

Senate To Fight Bonus Rider In Tax Bill

News Behind The News

Orders—

WASHINGTON (AP)—If Senate rebels gum up the tax bill with deep slashes in the lower brackets, bonus riders and inflation jokers Taxer Pat Harrison will pass the blame to Secretary Morgenthau. He declined Pat's invitation to suggest patriotic rates around which the Mississippi can rally Rooseveltian soul-the-richers.

The man responsible for Mr. Morgenthau's silence is the President. Long ago he issued a standing order that Treasury spokesmen should not propose specific rate schedules to Congress. The Cabinet members seemed tongue-tied—sorry. Senators used harsher words in committee-room asides—but he was simply carrying out the Chief's orders. Mr. Roosevelt is maneuvering to force Congress to assume responsibility for wallet-tapping.

The presidential strategy makes the financial prime minister appear foolish. It stirs the Senatorial suspicion that Mr. Morgenthau is an able administrator than he is a financier—a slightly unfair conclusion. And it plays into the hands of radicals and conservatives bent on embarrassing the administration over taxes.

Weapon—

House Labor Committee members have served a quiet ultimatum on Assistant Navy Secretary Roosevelt. They have ordered him to investigate the strike at the New York Shipbuilding company's Camden yards or undergo investigation himself.

For almost three months cruiser construction has been halted by labor difficulties at the yard. Under the cruiser contract, the company is exempt from penalties if delay results from "inexcusable strikes." The Navy Department reserves the right to undertake completion of the vessels if the corporation is found to be at fault.

Naval officials informed Congress that Secretary Roosevelt has made no move to investigate the cause of the strike. From other sources the legislators hear that the Navy executive refused to receive an employee's brief describing the trouble as a "lockout." The significance is that if the administration enforces on all industries concerned similar provisions present in many other contracts it may have found a substitute weapon for Section 7 (a).

Roll-Call—

The on-again, off-again unemployment census seems to have been lost in the shuffle.

Economic experts have urged it as a means of learning the low-down on the number of people out of work. Many students regard the A. F. of L.'s figures as too high and the National Industrial Conference estimates as too low. The study was also counted on to show how many workers had been permanently replaced through mechanization and entrance of women into industry.

But persistent inquiry discloses that there are no plans or allotment of funds for the survey. It is inside talk that it would furnish no permanent benefits inasmuch as conditions change so rapidly. Others predict that the desired information will become available through a roll call of workers and workless that will accompany establishment of the old age and unemployment pension systems.

Figures—

The nation's steel makers have come off fairly well in their private feud with the New Dealers. They have resisted Harold Ickes' move to lower prices in PWA works. They outmaneuvered Attorney General Cummings in the investigation into steel rail prices. They managed to preserve the system of shipping f. o. b. Pittsburgh.

But the mild Cordell Hull is laying for them. Their broadside against his pet hobby—reciprocal tariff agreements—nettled him, and his aides have prepared a reply which is awaiting his return from vacation. It denounces the complaint of the American Iron and Steel Institute as absurd, "grotesque," and their tariff attitude as "short sighted."

Whereas they claimed that 3900 men had been thrown out of work by foreign imports of steel in the first five months of this year, Mr. Hull will say that the increase of exports over imports during that period gave employment to 21,436 men. He will list a $400,000,000 gain in steel exports for 1934 over 1933. And also point out that six steel magnates drew down $1,069,916 in salaries last year.

Run-Off Primary For Kentucky Is Now Necessary

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—That a run-off primary election will be needed Sept. 7 to determine the choice of Kentucky Democrats for the gubernatorial nomination apparently is certain Tuesday on the basis of incomplete returns from Saturday's primary election.

As the count progressed the lead alternated between Lieut.-Gov. A. B. (Happy) Chandler, who advocated repeal of the state sales tax and attacked the administration of Gov. Rhea Laffoon, and Thomas S. Rhea, defender of the Laffoon administration.

Three other candidates trailed far behind but their total vote appeared sufficient if maintained to prevent either Chandler or Rhea from obtaining a majority.

Meanwhile, three other states made ready for elections today—Mississippi, Virginia and Rhode Island.

Superintendent Keating said late Tuesday afternoon he was expecting information from Washington soon as to additional appropriation for work at the farm. Homer McNew, PWA administrator, told The Herald Tuesday he did not have any such project listed in his department.

