

New York Taxi Driver Identifies Hauptmann

AGED MAN ALSO TESTIFIES HE SAW HAUPTMANN NIGHT OF KIDNAPING NEAR LINDY HOME

FLEMINGTON (AP)—John Ferrone, New York taxi driver, Tuesday identified Bruno Richard Hauptmann as the man who gave him one dollar to deliver a note to Dr. John F. Condon in March, 1932.

FLEMINGTON, N. J. (AP)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann was identified in court Tuesday in his trial for murder, as the man seen at Hopewell, N. J., the night of March 1, 1932, when the baby Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr., was stolen from his crib and murdered.

Amandus Hochmuth, 87, said he saw Hauptmann in an automobile in which he carried a ladder. Hochmuth pointed a shaky finger at Hauptmann.

"There he is." At the request of Attorney General David T. Wilentz, Hochmuth placed an identifying hand on Hauptmann's shoulder.

Hauptmann shook his head negatively. Trembling violently the old man stated he saw a "dirty green" car swing into the Lindbergh lane near his home, at Hopewell, on the night of kidnaping and stop briefly. He said he saw an automobile, in which he alleged he saw Hauptmann, because he thought it might be Lindbergh passing.

No questions in Edward J. Reilly's cross examination could shake the old man's positiveness.

Prior to Hochmuth's startling testimony the defense launched an attack upon the efficiency of New Jersey police, after two officers testified they found no fingerprints in the Lindbergh's baby's nursery nor on the ladder down which the state contends the baby was carried to its death.

News Behind The News THE NATIONAL Whirligig

Written by a group of the best informed newspapermen of Washington and New York. Opinions expressed are those of the writers and should not be interpreted as reflecting the editorial policy of this newspaper.

WASHINGTON By George Durso G. O. P.

Now that Congress is sprinting around the first lap you will hear a lot of talk about liberalizing the Republican party.

Veteran checkers predict that long after the boys settle down to the slow grind you will still find the G. O. P. running on the same old legs.

Senator Borah and others are demanding a Republican new deal but there is a lot of sober thought behind the decision of those who are intent on keeping Party management in present hands.

In the first place, Herbert Hoover is still titular head of the Party. He has told friends he does not care who takes over the reins—so long as they aren't enemies of the Hoover principles. This counts for something because after all Mr. Hoover polled 15,000,000 votes in the course of being reelected.

Ogden Mills—whose influence should not be underestimated—has what many regard as an excellent reason for avoiding an immediate shakeup. Prospects aren't too rosy for the G. O. P. in 1936. If there is a reorganization this year and the Republicans take another beating next year, the reorganizing will have to be done all over again.

Senator Charles McNary of Oregon—minority floor leader of the upper house—has similar views. He adopted a watchful-waiting attitude during the last session and through the recent Congressional campaign. He was criticized by many of his party associates before last November's votes were counted—but he's still Republican floor leader.

If present counselors have their way, Republican Senators and Congressmen will vote for necessary emergency measures and be satisfied with putting themselves on record opposed to everything with a "W" on it.

There will be guerrilla warfare in the House. Ex-Senator Henry Allen of Kansas, for instance, is just back from England. He plans to take the stump and tell the common people how poorly recovery is being promoted here as compared with Britain. His public utterances are expected to dwell heavily on waste of federal funds.

Other speakers will be doing the same. There are plenty of ex-availability for the job since the last two elections.

Poison—Henry F. Fletcher is serenely in the saddle at Republican National Headquarters. He intends to stay there despite the threats of Borah et al that he abdicate.

Fletcher is a handsomely-smiling man with a pleasing personality but he can get his back up as far as the next one. It's up around the roof of the Empire State Building right now. He might have given heed had criticism come from other quarters. But Borah is another name for poison to him.

Regulators—The fissure between NRA and the Federal Trade Commission is assuming the proportions of the Grand Canyon. FTC—if you will pardon alphabetical allusions—was set up to prescribe fair trade practices for industry generally. NRA has cooped this function to a marked degree in the last year and a half.

A week or so before Congress convened President Roosevelt had the full membership of the Trade Commission in for an unpublished White House conference. What went on in the Presidential study remains a secret among those present but the Commissioners have been happy ever since.

Industry would give three rousing cheers if the FTC reclaimed its jurisdiction over fair trade practices. When the Commission decides a firm is taking undue advantage of a competitor it cites the firm for a hearing. If found guilty the company is ordered to cease and desist. No financial damage is done unless the desist order is ignored.

What NRA is has been different. The crack-downs have been few but the threats have been many. That sort of regulation gives business men the jumps.

Ignored—NRA and FTC came to grips last in connection with the Commission's report on what's wrong with the chain store business. FTC spent between a three and four years and nearly a million dollars investigating. It put the findings into 33 volumes.

During the course of that investigation NRA came into existence. (Continued On Page Five)

Laval Returns With Pact In His Possession

Italy And France Agree On Action To Be Taken If Austria Threatened

ROME, (AP)—With the agreement signed by Premier Mussolini in his possession, Pierre Laval, French Foreign Minister, returned to France Tuesday.

Agreements include a pact of consultation by which France and Italy are to consult each other regarding action they are to take whenever Austria independence is menaced.

They reached a non-intervention pact to be signed by Austria and her neighboring states. If Germany signs, the pact will embrace six powers, including the Little Entente, otherwise it will include five.

Laval denied he and Mussolini agreed to rearmament of Germany if the latter entered the non-intervention pact, and returned to the League of Nations.

Elms, Cypress Trees To Arrive Here Jan. 15th

Arrival of approximately 300 Chinese elms and 100 Arizona cypress trees is expected here around January 15, the Chamber of Commerce announced Tuesday.

