One Of The New Models In 1954 Ford Line

The 1954 Ford Crestline Fordor sedan—new this year—has interior beauty and power assists found heretofore only in costly limousines. Like all 1954 Ford passenger cars, it has new ball-joint suspension for easier handling and the choice of either Ford's completely new 130 h. p. Y-block V-8 engine or the new 115 h. p. I-block Mileage Maker Six. For ease and driving pleasure it has power brakes, power steering, power operated windows and front seat, plus Fordomatic, or, overdrive, available at extra cost. The new Ford line, which goes on display Wednesday, will be shown locally at Big Spring Motor Co., 500 West Fourth St.

TO BE SEEN HERE WEDNESDAY

New Power Plants Among The Features In Ford Line For '54

A vast number of new exclusives are listed for the 1954 Ford passenger cars, which will be shown nationally on Wednesday. Big Spring Motor Co., 500 West Fourth will have the cars on display here.

New features include:

An entirely new 130 h. p. Y-block V-8 engine with overhead valves; a new 115 h. p. I-block Mileage Maker Six engine; new ball-joint front suspension which Ford engineers call the greatest advance in front suspension in 20 years.

Also, the Skyliner—an entirely new hardtop with tinted, transparent plastic roof over the driving compartment; a smart new Ford Sunliner convertible with plastic panel inserted in the top over the front seat; four new power-operated driving assists: Power brakes, power steering, 4-way power seat, power-lift windows; Fordomatic transmission.

"The two new Ford engines for 1954—the Y-block V-8 and the I-block Mileage Maker Six—were designed expressly to lead their respective fields and have been under development for the past six years," L. D. Crusoe, vice president, Ford Motor Company and general manager of Ford Division, said.

"For 1954 Ford has perfected two new engines that are as far ahead in their fields as the original V-8 was in its day. They represent the greatest power advances since the original Ford V-8. And they have the benefit of Ford 'know-how' gained in building more than 16 million V-8 engines during the past 12 years," L. W. Smead, Ford Division general sales manager, pointed out that Ford's new overhead valve Y-block V-8 engine, with its deep-block construction, is of modern, short-stroke, low-friction, high compression design. It has a compression ratio of 7.2 to 1 and is smoother, quieter and gives more responsive power with greater economy and longer life than last year's engine. It rates 130 brake horsepower, up 20 horsepower over the 1953 L-head V-8.

The new I-block 115-h. p. Mileage Maker Six also is a completely modern high-compression low-friction engine. It rates 14 horsepower more than the 1953 Ford Six and, like the Y-block V-8, it is an "over-square" engine—that is, the diameter of the cylinder is greater than the stroke of the piston.

According to Smead, the new ball-joint suspension makes the 1954 Ford the most comfortable and easiest handling Ford ever built. Exclusive to Ford in the high volume field, the ball-joint suspension replaces the older type king-pin suspension. This new system permits up and down movement of the front wheels through the ball-joints as the wheels travel over rough spots or directional movement as wheels turn right or left in steering.

The ball joints have specially shaped seats so they will not bind or get out of line and they are completely sealed against water and dirt. Spring-loaded, they compensate automatically for any wear and they retain the "new car feel" much longer than the older type.

In its 1954 passenger cars, Ford again is offering three lines—Mainline, Customline and Crestline—with 14 body styles. Three new body types added this year are: the Crestline Skyliner with the transparent roof and a Crestline Fordor Sedan, featuring luxurious interior trim formerly found only in costly limousines. A new Customline two-door station wagon similar to the four-door Country Sedan in trim and interior appointments has been added to the three available. This is called the Customline Ranch Wagon.

For the first time, Ford is offering buyers a choice of either its V-8 or 6-cylinder engines in all models—a total of 28 models for 1954.

To maintain Ford's modern style leadership, the 1954 Fords are coming off the assembly lines in 156 exterior and interior color combinations with 13 single-tone body colors, 10 of which are available in 13 two-tone combinations. Twenty-three tasteful upholstery patterns, selected for their charm as well as durability, have been chosen by Ford stylists to assure harmonious interiors.

Bricker Amendment May Bring Up First Congressional Battle

By JOE HALL

WASHINGTON (AP)—A hot, wordy floor battle over the Bricker amendment on the President's treaty-making power may be one of the first disputes to engage the Senate in the 1954 session.

Majority Leader Knowland (R-Calif.) said today he expected the amendment to come up for floor debate this month.

Compromise talks have been held intermittently between Sen. Bricker (R-Ohio) and legal experts for the Eisenhower administration, which has strongly opposed the amendment. But similar efforts were made last summer and got nowhere and Bricker said after conferences last week he knew of no compromise in the offing.

Knowland of California said in a week-end news conference "great progress" is being made in administration efforts to work out a compromise.

If none is reached, the debate will give an early test of President Eisenhower's ability to control the course of the 1954 session—sometimes called the make-or-break session of his administration.

The Bricker amendment already is on the Senate calendar for debate, but it may be delayed more than a month if the St. Lawrence seaway and Hawaii statehood bills are called up ahead.

The Bricker amendment already has stirred up nationwide discussion with eminent lawyers taking sides.

The proponents and opponents cannot even agree on the terms in which the proposal should be described.

Its backers say it is necessary to limit the treaty-making power so that internationalist schemes cannot be slipped over on Americans in the guise of treaties which have the force of domestic law.

Foes of the amendment argue that it would critically weaken United States conduct of foreign affairs and immobilize the President in some fields where he needs freedom to negotiate.

The two key provisions of the Bricker amendment would:

1. Require that a treaty shall become effective as internal law in the United States only through legislation which would be valid in the absence of a treaty. In other words, it would take a law voted by Congress to give a treaty the force of domestic legislation, and Congress would have no authority to enact such a law if some provision of the treaty conflicted with the Constitution.
2. Give Congress power to regulate all executive and other agreements, aside from treaties, negotiated by the President with a foreign country.

Proponents of the amendment contend the need for the first provision stems from the section of the Constitution which states that all treaties shall be the supreme law of the land.

This section has been extended by judicial decision and State Department interpretation so that treaties may now make domestic law which affects the rights of Americans, the proponents contend.

Bricker says treaties being drafted at the United Nations are particularly dangerous in this respect.

The opponents say this provision is the most objectionable one in Bricker's proposal. They argue that it would limit the treaty powers to those possessed by Congress in domestic affairs and thus would mean that action by 48 state legislatures would be needed to implement many treaties.

The net effect would be that the federal government would be unable to deal with other nations as an equal, the opponents insist.

As to the provision in the amendment on regulation of executive agreements, supporters of Bricker's proposal say that actions of former Presidents Roosevelt and Truman demonstrated the need for this.

These chief executives increasingly turned to executive agreements as a substitute for treaties and bypassed Congress, the proponents contend. Treaties must be ratified by the Senate; executive agreements are not submitted to either branch of Congress.

President Eisenhower has made it plain he opposes the Bricker amendment as it came out of the Senate Judiciary Committee. Several of his principal Cabinet members testified against it.

The Truman administration took the same position when the proposal was before the Judiciary Committee in 1952.

However, 63 Senators joined with Bricker in sponsoring the amendment when it was introduced. Sixty-four votes would assure passage of the amendment by the Senate; a two-thirds majority is required and 64 is exactly two-thirds of the body. For the amendment to become part of the Constitution it also would have to be approved by a two-thirds majority in the House and then ratified by three-fourths of the states.

But the Ohio Senator makes clear that he does not regard all of the sponsors as committed to an "aye" vote.

Tobacco Firms Set Up Cancer Research Plans

NEW YORK (AP)—A tobacco industry research committee has been formed by cigarette manufacturers and tobacco groups to conduct research on "the theory that cigarette smoking is in some way linked with lung cancer."

An advertisement appearing today in many major newspapers of the nation says the manufacturers believe "the products we make are not injurious to health."

The display advertisement adds however that medical research should not be dismissed lightly "even though its results are inconclusive."

