Local NAACP Launches Voter Registration Drive

by Denise Kinner

The Lubbock Branch of the NAACP held its monthly meeting last Saturday at Mae Simmons Community Center.

PORTALES, NEW MEXICO -- Cool and the Gang thrilled a capacity crowd at the Greyhound Arena on the campus of the University of Eastern New Mexico last weekend. From all over Texas, New Mexico and other states, people came by the tons to listen to their good music favorite star. It was by the tons to listen to their favorite star. It was a night of good music entertainment and plain fun. (Photo by Ulok Etukudo)

The topic of discussion at the meeting was the NAACP's voter registration drive. Diane Henderson, chairperson of the drive, told the group that it is of prime importance to get out the black vote. "We need to get across to black people that who is elected will determine how much money this community will receive. It is very important that we realize that we must get people out to vote," Henderson said. The Lubbock Branch of the NAACP has also committed itself to work with churches in the community to register eligible voters. "We are going to ministers, in the community, to look at their membership and make a list of those 18 and over who are eligible voters. We will then compare that list with the list of registered voters. We are also asking that during the months of February and March to have a voter registration at their church," said Henderson. Members of the NAACP said their goal is to register 100% of each church congregation eligible voters. Rose Wilson, president of the local branch, has urged all NAACP members to go by the Skyview Nursing Home and visit Dr. F. L. Lovings, a former president and life time member of the NAACP. "We need to let Dr. Lovings know that we love him," said Ms. Wilson.

Bullock Cited By NAACP

COMPTROLLER BULLOCK CITED BY NAACP -- State Comptroller Bob Bullock became the first Texas statewide officeholder to be cited for his minority hiring practices with a presentation last week by the Rev. A. C. Sutton, state NAACP conference president. Since Bullock became Comptroller, the minority workforce at the agency has risen from 10 percent to about 30 percent of the Comptroller's employees.

AUSTIN, Tex. -- State Comptroller Bob

Bullock became the first Texas statewide officeholder to be cited for his minority hiring practices with a presentation last week by the president of the Texas Conference of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. In making the presentation, the Rev. A. C. Sutton of San Antonio, state NAACP president, said Bullock was the first choice of the group's selection committee to be honored for meeting guidelines in minority hiring. "We want to praise state officials like Comptroller Bullock for what he's done for minorities," said the Rev. Sutton, "and we're going to stay on the cases of those who don't have good hiring practices." When Bullock took office in 1975, the 120 minorities in the Comptroller's office represented only 10 percent of the agency workforce. Now the agency employs 735 minorities who represent approximately 30 percent of Bullock's employees. The number of minority professionals rose from 66 in 1974 to 467 today, representing 27 percent of all agency professionals working for the Comptroller. "I'm truly honored by this," said Bullock, "but what we've done at the Comptroller's in minority hiring is not really outstanding; we've only done what's fair." The Rev. Sutton said the decision to cite Bullock for his minority hiring practices was made by a selection committee at the state NAACP annual convention in Dallas last October.

Former Teacher/Coach Suit Dismissed

by Denise Kinner

A civil lawsuit filed against the Lubbock Public Schools by a black former teacher/coach was dismissed last week in federal court.

The lawsuit, filed in U. S. District Court two years ago by Elton Conger, was set for trial some time this month. Conger had alleged that he was fired from the school district four years ago. School officials, however, claimed Conger was fired for insubordination and unprofessional conduct. The case also brought out allegations about Supt. Ed Irons' son, David Conger, a football coach at Atkins Junior High School, accused school and athletic officials of conspiring against him (Conger) to promote Irons within the coaching system at the school.

Conger had asked in the federal court suit that he be reinstated with back pay or awarded $100,000 in damages along with back pay.

