IN TECHNOCRACY'S CIVIL WAR

Revolt split the ranks of the technocrats and Howard Scott (left), self-styled "director of technocracy," and his supporters were ousted from Columbia university. Scott said the research activities of technocracy would continue in new quarters. Prof. Walter Rautenstrauch (right) of the Columbia industrial engineering department is head of the group that parted with Scott. Rautenstrauch said he and his associates were going ahead with their own survey at the university but not under the name "technocracy." (Associated Press Photos) the, the agile men of money, these are the ones who make a killing in a time of inflation. They know what to do. They know how to play the game, and they are the only ones who stand a real chance of profiting.

If Mr. Wheeler doubts that, let him look at the movements in the international money markets produced during the past few days by the mere talk of currency devaluation. It has already produced a little speculative bubble, and who is profiting by it? The farmers? Not on your life. The speculators in foreign exchange in New York, London, Paris, Amsterdam. If mere talk can produce a commotion, let him imagine the speculation if there were any real danger that Congress and the new administration were actually going to debase the currency.

The alternative to debasement of the currency is the expansion of credit and the readjustment of un-supportable fixed obligations. This policy is based on the belief that if credit, which is the chief part of our money supply is kept very cheap, if fixed obligations are scaled down where it is necessary to do so, the moment will arrive, as it has in all past devaluations, when with a restoration of confidence the available credit will be taken by reorganized producers and a rise of prices and a revival of activity brought about. There are innumerable reasons for believing that the country is at that point, and that the combined effect of confidence in the purposes of the new administration and the readjustment of certain classes of fixed obligations would inaugurate recovery.

This view is not, as it is sometimes said, the hard money policy of a creditor class. This policy presupposes and requires the reduction of many debts, of many mortgages, of many bonds, of many obligations. The policy does not call for compulsion upon the farmer to pay his mortgage or lose his farm. On the contrary it calls for compulsion upon the mortgage holder to reduce his claim and where necessary, to withhold it for the time being. It differs from the policy of debasement in that it calls for practical readjustment of a whole class of obligations instead of a wholesale overturning of all the millions of varied obligations which, in our highly developed society, we have towards one another.

Austin's Great Industry

The Austin Statesman welcomes the return of the state capital of an industry with a payroll of $4,000 a day, employing more than 400 persons. The present "run" will last at least 120 days, which will run into real money—just shy of half a million dollars to be exact. As most of this money will be spent in Austin it is small wonder the Statesman is pleased.

The industry, of course, is the legislature of Texas. It has 181 members drawing $10 per day apiece. It has more than 200 employees drawing from two to five dollars per day.

CUTS YOUR "COLDS-TAX"

TODAY and TOMORROW

By WALTER LIPPMANN
Debtors and Creditors

In the course of the debate on silver and gold, Senator Reed of Pennsylvania denounced the proposals of Senators Wheeler, Long, and Connally as "stealing from one class to help another." This is quite misleading. It conveys the impression that the argument about debasing the currency arises from a conflict between two classes in American society and that one class can gain what the other loses. The theory is that the American people are divided into two classes, debtors and creditors, that the debtors need a cheaper dollar to pay their debts and that the creditors like an expensive dollar in order to profiteer on their investments. The discussion is frequently carried on in this form even by economists, but the truth is that such a dividing line between two classes can not be drawn. It is an abstraction, useful for certain kinds of theoretical analysis, but as a picture of the actual position and interests of the American people it is grossly untrue.

In the theoretical discussions are points is always made that any one who has to meet a fixed obligation would gain by a cheaper dollar and that any one who receives a fixed obligation gains by a dearer dollar. That is obviously true. But what are fixed obligations? Well, there are mortgages on land which are a fixed obligation of the owner. There are savings bank deposits which are a fixed obligation of the bank. There are insurance policies which are a fixed obligation of the insurance company. There are railroad and utility and for any length of time suddenly decided to go back to work, giving employment to 400 men and women, that would be good news," the Statesman remarks.

Probably Austin welcomed the defeat of the proposed salary reduction movement in the two branches of the legislature. Cutting each member's pay $2 per day would mean $263 daily reduction in the legislative payroll, consequently $362 less money to be spent in Austin.