Formation of the committee which includes all but one major American cigarette manufacturer and several associations of tobacco growers, was announced yesterday. Others may join the committee later, a spokesman said.

The advertisement, headed "A Frank Statement to Cigarette Smokers," was the industry committee's first activity.

The united industry members, the announcement said, have pledged "aid and assistance to the research effort into all phases of tobacco use and health," including financial aid in addition to funds already being contributed by individual companies for medical research.

The committee's advertisement noted statistics purportedly linking lung cancer to cigarette smoking, and also mentioned that some scientists have questioned the significance of recent experiments on lung cancer.

"For more than 300 years," the advertisement declared, "tobacco has given solace, relaxation and enjoyment to mankind. At one time or another during those years critics have held it responsible for practically every disease of the human body. One by one these charges have been abandoned for lack of evidence."

"Regardless of the record of the past, the fact that cigarette smoking today should even be suspected as a cause of a serious disease is a matter of deep concern to us."

The advertisement, calling the committee the industry's answer to questions about "what we are doing to meet the public's concern," declared:

"In charge of the research activities of the committee will be a scientist of unimpeachable integrity and national repute. In addition there will be an advisory board of scientists disinterested in the cigarette industry. A group of distinguished men from medicine, science and education will be invited to serve on this board. These scientists will advise the committee on its research activities."

Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co. is the only major cigarette manufacturer in the nation not listed as a committee sponsor.

Robber Is Reasonable In Snatching Money

DALLAS (AP)—"I want all the money and don't make a lot of fuss," the gunman whispered.

"It belongs to another fellow and I hate to give it all away."

The robber said just hand over the paper money. Miss Jones gave him some $1 bills.

"I've got to have at least one big bill," he said. "Don't you have a five in there?"

"No."

"How about a ten?"

Miss Jones found a $10 bill. The robber said that was fine and walked out.

Chinese Reds Afraid To Free Prisoners With Expired Visas

By FRED HAMPTON
HONG KONG (U)—An American just released from a Communist Chinese jail said today Red officials want to free dozens of foreign prisoners but think they can't leave China because their passports have expired.
Arnold Klehn, 44-year-old Chinese-born American businessman who reached Hong Kong Sunday after three years in a Shanghai jail, said the Reds hold more than 100 foreign prisoners—including some Americans.

Klehn said he was certain the Reds would release other prisoners if their governments would obtain Hong Kong transit visas for those whose passports had expired.
Klehn, jailed in 1950, told an amazing story of his sudden release.
"The prison commandant said he was willing to release me if I could get a Hong Kong entrance permit. He doubted I could get one."
"He let me visit the British consulate in Shanghai and I was back with a visa in 40 minutes. That clinched it."
"He actually thought that because my passport had expired I couldn't travel on it."
Klehn said the best plan would be to send visas to a foreign organization or individual in China for forwarding to the Red government.

"That's because the Communists hate to make decisions because they never know when policy will change and the decision will backfire against them."
"If a Hong Kong visa and an explanatory letter was mailed from abroad the Communist receiving it would know that no copy of the letter was on file any place inside China."
"So in many cases he would avoid danger for himself by destroying the letter and visa."
But, he continued, if the documents were postmarked from within the nation "it would be unsafe to destroy the original and equally unsafe to ignore."
Then he'd usually release the prisoner as the safest thing to do, knowing that sooner or later he will do that anyway.

RACE WITH REDS

Half Of Medium Bombers Now Jets

By ELTON C. FAY
AP Military Affairs Editor
WASHINGTON (U)—The Air Force, racing against the growth of Russian air power, now has at least half its fleet of strategic medium bombers composed of swift, high-altitude jet craft.
And by the end of this year the last of the World War II design, conventional-engine B29 and B50 bombers may be gone from the medium wings, replaced by the atom bomb-carrying Boeing B47 jets.
These developments apparently figure in the recent decision to rely less on manpower and more on air power to maintain the U. S. military position in the Far East.
In 1953, deliveries of all types of military planes from the aircraft industry totaled about 1,200. Accelerated deliveries coupled with crew training during recent months, it was learned today, have enabled the Strategic Air Command to raise to between 8 and 10 the number of medium bomber wings equipped with B47s. A wing of that type normally contains 45 planes.

The rapid increase in the Soviet Union's operating air fleet of jet and rocket-powered interceptors has made more urgent the conversion of the U. S. strategic fleet from the slow (400 miles an hour) jet planes.
For long-range heavy bombardment the Air Force at present has about four wings (30 planes each) of Convair B36 bombers. These huge planes can carry 40 tons of bombs of any kind, including hydrogen weapons, at moderate ranges and operate over a radius of more than 5,000 miles with lesser loads. Their speed has been stepped up to above 435 miles by adding four jet engines to the six piston engines which give the bomber its ultra-long distance.
Delivery of the first production items of the Boeing B52 heavy, all-jet bomber is expected to start next fall. That plane, while lacking the range of the piston-engine B36, flies faster than even the medium B47. To compensate for the high fuel consumption of the jet engines, the B52 is being equipped for mid-air refueling from tanker planes, thus extending its range.
Presumably it was with these factors in mind that President Eisenhower spoke last week of "our growing national air power," which he said possesses greater mobility and striking power than ever before. In that same statement announcing the planned withdrawal of two Army divisions from Korea he warned that, if the Asiatic Communists should break the truce in Korea, in all probability it would not be possible to confine hostilities to Korea.
That strongly implied warning that American air power would be used upon the homeland of the Chinese Reds in event of truce violation was in marked contrast to policies expressed when the Korean War was at its height.
Top Air Force officials then advised both the Defense Department and Congress that it would be unwise to attempt bombing Manchuria. The reasons given were two:

Complaint On Housing Deal Is Made At C-City

COLORADO CITY (U)—The Colorado City Council was to hold a special meeting Monday morning to consider complaints from residents near the Eastover Addition concerning a proposed housing project.
The Eastover Addition is in the swank, northeast section of Colorado City—newly developed since World War II, and is at present, an "all-white" section.
Complaints began reaching councilmen after the erection of a sign at the corner of East 17th and Watson Streets which says "50 Low Cost Homes to be built immediately—No Race Segregation—No Down Payments—For Sale or Rent—For Info ALDEN ROGERS, phone 6-5295, Odessa."
Rogers appeared before the Council in its December meeting asking the city to void a contract entered into prior to the initial development of the Eastover Addition. Colorado City requires a deposit on water and sewer extensions of more than 100 feet, with the depositor receiving a proportionate refund as intervening lots are occupied. Under the contract, Eastover promoters deposited $25,000 in escrow, and proposed to build 150 houses and for each house built would receive a refund of $166. With slightly over $9,000 left in the fund, the "50 Low Cost Homes" would result in approximately a full refund. As provided in the contract, the city ran water and sewer lines throughout the addition.
In December, Rogers proposed that the city pave in front of his lots with the escrow money. As on previous occasions, when he had requested a cash rebate, the council voted "No."
The council met informally Sunday afternoon to discuss the situation but according to Mayor R. B. Baker, came to no decision.

Dewey Says Hunt For Traitors Calls For Use Of Caution

NEW YORK (U)—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey said today elimination of traitors should be carried out without injuring reputations of the innocent and without "untrammeled exploration of intellectual or scientific inquiry and teaching."
"We should have grown up far enough to have learned the difference between liberty and license," the governor said. "The very possession of liberty imposes a necessity for discipline which respects the liberty of others, in their person, in their property and in their intellectual attainment."
Dewey made his remarks in a speech prepared for delivery at the opening of Columbia University's year-long 200th anniversary celebration.
"This 20th anniversary," the governor declared, "finds free men everywhere battling three major threats."
"The first is the Communist totalitarian ideology which would place all men on a procrustean bed."
"The second threat comes from the impoverished of mind and spirit who distrust all learning and fear to trust the future."
"The third comes from the small but vocal group who would sacrifice liberty in order to defeat its enemies."

