KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UP)—More than 77 per cent of all war veterans receiving treatment at government hospitals are suffering from ailments in no way traceable to their war service, the Shannon congressional investigating committee was told today.
Dr. E. H. Skinner, testifying at a resumption of the inquiry into government competition with private business, offered the committee figures to show, in treating non-service disabilities of veterans, the government is competing with the medical profession and with private hospitals.
The physician, who lives in Kansas City, appeared as a representative of the Jackson county, Mo., medical society.
Dr. Skinner was the first witness called Thursday before Representative Joseph B. Shannon, Democrat, Missouri, who introduced the congressional resolution providing for the investigation.
Prepared statistics read by Dr. Skinner showed the percentage of non-service cases treated in veteran's hospitals in 1925 was 72.94 per cent, while in 1931 it had increased to 77.9 per cent.
"Why, he demanded, 'give the prosperous ex-soldier free hospitalization and free medical attention? It would be as logical to give him free automobiles and free groceries as well.
"Prosperous veterans are being treated in government hospitals for civilian diseases only."
The physician said the widow of a soldier killed in action received only $39 a month, but a former soldier who served only a short time in a training camp and incurred a disability after he left the service could receive a considerable large amount.
A hospital here, he said, recently was closed for lack of patients, while 50 per cent of all hospital beds in Kansas City are vacant.
Dr. Jabez N. Jackson of Kansas City, appearing as a representative of the American Medical association, asserted the medical profession had contributed heavily to the war.
David A. Murphy attorney representing two local hospitals, said the plight of the hospitals as "desperate."
Representative of the American Legion, the disabled American veterans, and the veterans of foreign wars were scheduled to appear late Thursday to answer the testimony of the physicians.

Brotherhood At Houston For Sterling Governor's Record Toward Railroad Men Is Commended

Several local members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen have received a letter from I. B. Arnold, chairman of the lodge at that order at Houston, in which it is urged that railroad men vote for Governor Ross Sterling.
The letter follows:
Houston, Texas, August 1, 1932.
—Mr. F. G. Sholto, Dear Sir and Brother: No doubt you are interested in who will be your governor for the next two years. The following information, I believe, should be of vital interest to you and to all members of our organization.
R. S. Sterling was chairman of the board of control of the Port Terminal Railway here in Houston at the time the railroad was put in operation July, 1924. We employees were refused the right to organize on the property by the railroad officials. Our chairman, M. S. Jennings handled this matter with Mr. Sterling and through Mr. Sterling we were allowed to organize and were given a standard contract signed by Mr. Sterling himself.
Later we had some trouble with violations of our contract and were refused any back pay for the 1927 award. At that time the writer was elected chairman and called on Mr. Sterling about the matter. He immediately stopped the working agreement violations and ordered the railroads to pay the back wages due our men.
We railroad men who know the governor and his labor record here are going to support him in the runoff, and in view of the above facts we are asking you to vote for Governor Sterling in the second primary and to make these facts generally known at every opportunity. Yours truly,
I. B. ARNOLD,
Chairman R. M. L. F. & E. P. T.
Ra. No. 932.

Stock Prices Hiked Again; Cotton Is Up

NEW YORK (UP)—Prices of securities continued to rise on the American market Friday. Stock exchange shares scored substantial advances, many leaders rising two to seven dollars in active trading. Cotton and other staples joined the rise.
Brokerage houses reported public interest in the market was increased substantially, some calling back employees given extended payless vacations weeks ago.
BY ELMER C. WAZER,
United Press Financial Editor