W. B. Collie, new senator voting for a pay cut for members, said: "I am for reduction of all governmental salaries, including those of members of both houses of the legislature, and I believe the law contemplates, if it does not require, that the pay of members of both houses shall be uniform." A majority of Mr. Collie's fellow-senators agreed with him, but the house refused to concur.

Miss Georgia Owen Wed To Walter Bell

Ceremony Held Saturday Evening At Home Of Bride

Miss Georgia Owen and Mr. Walter Bell were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Owen Saturday evening at 8 o'clock. The Rev. D. R. Lindley, pastor of the First Christian Church, performed the beautiful and impressive ring ceremony in the presence of relatives and a few intimate friends.

The bride was attractively gowned in a powder blue costume with white accessories. She carried an arm bouquet of pink carnations. For something old she wore an old gold ring that her mother had owned in her girlhood.

The groom is the son of Mr. H. Squires. He has made this his home for the past eight years, having attended school in Brownwood and in this city. For the past five years he has been in the employ of the T. & P. railroad. He is a popular young man with a promising future.

Immediately after the wedding the guests were ushered into the dining room where the table was attractively decorated with pink carnations, candles and crystal. The bride's cake was cut and served with punch. After registering in the bride's book, the guests enjoyed Mr. and Mrs. Bell to the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Creath for an informal reception, where the newly-weds found many of their friends.

After receiving congratulations and being showered with rice, the young couple joined in the games and music that was the diversion of the evening.

Hot chocolate and cake were served to the following: Mr. and Mrs. Bell; Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Bell, Mrs. George Owen; Misses Mattie Martin, Mary Alice Leslie, Inna Deason, Pauline Hart, Ruth Dodson, Flora Bell Williamson, Helen and Mildred Creath; Messrs. Ben Allen, Joe John Gilmer, D. R. Lind-

How, then, is it possible to separate the American people into two distinct classes and say here are the debtors and there are the creditors? The distinction does not exist because the debtor-creditor relationship is so complicated that almost every person is both debtor and creditor many times over.

This is the reason why any effort by a government to change the relation between debtor and creditor at one stroke is bound to produce profound injustice and incalculable confusion. Mr. Wheeler wishes to free the farm groaning under its mortgage debt. Does he by the same stroke of the pen wish to free the banker from his obligation to repay the depositor? Does he wish to free the light and power companies of their bonded indebtedness, and to present the properties to the stockholders in fee simple? Does he wish to cut the salaries of teachers, the pensions of wounded veterans and the income of old people who have retired to live on their savings? I am sure he does not. Yet this is the inevitable and demonstrated effect of any wholesale debasement of the currency. Just because the measure is wholesale it produces infinite injustices in detail.

If Mr. Wheeler will study the consequences of wholesale debasement of currency, and there are plenty of examples of it in our own history and in the history of other countries, he will find that the real sufferers are the most defenseless people and that those who profit are the shrewd speculators. When a currency inflation gets under way the ordinary man, the small farmer, the man with a few savings, the wage-earner, the small business man, finds himself utterly bewildered as to what to do. He does not know how to take advantage of a widely fluctuating currency. He does not know whether to buy or sell, whether to keep his money or invest it. It requires a very expert knowledge of international finance to manage one's affairs when the currency is upset. But the shrewd speculators, the big fellows who can command expert ad-

Things look different in COLD BLACK TYPE

"I HEAR," said the friend, "that you have just made $50,000 in the insurance business."

"Right—except for one or two slight particulars. It was real estate—not insurance. It was $75,000, not $50,000. And I didn't make it—I lost it!"

Has it ever happened to you that something you've told an acquaintance comes back, after many days, so distorted that you hardly recognize it? The spoken word so changes and colors much that we say, that by the time it passes many lips only the skeleton of truth remains.

But how different it is with the printed word! That is why you can trust the advertisements. Had you thought of it that way? Because the manufacturer and merchant are compelled to be accurate in type, you know that the quality of soap, ginger ale, clothing, butter or furniture you buy is as standardized as the calendar. It's all the manufacturer and retailer claim for it. It has to be!