GI Who Fled To Reds Surrenders To U.S. Officials

BERLIN (U)—A U. S. Army private who fled to the Communists to escape a six-month prison term last September has surrendered to U. S. authorities.
The Army announced yesterday that military police picked up the soldier, Pvt. Norman M. Lowe Jr. of Somerville, Mass., Saturday after a telephone tip that he was in the West Berlin home of a German girl friend.
He escaped through a window on an American military train at a Communist checkpoint in the Soviet zone last Sept. 12. At the time he was on his way to a prison at Augsburg to serve a sentence for disobeying an Army order.
The official East German news agency ADN claimed in October that he had renounced his U. S. citizenship and requested political asylum.
The Army has confined the soldier to a guardhouse and would not let reporters talk with him.

Cornerstones In Old Buildings Should Be Properly Preserved

This hardly comes under the head of pressing or world-shaking importance, but for what it is worth we would like to suggest some definite arrangements be made about preserving cornerstones in the public buildings soon to be demolished.

It's An Important Election Year, So Prepare As Good Citizen Should

Only 25 days remain in which to pay your property taxes without penalty and your poll tax, without which you'll find yourself sitting on the sidelines of a most important political year all dressed up and no place to go.

For the newcomers from other states, of which this area has many, there is this interesting piece of information: If you became a citizen of Texas after January 1, 1953, you don't have to pay a poll tax in order to vote.

Your property taxes will accumulate a penalty unless paid by January 31. There is no recourse in the case of poll taxes—if not paid you can't vote; and on top of that you might still have to pay your poll tax since it is rendered along with your property tax.

Yes, indeed, this is an important election year. In addition to the biennial congressional elections and a full slate of state, county and precinct officers, there will be the usual municipal elections, perhaps a bond issue or two, or charter amendments, or state constitutional amendments.

There is nothing yet to indicate that the burning desire to vote which marked the Texas electorate in 1952 is still prevalent. On the contrary poll tax payments have been lagging, and unless there is an extraordinary effort made between now and midnight January 31 to persuade people to perform this civic duty the vote in the primaries and general election will fall far below that of two years ago.

The earlier you pay your poll tax, the less jam there will be at the tax collector's receiving windows. You can pay your wife's poll tax, or vice versa, but if you pay anybody else's, you'll be violating the law. If you don't pay any, you'll be laying down on the job as a citizen. And this is no time for anybody to lay down.

Nothing Should Be Permitted To Upset Ike's Atom Proposal

Mr. David Lillenthal's proposal, which he broadcast recently, is interesting and worthy of respect. But it differs radically from the President's proposal.

more among the many agencies for conducting the cold war.

Mr. Lillenthal would like the United Nations to set up an agency for production and research in the peaceful uses of atomic energy before negotiations with the Soviet Union have been completed. This is just what the President did not propose. The fundamental condition of his proposal is that "the Soviet Union must, of course, be one" of those "principally involved" in developing the plans of the agency.

Agencies for conducting the cold war, such as the Marshall Plan, NATO, Military Aid and the like are necessary. But in establishing them we have remembered that the United Nations is a universal society and we have not asked it to sponsor them. There is no reason why we should now begin.

It would be a great pity, in my view, if here or abroad Mr. Lillenthal's proposal were to become confused with the President's. For it leaves out what is essential in the President's conception and it introduces an amendment which can add only to the discord and trouble of which we already have plenty.

The President's proposal would never have evoked the response it did had it not been so evidently and so sincerely an effort to find a little ground of accommodation outside the trampled fields of the unending struggle. It may be, of course, that the Soviet Union cannot or will not come on to any ground of accommodation. But the principle of the President's proposal is that it is a good thing, good in itself, good for the aching spirit of mankind, which includes American mankind, that the ground of accommodation should be there and should be accessible.

If Mr. Lillenthal's proposal were based on the special knowledge which he acquired as chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission, I would not venture to differ with him so sharply. But what he is proposing is not in the technical field of atomic energy but in the general field of international relations.

Let the seed that has been sown in it be allowed to lie for a while, unforced and undisturbed. Let us forego the itch to do something by digging it up to see if it is sprouting. The peaceable uses of atomic energy will in the long run no doubt be great. But there is a false urgency in talking as if all could be won or lost in the next few months.

He is advising the President to ask the United Nations to set up the Atomic Energy agency immediately—without waiting to negotiate the matter fully to a conclusion with the Soviet Union. What makes him think that the United Nations would do that if we ask it? Which of the nations among the members of the United Nations would vote for such a proposal and themselves participate in the agency? Would the Arab-Asian bloc go out of its way to our invitation to inflict such a gratuitous affront upon the Soviet Union? How many of our allies in NATO does Mr. Lillenthal think could be lined up for his proposal?

What could be won or lost now and in the next few months has nothing to do with the future of atomic energy but much to do with the confidence of men all over the world. What matters most is not so much the specific plan but its intentions and its purpose.

The very act of our adopting such a proposal would at one stroke undo the main good that was done by the President's speech. The main good was a clarification and vindication of the motives of the United States. The immense volume of good will which came from all the world, so great that it made its impression inside the Kremlin, would be deeply jeopardized. For what had been an invitation to see if the division of mankind can be transcended would have become simply one

Being used to disappointment, we know that the Soviet Union may refuse to participate no matter how patiently we negotiate the issue. If that is to be the outcome, we shall, of course, have to find another plan. But there is no point in starting now with yet another plan which would by its very terms cause the President's plan to fail.

It's Doubtful If Eisenhower Can Keep From Making Enemies During His Term

WASHINGTON (AP)—In his talk to the nation tonight President Eisenhower steps across the line dividing his first and second years in office and two periods in his life.

By the calendar his first year doesn't end until Jan. 20. But his second year actually begins tonight with his broadcast report which is preliminary to the return of Congress Wednesday.

people is guaranteed to make dead ducks of him and his administration. The same state of political extinction could be arrived at by a president through exactly opposite means: by being so anxious to please everyone that he made compromises that pleased no one.

For Eisenhower 1953 was a period of preparation. The public, regarding him with high esteem and patient expectation, waited while he postponed action on some major issues and got ready the program he would hand Congress in 1954.

He kicked a few shins with rubber-toed shoes designed to cause a minimum of pain and anger. In calling no names, he took out insurance deliberately or not, against being called names in turn. And he still wore the armor of his immense popularity.

It's possible he can pursue that policy through the four years of his administration, get his program through as he wants it, make no enemies, and have to endure no personal attacks. But it isn't likely.

The Sun Lends Big Hand When Storm Clouds Form Tornadoes

The opinions contained in this and other articles in this column are solely those of the writers who sign them. They are not to be interpreted as necessarily reflecting the opinions of The Herald.—Editor's Note.

There is a time of year when Texans and particularly West Texans gird for tornadoes. If they hit in March or April, they're not exactly unexpected.

funnel of black wind. Warm, moist air underlying cool-dry air is one of the basic essentials for development of a twister. Warm air, being light, rises and cold air sinks.

This winter, they've been lashing some portions of the South and Southwest and some of our gentle people are downright unhappy about it.

When the contrast is sudden and sharp, there is a violent overturning of the air. If the tornado grows on a thunderstorm cloud, as it does in most cases, the overturning is accomplished by an updraft in front and a downdraft in back. The downdraft takes the form of a whirling cloud, or funnel. Result: A tornado.

If those citizens can't understand the capricious weather, the meteorologists are ready to volunteer an answer. The weatherman insists above-normal weather along the Gulf Coast caused the big winds.

Twisters, weathermen point out, are small-scale disturbances but they usually are associated with large storm areas moving across country.

A tornado, adds he, is a restless funnel of air dangling earthward from a thunderstorm cloud. The rotating winds therein can reach a velocity of 500 miles an hour.

The sun has a hand in the whole business, the meteorologists add. The worst hour for twisters and thunderstorms, they say, is 4:30 p.m., which follows by about 30 to 60 minutes the maximum solar heating time.

