Congressman George Mahon, U.S. Representative of the 19th Congressional District, expressed to a crowd of Lubbock citizens how, "delighted" he was to be under the lights of the Lubbock Opportunity Industrialization Center (LOIC) where "people are being trained," at a reception in his honor Monday evening at the training center at 2200 East Broadway.

The Congressman received a pair of Texas boots from the citizens of Lubbock and the OIC staff members during the gala affair which showed in attendance politicians from state, county and city level as well as bank presidents, prominent businessmen and chamber of commerce personnel.

"I feel I'm appropriately dressed, now that I have the boots," smiled the Congressman after being assisted in doning them by their maker, Willie Lusk, Jr., owner of Lusk's Boot Shop.

The handsome boots were presented to the Congressman by Eddie P. Richardson, executive director of LOIC. The young executive director told the crowd of citizens, "Congressman Mahon, I present you

Manager of Green-Fair Manor Apartments Declares "War" on Litter and Trash Saturday

"CITY SLOW IN PICKING UP TRASH AND RUBBISH" The city doesn't pick up the trash and rubbish in the Green-Fair Manor Apartments area as they should," according to Alvin S. Alleyne, manager. "But," he added, "The parents send the young kids out to empty the trash and the kids are too small to reach the dumpster." The dumpster pictured above is located in the 2400 block of Weber Drive, serving the apartment complex.

A war on trash and rubbish is the order of the week at the Green-Fair Manor Apartments, according to its manager, Alvin S. Alleyne. The effort got underway last Saturday with volunteers, sacks and bullhorns being used to start the gigantic project.

In a letter sent out to all tenants December 23, 1971, the young manager stated, in so many words, "One of the things that I have noticed is the dirty conditions on the parking lots and the grounds of the apartments. Since I only have four maintenance men to work with, and they also have to make repairs and installations in the apartments, it is difficult to maintain the place without your cooperation."

The letter went on to say: "I am trying to get the Housing Authority to hire a few more men to take care of the cleaning. In the meantime, I would appreciate your help in trying to make Green-Fair Manor look nicer than it does now. I will personally pay you a visit in the near future to discuss the ways in which you can help."

Since last December, things have gotten started in the apartment complex which has 237 units and more than 500 tenants. Young people were invited to participate last Saturday and response was good, according to Mr. Alleyne.

Plains Co-Op Oil Mill donated sacks to the effort and bullhorns were loaned to him and his crew by the high schools. The City of Lubbock furnished a dump truck to place the garbage in during the Saturday clean-up drive.

Frank Woodson of 2507 Weber Drive served as chairman of the special clean-up project.

Mr. Alleyne told the West Texas Times that the City of Lubbock hasn't been coming by to pick up the trash in the dumpsters. "We hope to have some type of clean-up effort each Saturday and hope that young people will get involved in keeping their community clean," he added.

The war on trash and rubbish will continue this Saturday and Mr. Alleyne invites

Lubbock Needs More Crime Prevention Programs

After reading the Uniform Crime Report, issued by John Edgar Hoover, Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI), it's easily seen that crime has increased in the Lubbock community, as well as in the United States. For that manner, crime in the United States, as measured by the Crime Index offenses, increased six per cent during the first nine months of 1971 compared to the same period in 1970.

Since the facts are out, Lubbock could profit by more positive programs to reach the so-called "hard-core" persons who are adding to the rise in crime in our community. When we talk about "hard-core", we're not necessarily talking about the poor community only, for there are "hard-core" persons in any given neighborhood, rich or poor; Black, white or brown.

We feel as though an extensive public relations program and an increase human development curriculum would be a start in helping to reach many citizens in our community. This could be done with an outreach effort, leaving no stones unturned, in all communities in Lubbock. This might also enhance the possibility of getting more Black and brown policemen.

