Thomas Seeks A Fifth Term

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 4. (AP)—Oklahoma had fair skies today as voters named their favorites in a heated U. S. Senate race and 212 other congressional, state and local contests. National interest in the holidya primary was centered on the bid of white-haired Elmer Thomas (D-Okla.) for a fifth term in the Senate. Challenging him in the Democratic primary is Mike Monroney, Fifth District congressman for 12 years. Observers look for a close battle.

Greene Will Go Before CAB On Behalf Of C-C

Chamber of commerce directors Monday approved tentative plans for safety and first aid courses and voted to send Manager J. H. Greene to Washington on July 17 to represent the chamber before the Civil Aeronautics Board.

The Civil Aeronautics Board is to hear oral arguments on the announced date on recommendations involving commercial air lines serving Big Spring.

Otto Peters, Sr., chairman of the chamber safety committee, outlined plans for courses which were approved by the board. Peters said he hoped to train a dozen members of his committee as instructors and then enroll at least 100 people in 10 classes. As a result, he said, the committee hoped there would be at least 100 people with renewed safety consciousness who would help talk and present safety programs.

Details of the courses will be announced later. Greene gave an oral report on the International U. S. 87 highway association meeting which he attended recently in Laredo, and also reported on the status of area highways. He and George White, chairman of the highway committee, were in Austin last week. Greene said he had been reliably informed that topping of the Big Spring-Snyder highway will be completed between June 15 and June 21.

Omer Elliott, chairman of the tourist development committee, said a delegation of at least 10 would be sought to attend the US 80 highway association meeting in El Paso July 8-9. Several joined the US 80 association at the board meeting.

Australia May Seek U. S. Loan

CANBERRA, Australia, July 4. (AP)—Bellare sources said today that Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies soon may visit the United States to seek a dollar loan for Australian development. These sources said Menzies' departure, which might come as soon as next week end, probably depends on the outcome of a special session of parliament Thursday. At that session the opposition Labor Party is expected to support the government's action in placing Australian air and naval units in Japan at the disposal of the United Nations for aid to South Korea.

U. S. Went In Debt $8 Million Every 24 Hours

Daily Spending Hit $110 Million, Fiscal Report Says

WASHINGTON, July 4. (AP)—The government spent $110 million a day throughout fiscal 1950, which ended June 30—and went $8,554,000 deeper in the hole every 24 hours. With no shooting war on to boost costs, as there is now with the Korean $40,166,835,914.82 while taking in $92,337,45 deficit for the 12 months. In doing so, it lifted its cumulative debt for 160 years' operations to $257,376,855,385.01—about $1,704.50 for each living American.

But big as the deficit was, it represented a $2,300,000,000 or 40 per cent improvement over what the administration had forecast only a little over two months ago. The final red ink entry was produced by the government's spending $40,166,835,914.82 while taking in only $37,044,733,557.37 during the year, the treasury disclosed in closing its books yesterday.

It was the 18th budget deficit in the last 20 years, the 83th in U. S. history against 74 surplus years, and the fourth in the six fiscal years which have ended since Harry Truman became President. The bright aspect afforded by comparison with administration estimates faded when fiscal 1950 was matched against the preceding year.

The 1950 deficit topped that of fiscal 1949 by $1,311,000,000—chiefly because its revenues had been dropped $1,201,000,000 lower as a result of the "recession."

There was apparent likelihood of a still greater deficit in current fiscal 1951, which began this month, since 1950's improvement over the official estimates was largely due to lagging outlays that should swell this year's previously estimated costs.

The administration has estimated a $5,200,000,000 deficit for this year, but the actual outcome will hinge largely on what Congress does with the still-incomplete appropriations and tax bills.

The treasury figures for fiscal 1950 revealed that President Truman, in preparing his budget last January, had overestimated spending by $3,120,000,000 and also had overestimated tax revenues by $718,000,000.

The administration's revised estimate of April 20 proved to be a $1,833,000,000 overestimate of spending, but a $445,000,000 underestimate of tax receipts. The biggest saving from January budget allowances was $1,030,000,000 on defense, where costs totaled $13,496,000,000.

The Marshall Plan cost $372,000,000, or roughly 10 per cent less than the $3,895,000,000 it had been budgeted for and the foreign arm aid—mutual defense assistance pact—cost $44,000,000 of the $160,000,000 allowed for it.

Of $70,000,000 budgeted for Korean relief and recovery $40,000,000 was spent.

PARIS, July 4. (AP)—The Socialist Party voted today to throw its weight against the two-day old government of Premier Henri Queuille. Thus the new government faces almost certain defeat before the national assembly.

At the urging of former interior minister Jules Moch the Socialist deputies voted 65 to 26 to throw their weight against Queuille's regime.

In order to survive a test expected later today he needed at least the support of neutrality of the powerful Socialist party.

TEHRAN, Iran, July 4. (AP)—Indications of a new American aid program for Iran has unleashed a bitter Communist-led campaign against Henry F. Grady, the new U. S. ambassador here.

The Tudeh Party has circulated pamphlets calling Grady "the butcher of Greece" and charging that he has come to Iran to impose a puppet despotic government here. Grady directed the U. S. aid program in Greece before he came here.

U. S. Evacuees Due At Seattle By Air Today

SEATTLE, July 4. (AP)—The first planeload of American evacuees from Korea is scheduled to reach Seattle at midnight tonight (PST 3 a.m. Wednesday EST) 34 hours after leaving Tokyo, Northwest Airlines reported today.

The flight inaugurates a two-week shuttle service NWA is operating from Anchorage, Alaska, to Tokyo to bring out several hundred persons forced to flee from war-torn Southern Korea.

They include Army, Air Force and Navy dependents, and civilians connected with the U. S. military and the State Department.

The number aboard the initial flight was not known here, but it is believed the DCA's making the shuttle run will carry at least 40 passengers. Their normal capacity is 24. However, on the great circle route the load is cut down because of the long overwater hop.

The Seattle port of embarkation and Fort Lawton here have been directed to help process the evacuees, provide food and shelter.

Thousands of people are expected to turn out again this evening for the annual chamber of commerce July 4th free fireworks party.

Two aerial bombs at 8:20 p. m. will alert the public that the display will start in 10 minutes. By that time, however, a big part of the crowd is due to be parked east of the junior college area, awaiting the exhibition.

State highway patrolmen, city police and other officers will be on hand to direct the flow of traffic into the area north of the tandler school.

Elton Taylor, chairman of the chamber committee handling the get range of the former bombardment display, said he believed elevation of the special displays on high poles above the slope would permit an easy view from parked cars.

Two motors will pump colorful aerial bombs skyward at regular intervals, and over the hour's period, some 14 large and massive special displays will be touched off. This includes such things as the demon special, a conglomeration of whizzers, the "Niagara Falls," "Cleopatra's Fan," "Old Glory," and a rousing grand finale.

Taylor said that his committee-men would work from the high dump back of the old target area. Thirty-five poles have been erected through courtesy of Texas Electric Service to handle the special exhibits. In past seasons, 10,000 or more people have turned out annually for the chamber's free fireworks party. Business halted here for Independence Day. Soviet Demands UN Expel U. S. Korea Troops

Russian Press Voices Scathing Criticism At US

MOSCOW, July 4. (AP)—A high level Russian demand for the United Nations to expel American armed forces from Korea today highlighted a flood of Soviet press criticism of U. S. military intervention in the Far East.