Temperature and moisture of the air, of course, have a lot to do with the chance that a thunderstorm can be transformed into a tornado by developing a "tail"—a

Glamor Vs. Principle Problem May Be Met By Administration

The problem that has always faced government by the direct consent of the governed is that the political mind is too often more interested in obtaining the consent than in government. In a word, politicians want to be elected and re-elected.

sonalities in the U. S. Information Agency. This paralysis is inexplicable because John Foster Dulles, Secretary of State, is a student of the Marxist conspiracy.

The nature of New Deal legislation is that both Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Truman were involved in depression and war. Mr. Eisenhower, on the other hand, faces a condition of prosperity and a liquidation of war. At best, the New Deal was a protective against failure of a civilization; at worst, it was an attempt to produce a Marxist revolution without the consent of the American people.

Most republics in history have fallen on this one issue, namely, that after the politicians have learned to bribe the people with bread and circuses, or to put it in current terms, with glamor and subsidies, the people learn to prefer glamor to principle; they learn to prefer subsidies to a sound economy. No nation can stand too long a dose of these opiates. The heart, that is the moral stature, of the nation degenerates and dies.

President Eisenhower was elected not to continue the New Deal but to arrest its movement and to change the course. His slogan was, "It is time for a change."

This is our major political problem in this year 1954 and the Eisenhower program may meet it.

Mr. Roosevelt was so glamorous that a large element of the American people believed that he was acting them as well as he could in troubled times. They demonstrated this judgment by electing him four times to the presidency.

Authorities speculate someone may have emptied a goldfish bowl into the pond, and nature did the rest.

Mr. Truman inherited Roosevelt's errors of judgment and the consequences that flowed therefrom. He knew that Roosevelt had opened the door to a motley crew of subversives, but a partisan loyalty paralyzed normal repugnance for such persons.

Certain Birds Open Oysters

The strong, hard shells of oysters guard them from enemies. Most fish let oysters alone, and the same is true of most birds.

able to "catch" oysters, and how does it reach the inside of the shells?

Starfish (which differ widely from true fish) attack oysters when possible. After a starfish fastens its arms to the shell, it can force the two halves open. Then it eats the soft body.

In a few cases, oysters have been dragged up from depths of half a mile or more, but the majority are found less than 50 feet below the surface. Some live only a few feet down, and these are likely to become the "game" of oyster catchers. At low tide, such oysters are exposed, or almost exposed, on a beach.

Birds seldom seek oysters, but one kind of bird likes them so well that it is called the oyster catcher! This bird is a little larger than a crow; some fishermen speak of it as the "sea crow."

A bird of this kind has a bill with an end almost like the blade of a knife. After finding an oyster, the bird forces the tip of its bill between the halves of the shell, and forces an opening.

Oyster catchers live along the sea coasts in warm parts of the world. On our continent they have been reported as far north as New Brunswick, but most of them are seen much farther south. They range from the coast of Virginia southward to Florida, and around the Gulf of Mexico.

When these birds lay eggs, they go to dry places on the beach and hollow out the sand. The female warms the eggs at night. During daytime, she usually trusts the sunshine to do the work.

Shortly after they left, Mrs. Howdy found the station again. She had found the rings, valued at $750.

The question comes, "How is this bird tomorrow: Pearl Divers.

Mrs. Howard explained she had pinned them to her nightgown, all right, but had put the nightgown on backwards.

Barbara Darrow, here wearing "glitter" in her hair, does not take her youth or beauty for granted but has formulated a plan for careful grooming. Barbara will soon be seen in RKO's "French Line."

Establish Set Routine For Careful Grooming

By LYDIA LANE
HOLLYWOOD — "After you leave the teens you have to think more about caring for yourself," Barbara Darrow told me. She added that the actresses who looked years younger than they were had all begun a beauty routine early.

"I grew up in Hollywood and I always knew I was going to be a movie actress, so I've been a fan from way back," Barbara said as she explained that her mother and father were in the theatre. "So I started having training as soon as possible."

"But even if she has no desire to be an actress every girl should learn as much as she can about grooming," Barbara added. "Appearance is so important in getting started in any field, and it is good to learn that it's just as easy to dress neatly and attractively as it is to put on things which don't go together."

"Learn how to do your hair yourself—you can't always get an appointment when you want it," she went on. "It's not easy for some to do their hair but they can learn. I had to practice quite a while."

BEAUTY BOOKLET

Here's your chance to get a copy of "1954 Diary For Beauty" Lydia Lane's new booklet which features vital beauty information on all phases of beauty. Included, along with photographs and autographs of some of Hollywood's biggest stars, is an important section on the secret of good skin written by Jean Simmons. You'll be on the road to more beauty for 1954 when you order your copy and send ten cents (10 cents) AND a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Lydia Lane, Hollywood Beauty, in care of The Big Spring Herald.

before I was satisfied. I've found that when I set my hair with clips instead of bobby pins it has a better line and a softer wave. The most difficult part about doing your own hair is to learn how to put up the back. Get a friend to help you until you can turn out a professional-looking job. It's worth learning because you are assured of always looking tops when a last minute invitation comes through.

"I believe in having a date with myself for manicuring, shampooing and shaving my legs. It's the only way to be assured of being well groomed. If you don't set a time and if you let other things interfere, then you're liable to go around with a sloppy hair-do, chipped nails or with legs which are not as smooth as they should be."

"Neatness and freshness go a long way in making you look attractive," Barbara said with emphasis. "But being rested is important too. You not only look fresher but you feel more on the up and up when you get ample rest. I like to lie down for twenty minutes with pads over my eyes before I go out on a date."

"Do you use cotton soaked in witch hazel?" I asked.

"That's good," Barbara agreed, "but I find it less trouble to use a jar of eye pads shaped to fit the lids which are already moist. You can buy them in any cosmetic department."

If you have not organized your grooming habits for the new year, do so now.

Mary Margaret McBRIDE SAYS

The other day I went to a real tea party with gentle conversation, paper-thin sandwiches, dainty cakes with rich frosting, benevolent candlelight, lace tablecloth and gleaming silver.

It occurred to me, savoring the occasion, that it's a pity tea parties have gone out of style. In a year I get asked to an odd assortment of entertainments: Luncheons in the subway and on a gallery overlooking an excavation where steam shovels and riveters are deafeningly busy, dinner in a waterfront grocery warehouse, supper in a wholesale wine cellar where the guests donned friars' robes and strolled among the kegs carrying lighted candles. There was even a gala in a swimming pool, I remember, where you floated on your back (if you could float) and watched movies on the ceiling. But never a tea party until that one the other day.

I've been bidden to meals where everything on the menu was made with pineapples, say, or bananas or Brazil nuts.

These functions are known in my trade (reporter) as free-loaders. One involved a private train trip and featured a fashion show to launch a resort collection. Another was a Long Island seashore picnic tied up with a new wonder drug.

There have been parties for dogs who wore jeweled collars and mink blankets to match their owners, for a mule movie star and a cinema-featured cat.

If you're in the right business—newspaper, radio or television—you can just about live and gain weight by going to free-loaders. Another was a Long Island seashore picnic tied up with a new wonder drug.

In addition to food and drink favors have included dungarees, brassieres, stockings, blouses, slippers, electric heaters and a several year's supply of lipstick and other cosmetics.

The motion picture companies used to 'throw' the most expensive shindigs, lasting sometimes for several days. I once went to Bette Davis' New Hampshire home town on a special train with fellow reporters to celebrate the actress' birthday and the opening of her newest picture. The occasion included the usual floodlights, ermine and photographers besides the added feature of a sugaring-off, New England style, with oxen and maple wax on snow accompanied by dill pickles and doughnuts.

Today, big business seems to have taken over such elaborate celebrations. An airline christens a new flight with a trip to Algiers. A hotel man charts a plane to take a group to Spain when he opens a new hotel. A flour company invited food editors to Paris merely to feed them.

These tours last from three to ten days, but I can beat that. I've just been urged to be guest of honor on a junket for which I am told to pick my destination, with the world to choose from.