Read the advertisements. Read them carefully, critically. Read them for profit! Read them knowing that the truth pays . . . you and the advertiser!

SPOTLIGHT

CHAPTER XVIII

In spite of all her protests Sheila was to need money before the rehearsal period was over and the play ready for the road. She needed it to buy clothes, for one thing—nice reversible traveling frocks and shoes. Sheila thoroughly disliked the cheap, high-heeled pumps the fringed chorus girls wore on the road, their silk dresses and bargain basement coats. The fact that the girls couldn't afford better didn't change matters. They could have bought better things for the same price. They hadn't learned such things just as Sheila had learned them. Instead they laughed at the trim, tweed-suited girls they saw getting into roadsters in small towns, laughed at their sport shoes, the plain, expensive traveling frocks they encountered now and then in dining cars.

Those girls in tweed suits were to Sheila the most enviable creatures in the world. She meant to show these numbers of small town stercority that she, too, knew how to dress. Perhaps some day she could live the life they lived, have a home, a lawn, flowers and her trunk and suitcase out of sight in the attic.

How Sheila hoped that some day she might buy something without wondering what to do with it when she packed. Sheila needed money, too, to pay Ma Lowell. Of course, Ma would be willing, if she asked her, to let that real bill wait. With a daughter of her own recently married out of the "Fruivolities" Ma knew all about the difficulties of stage life.

The daughter, as a matter of fact, had not married well. Doris's husband worked at something or other in the Village. Now and then Doris worked, too, acting as cashier in an art store of restaurant. Oh, there was no doubt that Ma Lowell had a soft place in her heart for girls trying to make their way in the show business. That softness would provide Sheila with a roof over her head but there were other expenses.

One of these was food. Sheila thought anxiously that she should not have turned Dick down so definitely. His luncheon and dinner invitations had been a tremendous help. Of course it wasn't really fair to put it that way. Dick, when he went to dinner with Dick because she enjoyed being with him. To "sing for one's supper," as the girls called being agreeable to a dinner companion because one needed food, was one thing. To dine with Dick because she liked him was another.

Of course there was Jim Blaine. Frequently she dined with him. There were one or two others who called her occasionally. With two invitations from Dick, two from Jim and possibly one or two each week Sheila had managed fairly well. Breakfasts were inoperative and she never ate lunch. It was horrid to reckon on in such a way but lots of girls did it. They had to.

Jim was making a hit in "When Lights Are Low." He had given Sheila tickets and she had taken Ma Lowell to see the play. Ma had enjoyed it. It was seldom she obtained passes except to vaudeville houses for most of the men and women who patronized the rooming houses were in vaudeville. Once they had attained the heights of a Broadway engagement they were ready to move. Ma liked vaudeville or the pictures best but she wanted to take a look at "Sheila's young man." In Ma's fond imaginings it was Jim, not Dick, who held first place in the girl's heart.

"These play writing young men!" Ma would sniff whenever Dick's name entered the conversation. "No good—any of them! Always behind in their rent, burning the lights all night, starving themselves or else moving off in a limousine too big to even speak to a person! They're all alike!" Frequently Sheila saw Jim on Sundays when they would drive out on Long Island. The play closed at 11 each night and Sheila disliked late parties. Sunday un-rushed, calm and deliberate, was their day.

They would take a lunch and drive out along the green Long Island roads, lined with streams and ponds and waddling white ducks. "There's the little house Glenna Grayson built for her mother to keep her out of Hollywood," Jim remarked one day, motioning toward a house not far from the road.

"But mothers are in fashion in Hollywood now." "Yes, mothers of the duchess type. Glenna's mother isn't like that. We stopped there once to inquire about the road and spoke to Mrs. Grayson. Thought she was the cook! She's a nice old lady, though. And she looked comfortable in her cotton dress and house slippers, sitting in a rocker out in the yard."

Sheila laughed. It was fun to be with Jim. It was less of a strain talking to him than to Dick. There was one subject that came between them, though. Jim was a success. Not only did he have a job but he was receiving $250 weekly. Jim was making good and not a struggler like herself.

