Also honored were the other coaches, Lester Kirkland, Rodney Murphy, Randy Crook, Ruben DeLeon, Gary Goodin, Raymond Schroeder and Ronnie Jones.

One of the largest crowds to attend a Chamber of Commerce-sponsored breakfast attended the breakfast meeting Thursday for the honorees.

Coach Cumpston told the group, "I am real proud to be associated with each one this year and am real proud of all our boys. They have done everything we have asked them to." Coach Cumpston again expressed his appreciation of the support shown by the local and area people.

Employees of the Month were named for August through November. They include Curby Brantley of Wiedebush and Company; Helen Head of Gordon-Wilson; Troy Turpin of West Plains Medical Center and Billy "Little-Un" Jones of Muleshoe State Bank.

Door prizes were won by Louise Williams, R.A. Bradley, Glen Williams and Robert Houston.

Local Schools Open House This Week

Muleshoe public schools stressed this week that American Education Week, November 13-19, would be an excellent time for all parents and other citizens to demonstrate their concern for what happens in -- and to -- the schools.

"Working Together for Education" is the theme for this special week according to Neal Dillman, superintendent.

Open house will be held Monday, November 14 from 7-9 p.m. in Muleshoe High School and Junior High School, according to principals Wayland Ethridge and Fred Mardis.

Milton Oyler and Bill Taylor, principals, have announced that open houses will be held on Tuesday, November 15 at 6:30-8:30 p.m. at Richland Hills Primary and from 7-9 p.m. at Mary DeShazo Elementary.

American Education Week, observed annually since 1921, seeks to encourage local citizens support and active participation in the improvement of education. This year, the program will stress the joint efforts of teachers, students, and parents, to increase educational awareness in their local community.

said Dillman. The nationwide event is sponsored by the National Education Association, the American Legion, the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, and the U.S. Office of Education.

All interested parents and patrons of the Muleshoe Schools are invited to attend any or all of the open houses on November 14 and 15.

Along with local school officials and educators, the Texas State Teachers Association is urging the public to join with the 140,000 members of TSTA in the nationwide observance.

Many Texas public schools will be offering special programs and demonstrations, such as the special demonstrations of projects made by junior students of Mrs. Gary Goodin at Muleshoe High School.

Participants will be encouraging more support to increase awareness of school goals, problems and accomplishments. In the past, very few parents have attended the open houses, and parents are encouraged to visit this year to see what their children and all local youth are doing and learning in the Muleshoe schools.

ASC Honors Retiring Committeeman Drake

Wednesday, during the regular meeting of the ASCS County Committee, a retiring member of the committee was honored for his past service on the board.

Marvin Drake, who has farmed in Bailey County for the past 36 years, and served as a committee member for ASCS for the past nine years, was presented a plaque by County Executive Director, Terry Hill.

He was first elected by producers in 1968, to represent their farming interest and administer the ASCS farm programs. Hill explained that the Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) could not function without the county committee system who portray a vital role in the decisions and administration.

Drake's term will end December 31 of this year, and a newly elected committeeman will take office on January 1, 1978.

Hill commented, "We would like to express our sincere thanks for the many years of dedicated and constructive service Mr. Drake has given his fellow farmers as an elected ASCS county committeeman."

"We need to commend Mr. Drake for his years of service, but his real commendation rests with the fact that he was repeatedly elected by his friends and neighbors.

"We will miss Marvin, but we know he will want to give his county committee the benefit of his valued knowledge and experience in the years ahead."

"Again, we would like to thank

 Congratulations Mules for an outstanding job all season. Even though another team will represent the district in the playoffs, you can rest assured, you did you job!

Sears Asks Recall For Whirlpools

Sears, Roebuck and Co. is continuing its efforts to locate the owners of the 2100 hand and foot whirlpool baths sold through Sears catalog and retail outlets since last Sept. 15 because of a potential shock hazard.
 Sears Muleshoe, said that the manufacturers of the compact whirlpool baths (Dazey Products Co., of Industrial Airport, KS) have discovered during routine testing that the plastic motor housing could develop a leak.

Woman's Group Contributes To Jaws Of Life

The Women's Auxiliary of the Muleshoe Volunteer Fire Department has contributed an additional $200 to the "Jaws of Life" fund for the fire department.

Contributions continue to come in to help pay for the hydraulic rescue tool obtained for emergency rescue use by the fire department. Firemen are presently training in use of the tool, and several firemen are capable of quickly operating the unusual rescue tool at this time.

allowing water to make contact with the motor which could pose an electrical shock hazard. A number of compact whirlpool baths were sold through Sears catalog outlets in Muleshoe. Owners of the affected compact whirlpool baths, model number 638,2262 with date codes C97, D97, E97, C977, D977, should contact their nearest Sears outlet for replacement or re-fund. To identify the affected compact whirlpool baths, owners should check the date code on the plastic motor housing of the unit above the electrical cord exit. The model number is found on a metal plate on the front of the motor housing.
 The 2100 affected whirlpool baths were manufactured by Dazey Products Co. between Sept. 13 and Sept. 30, 1977. They were sold for approximately $27 in Sears retail and catalog outlets throughout the United States.
 No injuries have been reported, but owners are cautioned not to use their compact whirlpool bath designed for hands, elbows and feet.
 All other Sears compact and full-size whirlpool baths, including model number 638,2262 with different date codes than those listed above, are approved for sale and operation.