Trees will be ordered for immediate delivery within a few days. As has been the custom for several years, the Chamber will distribute the trees to citizens at cost.

Soldiers In Brisk Battle With Plotters

War Department Announces Another Engagement In Durango, Sinaloa

MEXICO, D. F. (AP)—Seven persons were shot to death and four wounded, in a battle between federal troops and alleged plotters against the government at Lapiedad, Michoacan state, dispatches said Tuesday.

Soldiers trapped four suspected enemies of the regime in a house, killed them after a brisk gun fight. A soldier, policeman, and passer-by were killed by fire from the house.

The war department announced a number of rebels and several federal troops were slain in a recent fight on the boundary states of Durango and Sinaloa, which adjoins Michoacan.

Scouters To Hold Annual Meet Thurs.

Meeting Called At 7:30 P. M. Thursday: George Gentry To Preside

Scouters of the Big Spring district will hold their annual meeting here Thursday at 7 p. m. from the Settles hotel. The meeting will follow a dinner.

George Gentry, chairman of the district, has issued an appeal for scouts of Big Spring, Foran, Comhoma and Stanton to attend the meeting. It is particularly important in view of the fact that the annual council wide meeting will be held here Jan. 22.

At that time James P. Fitch, regional executive, will appear on the program. Bob Billington, San Angelo, Concho Valley council executive, will bring a group of scouts from his area to the meeting here.

Area Executive A. C. Williamson passed through here Tuesday afternoon enroute to Midland where he will attend a meeting Tuesday evening. He will return here for the Thursday scout meeting of this district.

Terracing And Contour Projects Are Applied For

Forty-eight farmers Tuesday had applied for terracing and contour projects on their premises if and when such projects are available. County Agent O. P. Griffith is now in an attempt to carry on terracing and contour work with the aid of relief labor.

Most of the farmers applying listed farms with an average acreage of about 135. However, there was one listed with an acreage of 5,216. This was an instance where a party desired a terrace run on a ranch.

Most of the farmers desired contour work. On the steeper slopes, terracing was in demand.

Total acreage to be serviced if the project is put through stands at about 12,000.

Stevenson Is Made Speaker Of The House

Defeats Calvert Of Hillsboro In Race By Vote Of 80 To 68

AUSTIN, (AP)—Coke Stevenson, Junction, was elected speaker of the House in the Forty-fourth legislature, 80 to 68, over Bob Calvert, Hillsboro. Stevenson and Calvert jockeyed for the lead all through the count, but Stevenson received the 75th and deciding vote when 145 of 148 votes were accounted for.

He is the only member ever elected to successive terms as speaker.

AUSTIN (AP)—The Forty-fourth Texas legislature convened in general session at 12:10 p. m. Tuesday.

Secretary of State W. W. Heath presided over the house and Lieut. Governor Edgar Witt over the senate.

Observers estimated the audience in the house galleries was the largest ever at an opening session.

Spotlight centered upon the speakership.

Both Coke Stevenson of Junction and R. W. Calvert of Hillsboro, issued last minute statements expressing confidence.

Stevenson's supporters wore red carnations and white ribbons. Calvert at his old desk was surrounded by friends.

Ken M. Reagan of Pecos, was elected president pro tem of the senate.

Entertainment Program At CCC Camp Tonight

An entertainment will be held today at the CCC camp recreation hall following the short religious service at 6:30 p. m.

Big Spring people are invited to attend. The entertainers for the evening will come from the transient bureau.

Last entertainment for the camp was staged last Friday night when Enrollees C. W. Fields and M. Y. Butler gave several violin and guitar numbers as a prelude to main event, a pie-eating contest. Three enrollees from barrack A. H. C. Jones, Sherman Morris and C. L. Avery competed with three from barrack F. S. B. Atkinson, L. O. Barton and A. L. Norrell.

Contest rules require no use of hands. Atkinson finished first with Barton a close second.

Elaborate plans are being made for the stunt night Friday by barracks C and E.

Saturday C. R. Richardson, enrollee from Ballinger, wrenated the title of champion flagpole sitter of the CCC from D. D. Kemp of San Angelo. He remained at the top of the 66 foot pole here most of Saturday afternoon repairing the rigging and for replacing a new halyard. Enrollees now call him "Shipwreck Kelly."

Among camp improvements last week was the installation of lamp shades were installed in the infirmary, supply room, officers quarters and the recreation hall.

Paint Store Has New Budget Plan For Painting Jobs

Thorp Paint Store, 123 East Third street, has announced a new budget plan for home painting, whereby home owners can purchase materials and secure money for labor under a plan prescribed by the national housing act. Money is secured through arrangement with a well-known paint concern at 5 per cent, payable monthly based over a period of three years.

Mr. Thorp, manager of the store, announced Tuesday morning "I would be glad to explain the plan in detail to those interested in securing money for painting jobs in their home."

Sheriff And Posse Trail Slay Through Wooded Section; Ellis Sought

SEYMOUR (AP)—H. A. Nicholson, 42-year-old father of five children, was slain Monday night by an assailant who slashed his throat and fled into nearby thickets.

Sheriff Chloe Shawver and deputies trailed bloodhounds through wooded sections in search of Bob Ellis, 45, a filling station operator charged with the slaying in a complaint filed by Justice of the Peace Pat O'Riley.

Joe Sessions, at whose farm home the alleged slaying occurred, said Nicholson and Ellis were in a room and arguing when he last heard voices. He said he entered the room a few minutes later and found Nicholson lying on a blood-soaked floor—his throat cut. Ellis had disappeared.