"I want you to meet my mother some day soon," he told her soberly. They were seated beneath a tree near Long Island Sound. The splash-splash of the water reached them and they could see the creaming of the breakers. The air held a faint salt tang. Sheila looked dreamily toward a white sail far out on the horizon. "I'd love to," she said. "I'd love to meet you," Jim's voice was hushed. "I've told her about you. She is at Montauk Point just now. I wonder if you'd care to drive down with me next Sunday?"

He looked at her steadily but Sheila, still gazing seaward, was unconscious of his scrutiny. Jim wondered if this girl knew what was in his mind—what meeting his mother meant. He wouldn't introduce every girl to his mother. He threw himself on the soft pine needles, at her feet and, raising on one elbow, refilled his pipe.

"What did you think of Tillie Lee when you dropped in on the show?" "What could I think of her—since she is my successor?" Sheila laughed a little unsteadily. "I think she isn't too good-looking to suit Marion Randolph. Oh, I don't mean I'm such a beauty! Heavens, no! But I can dance and I can put over a song—better than Tillie Lee anyhow. Marion Randolph would rather have her in the company. She didn't like me."

"But, Sheila, that's rotten luck. I think it's the limit that you have to go with a road show. Just because a catty, jealous—"

Sheila held up a warning finger. She was grateful for Jim's loyalty but he was being reckless. "Be careful who hears you say such things," she cautioned. "Marion Randolph can cost you your job just as she did mine."

"What makes you think so?" "Because I know! Don't ever say anything critical of Marion in the hearing of any member of the company. In the first place, it can't help me. In the second, whether you think so or no, it can harm you. You never can tell what obscure chorus man is headed straight for her apartment with a lot of backstage gossip."

"She's better not try to monkey with my job," Jim said, his eyes narrowing. "Why, only last night—" "What about last night?" "She invited me to a party. I didn't go."

"You didn't?" Sheila shook her head. "Oh, Jim, that was foolish! You shouldn't have done that!" And Sheila was right. At that very moment Marion Randolph was saying to the gentlemen whose money was behind the play in which she was starred, "Get me another leading man, honey. I don't think I like Jim Blaine." (To Be Continued)

AMERICANS USE MORE SOAP THAN ANY OTHER NATION

Americans use more soap than any other nation—they are more critical of the soap they buy—there is no physical effort and in the shortest time—still it must rise out freely and quickly.

That's some standard; a standard which the White King Soap Company constantly keep before them in making their White King Granulated Soap.

White Leghorn Hen in Fairview Community Goes in For Large Eggs

Jack Reed of Fairview community has a White Leghorn hen that believes in mass production. The hen of the N. Johnson strain, is not satisfied with laying the kind of eggs that call for two friends at a "setting." She lays eggs large enough to satisfy the ordinary appetite with one only.

Reed, in town Saturday, displayed an egg from this hen which was three inches long, 6 3/4 inches in circumference, and 7 3/4 inches around the ends. He said that the hen lays several each week that are considerably larger than the average egg.

after March 4.

The only question is whether opponents of the scheme can raise enough of a rumpus to stop it.

The way the Roosevelt board of best minds works with the President-elect is something entirely new in politics.

They do their thinking about the issues for weeks. Then he assembles them either singly or in groups. They air their views freely. He drinks it all in, memorizes amazingly, says "Yes, yes," and then does what he pleases.

He lets them do the preliminary thinking for him. He makes the decisions.

That "Yes, yes" trait of the President-elect is probably the background of some ill-founded rumors you are hearing about Muscle Shoals.

The strongest inner pressure is being exerted on him to get him away from the Norris Bill for optional government operation of that power project. Men come to him apparently to talk on other subjects only to slip in an objection to government operation. He has told some of them "Yes, yes" but it does not mean anything.

There is every fundamental reason to believe he will espouse the Norris Bill in his inaugural address. The endorsement may even go so far as to call for government ownership of the transmission lines.

That will give the power companies something to think about.

Mr. Hoover is paying off political favors and making new political friends by sending up to the Senate thousands of nominations for public office when he knows they can not be confirmed.