Miss Debbie Williams, Joseph Fahrtrapp Wed

Vows were exchanged between Miss Debbie Denise Williams of Muleshoe and Joseph Emil Fahrtrapp, Jr., of Tuscola, Saturday evening, October 1, in the Community Church of Muleshoe. Rev. H.D. Hunter, Jr. officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

Miss Williams is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George (Pee Wee) Williams of Muleshoe. Fahrtrapp is the son of Joseph E. Fahrtrapp Sr., of Odessa and Mrs. Alberta Hemmerlie of Los Angeles, Calif.

The archway was decorated with bells and red satin bows accented with greenery. Greenery pots of miniature fern and palm leaves with red satin pew markers completed the walkway.

Wedding selection chosen by the bride were "Whither Thou Goest" and "Twelfth of Never", performed by Mrs. Matt Williams, Miss Debbie Hunter and Miss Denise Hunter. Soloist Mrs. Dean Spraberry sang "The Lord's Prayer". Organist was Mrs. H.D. Hunter, Jr.

The bride, escorted and given in marriage by her father was attired in an ivory formal length gown with a chantilly type polyester lace bodice and lace wrist length sleeves. The dress featured a high neckline with a stand-up collar. She wore a matching ivory picture hat with a polyester crown and a gathered lace brim with satin ribbon and bow. Miss Williams carried a bouquet of red and white colonial roses with a lift-out gardenia corsage center. Miniature fern and white lace were featured throughout the bouquet.

Serving as matron of honor was Mrs. Loyd Garlington of Muleshoe, sister of the bride. She wore a formal length gown of red double knit, featuring a scoop neckline and an A-line skirt. The dress was complemented with a red and white chiffon capelet. Mrs. Garlington carried a single long stemmed white rose with red satin streamers.

Kenneth Fahrtrapp of Tuscola served as best man. He is a brother of the groom. Ushers were Matt Williams of Muleshoe and Michael Williams of Levelland, brothers of the bride.

A wedding reception was held following the ceremony in the Community Church Educational Building. Guests were registered by Miss Shirley Burris of Muleshoe.

RECIPE

By Sarah Ann Sheridan
The first real cold weather in the fall reminds one of the ever-popular yam or sweet potato.

Yams Louisiana
6 medium yams
1 c orange juice
1 T dark brown sugar
1/4 t cinnamon
1/2 t salt
1/4 c butter or margarine, melted
1/2 c dark raisins

Boil yams in jackets in salted water for 30 minutes or until just tender. Remove from water; cool. Meanwhile, in small bowl, combine orange juice, brown sugar, cinnamon, salt and butter. Peel yams, slice 1/2 inch thick. Layer yams and raisins in 12" by 9" by 2" baking dish; add orange-juice mixture. Cover with foil; bake at 325 degrees for 30 minutes, basting occasionally with juice mixture. Makes 6 servings.

Baked Yams

Scrub and dry yams of the same size; bake at 350 degrees for 45 or 50 minutes or until tender when tested with fork. Slice lengthwise across top and insert butter, serving while hot.

Fixed
Hubby--Well, darling, I've just had my life insured for $5,000.
Wife--That's nice. Now I shan't have to keep telling you to be careful.

SILVER DOLLARS WINNER...Earl Schmitz won a blackout bingo game to receive $25 of silver dollars at the Sixth annual Bingo Carnival held Thursday night at the Catholic Center. Alpha Zeta Pi members sponsored this carnival every year.

The Muleshoe Young Homemakers will sponsor a special Thanksgiving storyhour with Sunshine Sally Wednesday, November 16, at the Muleshoe Area Public Library. The storyhour will be held from 11 a.m. to 12:00 noon.

Sunshine Sally of KLBK-TV of Lubbock has a program on weekdays at 9 a.m. She has Donations to help with Sunshine Sally's expense to Muleshoe would be appreciated.

Rookies Complete 4-H Foods Projects

The "Rookies" cooking group of the Muleshoe 4-H club completed their project with six lessons in Foods and Nutrition. Workshops were held after school in the home of Mrs. Walter Sain, adult leader.

At the first meeting, the group studies how nutrients in meals help to build and repair the body and how fruits and vegetables are needed for healthy skin, eyes, hair and body tissue. They prepared chili mac and baked apples.

The second meeting, the group discussed milk as one of the four food groups that is necessary for strong bones and teeth. Each member participated by preparing a strawberry milkshake. Brad Helton was a guest.

For the third meeting, the group studied how breads and cereals are important in the diet to regulate and protect the body. They made peanut butter bars.

At the last meeting, the members toured the El Jacalito Tortilla factory in Muleshoe. They were shown how flour and corn tortillas were made. A tour was also taken of White's Cashway Grocery and items were purchased to prepare different dishes. They discussed how to set a table and talked about the Food Show.

Members entering the Food Show are Justin Helton, winner of red ribbon, Shelley Sain, winner of blue ribbon, Tim Sain, winner of blue ribbon and alternate to the District Show.

A little confidence in a person can often produce great results.

It's surprising what a public speaker will say to gain publicity.

Homemaking Girls Invite All Visitors

If you are concerned about the home remaining the basic unit of society, we invite you to visit the Homemaking Department of Muleshoe High School's Open House during National Education Week on Monday, November 14, from 7:00 to 9:00 p.m. We will help you become aware of the purpose of the Vocational Homemaking Education Program.

