Farmers Ordered To Pay Farmworkers

Four Brownfield area farmers have paid a total of $77,895.92 to satisfy a judgment won by cotton hoe hands, announced Texas Rural Legal Aid attorney Kay E. Mares. The four farmers are R. H. Clements, J. W. Hankins, Doyle Moss, and P & B Farms.

The farm workers who won the judgment are migrant workers from the Rio Grande Valley who worked in the Brownfield area during 1984, 1985, and 1988. The workers filed suit against the farmers, alleging violations of the federal minimum wage law and the Migrant and Seasonal Agricultural Worker Protection Act. Texas Rural Legal Aid of Plainview and Hereford, Texas represented the workers in their lawsuit.

After a trial in November and December of 1989, United States Judge Sam R. Cummings found that the farmers had paid the workers between $2.00 and $2.35 per hour at a time when the minimum wage was $3.35 per hour. Judge Cummings also found that the farmers violated the law by failing to provide each worker with his own itemized pay statement for each day period worked. Therefore, a judgment entered March 19, 1991 Judge Cummings ordered the four farmers to pay the cotton hoe hands damages for violations of the federal laws. Judge Cummings also ordered the farmers to pay attorneys' fees and court costs to the farm workers. After the trial, Judge Cummings also decided that seventeen other defendant/farmers were not liable for their violations of the laws. The farm workers are currently appealing that part of Judge Cummings' decision. Because part of the case is being appealed, the four farmers initially refused to pay the amounts they owe the workers under the Court's judgment.

"We received the check today, and will be happy to distribute the money to our clients over the coming weeks, reported Mares. "Over one hundred workers from Texas and other states will each receive hundreds of dollars from the Brownfield farmers. These farmers have learned the hard way that it does not pay to violate the laws."

The Lubbock Branch of the NAACP will hold its regular monthly meeting Saturday, October 5, 1991 at 7:00 p. m. at Mae Simmons Community Center. President Rose Wilson is asking all members to please be present. The Chapter is making preparations for the upcoming George Woods Awards Banquet to be held Saturday, October 19, 1991 at the Holiday Inn Civic Center at 7:00 p. m.

Aguero Announces for 83 Seat

Candidates Gear Up for Elections

Primary elections are 6 months away and many local political hopefuls are busy talking to their supporters or would be supporters to feel out how they stand for the March primary.

Articles in the local Lubbock daily newspaper point to the fact that Republicans are already looking for candidates to oppose Senator John Montford as well as local elected republicans such as Larry Combest, Buzz Robnett and Delwin Jones.

Among democrats, only two races have drawn attention. Those being the District 83 race for State Representative and the Precinct 3 race for County Commissioner.

Those said to be looking at the District 83 race have been 1990 democratic nominee Bidal Aguero, City Councilwoman Maggie Trejo, School Trustee Linda DeLeon and MAD Chair Victor Hernandez. Hernandez has stated that they will sit out the race this year. DeLeon and Trejo were not available for comment.

Bidal Aguero, in an exclusive story to El Editor to be published Thursday said that he will definitely be a candidate for the March primary.

"I have been talking to many of my supporters in the past few weeks and they are urging me to give it another run," said Aguero. "Last year we addressed many issues. Apparently 40% of the voters listened. This year we have to make another 11% to listen," Aguero said.

Aguero was unopposed in last year's primary and lost in the general election getting almost 40% of the vote and losing mainly in republican dominated voting precincts. Aguero won with over 90% in predominantly minority and democratic boxes.

Aguero testified before the redistricting committee and lobbied in Austin to change the district but was met with heavy opposition from committee member and present representative for district 83 Delwin Jones. The district is being challenged in court along with other districts in Texas.

"I think we have a good chance of the Justice Department ruling that District 83 has been gerrymandered. If we can get them to take out voting precincts 11, 32 and 55 we can return the seat to the majority of the people in the district," stated Aguero.

Districts 11, 32 and 55 voted 3,823 for Jones to Aguero's 777. The margin of victory between Jones and Aguero was 4,117 votes.

Aguero said that if a democratic opponent surfaces for the primary he would run his campaign just as he did in the past. "We will stand on our record of service to the community, our stance on issues and our concern for having representation in Austin that will stand up to big business and groups that work against the consumer," Aguero stated.