No nominations have been or will be confirmed this session. The Democrats have served such notice and Republicans can do nothing about it. Yet the stream of new names for postmasterships that are not available continues to pour in to the senate from the White House.

The strategy is probably helping Mr. Hoover and Postmaster General Walter Brown to keep a closer hand on the party personnel.

Beer

The 3.05 per cent beer content idea came from Senator Dill. He got it out of the British tax law. They tax beer of more than that amount of alcohol content.

Sweden taxes everything above 3.5 per cent, figuring that as the point of intoxication.

The House bill split the difference at 3.2 per cent which probably is about right.

Notes

One argument that is to be used strongly against inflation is that probably eleven billions of refunding may be done this year.

About six billion in Liberties come up in October; three billion of short terms must be rehandled and two billion of another batch of Liberties are due March 15.

The banks may be able to dictate to the government on inflation with that much refinancing coming up.

Senator Norris was planning to make a speech against those who had held up his Lame Duck amendment for so long. He called it off recollecting that they were all dead, Presidents Harding and Coolidge and former Speaker of the House Nicholas Longworth.

Democratic congressmen are sobbing because Senator McKellar secured publication of all the civil service jobs now open.

It means that all applicants know now just what jobs are open and there can be no fooling about it.

SAVE INTEREST AND PENALTIES ON CITY TAXES NOW AND SAVE INTEREST AND PENALTY—adv.

Spring for All Make Cars Genuine Buick-Pontiac-Oakland Paris and Service Phillips Super Service Ph. 37 3rd & Goliad

(Better known as Phillip Kerr), Right hand man of Lloyd George during the Versailles Peace Conference, he has long played a prominent role in British and International affairs. As an unofficial emissary on debt settlement questions he will be top news in due course.

Britain

There is a deep aura of mystery around Britain's gold transactions with this country. Twenty-five million dollars out of the 98 set aside in London for the Federal Reserve bank in payment of the British debt installment has already been reclaimed from English sources. Also there have been no less than six earmarkings of local Federal Reserve gold for foreign account in the past few weeks. The Federal Reserve has gone to great pains to conceal the identity of the earmark, which is also England.

The question as to where Britain gets the funds to buy this gold and what she wants with it are met with profound silence in official quarters. The answer to the first question is either:

(a) Britain was kidding us about her straitened financial condition, or

(b) She has obtained a sizeable open account loan from private bankers here. Private banking sources who know the answer are significantly silent.

As to why England wants the gold it is known that powerful interests in Britain are dissatisfied with the climb of the pound and will do all they can to push it down again. Therefore if England gets the sterling now and has the gold to buy it back again at lower levels she can roll up a sweet profit.

Banks

Several New York banks have found England a suitable field for the investments that they can not or will not make at home. They have bought healthy quantities of short term sterling maturities and have coupled these transactions with the sale of sterling for delivery of the maturity date at the prevailing current price. This way they are protected against trying to change fluctuations and can collect in full on the principal and interest of their investments.

The credit inflation program via excess reserves looks more and more like a bust. Loans and investments in the New York district are still rising but these items outside New York have dropped now for four weeks in a row. Last week's deflation amount to 49 million dollars, of which 19 million in the Chicago district.

This is in line with Chicago Reserve bank policy. Relations between the Federal Reserve banks of the two biggest cities are becoming more and more strained.

Continued failures of interior banks still arouse no apprehension in New York except insofar as they may lead to renewed hoarding. The failures are explained in high quarters as partly due to a new joint policy of the R. C. C. and the Federal Reserve to let nature take its course instead of trying to save everything in sight. The harder-boiled banking element here is strongly in favor of weak sister elimination.

It is ironic that several of the more recent victims had their portfolios packed with defaulted foreign bonds, especially South American. These bonds were uncanceled on their present holders by loaded on the New York correspondents. New York itself has relatively few of them.

Trusts

Several large trust companies are paying undiminished dividends in spite of shrunken earnings because of future prospects. These companies have estate trusts lined up which they are counting on as a definite source of income within the next five or ten years. Life expectancy tables bear them out. Quite a few estates are still worth plenty to administrators even after the last three years.