Both males and females are encouraged to enroll in the homemaking classes offered at the high school. One purpose of the program is to prepare students to be able to combine the dual role of homemaker and wage earner. Six areas of the useful homemaking program include Child Development, Food and Nutrition, Family Living, Management and Consumer Education, Clothing and Textiles, and Housing. In addition to these units, students are encouraged to be members of the Future Homemakers of America, which is an integral part of the program. In FHA, students are given the opportunity to develop leadership ability, concern for others through home, school, and community programs, and above all to grow as an individual. Come and visit during National Education Week, and we especially encourage those families with boys in high school to learn more about our program.

In FHA, students are given the opportunity to develop leadership ability, concern for others through home, school, and community programs, and above all to grow as an individual. Come and visit during National Education Week, and we especially encourage those families with boys in high school to learn more about our program.

Both males and females are encouraged to enroll in the homemaking classes offered at the high school. One purpose of the program is to prepare students to be able to combine the dual role of homemaker and wage earner. Six areas of the useful homemaking program include Child Development, Food and Nutrition, Family Living, Management and Consumer Education, Clothing and Textiles, and Housing. In addition to these units, students are encouraged to be members of the Future Homemakers of America, which is an integral part of the program. In FHA, students are given the opportunity to develop leadership ability, concern for others through home, school, and community programs, and above all to grow as an individual. Come and visit during National Education Week, and we especially encourage those families with boys in high school to learn more about our program.

Special Thanks!

The Junior Class of Muleshoe High School would like to express their gratitude to all mothers, dads, and students for their help in making the annual Junior Class Thanksgiving Dinner a huge success. Also, a special thanks to Mr. Cleo Webb and the Plains Milk Company for their donation.

"HECE ... An All-Around Program" For Students

The Home Economics Cooperative Education program is a gainfully-oriented program which helps students prepare for the world of work or for advanced education. Many students who participate in this program continue their educations either in technical schools or in colleges, whereas others become full-time employees upon graduation.

The gainful employment programs are not, in any sense, meant to replace the home-making education courses directed toward homemaking. More and more women in our society are assuming the dual role of homemaker and wage earner. Home economics thus has the responsibility for helping women meet the demands of both these roles. An additional responsibility is that of providing training for boys who may be interested in occupations related to home economics.

The various subject matter areas of home economics are relevant to a variety of occupations. There is a need in many occupations for employees who have had some training, but not necessarily a college degree or even college credit. During the past few years, an increasing number of people eat outside the home, stay in nursing homes, leave their children in childcare centers, desire alterations or repairs on their clothing, want help with decorating their homes, and travel and require clean, pleasant surroundings at night. With the expanded demand for services, the need for food service employees, dietetic aides, child care aides, clothing assistants, home furnishings aides, and housekeeping management assistants is apparent.

These examples are only a few of the occupations to which home economics can make a contribution in terms of trained personnel. The purpose of the wage-earning courses is not only to give high school students a job skill, but also to help them advance more rapidly and perform more efficiently.

Curriculum is based on job analysis of specific occupations. Emphasis is played on the development of attitudes, behavior, and skills necessary to secure and hold a job. Acceptance for membership is based on a recommendations, attitudes, need, physical and mental competence, and other qualifications essential to successful employment.

Programs are established when evidence show need for trained personnel in occupations related to home economics. Vocational counseling service is necessary to help determine needs, employment opportunities and placement of students in the most satisfactory program. Advisory committees are formed to determine the work available and to advise and evaluate the specific emphasis of the gainful employment program. Each six weeks an evaluation is based upon the performance and ability to the student by the employer.

In summary, some of the reasons education for employment is appropriate in home economics are increasing in number of women employed outside the home and need preparation for the dual roles they are assuming; there is an increasing need for personnel in the service occupations related to home economics; the number of jobs for unskilled workers is decreasing; and more and more jobs require training of some kind; and career education programs must be added to the school curriculum.

We, as home economists, must meet our challenge to provide students with opportunities for gainful-employment training while they are in high school and encourage them to consider advanced training after graduation.

STATE CAPITAL Highlights AND Sidelights

by Lyndell Williams

AUSTIN—High level state officials are continuing to express their objections in strongest terms to President Carter's energy program.

While Gov. Dolph Briscoe was lobbying with a House-Senate conference committee in Washington, D.C., for additional production incentives, the Texas Energy Advisory Council unanimously urged the conferees to ditch key presidential proposals.

Briscoe, indignant at White House cancellation of a conference with governors on production matters, charged there is no way the Carter program can meet its goals.

The state council, made up of major Texas officials, meanwhile, advised killing a crude oil equalization tax as a burden on Texas consumers, the economy and state government's ability to levy the taxes necessary to finance services.

Other features of the resolution included recommendations to reject the House proposal to tax business and utility users of oil and natural gas, adopt the Senate version of natural gas pricing and assign priority in natural gas supply and pricing preferences to gas used for irrigation pumping and crop drying.

The council further went on record for a White House conference to discuss with the president how to achieve his coal production goals consistent with national environmental objectives. And members urged research into agricultural products as possible alternative sources of energy.

Appointments

Gov. Briscoe made two major appointments back-to-back October 28.

He named Steven C. Oaks, 39, Houston attorney, as secretary of state succeeding Mark White who resigned to run for attorney general.