Oilers Best Leaders, 6-3

Flewellen Operators Fail To Stop March Of Refiners

Thundering their way to two victories Monday evening, one a 6-3 decision over the Herald Type Lice and the other a 7-3 win over the Flewellen Stationmen, the mighty Cosden Oilers advanced as serious threats for the top slot in the Muny loop.
The Cosdenites, after shellingacking the Operators in the second game, marched off the field in sole possession of third place in the league standings, a half game in front of their conquered foes. They rest only a game behind the second place Mellinger Angels, whom they meet in the season's final on August 15, and two games behind the leading Heraldites.
While the Cosdenites were combing the offerings of Roland Swatzy for eight hits in the first game, Freddy Simmons limited the big bats of the Newsies to three bingles, all of which came in the fourth stanza.
The Oilers jumped on Swatzy for six hits and four runs in the first two innings, which eventually proved enough to win the game. The first two runs, however, were unearned. Jack Smith, following Whitt to the bat in the first inning, popped up to Ward Hall in deep short. Gant, right gardner for the Newsies, attempted to snag the ball as Hall went back for it and both runners collided, the pellet rolling toward the foul line. Smith, meanwhile, had rounded second and was attempting to reach third. The Herald shortstop picked the ball up and, attempting to catch the Cosden first sacker at third, threw wild and Smith romped home.
Baker, Martin and Edwards followed with base hits, and Moxley coaxed a free pass out of Swatzy sending Baker across.
Simmons and Whitt added to the Oilers' lead in the second when Baker put them across with a mighty lick into the outfield.
Trailing 4-0 into the fourth, the Herald rebelled suddenly to count all their runs on three base hits and a costly error by Smith. Williamson, Hall and Gant recorded the three Herald runs.
Simmons, however, tightened to protect his slim lead and succeeded in twirling hitless ball throughout the rest of the game, although "Skeet" West saved him possible trouble in the fifth when he made a sensational catch of Swatzy's fly into right field. The fleet footed Cosdenite dug his fingernails into the ball as it was dropping along the foul line, succeeded in delaying its fall and finally got his hands under it to draw it in.
Simmons, meanwhile, led off with his second hit in the fourth and recorded the fifth Cosden run when Hall erred on successive grounders by Smith and Baker.
While Simmons' free pass to Hall in the sixth was the only mistake he made, the Oilers put Swatzy in another hole in the fifth and tallied their run in the sixth when Harris erred on Martin's roller.
Good work by the left side of the Herald infield saved several possible runs in the troublesome fifth. Mileaway Baker and Simmons divided bat honors for the victors with a pair of licks each.
In the second game, each team tallied twice in the first stanza, but the Oilers broke loose in the fifth to count three runs and ice the game.
The Cosdenites' defense was shaky. Simmons' matts' kicking through with seven errors but they took advantage of several costly miscues by the Operators to gain their victory.
The Henninger forces found Elmer Dyer, who twirled for the Stationmen in the absence of Grovelle Malone, doing "iron man" duty for the Cosdenites, set the Stationmen down with four.
Baker and Smith hit safely twice each to account for the majority of the Oilers' blows. Coats led the losers' assault with a pair of licks.

Bob Cummings And Hill Mix Tonight

California, 'Bama's All American Due To Mix It Up

Don Hill, who made Big Spring one of his stops on his return to California from the east and who made such an impression in his only local start that he decided to delay his departure for home, will attempt to keep his local record unmarred tonight when he steps into the ring against Bob Cummings of Alabama in the Big Spring Athletic Club's main event.
The dark headed West Coast lad added new flavor to the local fight game last week by besting Jack Domar and may beat the cagy Cummings at his own scientific game.
The former Alabama football star has been adding to his reputation with a string of local and foreign victories and can wrestle in any style his opponent chooses.
Tonight's main go is expected to be cleaner than any of the main attractions held during the past several weeks.
The victorious Domar, in the midst of one of his worst losing streaks, will attempt to break into the victory column tonight in the semi-windup but he has chosen one of the toughest opponents in doing so.
His ring enemy will be Walter O'Conner, former challenger to Jack Reynolds' welterweight crown. O'Conner hails from Detroit, home of the Tigers and Joe Louis.
The Cincinnati, however, may get the breaks which have gone the other way in his last few matches and write a different ending tonight when he leaves the ring.
Pat Dowdy, victorious in his first and only local start, will return as the attraction on the special event where he locks holds with newcomer Harry Dowler.
The Dowler-Dowdy match will begin promptly at 8:30.