Nicholson, drug store operator, was prominent in Seymour and the father of five children ranging in age from 13 years to 14 months.

STRONGSVILLE, O. (UP)—A fox which killed 25 turkeys at the Steve Mikolajczyk home, is now resting in a furrier's shop. Mrs. Mikolajczyk is having a new fur neckpiece made.

New Southern Air Route To Start Jan. 13

Big Spring Not Included As Stop On New Airlines Schedule

CHICAGO — American Airlines announced Monday it would link New York and Los Angeles with a new commercial gateway through Washington to the southwest and the Pacific coast.

The new southern transcontinental air route will open January 13, and 14, President C. R. Smith said.

"The route will provide the nation's capital and such major cities as Nashville, Memphis, Dallas, Fort Worth, El Paso, Tucson and Phoenix with direct high speed transcontinental service for the first time in history," he said.

The coast-to-coast schedule is to be slightly in excess of 20 hours, Smith said.

Glenn Freeland, station manager at American Airlines headquarters here, said Tuesday he understood the new transcontinental schedule, referred to in the above dispatch, would not include Big Spring as a stop. In that event the new airlines schedule will be of no benefit to Big Spring, either for passenger, express or mail service. It was reported the new schedule would go into effect about January 15th. Big Spring is now served by one schedule each way each day.

Steers To Play Fast Forsan Independents Tonight

KING FISHER!

Lyle Fisher, Co-Captain Of Northwestern
Cage Team, May Be Best In Big Ten
This Season

EVANSTON, Ill. (AP)—Failure to make the team in his sophomore year wasn't discouraging enough to keep Lyle Fisher from skyrocketing himself into one of the best basketball players in the Big Ten conference.

Two years ago, when he first became eligible for varsity competition at Northwestern university, Fisher found himself left out of the picture by the superiority of others on the squad. Yet a year later he wrote basketball history.

As a forward, he scored 118 points in conference games, only two points below the conference leader, Norm Cotton of Purdue. His 36 free throws set a record.

In pre-conference games this year, Fisher has averaged 16 points per game. His form is such that Wildcat fans are predicting Northwestern will be the team to beat if anybody else wants to win the Big Ten title.

Fisher, a brother of Waldo Fisher, and coach of the Wildcat football team, shares the captaincy of the current Northwestern quintet with Al Kavel. The older Fisher, a gridiron and cage star eight years ago, was captain of the basketball team in 1927.

Tate's Club Has Slight Edge On Locals

George Brown's high school Steers journey to Forsan tonight for a game with Bill Tate's Independents, a fairly strong amateur team.

Brown will take his entire squad of some ten or twelve players, but will probably start a regular combination of Bob and Sam Flowers, Cordell Wilson and Fitzgerald.

The probable starting line-up for the Independents will be: Guards—D. Yarbro and White, center—Shoults, guards—Scudder and Johnson.

Tate's team, composed of former high school stars, has an edge of several weeks practice on the Steers.

Who Said Quit?

GOLDEN CITY, Mo. (AP)—Golden City high school griders are champions of the Little Ten conference of southwest Missouri because they refused to quit when the board of education wanted to drop football as an interscholastic sport.

Early in the fall the board announced its decision to abandon the sport, in which Golden City apparently was consistently outclassed by its conference rivals. Confirmed cellar dwellers, the lads had never won a title.

Twenty small, inexperienced but "never say die" candidates showed up for practice after they had succeeded in getting the board to reverse its stand. Doped to lose practically every game, Golden City won every game but one, scoring 147 points to 25 for its opposition.

Daniel's Devils To Play Barstow

Ben Daniel's junior basketball team will enter an invitational basketball tournament to be held at Odessa, beginning Friday.

The Devils, although not rated as heavy favorites, should win several games. They will play their first game with Barstow Friday at 1 p. m.

Carter, Diltz Take Loop Lead

By HANK HART
The Carter Chevrolet five and the Diltz Bakers moved out in front in the Big Spring Basketball league race Monday night when they plastered defeats on their opponents, Whit and Radford, in the initial games of the loop.

The Bakers were the more impressive, gaining a ten point decision from the highly rated Radford Grocers, defeating the Wholesalers by a 26-16 count.

Whit Whittington's aggregation failed to pierce the defense of the Carter Knee Action lads and came through on the short end of a 12-8 decision.

The latter game failed to have the punch as did the Diltz-Radford battle, but proved to be a defensive clash for both sides.

"Jake" Forrester was a thorn in the Radford side during the evening and took high scoring honors. The Whit Cowhands failed to click in the important moments of the game, and lost out when the Cartermen combined their shots late in the fracas.

BASKETBALL Team Standings—City League—

TEAMS—	P.	W.	L.	Pct.
Carter	1	1	0	1.000
Diltz	1	1	0	1.000
Radford	1	0	1	.000
Whit	1	0	1	.000

KLEM, WHO IS NEVER WRONG, SAYS BASEBALL'S TOTTERING

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—She's a tear, men, for the American boy. He has lost youth's "greatest treasure"—juvenile love of baseball and its heroes.

Take it from the battle-scarred, veteran umpire, Bill Klem of the National league, who is spending his 14th winter here, the kid who saves cigarette coupons for a picture of his idol, who could quote batting averages and call off the roster of the Yankees without an error, lives only in memory.

"The kid doesn't live today who would lay down his life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness for a bleacher seat at a big league game," Klem said as he explained the evident waning interest of youth in baseball.

"What," he demanded, "are the kids doing? Why, they're out chasing nickles and dimes, caddyding on the golf course, running parking lots and a hundred other things and they haven't got time for the grandest game ever invented. A game, mind you, in which some of the greatest Americans, presidents, bankers and millionaires were widely interested.