In a lengthy statement bristling with accusations against the U. S. Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko declared: "The United Nations will only fulfill its obligations to maintain peace if the Security Council demands the unconditional cessation of American military intervention and the immediate withdrawal of the American armed forces from Korea."

His words were echoed in the leading Russian papers. Here were some of the headlines: "Soviet people demand immediate ending of American aggression in Korea" — Izvestia, the government organ.

"Soviet people demand cessation of American aggression in Korea" — Pravda, the Communist Party organ.

"Hands off Korea" — workers of USSR wrathfully protest against American aggression" — Soviet Sport.

Gromyko's statement also charged that President Truman by committing the U. S. Seventh Fleet to maintain Chiang Kai-shek's hold on Formosa, was violating Big Four Cairo and Potsdam agreements that Formosa was a part of China. The Russians contend the island should be governed by Mao Tse-tung's Peiping regime.

The statement, published by the Soviet News Agency Tass, accused the United States of committing "armed aggression," "a hostile act against peace" and of waging "open war against the Korean people."

In Washington the State Department said it would not comment immediately on Gromyko's statement.

Retaliating previous Soviet claims that U. S.-backed South Korean forces had started the fighting, Gromyko asserted American "aggressive circles" sought to gain control over all of Korea to use it as a "military and strategic bridgehead in the Far East."

Nationalists Sink 20 Red Troop Ships

TAIPEI, Formosa, July 4. (AP)—Naval headquarters said Nationalist warships sank 20 troop-laden boats Monday, thwarting a Chinese Communist attempt to invade the Tachen Islands.

The Tachens, between Shanghai and Formosa, are shown only on detailed maps. They are only 20 miles from the mainland.

Naval headquarters declared the action was of a purely defensive nature—and as such in no way violated the Nationalist suspension of sea and air operations against the Red China mainland.

The ban was imposed last Wednesday at President Truman's behest after he declared the United States would support Korea, Nationalist China and Indonesia against Communist forces. But President Truman specified the Nationalists must not attack the Communists on the mainland.

The Tachens, are defended by guerrillas, local militia and at most only a few regular troops.

Encirclement Is Threat To Troops

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A strong thrust by Communist tanks threatened today to encircle South Korean forces in the Suwon-Inchon-Seoul triangle after Red armor burst into Suwon and captured the important airfield, Gen. MacArthur's headquarters announced.

A headquarters communique reported fighting at Inchon, South Korean port 20 miles west of the fallen capital, Seoul. The defending southern forces have been holding doggedly to Inchon ever since the invasion of South Korea began 10 days ago.

Four or five divisions of North Koreans advanced in the area of Suwon, whose airfield served the early stages of the Communist invasion. The northerners engaged the defenders in daylong fighting before Red tanks burst into the city. Later a force of 25 or more tanks moved into the fighting zone.

Communist patrols immediately stabbed southward toward outposts held by American troops. Communist planes, meanwhile, strafed a British ship off the east coast of Korea.

There were some reports that American troops already had tasted battle, but Gen. MacArthur's headquarters said none of the U. S. infantry committed to Korea yet was involved. There was no indication how close Americans were to the Suwon area, but the Reds were reported pushing with all they have toward the U. S. positions.

There was no indication the Reds, after slicing into Suwon with their tanks, would pause for breath as they had when they took the South Korean capital, Seoul, 20 miles to the north.

Official London sources said U. S. she is ready to mediate in the Korean war.

Washington went ahead with its drive to build up South Korean power. Further help was ordered by the Air Force — B-29 bombers from the west coast. A total of 75 are available at two departure bases, March Field, Calif., and Spokane, Wash. MacArthur already has committed part of his four infantry divisions in Korea. Units of the First Marine Division have been ordered in Japan, possibly to keep up the strength of the American garrison there.

On this Independence Day, Washington made known that security regulations like those used during World War II go into effect tomorrow in the capital building. Because of the Korean situation, many government officials stayed on the job through the holiday. Top level United Nations officials also stayed on the job at Lake Success.

The Eleventh Naval District at San Diego, Calif., clamped wartime secrecy on news of ship movements following the announcement that Marines would leave to join MacArthur.

Today's attack on Suwon by the Reds was called in a battlefront dispatch the most effective onslaught thus far with the largest concentration of Communist troops yet used in the war. The Red patrols quickly shot five miles south of Suwon.

Gen. MacArthur's headquarters first announced that American troops had gone into action at Suwon, indicating U. S. infantry was fighting near Suwon. Later this was rescinded in Tokyo and there was no immediate explanation of the conflicting statements.

Bad weather hampered U. S. and Australian warplanes, but with rockets and machineguns they seared and blasted tanked Communist forces.

The Communist radio said the North Korean capital, Pyongyang, was heavily hit for the fifth time by U. S. bombers. It said more than 600 bombs were dropped by 30 bombers and the American planes' machine-gunned buildings and people.

Military men in Washington reported that because of the heavy overcast and the mountainous terrain in Korea, the F-80 jet Shooting Star fighters have had to snarl in low to attack. For this reason some World War II piston engine fighters may be taken out of mothballs for duty in Korea. The five jet fighter groups now in the Far East are day fighters, un-equipped with radar for seeing through clouds.

South Koreans are streaming out of captured Seoul, and some sources said they feared that U. S. air bombing might turn the city normally with a population of slightly over 1,000,000 into an inferno to drive out the Reds. Highways were clogged with civilians, U. S. fliers reported.

Capital Will Mark Quiet July Fourth

WASHINGTON, July 4. (AP)—A wreath on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier, a speech by a diplomat, and rockets bursting over the Washington Monument.

These were the scheduled high-points in the capital's observance of Independence Day.

Because of the Korean situation, many officials and government workers, especially in the State and Defense Departments, will remain on the job.

America and Korea will be subjects of a speech by John Foster Dulles. The special consultant to the State Department, who recently returned from the South Korean Republic where American troops are fighting Communist invaders, entitled his address "The Interdependence of Independence."

It will keynote a "salute to independence" program tonight leading up to the traditional Fourth of July fireworks display on the Washington Monument grounds.

Representatives of 16,000 handicapped workers of the Goodwill Industries prepared a wreath for the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery.

TLM To Enter Wage Battle

MINERAL WELLS, July 4. (AP)—The president of the Texas League of Municipalities has announced that the league is entering the court fight over roadbuilding labor wage rates between the State Highway Department and an El Paso AFL Union.

George D. Barber, Mineral Wells mayor and league president, advised mayors and city attorneys of Texas of the plan yesterday. He told them that the league's executive committee has authorized the league to join the City Attorneys' Assn. and the city of Austin in filing a brief before the court. The brief would support "the right of governing bodies to determine prevailing wages in their area, and to set those rates as the minimum of contractors to pay on public works."

The suit will be argued before the State Supreme Court this month.

The Court of Civil Appeals at Austin recently ruled in favor of the El Paso Building and Construction Trades Council, which challenged as sub-standard wages paid by the Highway Department on an El Paso county project.