Tenants Have Rights

Landlords have a duty to make diligent effort to repair or remedy any condition pointed out to them by the tenant which materially affects the physical health or safety of an ordinary tenant. This new law as passed by the legislature of the State of Texas to remedy the situation where landlords refused to repair housing when a tenant complained and then evicted the complaining tenant. It is also unlawful for a landlord to lock a tenant out of his home because the tenant is late on his rent. The landlord may change the locks if the tenant is delinquent on his rent, but when the lock is changed the landlord must place a written notice on the front door describing where the new key may be obtained at any hour and describing the name of the individual who will provide the tenant with such key. The key must be provided regardless of whether the tenant pays the delinquent rent. In three recent cases in Lubbock the rights of tenants have been upheld by the courts. On January 13, 1982 Judge Denzil Bevers issued an injunction in Harvey v Sanchez, et al. ordering the defendant landlords "to desist and refrain from excluding Plaintiff from her apartment without providing her a written notice on Plaintiff's front door describing where the key may be obtained at any hour and describing the name of the individual who will provide the Plaintiff with such key...."

The next day, January 14, 1982, Judge Thomas Clinton issued an injunction in Valma v Amonett, ordering the defendant landlord finish repairing a number of deteriorated conditions in the Plaintiff's home including: repairing the hot water heater, broken windows, and worn out doors and further ordered the landlord to "maintain the habitable condition of Plaintiff's home upon completion of the repairs and that defendant is ORDERED to repair and remedy any new condition caused by

Pastor Urges NAACP Support

There are a few left that can remember what so many of our sisters and brothers who were crushed with injustice. This is the organization that came to their rescue. It is our responsibility to keep the NAACP strong and effective. Because so many have fought and died for the cause of freedom (not free) and justice.

We shall long remember the great leader Roy W. Wilkins who even in the days of ill health he continued to work.

Let us not forget the great Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. who died on the battlefield.

We must keep our team together. We cannot stand back and let someone else do our job.

We all must get involved, less we forget the day of the backdoor.

If we don't meet the challenge, the death of those great men will be in vain.

YESTERDAY IS HISTORY

N' YORK CITY — In the 67th month of the late Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., and approaching Feb., in which time is set aside to mark "Black History Week," all has created a cul-de-sac in which my thoughts were trapped in memory of the sixties. Those were the years in which Dr. King's intentions became observable on the conscience of America. The period was referred to in many ways by politicians and laymen. However to most of my clan, it was a time of profanity. Each day there was another bitter headline, radio or television report to curse. Those were days filled with bitterness, anger and hard swallowing. The agony of this immortal man's struggle, the bravery of his march into the valley of bias, barbarity, prejudice and perversion won the admiration of fair minded persons in the total world. Despite the cowardly threats and wicked torture, the inhuman insolence and disrespect used against him by the forces of law and evil to deny us the most elementary rights of citizenship, his words of condemnation rang out to denounce the despot and his despotism. His every move and deeds highlighted the fundamental morality of the black cause. The anguish cry of his followers, white and black forged into a single sound and became one immortal voice. Their stand against the forces of power and evil was as brave as it was brilliant and pulsated with the dream of all humanity.

Perhaps there is a tomorrow when all people will live like brothers and share bread and liberty in a world forged out of the dream of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr.

THE BLACK PRESS — The black press is a major pivot upon which black history revolves. Currently Col. (Ret.) Steve Davis, exec. Dir., NNPA, is preparing a nationwide event to call attention to the annual occurrence of "Black Press Week" in Dec/Jan in Mid-March. It was on this occasion we shared some black newspaper intelligence which inspired this space filler.

"The sun shines for all white men and not for colored men." That was the response of the editor of the New York Sun in 1846 when black Willia S. Hodges of N'York responded to an editorial in that publication advocating little or no voting rights for the, then called, "colored men." Naturally his remarks were not printed in the papers "Voice of the People," so Mr. Hodges bought a $15. ad so his remarks to the editor could be published. Even under so bias standards, money talked. This racist action incensed Hodges so much he resolved to publish his own newspaper. As a result, "The Rams Horn," went into print in 1847. Thus the same manner of prejudice sparked an enterprise as it did in 1827 when freed slaves, John Brown Russwurm and Rev. Samuel E. Cornish published Freedom Journal, a black newspaper. That was 37 years before the Emancipation Proclamation, 1863.