NEW YORK (UP)—Wall Street was treated to its first 3,000,000 share day of the year Thursday—another installment in the baby bull movement that has been in progress since July 9.
Increased popular interest in the gathering boom brought in a horde of buying orders and for a time tickers ran four minutes behind trading and it was necessary to abbreviate quotations to keep pace.
Rising tendencies were in evidence until shortly after noon. Up to that time the active stocks had risen 1 to 5 points and the less active 1 to 18 points.
Trading ran at a 3,000,000 share pace in the first half hour but by noon only 2,000,000 shares had turned over. By 1:30 the total reached 2,900,000 shares and by 2:10 had reached 2,900,000 shares and by 2:10 the 3,000,000 share mark was crossed in the heaviest turnover since October 6, 1931.
The late selling reduced gains considerably, but most prices were still above the previous closing levels except in the railroad group where net losses predominated. Utilities also slipped off.
The feature of the day was American Telephone and Telegraph's ascent to above par. It reached 100 1/8 where it was up 3 7/8 points.
Steel common at its high for the day was at 3 1/4, up 2 3/8 from the previous close; Allied Chemical 68 3/8, up 4 7/8; American Can 46 1/4, up 3 7/8; Atchafalpa 37 1/4, up 2 1/8; Union Pacific 53 5/8, up 4 1/8; Coca Cola 94 1/2, up 4 3/4 and Standard of New Jersey 33 1/2, up 2. These gains were cut down in the afternoon reaction, but in the last few minutes pressure lifted, and several advanced from the day's lows.

Shift Of Wind Saves Village

MARQUETTE, Mich. (UP)—A shift of wind apparently saved the village of Sazola from destruction Friday after it was menaced hours by flames which destroyed twenty million feet of lumber with a loss estimated at close to a half million dollars.
Most of the 350 residents moved their belongings from their dwellings. The highways were strewn with household goods. The fire, which is still burning, came within a hundred and fifty feet of the town.
The night boss took charge of the defense. He put some of the men to work making bombs out of dynamite. We threw those at snipers who tried to crawl in close and take potshots at us.
The worst time came at night. Then you couldn't tell how close the pickets had worked in. We'd fire a round or two just at random to scare them off.

Man Recovering From Injuries

Both were standing near the engine which was used to pump water from a well near the Johnson residence when it back-fired and exploded with a terrific roar. The two victims were picked up 20 feet from the engine base. Johnson, an oil field worker, was unconscious when removed to the hospital. He suffered severe burns of the body and about the face. The body of the boy was shipped to Robeling for funeral services and burial.

8 Days, 25 P'und Tuppence, Two Engines Cost Of Trip for Britisher Going To Olympics

By FRANK H. BARTHOLOMEW,
United Press Staff Correspondent
LOS ANGELES (UP)—All the world records aren't being set at the Olympic stadium. One of them broke right outside the window of the United Press downtown bureau, setting a good precedent in handy places for news to happen.
Stepping out on the fire-escape, this writer showered congratulations and concrete-dust upon the modest head of Mr. Leonard O. Mosley, who had just arrived from London, England, by flivver and was even then parking at the curb.
The record set by Mr. Mosley was for the transcontinental low-cost, non-collapse flivver. His mark was 8 days, twenty five p'und tuppence and two engines.
Mr. Mosley lugged his empire portable typewriter, which was made in dear old Manchester and seems to have been modeled after the port side of the airplane carrier Lexington, up the stairs to the United Press Journalist.
He announced that he was a journalist (reporter to you, McGurk) had come out to do a column a day on the Olympic games for the Empire News of London, that he had almost been adopted against his will by a tribe of Indians en route, and that this certainly was an extraordinarily large country.
"I," said Mr. Mosley, as he set up his asserted typewriter at the cable desk, "sailed from London on May 28. Here I am."
Thereupon he broke out one of those sport jackets known as a striped-candy effect of the wildest colors extant.
"That's what got me into trouble with your American Indians," he commented casually, nodding his head toward the jacket.
Pressed for details, Mr. Mosley took his stance on the end of an interview seldom held by newspapermen.
"Don't ever wagger," he began.
"I did. I waggered a chappie in London twelve p'und against sixty that I could buy a car and drive across the states, from New York to Los Angeles, for less than the train fare.
"I was limited by the wagger to twenty p'und for a motor and ten for repairs. So I bought a flivver and took off into the Indian country, single handed and all that. 'Lone Jackrabbits,' what?
"His flivver cost me eighty dollars in New York, but I was cheated, because the engine fell out on a bridge leading into St. Louis. Clear out, I mean. Most astounding.
"I had a survey made of the situation, and the chappie asked me a hundred dollars for a new engine. Ridiculous, what? See my position—pay twenty dollars more for the engine than I'd paid for the whole bloomin' contrivance in the first place, and on top of that lose my sixty p'und but in London for exceeding my budget.
"So I went out to one of those dismantling plants—junk yards, eh?—and found an engine in the bottom of the pile that I bought for fifteen dollars. Then I made a deal with a laddie to put the engine in the chassis and button it up for another five dollars.
Beer
"After that I took part of the money I'd saved and bought a great deal of beer for Johnny Weismuller and Stubby Ruger, the Olympic diving champion, who were in St. Louis, but you can't print that, because of this prohibition amendment, what?
"Well, I drove all the way out to Los Angeles at over sixty miles an hour 'except' when I was captured by American Indians at Laguna, New Mexico."
Pressed to develop this theme, Mr. Mosley admitted that he had been wearing his super-biased across the map of the United States. It attracted the attention of an Indian buck in the New Mexico town.
"Ugh, war clothes, ugh!" said the buck, piloting uninvited into Mr. Mosley's motor. "You come my house."
Explaining to his auditors that he had heard about these scalping episodes, Mr. Mosley said he accepted the redskin's invitation with alacrity. His "house" proved to be a Hogan on the Ocamah reservation, 40 miles off the main highway.
"The jolly savages rallied around as soon as we arrived," Mr. Mosley continued, "pointing to my blazer with evident relief. They they all retired and put on their own quaint, colored costumes and had a big tribal dance all around me. I finally persuaded my guide to take a short ride with me during a lull in the ceremonies—I thought they might be sharpening the jolly tomahawks—and we drove forty miles back again to the main road.
"Then I explained, mostly by sign language, that he wanted to get out and for me to wait a moment. He stepped to the ground and I stepped my accelerator to the floor-panel, urging my powerful 15-horse motor to its very limit.
"I arrived in your city without mishap and, I say, can you chaps let me have some copy paper?"