CAP GUN WON'T FOOL MARINE

BOSTON, July 4. (AP)—You can't hold up an ex-marine with a cap pistol and get away with it. Paul Abadessa, 23, discharged from the Marine Corps only six weeks ago, proved that last night.

As a holdup-man fled from his father's liquor store with $62, young Abadessa noticed the weapon he carried looked like a cap pistol.

He gave chase and overpowered the "gunman" in a near-by tavern.

MacArthur Observes Rules On Treatment Of War Prisoners

TOKYO, July 4. (AP)—Gen. MacArthur said today he intended to observe the rules of war in the treatment of prisoners.

"I will hold responsible any individual acting for North Korea who deviates from the principles of treatment of war prisoners," the American general said.

Local Glass Firm Broadens Service

Western Glass & Mirror Co., headquarters for all types of glass needs in this area, is broadening its service to builders and homeowners.

The special service of the company, located at 909 Johnson, is glass and allied products. But additional items are now being offered for convenience of those with building needs. For instance, metal casements are provided for beauty and ruggedness. They offer, among other advantages, a permanence in fit and performance. The type of design is varied to meet different needs.

Of course, the stock of glass is almost limitless—for the home, for commercial buildings, and for automobiles. Window panes may be had promptly either in standard or double thickness. Plate glass is stocked to supply an increasing demand, both for the clear and for the various tints which reduce glare and which add to beauty. Mirrors are made to specifications by experienced craftsmen in special rooms and by a precision process. Here again the tints offer some elegant treatment.

Vacationers Need Liability Insurance

Most states in this country now have financial responsibility laws, which should be considered by vacationers before they make trips across state boundaries.

This tip comes from R. B. Reeder, who heads the insurance agency operated under his own name in Big Spring.

"In most cases, claims on liability cases are running much higher than in previous years, according to reports made by insurance men," said Reeder. "Often, suits in such cases now request from $25,000 to $50,000 instead of $10,000 to $20,000, which was the former average."

Consequently, Reeder is advising his clients to provide higher limits of liability, which gives the insured protection in the event of traffic mishaps.

Some state's are very strict in their enforcement of financial responsibility laws, he cautioned. However, liability insurance can be provided by Reeder to meet all requirements, and he and his staff stand ready at all times to discuss insurance problems with people in the Big Spring area.

Also recommended for vacationers is a medical payment policy, which may be obtained at a slight for a growing area and for a population that daily uses more electricity for more things. In a score of years, C. S. Blomsheld, district manager pointed out, the demand load for TESCO has more than quadrupled. At the time Blomsheld gave the Big Spring the system demand was for about 70,000 horsepower. This year it is due to reach 325,000. To handle this, TESCO has raised large generating units, two in this particular sector. The Monahans plant shouldered a big load in the extreme western belt and now the Colorado City plant is to furnish energy for the booming east end.

Rules Make It Slow For Young Flier

LOS ANGELES, July 4. (AP) — Mary Glee Chesney finally cleared the way for her pilot's license after four years of flying.

Not that it took Mary that long to learn. She just had to wait until regulations caught up with her ability.

Mary started flying when she was 12. She couldn't solo until she was 16, however, and she had to solo to get her license. Yesterday she waved goodbye to her father, Leo Chesney, and took off for the first time alone. She landed successfully, a full-fledged fly girl.

MAY YET BE BUILT Chihuahua Seeks KCM&R Railway

SAN ANGELO (SpI) — The old Kansas City, Mexico & Orient Railroad may yet be built to Topolobampo, as it was dreamed by the late Arthur Stilwell. Chihuahua businessmen have asked the Communications Ministry at Mexico City for an appointment to discuss financing of the unfinished route to the coast. This comes after meeting of the roadway through the mountains was or were had used up appropriations extending over the last several years.

This fitted the idea of the late Mr. Stilwell in developing the shortest route to the Orient. M. J. Fanning, secretary-manager of the Board of City Development, today welcomed the Mexico promotion. Completion of the road would contribute materially to San Angelo's growing position as a port of entry, enhance business establishments and would promote both tourist and freight service to the Far East, he said. Already a considerable resort business has grown up on the west coast of Mexico.

Industry Reviews Plans For Quick Wartime Change

NEW YORK, July 4. — Industry leaders are reviewing today their plans for a quick changeover to war basis, when and if called upon. Detailed programs are ready in some industries. For example, the oil refineries know what will be expected of them in the first six months, should a shooting war start. Each one knows now much and what grade of gasoline and oil he will be called upon to produce.

Machine tool orders are prepared in detail and distributed among the plants, so that this business for war production. Some in the rubber industry are stand-by synthetic rubber plants. kept going all along to be ready for any emergency, and output was recently stepped up.

The steel industry boasts that its expansion program since the end of the war places it in position quickly and impressively to top its wartime output record in the last fighting—89,641,000 tons in 1944. The industry will have 102 million tons of rated capacity by the end of this year, and 104 million tons by the end of 1951. Its size operation can carry actual production well above rated capacity.

The munitions board reports that its over-all goal of stockpiling of strategic materials is more than half achieved in its report to Congress it stepped up its requirements to a total of $3,773,000,000 to be spent on or order by the end of this month.

Just how much of each material it already has put away is a secret. But it is known to have been stockpiling for several years natural rubber and tin—two of the essentials which any hostile move in Southeast Asia could cut from the United States.

Metal men report that the government stockpile took about 100,000 tons of lead in the first six months of this year, and plans to add 120,000 tons of copper in the last half of the year to the pile already on hand. The government large stocks of concentrates on has been refining zinc from the industry has been using more than at the end of the last war—copper than the nation produces and large quantities have been imported from South America for both industry and the government stockpile. The House of Representatives yesterday moved to keep this flow of copper coming, by un-animously approving a 60-day extension of the suspension of a duty of two cents a pound on copper imports. The suspension is due to expire Friday night, unless the Senate acts.

Russia cut off most of the supply of manganese and chrome which the American steel industry of both steel-making essentials used to get there, but new sources in Africa, and India is also sending have been developed in South Africa.

All this stockpiling and producing planning is being done because both military and industrial leaders agree that in another war the accent on industrial effort would be even greater and more essential than in the last conflict.

SEEKS PEACE SOLUTION UN Works Today To End Korea War

LAKE SUCCESS, July 4. — Top-level United Nations officials worked through the July Fourth holiday today on a plan to coordinate UN action to end the Korean war. Offices were manned on a skeleton basis as most of the secretariat took the holiday off.

The Security Council is expected to meet again Thursday to consider the plan. It is to be a co-ordination plan, on which details have still to be worked out. The strong protest note from Communist North Korea yesterday against what it called American aggression in Korea brought no reaction. The Soviet call for withdrawal of UN-authorized American troops in South Korea came long after UN officials closed last night.

Some officials said privately the North Korean note was what they could expect and it changed nothing. The Soviet statement made by Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko was certain to get serious study. The UN begins today a news bulletin service for Korea to be broadcast over BBC and the Voice of America. The program opens and loses with a statement that representatives of governments with more than 1 billion population are backing the UN effort to end the Korean war.

He was noted as the creator of rhythmic gymnastics. He also composed choral and dramatic works and chamber music, and taught at the Geneva Conservatory of Music.