Aguero is president and publisher of El Editor Newspapers in Lubbock and Midland/Odessa. He is a graduate of Texas Tech University and has a Master's in Education from the University of Wisconsin. He is founder of COMA, the Lubbock Hispanic Chamber of Commerce who have established an endowment in his name at Texas Tech and has been active in many local civic organizations. Aguero is married to Olga Riojas-Aguero and has 4 children; Zenaida, a student at South Plains College; Amalia, a student at Lubbock High; Joe Adam, a student at Evans Junior High and Marisol Otomi, 17 months old. He is a resident of the Overton neighborhood.

Aguero will attend the annual meeting of the Texas Mexican American Democrats in Austin this week and is will make a formal announcement of his candidacy during a press conference to be held Saturday October 5th at 2 p.m. at Lala's Restaurant in downtown Lubbock.

In the county race, Commissioner Eliseo Solis has been busy with fundraising events at many Hispanic festivals. He is expected to announce soon for re-election for a third term.

Crazy Horse by Stephen C. McIntyre

The EPA was after Lubbock for our dirty air a few months ago. Someone is digging up old gasoline storage tanks all over town before they will eventually leak. During the big rain a few weeks ago the waste water facility overflowed and sewage flowed into Buffalo Lake. Farmers still use a heck of a lot of chemicals on their crops around here. I think everyone agrees that the taste of Lubbock's water is not the greatest. The city is starting up recycling in some neighborhoods. A couple weeks ago, LP&L blow up and most of the city was without electricity for a few hours. And

All of which brings me to one simple point. We need to become better aware of our environment and energy issues. If we do not get a handle on it we are going to be in big trouble. One thing we can do is contact Amory and Hunter Lovins at the Rocky Mountain Institute in Old Snowmass, Colorado and ask them for advice on the efficient use of energy. They are experts and have been doing consulting work for a number of counties, about 70 utility companies, and 50-60 local, state, and federal government entities.

Another thing each one of us can do is to become more conscious of what we are doing to our environment. The July, 1951 issue of Sierra Club contained a list of environmental books that may be of some interest. The list crosses the spectrum for common sense recycling to more radical, maybe not so radical in a few years, ideas.

I was browsing through some magazines last week and noticed that the Lakota (Sioux) are complaining about new proposed policies towards Native Americans. As I understand it, there is talk of doing away with the hated Bureau of Indian Affairs and replacing it with some sort of a new "federal" relationship. Some Lakota fear it is the first step to losing control of Indian land. This past summer there was talk of contacting the United Nations for protection and of the Lakota separating from the United States.

The Lakota people were the ones you saw in "Dances With Wolves" and were the leaders in the battle against General Custer at Little Big Horn. They now live on the Pine Ridge Reservation which is the poorest county in the country.

There may be another battle in store for Wounded Knee.

Cameras in the Courtroom?

Murray Richtel is a Colorado District Court judge and co-chairperson of the American Bar Association National Conference of Lawyers and Representatives of the Media. He drafted the model rule for expanded media coverage.

YES

Should cameras be allowed in the courtroom?

Yes. We have an outstanding justice system in this country, but the public does not always see it that way. For example, there is often public confusion and displeasure when defendants who seem to have committed similar crimes receive different sentences. When the viewing audience watches the defendant and measures the sincerity of his remorse, sees the victim's tears or observes the furrowed brow of the judge making a difficult decision, it can better appreciate the complexity of the process. Given current technology, which permits cameras to convey accurately what occurs in the courtroom without any interference with trial decorum or fairness, the justice system has an obligation to the public if serves to increase public understanding and respect for the system by opening the courtroom doors to cameras.

What effect will cameras have on participants in a trial?

Trial participants may well be aware of the presence of cameras. Despite their awareness, the empirical data establish that witnesses are no less likely to be truthful, that jurors are no more likely to convict, that lawyers continue to make their arguments to the judge or jury and not the camera and that judicial behavior is unchanged when cameras are present. In addition, when the camera may have a qualitatively different impact on a particular witness, for example a young child, the judge retains the power to limit camera coverage of that witness. In short, cameras do not affect a trial's result.

How would cameras impact an individual's right to a fair trial?

Cameras do not increase the risk of an unfair trial and, in fact, increase the likelihood of a fair trial. Forty-four states now permit cameras; the unanimous conclusion of the 27 states that have formally studied the issue has been that cameras do not affect trial fairness. Moreover, accountability is the byproduct of openness. In an atmosphere of accountability and openness, a fair trial will be the more likely result, and justice will be served.