BOB CUMMINGS

Former Alabama grid star, Bob Cummings, will swap holds tonight at the Big Spring Athletic Club with Don Hill, classy West Coast performer. Both participants use clean tactics. The rough scrap is slated to be the semi-go tiff between Jack Domar and Walter O'Conner.

REDUCE IT FURTHER
During the past few years there has been a slow, but steady, decrease in the nation's fire loss. The decrease is extending into 1935, according to figures issued by the National Board of Fire Underwriters. During the first six months of this year, loss totaled $136,400,000, as compared with $158,064,000 during the same period in 1934.

The trend is encouraging—about a decade ago the annual fire loss ran in excess of $500,000,000 a year. However, it is still much too high. At least eighty per cent of fires are unnecessary—at least eighty per cent of them could be prevented by thought, care, perhaps the expenditure of a little money.

Every citizen should voluntarily enlist in the fire-fighting army in an effort to further reduce this useless waste. He should periodically inspect his property, and correct any hazards that exist from basement to attic. Files of papers, improperly stored inflammables, old or amateur electric wiring, defective furnaces, pipes and fuses—these are among the great causes of fire in dwellings. And a prolific outside source of fire that is especially dangerous during summer months is dry, uncut grass.

Any local fire marshal or fire department is glad to give a citizen assistance in the matter of discovering and eliminating fire hazards. Insurance companies are equally co-operative. Ignorance of hazards, like ignorance of the law, is no excuse—the knowledge that will prevent fire can be easily obtained.

In the long run, fire loss determines the cost of insurance, and if we lower losses it will be reflected in our premium rate as soon as it is proved that the waste is going to stay down. Fire loss increases taxes and is a burden to every member of the community. Fire prevention should be regarded as both a privilege and a duty that saves lives and money and preserves irreplaceable resources.

Lorraine Team Works For Meet

LORLAINE (Sp.)—Harvey Munn and his Lorraine Independent nine scheduled to leave either Saturday or Sunday for the Wichita Invitation Baseball Tournament, will continue to hold their daily workouts through the rest of the week.

Munn has lined up several practice games in an effort to find the weak spots and expects to have these ironed out before they depart for the Kansas city.

Although the Lorraine manager failed to contact Jake Morgan and Miller Harris, Big Spring sluggers, he is expected to be at full strength with new talent added in the box and in the outer gardens.

The Wichita meet will begin August 13 and will terminate August 25. About 32 teams from all parts of the nation have posted their entrance fees.

G. Liberty Weds Miss Merrick

Young Couple To Make Their Home In Odessa

Gerald Liberty and Miss Eugenia Merrick were married Saturday night in Midland by the Rev. Mr. Minter, pastor of the First Methodist church of that city. Joe Black of Big Spring accompanied them to Midland.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Liberty of this city, having made his home here for the past seven years. He was graduated from the Wentworth Military academy in Lexington, Mo., in 1929. He is well known over the state for his interest in band and orchestra music. He has not only formed several dance orchestras of his own, but has also played in orchestras in Tulsa, Oklahoma, Kansas City and the leading cities of Texas. He is employed by the Independent Eastern Torpedo company and is now located in Odessa.

The bride is a well known local girl who was born and reared in Stanton. Her parents died when she was a child and her grandmother reared her until her death a few years ago. Since that time Wendell Bedichek has been her guardian. She came to Big Spring to attend high school and was graduated from the 1935 class. She is very popular with the younger set.

The young couple are making their home in Odessa.

GIRL SCOUT CAMP NEWS

"Tons," or the gateway to heaven, is the name of the new unit that has been created for 12-15 year old Girl Scouts in Camp Mary White, the regional Girl Scout camp in the Sacramento mountains.

An Indian theme is followed in the program of the unit, and they are learning Indian crafts and songs. One of the projects of the group is the making of a totem as a song for the unit. Another work they are doing is the branding of all the silverware with the camp brand, a Hopi horse with the initials "CMW."

Next week the group will go on an overnight trip to Allen Canyon where they will be initiated to Dutch Oven cookery. This week they are flooring their unit dining-room with stone flagging, cemented with clay.

Mrs. Fred Norris, of Robstown, Texas is unit leader and Miss Ruth Jean Smith, of Rosewell, N. M. is food taster.

