Tax Officials Are Kept Busy With Rendition Work

Voters began balloting at the city fire station this morning on the $200,000 bond issue proposed by the Big Spring independent school district. There was a heavy demand for ballots during the first two hours which abated later in the morning. At 1 p. m. the total stood at 223. Heaviest balloting was expected late this afternoon, especially after business hours.

The information is not in the form of an expose, nor is it intended so, On the other hand, it contains some shocking revelations which the average citizen had never taken occasion to learn for him-

It gets down to this: Texas mental hospitals are inadequate from almost every point of view. Only one plant (here at Big Spring) in the entire system is designed and equipped to approach the job effectively. This unit is the smallest in the entire system, and thus its administrative factor is out of proportion to others. All hospitals are over-loaded—some of them shamefully

You would think that Texas would do something about this-the same Texas that has at last made a four million dollar appropriation for cleaning up the penal institution cesspool. The board of control 130 million in new eleemosynary construction for the biennium. The governor had it in mind when he recommended this as worthy legislation.

But the appropriations committee of the house, possibly concerned over the staggering requests for money, has about emasculated the building program. The desire to be judicious in appropriations and to bridle expenditures is commendable, but when it ignores human misery, it is open to question.

There can be no doubt that Texas will have to get along without many of the things asked of the legislature. This might apply even to some of the requests for eleemosynary purposes. It certainly applies to items which deal with the physical rather than the human element.

We believe that the prison appropriation was a commendable one. We believe that due economy is proper and necessary. We believe equally that the legislature should make adequate provision to treat and care for the mentall ill to an extent that Texans will not have to be

Syndicate Idea Blossomed Into Instrument Of Wide Influence

It was McClure who conceived the idea of buying material from obscure authors and making it available to several newspapers simultaneously. He dealt with fiction but subsequently broadened.

Syndicated fiction has long since waned, but in its place has sprung a limitless supply for numerous fields such as politics, humor, economies, child pyschology, health, etiquette, English, words, cartoons, comics, analysis and interpretation to mention but a few.

The answer to anything the government doesn't want to talk about is: "We don't know anything about it. We never heard of it." That is the repy of the government's official spokesman to any inquiries about the social "cold war." Those of the American embassy who like to entertain complain that it is not a question of setting a date and inviting Polish friends. If the American host hopes to attract a Polish guest the procedure is to telephone the Pole and ask him to set the date.

THE GOVERNMENT'S OFFICIAL spokesman says, however, that no Pole is required to get official clearance to attend any Anglo-American affair, Nevertheless, the brush-off goes on,

Col. Nelson Dingley, the new American military attache, invited Polish military officials to a cocktail party to meet new members of his staff. Not a single Pole showed up.

Dingley now has been waiting months to meet Marshal Michal Zymierski, minister of national defense, Commander Gerard Bogart of Scarsdale, N. Y., U. S. naval attache, has been waiting since last August for an official meeting.

American Ambassador Waldemar J. Gailman invited representatives of the entire Polish press to a "get-together' cocktail party at his home. A half-dozen came of the 60 or more invited.

THE SOCIAL "FREEZE" IS NOT CONfined to the Poles. Sadly lacking are conpersonnel of the Russian and other embassies of the "Peoples" Democracles." Necessary official business is conducted in suspicious, chilly atmosphere.

The social "cold war" obviously is an outgrowth of the strained international situation. No one doubts for a moment that all this would be changed if Generalissimo Stalin were to announce that permanent peace is here and relations with the United States were just dandy.

Johnson To Ask Abolition Of Annapolis, West Point As Traditional Institutions?

WASHINGTON. -The Army and Navy are going to have some real surprises when Louis Johnson takes over as secretary of national defense. He really means business when it comes to scaling off the century-old crust of Army-Navy rivalry and making all three services they were serving under the same

No definite decision has been made as yet, but one thing in the back of Johnson's mind is to ask Congress to abolish Annapolis and West Point as traditional training schools for the Army and

Johnson has already been talking the matter over with some of his intimate advisers and here are some of the points they have placed before him:

1. Real rivalry between the Army and Navy comes from the Annepolis-West Pointers at the top. It doesn't come from the younger officers below, and particularly isn't carried on by the reserve officers who haven't been exposed to four years of intensive Anapolis-West Point tradi-

2. Other professional men, such as doctors and lawyers, take four years at any accredited college, then specialize at a professional school.