"Do you hear a kid lying about the death of his grandmother these days just to get a chance to see a ball game? Not in a month of Sundays."

Klem touched on all phases of a problem that has reared itself before the baseball moguls in all parts of the country in the last half dozen years. If he seemed a little more vehement in his indictment of the modern "dollar chasing" American youngster, he is by comparison less pessimistic over the waning interest of youth than many other observers.

When the pendulum swings back, he insisted, youth will return to his love of baseball as his father and grandfather did. Be cause, said Bill, "anything as grand and wholesomely entertaining" is certain to endure, despite the indifference of a generation.

"What this country needs," Klem argued, "is more of the kind of activities like those of Max Carey, a former major league star, who now operates a municipal baseball school here. Baseball hasn't lost its appeal. If it had, Max wouldn't have several hundred youngsters provided by the typical political machine is both an over-expensive luxury and an actual source of danger in this modern era.

If government, local and federal, is to do more for its citizens in the future than even before—and apparently it is—then it is absolutely essential that government be scrupulously honest and at least reasonably efficient.

All of which is just another way of saying that we can't hope to make this or any other deal work unless we provide a permanent exile for municipal machines like Tammany Hall.

POLITICAL MACHINE ENDANGERS HOPES FOR FEDERAL AID

The times are as full of signs and portents as a beehive is full of bees. If you take the trouble to look for them and one of the most noteworthy is the flurry recently caused by New York City's attempt to get some lower rates on its electric light bills.

Mayor LaGuardia of New York felt that the utilities were gouging New York. So he went to Washington and got from President Roosevelt the promise that the federal government would loan the city enough money to build a municipal electric light plant.

By running this plant and selling electricity to tax payers at a low rate, the mayor believes the city can force the utilities to cut their charges.

Now there is nothing especially new about this, so far. The FWA has been specifically authorized to make loans to cities for such purposes and so far some 30 cities have started to buy or build power plants with Uncle Sam's money.

The catch is all this comes from the simple fact that New York is—well, it's New York; and it nourishes in its bosom and outfit known as Tammany Hall, which, as the townmaster says, needs no introduction.

Honestly as the average citizen may approve of federal loans for municipal power plants—and it is fairly evident that majority sentiment does approve of it—there is apt to be a different reaction to the idea of putting a program like this out where Tammany can get its hands on it.

To be sure, Tammany is not in power just now. New York has its most honest and efficient city government in years, under LaGuardia. The LaGuardia government can be trusted to handle a proposition of this kind with intelligence and integrity.

But Tammany never stays dead. Sooner or later Tammany will put on a comeback; and the way in which Tammany would operate a $100,000,000 electric power plant is a thing to make the imagination reel.

Mention was made, a moment ago, of signs and portents. The particular sign and portent arising from this situation is the warning that the kind of city government provided by the typical political machine is both an over-expensive luxury and an actual source of danger in this modern era.

If government, local and federal, is to do more for its citizens in the future than even before—and apparently it is—then it is absolutely essential that government be scrupulously honest and at least reasonably efficient.

All of which is just another way of saying that we can't hope to make this or any other deal work unless we provide a permanent exile for municipal machines like Tammany Hall.

THIS BOY IS GOING TO BE near-sighted

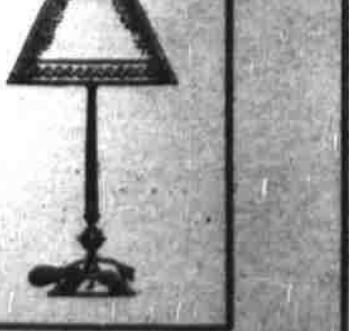

...IF HE KEEPS ON READING WITHOUT PROPER LIGHT

If this boy, or your boy, continues to read and study in insufficient, improperly-arranged light, he is bound to be near-sighted or to be afflicted with some other eye trouble. Human eyes were not designed to be subjected to strain and unusual wear and tear without breaking down and failing to perform as normal eyes. We pass this advice on to parents, school teachers and others who have to do with conditions affecting eyes and eye-sight—don't let anyone read, sew or do close work without being sure that the lighting is properly arranged for such work. Just a few minutes a day of exacting sight work under dim or poorly-arranged lights will ruin the finest pair of eyes ever known. Look your own lighting over—you can without doubt find many places where improvement will be beneficial for all concerned.

READING-STUDY LAMPS

For the study table, desk or end table, these lamps are the finest creation of lighting engineers yet presented to users of light. They are high enough to allow ample illumination to reach from edge to edge of the working surface of the table or desk and so designed that glare is absolutely eliminated. CHAPTER 22 MOLLY'S STORY

"By the way," said Jerry, as he started out of the room, "what shall we do with Jimmy Fox?"

"If you've no objection," I said, "I vote that we take him into the apartment. He'll certainly get the walk from the hotel and we can't let him down after the way he behaved last night."

"I should think not," was the answer. "Besides, he'll be useful on the Seagull. He can wash up and look after George."

Leaving me to my ablutions, Jerry took himself off and somewhat hampered by my damaged knuckles, I proceeded to make a hasty toilet. I was in the act of brushing my hair when the gong sounded and as I came out into the hall, Molly emerged from the opposite bedroom. Swathed in a dressing-gown at least three sizes too large for her, she looked comically pretty.

"Good morning, Nick," she said cheerfully. "I hope you had a good night?"

"Sleep like a top," I replied. "And you?"

"She made a little grimace. "The headache's gone, but I've still got a funny taste in my mouth."

