Crime Prevention Officer Visits Lubbock Last Week

Reverend M. W. Knox, minister of the Greater Zion Baptist Church of Sweetwater, Texas, and National Executive General Director of the Crime Prevention Society of America, Inc., was in the hub city last week (June 9-12) attending the Original West Texas District Sunday School and Baptist Training Union Congress, which was held at the Mount Gilead Baptist Church here in Lubbock, Rev. S. R. Roberts, moderator and host pastor.

As executive director of the organization, it is the wishes of Rev. Knox that a local unit or chapter of this society be established in Lubbock. "This would be an asset in helping to reduce as well as prevent crime among juveniles and adults," the minister said.

This Society was organized in 1934 in Alexandria, La., where he served as Chaplain of the Parish Prison for nine years. After moving to Fort Worth, Texas in 1941 to serve as Chaplain and Federal guard at the U. S. Public Health Service Hospital, a special mass meeting was sponsored by the city, county and public spirited citizens of Fort Worth and Tarrant County in the Mount Gilead Baptist Church there in 1942 to discuss crime prevention. After the discussion, the group organized the first chapter in Fort Worth. Out of this Rev. W. L. Brown, pastor of Macedonia Baptist Church, was elected president; Rev. Knox was elected Executive General Director.

The Society was chartered in 1947 and headquarters were in the Mount Gilead Baptist Church of Ft. Worth, and later moved to the McDonald Building, 9th Street and Grove.

Rev. Knox was the house guest of Mrs. Estelle Pierce, 2312 Date Avenue, while in Lubbock.

Mrs. Willie White of Dallas, Texas and Mrs. Ruby Woods of Los Angeles, California were in Lubbock last week visiting with their brothers, George and Eli Woods.

Mrs. Maxine Woods of Phoenix, Arizona and her two children were also in Lubbock last week. Maxine is the daughter-in-law of George and Edwina Woods.

One of the major activities ever sponsored by the United Black Coalition will get underway tomorrow, Friday, June 19th and continue through Sunday, June 21st at Bethel A.M.E. Church here in the city. The Friday evening program will get underway at 6:00 p.m. with registration and continue throughout the evening. Saturday is Youth Day, with activities beginning at 2:00 p.m.

The session Friday evening will feature the Reverend H. D. Parker, nationally known civil rights worker of Iowa, Louisiana, who will deliver the keynote address. His address will center around the theme: "Emancipation of the Mind."

Rev. Parker, a 38-year-old minister, is a graduate of Central Memorial High School of Bogalusa, Louisiana. He received his Bachelor of Science Degree from Tennessee A & I College State of Nashville, Tennessee. He was a recipient of a Bachelor of Theology Degree from Zion College at Chattanooga, Tennessee and received his Doctor of Divinity Degree from Leland College at Baker, Louisiana.

The youth speaker for the Saturday program will be Christopher Griffin, graduate of Dunbar High School in 1963. He attended Texas Tech and majored in psychology and graduated here in January, 1968.

Mr. Griffin has done volunteer work in the black community of Fort Ord, California and is pre-

Driver License Schools Scheduled Here Next Week

Two driver license schools for persons who do not have a drivers license will be conducted in Lubbock June 22, 23, and 24th, from 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m., according to Major C. W. Bell, Regional Commander of Lubbock's Texas Department of Public Safety.

One school will be taught in Spanish at Guadalupe Elementary School Cafeteria, First Street and North Avenue P. The other school will be taught in English at Estacado High School Cafeteria, 1504 Itasca.

Although these schools are designed primarily for unlicensed drivers, licensed drivers are welcome to attend. It will refresh the licensed driver of past traffic rules and regulations and bring him up-to-date on the latest traffic laws.

Only persons eighteen years of age or older will be permitted to take the Texas Department of Public Safety tests after the completion of these schools.

There will be no charge for attending these schools.

"Our objective is to improve the traffic knowledge of unlicensed drivers so they may become licensed drivers," stated Major Bell.

These schools are sponsored by the Lubbock Citizens Traffic Commission in cooperation with the Texas Department of Public Safety.

Blacks Speaking Out About Lubbock

The crowd was not up to expectations last Monday evening at one of the Committee 70's meetings which was held in the auditorium of Dunbar High School. However, the ideas related by the group made good sense, especially the one idea of bringing Lubbock into line as far as equal opportunities for all people was concerned.