Only girl in the unit from Big Spring is Janice Slaughter. Other Big Spring campers are Jacqueline Faw and Betty Wood. Mrs. H. S. Faw is a student leader.

Four girls from the Santa Fe Indian school are also helping with the unit, and to dedicate its creation, they were in charge of an Indian program for the whole camp on Sunday, Aug. 4.

Lupe Sando, of the Jemez tribe; Cecelia Bernal, of the Taos tribe; Reycilia Cruz, whose tribe is the San Juan, and Mary Belle Prowell, member of a Delaware tribe, told the most famous legends of their respective tribes. They also had several tableaux depicting the crafts of their nations, and sang Indian songs.

On Saturday the entire camp had a rodeo and round-up at the Turkey Springs outpost camp, at which time the units participated in competitive games.

"Love Me Forever," Ritz Attraction, Two Days, Tuesday and Wednesday

Michael Bartlett and Grace Moore in "Love Me Forever"—A Columbia Picture.

When Grace Moore stepped on the sound stage which housed the Metropolitan Opera House set at the Columbia Studios where her new picture, "Love Me Forever," a dramatic musical romance, was being filmed, she could not restrain a gasp of amazement. Studio technicians had reproduced the interior of the famous playhouse with an uncanny accuracy.

Miss Moore's appreciation of the set and her subsequent congratulations amply repaid Director Victor Schertzinger, Art Director Stephen Goossens, and his crew in charge of technical details of the opera sequences. The task of duplicating the Metropolitan on a sound stage has been no inconsequential one.

Perfection Required

Too many persons are acquainted with the famed theatre to admit of any divergence from strict reproduction. It had to be built to scale and to detail.

On a stage 300 feet long and half as wide, the elevated stage and orchestra pit were first built. Then the technicians laid a sloping floor on which stood the auditorium seats. The slope was of the same angle as the floor of the actual Metropolitan. At either side of the proscenium arch was duplicated in plaster and gold leaf the scrollwork which distinguishes the pillars of the great playhouse. Twenty tons of plaster were used in each of these pillars.

Chapter 25
COMPLICATIONS
"I said that the time had come when we could make an end of this farce," Laurie managed to control her voice.
"It seems a little soon," Rex replied. "I have only been back six weeks."
"Isn't that time enough for us to find out that we don't get on?" "I wasn't thinking of that. There are other things."
"What can there be?" Then she put in quickly "You said before you went to Africa that you owed Mr. Albery money. Is that it?"
"One of them."
Her eyes were steady and looked hostile.
"I can't see how that can matter."
"Albery might turn against me to the window. The memory of that fair, one-armed young man from Australia came back to her. The questions he had asked her about her marriage with Rex Moore. And her stupid answers. She had heard no more of him. She had forgotten him until just now. What was she to do? Tell Rex Moore about him? No, she couldn't bring herself to do that. It had probably meant nothing. The young man had gone back to Australia, no doubt. Australia was such a long way off.

And probably nobody would trouble to investigate the facts she had given him. She herself was quite unknown. More than likely, all trace of her family was lost by now. Her father had made such a mess of things after her mother's death. He had had no more life in him, and just faded

er. "It's kind of you to give me the extra time, Laurie. I won't keep you waiting a minute longer than I can help."
Much against her will, Laurie was drawn into a measure of public life. There was no getting out of it. Rex Moore was the lion of the day. Not only his recent rescue flight, but his dramatic return from the dead had caught the public imagination.
Even his grim determination could not prevent the publicity he loathed. He told himself fiercely that he was tied up with these debts that came crowding upon him because of his own fault, and that he could not repay. He could not escape except by disappearing once more into the air.
Laurie had to attend several functions with him. She did not mind the public ones so much. There were crowds, and she was always intensely interested in everything that went on around her. And everybody was so kind.
But several private dinner parties she hated and only got through by a tremendous effort of will. And when she had to give a Sunday luncheon party at the flat, she was terribly nervous although she was a born housekeeper, and Rex Moore had told her to get all the extra help she needed and this time not to economize.
"We must show some hospitality to Albery," he told her. "Hang it all, we are living in his flat rent free!"
So it came about that Laurie sat at the head of her own luncheon table, entertaining Wanda Steele and Mark Albery, as well as other men distinguished in the world of aviation. But for her there was only one man present—Rex Moore.