Immediately afterward, he announced the selection of former State Rep. John Poerner of Hondo to succeed Railroad Commissioner Jim Langdon who resigned effective December 31. Poerner will take over January 1 and serve until the next general election.

Another major appointment announced recently was that of Harvey D. Davis of Temple as executive director of the Texas Department of Water Resources.

Bob Bain, Fort Worth Star-Telegram capitol bureau chief for the last seven years, joined Briscoe's staff November 4 as press secretary. Charles D. "Chick" Morris, who has held the position since April 1976, became director of public information for the Texas Criminal Justice Council.

Hearings Set

Texas Air Control Board held 24 hearings this month to determine what citizens want to do about new requirements in the Federal Clean Air Act.

New amendments will "affect the daily lives of every Texan because of the sweeping changes required in the state's air pollution control program," TACB Executive Director Bill Stewart said.

Hearings were conducted in Waco, Wichita Falls, Bryan, Abilene, Beaumont, Lake Jackson, Dallas, El Paso, San Antonio, Harlingen, Austin, Houston, Tyler, Odessa, Corpus Christi, Longview, Laredo, Texas City, Fort Worth and Victoria during the first week of November.

Other hearings were set for Denison and Texarkana November 10, Lubbock November 14 and Amarillo November 15.

Courts Speak

Negligence of a pathologist who ordered radiation treatment for a man mistakenly diagnosed as lung cancer victim cannot be the basis of a suit against a hospital when the doctor was not an officer or employee there, the Supreme Court held.

In other action, the high court affirmed rulings awarding $80,000 and a $586 a month pension to heirs of a telephone company executive, T. O. Gravit, who committed suicide.

The Supreme Court also turned down the suit of a suspended Potter County attorney seeking reinstatement following allegations he had taken county property and misapplied funds.

The Court of Criminal Appeals reversed the attempted murder conviction of a Shelby County man based on a faulty indictment.

Attorney General Opinions

A newspaper used for legal notices must meet the requirements of Article 28a of civil statutes, including entry as second class postal matter in the county of publication, Atty. Gen. John L. Hill held.

In other recent opinions, Hill concluded: Legislation permitting incorporation of an area with at least 8,000 residents located within the extraterritorial jurisdiction of another municipality is not unconstitutional as a local or special law.

A bill which abolishes the civil, criminal, juvenile and probate jurisdiction of the Reeves County Court is constitutional.

Short Snorts

The State Board of Education will approve the final list of textbooks for adoption at its Saturday (November 12) meeting following a public hearing by the board's committee of the whole Thursday.

The tenth job matching fair to help the unemployed find jobs is scheduled November 19 in Cisco.

Brooks, Cameron, Hidalgo, Jim Wells, Maverick, Starr, Webb, Willacy and Val Verde counties were designated disaster areas due to economic injury from peso devaluation.

Comptroller Bob Bullock said his auditors collected an additional $81 million in taxes owed the state during fiscal 1977.

The Railroad Commission has suspended a 57 per cent increase in rates for natural gas service in unincorporated areas of Limestone and Freestone counties and ordered a hearing on the Brown Oil and Gas Company proposal for December 20.

U.S. Marshal Clint Peoples received the governor's tourist development award for helping establish the Fort Fisher Park complex in Waco.

Alonso King of San Antonio received the Texas Hospitality award, and Ila Loetscher of South Padre Island received a special citation for saving endangered species of sea turtles. Presentations were made at the 12th annual Texas Conference on Tourist Development here.

Grain Crop Grosses Over $647 Billion

In 1976, grain sorghum crops in Texas grossed more than $647 million. That year Texas was responsible for two of every five bushels of the grain harvested in the United States.

The book "Grain Sorghum in the United States" relates that information and much more of importance to sorghum producers in Texas and across the country. The research project for the book was funded by the Food and Fiber National Institute of Achievement. Principal investigator for the institute's grant was Dr. James W. Kitchen of Texas Tech's Park Administration and Landscape Architecture Department. Graduate student Paul D. Hutchison was the author.

The book describes the various species of grain sorghum and their uses. It traces the history of the plant's development and predicts future developments for the plant and for farming in general.

Primary use for the grain in America is as a livestock feed, according to the book. However, the text continues, this converts to human consumption by being incorporated as protein in the meat Americans eat. The secondary use of grain sorghum in this country is as an export.

However, around the world, grain sorghum is an important food source, used in alcoholic beverages, bread, confectionaries, porridge and other food products.

In the United States, according to the processing method, the book said grain sorghum has been and is used in such things as snack items, baby foods, thickening agents, sorghum flour, meat processing, pet foods, insulation board, adhesives, charcoal briquettes, paper making, polishes, weed killers, medicines, poultry feeds, baking products, building materials, explosives and a variety of other products.

With improved planting and production methods, along with increasing yields made possible by hybrids, grain sorghum may increase even more in importance in this country and worldwide as a food and as a source of other important products, according to the author.

In the future, farmers are likely to harvest grain sorghum, originally planted with fertilizer, herbicides, fungicides and insecticides already on it, with equipment powered by solar or atomic energy. In fact, the book indicated much of the machinery may be remote-controlled by the farmer from a central headquarters.