"Breakfast will cure that," I assured her. "How's the cheek?"

"It feels rather stiff and sore. She tilted up her face. "Am I a dreadful sight?"

I inspected her carefully. "You look lovely," I said. "Like an angel on her way to the bathroom."

"Angels don't have baths," she objected. "They—oh, here's Jerry!"

"Hello, Molly!" He had come out of the study, followed by Jimmy, who in his crumpled livery, and with his tousled hair, still seemed to be only half awake. "This is a nice sort of trick to play on a cheek," he continued. "Getting yourself dragged and kidnapped when I wasn't there to rescue you."

"Jerry, Jerry," she dropped him a peevish glance. "It was horribly curious of me, wasn't it? If it hadn't been for Nick and Jimmy—"

she stopped. "Oh, that reminds me—I haven't thanked you yet, Jimmy."

She crossed over to where he was standing and bending down, kissed him on the cheek. "I think you're the bravest boy I ever met, and I really am most frightfully grateful."

"That's all right, miss," Jimmy, who had turned a rich crimson, shifted awkwardly from one foot to the other. "I—didn't do nothing. It was Mr. Treach who slashed me—not me, miss."

We all laughed.

"Never mind," said Jerry consolingly. "You got the prize anyhow. Now cut along to the kitchen and Dawson will give you some breakfast." He slipped his arm through Molly's. "For pity's sake let's go in and make a start. I was up at six o'clock this morning and I'm simply famished."

Faced with a steaming dish of eggs, bacon and sausages, I found that my own appetite was by no means to be despised. I ladled out three generous helpings, while Jerry attended to the coffee, and dumped one of them down in front of Molly.

"Get your teeth into that, partner," I said, "and when you feel a bit stronger you can tell us how it all happened."

"I am ready to start now," she replied. "I can talk and eat at the same time."

With a familiar gesture she brushed back the lock of copper-colored hair which had fallen forward across her forehead.

"You mustn't mind my being a bit vague about things. I suppose it was the stuff they gave me, but somehow or other it all seems like a bad dream."

She took a sip from the coffee which Jerry handed her. "I had been up in my room the whole evening reading a book, and about half-past nine I thought I would like a glass of milk before going to bed. I rang the bell and told all right, and I was just beginning to undress, when I suddenly came over all queer and giddy."

"I tried to get to the door but I suppose I must have tumbled down. Anyhow, I don't remember anything more until I woke up feeling terribly sick and found myself on the bed in that horrible little room with Orloff and Dimitri bounding over me."

"I didn't know where I was or how I'd got there, and I'd no time to think. They started on me straight away. It was Orloff who did the talking, while Dimitri just stood by looking at me. I shall never forget the expression in his eyes—"

she shivered—"it was loathsome."

Jerry snatched something under his breath.

"What did Orloff say to you?" I demanded.

She knitted her forehead. "I've been half-stupid, you see, and it's all jumbled up and confused. I know he asked me any amount of questions about the formula."

"He wanted to know where Nick had hidden it, and what the paper is like it's written on, and whether we were trying to sell it to Sir William Avon. All the time he was questioning me he kept on squeezing and pinching my arm. It hurt so I could hardly help screaming."

She pulled up the sleeve of her dressing-gown and a muffled oath escaped from Jerry's lips. Just above the elbow two or three livid bruises stood out against the white skin.

"I wish I'd seen those last night, I said savagely. "I'd have smashed that swine's face in."

"Go on," said Jerry gruffly. "What else had the bound to say?"

"He told me that I was to write a note asking Nick to give him the formula. He said that if I didn't I should be put on a barge, and taken down to a Russian ship."

LINDY BABY CLOTHES IN COURT

One of the most dramatic moments in Bruno Hauptmann's trial at Flemington, N. J., came when Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh identified these clothes as those worn by her first son at the time of his abduction. The clothes were offered as an exhibit by the state. said. He must have given them the tip that we were thinking of clearing out, and I suppose they made up their minds to grab hold of her while they had the chance."

"Well, don't worry about it," said Molly soothingly. "The important thing is what are we going to do now?"

"Cherry on, of course. We must see this farmer and his wife; though I don't suppose we shall get much out of them. Anyhow, you'll be safer on the Seagull than where else."

"How about her things?" I struck in. "We can't leave them at the Millers. If they don't get any message from her they'll probably think she's dead and hand them over to the police."

Jerry reflected for a moment. "You must scribble them a line," he said, turning to Molly, "and I'll send Dawson round with it now. Ask them to give him your account, and to hand him over your things. You can explain that I'm taking care of your things until you're out of hospital."

I presented George, who was sitting beside me, with my last piece of bacon. "Do you mean to start for Leigh at once, then?"

He nodded. "Boomer we got a move on the better. The boat's quite ready. I've stocked her up with enough food for three or four days, and if the wind's right we can slip round on the evening tide. By the way, I suppose you've got those keys?"

"Yes," I said, "they're in my bedroom. Avon sent them round yesterday."

"Good!" He sat for a moment staring thoughtfully in front of him; then his features relaxed in a sudden characteristic grin. "Funny how keen one gets about a thing! I shall never be really happy until we dig out this blessed formula."

Codes were framed which dealt with such matters as price-fixing, loss-leaders, prize contests, etc. But NRA wasn't mentioned in the 33 volumes. The Trade Commission decided to diagnose the case and prescribe remedies without a single consultation with the other doctor.

Navy—
 More money for warships—24 new big ones—is planned. It isn't because Japan has denounced the naval treaty. It's in spite of the expected charge that the U. S. is starting on a naval race.