"You mean we shall have to get free legally. Get a divorce, or rather, pretend to get one. I must be a great fool; I admit I never thought of that. But, of course, it can be managed, somehow, without anybody knowing."
Again Laurie thought fearfully of the young man from Australia, but she could not bring herself to speak of him.
"Are you in a great hurry?" he asked. "Do you want to get married?"
"No," she said distantly; and added, with a wonderful imitation of a natural smile, "But perhaps you do?"
"Not likely." He gave her one of those intent, penetrating looks from his grey eyes, that had their snowy, blind look. "Laurie, have you ever been in love?"
She looked back at him defiantly, although her color rose.
"No. Have you?"
"No."
"What about poor Belle Mason?" She did not know what forced her to say such an unkind, vicious thing. "You were going to marry her?"
"I was fond of Belle," he answered coldly. Then his voice changed, and he said as casually as if he were discussing the weather.

"I thought that was fixed. We shall decide that we don't get on together, and separate. It's nothing unusual these days."
"But we're supposed to be married!"
"I know."
"Well, we can't stay married, can we?"
"I see!" He gave a savage laugh.

If he thought I had treated you... He was making excuses and he knew it. And that made him rage inwardly. A loud, insistent voice was calling in his ears. "I don't want her to go!"
"I think that is absurd," she said. "Well, could it matter to Mr. Albery?"
"I don't want to risk the slight chance of Albery finding out the truth." It was clumsy, ridiculous, pitiable. He knew it. But the voice went on—"She is lovely! She is the loveliest thing in the world!" Laurie turned away and walked

Bristow Wins City Tourney

Beats Eddie Morgan In Thirty-Six Hole Match, 5-4

Oble Bristow, giant Big Spring Steer coach and local Sand Belt golfer, triumphed over young Eddie Morgan for the second time in a week Monday, defeating his younger opponent, 5-4, in the 36-hole finals of the City golf tournament.

Bristow, shooting consistently on the last eighteen holes, took an early lead to end the match on the fourteenth hole.

The Big Spring mentor was three over par on the last round. Bristow jumped into a lead on the first nine holes of the second round, after Morgan had held him on even terms on the first eighteen, to pile up a disadvantage Morgan could not overcome.

Bristow advanced into the final round by defeating Theron Hicks, while Morgan slipped in with a hard fought semi-final victory over Shirley Robbins.

RITZ TUESDAY WEDNESDAY

NEW YORK
By JAMES McMULLIN

Wide—New York insiders understand that the administration is determined to keep the cost of credit low for a long time to come. This will apply to corporate as well as government borrowing. Informed sources agree that it is easily within the Treasury's power to maintain cheap money rates—and they figure this is a far more important part of the New Deal philosophy than is generally realized.

The underlying idea is that savings on public and private debt service are somehow to be translated into additional wages—although the mechanism to assure this result has not yet been worked out.

Such a program has wide implications. For one thing, it penalizes investors in bonds and other forms of indebtedness. If they want the safety of liens they have to accept smaller returns than in the past. A lot of them will presumably shift over into equities—stocks—and that is said to be part of the plan also. New Dealers aim to give those who share the equity risk of an enterprise a break at the expense of those who are merely mortgagees.

Deep—Financial experts call this principle a much more significant wealth-sharing project than the tax program. Money is taken away from creditors by lowering their income on their investments—just as surely as if it were taxed money. It is given instead either to workers in wages or to stockholders in profits. The aggregate "redistribution"—if the cheap money policy is made permanent—will be enormous. The subtlety of the plan tends to make it more effective. Few people recognize what's going on—and fewer still object. Industry certainly doesn't. Why should it demur at paying less interest? Wage earners have no kick coming. Only bondholders are taking it on the chin—and they are not yet generally aware that progressively cheaper refunding is the outcome of a deliberate policy.

Wise sources comment that stockholders needn't feel too encouraged by this development. Unless corporations grant the lion's share of their gains from cheaper borrowing to labor—which they don't—the New Deal tax whip is due to bite deep.

WEDNESDAY: "Murder n The Museum"

Laval of France has ideas of his own about adjusting the price level. He doesn't intend to fool around with monetary measures if he can help it. Instead he plans to correct maladjustments by governmental decree. If the cost of living gets too high—order wages raised. If debts are too onerous—scale them down by edict.