WOMAN BLUEBEARD RELIEVED BY ARREST
TOPEKA, Kas. (UP)—Lyda Southard, alleged "woman bluebeard" accused of poisoning four of her five husbands for their insurance, appeared glad that she had been arrested and was through with hiding from the law.
She sat in her cell, dry-eyed and calm, and indicated she would make no effort to fight return to Idaho, where she escaped from the state penitentiary after serving ten years for poisoning Edward Meyer. Idaho officers were expected to arrive here Thursday.
Lyda Southard was 28, slender and attractive when she went on trial in Twin Falls, Idaho, in 1921, for the murder of Edward Meyer, her wealthy husband. She was timid, shabbily dressed and looked like a middle-aged woman when she was arrested here.
Mrs. Meyer was sentenced to 14 years to life imprisonment after being convicted of killing her husband, less than a month after their marriage.
The bodies of her three other husbands—Robert Trueblood of Keyterville, Mo.; Gordon McHaffie, son of a wealthy Tennessee farmer; and Harlan Lewis, a truck driver—were exhumed. All four showed traces of arsenic poison. It was learned that insurance on the four men amounted to $12,000.
Mrs. Dan McCoy and children, Dan, Dorothy, and Lois left Friday to visit friends and relatives in Abilene, Breckenridge and Graham. Dan will remain in Graham until school opens here.

Howard County Woman Reviews Annual Farmers' Short Course

How Neighbors Kept Their County Agents Discussed On Special Coach Enroute to College

BY MRS. CHES ANDERSON

Mrs. Bob Asbury and I were joined in the special car, to which delegates to the A. & M. Short Course were assigned, by a group of enthusiastic women from Sweetwater. They had won their trips by various achievements and by the time we had all talked over the county agent problem, how we lost our cars and how they had kept theirs and what could be done about it we felt as if we had been acquainted for years.

Cars were at the College Station depot to take us to the campus. Mrs. Asbury and I were fortunate in being assigned a room in Weston Hall, a new and beautiful building. The program opened Monday with a very inspiring welcoming address by Dr. T. O. Walton, H. G. Schumacher talked, the Hon. Pat M. Neff gave the most wonderful talk I have ever heard. The theme of his lecture was personality and he said among other things, "we are what we are and make the world in which we live."