Seth P. Waxman is a partner in the Washington, D.C., law firm of Miller, Cassidy, Larroca and Lewin. His principal area of practice is white-collar criminal, complex civil and appellate litigation.

NO

Should cameras be allowed in the courtroom?

Cameras — especially broadcast video cameras — should not be allowed in the trial courtroom, except where all parties in the trial and the trial judge agree they can be used. Even then, jurors should never be filmed, and witnesses should have the right to choose, outside the presence of jurors or cameras, whether or not they wish to be recorded on camera.

What effect will cameras have on participants in a trial?

We all know that cameras affect the way most people act. In a trial setting these effects are heightened, and they interfere with the two principal functions of the court — to determine the truth and to do justice. Witnesses are often intimidated or unnerved by cameras, and this makes it harder for the jury to evaluate witnesses' credibility. Was a key witness nervous and distracted because he was lying, or because he was being filmed for the nightly news? Also, in emotionally charged cases of great community concern (which are the very cases in which cameras are found) lawyers and trial judges — particularly elected judges — may "play to the cameras." I have witnessed all of these unfortunate consequences of cameras in the courtroom.

How would cameras impact an individual's right to a fair trial?

The function of trial courts is not to educate the public or to provide a platform for political debate. The only function of a trial court is to provide a forum in which the government and its citizens can adjudicate legal disputes free from extraneous influences and community passions. Cameras in the courtroom cannot possibly advance this function, and in many instances, they may impede it. Whenever cameras interfere with a jury's ability to determine who is telling the truth or influence the conduct of trial judges, the individual's right to a fair trial is threatened. That risk is a price too dear to pay for televising trials already open to the public and the press. M

Congressional Black Caucus Foundation's Top Honors Now Have Sculptured Award To Show Black Achievements

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The "Evolution of a People," a sculpture depicting the move by African Americans from "slave ships and cotton fields to court rooms, classrooms and the halls of Congress" was unveiled here recently as the symbol of the top honors bestowed on individual Blacks by the Congressional Black Caucus Foundation (CBCF).

Created by renowned sculptor Ed Dwight, and underwritten by Philip Morris Companies Inc., six of the art pieces were presented by the Foundation to outstanding African Americans.

The award recipients were: Justice Thurgood Marshall, recently retired from the U.S. Supreme Court; Christopher Edley, Sr., recently retired as President of the United Negro College Fund; State Senator Henry J. Kirksey (D-Miss.); Representative Daniel T. Blue, Jr. (D-N.C.); Speaker of the North Carolina House of Representatives; Mayor Sharon Pratt Dixon of Washington, D.C., and Bill and Camille Cosby.

"It is important that heroes be honored and it is especially pleasing when the awards they receive are the works of a talented, skilled, committed artist," said George L. Knox III, Vice President, Public Affairs, Philip Morris Companies Inc.

He said: "Mr. Dwight's exceptional earlier works, 'Black Frontier Spirit in the American West' and 'JAZZ: An American Art Form,' convinced us that he could bring a very special understanding to this project on the struggle of African Americans through the years. We were not disappointed — he created an important work of art that will inspire many generations to come."

Philip Morris has long supported the efforts of the Congressional Black Caucus Foundation, notably the CBCF Summer Internship Program, which brings college students to Washington every year to gain valuable experience in how government works.

FROM THE OF
PARSON D. A. SMITH

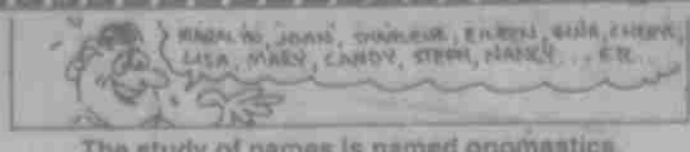

In the field of science, there is listed among the chemical elements, selenium. Selenium is a nonmetallic element that resembles sulfur in its chemical properties. Selenium has the atomic number 34, atomic weight 78.96 and boiling point 688 degrees C; its symbol is Se.

Selenium has a peculiar property. Normally it is a nonconductor of electricity. It lets no electricity through. But let light fall on it and immediately it becomes a conductor. Electricity can flow through it. The amount of electricity that can flow through a selenium cell varies under the influence of the light. The brightness of the faintest distant star can be measured by letting its light fall on a selenium cell.