It also predicted growing sorghum and other crops on the floor of the ocean, the development of multi-headed sorghum species, the conditioning of soil by ultrasonic waves, and the inbreeding of characteristics in the plant to improve the hardness and yield of the crop. Grain sorghum is an important food crop for both animals and humans around the world, and all indications point to its continued growth as a world food crop, the author said.

The Speaker Reports

by Bill Clayton

AUSTIN--I have observed with much interest and speculation the activities across the State of Texas and in the State of Colorado concerning the recent marches by the people directly involved in agriculture.

Not too long ago, such a demonstration took place in Austin in the Capitol steps. It was quite a sight watching a convoy of tractors and trucks covered in signs promoting agriculture coming up the main street of the city.

Such demonstrations are bringing to the public's attention the mounting problems facing the American farmer in producing the food that goes on every table in the country. Americans do not know how fortunate they are at being able to buy cheap food and a wide variety of it. But if something doesn't happen soon to make it economically worthwhile for those producers to grow and harvest their crops, the American people are going to have a rude awakening when they go to the grocery store and find the shelves empty.

People who are not directly involved in agriculture, except for a few, have no concept of what is involved in raising a crop. The land must be cleared for planting, seed must be bought and planted, then fertilizers must be spread. Those are just the preliminary steps.

Next comes the waiting and watching. Waiting for the crops to first show above ground. Watching the weather--hoping that you don't get hailed out, hoping for enough rain so the crops don't burn, hoping that insects don't devour your plants. Then comes the time for harvest, when a producer realizes the fruits of his labor, if he is lucky. The final blow is to get to market and find that wheat is selling for $1.50 a bushel when it cost the farmer $3 a bushel to produce it.

When farmers cannot get a fair price for their products--and many times they don't break even--then how are they to continue to grow food and fiber for the American people? The time has come for the farmers to unite and let their voice be heard across the land, especially in Washington.

The farmer has always been independent, relying on himself, not asking for a handout. He has always been a prideful person, taking pleasure in working the land. He is an efficient worker, producing food to feed over 50 people, which is more than double what he could produce a few decades ago. The financial crunch could very well eliminate the family farm and drive young farmers to the city for a job that has more financial security. Many farms are being sold, because the people no longer can continue to sell their products for less than it costs to grow them.

A solution must be found that is economically sound for the farmer and for the public. The laws are written by those in Washington and they must know the feelings of the public before they will act. The farmer is a member of a small minority, producing food and fiber for the majority, but he cannot continue to do so, unless he has a fair return for his products.

CANCER ANSWER LINE

American Cancer Society
M. D. Anderson Hospital and Tumor Institute

A high school student writes: "I have been very interested to learn about the body's powerful immune system in my biology class. Why doesn't the system work against cancer?"

ANSWERline: It does, but why it is not more successful is a question being attacked by a small army of cancer researchers. Many scientists strongly suspect that in the cancer patient the immune system has either been fooled into not recognizing a tumor as foreign, and therefore something to be destroyed, or the immune system itself is deficient. It has been observed that cancer incidence can go up six to 100 times normal when patients with other health problems such as those receiving kidney transplants are given immunosuppressive drugs to prevent rejection of the transplant. Since cancer is a general term for more than 100 different diseases, the pattern of immunologic deficiency varies in patients with different forms of the disease. Medical scientists have tried various methods with different levels of success to boost the immune system to fight cancer. In general this approach works best when used in combination with other forms of therapy such as chemotherapy. There are many ways of manipulating the immune system -- everything from introducing tubercular bacterial vaccines into cancer patients or even using another patient's immunity. This is a very exciting area of both basic research and clinical trials.

A woman writes: "My elderly uncle is hospitalized in another state after colon-rectal surgery. I have to make all kinds of arrangements for him when he is discharged. But, since I don't know his community, I am really at a loss to know how to prepare for his convalescence. What should I do?"

ANSWERline: Check with the American Cancer Society Unit in your uncle's home community for a briefing on all the different local agencies and governmental bodies that might be able to assist your uncle. The ACS can also supply you with sickroom equipment on a free loan basis and tell you about homemaker services. If your uncle needs further outpatient treatment, an ACS volunteer chauffeur can also be arranged. Also, the ACS may have special volunteers -- people who have also had surgery for colon-rectal cancer -- who might be able to give your uncle practical advice and much encouragement. These volunteers, however, only work with patients on physician approval.

A secretary explains: "I have recently read accounts of a brassiere that a woman can wear to help her find breast cancer. Is this true?"

ANSWERline: A thermal or heat pattern sensing brassiere has been developed that may be -- but has not been proved -- useful as a device for detection of possible breast cancer. It is in the testing stage, and is primarily important as a way of reminding women to do breast self-examination each month. Use of the brassiere depends on very exact instructions because the wearer must compare the pattern that shows up on the brassiere when she wears it with a photograph of herself wearing it at the time she is given the brassiere by her physician.

Library News

By Anne Camp

National Children's Book Week is November 14 to November 20--and the Muleshoe Area Public Library will emphasize the importance of Books and reading with posters; new bookmarks for all children; displays; and balloons for all with the theme "Books are Something Special!"

About 50 new books for children will be on display, with all the favorites from joke books to new Nancy Drew and Hardy Boys, and many for the very small.