Mrs. Cunningham when we found at the women's business meeting that we were not recognized and could have no vote because we had no county agent. I forgot and found myself voting once. The attendance was much greater than last year's and was a surprise even to the heads themgrandmother's kitchen and equipment, but also weaving, rug-making and dresses, in addition to the baking display.

The Key Demonstration Home was the highest type of a modern home. It contained a 4-H pantry, plenty of closet space. The furnishings were correctly arranged for comfort and ease. The furniture had been donated by firms all over the United States.

On Tuesday morning we heard the following lectures: "Organizing American Agriculture" by Ed O'Neal; "Texas Farm Bureau Serves Texas Farm People" by Mrs. Minnie S. Campbell; "Early Day Reminiscences" by Dr. A. W. Birdwell.

We felt badly Tuesday afternoon when we found at the women's business meeting that we were not recognized and could have no vote because we had no county agent. I forgot and found myself voting once. The attendance was much greater than last year's and was a surprise even to the heads them-

On Wednesday I particularly enjoyed a talk on standards regarding the sale of foods in Texas. It referred to fresh vegetables, canned goods and home-baked breads and cakes.

In the afternoon Miss Bea Heflin talked on "Need for Parental Education." It took an "old maid" to tell us how our children should be trained to make the best American citizens. But it was one of the most enjoyable lectures of the course.

That afternoon we attended the poultry lectures where I learned that sanitation is the prevention of occidiosis. Dr. Verne A. Scott was the lecturer. He ended his lecture with these words:

"Sanitation is the first thing in correcting external and internal diseases in chickens and turkeys."

On Thursday morning we went through the textile plant, the nursery and the veterinary building, spending an hour in each place. In the afternoon we went back to the Assembly Hall for another lecture on child training. It was fearfully hot and I was unable to stay for it all. Mrs. Asbury declared that it was the best lecture she had heard and took notes so she could give the gist of it to the Council.

Friday was devoted to wardrobe demonstrations. Seventy counties had displays and in these, 1000 closets were built and 2000 foundation patterns made. The winner of the first prize for dresses was given a Singer sewing machine. The winners of the second and third prizes received chests of silver.

In the evening entertainment was provided for the public at the stadium. The grand night was Thursday night when Miss Derryberry, formerly county home demonstration agent of Midland, was crowned queen. J. V. Bush, former Howard county agricultural agent was on the program one evening. One of the forms of entertainment was a rail splitting contest by the county agents and a stove-wood cutting contest by the home demonstration agents; it was a hilarious affair.

The daytime attendance of the short course was 2,500 and the night attendance averaged 5,000. Almost 1,000 more women attended this year than last.

I can't put on paper what this trip meant to me and I shall not be satisfied until every woman in Howard County who is interested in better and happier homes can attend one of these courses. Our club members must work hard to carry on the work. If we persist long and hard enough our county will someday give us back the one thing that was teaching the people to help themselves. I am going to do all I can to see that Howard County has more representatives at next year's meeting.

I want to thank everyone who made this trip possible for me and to ask every member of the Council to remember the meeting on Aug. 27 in the District Court room. Every woman in the county is invited to this meeting to hear the detailed reports of the Short Course.

JELLY SECRETS REVEALED BY RECENT PRIZE WINNER

MRS. SOPHIE EXLEY WINS FIRST PRIZE IN PHILADELPHIA CONTEST

Meet Mrs. Sophie Exley, champion jelly maker of Philadelphia. In a contest sponsored by a Philadelphia newspaper—one of a series of such competitions which is sweeping the country this summer just as mah jong did a few years back—Mrs. Exley was judged the town's best exponent of "grandmother's art."

Mrs. Exley, who lives at 435 Arlington street, is a jelly maker of twenty years' experience, yet her husband had to persuade her to enter the contest.

"You've been making fine jellies for twenty years," he said, "and you might win something."

She did a check for the first prize against scores of other first-rate jelly makers. The flavor of Mrs. Exley's jellies, in the opinion of the judges, was closer to the real, fresh fruit flavor than that of any other of the entrants. Mrs. Exley gave all the credit for the flavor to the bottled fruit pectin she used, and which cut the boiling time to a few seconds, thus capturing the fruit flavor before it all went up in steam.