The new ships will be within treaty limits. They represent building that should have been done during Hoover's administration when nobody could have suggested a naval race.

Construction of warships gives work in a thousand directions and produces something worthwhile—better national defense. This expenditure of public works money finds favor in Congress and will be approved, notwithstanding mistaken inferences that may be drawn in Japan.

Don't forget that a naval race can't begin while the treaty is in force, and it won't expire until December, 1936.

Valleys—
 Here it comes—another Tennessee Valley scheme on a bigger scale. Senator Shipstead introduces a bill to create the Upper Mississippi Valley Authority. It is to be headed by three men who don't own utility stock and who "profess faith in the wisdom of the legislation."

That's easy. All that TVA can do and more is proposed for the Upper Mississippi. Shipstead steals a march on Senator Norris, who talked last session of offering a bill to cover the Mississippi Basin but didn't get around to it.

There are to be fifteen other projects of this sort. TVA has the edge with $100,000,000 already in the bag. But lots of Congressmen can't why the Tennessee Valley should get all the breaks.

A large increase in Army personnel is improbable. Budget figures mystify Congress. Huey Long takes the floor for extended remarks.

NEW YORK

By James McMullin
Indian—
 Close inspection of Floyd Carlisle's offer to apply the Washington plan to the electric companies of the Consolidated Gas group reveals a couple of subtle and significant quirks.

He has an out for not addressing the proposal to the municipal administration. The plan includes a company in Westchester county— which is outside New York City's jurisdiction. But logically it should have been submitted to the State Public Service Commission. The Commission was ignored. The people who were asked to handle the matter on behalf of the public were Chairman Dunningan and Counsel Mack of the Joint Legislative Committee to Investigate Public Utilities.

This Committee was supposed to ferret out the relations between utility companies and politicians. Research along this line—which might have been mutually embarrassing—has been neatly sidestepped. Instead Mr. Mack talks proudly of the lower rates he's going to get for consumers.

Observers comment that surrender to a group which has shown such solicitude for utility susceptibilities enables Mr. Carlisle to present the committee with a jaunty feather for its cap. "Presumably the committee will be grateful in turn and use its influence to keep the discussion on a 'reasonable' basis. How much better than approaching a Commission that might prove unsympathetic!"

Black—
 Copper men are privately pulling hard for the government power

THIS IS ENOUGH TO MAKE ANYONE SHIVER

If you don't like cold weather, imagine what it must be like on a trawler plying the north Atlantic. The Gemma, her super-structure coated with ice after heavy seas, gave waterfront residents a glimpse of winter at its worst when she limped into Boston's harbor. (Associated Press Photo) made no move to withdraw the injunction which is holding up a 6 per cent rate cut already ordered—nor to abandon its attempt to pass along the new city taxes to the consumer. The concessions that have been made are so far entirely hypothetical.

City authorities will go right ahead with their plans for municipal electricity. They are taking no chances that Mr. Carlisle might turn out to be an Indian giver.

Secession—
 There's a prospect of sensational developments in Edison Institute circles. An important utility group is seriously thinking of resigning its membership.

The secession would be a protest against the Institute's obstructive attitude toward the New Deal. A high official of the group in question is privately quoted as equally fed up with McCarter's belligerency and Carlisle's stalling tactics. His company has had no trouble with the government and he feels it would be better off padding its own canoe. His views have not yet been accepted by his directors but they probably will be.

Britain—
 England is far from the individualist's paradise American conservatives like to picture. The trend there is toward the elimination of private utilities. Here's a sample.

An electric company's franchise recently expired in a British city. It was renewed for 24 years with a definite agreement that the city will take the plant over as a going concern at the end of the period. Meanwhile the company is supposed to retire bonds and preferred stock out of earnings. The city will pay for the property on the basis of an asset valuation when the franchise runs out and the common stockholders will divvy the proceeds. It's estimated they have a good chance of getting par.

Utility circles which know of this development wonder apprehensively if the idea will catch on over here.

The British Board of Trade (comparable to our Department of Commerce) regulates industry far beyond anything Hugh Johnson ever tried. Price control is extremely effective. Yet nobody kicks—because the government encourages corporations to make money.

The odd thing is that the Board of Trade has no legal authority to compel obedience to its orders. The fact that business considers the regulations rational and in its own interest appears to be enough. A New Deal sympathizer suggests that the Chamber of Commerce and Manufacturers' association send envoys to London to learn what real regimentation is like.

Patient—
 New York legal lights who have examined Attorney-General Cummings' brief defending abrogation of the gold clause in public and private contracts say his case is technically very weak.

They insist that if the Supreme Court decides the matter strictly on its legal merits it will surely rule against the government. Not that they expect that to happen.

Still there's always the chance. That's why a number of banks and large investors have held onto part of their called 4th Liberties instead of converting them. There's just might be a 40 per cent profit in patience.

Inflation—
 Senator Elmer Thomas will have as much to say about the need for inflation this Congress as much to inflation this Congress as last year. But conservatives aren't nearly as scared of him as they were then. Their Washington scouts report that his supporting battalions have dwindled and that the White House doesn't exactly regard him as the fount of monetary wisdom.

Black—
 Copper men are privately pulling hard for the government power

grid transmission plan to go thru. It would open up the biggest market for their product they have seen in years. Experts regard it as far their best hope of changing red ink to black. The attempted international copper agreement is feeble stuff by comparison.

Barter—
 New York is intrigued with Harvey Couch's plan to electrify Arkansas farms by selling electric appliances on a five-year installment plan and helping the farmers market their eggs and other produce to pay for them.