Between 1827 and 1851 there were at least 40 black newspapers. After the Civil War, the number increased to some 575. This journalistic surge came on the heels of the growing number of educated blacks. Before the E. P. blacks were legally not permitted to learn from books, the Bible, which most of them could not read, was excluded. Black newspapers have always played an important role in black life. During the years following the war between the states, they devoted full space to the burning issues of that time. Thru them blacks were kept informed about the latest laws and how they affected their newly acquired freedom. As early as the 19th century, there was a need for a daily paper for blacks. The first such which came into being was The Daily Creole, founded in New Orleans in 1856 as the voice of the Creoles, or mixed bloods of that city. Behind this effort Dr. Louis C. Roudanez, a black physician, established the New Orleans Tribune in 1864.

Northward the Illinois Cairo Gazette was born in 1882, but died a fiery death when white racists torched and destroyed the paper's entire plant. The Columbus Georgia Messenger became the fourth black daily published when it was "put to bed," in 1887. Tuskegee graduate, B. T. Harvey was the founder and publisher. These are just a few of the black pioneers of black media history. They did their thing under the most adverse conditions, brought on by slavery, injustice and a horrible bank-aching lack of cash. They managed through amazing grace and left a legacy of incalculable wealth.

That's when the First United Methodist Church of Lubbock will be presenting another in a string of highly successful, highly professional American musical comedies. The choice this time could not be better in the Lincoln-Washington month of February for it will be Merdith Willson's "American as apple pie" hit, "The Music Man."

Termed a "volunteer show" by its directors Dr. John Wilson and John Packard of Lubbock, it is a fusion of the members of the church with those of the community and Texas Tech.

The story of the con man supreme, the musical instruments salesman in the midwest of the 1900's (early) who comes to town to organize a kids' band to sell uniforms and instruments and remains to capture the heart of the town's librarian, Marian, and entirely change the face of River City, to boot.

The leading roles of Marian and the con man, Prof. Harold Hill will be played by Cathy Crist Talcott and Terence Reilly. Miss Crist, who does public relations with the Tech music department, has scored on local stage in past with leads in "110 in the Shade," "On a Clear Day" The King and I, "West Side Story," and many others. Reilly has an equally impressive list of credits at Tech and elsewhere.

A large cast of supporting roles in this 50-member cast are expected and highly talented. Tickets may be purchased at the church office, at 1411 Broadway for $5 or $6, or call 763-4607.

In the meantime, there is a wealth of good movie fare in town. You look in the theatre pages and you'll see the Academy Award nominees galore, now available for viewing. Such as "Chariots of Fire," "On Golden Pond," "Reds," "Arthur," and others, including Jack Nicholson's "The Border" and the long-running "Raiders of the Lost Ark."

One by one we'll get to those as we go. The Awards are given out at the end of March. Touching on a brand-new (and controversial to some) film opened this week at the UA South Plains Mall Cinema. This is "Making Love," a brilliantly handled and directed film by Arthur Hiller of the problem of a latent homosexual married for eight years, a successful doctor, who "comes out" and separates from his wife to seek his own life style. It is a sensitive theme and is handled adroitly and discreetly and thoroughly believably by an astute and shining cast handled by Hiller. While it contains the seeds of sensationalism, this film does not exploit the

JULIAN BOND

New term: 'playing it off'