Steel

U. S. Steel directors are concerned that a large amount of the Corporation's preferred stock is held by charitable and other institutions. Discontinuance of the dividend would bring unhappy repercussions.

Technocracy

The split in technocratic ranks which threw Howard Scott out of the Columbia group has been brewing for some time. Scott's personality has grated on his collaborators. Matters came to a head when Scott was billed for a nation-wide radio hookup and converted a swell opportunity into a terrible flop.

The two most respected advocates of Technocracy, Bassett Jones and F. L. Ackerman, were among the seceders. Their findings under a new name will get attention in high quarters. There may be a big row as to who owns the energy survey charts already completed. Scott has small chance of carrying his point.

Mrs. F. D. R.

A friend asked Mrs. Roosevelt why she gave herself the grueling labor of going personally through the two or three hundred letters in her daily mail. "Why" she said, "it's the only way I can feel that I am in touch with every part of the country. Many of those letters contain valuable information. There are hints and suggestions which could not be obtained otherwise." Her public spirit has led her to enter into many fields, and has brought down on her head much criticism from those who do not understand Mrs. Roosevelt's motives.

concerns. The name of the publication is "Bus Transportation."

Here is a pamphlet of 12 pages issued by the Texas Motor Transportation Association. It is entitled "Comparative Taxation of Railroads and Motor Vehicles in Texas." Figures are used to build up a case for the commercial trucks and buses, showing that they contributed alone in 1931 35-37 per cent of the total of the state highway fund, $2,711,625.60 to the available school fund and 16.32 per cent of all tax receipts for the state government from all sources for all purposes. During the year ending August 31, 1932.

Radio

R-K-O's troubles have focused wide attention on National Broadcasting. Things haven't been going so well lately. Altogether several hundred employees have been laid off.

High-up in the industry believe that the Hearst interests may soon become a factor in the situation. It has been known for months that after March 4th Hearst had plans for bigger and better radio facilities. He may now drop plans to expand his station WINS if he can get into NBC with its coast to coast network.

Allotment

Funny things are being planned on the Allotment Farm Bill. The opposition lobby is strongly at work. An effort to wreck it will be made by some lukewarm friends of the bill. No haste is to be shown in the senate where Republicans are still in control. It is not their baby. Nevertheless the farm lobby seems to be strong enough to force favorable action before adjournment. That would only bring a presidential veto.

The bill is obviously doomed until the special session.

Second Class Of Tech Course Set For Friday

Twenty-five are now enrolled. Others may enlist now by making application to Mrs. Pauline C. Brigham, county superintendent.

PLEAS GUILTY

Genaro Lopez, Mexican, pleaded guilty in county court Saturday to a charge of theft and was fined $1 and sentenced to thirty days in jail.

Manchukuo

New York advices from Shanghai indicate our State Department may soon have a neat problem on its hands. American radio interests are at the moment making strenuous efforts to obtain a wireless monopoly from the new state of Manchukuo. German competition is cutting as close as a new razor blade.

The wily orientals are baiting the Americans along. They will be most happy to accommodate if the prospective concessionaires can do something at home about recognition.

Disarmament

The Germans have a surprised in store for the disarmament conference. With security uppermost in everybody's mind some of the smaller states are quietly preparing a resolution which would solemnly guarantee existing frontiers. The Germans are afraid that such a motion might be carried unanimously.

A rider will be offered exempting Germany's eastern frontier from any such declaration. It is quite possible that the whole conference may blow up on this point. No grief in that for the Germans because failure of the conference would enable them to proceed with their plans.

One-Variety Cotton Projects Planned For South Texans

CORPUS CHRISTI (UP).—One-variety cotton projects, designed as a crop improvement move, will be organized in several South Texas counties within the next few weeks.

County agents and agricultural teachers will sponsor formation of the new units along lines of organizations already operating throughout the cotton belt. Larger yield per acre, improvement of staple value and attraction of more buyers are expected results of the single variety program.

The variety to be grown in each county will be selected by representative farmers. Registered seed, purchased by all cooperating farmers, will be grown by a selected few during the first year. Seed from the crop will be distributed to organization members at a minimum cost for the more extensive second year planting.