But critics fear that Mr. Couch overestimates the earning power of the rural Arkansas population. Comment runs that he'd better watch out or he'll find himself up to the ears in razor-back hogs. (Copyright McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

Two Injured As Car Overtakes On West Highway

Bryant Bethany, Lubbock, and Charley Hill, Big Spring, were given medical treatment at Hivings hospital early Tuesday morning following an automobile accident at a curve on the west highway about two miles from Big Spring. Bethany and Hill were enroute to Midland when the hub of the right front wheel struck an abutment post, causing the car to overturn in a ditch. The car was badly demolished when it struck a telephone pole. Bethany suffered a few abrasions and lacerations about the face. Hill had a lacerated right elbow. Both were dismissed from the hospital Tuesday.

Bethany told hospital attendants he had picked up Hill on the highway, and both were going to Midland. He said he was not familiar with the road, and he did not see the curve until he was almost upon it. Bethany was driving.

Air Transport Lines Carried 38,954 Plane Passengers In November

Scheduled air lines operating in continental United States carried 38,954 passengers in November, 1934, according to reports to the Bureau of Air Commerce, Department of Commerce, from 20 of the 21 companies operating during that month.

Those scheduled air lines flew 3,438,832 miles, carried 192,132 pounds of express and flew 17,194,538 passenger miles during November. (A passenger mile is the equivalent of one passenger flown one mile).

Mrs. J. D. Williams of San Angelo and Mrs. Roy Holridge of Hamlin met in Big Spring Monday and continued on to El Paso where they have been called by the serious illness of Mrs. William Jones, daughter of Mrs. Williams and sister of Mrs. Holridge. Mrs. Jones will be remembered here as Miss Ruby Shay.

There's never been a picture taken of the senate while sitting. Senators can get a free shave at their own barber shop in the capitol. A representative has to pay for his. All elevators on the senate side of capitol hill, whether in the capitol itself or in their office buildings, must stop whenever a senator wants to ride, take him to whatever level he desires regardless of who is on the car. Nothing like that prevails on the house side.

Allan Shivers of Port Arthur will enter the state senate at 26, taking the place of Sen. J. R. Cousins of Beaumont who is 53. Gordon Burns of Huntsville has just been elected to the senate at 29, after a brilliant career in the house. Senator-elect Weaver Moore of Houston becomes a senator at 33 after similar house service. Sen. W. K. Hopkins, already a power in the senate, is but 36. Any of these men as well as youthful Governor-elect James V. Allred and Attorney General-elect William McCraw may see their names nationally discussed in politics.

Already Allred is mentioned by some as a "one-term governor" with the expectation that the end of his term will see him in national politics. Similar predictions were made when Dan Moody became governor but he chose a second term and but for the wish of Ross Sterling to run probably would have sought a third term.

Full steam is being put on by the budget division of the state board of control with the hope of presenting the governor and the legislature an early budget upon which to begin appropriation studies. The two-year expenditures to be recommended by the board likely will be presented about Jan. 12 to 15, unless some unexpected delay occurs.

4. Congressmen's Powers
 Broadly speaking, things one house of Congress can do which are denied the other are strictly limited.

Under the constitution, the house of representatives alone may originate legislation which raises new taxes or other forms of revenue. The exclusive prerogatives of the senate under the constitution are the ratification of treaties and confirmation of nominations made by the President.

The rules of each house, however, vary greatly.

Senators, for example, may talk as long as they please while members of the house are strictly limited.

Just as Texas is discussing the advisability of calling a convention to draft a new constitution, A. T. McKinney, Jr. of Huntsville has become a candidate for the house of representatives. His father was the last surviving member of the last state constitutional convention which drafted the constitution of 1876 under which, with amendments, the state now operates.

Texas apparently is to suffer no lack of able statesmen as the older generation gives way to youth in state affairs. A galaxy of "youngsters" is coming forward and the members, any one of them, may go far politically.

Sidney Latham of Longview at ber of the house or the house as a whole, but a representative may not.

A representative may take his son or daughter on the floor while the house is in session. A senator cannot. The house can have its picture taken while in session.

There's never been a picture taken of the senate while sitting.

Senators can get a free shave at their own barber shop in the capitol. A representative has to pay for his. All elevators on the senate side of capitol hill, whether in the capitol itself or in their office buildings, must stop whenever a senator wants to ride, take him to whatever level he desires regardless of who is on the car. Nothing like that prevails on the house side.

Lew, O'Shea To Wrestle Black Bear

Interesting Show At Big Spring Athletic Club Tonight

After making a decision to abandon wrestling here, officials of the Big Spring Athletic club arranged a novel and interesting card for tonight. Arrangements were completed about 1:30 this afternoon.

Most interesting will be a match between a big black bear and Lew Kodrick and Eddie O'Shea. The powerful bear is a veteran matman, and puts on quite a show.

Benny Wilson, the rough and tough grappler and promoter, will take on Barackman, a wrestler with a good record who will be new here.

The first match will start promptly at 8:30.

Mmes. Mays And Girdwood Suffer Serious Injuries

Mrs. C. E. Mays of San Angelo and Mrs. Norman Girdwood, Fort Worth, hurt late Saturday afternoon on a highway south of Big Spring when the car in which they were riding overturned after a tire had blown out, were more seriously injured than at first thought.

Attending physicians at Big Spring hospital said Tuesday Mrs. Mays suffered a broken back and Mrs. Girdwood had a fractured vertebrae in the neck. Both were reported resting well late Tuesday afternoon. Mrs. Louise Rickey, Marathon, also in the car with Mr. Girdwood and Davis Elliott of Alpine, were not badly hurt. Mrs. Rickey underwent treatment at the hospital, but has been released. Members of the party had attended the funeral here Saturday of Mrs. Jeannie Bryson, and were enroute to San Angelo when the accident occurred.