I say the world to choose from because that was the phrasing of the invitation, but it occurs to me that the Iron Curtain would prove an insuperable obstacle if I made the wrong choice. Sadly enough, faced with the whole world, I feel absolutely unable to make up my mind. Should I say the South Sea Islands? Someone tells me they are being overrun by tourists. And so it goes—names that sound enchanting to me—Tibet, Kamchatka, Tierra del Fuego, but what would they be like to visit?

All this seems fairly remote from an afternoon of simple tea and conversation, but, would you believe it, the tea party has something in common with each of the more elaborate bee-downs. Their common ultimate aim is publicity. For the charming tea-gathering was introducing a new author.

Soda Straw Too Small For Fire Hose Power

Most of us are paying for electricity we are not getting. The reason, experts say, is that our homes are inadequately wired. We are trying to get a fire-hose flow of electricity through a soda straw. We have filled our homes with electrical gadgets and appliances which were not even invented when most of our houses were wired for electric lights. We plug all of these new conveniences into the same trickle of power and naturally the voltage, or pressures, goes down. The toaster dries out the bread instead of giving it a quick golden brown. The coffee maker slows down. Breakfast is late and we're late for work.

The problem is so universal that industry leaders are concerned. "Not one builder's house in 20 is adequately wired for electrical living," says House & Home, trade publication of the home building industry.

"In practically every home built before World War II, wiring is more than inadequate; it's obsolete," says Business Week, examining the "appliance boom that has led to a crisis."

The electrical load in the average home has increased 100 per cent since before the war, according to the power companies. But wiring has not kept pace.

If you doubt that all this is taking money out of your pocket, consider these examples compiled by electrical engineers of the National Adequate Wiring Bureau:

1. A toaster plugged into a wiring system which has a voltage drop of 10 per cent—common in a majority of homes—takes 31.5 per cent more time to brown a piece of toast and consumes 28.6 per cent more current than when plugged into an adequately wired circuit.

2. An electric roaster takes 28 per cent more time to reach its required cooking temperature and wastes 19 per cent of the current.

3. A lamp loses 34 per cent of its brilliance where there is a voltage drop of 10 per cent on your house circuit.

What can be done about it? H. H. Watson, engineer in the construction materials division of the General Electric Co., sums it up this way:

"Existing inadequately wired homes should be rewired and new homes must be wired to adequate standards if the homemaker and her family are to enjoy the benefits of full electric living."

The cost of wiring a house amounts to about as much as painting a house. And an efficient wiring system lasts a lot longer than any paint job. Also, it costs far less to wire a house properly during construction than after a house is finished.

"In Los Angeles," reports House & Home, "most home buyers find they cannot use an electric stove without first paying $84 for an electric outlet."

Home builders, the Federal Housing Administration and local electrical codes have been blamed for the new houses with old-style wiring. In New York's vast Long Island suburban field, where more than 4,000 new homes have been sold in one week, only 60-ampere panel boards have been installed even in fairly large all-electric homes. "No house should have less than a 100-ampere panel board," comments House & Home, adding, "extra cost: $5."

"With so many more room coolers, electric blankets and other new appliances, all circuits (not just kitchen circuits) should be three-wire."

An interesting sidelight on placing blame for overloads on house wiring was provided recently by Business Week. A woman, whose well-equipped home included all of the 56 common appliances, plugged in an electric coffeemaker er while most of the other gauges were working, and a fuse blew out. Whose fault was that? Should she blame the manufacturer of the coffeemaker, or the power company for inferior electricity?

MARLENE DIETRICH tells you "HOW TO BE LOVED"

"When the Journal editors asked me to write an article, I was astonished and honored. I had never written anything, or even authorized a by-line, but the subject intrigued me. I wrote it to remind you of your own feelings when you started to love—your own richness of heart... which you still have, but may have neglected in this hectic, rushing life of ours. You will read my sincere beliefs on love and how to be loved in the Ladies' Home Journal."

Start Firm's 21st Year

Beginning of the New Year meant the start of his 21st year in the insurance underwriting field for Joe Pond, left, who operates an insurance firm under his own name at 111 East Second Street. Associated with Pond in the agency here is Cleo Curington, right, an expert in all phases of the insurance business.

Joe Pond Insurance Firm In 21st Year

Joe Pond of Big Spring has started his 21st year in the insurance underwriting field.

It was on Jan. 1, 1934, that Pond wrote his first insurance policy. That was in Colorado City, his hometown.

In September, 1937, he moved to Big Spring where he has since operated the Joe Pond Insurance Company, providing area citizens and property owners with general insurance, including fire and casualty coverage.

Associated with Pond in the agency is Cleo Curington, an expert in all phases of the insurance business. She has had some 14 years experience in the insurance field, including three years as manager of the licensing section of the Life Insurance Department of the State Insurance Commission, Austin.

Miss Curington's boss in the department was Judge R. L. Daniel, chairman of the commission.

She also worked in an insurance agency and in the branch office of a major company in Oakland, Calif., for several years. In Texas, Miss Curington was associated with agencies in Fort Worth, Lamesa and Midland prior to coming to Big Spring.

She has been affiliated with Joe Pond Insurance since last July and her duties involve rating, counseling and underwriting.

Pond, who was reared in Colorado City and started his insurance business there, has represented the Franklin Life Insurance Company all of his 20 years in the field. He also represents a large array of other old-line companies.

Also representing Pond's 20 years of progress is his expanding agency and a new office location at 111 East Second. The new office fronts on Second Street just across from the First National Bank. Its location is at street level so there's no problem of stairways to climb when consulting with Pond on insurance matters.

Both Pond and Miss Curington invite residents of the entire section to counsel with them concerning any insurance problem. They will be happy to explain advantages of the coverages provided by the companies they represent, but emphasize that the rating and counseling services entail no obligations to the agency.

Church Destroyed Before Its Sessions

BELLEVILLE (AP)—An hour before Sunday School was to start yesterday fire destroyed Belleville's First Baptist Church—dedicated just six months ago.

Fire Chief Joe Peschke said the blaze probably started in a heating system. The loss was estimated at $85,000 to $100,000 by the pastor, the Rev. Bill McDaniel.

Name Appliance You Want, And Cook's Has It

Whether you're shopping for an electric refrigerator, a television set, an automatic washer or an electric range, Cook's Appliance Store, located at 212 E. Third Street in Big Spring, is just the place to make your purchases.

Cook's, owned and operated by Manley and Pete Cook, stocks all nationally advertised lines of household appliances.

The distinguished new Sylvania TV set, boasting the exclusive Halolight, is sold at Cook's.

The Halolight is proving popular with users because it proves easier on your eyes.

Cook's also sells the Packard-Bell and Motorola TV sets, which take up a minimum amount of space despite the fact that they offer the largest screens.

Among the electric ranges on sale at Cook's are those manufactured by O'Keefe and Merritt, the models boasting the vanishing shelf-cover, the Kool Kontrol panel and the Grillveyor broiler.

The O'Keefe and Merritt makes of ranges vary in width from 22 to 37 inches and are made to fit any type and size kitchen.

Beauty is combined with color in the Chambers electric range, also made available through Cook's.

The Chambers range comes in any number of colors, from pastel blue to "black magic," pastel green, pastel yellow, "antique copper" and "freedom red."

Business telephone number of Cook's is 4-4748. Call them for a demonstration.

Ward's Boot And Saddle Shop Popular Over Area

A Big Spring firm that has built the quality good.

One of the specialties at Ward's is hand-carved Western belts, done in color and with the wearer's name carved on them. These may be obtained there in all size and widths with all styles of buckles.

Ward's Boot and Saddle Shop at 119 East Second Street has built a reputation with the ranchers and cowboys for square dealing, for high quality, for faultless workmanship.

The business is operated on the basis of continuing to merit the confidence and patronage of these men.

Many tourists have stopped there to buy leather goods and many of the men stationed at Webb Air Force Base have been regular customers purchasing genuine western leather items to send away as gifts.