At the present time, the city is looking at the possibility of building a tremendous Civic Center and Memorial Auditorium, but indications from those present in the Dunbar Auditorium last Monday evening, this should not be a primary goal.

With all sincerity, why should we as citizens of Lubbock be concerned about the construction of a civic center in the city at a time when equal opportunity, pollution, trash and sanitation problems exist throughout the city? One might be led to believe that certain citizens are overlooking the local problems as they stare far to the north and experience some envy because Amarillo has a nice new civic center and we don't.

Someone here in the city in charge should take another look at the priorities of several projects—and then decide where the building, cleaning, hiring and reconstruction should begin.

The city must know about the debris, rubbish and other unsanitary conditions which exist in and along the Canyon Area. There has been enough trash and debris removed from the tornado area to more than match the normal output of our city many times over, and yet we were faced with a trash problem prior to the tornado, and not a word published concerning taking care of this problem.

All citizens of East Lubbock can take pride in their community. There were blacks present Monday evening who stood up for those who were absent and some of the comments taken down by the Committee 70's representatives should be taken back to the powers that be in this city and gone over very carefully and studied seriously.

As one of those citizens present said, "Equal opportunity, as it relates to jobs, education, recreation and even streets, is not the same for all citizens in our city." "This is the reason why a lot more people are not present at the meeting tonight, they don't have equal opportunity in our community," another added.

Another announced loudly, "We are fed up with the quota system and other discriminatory practices which keep black and brown alike from getting jobs. As citizens of Lubbock, we want to know why. Of course, there is always some answer, but is it a legitimate one?"

The voice of the citizens of Lubbock—East Lubbock, at least—made it clear Monday night that before the city consider building any civic center, lake project or other tangible project, someone had better take a look at its citizens.

Certainly the citizens of East Lubbock on hand at the meeting Monday made more sense than a great many committees that have met lately and decided that Lubbock must build, build, and tax! Those citizens just want to help build people, which after all, is what makes cities, not beautiful buildings and memorial centers.

Austin—Pressure from the courts may move the Legislature to massive election law reforms next year.

At least two major Texas cases which could have far-reaching consequences for the state election processes and political system are pending in three-judge federal courts.

In one, Corpus Christi, San Antonio and San Marcos plaintiffs challenge the constitutionality of the annual voter registration requirement and the January 31 registration deadline. They ask re-opening of registration after the June runoff primaries to allow voters until October to qualify for the November general election. More than 30 states already have a general election sign-up extension, and no state requires as early a close-off of registrations as Texas.

A second case tests validity of the candidates' filing fee system. An El Paso candidate for county commissioner and a Tarrant County candidate for county judge won places on the May primary ballot through court action when they pleaded they could not afford to pay the stiff filing fee.

A third case attacks the constitutionality of the statute denying aid to illiterate voters in marking ballots.

Secretary of State Martin Dies, Jr. acknowledges a great many changes are needed in the state election code. He is compiling a list of needs with an eye on court decisions and plans to contact legislators about them soon.

Dies indicates he is inclined to favor the recommendation that May-June primary dates be shoved back until August and September (as some 14 states now provide).

He also tentatively likes the idea of making voter registrations good for four years.

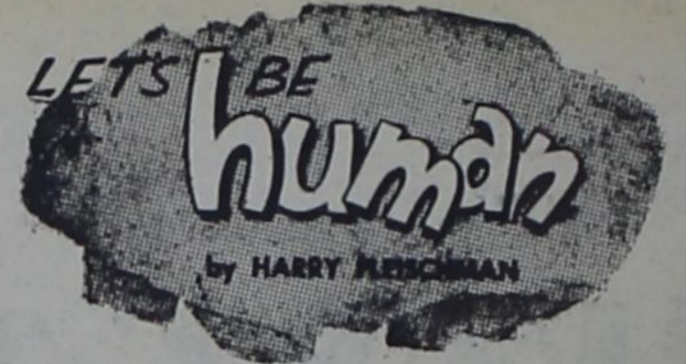

And the state, believes Dies, "is going to have to reach the conclusion candidates cannot continue to completely finance primaries."

Legislative Decorum Eyed—A House committee studying ways to improve the legislature's decorum and public image indicated it wants curbs on the familiar practice of lawmakers' voting for absentees on an electronic machine.