By Julian Bond

"Playing it off."
That's what my children saw a woman doing at the supermarket last week.
She had tried to enter through the "exit" door. When she realized that onlookers might have believed her mistake was caused by retardation or intoxication, she tried to play it off.
She seemed to be pretending that she had known all along that she had only stopped to glance inside before choosing the proper door for her entrance.
"Maybe she thought we'd think she was just trying to see if the store was open," suggested my 13-year-old son. The hundreds of customers inside were visible from across the parking lot.
"Maybe she wanted us to believe she was shopping with her sister, and they were going to meet in the cereal section," my 11-year-old daughter guessed.
But both of them really believed she was only trying to play it off.
You've probably tried to play it off a time or two yourself. Remember when you came home with lipstick on your collar and tried to play it off by saying that the woman you saved from the earthquake must have left it there?
Or when you ran into a man you thought was Charlie Boozer and rambled on and on about your mutual two-day bender last July? When you realized that the fellow was really the Rev. Elwise Begood, you tried to play it off by pretending that you had been talking all along about two other people whose behavior you abhorred.
This practice is as pervasive in the public sector as it is in private.
A largely forgotten bureaucrat played off his relatives' predominance on the public payroll by declaring that nepotism was innocent if kept within the family.
A congressman later convicted in ABSCAM tried to play off his incriminating videotaped performance by insisting that he had actually been investigating FBI corruption.
The collection of crimes known as Watergate has been so successfully played off by its numerous participants that few Americans can cite that scandal's specifics.
Our presidents are in competition for excess in playing it off.
Richard Nixon played off his trip to China by explaining that the Chinese weren't Russians.
Gerald Ford played off the fall of Vietnam and Cambodia by going to battle over the Mayaguez.
Jimmy Carter played off Billy's misbehavior by reminding us that he was not his little brother's keeper.
And Ronald Reagan plays off hurting the poorest by claiming that they will be helped the soonest by his economic program even as they are harmed the most.
People — or nations — try to play it off when embarrassed by something they know they should not have done.
Instead of admitting guilt or apologizing, however, they play it off by offering an utterly implausible excuse or diverting our attention through some outrageous action.
Either way, they're only playing it off.

Ringing The Bell

by Bob Tieuel

(Editor's Note: When this column was completed, Bob Tieuel was rushed to Reeves County Hospital in Pecos, Texas for a check-up. He is expected to be released by the time we go to press.)

Dear Bob -- "What I remember most about the great depression days of FDR is not the hard and hungry days, but the hopelessness that permeated everything... The privileged learned to hate Roosevelt with a passion. Many a cook, maid, yardboy would conclude that if Roosevelt was such an enemy of the rich, he truly had to care about the poor. Roosevelt knew this. So he would say in September 1934: 'I am not for a return to that definition of liberty under which for many years a free people were being gradually regimented into the service of the privileged few'. And in January 1936 he would tell Congress: 'We have earned the enmity of entrenched greed.'

The players come and go, but the contest remains the same. President Reagan opposes big government and federal regulations in the name of giving 'liberty' back to the people, but he is assailed by those who think he is merely succumbing to 'entrenched greed.'
If Roosevelt could only hear the cries for budget cuts and the destruction of the social programs that come from people with two houses, three cars, a boat and 14 tax shelters! Roosevelt said in 1940, that 'a full stomach often groans more loudly than an empty stomach'. And so it is in America today.

I shall never forget the day when the principal of my little Jim Crow school told me he had talked someone out of some NRA (National Recovery Act) money and that he could pay me $3 a month to raise and lower the flag every day. Wow! It was only $3 but it was a million dollars' worth of hope.

Therein lies the difference between the Roosevelt and Reagan revolutions. The former generated and nurtured hope. The latter is destroying it for millions of poor and middle-class Americans." end of quote. Yours fraternally, Carl Rowan.

Important Quotes: "Segregation is defined differently for a school than for other institutions. Any school that had the same racial composition as Kennedy Airport or the Metropolitan Opera could be hit with a court order to desegregate. But no such court order is issued to these other institutions.

Airports, hospitals, restaurants, or theaters are considered desegregated when they are open to everyone regardless of what mixture of people actually use them. But schools are condemned as segregated, even if every race of man is admitted and present — if they are not present in the right proportions. The reason for this double standard go all the way back to the assumptions of Brown v Board of Education in 1954." end of quote from Dr. Thomas Sowell, a black senior fellow at the Stanford University Hoover Institution on War, Revolution and Peace.

PRAY TV: (Bellringer Writes) "Pray TV was realistic. Indeed, evangelical Christians have had to answer the question of how to reach people for Christ — through the Church or the tube. The only command is that the Gospel be preached. It needs no help. It can be presented simply on a one-to-one basis or through the mass media. Certainly religious television operates in the natural parameters of good television production, using teleprompters and applause signs.
For areas of this world have an abundance of churches to attend, and for the masses television is the only way for them to hear. The people reached are not forgotten.