M. Laval evidently agrees with the Committee for the Nation, that a shifting price level means economic earthquakes. But his proposed method of coping with the problem is in marked contrast with the committee's theory—and the British practice—that the remedy is to alter the price of gold in terms of domestic currency.

Most financial men ridicule the proposition that a price level can be controlled by manipulation of gold values. But they rate Laval's scheme even more fantastic. They claim he would have to be Mussolini, Hitler, Stalin and the Emperor of Japan rolled into one to make it work—and expect him to ride to a heavy fall if he tries to apply it seriously.

Forget—The major farm organizations continue to campaign strenuously with the Committee of the Nation for the Goldborough amendment to the banking bill which would direct the Federal Reserve Board to stabilize the price level. But for once their vaunted political patency must be deroofed. Neither the administration nor the Congressional conferees on the bank measure obviously excepting Mr. Goldborough himself—act at all impressed.

Astute observers predict that the farm groups will forget their pet monetary medicine in a hurry if the AAA amendments produce expected results. If prices will only go up agricultural interests aren't likely to bother much about which particular formula did the trick.

Silence—You may have noticed that the Association of American Railways—supposed to act as spokesman for all roads—has made no comment whatever on the passenger fare cut argument. The official reason for this reticence is that the rate problem varies in different sections of the country and therefore no national policy is possible.

SPORT SLANTS

Number 13 holds no terrors for Ted Lyons, veteran pitcher of the Chicago White Sox. In his 13th season in the big show and with the White Sox, the 34-year-old roundsman is setting the pace for losers in the American league with 11 victories to show against 3 defeats.

Lyons' career in the majors is studded with many pitching gems—as well as a fair share of disappointments. He stepped into baseball's hall of fame in 1926, when he set down the Boston Red Sox without a single hit. Three times he wound up the season with more than 20 victories to his credit. In 1925 he had 21; in 1927, 22; and in 1930, also 22. A truly remarkable record when you consider that it was achieved with a team suffering from a chronic cellar complex. Just as he has hit the high spots so, too, has Ted felt the pangs of failure. In 1933 he was charged with 21 defeats, more than any other pitcher on the circuit that season. He finished last season with 11 wins against 13 losses, to finish 47th on the list rated on the earned run averages and 29th in the games won percentages.

Early in the season the White Sox veteran was overshadowed by the sensational pace cut out by Johnny Whitehead, but as the season wore on the rookie's curves became less and less of a puzzle and it was then that fans began to notice the grand job Lyons was doing to keep the White Sox going at a pace that has continued to confound the experts.

Lyons will celebrate his 35th birthday in December.

A 'DUMB' PHI BETA?
A few years ago when Larry MacPhail, now business manager and vice-president of the Cincinnati Reds, was president of the American Association he had on his payroll a young infielder named Burgess Whitehead.

One morning when the Red Birds were engaging in their usual morning work-out, Harry Leibold, manager of the team, walked into MacPhail's office and made the suggestion that it would do the team no great harm if the services of young Whitehead were dispensed with.

"All right," agreed MacPhail, "send him in to see me after the drill and I'll figure out some place where we can ship him. But tell me, just why do you feel so sure that he will never make the grade?"

"He's too dumb," replied Leibold. "An hour or so later Whitehead was shown into MacPhail's office. The very first thing that caught the ever-alert MacPhail's eye was the Phi Beta Kappa key which dangled on a chain across Whitehead's vest!

ANYWAY, HE STAYED
So MacPhail led Whitehead to believe that he had been summoned there for a friendly chat for the purpose of getting better acquainted and one one did the matter of his release come up.

After Whitehead had departed, MacPhail sent for his manager.

"What's the idea of telling me that this Whitehead boy is dumb? Why he has a Phi Beta Kappa key," said MacPhail.

"You don't say!" It was quite evident from Leibold's expression that he wasn't exactly certain of what the Phi Beta Kappa key represented.

Whitehead stayed on with the Red Birds until the St. Louis Cardinals took him up. Lately, he has been doing very well as Frankie Frisch's substitute at second base.

This whale of a building is brick, with a terra cotta frieze around it showing sword-waving heroes brandishing corpuent steeds that drag smooth-bore cannon over the prostrate foe. "Are you sure the frieze will be taken off?" asked a Senator. "All right, let McCarr have it."

This decision broke the hearts of local judges who had a plan to transform the Pension office into the gem of Judiciary Square. They must remain in squatty quarters.