Committee members couldn't bring themselves to condemn "proxy" voting for members absent from the floor for a few minutes to take telephone calls from constituents. But they frowned on votes cast for legislators who are truants from the capitol.

Committee, headed by Rep. John E. (Ned) Blain of El Paso, discussed a variety of proposals to make the House of Representatives look and

Mathematics Lesson

Should everybody go to college? Not according to Morty Gunty, a former school teacher turned comedian. In Racine Labor, he cites the case of two friends who went to college. One dropped out after six months. The other went on to become a history professor and eventually earned $10,000 a year. Twenty years later they met on a New York street. The dropout was about to enter his chauffeur-driven Rolls Royce.

"What happened to you?" asked the professor. "We thought you were finished when you dropped out of school."

"Well," said the dropout. "I started manufacturing a little gadget. It cost me $1 to make. I sold it for $5. You'd be surprised at how much profit there is in that 4 per cent."

Stretching His Knowledge—A rubber worker, Yaakov Homri, who works in the vulcanization department of the Gamid Rubber and Plastics Company Limited, of Natanya, Israel, won the 1969 International Bible Contest in Jerusalem. Homri, who came to Israel from Yemen in 1948, defeated Biblical scholars and teachers from all over the world. His union, Histadrut, awarded him a scholarship to continue his Biblical studies.

Human Values on Rise

Just by being alive, you're worth a lot more now than you use to be. Because we have a better appreciation of human values? Don't be silly—you're just a living example of inflation. Thirty years ago, says Dr. Donald T. Formas of Northwestern University Medical School, the chemicals in your body were worth about 98 cents. Today, you're worth about $3.50!

Dear Editor:

I am very troubled to find that the East Lubbock Advisory Council, which is made up of good men, has made recommendations representing "East Lubbock". I don't recall any meeting of this group with the community to hear its wishes—and then go and evaluate these wishes and place them in proper form, or is this another group or a few of the group receiving orders from or trying to improve their personal will or thought of what the community needs.

To the members of the committee, please do not get caught in the trap that some of you have accused others of, as we know that some of you are with the people and others, (?). Let's give the East Lubbock residents a say-so and see what they want, Okay? We all know that there are "Wise Men" and "Foolish Ones," do not be the latter.

A Concerned Citizen

Technology's Challenge to Religious Values

By Jimmy R. Allen

Herman Kahn, nuclear war specialist of the Hudson Institute "think tank," wrote a book on war, entitled, Thinking about the Unthinkable. In testimony about projected advances in technology to the House of Science and Astronautics Committee, he indicated that he continued to think about the unthinkable—this time in the area of what technology could do to men by the year 2,000.

He paints a world of computer-taught children, elimination of need for work and erosion of traditional societal levers for behavior. The most spectacular possibility is that of "pleasure levers" connected to the brain, allowing one to pick his pleasure sensation.

Men of religion historically have produced a sorry record in responding to the challenge of expanding knowledge. No modern day Christian can read without shame the record churchmen of yesteryear, who demanded that Copernicus recant and repent of his blasphemous claim that the earth moved around the sun.

The response of modern Christians to technology's advance may be just as inept at the other extreme. The tendency today is for Christians to join with others at the shrine of science. Too fearful of repeating history, we tend to remain silent about what technology is doing and will do to shape and perhaps destroy moral idealism.

Herman Kahn gloomily sees this threat in a world of men becoming robots. He worriedly calls for "a reaffirmation of some traditional values on a respectable intellectual level." A beginning of a beginning in such response is as recent discussions on the ethics of organ transplants.

The value implications of technology must be examined in the light of Christian truth. Christians need to face up to technology's challenge. Jesus says "... I am the truth." All truth rightly interpreted relates to Him and His revelation of God. Every fact should be welcomed, examined, and ultimately related to God.

The values revealed through Christ about the worth of individual persons, responsibilities in freedom, standards of Christian behavior, the meaning of love, and the demand for discipline can be defended because they reflect God's principles for man's best good.

Technology may present Christians with their greatest challenge in history. The task of relating its facts to God's eternal truths is the responsibility of every Christian. Mankind's quality of life depends on it, just as each individual's life direction depends on how he responds personally to the claims of Christ.