Whatever the problem in leather may be, or whatever may be needed in the way of cowboy and ranch equipment, spurs, work clothes, quirts, lariats, bridles, halters, or whatever—Ward's Boot and Saddle Shop is the place to go.

Ward's Boot and Saddle Shop is the one place where the ranchers and cowboys have learned that they're most likely to find, at the fairest price, almost anything they need from a bridle bit to a straw hat. And because this is the favorite shop of the men to whom saddles and catch ropes and bridles and chaps and boots are the tools of the trade, the dudes have also learned that for the item that is genuine, Ward's Boot and Saddle Shop is the best place to go.

There is hardly anything in their line that can't be found there in quality as high as possible, and in price as low as prices can reasonably be dropped while keeping the quality good.

Whatever the problem in leather may be, or whatever may be needed in the way of cowboy and ranch equipment, spurs, work clothes, quirts, lariats, bridles, halters, or whatever—Ward's Boot and Saddle Shop is the place to go.

Gus Doris Is Death Victim In Michigan

DORIS
Doris, former University of Detroit and Detroit Lions coach, had been ill the last six months. It was Doris and the immortal Knute Rockne who introduced the forward pass—as it is known today—to football before World War I. They were the ones who also laid the solid foundation on which Notre Dame built its fabulous grid dynasty.

Doris was the quarterback, the heady signal-caller, and Rockne the end on the Notre Dame team which went East in November 1913 to meet an Army team which was expected to name its own scores. But Doris stunned the Cadets—and the football world—as well by throwing overhanded passes which led to a 35-13 upset. Throwing in his then unorthodox manner, Doris completed 12 straight passes to Rockne and other Notre Dame players.

Kentucky, Duquesne Rate As Country's Top Teams

By ORLO ROBERTSON

NEW YORK (AP)—Basketball rankings are due for a shake-up when the ballots are counted in this week's poll but nothing in the past or on the immediate horizon figures to jar Kentucky and Duquesne off their lofty one-two perches.

Top-rated Kentucky has been idle since knocking sixth-ranked Minnesota out of the unbeaten class a week ago for its seventh win against no defeats. But the Wildcats don't figure to drop lower than second place, and perhaps not even that, in the Associated Press poll.

While Adolph Rupp was giving his Kentuckians a rest, many of the nation's foremost teams fought it out in a wide assortment of tournaments. Duquesne was one of some two dozen tournament winners. And on the basis of their triumph in the Madison Square Garden Holiday Festival in New York, the towering Dukes could well supplant Kentucky at the top.

The towering Dukes beat well-regarded Niagara in the Garden tournament and then last Saturday smothered the University of Mexico, 99-35. That was No. 11 in the Dukes' perfect string.

Kentucky has what shapes as two easy assignments this week. The Wildcats face Xavier of Cincinnati tonight and open their Southeastern Conference schedule against Georgia Tech. Both are home games for Kentucky.

Duquesne could well have a tough job against Dayton tonight but should have a romp Saturday at Johnston, Pa., against St. Francis (Pa.).

Third-ranked Indiana (7-1), which opened the Big Ten campaign last Saturday with a 62-60 victory over keyed-up Michigan, faces two more conference opponents this week—Wisconsin tonight and Minnesota Saturday. Minnesota (8-1) shapes up as the Hoosiers' chief contender for the conference title they won last year.

Since being ranked fourth a week ago, largely on the basis of a defeat of Indiana, Oregon State has dropped two games—to Navy and Duke in the Dixie Classic at Raleigh. The Beavers can look for a decline in national ranking. They now have a 7-3 record.

The fifth-rated Oklahoma Aggies, who strengthened their rating by winning the All-College Tournament at Oklahoma City to run their record to 12-1, opens its Missouri Valley season at Wichita (11-1) Thursday and plays host to Houston Saturday.

Western Kentucky (12-0), the winningest major team following victory in the Louisville tournament, hopes to make it 13 against Murray State Saturday. Illinois (6-2), with an 84-75 defeat at the hands of Minnesota last Saturday, tackles Northwestern and Michigan State this week. North Carolina State (9-3), 69-65 winner over Villanova Saturday, has engagements with Virginia Tech Tuesday and Duke Saturday.

Duke, winner of the Dixie Classic, and N. C. State figures to be the chief contenders for the Atlantic Coast Conference crown. And Fordham (7-1), ranked 10th, faces a busy week with New York University tonight, St. Francis of Brooklyn Wednesday and Army Saturday.

Detroit Bengals' Youth Movement In Full Swing

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—The Detroit Tigers' youth movement is in full swing.

Encouraged by the jump from last place to sixth in 1953, made possible by the high turnover in the vigorous rebuilding operation, the Tigers will bring 25 newcomers to their Lakeland, Fla., camp next month nineteen of these are freshmen.

On the 44-player roster will be 19 pitchers including seven rookies. Heading the list of hopefuls is Frank Lary, one-time University of Alabama righthander. Lary won 17 and lost 11 for third place Buffalo of the International League after finishing his Army service. He is 22. Another 22-year-old with a college background is Jim Blevins, 6-4 righthander from Xavier University, Cincinnati. Tigers officials, disregarding his 5-12 record at Little Rock, are sold on his potential.

Another Little Rock graduate is Nino Valdes has been mentioned as Marcano's next foe at Miami in February.

Bucceroni, 28, has a six-year age advantage on Ten Hoff, but at 190 will be spotting the rugged German some 25 pounds. Bucceroni, with 45 victories against only three defeats, won his last outing by stopping shop-worn Freddie Boshore.

But he looked far less impressive in that November bout than did Charles in his last fight in which he blasted young Coley Wallace.

So Bucceroni must shoot the works against the big German, who in 1950 lost a 10-round decision to Jersey Joe Walcott, but had the venerable American on the canvas.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With Tommy Hart

By rights, Dicky Moege should have been playing in the second annual Howard College Basketball Tournament here over the weekend rather than starring for Rice Institute in the Cotton Bowl football game at Dallas.

Moege, who perhaps staged the great one-man show in the history of the Dallas classic but who will probably be remembered more because he was tackled by Alabama's "twelfth man," was all set to go to Lon Morris of Jacksonville.

Nobody was giving him a tumble as a football prospect, though he had enjoyed moderate success at Taylor High School. Fact is, he was going to give up football and concentrate on basketball, just as Coach O. P. Adams of Lop Morris had suggested he do.

His love for the pigskin sport got the better of him however, and the next thing Adams knew Dicky had enrolled at Rice, gambling on the chance he could make the football team.

Success didn't come easy for Moege. Actually, he wasn't given much consideration by the Rice coaches until this year. He came to the fore rapidly then, however, although Kossie Johnson was the big noise in the Owl backfield.

The injury Kossie suffered in his final regular season game shifted more of the responsibility to Moege's shoulders and he came through like a champion New Year's Day.

Now, they're saying young Moege may rate the All-America teams by next season.

Adams, who fields an awesome enough junior college team as it is, also came close to getting Tyler's sensational sophomore cager, Jimmy Edelen.

Edelen had indicated to Adams he was going to Lon Morris, then sounded out the coach on how the school regarded football. Right away, Adams knew he had lost him. Lon Morris, which operates within a limited budget, doesn't take married athletes.

Floyd Wagstaff, the Tyler mentor, got wind of the developments and made a hurried trip to Oklahoma to see Edelen. It wasn't hard to talk Edelen into going to school at Tyler.

Right now, it appears Lon Morris and Tyler are in a class by themselves as junior college basketball powers in Texas. No other team is close to them, at this writing.

Only one will get off the ground when it comes time to decide a representative to compete in the National JC Tournament at Hutchinson, Kansas, however. You see, they play in the same Regional Tournament.

West Texas, incidentally, isn't unfamiliar to Adams. He used to coach at both Sonora and Grand Falls. He's been at Lon Morris seven seasons now.