When she was given the check for the first prize, Mrs. Exley said: "Well, this is certainly a welcome surprise! My husband has been out of employment for months. You can just bet this won't be spent foolishly. But just as important as the money to me is the fact that I discovered you can make even strawberry and cherry jelly. I'd never tried them before."

FIND ALL-BRAN HAS TWICE THE USABLE IRON IN LIVER
Also Furnishes "Bulk" and Vitamin B to Overcome Common Constipation
Liver is known as a good source of iron for the blood. Now, new tests show Kellogg's ALL-BRAN contains twice as much blood-building iron as an equal amount by weight of beef liver.
But more important still, laboratory experiments show ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to exercise the intestines, and Vitamin B to tone the intestinal tract.
This means Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is a fine way to overcome constipation—with the headaches, loss of appetite and energy that so frequently result.
The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is much like that of lettuce. Inside the body, it absorbs moisture, forming a soft mass, which gently clears the intestines of wastes. Special cooking processes make ALL-BRAN finer milder, more palatable.
How much better than flaking pills and drugs—so often habit-forming. Just eat two tablespoonsful of ALL-BRAN daily for most types of constipation. It is habit-forming. If your intestinal trouble is not relieved this way, see your doctor.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
MONA MORAN, receptionist in a Wall Street law office, goes with her childhood sweetheart, STEVE SACCARIELLO, popular supper resort, the Club Mona lives on a avenue, supports her in-laws father, mother, little sister, KITTY, and never-do-well brother, BUD.

Steve has been mysteriously absent from New York for three years. Now he appears well dressed and prosperous. With no thought of impropriety he has ordered a gown and wrap sent to Mona which after much indecision, she decides to wear.

At the office that day Mona has met BARRY TOWNSEND, rich and socially prominent, but refused to dine with him. LOTTIE CARR, a fashion model and friend of Mona's, is at the Haycom Club. She and her escort John Mona and Steve.

Bad Moran comes to the supper club to see BUCK HARRIS, the proprietor, who has underworld connections. Mona sees her brother and is frightened, fearing Bud is associating with gangsters.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER IX
 The dance ended as it had been threatening to do for several bars. It died away in a long, low wall of the violin as the violinist stood alone in the spotlight, eyes closed, shoulders swaying with the melody. Several couples, flushed and enjoying their own skill, danced on oblivious to the music's ending.

Steve and Mona left the floor and returned to their table. Mona's eyes were troubled but Steve's reassuring words rang in her ears. "I'll look out for Bud." In some way or other Mona knew that Steve would keep his word.

"I'll forget it," she thought to herself. "I won't spoil Steve's evening. Only I do hope it wasn't Bud I saw." It had been Bud, the girl's heart told her. She was sure of that. Her problem would have to be solved from that point.

"Steve will take care of everything," Mona argued with herself determinedly. Suddenly she found herself laughing. Her table was occupied.

Lottie, a vision in delicate pink chiffon, her carefully scalloped golden hair filling her head like a metallic cap, was seated there alone. Blue eyes, wide and ingenious, gave Lottie's delicately powdered face a look of startling innocence.

It seemed that her escort had made an abrupt departure. Lottie explained that he had been crabbing all evening. He had not been in the least entertaining and suddenly he had wanted Lottie to go somewhere else and hear the sad story of his life.

"Can you imagine it?" she demanded. "When there is so much fun right here! Oh, well, you know these college boys!"

"My dear, I know you," Steve Mona's inward thought. "Steve looks rather good to you—now that he has money!"

But Mona did not say all this. She reproached herself even for the thoughts, so derogatory to her friend. After all, Lottie was a friend and a true one.

Mona aroused herself from her meditations to hear Lottie treading on rather tactless territory. She was scolding Steve for not letting her know of his intended return to the metropolis.

"I'd have met you at Grand Central with a band!" she assured him.

Mona's face whitened. That remark could have but one connotation. Lottie's tone, the way she laughed over the words "Grand Central" was filled with innuendo. By Grand Central she meant that Steve had come from Sing Sing.