Injured Hiker Runs Away To Avoid Surgery

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., July 4. — An injured hiker who didn't want any part of surgery was under mental observation today at Northampton State Hospital.

Joseph Nemeth, 40, of Scranton, Pa., was taken to the state institution after escaping three times from Mercy Hospital to avoid an impending operation.

He entered the hospital Sunday, reporting he had been struck by the rim of a wheel when a tire blew out while he was helping a truck driver change a flat.

X-rays disclosed he had a ruptured liver and bowel. He made his first escape after he had been wheeled into the operating room. Authorities finally decided to place him under mental observation before attempting the surgery.

Haverhill police said a man answering Nemeth's description walked into Hale Hospital in that city last Friday and reported he had been hurt under similar circumstances.

He gave his name as Joseph Mermeth and a Scranton address. Police said they checked Scranton and found that no one by that name lived there.

They said the man disappeared from the hospital early Saturday morning and was found later, some distance from the institution, wearing only a blanket.

He was returned to the hospital and released later when he declined to consent to an operation, police said.

Haverhill police said they learned from Trenton, N. J., police that he escaped from a New Jersey state hospital June 1, 1943. They reported the alarm for his capture is still active.

World's Largest Military Plane In Test Flight

SAN ANTONIO, July 4. — The KC-99, world's largest military land-based plane, completed its first test flight yesterday after a year of modification work.

The giant transport, capable of carrying 400 fully equipped troops or 50 tons of cargo, was modified by Kelly Air Force Base technicians and mechanics. The six pusher-type engines have been altered so they will be interchangeable with those of the B-36 bomber, and the fire extinguishing system on the craft revised, reducing its weight by 2,380 pounds.

CALCUTTA, India, July 4. — Mrs. Edgar Nichols, of Omaha, Neb., may have a new mountain-climbing record.

She is believed to be the first American woman to have completed a trip over the three-mile-high Himalaya Mountains from Asoet to Jozoa.

She and her husband are missionaries for the Church of Christ. Together they made the 1,000-mile trip in three months. They decided to leave after the Chinese Communists took over Sikkim. They will stay in Kalimpong, near Darjeeling.

Declaration Of Independence Measuring Stick Of Democracy

This day marks the anniversary of the Declaration of Independence of the American colonies from the British Empire 175 years ago.

It would do us all good to go back and read the events and the causes which led to the adoption of the Declaration of Independence. It was not only become a classic in government but in literature as well.

It would do us good, also, to note the ideals to which these bold men aspired as well as the abuses and arbitrary rules which led them to declare their separation.

It would do us good to be humbled by the attitude of trust, devotion and willing sacrifice which impelled them to burn their bridges behind them.

"We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness. That, to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among men, deriving their powers from the consent of the governed."

Here you have it—the seeds for remembrance, the foundation for a celebrated Constitution.

"With the firm reliance on the protection of Divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our Lives, our Fortunes, and our Sacred Honor."

These elements were democracy, and Americanism undiluted. There are no better measuring sticks today.

Cosden's Annual Report Makes Interesting News For Community

Cosden Petroleum Corporation exercises such a pronounced influence upon the community as both a citizen and an industry that news about it is of broad general interest.

Thus, its annual report makes interesting and important reading.

The prospectus which concludes the report is encouraging because if the outlook for Cosden is bright, the causes in part make it bright also for the community.

References to Cosden's production picture set of set the pace for an economic tonic that is making itself felt in all lines of endeavor here now. During the fiscal year ended, Cosden's leasing activities in one area resulted in a net increase in reserves of more than 400,000 barrels.

But this does not include the prolific southeast Borden area where Cosden extended acreage to start development, reaped half a million dollar margin and retained leases calculated with reserves of nearly six and a half million barrels.

This is not an exclusive development, hence an extension and multiplication of the effects of general exploration and drilling. Exclusively Cosden and of almost equal import is the fact that broad modernization steps have been taken. Today, the company is in position to reap the benefits of progressive replacement and additions. Only by realizing that this has been accomplished while at the same time clearing all dividend arrears and paying a common stock dividend for the first time can one appreciate the vigor and solidity with which Cosden is functioning.

Foes Make It Hard For HST To Get Finest US Servants

WASHINGTON.—Administration Democrats fear that two Presidential nominees will be put out in a double play between Republicans and conservative Democrats. They are Sumner Pike, acting chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, and Martin A. Hutchinson, foe of Senator Byrd of Virginia, who has been named to the Federal Trade Commission.

Both names are on the Senate calendar with adverse committee reports and the coalition nicely set to trade votes in the manner best calculated to raise Harry Truman's blood pressure.

All Washington is talking about the strange case of Mr. Pike, a liberal Republican from Maine with a long record of useful government service. In a hearing without precedent in Senate annals, Pike confronted four hostile Republicans, ready to answer charges that no amount of Democratic needling was able to elicit.

Suggesting that perhaps security was involved, Chairman Brian McMahon of the Appropriations Committee cleared the room of spectators and urged the dissenting Republicans to give. They wouldn't; they just voted no. Their 5-4 margin of victory came from big Ed Johnson of Colorado, a conservative Democrat.

A search for their reasons yields a mixed bag.

Pike was close to David Lillenthal, Senator Hickenlooper's "incredible mismanagement" target, and succeeded Lillenthal as acting chairman. Pike is the last of the original Lillenthal commission. If he goes, it will be possible to feel that the Lillenthal influence has gone, too.

Lillenthal always beat his detractors. Perhaps their wounded feelings will be somewhat assuaged by a humiliating defeat for his second man.

Two anti-Pike voters—Senators Millikin and Johnson of Colorado—are technically only of opposite parties; they are always taking in each other's washing.

In atomic matters they have a further tie. Colorado has uranium mines and Senator Millikin admits the Colorado solons had argued with the AEC that it was not expanding those mines and paying high enough prices for their output.

Congress sees many formidable voting blocs. None is more tenacious or more greedy than the metals bloc composed of senators from the mining states. Their major triumphs are in silver but they win many others.

Pike has filled a position which the state reserves for a Republican. It calls conservative Republicans when the Veterans' group and liberals for such as he of course does as often as possible. The Senate reports that Brewster of Maine has been especially irked by Truman favor for a Maine Liberal.

When Republicans dwell upon what they say is Pike's lack of the high brilliance and outstanding competence an atomic commissioner should have, they are on somewhat firmer ground. Pike is no Lillenthal, but whether he deserves such public humiliation is another question. Nor are his foes making it easier for the President to attract the finest type of men into public service.

Kreeee, Yelled The Fat Man Giving The Eagle Patrol Cry

VALLEY FORGE, PA. — THE FAT man toiled wearily up a hill in the encampment of 47,000 Boy Scouts here for their second national jamboree.

Despite the hot sun the man—being romantic, as most fat people are—was swept with sentimental memories of his own days as a Scout.

He passed a tent just as a fat young boy in shorts came out. The fat man paused to rest, mopping his flushed, perspiring brow. He looked at the fat Boy Scout. Then he twisted his face in a grimace and said loudly:

"Kreeee!"

The fat boy stared doubtfully at him and asked:

"What did you say, sir?"