More Reflections On February And The Negatives

by Eddie P. Richardson

During the month of February, we have run a series on Dr. Carter Goodwin Woodson and his works on Blacks' contribution to the history of America. In 1921, Dr. Woodson organized the Associated Publishers to make available books about Negroes which were rarely accepted by commercial publishers of America.

The observance of National Negro History week was first begun by the Association. Its results penetrated deeply into the segregated schools of the South, giving inspiration and a sense of self-esteem to many students during the Negro revolt of the 1960's.

The Negro History Bulletin was founded in 1930 as a medium of information for the general public and school children.

While diligently organizing and promoting the Journal, the Associated Publishers, Negro History Week, and the Bulletin, Dr. Woodson searched for documents, collected information and compiled, edited and wrote many books. He published the following works. These publications will be published in the conclusion of this series next week.

During this February series, we have been able to furnish you with information which we believe is very beneficial.

Here are the names of some of our famous slave owners: Hammurabi (C 1955-1913 B. C.), King of Babylon; Andrew Jackson (1767-1845), seventh U. S. President who possessed 160 slaves when he became chief executive; Aristotle (384-322 B. C.), Greek philosopher; Catherine the Great (1729-1796) empress of Russia; John Calvin (1509-1564), French protestant reformer; Plutarch (467-1207), Greek biographer and moralist; Andrew Johnson (1808-1875), seventeenth U. S. President; Constantine the Great (280?-337), Roman emperor; Hernando Cortes (1483-1546), Spanish conqueror of Mexico.

Final series next week.

This column has addressed the issue of career days and world of work programs which are Black oriented and not giving the total picture of Blacks in the real world.

John Pierre called this writer one day last week and said: "The Student Organization for Black Unity (SOBU) was contacting some of the black businesses in the community." This was good!

This organization (SOBU), however, did recognize Dr. L. S. Graves, founder and principal of Mary & Mac Private School and the first Black to attend the lily white Texas Tech University. She is the first and only Black to own a private independent school in these parts.
As we look around at the career days and such programs, we wonder why some people are never used. There is Dr. F. L. Lovings who was one of the first Black doctors to come to Lubbock. He worked in community activities for many years. Now he is retired and is not in the best of health. He has probably never been used on a panel for Black youth to see.

Also there is Mr. N. P. (Beauty) Holmes, one of the original Black Building Contractors. We have other self employed and independent business people. For example Wilbur Berry, one of the best cabinet makers in this part of the world. There's also longtime independent businessman Alfred Caviel, Dr. Heenan Johnson, Robert Pillow, III & IV. There is C. F. Cooke, Jr., a board member of a national Black million dollar financial institution. He is also vice president and Texas area director of Atlanta Life Insurance Company.

What a pity that many young Blacks haven't had an opportunity to reach out and touch these people.

Another good and worthwhile gesture was held last Sunday afternoon. It was the honoring of Mrs. Lillian Carolyn (Porter) Struggs, a longtime educator, music teacher, and church worker. She and her late husband — Prof. E. C. Struggs — have touched in one way or another thousands of lives over the years.

It was just good to see Mrs. R. B. Thompson and others. I. S. Mrs. Joan Y. Ervin, Mrs. Barbara Boswell, Mrs. Mae Pearl Jackson, Mrs. Ruby Jay, and others do something which was worthwhile and timely during Black Heritage Month. Mrs. Struggs is one of our heroines. A story will be published about Mrs. Struggs, along with others, next week.

Food for thought: We hear about the social cuts and defense spending increases. All the rhetoric about social cuts, welfare cutbacks usually center around Blacks. FACT: More white women are on welfare than all minority families combined in the business of cutbacks, guess who will lose the most jobs, especially starting from top, i.e. directors and supervisors, etc. Think about it!!
NUFF SED!! WHY NOT???

next meal is coming from, people over in the White House seem to show more concern about the China place settings than the condition of the poor and working poor.

You and I know, of course, that one hasty correction to avoid immediate disaster will not cause Reagan to halt his skid into the past, nor provide him with the vision to look into the future. While the House was correcting the Job Service mishap, he was merrily stamping the Midwest attempting to sell his New Federalism concept.