But Steve was not to be disturbed. He answered easily. "I didn't arrive at Grand Central station. My boat docked in Brooklyn early one Sunday morning while you were probably at church."

"So you're just a vagabond traveler!"

"Lottie, do hush!" Mona began. Lottie knew perfectly well that she was misbehaving. It was bad enough inviting herself to join them but to talk to Steve about—well things that certainly weren't true—was the limit!

Lottie apparently thought so, too. She changed the subject abruptly. "Do you mind if I stay a while?" she asked quietly. "Just for a dance or two? Then I'll go home."

"Glad to have you," Steve assured her. "I'm expecting a friend any minute now. We'll be a foursome."

"A friend!" Lottie exclaimed. "You wouldn't fool me, would you? Then I'll stay! I didn't work today," Lottie went on. "I mean not at the shop. I modeled at the Fashion Show. 'Pilgrim's Perfect Blend'! Yes, really. Last year I was Pilgrim's 'Dashing Debut' in little numbers from Patou and Chanel. Oh, well, I aim to please!"

"Where did you meet your friend, Mr. Parker?" Mona asked. The new escort was a hitherto unknown. Mona had neither seen nor heard of him, before. "At the Fashion Show," Lottie told them. "He was holding a dog for his mother. I had met him once before, so of course I had to promise him a dinner date."

Mona and Steve exchanged glances. That meant that Lottie had actually been absent from Pilgrim's during Steve's call and therefore knew nothing of the transaction.

Apparently Lottie had not recognized the gown. In this, however, Mona was wrong. Lottie had recognized it, but loyalty to her friend made her conceal the fact.

Another dance began. Its sinuous melody wound about the smoke blue, perfumed room intriguingly. Lottie raised her elbows shoulder high, her fingers pointed inward, wringing in time with the music. She rolled her eyes toward Steve without any particular meaning behind their frolicsome gaze. She hummed and swayed, singing beneath her breath so that the words were barely audible. There was a challenging twinkle in Lottie's eyes.

"Why don't you two dance?" Mona was about to suggest since Steve was falling completely to take his cue. At that moment Lottie began to improvise more daintily. Lottie was clever at such tricks but Mona was annoyed.

The amateur entertainer was, however, drowned out abruptly by a sudden change in the music. The lights dimmed and remained lower. Suddenly they turned a dazzling blue. The master of ceremonies, professionally alert and eager, sprang to the center of the floor.

Then into the cleared space the chorus came dancing. Girls, beautifully formed, fragrant costumed, their exquisite skins gleaming. Bodies swayed and dainty feet moved in unison through the difficult routine. The floor show had begun.

One girl stepped out from the group and began to sing. The swaying, bobbing chorus formed a picturesque background.

From a nearby table two women hastily gathered their wraps about them.

McGregor May Be In Run-Off

DALLAS (UP)—With official returns from 15 counties lacking, Albert Sidney Johnson, secretary of the state Democratic executive committee, announced today he expected tabulations of the Democratic primary election would be completed before the committee meeting in Fort Worth Monday.

Johnson expected Friday's mail would bring in returns from the counties unreported. Tabulations of his office, he said, conformed closely to the unofficial returns of the Texas Election Bureau.

Official counts indicated Douglas McGregor of Houston may go in the run-off against Sterling P. Strong for congress-at-large, place three. Unofficial count of the election bureau returns were that Joe Burket of San Antonio led McGregor in this race by 3,000 votes. Strong was far ahead of either of the two in the voting.

For congress-at-large place one, Pink Parrish of Lubbock maintained a good lead over W. Erskine Williams of Fort Worth, according to Johnson's returns. Parrish will go into the run-off against George R. Terrell of Alto.

Returns received by the executive secretary showed J. H. (Cyclone) Davis, 78-year old former congressman, was leading Oscar F. Holcombe, former mayor of Houston, for congress at large, place two. Holcombe took an early lead in the primary returns but lost out as delayed returns were recorded. Davis' opponent is Joseph W. Bailey Jr.

Johnson said a change is not likely in the race for state school superintendent which was won by L. A. Woods of Waco by 17,000 votes, according to the election bureau returns, defeating C. N. Shaver of Huntville.

