Yates Field Cut To 58,500

Increase Had Been Sought In Hearing Before Commission

AUSTIN—The Texas Railroad Commission issued an order reducing the allowable production for the Yates oil field in West Texas to 58,500 barrels daily. The current allowable is 65,000 barrels daily. The new order will become effective Sept. 15.

It was testified at the hearing on the Yates field that increasing the allowable from 65,000 barrels daily to a point between 75,000 and 95,000 barrels daily would minimize waste, but to no avail. In pronouncing matters the railroad commission can consider only physical waste and it was reported that Mid-Kansas Oil & Gas Co., the largest producer in Yates, and a group of royalty owners had filed a protest against the 6,500 barrel reduction in allowable.

The acreage factor was introduced Jan. 1, 1928. The first official production order by the railroad commission was issued June 30, 1928, when producing wells had increased to 206. Allowable advanced to 130,000 barrels daily on July 1, 1929, when there were 314 wells, and was cut to 110,000 barrels daily on March 20, 1930, when producers numbered 366 of which 55 were showing some water. Yates now has 402 wells.

Proration schedules in other west Texas fields are unchanged for September.

Policeman Gets A Good Example

POLICEMEN ARE usually extremely useful citizens when your house has been robbed or your store burglarized, but Patrolman Robert Overman has proved that they may be just as useful in other ways.

Here are the facts: Patrolman Overman lived on a little residential street of small homes, small apartments and vacant lots, hardly different from the average street in the average town. Children played in the streets. They themselves to possible injury from motorists. Neighbors just didn't care. Most families didn't know who lived across the street and what's more to the point, they didn't care.

So Patrolman Overman decided that his street wasn't a very good place to live. Then he got busy. He cleared the weeds from several vacant lots as a start.

Other residents of the street became interested. He told them he was going to build a playground to keep the children of the neighborhood off the streets. In true neighborly fashion, they turned in to help him.

They built swings and teeter-totters from scrap lumber left when Overman's garage was partly burned. They laid out a baseball diamond and an ingenious workman fashioned a scoreboard of waste boxes and boards.

As a result Patrolman Overman's street is rapidly becoming an excellent place in which to live. Children of the neighborhood didn't have to be asked to come to "Overman Park" to play tennis.

Their fathers followed them and now the big problem is to find room for a baseball diamond for the boys. Their fathers are using the first one almost as much as the youngsters.

Overman himself summed the whole thing up very well when he said: "This sure goes to show that it doesn't cost anything to enjoy yourself—if you just find out how."

Young Kid Whittington, the Swarthy Wellington

Young Kid Whittington, the swarthy Wellington, is seeking new worlds to conquer. The 142 pound youngster has cleaned up the opposition in half-a-dozen smaller cities, and with his manager, Ray Simmons, is yearning to make an invasion of Fort Worth sometime in the near future.

Several keen students of boxing have confided to us that this nineteen year old slugger is due to go very far in the fight racket. He had several years of experience, and has picked up lots of fight lore from opponents he has met and beaten, and possesses an ideal fighting temperament.

Tax Remission Bill Is Signed

AUSTIN—The bill remitting the interest and penalty on taxes that have become delinquent up to Dec. 31, provided they are paid by that time, was signed and passed by Governor Ross E. Sterling Saturday. It is in immediate effect.

Cities and towns are allowed by vote of their governing bodies to impose the interest and penalties prescribed by the general statute so that those taxing units have virtually the same option they had under the general statute, except that formal action is necessary.

The bill provides for the remission of interest and penalties on delinquent taxes due the State, counties, school districts, road districts and levee improvement districts. It also is remitted as to the delinquent taxes of cities and towns unless governing body by affirmative action decrees otherwise.