Reaganomics -- More of the Same

President Reagan has gone all the way in endorsing and adopting the philosophy of Herbert Hoover. Every day the American people are presented with new evidence of this backsliding into the past.

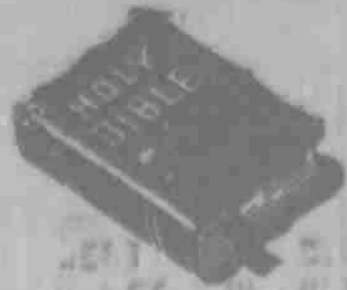

About three weeks ago, for instance, in a speech delivered in New York City, the President stated that if churches and synagogues would adopt about 10 poor families each, federal welfare programs could be eliminated. When Hoover tried this approach, the result was degradation and near starvation for millions — plus an unemployment rate of more than 25 percent.

In a column early in November, while commenting on Reagan's upside-down approach to economics, I wrote: "Since the days of the New Deal, funding and staffing of Unemployment Insurance and the companion Employment Service Program have been based generally on the need for services. That is, during times of high unemployment, staffs have been increased while during periods of low unemployment the staffs have been decreased. The Reagan budget cuts, however, are changing this. Throughout the country, unemployment insurance and employment service offices are closing their doors as unemployment rolls mount."

Well, I'm happy to report, on February 9 my colleagues in the House of Representatives got the message — at least with regard to Job Service programs — and passed House Joint Resolution 391. This Resolution provides critically needed supplemental appropriations for Unemployment Insurance and restores many of the cuts which had been imposed on the Employment Service.

As a co-sponsor of the Resolution, in urging its passage from the floor of the House, I again pointed out the idiocy of the Reagan approach. "If it were not for the coldness and callousness of Reagan and his surrogates over in the office of mis-management and cut-it, this legislation would not even be needed." I said. "But because of the actions he and his henchmen took last year and especially last fall, over 500 employees in my State of Illinois alone, whose job is to help find employment for others, were themselves near victims of Reagan's indiscriminate budget ax."

Stressing the President's reverse priorities, I told my colleagues: "I find it unconscionable that in this time of recession and outrageously high unemployment — when millions of blacks, browns, and whites are wondering where their

Pastor
East Lubbock Church of God

Are You Really Ready For A Change?

What has happened? We can hardly find people who are living what they say! Many of our preachers are preaching one thing and living another. Has God lost his power to save? No! Many who you know have let iniquity come between them and God.

Now what is needed? We need those who have made up their minds to go all the way with Jesus Christ to step forward and say, "I know not what course others will take, but as for me and my house, we will serve the Lord."

In the West Texas area and other areas where this paper is read, I am sure that you agree with me that there is a definite need for return to God in an honest and sincere way. Pointing out how some of our ministers (black and white) are living does not solve the problem. The devil does not only work in black people but he is working in all people. He does not only work among ministers but among church members as well, if they let him. But the Lord has said, "Rend your hearts and not your garments and turn unto the Lord your God."

It does not matter how pious a person appears to be; unless the world can see the true light in our lives, we have defeated our purpose. You would all agree that we need to stop talking about what is wrong and do something about it.

I believe this in our reading area there are many people who want to be true workers for Jesus Christ. So I urge you who will say "I love Jesus and want to bring about a change in my town" to call me today. Those of you who really love the Lord and want to see more people saved, call me today at (806) 747-6899. I am not asking for money; that is not what is needed. We need people who want to work for Jesus, for time is running out. The time for talk is over. Let us act now for Christ.

St. Luke Missionary Society Entertains

The members of the St. Luke Baptist Church Senior Missionary Society entertained the three outgoing presidents on Monday evening, February 7th, at 7 p. m. in the church fellowship hall.

A spaghetti dinner with all the trimmings was served in the spirit of love for service rendered.

The table colors were red and white for Valentine's Day. Sisters Ora Craven, president; Irbie Whitfield, vice president; and Etta Tucker, second vice president, were given a corsage of red and white carnations by the new president, Sister Annie Sanders.