Highlight of the week will be Wednesday morning when a special storyhour program will be lead at 11 a.m. with "Sunshine Sally". The popular children's television program has been seen and enjoyed by many area children, and it will be a chance to see her in person. The storyhour is sponsored by the Muleshoe Young Homemakers, who regularly hold storyhour at the library on the third Wednesday of every month, some of the learning activities include: counting; learning the pledge of allegiance; the months/holidays and seasons of the year, sharing, following directions, health, safety, animals and their ways and many, many others.

Children may listen to records, and watch filmstrips any time during the week--a Thanksgiving filmstrip will be enjoyable for all ages.

One other feature of the week will be "NO FINES"--Any child may return overdue books during this week only and there will be no fine charged.

Bench Terraces More Profitable

Conservation bench terraces are more profitable to dryland farmers in the Southern Great Plains than graded terraces. O.R. Jones, USDA Soil Scientist from Bushland presented this information at the American society of Agronomy Meeting in Los Angeles. He reported on a study that has been conducted at the USDA Research Center in Bushland since 1959. Conservation bench terraces were designed by Austin Zingg, a former Agricultural Research Service soil scientist. His terraces conserved water that ran off from a field with graded terraces. Instead of leaving the field, runoff was contained in a level bench next to the terrace ridge. The watershed on the upper part of the terrace interval was twice as big as the level bench area next to the lower terrace ridge. The terrace interval was twice as great with graded terraces.

In his study, Jones cropped the watershed area of the terrace in a wheat-sorghum-fallow cropping sequence. Two crops were produced in 3 years with a 11-month fallow period between each crop. The bench-leveled area below the watershed was planted to annual crops of sorghum from 1959 to 1970. From 1971 to 1976, both wheat and sorghum were planted on the leveled area. Crop production on the watershed was bench-leveled area was compared to a bench-terrace system where all rain is captured, but no runoff received. The conservation bench terraces at Bushland were constructed on Fullman clay loam soil with a 1.5 percent slope.

The level bench on the conservation bench terrace received an average of 1.3 inches runoff annually from 1959 to 1970; sorghum yield was 1,990 pounds per acre. Sorghum on bench terrace that received no runoff produced 1,590 pounds per acre. Sorghum growing on the sloping or watershed part of the conservation bench terrace produced 1,890 pounds per acre with an 11-month fallow period in the wheat-sorghum-fallow cropping system.

In the second phase of the study, runoff from the slope into the leveled bench area of the conservation bench terrace was 1.6 inches annually. Sorghum yield in the bench was 1,940 pounds per acre. At the same time, only 1,090 pounds per acre of 18.8 bushels of wheat were produced. On an adjacent bench terrace that did not receive runoff, wheat yielded 13.3 bushels per acre and sorghum produced 1,650 pounds per acre.

Jones said, "These studies show that a water conservation terrace system on clay loam soil greatly increased yields by utilizing runoff." Sorghum yield on sloping areas was about 1,890 pounds per acre in a wheat-sorghum-fallow sequence where two crops grow in 3 years. Counting fallow time, it took 1.5 years to produce sorghum. This reduces annual yield to 1,260 pounds per acre. Comparing this to 1,990 pounds per acre from the bench area that received runoff or 1,600 pounds per acre on the leveled area that did not receive runoff leaves little doubt that conserving runoff water will pay, the scientist pointed out.

"Determining which was the best type of terrace system was the hard job," Jones continued. He cooperated with Dr. John Shipley, Texas Agricultural Experiment Station Economist, to get this job done. The two scientists concluded that conservation bench terraces were more profitable than conventional bench terraces. It costs more to construct bench terraces since all of the area is leveled. Constructed cost for bench terraces on a two percent slope would be $118.00 per acre, when earth moving costs 40 cents per cubic yard. On the other hand, leveling only one-third of the land for conservation bench terraces would cost only $55.00 per acre. Total yield is highest from bench terraces but not enough to pay for construction costs.

Using construction cost figures, the two scientists compared returns from conservation bench terraces and graded terraces. They used 8 and 10

Educators Younger Better Paid

AUSTIN—American school teachers today—on the average—are getting younger, smarter, and better paid, according to recent research reported in the November Texas Outlook, official publication of the Texas State Teachers Association.

A survey of the nation's teachers, conducted by the National Education Association, yields some revealing insights. For instance:

--Their median age is 33, down from 41 in 1961 and lower than at any other time.

--About 99 percent of U.S. teachers in 1976 held at least the bachelor's degree, up from 85.4 percent in 1961. Those with master's degrees registered 37 percent compared to 23 percent in 1961. Non-degree teachers have all but vanished from the classrooms.

--Sixty-six percent of the teachers in 1976 were earning annual salaries of $10,000 or better, compared to 33.7 percent in 1971 and only 3.1 percent in 1966. The national average teacher salary of $12,000 in 1976 represented a 92 percent increase over that of 1966. But one-third of the nation's teachers were still earning under $10,000 per year.

--Women teachers outnumbered men by 2 to 1. About 70 percent of the teachers are married. Fifty-seven percent had spouses who were employed, compared to 51 percent 10 years earlier. Home ownership among teachers increased from 62 to 71 percent.

An Outlook article titled percent interest and wheat and grain sorghum prices ranging from $1.50 to $4.50 per bushel or hundredweight. Their calculations showed that conservation bench terraces would be more profitable if grain sorghum prices were at least $2.50 per hundredweight and wheat was less than $3.50 per bushel. If sorghum price was at least $3.50 per hundredweight, conservation bench terraces would always be more profitable than graded terraces.