Each year a tenth of the total cotton acreage of each county is to be planted in seed direct from breeders so that a pure strain may be perpetuated. Ginning of the selected variety in the first years will be done on days designated at gins so that the machinery will be free of foreign variety seed. Later it is proposed to heavy gins which will handle only the particular variety.

The South Texas Cotton Cooperative association cites several instances where farmers participating in one variety projects last season profited in marketing. Near Paris a group of farmers received $5.50 more per bale for cotton than other growers. At Itasca the one-variety program is credited with raising the market at least $2 a bale.

Growers around Gonzales will plant approximately 15,000 acres of an improved strain this year with seed saved from a 4,000-acre crop last year.

Grand Jury Opens New Deliberations

Under The Dome At Austin

By Gordon K. Shearer
United Press Staff Correspondent
AUSTIN (UP)—A. J. Johnson, Carrizo Springs, defeated candidate for speaker, led the fight resulting in amending the house rules as proposed by Speaker Coke Stevenson's rules committee. W. E. Pope was chairman of the committee.

The amendment goes half-way in establishing in the house the procedure outlined in the constitutional amendment under which a session of 120 days was authorized.

The change, as permitted by that amendment, limits the general introduction of bills to the first 45 days of the session. Thirty days was the limit set in the amendment, unless modified by four-fifths vote. The 45-day limit insures time for thorough consideration of the measures introduced.

Mrs. Sarah Hughes, representative from Dallas, in arguing over the house rules for this session told how Rep. Jack Keller of Dallas played a practical joke on the house and its rules.

The house had just passed the cigarette tax. The next day, despite a rule that a general bill could not be offered after the first 60 days of the session, which had expired,

Gets N. Y. U. Post

Keller got before the house a bill to repeal the cigarette tax. This is how he did it! Speaker Fred Minor had adopted the custom when a bill was offered after the 60-day period of asking if there was objection. If there was, it was put to a vote whether the bill should be accepted. House members, unwilling to protest against a bill until they knew what was in it, seldom objected.

When Keller offered his repeal bill nobody objected. He only wanted to show how foolish the house procedure was and did not push the repeal bill.

T. M. Yett, Jr., Marble Falls, nephew of former Mayor Yett of Austin, and senior in the University of Texas, is new house parliamentarian. His duties are to call balls and strikes on the parliamentary motions and efforts to gain the floor for speech.

Senators T. J. Holbrook, Galveston, and W. R. Poage, Waco, bluffed each other on French history in the debate over Governor Sterling's appointees for the board of education.

Poage was arguing that the past be forgotten.

"Wasn't it Louis Philippe's urgency that the past be wiped out that brought on the French revolution?" asked Holbrook.

"If I remember my history, Louis Philippe was long after the French revolution," replied Poage.

Both laughed and left the spectators to guess who was right.

Each was right but they were talking about different Louis Philippes.

State experiments in business are not always great successes, a report of the state efficiency committee says.

The committee calls attention to a dairy farm operated in connection with the state hospital at Austin. Its products were sold other institutions. This plan resulted in butter selling to institutions at 34 cents a pound whereas market quotations at the time were 15 cents a pound. One instance cited relates that a case of butter was delivered to an institution which could have that day bought butter at Carlsbad at the public market for 15 cents a pound.

The charge was a matter of bookkeeping, the committee reports, and resulted in the institution's farm showing a profit of $7,532.

"The price charged the institutions has been so far in excess of the market price for butter of similar quality," says the report, "that a large part of the apparent profit has been at the expense of the institution purchasers."

"It is possible that even at market prices the dairy might still show a profit, and it is quite probable that its existence has had a tendency to hold butter prices down at the institutions outside Austin.

Names do not mean much, according to the report of the same legislative committee.

Here are some citations from their report:

"There is an employe called 'psychiatric aide' drawing the salary of that position but actually working as a junior office clerk and typist."—Report on Wichita Falls state hospital.

"The dietician is not trained in dietetics."—Report on the same institution.