One might consider this as one of nature's parables. Fallen human nature is like selenium. It is a nonconductor. It lets none of God's wisdom, love, and power pass into this sad and despoiled world. But let a ray of God's grace fall on a human heart and right away that heart becomes a conductor and let God into the world.

Jesus said in Matthew 5:16 -- "Let your light shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven." Why let your heart become a conductor and shine like light? Fire warms, water moistens, frost congeals. And light shines because it is its nature to shine. There is a certain inevitableness about the light. Someone has defined influence as "the effluence of affluence." Christian influence is the effluence of the affluence within. It is the pouring out of the light that Christ has illuminated in the soul.

Christians must let their light shine. The world, though corrupt is very sensible of what Christians practice ought to be. Why not become a Christian conductor and shine for Jesus by getting rid of that undue reserve which keeps the real character of your soul from being as powerful an influence for good as otherwise it might be.

"Yesterday's Sinner!!!"
Romans 3:23 -- For all have sinned, and come short of glory of God; being justified freely by his grace through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus.
Every since the beginning of time, Satan has been the deceiver of the mine. The fruit in the Garden of Eve. It was the first time he did deceive. He deceived one day: with wine, pills and weed. He also uses: flech and diamonds, and metals; it all will help to deceive.
Deuteronomy 11:16-17a -- Seek heed to yourselves, that your heart be not deceived, and ye turn aside, and serve other gods, and worship them: and the Lord's wrath be kindled against you.
(I heard of God's love for me: "for all my wrong reasons) I was a good for nothing sinner, and in my sins could have been killed, but you kept heath away from me; for me to come to know your will."
Romans 6:23 -- For the wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord.
II Peter 3:9 -- The Lord is of slack concerning His promise as some men count slackness; but is long-suffering to us-ward, not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance.
I had many idol gods, and they began to get heavy on me, carrying those useless gods day and night. "They made me miserable."
John 3:16 -- Jesus said, for God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him (Jesus) should not perish, but have everlasting life.
The smoking and the drinking "so called having a good time. I was slowing killing myself; destroying my body, soul and mine."
Psalm 40:1-3 -- I waited patiently for the Lord, and He inclined unto me, and heard my cry. He brought me up also out of an horrible pit, out of the miry clay, and set my feet upon a rock, and established my goings. And he hath put a new song in my-mouth, even praise unto our God: many shall see it, and fear, and shall trust in the Lord.
"The Lord was saying: it's your life; do what you want to do. But I was tired of serving the devil, and cried, Lord, save me and I'll serve you."
Psalm 6:3-5 -- My soul is also sore vexed; but thou, O'Lord, how long? Return, O'Lord. Deliver my soul: oh save me fro the mercies sake. For death there is no remembrance of thee; in the grave who shall give thee thanks?
I thank God for salvation; Jesus dying for a no good sinner like me. I thank God for Jesus today, for I'm now free.
 Free At Last, Free At Last, Thank God For Jesus, I'm Free at Last!!!
John 3:31a-32 -- Jesus said, if you continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed, and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make me free.
God is not through with us yet. Let's pray for one another always.

St. Matthew Baptist News

Mrs. Imatha Isaac, Reporter

St. Matthew Baptist Church started their day with a beautiful Sunday School at 9:45 a. m. The lesson was taught well by the teachers.

The morning worship began as usual. The Deacons and both choirs were at their post of duty. A good beginning always makes a good ending.

Rev. R. S. Stanley's daughter and grandchildren, from Arlington, Texas were visitors. His grandson-in-law brought a very timely and spiritual message. It was enjoyed by all.

We also had a visitor from Ft. Worth, Texas. She was Mrs. C. Robertson, a cousin of Rev. Stanley, and a daughter of this writer, Mrs. Isaac.

Visitors are always welcome. We are small, but we do have big hearts.

Let's think about the song entitled: "Reach Out And Touch Someone." Comfort one another, bear one another's burdens forgive one another, edify one another love one another, pray for one another. And here's what happens when we do: if we love one another, God abides in us, and His love is perfected in us. John 4:12.

Bell Telephone Company in its commercial, "Reach out, reach out, and touch someone. Reach out and just say, 'Hi!'"

It's so important to seize the opportunity to touch someone's life. You may never have the chance again.

Let this be an everyday thing.