Terraces systems have been evaluated at Bushland for 20 years. "We are convinced that constructing conservation bench terraces on fine-textured soil on the Southern High Plains will conserve runoff water and be profitable for dryland farmers," Jones concluded.

"What's Good About Schools?" summarized a recent Gallup Poll which reported that discipline continues to be the No. 1 problem for U.S. public schools, by the highest percentage yet recorded.

Other major school problems, in order of public concern registered in the poll, are integration/segregation/busing, lack of proper financial support, difficulty of getting "good" teachers, poor curriculum, drug use, parent apathy, oversized schools and classes, teacher apathy, and mismanagement of funds and programs.

In another article, a former Texas teacher gives a personal and poignant account of why she left the classroom, yet she says: "I cannot accept the failure of the public schools as inevitable, because I still have faith in children."

Other articles in the magazine explore teacher-community relations, community education, outdoor education for elementary students, and changes in the state public school system made by the 1977 Texas Legislature.

Handicapped Youth Hear Peter Rabbit

Peter Rabbit talks to young Texans who can't read ordinary printed material because of poor vision or a physical handicap that prevents their reading ordinary printed material.

He's just one of the childhood favorites included in the Texas State Library's collection of materials available to all Texans who qualify for the special service. During Children's Book Week November 14-18 the Texas State Library will be making a special effort to reach young Texans who qualify for the service that provides books by mail to readers.

"New legislations regarding handicapped children in the classroom has dramatically increased the number of teachers that apply for the special service for their students," said Donald K. Bailey, director of the service. "There are, however, many others who would qualify but are not yet receiving the materials." Books are available recorded on disks or tape and in braille. Machines on which to play the recorded materials are furnished at no charge. The number of disabilities that may qualify a young reader is large. Vision that's 20/70 with the best possible correction qualifies a reader. A muscular disability that keeps a child from holding a book also qualifies him or her for service. Physicians may certify that certain learning disabilities have physical causes and require the special materials.

In addition to receiving the library materials from the Texas State Library, users of this service will receive information on other recorded materials available to them. This includes access to taped materials being produced by various volunteer groups. Taped textbooks that can be duplicated for use are available. Braille materials include dictionaries and encyclopedias as well as other books. Among the new titles is an introduction to the metric system. From Peter Rabbit for the youngest readers to materials older ones need for academic work, the State Library provides access to a wide range of materials.

Information on the service may be obtained by calling 1-800-252-9605. This is a free call. Or information and applications may be obtained by writing Texas State Library, box 12927/Capitol Station, Austin, Texas 78711.

YOU CAN BANK on it!
Almost two years ago the Commission on Federal Paperwork asked bankers, among others, how the government could abate the blizzard of forms, reports, questionnaires. The commission, created by President Ford in 1974, made its final report Oct. 5, 1977. Banks submitted 147 forms that regularly must be completed and filed with various regulatory agencies. Also, the tendency toward proliferation of federal paperwork was emphasized by calling attention to pending regulations proposed by federal agencies to require that banks collect data on race and sex of applicants for certain types of loans. Aside from wasted time of both bank and customer, such questions could lead the public to believe — mistakenly — that banks use the information in credit determinations. We don't! It would be illegal discrimination. We hope bank testimony to the commission results in checking the increasing number of forms required by law when you do business with us... you can BANK on it!

Livestock And Deer Herds Roam Plateau

For Edwards Plateau farmers and ranchers who maintain co-existing livestock and deer herds three factors contribute to the success of this co-existence.

Those three factors are grazing rotations, maintenance of herd size and supplementary energy feeding programs.

Dr. Fred C. Bryant of Texas Tech University's Department of Range and Wildlife Management determined those factors in his research in the Edwards Plateau Region, around Sonora, Texas.

The research was directed at examining forage competition in the Edwards Plateau region between the Spanish goat, a new introduction to the region, the angora goat, sheep and white-tailed deer.

Bryant's study was begun in August of 1975 and information on the diet composition of the animals was collected monthly for a year. The study area was in a pasture grazed regularly by cattle, sheep and goats for 12 months and then rested four months. Deer grazed it regularly.

He found that livestock and deer compete with each other for three types of grazing including pasture grasses, certain weeds and browse or low-growing bushes and trees.

Bryant suggested that, since grass is highly nutritious at its immature stage, management which increases its availability, such as grazing rotations, would be very favorable to the deer and livestock alike.

Bryant, however, found that new grass growth was mostly unavailable as a forage for deer because all types of livestock eat it as soon as it is produced. Sheep were found to be the livestock group which competes most heavily with deer for weeds, which Bryant said are the most nutritious forage available to deer. He said ranchers could reduce this competition, again by using grazing rotation systems.

"This or any type of management that fosters good grass production seems to help reduce sheep's use of weeds as a forage by changing their forage selection or by decreasing their access to these weeds which are available to the deer as forage," Bryant said.

Both types of goats were found to be the deer herd's heaviest competition for browse, particularly in winter or dry months when deer rely on this forage most heavily. Bryant suggested a reduction in goat herd numbers might be essential if the rancher-farmer wants to successfully maintain a healthy deer herd.

He said brush control can be used with deer herds, as long as large areas are not cleared and if the clearing is done in irregular patterns so as to provide the deer with adequate cover.

Bryant found that one of the most serious problems in deer herd management was in overpopulation of the deer herd itself. Bryant recommended that deer herds should be reduced to at least one deer to each 15 to 25 acres.