"The occupational therapy teacher was promoted to her present grade after 23 years in the state service as a matron, laundry worker and PEX operator, but claims neither high school education nor any training in occupational therapy."—Report on Terrell state hospital.

"The so-called 'trained nurses' do not even claim any training in nursing."—Report on Terrell state hospital.

Other instances of misleading titles, to quote the report, are: "attendants" serving as bandmaster, as cook, as store clerk, as seamstress; and an "assistant cook" serving as a painter.

The plumber in one institution was promoted from hallman and the butcher from yardman.

In one institution the report says, each physician is assigned twice as many patients as normally can be handled by one man, yet it is observed "none of the physicians is usefully occupied more than four or five hours a day."

Men and women attendants, at the same pay, work different hours in Abilene hospital, it was reported, due to observance of the law on hours of women to work.

Wild Files Suit For Back Salary As Oil Men's Leader

FORT WORTH—Claude C. Wild, executive vice president of the Independent Petroleum Association of Texas since 1930, has filed suit in 67th district court, here seeking judgment allegedly due from the association and 15 individuals. Wild came here as executive vice president when the association was formed. He was secretary-

Breck Outfit Beats Cosden Los Angeles Buys In Texas

Second Loss Of Cosden comes Unexpectedly Before Large Crowd

Second defeat of the season and the first before a home crowd descended on the classy Cosden Oilers Saturday evening in the high school gymnasium at the hands of the B.M.A. team of Breckenridge.

One of the largest crowds to witness an independent amateur function here this season saw the Oilers succumb unexpectedly to the loop leaders of the Breckenridge Y.M.C.A. league.

Minus the services of Skeet West, sharp shooter de luxe, during the first half, Cosden seemed lost and ended the period trailing 28-15. But with West inserted in the line-up, the locals reduced the B.M.A. lead to two points and seemed bent for another victory when time interceded.

West seemed the only Cosden man up to the mark. Oilers play Crane here Thursday and B.M.A. at Breckenridge Saturday.

Los Angeles Buys In Texas

Representative Of Chamber Of Commerce Visits Big Spring

Los Angeles County, California, is purchasing $5,000,000 worth of Texas products annually, according to James F. Bone, Domestic Trade Commissioner for the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, who was in the city Saturday interviewing merchants, newspaper men and bankers. He said records of the United States Department of Agriculture and transportation companies show that Los Angeles is the greatest western consumer of Texas cattle, cotton, sulphur, poultry, carbon black and hogs.

Los Angeles is checking up on its trade relations with the trading centers of Texas and seeks to exchange the manufactured products of its factories for the raw materials of the Lone Star State, according to Mr. Bone who will visit Big Spring during the next few weeks.

"We are interested in developing a greater reciprocal flow of goods between Texas and Los Angeles in order that your producers and our manufacturers can increase their incomes," he said. "For as Los Angeles grows and our factories expand, we will become a greater outlet for Texas' products. We make many products not made here and we want your wholesalers and merchants to work with us in developing the Southwest area through the exchange of each other's products."

"Satisfactory business relationships between your buyers and our manufacturers have been developed in recent years and we want to further cement those friendships." While he is in the city Mr. Bone can be reached through the Chamber of Commerce.

manager of the San Angelo Board of City Development immediately prior to that.

The petition filed here alleges the 15 individuals named signed a contract with Wild guaranteeing payment of $10,000 in salary from March 1, 1931, to March 1, 1932. Those named as signers are: Mel Davis, Pampa; Tom E. Cranfill, Dallas; B. F. Keeley, George Calvert and C. L. Morgan, Fort Worth; C. L. Witherpoon, Harry Pennington and R. F. Schoolfield, San Antonio; Jos Edwards, Rupert P. Ricker and B. F. Robbins, Big Spring; R. L. Cannon, San Angelo; H. P. Evans, Brownwood; J. T. Anderson, Eastland; and R. G. Fleming, Albany.

Wild alleges that the 15 individuals signed a contract guaranteeing him $10,000 for services as executive vice president of the Independent Petroleum Association of Texas and that only $4,700 has been paid.

The complaint further alleges that he has made repeated attempts to obtain the $5,300, and that his requests for payment have been refused.