3. Therefore, it's proposed to use Annapolis and West Point as normal training schools for all officers, mixing up the future commanders of the Army, Navy, and Air Force. Not until they have rubbed shoulders and got acquainted for two to three years at West Point or Annapolis would they decide their ultimate branch of the service. After this preliminary, non-specialized training they would specialize at a separate school to become either Air Force of Navy or Army of-

Johnson advisers point out that the old-school-tie tradition is strong among all Annapolis and West Point grads. Classmates stick together and their prejudices stick with them years afterward. But if Army, Navy, Air Force officers have all trained together in the same class, they will work together much more co-operatively, even though they later join rival branches of the service.

Note-A committee of noted educators under some distinguished scholastic figure, such as President James Conant of Harvard, would study the matter first and recommend the best solution to the secretary of national defense.

CIVIL RIGHTS Highlight of President Truman's private meeting with congressional leaders immediately following his return from Key West was a decision to make another try for enactment of the civil-rights program.

Hollywood Radio Stars Sold On Tape-Recording

HOLLYWOOD W - In Hollywood radio circles, eveyone is talking about tape. That's the modern method of recording air shows. By using the tape recorded, radio stars are assured of perfect performances, or at least as good as the material with which they have to work with. After seeing the machine work,

I'm convinced it can do anything but make Jimmy Durante sound like Dennis Day. It has drawn mike-shy stars like Joan Crawford and Clark Gable to the airlanes. The appeal is simple: The stars can read their lines as many times as they want; the sound cutter picks out the best one. No audience, no nerves, no fear of stumbling before an audience of 20 millio

Shows can be taped to the stars' free time or on Sundays, avoiding conflict with film shooting schedules. It seems to be the only answer to avoiding such a fiasco as the Dorothy Lamour show from Houston. Bing Crosby can afford to smile

In other words, they are more polished than the individual who may be committing a breech of etiquette.

There is really no defense of this business of using offensive words, in private or public, and particularly in public. In the final analysis, they add absolutely nothing to a story or speech. # Two Key Points In Atlantic Pact Slated To Draw Heavy Argument

WASHINGTON, W - THE ATLANTIC Pact has two key sections. This story explains them, for you'll hear about them from Congress.

This country - with Canada, Britain, France, Norway, Belgium, Luxembourg, the Netherlands-wrote the pact as a defense against Russia. Their reason: If they're ready for attack, they may not be attacked at all; but if attacked, they'll be ready. But-unless the Senate approves, we can't take part in the pact at all. It's expected to, probably in a few weeks. Before the Senate says all right, the two key sections mentioned above will draw the heaviest examination and argu-

THEY ARE: HOW TO PREPARE against an attack and what to do if the attack comes. Take them one at a time. How to prepare against attack-

There are 14 articles in the 1,040-word pact, and Article 3, one of the keys, says: 'In order more effectively to achieve the objectives of this treaty, the parties, separately and jointly, by means of continuous and effective self-help and mutual aid, will maintain and develop their individual and collective capacity to resist armed at-

It means they agree to help themselves and one another prepare. Since we're best able to help most of the helping depends

To do that, President Truman is expected to ask Congress for $1 billion or more. He may get some strong opposition on the grounds that we're spending too much money already.

Yet, in case of Russian attack, the European countries would be our first line of defense. They'd have to stand the brunt. till we swung into action. That would be

Unless we give plenty of help, our allies may wonder what meaning the pact was anyway and whether we can be depended

What to do if an attack comes-

ARTICLE 5 IS THE OTHER KEY SEC tion. It says that if one of the pact allies is attacked, the others, singly and jointly, will give it such help as each "deems necessary, including the use of armed

That part about what each "deems neces sary" is a loophole for any ally which wanted to use it. In case one ally was attacked, another could say it didn't "deem" it necessary to go to war to help

Then would we have to go to war? Asked about it, Secretary of State Acheson said it is true nobody can force us to do it. But we will do what we have contracted to do.' What, exactly? That's vague. This pact can't say outright that we'll go to war if an ally is attacked. Only Congress can put us into war-formally-by declaring war.

tacked Pearl Harbor we were at war, although Congress didn't declare it till the

Then how can our allies-since the pact makes no outright promise we'll go to war with them-feel they can trust us to help

They must feel pretty sure-after their long talks with Acheson and the expected Senate approval of the pact - that we wouldn't let them down, or they wouldn't sign the pact.

This is pretty shadowy ground here. But that's the way it is. That's the way it will stay-unless an attack comes.

Despite Blindness, W. C. Handy Still Handles 'St. Louis Blues'

NEW YORK-The man had a big smile. He could not see at all, but there was vision in his understanding eyes as Gene Buck, composer and former president of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, led him up to the footlights at the Ziegfeld Theatre the other night.