Deer were found to be most compatible with cattle as far as forage competition. He said, however, that overstocking of cattle could also result in a substantial reduction in deer forage.

Supplementary feeding programs were found beneficial for all types of animals during certain times of the year. Bryant said a rancher might want to provide deer herds with high energy type feeds, such as corn or oats, during hot, dry summers and dry autumns and winters.

This supplemental feeding for deer, he said, was only recommended to ranchers who want to intensively manage deer. He said this feeding program would also mean an equally intensive "harvest" program to control deer herd size.

"Feeding a poor deer herd that suffers from overpopulation is really ignoring the problem."

Bryant said.

Sheep were found to require extra energy particularly during December and January. Bryant suggested a rancher could provide this by feeding energy-high feeds from August to October, to provide extra fat, or by improving range conditions by using grazing systems and proper stocking. He said the latter system is obviously the cheaper.

Bryant said low energy levels were most noticeable in goats.

Did Work All Right

"That new saw I bought is worthless," he stormed, "why, it wouldn't cut butter." His small son, Tommy, looked up in surprise. "Oh yes, it would dad," he exclaimed earnestly. "Why, Ted and I saw a whole brick in two with it this morning in no time."

Surprise

The golfer had lost his ball. Not unnaturally, he was annoyed with his caddy. "Why didn't you watch where it went?" he angrily asked. "Sir," said the caddy, "Usually it doesn't go anywhere, so it took me unprepared like."

LUBBOCK--Many hunting dogs are confined most of the year in pens but during hunting season in Texas, contact with other dogs, disease, poisons, and wild animals and birds constitute a possible health hazard.

Prevention of the more common dog diseases is far more fruitful and many times less expensive than attempting a cure, if possible. Giant strides have been made in recent years in the developing of immunizing agents for dogs, the most recent involving methods highly advanced in their effectiveness and safety.

Most veterinarians recommend two shots for hunting dogs in West Texas. They include the DHL-P (distemper, Hepatitis, Leptospirosis and parainfluenza) and rabies vaccinations.

Distemper is so widespread that few unvaccinated dogs escape exposure. The disease results in a high death rate, and dogs that survive are often afflicted for life. Other animals that may spread distemper are skunks, foxes, and racoons.

Infectious hepatitis causes death in about 25 percent of affected dogs, with the highest death rate in recently weaned puppies. The disease damages the liver. Recovery in non-fatal cases may be quite slow. Following recovery, dogs spread the virus in their urine for months.

Leptospirosis is increasingly a problem as one study indicated 11 percent of the dogs were carriers of the disease. Dogs that survive leptospirosis often have permanent kidney damage. Infected dogs (and also rats) may transmit the disease to man.

Kennel cough, the fourth part of the combination shot, is a mild, self-limiting disease of the dog's throat and lungs. It is encountered in dogs kept at home as well as in hospitals and kennels. The main symptom is a dry cough which usually convinces the owner that the dog has something caught in the animal's throat.

Rabies, the most publicized disease, attacks the brain, is invariably fatal, and is transmissible to man, chiefly through the bite of an infected animal. Rabies is spread primarily by infected dogs and wild animals. The first signs of sickness are usually listlessness and unexplainable loss of appetite. More pronounced symptoms usually follow. Early medical attention is important.

Following hunting trips, observe your dog for several days and watch for unusual action of swelling. Many dogs have been bitten by snakes and survived without apparent swelling or medical treatment. Most dogs, however, show immediate signs of swelling and loss of interest in hunting and require immediate medical help.

Immunization shots should be given well in advance of your hunting trip including "booster" shots as most vaccinations injections do not last for the dog's lifetime.

Your dog may suffer other accidents such as sprains, broken bones, several cuts, shock, stroke, burns and drowning. First aid for these situations is only a step prior to proper diagnosis and skilled professional treatment by a veterinarian.

Discuss your dog's health with your vet and be prepared for any emergency in the field so you may help your most trusted hunting companion -- your dog.

Orange Protects Texas' Hunters

Hunters headed for some areas in Texas and more than half the states in the U.S. will not be permitted to hunt unless they wear some bright clothing. Many hunters are wearing the color, usually called hunter orange, blaze orange, or fluorescent orange, because it decreases their chances of getting shot accidentally, the Texas Medical Association (TMA) says. Hunting results should not be affected because deer and most other mammals are color blind and cannot see the obvious bright orange like humans can.

Apparently blaze orange does decrease chances of shooting someone accidentally. Fifty-two people were injured and 11 killed in hunting accidents in Texas in 1976, the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department says. None of these mishaps involved blaze orange.

The Texas parks department requires deer hunters using rifles on any of its 13 wildlife management areas to wear either a blaze orange vest or cap. Hunters in most other parts of the state are not required by law to wear the color but many choose to anyway.

Colorado requires hunters to wear at least 500 total square inches of blaze orange on a head covering and outer garment worn above the waist. Oklahoma requires deer hunters using rifles to wear 500 square inches of bright orange, red or yellow. Unless they are on private property, Louisiana requires deer hunters using rifles to wear at least 400 square inches of blaze orange on the head, chest or back. Hunters unsure about any regulations should check with that state's game and wildlife department. Or they could wear blaze orange anyway, figuring it is better to be safe than shot, TMA says.