"Kreeee! Kreeee!" said the fat man, hopefully. "I used to belong to the Eagle Patrol. That is the cry of the Eagle Patrol—Kreeee! Don't you recognize it?"

"No, sir, I don't."

"WELL, I CAN'T BLAME YOU FOR THAT," said the fat man. "I always thought it sounded funny for Eagles to go around saying, 'Kreeee.' But that's what the Scout handbook said they did—when I was a boy. What is your patrol?"

The fat boy promptly clapped his hands loudly.

"Never mind the applause," said the fat man angrily.

"But that is the sign of my patrol—the Beaver Patrol, sir," said the young Scout. "You clap your hands together. It is supposed to be like the sound of a beaver slapping his tail on the water as a signal of alarm to the other beavers."

The fat man asked him why he had joined the Beaver Patrol. The fat boy fidgeted a moment, then said:

"Because I thought it was the easiest cry to make of any of the patrols listed in our handbook, sir."

Sawyer Wants A Full Trade Embargo By Pact Allies Against Red States

WASHINGTON.—A raging controversy of great importance is being thrashed out secretly inside the National Security Council. It involves the cutting off of all British, French, and Western European exports to Russia, which, in turn, would cost Uncle Sam nearly three billions a year.

The issue was brought to a head by letters from Secretary of Commerce Charles Sawyer and Munitions Board Chairman Hubert E. Howard to the Security Council. These notes ask the State Department to demand that Atlantic Pact allies enforce a complete trade embargo with Communist nations.

At present the Atlantic Pact nations undertake to curtail shipment of strategic materials to Iron Curtain countries, but non-strategic materials have been shipped in normal trade channels for some time, and West European economists point out that it would throw their economy completely out of gear if these shipments were cut off.

They point out that western Europe depends on the East for grain, ores, and raw materials, and as a market for its manufactured goods. In a normal pre-war year, 1938, the West-East trade amounted to $3 billion. Last year the figure was $2,600,000,000, despite an embargo on key munitions equipment.

ECA Administrator Paul Hoffmann laid before the Security Council data to show a shut-off of this trade would bring widespread unemployment, rationing, and political instability in western Europe. For example, communism is being lured in northern Italy, ironically, because the shipbuilding industry is making and selling small boats to Poland and Russia.

The State Department has been negotiating for two years to shut down the export of critical items, and Great Britain now has a security list known as "group 17" of banned exports to Communist areas.

But U. S. military leaders take a vigorous view on the sale of various other commodities. They demand, for instance, that duck feathers be placed on the prohibited list, because they are used to line aviators' suits. The generals also demand that all ball bearings, including those used in ball-point pens, be barred from the Iron Curtain.

W. Averell Harriman, the new "cold war" co-ordinator, who got into the fight last week, commented: "Instead of trying to overture the economy of western Europe, we ought to look at our luxury trade with Russia. Dollars paid for Russian furs are used to buy armaments and strategic materials in South America."

Note—Secretary Johnson blames Secretary Acheson for being the Sawyer plan to cut off West-East European trade. But what Johnson neglects to say is that Truman himself said "no" on the ground that it would cost the U. S. treasury at least $2,600,000,000 to compensate for upsetting this commerce.

ATOMIC PIE. A piece of lemon meringue pie almost put the nation's top general out of commission during the height of the Korean crisis. Gen. Omar Bradley was weak and running a temperature during the recent White House and Blair House meetings. Finally ordered to the hospital by the President, his illness was diagnosed as food poisoning. The destructive morsel was a piece of lemon meringue pie the general ate at Anchorage, Alaska, en route from Japan. When Secretary of Defense Louis

Johnson heard this diagnosis, he gulped: "General Bradley only had one piece of that pie," he said. "I ate two."

SECRET DEAL. It was Maine's Republican Senator Brewster who slyly wielded the ax on his fellow Maine Republican, Sumner Pike, as chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Pike has served in the government for years, having been a GOP member of the Securities and Exchange Commission and a wartime official in OPA. He has also been a Republican member of the Atomic Energy Commission ever since it was established, and is one of the few Republicans chosen by Truman to become chairman of a government agency.

However, Pike follows a policy much closer to the other GOP senator from Maine, liberal Mrs. Margaret Chase Smith, who does not get along with Brewster. Furthermore, though Brewster did not tell this to either senator, Pike is thinking of running against him in 1952.

So Brewster worked out a deal, with the backing of Democratic Sen. Harry Byrd of Virginia by which Pike would be defeated for Senate confirmation.

On the surface, Brewster was back in Maine and glum Sen. Bourke Hickenlooper of Iowa had won a Republican drive against Pike. However, Brewster had made an informal agreement whereby Republicans would vote against Martin A. Hutchinson, a sworn foe of the Sen. Harry Byrd machine in Virginia, in return for conservative Democrat votes against Pike.

Hutchinson's nomination for Federal Trade Commissioner was voted unfavorably, 5 to 3, by the Senate Interstate Committee. Later, when the Pike name came before the Atomic Energy Committee, the plot was so well carried out that administration forces were completely taken by surprise.

"What's going on here?" asked the amazed Sen. Tom Connally of Texas. "I didn't know anyone was against Sumner Pike. What are the objections?"

None of the GOP-Dixiecrat objectors said a word. Chairman Brian McMahon of Connecticut asked if any member wanted to question Pike. Still silence. Commissioner Henry Smyth asked to be heard for Pike. So did all the other commissioners, including Republican Thomas Murray. Their endorsement was met in silence. Naturally since they could not talk about the deal and could make no real objection to Pike, they had nothing to say.

But when the votes were counted, the committee was 5 to 4, against. All the Republicans plus Republican Ed Johnson of Colorado said "no," although Johnson was a member of the same committee that said six to Hutchinson by a secret vote.

MacDonald Designing Thailand's "Home"

NEW YORK.—That designer and interior decorator of many of the apartments and country homes of Broadway stars, Alex MacDonald, is now concentrating on one of his most extraordinary assignments. He is designing the United Nations headquarters in New York for Thailand (Siam), a private home just a few steps from Fifth Ave. MacDonald is designing the decor in authentic Thailand tradition and is beginning with a combination of mustard and white walls.

"It will be mostly in Eighteenth Century Siamese art design," MacDonald said. He pointed to a large size picture which will be the focal point of the drawing room of the Siamese headquarters. It is an excellent painting, but there was something odd about it. "It is painted on rhinoceros skin," he explained. "What seems odd is the rough texture of the skin, but the artist has done such an expert job that his colors make the creases and wrinkles in the skin seem invisible. When you first look at it, the picture appears to be on canvas. But after your eyes have been adjusted to it, you become aware of those creases and wrinkles."

MacDonald only recently returned from Italy where he is doing the decor for the Marquess Gerini's castle at St. Stefano, a little bungalow that once belonged to Nero. "It has two swimming pools," MacDonald said. "The swimming pools were not designed for swimming. They were pools into which Nero tossed slaves so that they would be stung to death by electric eels."

MacDonald said that the establishments and wigs still exist beneath the castle. As a decorator he was intrigued by the long turns of iron steps which run all through the castle, these having wrought iron fish nets to frame the staircases. One point that MacDonald faced in designing the house was that the Marquess Gerini wanted no electric lights in her castle. He pondered this problem for some time and then solved it in a very simple and wise manner. He went out and ordered 1,000 candles.