Johnnie Frankie, Wharton's astute cage mentor who has contributed a lot to the success of the Howard College Tournament in the two years his teams have competed here, says he expects his team to jell but not before the Regional tournament.

Wharton hasn't the height to keep up with a team like Lon Morris but it works the ball well and shows a fine ability to hit from the outside.

Wesleyan Seeks 2nd Loop Title

By The Associated Press

Texas Wesleyan starts after its second Big State Conference basketball championship this week.

The Rams, who have a season record of three victories against four defeats, play their first conference game Friday night when they meet St. Mary's at San Antonio and Saturday night against Texas Lutheran at Seguin.

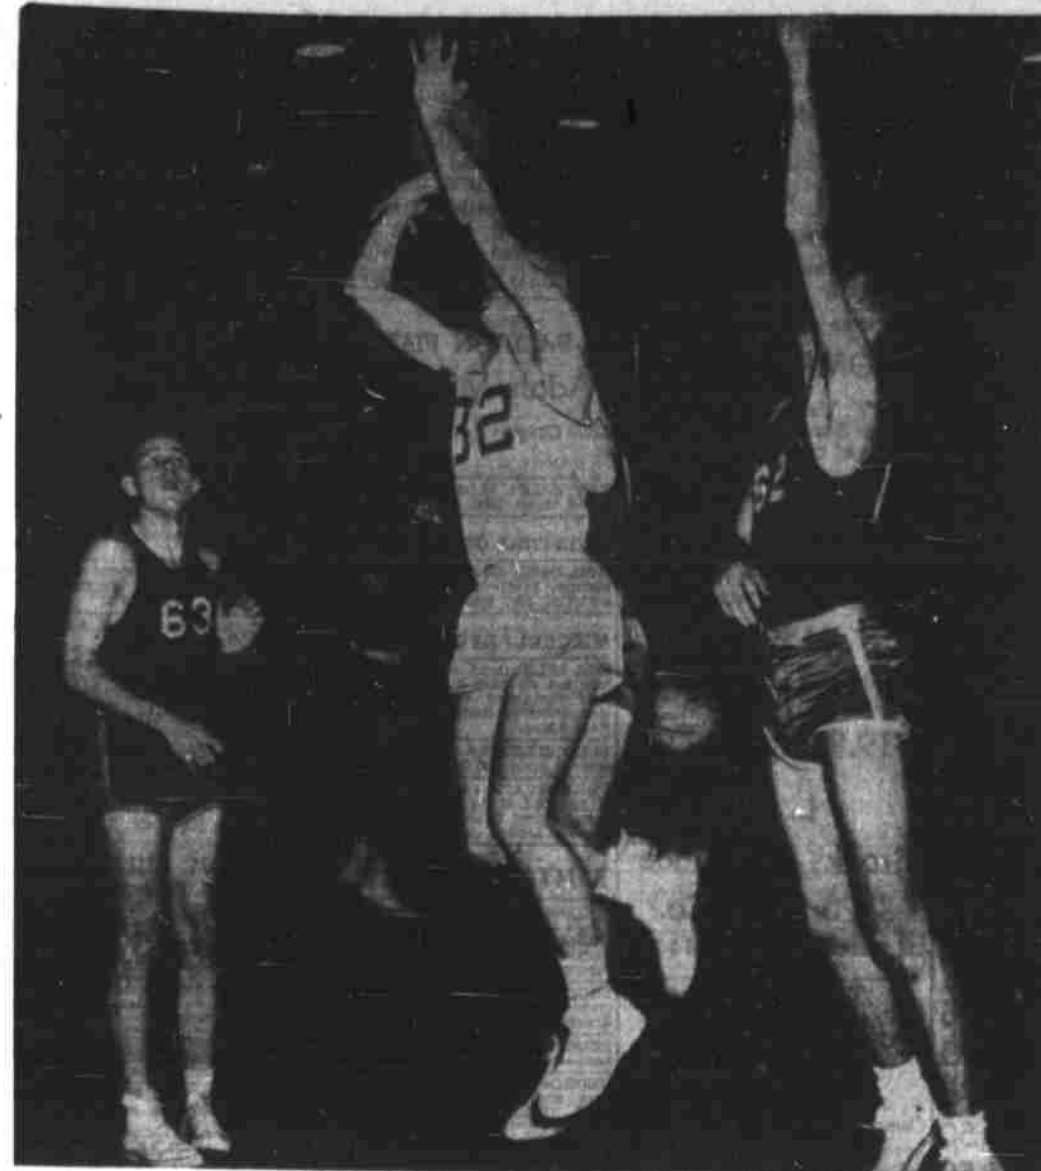

St. Edwards, leading the conference with three out of three, has no conference contests this week.

Only three games were played last week, East Texas Baptist losing twice in the McNeese tournament at Lake Charles, La. The Baptists were beaten by Southwestern Oklahoma, 80-57, and by Sam Houston State, 77-76. Southwestern lost to Lamar Tech, 79-64.

Robison, Thompson On All-State 11

DALLAS (AP)—State finalist Big Spring landed two players on the all-state Class AAA schoolboy football team selected by the Texas Sports Writers Association.

The Steers and Edinburg were the only schools placing more than one each.

Edinburg was eliminated in the second round of the state playoff but didn't lose a game—going out on penetrations in a 7-7 tie with Port Neches.

Big Spring's J. W. Thompson, tackle, and halfback Carlisle Robison made the team.

Champion Port Neches came up with one player on the mythical selection—Hubert Miller, its great center.

Allen Garrard of Nacogdoches and Jose Benavides of Edinburg are the ends. Jerry Cornelison of Temple is the other tackle, Jack Morgan of Kilgore and Lawrence Hill of Lamesa are the guards, and running with Robison in the backfield are Lester Velman of Edison (San Antonio), Carlos Esquivel of Edinburg and Ray Masters of Brownwood.

Robison was a 190-pound junior the past season who started his football career as a center and later moved to tackle.

Although he was a triple-threat, he left most of the passing to Frank Long, the Steer quarterback. He was also an excellent receiver.

He scored 19 touchdowns during the season, playoff games included, including eight on runs of 45 yards or better.

Thompson developed amazingly fast and was especially impressive on offense. He is a 190-pound senior.

First second team: Ends—Roger Hobson, Brockbridge, and Rodney Lebovitz; Port Neches; tackle—Matt Gores, Hamilton, and James Brittain; Irving; guards—James Stumm, Gainesville, and Jim Landon, Texas City; center—E. C. Davenport, Lufkin; backs—King Hill, Freepert; Roddy Osborne, Gainesville; Joel Honeycutt, Temple, and Larry Hickman, Kilgore.

Honorable mention: Ends—James Cleburne, Cleburne; Babe Graham, Paris; Ken Young, Sweetwater; Jim Brummett, Garland; Dan Cook, Texas; James Baker, Freepert; Bond Waggoner, Temple.

Tackle—Jack Crowler, Marshall; Jim Stille, Edison (San Antonio); Jerry Smith, Sweetwater; Herman Sullivan, Missouri; Keith Adams, Freepert; Jimmy Casley, Kingsville.

Guards—Wes Wyman, McCallum (Austin); Ernie Hamilton, Lamesa; Royce Taylor, Victoria; L. D. Shucraft, Sherman; Odie Fuller, Temple; Travis Wells, Freepert; Howard Bailey, Garland.

Centers—Bill Harlow, Brownwood; Bill Perryman, Plainview; Dick Beckman, Pottsboro; Juan-Alamo.

Backs—Jim Wright, Edinburg; Bill Dunley, Breckenridge; Charles Jackson, Paris; Jackie Mathon, Port Neches; Earl Shufeldt, Port Neches; Gordon Lebovitz, Port Neches; Felix Knepper, New Braunfels; Larry Chick, Paris; Carlos Lerma, Kingsville; Johnny Jones, Lamesa; Ansel Gray, Sweetwater; James Moffatt, Texas; Cesar Fulton, McAllen; Kenneth Ford, Breckenridge.