In looking at the various categories of crime in Lubbock, we find the following, according to the report released December, 1971. This report, however, covers January through September of that year, and the same period of time in 1970:

Murder, non-negligent manslaughter, 24 in 1971 and 11 in 1970; forcible rape, 46 in 1971 and 35 in 1970; robbery, 106 in 1971 and 78 in 1970; aggravated assault, 460 in 1971 and 411 in 1970; burglary, breaking or entering, 1,884 in 1971 and only 1,651 in 1970; larceny $50.00 and over, 2,025 in 1971 and 1,608 in 1970; and auto theft, 271 in 1971 and 317 in 1970, (the only category that showed any decrease in reporting periods).

We must admit, also, that the courts, especially the juries, have a great responsibility in helping find solutions to the many crimes which are committed in our community. When we take the oath of a juror, we should do what we feel is best for the citizens of the community.

There's no doubt about it, we believe that a more positive program, an extensive public relations effort on the part of our local police agencies and more concerned juries—all working in the same direction—could help erase some of the crime which exists in our community.

A positive approach, by all citizens, could help tremendously. Right On!!!

Free Press Is The "Coverstone of Democracy"

We can't agree more with the 'Editorial Broadcast' Monday, January 3, 1972 which was aired by Channels 8 & 11, KCBD-TV when, in part it said, "The right of Free Expression, and a Free Press, is the coverstone of Democracy. It should be guarded zealously by every American."

We're glad to learn that Channels eight and eleven will present opinions and comments on subjects of concern to viewers on the South Plains and Eastern New Mexico each Monday evening during the 6 p.m. news. This effort, which is needed, will help to solve the communications break-down on the South Plains as well as Eastern New Mexico.

We also appreciate another part of the January 3rd Editorial Broadcast which states: "There are a number of excellent television and radio stations, and newspapers, in our area. In fact, I would like to take this opportunity to salute one of our regional weeklies, the West Texas Times. . .and its editor, T.J. Patterson. . .on their tenth birthday. The paper admirably serves the West Texas Black Community."

It went on to say, "I don't always agree with the Times. But neither do I always agree with the Avalanche-Journal, the Dallas News, nor the New York Times, nor Eric Sevareid or David Brinkley. However, a diversity of opinion is healthy, and is the root of our Democratic system, and the life blood of a Free Press."

Thanks, Mr. W. Robert McKinsey, station manager of KCBD-TV, not only for singling out the Times' efforts in West Texas, but for being opened minded about the need for the "Free Press" and its responsibility.

The West Texas Times will continue to express its healthy opinion, for we, too, realize the need for the Free Press, the "coverstone of Democracy."

This is our goal for another ten years. TJP

As I See It

by T.J. Patterson

As I See It, Pete Regus, Lubbock Athletic Director of Public Schools, should look among those Black coaches in the system to fill the post of Wayne Wilsher who resigned to become a junior high school principal in Sharyland, a Class AA school in the Valley.

Since the athletic office is considering Jimmie Keeling of Andrews, and a former head coach of Estacado High School, Harold Teal of Brownfield, John Blocker of Kilgore and formerly of Frenship, and Doug Ethridge at Hobbs; what about Percy Hines, assistant coach at Coronado High School under Coach Wilsher and veteran of the coaching field for nine years—or, Prenis Williams of Odessa Ector, who accepted that post in 1970 after leaving Dunbar High School?

If you look at the Black coaches between here and Dallas, there are only three who are head coaches (at last check). I hope the statement made by a former Black coach of Waxahachie, Texas, to George Scott, Jr., recently isn't true. The coach said, "Black coaches are becoming like short neck giraffes." We all know there are no short neck giraffes.

Thought of the Week: "Faith never fails. It is a miracle worker. It looks beyond all boundaries, transcends all limitations, penetrates all obstacles and sees the goal."

Cheryl Pillow, one of the high stepping majorettes of the Tennessee State A&I Band, proves that young Black ladies make beautiful majorettes. The 19-year-old Black sister was pictured in this month's Ebony, along with other Black sisters from Prairie View College, Texas Southern University, Booker T. Washington High School of Houston and Southern University.

You know, Cheryl, and other Black sisters attend these colleges and universities so they can use their many talents. She is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. R.A. Pillow and a graduate of Dunbar High School. She is a junior at Tennessee A&I, majoring in science.