Around The Rim—The Herald Staff

No Understanding Of Germs Is Reason For Sanitation Laxity

Probably understood to a lesser extent than the theory behind the atom bomb are the activities of the millions of bacteria that make life possible, and often miserable, for the human race.

According to what one speaker referred to as statistics, less than eight per cent of American college students ever study any phase of bacteriology, which, considering those who never attend college, leads to the conclusion that an extremely small percentage of our brains know the habit the microscopic creatures that inhabit the air we breathe, the food we eat, etc.

Few probably realize that there are two kinds of the minute organism, one good and one bad from the human standpoint. The good, or beneficial, variety outnumbers the harmful, but measures to control the latter are essential if people are to live with them in health and comfort.

That's the reasoning behind covered garbage cans and other sanitation ordinances and laws, as well as for refrigeration, pasteurization, and a score of other processes which have become a part of the human way of life.

Lack of understanding of the habits and needs of bacteria neighbors probably is responsible for the laxity with which we sometimes observe sanitation laws and for the failure for taking necessary precautions in preparation and handling of food. For that reason, we'd like to pass on a comparison of an ordinary germ with an ordinary person which was picked up at a dairy sanitation meeting here recently.

The speaker for the dairy meeting, whose address led up to a sales talk for chemist products designed to thoroughly clean dairy equipment, pointed out a number of ways in which germs and people are alike.

In the first place, he said, both are alive. They must eat to live and without food they cannot eat, a profound conclusion if it proves nothing. What he was leading up to was the fact that properly cleaned utensils fall to provide food for the bacteria that might be transmitted from the diseased dairy cow to your baby's mouth.

Both germs and people like many kinds of food, making nearly every type of food adaptable to the same illustration.

Bacteria also react to temperature in much the same manner as humans do. The normal body temperature, in the neighborhood of 98 degrees, is also about right for most germs—so they operate best under the same conditions that humans thrive.

Finally, he pointed out, both germs and people have a tendency to colonize, live in groups or communities where surroundings are the most attractive or where living conditions are the best. This latter characteristic makes bacteria more vulnerable to control measures, he pointed out.

Knowledge of the three principal ways in which germs and people differ is also important in understanding how to combat the harmful type of the bacteria population. Size is the outstanding difference between the two, with bacteria averaging about 1-25,000 of an inch in diameter. They also possess a tremendous ability for reproduction, a single pair often multiplying into thousands within a few hours.

The other major way in which they differ from people is that they have no legs—they must be carried from one place to another, either by flies, wind and dust, or on human hands.

That last characteristic is enough to illustrate the importance of a thing or two—such as keeping covers on garbage cans and the use of all sanitary precautions in the preparation of food.

Government Now Has No Power For Price Control, Rationing

WASHINGTON, D.C.—A WOMAN NEIGHBOR of mine went into a store the other day to buy a pair of shoes. It was just a couple of days after Americans began shooting in Korea.

She bought a pair. Then the clerk said in a low voice: "If I were you, right now I'd buy as many pairs of shoes as I could afford. I'd really lay in a supply."

"Because," the man said, still in his low voice, "we may be getting into another world war. You can't tell—any day now shoes may be rationed."

It was lucky for him that the woman was both small and old. If she hadn't been, she told me, she would have put knots on his head and wrapped the bench around his neck.

SHE KNEW WHAT HE WAS TRYING to do: Appeal to any greed she had to get her to buy more shoes than she needed by using "rationing" as a scare word.

If she fell for it, he'd boost his sale of shoes. It was a low trick, a dishonest one, for she knew what the awful effect on her and all others would be if clerks in stores all over America tried the same stunt on their customers.

It would mean a crushing sudden inflation. For if everyone began buying more than he needed—clothes, or furniture, or anything else—the supply would be exhausted.

Then, with demand outstripping supply, prices would go soaring, just as they did after World War II when price controls came off and goods were still fairly scarce.

There's a simple answer to talk of rationing now: So far as I can learn, the government now has no power to ration anything or put price controls on anything unless Congress approves by passing a brand new law.

I TALKED WITH A NUMBER OF PEOPLE in the government about this, lawyers and heads of staffs which would be in a position to know what the government could do in an emergency.

I asked them: "I know that the government's rationing and price control powers were ended by Congress. But—is it possible that somewhere, hidden away out of sight in some law still on the books, the government could find the power in an emergency suddenly to slap on rationing and price controls?"

Everyone I asked—and one was a lawyer who should know as much as anyone in this field—said they knew of no such hidden power or law—except for this: No one can say what the President might do in a fierce emergency, acting under his powers as commander-in-chief of the nation's armed forces.

IN SUCH A FIERCE EMERGENCY, no one would venture to predict what the President might say he had the power to do. He could act first and let Congress approve afterwards.

But if the President feels he has such power, it's strange that only last year he asked Congress to give him stand-by powers—that is, to pass a law giving him emergency control prices in an emergency arose.

Congress ignored this request. It never gave him the power. In two fields—by a congressional act slap on controls in an emergency; rubber and steel.

The government could freeze the production of natural rubber items and it could which still stands—the government could seize mills and take first claim on all steel made.

Nehru Support Of UN Policy May Be Of World Importance

INDIA'S SWITCH FROM NEUTRALITY to support of the United Nations policy for stopping the Korean conflict with allied armed force may presage a development of immeasurable international importance.

There has been no indication whether India would offer material aid to Korea, but the moral support is there. That means much, coming as it does from the biggest non-Communist power in Asia.

It is difficult to escape the belief that this likely represents a striking change in the views of Prime Minister Nehru, who has been pursuing a neutral line in the cold war. This thought is strengthened by the fact that only a few days ago Nehru, en route home from a tour of Red-plagued Indonesia, paused in Burma to make a speech in which he charged that Indian Communists were attempting to "destroy our country and our younger generation."

THAT CALLS FOR CONSIDERATION, coming as it does from the man who may become the dominant leader of Asia's non-Communist nations. It seemed to indicate at least a change in his method of dealing with the Red lam.

In days not long past Nehru has found some virtue in communism, and has appeared to be pursuing a rather non-committal attitude in his public utterances. Recently, however, he has voiced some very outspoken criticism of communism. Whether his trip to Indonesia has had anything to do with this change isn't apparent, but it's interesting to note that he condemned methods of communism in a speech before a committee of the Indonesian Parliament.

The prime minister declared that "Communist methods in India lead not to building up anything but to disrupting things and creating chaotic conditions." He cautioned the Indonesians to bolster their freedom, lest outside forces "come to sweep them away like a broom." He added that the Communists, after finding it impossible to make progress through normal parliamentary processes, adopt terrorist activities.

THIS WAS THE FIRST TIME DURING his round of speeches in Indonesia that Nehru had used the term "communism." A few days later in Burma we find him again uttering a warning against Red tactics.

At the same time the prime minister advocated joint India-Burma action for economic consolidation of the two neighboring countries. Back of this undoubtedly lies the fact that India needs food from the great Burmese rice-bowl and that India's industries can supply Burma with many necessities. Moreover, in unity lies strength.