At Monday's meeting the committee will canvass the returns and certify results so county chairmen may be authorized to prepare the ballots on the state contests for the election Aug. 27.

Candidates who were nominated at the first primary, either through lack of opposition or by gaining a majority, will be certified as the party nominees.

them and arose to go. Their escorts followed with ill-concealed chagrin.

"Ladies shocked?" asked Steve. "Gentlemen not behaving well," Lottie conceded demurely.

The song came to an end. Singer and chorus girls scampered from the room to don feathered finery for the "Rascal" number. The lights flickered, faded, rose again in colors and swirled over the room, casting shadows over those who remained in their seats.

"You and Lottie dance," Mona suggested, turning toward Steve. But the young man did not answer. He was looking past Lottie, a welcoming grin lighting his brown face. Steve rose and Mona saw a suavely dressed young man with neat blond hair and brown eyes approaching their table. The stranger's smile answered Steve's.

"Sorry to be late, Steve. I couldn't make it earlier."

A black coated figure inserted itself between Mona and Lottie. Steve grasped the newcomer's hand heartily. Introductions began.

"Miss—er, what is your name, Lottie? Oh, yes, Miss Carr! And Miss Moran—"

It was Steve's partner who had joined them. Mona, looking up, met the young man's eyes directly. And then she recognized him. Barry Townsend!

Then just bring Kellogg's Rice Krispies to the rescue. These crunchy rice bubbles, that actually crackle in milk or cream, fascinate youngsters.

And Rice Krispies are one of the best of cereals for children. Nourishing, rich in energy, easy to digest.

Ask your grocer for the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek. Quality guaranteed.

ISN'T THIS MUSIC WONDERFUL! WHAT'S THE MATTER, TOM, AREN'T YOU FEELING WELL?

ISN'T IT A SHAME SOMEONE DOESN'T TELL HER ABOUT KIRK'S COCO CASTILE? IT'S UNSCENTED, YOU KNOW—ENDS BODY ODOR INSTANTLY

Why take chances with offensive body odor when Kirk's Coco Castile removes it instantly? No need to disguise that unpleasant odor with a highly scented soap. Get rid of it with coco castile! Kirk's Coco Castile is 100% pure coconut oil soap. It makes oceans of lather... even in hard, cold water. It goes deep into the pores... removes every trace of oily, dirty film... then rinses off in a flash. It is mild and agreeable to the skin, yet against several very common bacteria* laboratory tests prove it 5 to 10 times as germicidal as carbolic acid. Best of all, it's unscented! You step out of your bath free from any chemical or heavy perfume odor... and as fresh and clean-smelling as a May morning. Try it today—for hands, for bath, for a wonderful shampoo. You'll be amazed at the difference. And at the saving too. Of the four leading toilet soaps, Kirk's is half again larger—yet the price is the same. Avoid imitations. Look for the arrows. Always ask for Kirk's by name.

*Among them, the deadly bacillus alpbacteriae (diphtheria), meningococcus (meningitis), gonococcus (gonorrhea) and streptococcus (strep throat).

SPORTS ON PARADE By CURTIS BISHOP

Incomplete returns from last week's Grand Belt League matches show that the locals stepped away from the pack in the first heat of the second half, and at present are leading Lamasa and Colorado by eight points.

Over the grapevine telegraph comes the news that "Slime" Hill, assistant coach at Cisco under both Chapman and Jeffries, may become Clyde Parks' right hand man at McCamey this year.

Army Armstrong, the big Coahoma tackle, declares himself in shape for a great season this fall and expects to follow in the footsteps of David Hopper. He has gained several pounds during the summer.

Big Spring will stage two golf tournaments during the next month. The West Texas Press affair will be held over the local course during the convention here August 19 and 20, and will be a 18 hole medal play affair.

We have it on good authority that Mike Roberts, the 200-odd pound boy who played tackle for the Bovines last year, will not be on hand this fall when Bristow and Brown check out gridiron equipment.

As expected the United States seems to be coming off with the Olympics. Only two first places in the men's division have so far evaded the clutches of Uncle Sam's cinder artists, and the two visitors, one an Englishman and the other an Italian, have been forced to record-breaking time.