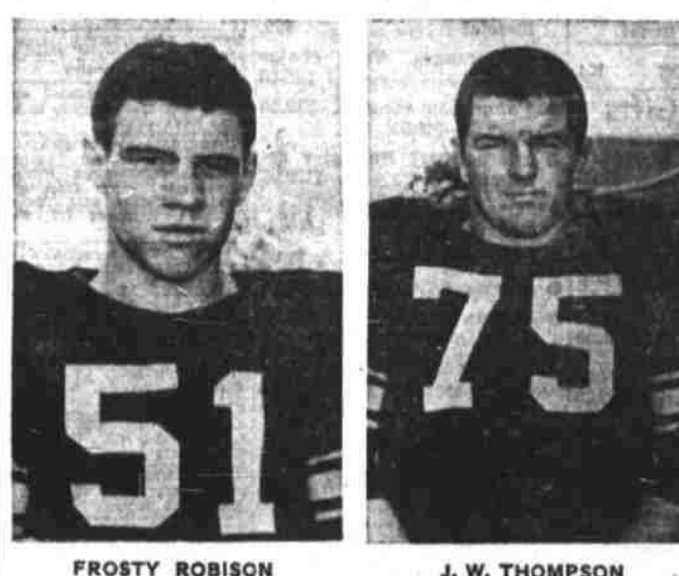

Zatopek Scorches Brazilian Track

By The Associated Press

LONDON (AP)—Emil Zatopek's New Year's Eve feat in Brazil of running 7,300 meters (about 5 miles) in 20 minutes and 30.4 seconds had track and field statisticians re-checking their slide rules today.

They looked up from their tabulations and proclaimed that Zatopek's clocking indicates the incredible Czech probably passed the 5,000 meters and the three miles in faster time than the world records of 13:58.2 and 13:32.4 set in 1942 by Gusder (The Wonder) Haegg of Sweden.

No official intermediate clockings were announced for the Brazil race.

SW CAGE CONFERENCE RACE OPENS TUESDAY

By The Associated Press

The Rice Owls put their 10-game undefeated streak on the line Tuesday night in opening championship play in Southwest Conference basketball and they couldn't have picked a tougher one to start the race against.

It's high-scoring Southern Methodist, an outfit that has averaged 75.8 points per game in winning seven while losing three. Rice managed to beat SMU by only one point—80-79—last week in the conference pre-season tournament at Houston.

The Owls and Methodists clash in Dallas, a slight advantage for SMU, and a packed gym is due to see the battle.

This is one of six conference games on the schedule and the top-rated teams meet each other quickly. Saturday night Arkansas and Texas, who are among the rated four, get together at Austin.

Also Saturday night finds SMU playing a tough Baylor team. Haphazard and disappointing Texas Christian, the defending conference champion bulging with experience but apparently unable to do anything about it, gets Texas at Fort Worth Tuesday night while Baylor takes on stumbling, impotent Texas A&M at College Station.

Rice plays Texas A&M at Houston Saturday night to round out the week's conference action.

There's an interconference game on the schedule—Arkansas plays Mississippi at Memphis Tuesday night.

The pre-season tournament at Houston ran close to anticipated form with some close games. Rice and Texas roared the finals with overtime victories, Rice nosing SMU and Texas beating Arkansas.

Burrow Runs Point Aggregate To 413

By The Associated Press

The 103 points Robert Burrow of Lon Morris scored in the second annual Howard College Basketball Tournament here last weekend ran his season's total to 413 for 13 games.

His game average would be 31.8 points for the campaign.

Medical Graduate

Quizzed In Girl's Abduction By Police

HOUSTON (AP)—Police questioned a 28-year-old medical school graduate today after a little girl was carried from her hospital room and molested.

A man reportedly abducted the 6-year-old Montgomery County girl from her first-floor room at St. Joseph's Hospital before dawn Friday as her mother slept in the room. The child said the man later returned her to the hospital entrance.

She has been in the hospital since Tuesday for a heart checkup. Police list the crime as sodomy and kidnapping.

The man was arrested Saturday after a nurse notified police a man she did not know had called six times asking for a date. She said he twice urged her to "go get the little girl," that he wanted to drive her around and see if he could find the spot where she was molested.

Police said several known perverts will be checked.

Four Fathers Feared Drowned Inside Bay

WALDPOR, Ore. (AP)—Four men, the fathers of 14 children, apparently drowned on windswept Alsea Bay on the Oregon Coast, state police reported yesterday.

They were identified as Lyle Marion King, 44, the father of five children; Henry Lee King, 24, the father of three; Alton Robert King, 42, the father of two; and Loren McWhorter, 25, the father of four. The Kings were brothers. The four left Waldport in a rented boat to a point across the bay. The boat was found on the beach upside down. Police believed heavy waves had overturned it.

One Texas Postmaster Seeks To Quit But Can't Do It Yet

By The Associated Press This was the situation Monday on the Texas postmaster front: One is trying to quit but, so far, can't. Another who doesn't want to quit, has quit. Both are Democrats.

Cecil Coale, postmaster at Orange on the Upper Coast, says he mailed his resignation to the Postoffice Department in Washington more than a month ago. He asked to be relieved Dec. 31 but is still waiting.

Mrs. Marguerite Mullen, who liked her job as postmistress at Alice in South Texas, turned over her keys to the son of the Jim Wells County Republican chairman Sunday. He'll be postmaster.

Mrs. Mullen, who says she is being dismissed for "political reasons," locked up most of the post-office stamps last Friday evening. The clerk she left in charge ran out of stamps Saturday and customers had to use a coin-in-the-slot device in the postoffice lobby.

Two postal inspectors who had hovered around the office since Mrs. Mullen locked up things Friday watched Sunday as she handed the keys to G. Dudley Fitzsimmons, 27. Asked if the post office would be open Monday with plenty of stamps on hand, the son of the county GOP leader snapped, "of course."

Coale, in a letter to the Orange Leader, said he would give full time to his abstract, guaranty and real estate brokerage business as soon as the administration relieves him.

"So far I have not received any word from the department, but I am presuming that the resignation will be accepted as soon as possible."

Orange County GOP Chairman R. R. Allen apparently thought so, too. He said he expected to see a Republican succeed Coale but that the party wasn't ready yet to recommend anyone.

French May Have Government Crisis Forthcoming Again

PARIS (AP)—France woke up today to the prospect of a possible government crisis this week. Premier Joseph Laniel announced he would ask Parliament Wednesday to confirm his government or kick it out—well in advance of the Big Four foreign ministers' Berlin meeting.

Laniel's Cabinet is due to resign Jan. 17 because of the inauguration the day before of President-elect Rene Coty, but the Premier decided to force a showdown at once on how France would be represented when the Big Four meet Jan. 25.

Over the weekend he offered his resignation to outgoing President Vincent Auriol, saying a Cabinet crisis the week before the Berlin conference might prevent France from being effectively represented. Auriol refused the resignation.

In another letter to Auriol last night, Laniel called a special session of the National Assembly and the Council of the Republic (senate) for Wednesday "to hear a governmental statement."

Flea Fishing Now Italian Occupation

FERRARA, Italy (AP)—Ever hear of flea fishing? No, not fly fishing. Scores of boys and unemployed men are making a living at it these days in the swamps and lakes of the Po River delta here.

The fleas sell by the pint, and wind up in cellophane packages on the world market.

The odd industry goes back over a century. An old Ferrara sea captain sailed home from the China seas to retire. He brought back a few buckets filled with goldfish and poured them out into a little lake near here.

Apparently the same buckets contained Chinese water fleas. They bred by the millions, and almost annual Po floods spread them throughout the swamplands.

The flea fishing industry developed only recently. Someone got the idea the fleas were a health food for canaries and fancy tropical fish.

Boys skim them from the water with fine-mesh cloth nets and sell them by the pint. A hard working boy can bring in half a dozen pints a day.

They are fattened on ox blood, then dried and pressed into cakes. These are packaged and shipped to markets in Germany, France and the United States.