The Mission's gifts were potted money trees placed in scripture mugs; arrangement by Sister Lillian Anderson. Special musical were given by Sister Clara Leonard. Also a solo was sung by Sister Lillian Duty. Remarks were given by Sisters R. Graves, B. Swisher and O. Smith. There were fifty members present. Hostesses for this lovely affair were Sisters Lottie Smith, Hess Adams, Willie

The Outreach Prayer Breakfast

The members and friends of the Outreach Prayer Breakfast met last Saturday morning in the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Rainwater. This is a lovely home with two beautiful people.

Mrs. C. E. Fair presided over the meeting.

Opening devotion was found in St. John 15:1-7, with Mrs. Gladys Shepherd, Mrs. M. Bogus, Mrs. C. E. Brown, and Mrs. Fair participating.

The morning scripture lesson was led by Mrs. C. C. Peoples. Her subject was "If We Don't Abide in The Vine, We Wont Survive." St. John 15:1-11 (Living Bible).

"I am the true vine, and my Father is the gardner. He chops off every branch that doesn't produce. He prunes those branches that bear fruit for even larger crops."

This speaker said: "Its what's on the inside that counts. It's not the material things but spiritual. The Lord said: 'I stand at the door and knock, but the knob is on the inside. It's up to you to open up your heart and let him in. If we don't let him in, if we don't abide in Jesus Christ, we won't survive. We wont survive! We wont survive!'"

Oh, what a message. Read all of this 15th chapter. You will find in it a Survival Plan. Mrs. Peoples, you opened up our eyes and we are thankful. "Love ya"

Remarks were given. A lovely solo was sung by Mrs. Annie Day. It was entitled: "When The Lord Gets Ready, You Got To Move."

One sentence sermon: Teach a wise man and will be the wiser." Think about it!

The guest were welcomed by Mrs. Annie Day. Breakfast was served with all kinds of good food by those very special cooks. Why not do yourself a favor, come and eat with people who loves you.

Let's continue to pray for our sick and shut-in members of the church and community.

A Look At The Black Church

by
Rev. Robert D. Adams
Unity Baptist Church

(Editor's Note: This is a series written by Rev. Robert D. Adams, pastor of the Unity Baptist Church. Because of the interest shown by some readers, it will continue next week).

Black Churches Generally Have Too Many Auxiliaries

In most black churches the popular thing to do is have many auxiliaries to give everybody something to do. Some preachers take in a member this way: "Thank you, for coming forward. Do you have anything to tell the folk?" "Yes sir, I want you all to know that the Lord freed my soul; and I promised Him that I would serve Him till I die. I know I been born again, and I just want to join the church." The pastor shakes her hand, giving her the right hand of fellowship and asking what auxiliary she would like to work with or what auxiliary she used to work with. He sends her to that auxiliary. No instructions about salvation, soul winning, Christ, or orientation.

Each president becomes a pastor; and whatever he doesn't like about the church program, he organizes the whole group against it -- right or wrong. When they get angry because of no response, they go home or refuse to serve.

In most black churches we have majored on minor things and minored on major things. We have concentrated on the church work instead of the work of the church. We have our auxiliaries selling chicken, barbecue, ice cream, dressing, fish, candy, and so forth, instead of teaching people about the Bible. A church is to be supported by tithes and offerings. Let's cut out those groups majoring in money raising and institute a soul-winning program. Jesus gave you plenty to do. Preach and teach in every house.

from the states and too much liberty with the Constitution," he charged in Indianapolis. Of course he didn't add that, for too often, it has been the states which have ignored the Constitution and refused to dispense tax dollars with fairness. Reagan is hopeful that everybody who experienced the past is either dead or senile, and that the remainder of the population are poor students of history.

The President, of course, had every reason to want to get out of Washington considering the budget he had the nerve to submit to Congress for Fiscal Year 1983. This record budget of $757.6 billion, calls for slashing health, welfare and other social programs by $12 billion while increasing military spending by $33.1 billion.

A new battle of the budget has therefore been joined. I am hopeful that the forces on the side of the people will be more successful this year than we were last year. In any case, the people will have to make their views known through every forum at their command if we are to have a fighting chance.