At the footlights Buck stopped the man who could not see and left him alone to face the theatre audience composed of the great and near-great of the theatrical, motion picture, radio and musical worlds. The man had a trumpet in his hand.

a long golden horn, and he did not need an introduction to anyone in that show world audience. The man was W. C. Handy, composer of "The St. Louis Blues" and many other gay and sorrowful blues numbers dreamed up on the river banks of southern streams.

Handy, all smiles, raised the trumpet to his lips and out came the sweet and mournful melody of "The St. Louis Blues." played by its originator.

Handy played his famous St. Looie Blues with tender and caressing tonal qualities, alternating a simple three-line verse and multiple of that with soft melodie phrases for his finish. Listening to Handy play the blues on his soft trumpet, I remembered an afternoon once on Broadway when we were talking about blues songs-and, incidentally, both of us were munching away at a platter of fried chicken which he seemingly produces with the ease of a man offering you a cigarette.

Handy said that he never had found out what makes a blues song a hit. "I remember that my "Yellow Dog Blues" wasn't successful," he said, "until I put in that passage with the laughing

Handy was talking about the tough times he had when he first came to Broadway, when his "Memphis Blues" in 1912 and his "St. Louis Blues" in 1914 had begun to win acciaim. But Handy, himself, wasn't known personally around the offices of the major song pubishers.

"I was just a frog fattenin" for the chickens," he said. "I was walkin' sround Tin Pan Alley with both eyes practically

But after the heartfelt ovation given him the other night when 500 notables of the theatrical and musical worlds paid him such a tremendous tribute for his playing of "The St. Louis Blues," I don't think he needs eyes any more to "see" his friends in the Broadway world.

"Call them 'courthouses' if you wish," said a woman attendant who has worked in one of the buildings for more than ten years. "I call them what they are: death-traps.'

Two things combine to make most of Abilene's buildings dangerous. First, is the basic design of the structures. They are comparatively compact in floor space, but they shoot into the air like gibbets, necessitating long flights of stairs. Second, the basic characteristic of epilepsy, the sudden danger the lives of any patient alone on the stairs.

Much deliberation and thoughtful planning is involved in moving one of these chessmen. People who play this game spend many hours contemplating the next move. Often a player finds his move has proved futile, and frequently he discovers his play has cost him the game.

In chess, we are not always able to foresee the move that lies ahead. If we lose, we merely chalk one up for the other side and forget about it.

But in another more serious game we are not able to treat our failures so lightly. In the game of life, we cannot deliberately ignore and forget our errors.

In life also, we are faced with our inability to foretell the correct move, but here the outcome is more important. This is why we must put our faith in something greater, something more sure than mere human speculation.

We who live in the Christian era are blessed with great gifts of inspiration and guidance—the Bible and the Church. Through them our lives may be made victorious. But the choice is ours ... to win, or to lose!

Tension Off Fields Today

PITTSBURGH, March 25, 08 -

It was off, too, in industries— such as steel—which depend on coal for their operations. It was off among employes of coal-carrying rallroads, among river workers who transport coal in barges. For John L. Lewis had ordered his miners to return to the pits next Monday, ending a two-week work stoppage of 463,000 members of the United Mine Workers in pits east of the Mississippi.

A fear had been lurking almost everywhere that the strike would not end at the close of the twoweek period, called as a memorial the mines last year.

The fear had become pronounced after the U. S. Senate confirmed appointment of Dr. James Boyd as director of the U.S. Bureau of Mines, since Lewis had announced the strike also was a protest against Dr. Boyd's nomination to the post.

Now the fear was lifted. The reaction was almost immediate. The Chesapeake & Ohio, a coal-carrying railroad, announced that 7,000 to 8,000 employes now on furlough would return to work by April 2 end of the first week of resumed work in the mines. The C&O had furloughed a total of about 10,500 workers. It did not explain the status of men not to be called back by April 2. The Baltimore & Ohio railroad, also an important coal carrier, said all of the 8,500 shop workers it had furloughed during the coal strike, will be back on the job by April 4.
In the coal fields, the men welcomed the return to work.

The event was the fastest and smallest in the Academy's 21-year history. The awards were handed out in cafeteria style at the Academy's own theatre, before an audience of 950, mostly press and nominees. A crowd of 1,000, puny by Hollywood standards, cheered the film famous as they entered the neighborhood playhouse in gowns and tuxedos dampened by a mild drizzle.