We shouldn't jump to sweeping conclusions in trying to read Nehru's mind. He is a very positive individual who will make known his position in due course. We are entitled, however, to speculate whether this great personality is in process of moving into the leadership of non-Communist Asia on a platform which condemns the manner in which the Red forces are carrying out their ideological revolution. There is no other platform on which he could stand successfully, for neutrality wouldn't turn the trick. There is no middle course in this cold war.

It was in his first administration in 1940 that the U. S. Independence Day anniversary was removed from the list. He said that Panama's recognition reciprocates celebration of Panama's Independence Day Nov. 3 as a holiday in U. S. controlled areas of the Canal Zone.

EAT PLENTY AND TAKE OFF UGLY FAT

Many people have reported amazing results with this home recipe. It's easy to follow and costs little. Just go to your drugstore and ask for 4 ounces of liquid barcolite. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill bottle. Take two tablespoonsful twice a day. That's all there is to it. If the very first bottle doesn't show the results, order two. You'll be fat and help regain slender, more graceful curves. It's reliable pounds and inches of excess fat don't just seem to disappear. They melt from neck, chin, arms, bust, abdomen, hip, calves and ankles, just return the empty bottle for your money back.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With Tommy Hart

To this reporter anyway, the best baseball club in the Longhorn league at the moment is Roswell.

True, Odessa is still atop the standings, and by a comfortable margin, but the Rockets appear to be deeper in both offensive and defensive strength.

The New Mexico club made a wise move in hiring big Tom Jordan as skipper of the team. Jordan is a catcher that could be working in AAA ball right now, if he chose. He's strong and durable, enough to work every day.

The Rockets have plenty of left handed power plus pitching that is reliable, if it isn't great. Too, Jordan's rookies have come around admirably.

In Buzz Jackson, Cotton Lindloff and Julian Pressley, the Rockets may have the best outfield in the league. Odessa supporters, who can point to Emil Ogden, Bill Cearley and Leo Eastham, may dispute that, but over the season, the Roswell trio will outthrust the Oiler picketers.

Russ Mays is not this reporter's idea of an infielder, though he always has a big hand in beating Big Spring. He'll do as a short stop, however. The team still hasn't found anyone who can play the third sack as it should be played. Pressley was being used there in the last series with the Broncs. Ed Kenna at first isn't the best first baseman in the league, but he can get on base and his fielding leaves little to be desired.

Bill Crumley may not move as fast as some of the other second basemen in the circuit but he can hit and makes the pivot to satisfaction.

RECORD WAS IMPROVED DURING JUNE

The Big Springers played quite a bit better ball in June than they did in May, but still made little headway toward regaining first place in the standings.

In May, the Steeds won 12 decisions while dropping 14 and were 7 1/2 games behind Odessa. In June, they topped 20 while losing 16, yet had gained only a half a game on the Oilers.

They've got to play some remarkable ball during the next two months if they can hope to regain the lead position.

Homer Peel, the unpopular general manager of the Sherman-Denton Twins, is making more enemies in his deals involving ex-Big Spring players.

Al Valdes, the great backstop of the 1949 Broncs who opened the season with the Twins, then went first to Lufkin of the Gulf Coast league and then to Tyler of the East Texas league, is being recalled by Peel.

He also had Pancho Perez, another one-time Big Springer, out on option to Paris but called him in and sold him to Greenville.

Perez made no bones about not liking Peel and asked to be sent to Big Spring. It is doubtful now that Papa Joe Cambria, the Washington scout who did Peel a favor by sending him Perez and Valdes, will do any more business with Homer after this season.

It's definite now. Odessa has booked the famed Harlem Globe Trotters for a basketball appearance in the new high school gymnasium there, next Feb. 9. The Odessa gym will seat 5,000 and every eye will probably be filled. Phillips 66, National AAU champs, will also show there Feb. 14.

New Mark Set In Hot Rod

Time trials in the hot-rod races at the speed track two miles east of the cemetery were to get underway at 1:30 p. m. today while the feature events are down for one hour later.

In Sunday's trials, witnessed by a good crowd, Raymond Hamby set a new track record when he covered the half-mile lap in the sparkling time of 31.7 seconds.

Hamby wound up fourth in the feature six-lap race, however, behind Cotton Mize, Walter Smith and Ray Gilliland, who finished in that order.

Gold Sox Rally To Turn Back Lobos, 9-6

LAMESA, July 4. — Amarillo's Gold Sox used a four-run seventh frame to trounce the Lamesa Lobos, 9-6, in the first of a three-game series here Monday night.

Doubles by Pinky Higgins, Doug Lewis and Crawford Howard sent the Sox off to a flying start in the first frame, at which time

Lamesa grabbed the lead with a three-run outburst in the third, with Dan Pinto's triple the big blow in that frame, then stretched the advantage with two tallies in the fourth.

Five Amarillo hits and a brace of Lamesa misplays enabled the Sox to enjoy their winning rally in the seventh.

The two clubs meet in a double bill beginning at 7 p. m. here today.

Table with columns: AMARILLO, LAMESA, AB, R, H, E, P, O, A. Lists player statistics for both teams.

Home Runs Pay Off For Hubs

By The Associated Press

The battle for first place in the West Texas-New Mexico League was no closer today the leading clubs could use the same water bucket.

Lubbock pulled within a half-game of front-running Pampa last night by whamming Clovis 16-5 with two grand slam homers as a feature of a nine-run third inning.

Jackie Wilcox and Walt Steinberg did the work.

Albuquerque's Dukes were clouting their way to a 16-13 win over Pampa, battering out 18 hits. Three Oiler errors also helped the Dukes along.

Abilene beat Borger 7-3. Ken Clukey hit a two-run homer to feature the Abilene attack.

Boston Braves May Be Surprise Club In National League Race

By JOE REICHLER

Associated Press Sports Writer

Don't sell Billy Southworth and his Boston Braves short. National League pilots are not.

They will remember those driving finishes made famous by Bill St. Louis Cardinals clubs in the early '40's. And they haven't forgotten how Southworth's '48 Braves broke out of the pack in mid-June to take over the lead and go on to win Boston's first flag in 24 years.

All signs point to Southworth on the war path again. Flirting between fourth and sixth places only a week ago, Boston suddenly grabbed all of its last seven starts and became a serious challenger for the lead.

As the race enters the traditional July 4 date, the Braves have won 28 and lost 29, only two games short of their 48 pace. They boast one of the leading hitters in Tommy Holmes (.351), one of the leading home run sluggers in Gordon (14) and one of the runs batted in leaders in Bob Elliott (47).

In Johnny Sain, Warren Spahn and Vern Bickford, they own the best pitching trio in the league. Sain has the most wins, 11. Spahn has nine and Bickford eight.

A 3-1 victory over Philadelphia yesterday not only knocked the Phils out of first place but moved the Braves within 1 1/2 games of the pace-setting Cardinals, who moved up even though their game with Chicago was rained out.

The Braves and Phils each made only five hits, but a two-run double by Holmes in the fourth snapped a 1-1 tie. Bickford went all the way for his eighth triumph. Ken Heintzelman was charged with his seventh setback.