"SOUL", which was shown last week over KTXT-TV, was one of its better productions. The program featured Muhammad Ali, who encouraged young Blacks to go to school and learn. "Black people should not only think about becoming athletes, but think about becoming lawyers, doctors, electricians, plumbers and others," Ali stated. He added, "I'm the greatest; not the smartest," but, he continued, "I've got common sense."

As I See It, Black brothers and sisters should take the advice of the boxing champ, he makes a lot of sense.

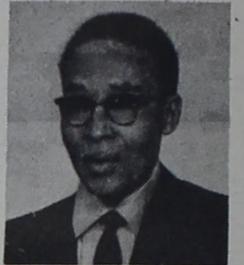

Another point worth mentioning, when he was asked if he'd box his brother who is making waves in the heavyweight division. He stated that he would rather retire than fight his brother. I hope we'll use this in our lives. Let's not fight our brothers and sisters!

Think!

The Invisible Cloak

Every living person has an inner drive that determines his actions and destiny. Instead of going into a great deal of complicated Psychological terms, let's call the drive an invisible cloak, a cloak that either protects us or destroys us.

It is so disgusting to hear a person who has been proven to be a hypocrite utter, "I enjoy doing things for people." The mouth can push out words that will deceive the world, but that cloak can not be penetrated. In other words, you can't lie to yourself.

An altruistic cloak needs no explanation, although it is invisible its deeds and actions are very visible.

The Kennedys, Malcolm X, W.E.B. DuBois, and Fred Douglas had great invisible cloaks that radiated their sincerity and charismatic quality. In my opinion, the possessor of a magnificent cloak is Muhammad Ali (Cassius Clay).

When Muhammad Ali first came on the scene, after being victorious at the Olympic games, he told one of our greatest fighters, Sugar Ray Robinson, "I am the greatest and will be the youngest heavyweight champion of the world." Those words are now a part of him. He has proven himself to be the greatest, even in defeat.

Everyone expected him to have a potpourri of excuses for losing his only fight, but as the bearer of a great invisible cloak, he humbly said, "I lost to a better man tonight, but I will be back." When he said he lost to a better man the night of his defeat should show young and old alike that here is a man who practices what he preaches.

Muhammad Ali refused to take that one step forward to be inducted into the army to fight an immoral war. Being a minister, and having the right to be deferred, his greatness and convictions made him take a stand. His action was not a promotional gimmick but a true conviction which he lived. He sacrificed everything that he cherished but his belief in his religion. His action, on careful scrutiny, should have inspired a nation but instead it brought criticism from his own people.

There is no way to divide your cloak. You must take a stand. You can't be like the pumpkin vine and the jug, that is, your fruit or crop must not always take the shape of their environment.

So many try to stimulate their cloaks by getting on their knees and asking for Jesus, but they need to get up and offer to trade part of Jesus for part of the world.

In order to make West Texas a better place to live, a lot of people need to stop living like that phrase from "South Pacific", "Teach them carefully before it is too late, that is, while they are five, six, seven, or eight, teach them to hate all of the people their relatives have," because that kind of teaching is what is destroying West Texas and has it so far behind time.

Don't ask people to live for your benefit. If you expect them to co-operate with you, why not try co-operating with them?

Little things that you do for others will pay off in the long run.

The way you treat your fellow man, and, above all, the way you treat yourself will determine how your invisible cloak works. Will it be a magnet or a repellent? It depends on you.

As soon as you open your mouth people will know what you are.

It might be wise to remind some of our citizens—black, brown, and white—that no one here on earth is God, regardless to what they might say.

Wheatley's Principal, Don Rocap, One Of City's "Crossover" School Principals

Wheatley's principal, Don Rocap, paused this week to reflect on his new assignment as one of Lubbock's "crossover" administrators. Principal Rocap took the Wheatley assignment this past fall in a swap-out with Grover Colvin who is now principal at Hodges Elementary School.

