A monetary inflation brought on because the government's deficit is not c vered by revenues or normal borrowing is in essence a tax on money. When those who have money are unwilling to lend it to the government or are unwilling to spend it so that taxes accrue or when the government is too weak politically to reduce its expenditures or to raise ordinary taxes, it resorts to a form of hidden taxation by increasing the currency. What it is doing, then, is to dilute the money which people hold. The amount which the money depreciates is the amount of the hidden tax. As a result it becomes increasingly expensive to hold money, to hoard it or to let it lie unused.

The clear conclusion is that the concentration of authority in the concentration of authority whole resident is the heart of it whole situation. The question of where to stream of every human being in the United States. It can not be decided by the pressure of minorities, by debates in Congress, by compromises among the competing interests of debtors and congress, by compromises among the competing interests of debtors and congress, by compromises among the competing interests of debtors and congress, by compromises among the competing interests of debtors and congress, by compromises among the competing interests of debtors and congress, by compromises among the competing interests of debtors and congress, by compromises among the competing interests of debtors and congress, by compromises among the competing interests of debtors and congress, by compromises among the competing interests

Therefore, people begin to see that they can best preserve their wealth by converting it from money into property. This is the exact reverse of the process which has been going on for three years, when most people have been trying to convert property into money. As people begin to convert money into property they begin to bid for property and prices rise. As pri-ces rise, since people do not wish to hold the profits in money, they reinvest in property. Thus the inflationary spiral is set in motion.

Now it tis plain that having gone down to the bottom through the deflationary spiral when nearly ev-

The field at present is operating under a maximum production of 290,000 barrels daily.

The new production regulation is based on bottom-hole pressure, sand permeability and porosity reflecting the capacity of a well to produce and sand thickness. One third of the allowable was allocated to the well, one-third to bottom and the well, one-third to bottom.

The funeral service was held from the residence at 10 o'clock with Rev. W. C. Ashford, Baptist minister of Abliene and a former pastor here, officiating. Interment will be made in the Odd Fellows cemetery beside the grave of Judge Smith, who died in 1908.

Tinkling bells, and the clink of

In a Chinese fairy story one reads about the Emperor's garden, where rare and colorful plants from all over the world were constantly flowering.

It was the duty of the honorable head gardener to watch for the most beautiful of the blooms and tie to the stem of each a little silver bell. As the flowers swayed in the breeze, the bells tinkled with sweet music. Thus the courtiers and the distinguished visitors, strollng along the paths, were sure to see the finest specimens.

This was the Emperor's way of saying "I have something extra fine that you should see: look this way and you'll be repaid."

In the advertising columns of this paper are similar messages addressed to YOU. Read them and you will hear the clink of silver. Our merchants are saying, "We have some extra values. We have some especially seasonable articles that you should see. Come to our store and you will be repaid."

You have nothing to lose when you accept this invitation. In fact, when you fail to do so, you're missing some of the very news for which you bought this paper!