Two Injured As Car Overtakes On West Highway

Bryant Bethany, Lubbock, and Charley Hill, Big Spring, were given medical treatment at Hivings hospital early Tuesday morning following an automobile accident at a curve on the west highway about two miles from Big Spring. Bethany and Hill were enroute to Midland when the hub of the right front wheel struck an abutment post, causing the car to overturn in a ditch. The car was badly demolished when it struck a telephone pole. Bethany suffered a few abrasions and lacerations about the face. Hill had a lacerated right elbow. Both were dismissed from the hospital Tuesday.

Bethany told hospital attendants he had picked up Hill on the highway, and both were going to Midland. He said he was not familiar with the road, and he did not see the curve until he was almost upon it. Bethany was driving.

Air Transport Lines Carried 38,954 Plane Passengers In November

Scheduled air lines operating in continental United States carried 38,954 passengers in November, 1934, according to reports to the Bureau of Air Commerce, Department of Commerce, from 20 of the 21 companies operating during that month.

Those scheduled air lines flew 3,438,832 miles, carried 192,132 pounds of express and flew 17,194,538 passenger miles during November. (A passenger mile is the equivalent of one passenger flown one mile).

Mrs. J. D. Williams of San Angelo and Mrs. Roy Holridge of Hamlin met in Big Spring Monday and continued on to El Paso where they have been called by the serious illness of Mrs. William Jones, daughter of Mrs. Williams and sister of Mrs. Holridge. Mrs. Jones will be remembered here as Miss Ruby Shay.

Rev. R. E. Day and Mrs. Day have as guests their daughter, Mrs. Theo. A. Ash and little daughter, Theola, of Abilene.

BIRTHDAY BALL HEAD CALLS NATION TO FIGHT PARALYSIS

NEW YORK—Picturing infantile paralysis as the "dark horse" of major national diseases and one that "will wreck havoc if it is allowed to run wild over the country," Col. Henry L. Doherty, chairman of the 1935 Birthday Ball for the President, called on leaders who represent a million dollars last January for the Warm Springs Foundation to redouble their efforts in the 1935 campaign.

Money raised at the parties, which will be held in communities throughout the nation on the evening of the President's 53rd birthday anniversary, January 30, will be divided this year, following a suggestion made by President Roosevelt himself. At his request, embodying the recommendation of the trustees of Georgia Warm Springs Foundation, no part of this year's funds will go to the institution. Seventy cents of every dollar will be used for the rehabilitation of handicapped children within the community raising the fund or within the geographic unit of which the community is a part. The other 30 cents will be turned over to President Roosevelt to be used by a national commission appointed by him for widening the research efforts aimed at wiping out the disease itself.

In his statement, Col. Doherty said that the program last January, in spite of its amazing success, raised funds that were pitifully inadequate when it came to coping with the national war against the disease.

"Only by a renewed and far more comprehensive effort this year can we hope to launch a successful nationwide drive that will eventually succeed in stopping the disease and in giving adequate aid to its victims," Col. Doherty said.

He emphasized that the disease, unlike smallpox, tuberculosis, cancer, diphtheria, typhoid fever, yellow fever, and similar maladies, has not until recently been given its proper importance as a national menace.

"Although the money raised last year by the birthday celebrations for the President has done unmitigated good," he said, "perhaps more good will come from the fact that the work has focused the spotlight in infantile paralysis and revealed how the task of preventing it and rehabilitating its victims has been neglected. Speaking in the most conservative terms, the disease is a peril whose death hands annually bring deaf or physical destruction to thousands of American homes, steals more than a third of a billion dollars of the nation's wealth every year, and costs its survivors hardships that can be overcome only after years of effort."

The need for funds to fight it, he pointed out, is best summarized in a statement made by the late William H. Woodin, former secretary of the treasury, who said: "To be very, very conservative, infantile paralysis costs the country each year in impaired individual earning and buying power some $300,000,000. Furthermore, this costly sum represents only the loss of income—it does not represent the millions of dollars of annual outgo which afflicted people must pay in the fight for recovery."

"Again being radically conservative," Col. Doherty stated, "this last expenditure can be estimated by multiplying the estimated number of victims—200,000 for the nation—by the cost of caring for each of them during a year. Put the figure at $300—a ridiculously low sum—and you have an annual curative cost of $60,000,000. No wonder the President has so generously loaned his birthday anniversary in 1935 to another nation-wide party dedicated to financing the war against the disease!"

CORRECTION
 Mrs. J. E. Brigham has corrected the Herald in regard to the standardization of the birthday school, which has been recently accomplished. The only two schools in the county now not standardized are those of Mrs. and Hart Wells.

Famous Play Enacted Before An Audience Often Too Thrilled To Applaud

Brighten up with ALL-BRAN!

You've had days when you've felt discouraged and low. Nothing seemed to go right. Frequently those dreary days can be traced to constipation, due to lack of fiber in our meals.

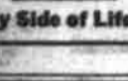

All-Bran almost always causes headaches and loss of energy. Correct it by eating a delicious cereal.

Laboratory research shows Kellogg's ALL-BRAN provides "bulk" to aid elimination. ALL-BRAN also furnishes vitamin B and food-iron.

The "bulk" in ALL-BRAN resists digestion better than the fiber in fruits and vegetables. It is gentle—and often more effective. Isn't this natural food better than taking patent medicines—often harmful!

Two tablespoons of ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. With each meal, in chronic cases. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Brighten days with ALL-BRAN! Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.