The returning champion Brooklyn Dodgers fell deeper into fourth place when they dropped a 3-2 decision to the New York Giants. Shortstop Al Dink Luke up a brilliant mound duel between New York's Larry Jansen and Brooklyn's Preacher Roe by lofting a home run in the last half of the 11th inning.

Detroit's American League leading Tigers opened up a 4 1/2 game lead over New York when they whipped the Chicago White Sox, 5-4, while the Washington Senators were plastering a 7-2 defeat upon the Yankees. The cellar-dwelling St. Louis Browns upset Cleveland, 4-2, to drop the third place Indians five lengths behind the Bengals.

Trio Of Yanks In Troon Show

TROON, Scotland, July 4. — Uncle Sam's "big three"—Johnny Bulla, Frank Stranahan and Jimmy McHale—looked like leadpipe cinches today to qualify for the British Open golf championship.

The last 18-hole qualifying round was to reduce the list of contenders from an original 243 to a maximum of 100. The 72-hole title test will open tomorrow.

It appeared a score of 67 or 68 on 36-holes would be sufficient to get into the select bracket. That gave the ranking Americans plenty of room.

Bulla, the handsome pro who lives six months of the year in Pittsburgh and winters in Phoenix, fired an even par 70 yesterday over the Troon course, scene of the championship scramble.

Stranahan, the Toledo, Ohio, park pug bear, had a 74 over the same course while McHale, the rangy Philadelphian, shot a 74 at Loch Green.

Players shift sites for the second qualifying round—meaning that Bulla and Stranahan must test the tougher Loch Green layout which is being used for preliminary trials only.

Defending Champion Bobby Locke of South Africa, and Floory Van Donck, a small bronzed Belgian dark horse, fired record-setting rounds on different courses to take the opening day spotlight.

Locke moved around the long Loch Green course in 68 strokes. Donck solved Troon's narrow fairways and humpy greens with a 65, the best competitive score ever shot on the layout.

Bulla is making his sixth try for the British Open crown. Twice he has been runnerup.

Broncs Defeated By Oilers, 7-1

ODESSA, July 4.—Big Spring misplays made it easier for Ray Knoblauch to achieve his 21st pitching success of the season as Odessa battered the Broncs, 7-1, here Monday night.

Gil Guerra pitched eight hit balls for the Steeds but four fielding lapses cost him dearly in the early rounds, when the Oilers jumped into a 3-0 lead.

Manny Escobedo, Odessa catcher, who hits Guerra as if he owns him, drove in three Odessa tallies with a second inning double and a sixth inning single.

Knoblauch struck out eight men, issued but four passes and never hit. Two of the blows were by Jorge Lopez.

Big Spring picked up its lone run in the fourth when Pete Hernandez singled home Potato Pascual.

The two teams are booked to play a double header today, the first game of which begins at 5:30 p. m. The Broncs move to Roswell to open a two game series Wednesday.

By The Associated Press

The battle for third place is the only thing of immediate consequence in the Longhorn League.

Leading Odessa has a four and one-half game lead over Roswell but Roswell is three and one-half ahead of the two occupants of the third spot—Big Spring and Vernon.

The latter two are two and one-half games ahead of fifth-place San Angelo.

Last night Vernon trimmed Midland 6-2 to draw within one percentage point (and tied in games) with Big Spring which took a 7-1 licking from Odessa.

Vernon hunched its hits to defeat Midland in a light-hitting game. Each club got seven and there was only one extra base blow.

Sweetwater downed San Angelo 9-7 despite three Colt homers—two by Wayne Wallace and one by Johnny Tayan.

Roswell beat Ballinger 4-2. Sam Pfler pitched two-hit ball until the ninth when Ray Drake relieved him and put out a Ballinger fire.

FORMER MILITARY GOVERNOR

Korea Reds Well Equipped By U.-S. Lend-Lease, Texan Says

Associated Press Staff
A Texan who was a military governor in Southern Korea during the U. S. occupation says the northern Korean Communist army was well equipped with American lend-lease equipment sent to Russia. He is Robert L. Bell of Amarillo, who was with the occupation forces in Southern Korea in 1945 and 1946.

"We felt like we were sitting on a keg of dynamite the entire time we were on Korea," Bell told the Amarillo Globe in an interview. "By 1946 the Russians had pounded together an army of 10,000. Korea was divided into two zones. The zone in the Russian zone had also been given military training. The northern army was well equipped with American lend-lease equipment sent to Russia. We saw American equipment everywhere."

Bell, a captain, was military governor of the 54th headquarters sector, an area overrun by the northern Communists in their initial surge southward last week. On trips through the Russian zone of Korea, Bell said he saw line upon line of Russian fighter planes at Russian air bases. But soon the Russians cracked down on official visitors to their zone.

"They didn't want us to see what was going on," said the Amarillo man. When Bell first went to Korea, in 1945, he was public safety officer for the 54th Military Headquarters Co. stationed in the five districts lying between the Russian occupation sector on the north and the U. S. sector on the south. He set up a police force to bring law and order in the American section and also to handle the Communist raiders that were already infiltrating across the dividing line.

The American force supplied instruction and officers in an attempt to get a southern zone army on its feet. Bell said it simply wanted to start them and let them build their own army.

But the Russians drafted every available man in an effort to mold an effective, highly-trained force. They were hiding their time, confident that their well-trained force could bring off the key move in the cold war easily after the occupation forces withdrew, Bell said.

"The southern Koreans alone could not stop the northern invasion," Bell declared.

Fires Rage Through California; Little Danger Of Loss Of Life

SAN FRANCISCO, July 4. — Scattered forest and brush fires raged today from one end of summer-dry California to the other. But there apparently was little danger of loss of life.

The most dangerous of the fires appeared to be in the Big Basin area about 75 miles south of San Francisco.

Near Santa Cruz, in the California "Big Basin" Redwood Park on the Pacific Coast side of Central California, more than 100 men—using bulldozers—were fighting to confine a potentially dangerous 50-acre blaze.

Thousands of holiday campers and visitors were ordered to evacuate the region. Only about 50 acres burned over but the blaze was in a remote timberland.

In Los Padres National Forest in San Luis Obispo County in the southern part of the state, with 2,000 acres burned over, 175 fire-fighters were trying to control the unchecked fire. No buildings or homes are in the area.

The most dangerous of the fires appeared to be in the Big Basin area about 75 miles south of San Francisco.

On the east side of Mt. San Geronimo in San Bernardino County also in Southern California, already 5,500 acres are burned over, with 300 fire fighters, including 80 state prisoners, battling the flames.

Both the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen and the Order of Railway Conductors have set July 15 as their strike date, but some observers believe it would have to be postponed unless the switchmen come to terms before then.

In the Six Rivers National Forest in Del Norte County, 110 miles northeast of Eureka, a Northern California coastal port. More than 200 acres of Douglas fir and pine were reported burned with 100 men trying to fight the fire with only one accessible road through the rough terrain.

THE Declaration of Independence

Bold in design was the action taken by our founding Fathers on that unforgettable Fourth of July, when the Declaration of Independence proclaimed the birth of our nation. That was 174 years ago. Today we celebrate July Fourth as Independence Day, not only to honor those who so courageously fought that we might be free, but also to proudly proclaim our determination to keep our freedom.