Rocap was principal of Hodges Elementary School for two years. Prior to that, he was sixth grade teacher at Haynes Elementary School, his first full-time teaching position which he began in January of 1966. He taught part-time for the Lubbock Public Schools in 1965 in an adult education class at Posey Elementary School.

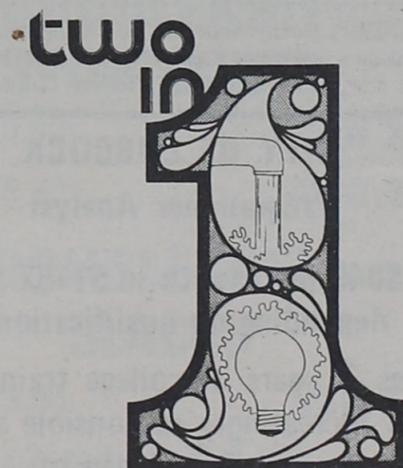

The quite-mannered school administrator reflected on his previous career in the United States Air Force, from which he was discharged in 1963 as a major. Although he was born in Pennsylvania and raised in Virginia, he adopted Texas as his home state after twenty-one years of numerous overseas and stateside assignments, the last of which was at Reese Air Force Base near Lubbock. He remembered that his older son was attending Texas Tech at the time, and staying in Lubbock seemed the natural thing. The Wheatley principal completed requirements for his bachelor's degree at Texas Tech in 1966 and took a master's degree in 1967 from Tech.

Rocap stated that he has worked with young people most of his adult life. For example, he was active in Cub Scout work while on assignment with the Air Force in Alaska. When stationed in Germany, he worked voluntarily with teenage clubs and little league baseball. His duty assignments in the service were varied, including

It's high time, what with the Southwest Conference race due to start Saturday, to turn a little attention to the world of basketball. In all the ado over football bowl games, the round ball sport largely has been ignored.

You can't ignore it any longer, Texas Tech, like the ship that has been launched, has been through its sea trials. Supposedly the bugs have been ironed out and the winning combination has been assembled.

The Baylor Bears move into Municipal Coliseum Saturday afternoon for the first conference affair and, if you can't be there in person, you can watch it on television. And from all indications, it's liable to be one of the best league games of the season.

In case you weren't aware of it, the aim of the game is to put the ball in the basket. No matter what else happens, that's still the only way to win. But that remains one of the few things about basketball that is the same.

To look at just one phase, consider the players. And this, possible, is where the greatest change in the sport has taken place. I can remember not too many years ago when a 6-6 center was considered a giant. Today, 6-6 is an average sized forward.

To bring the player size into even sharper focus, consider this: Polk Robison, one of Tech's great, was an all-conference center standing 6-2. Today's Raider star, Greg Lowry, is a guard. Greg stands 6-2 and is considered a "small" man. Richard Little, probably the next "great" Tech guard, is 6-3.

Since we mentioned guards, this is as good a time as any to point out that the Raiders, over the years, may have been blessed with more good guards than any other school. Starting with 1953, the list has been phenomenal.

Since 1952, Tech has had an outstanding leader, from Carl Ince up to Lowery and, soon, Little. Carl was 5-10. In succession came Harry Scaling, big at 6-1; Gerald Myers (5-10); Del Ray Mounts (5-10); Mike Gooden (5-9); Dub Malise (5-11); Jimmy Fullerton (5-10); Jerry Haggard (5-10).

Haggard was the last of the "small" men, in 1968. Steve Williams started the trend to bigger men in 1969. He stood 6-1. Lowery took over at 6-2 and Little, with two years to go, is 6-3. And 7-foot centers are becoming common.

The talk of last Thursday night's Tech-Arkansas State game was that Jim Carlen, Red Raider grid boss, was being considered for the Georgia Tech post that he narrowly lost to Bud Carson. So far, Jim's name hasn't cropped up in any of the wire service reports of coaches being considered.

Georgia Tech certainly could do worse, but maybe Carlen can do better by staying here. He's hardly had a chance yet, despite the instant success he enjoyed his first year. And that instant success probably was the worst thing that could have happened. Everyone expected too much last fall.

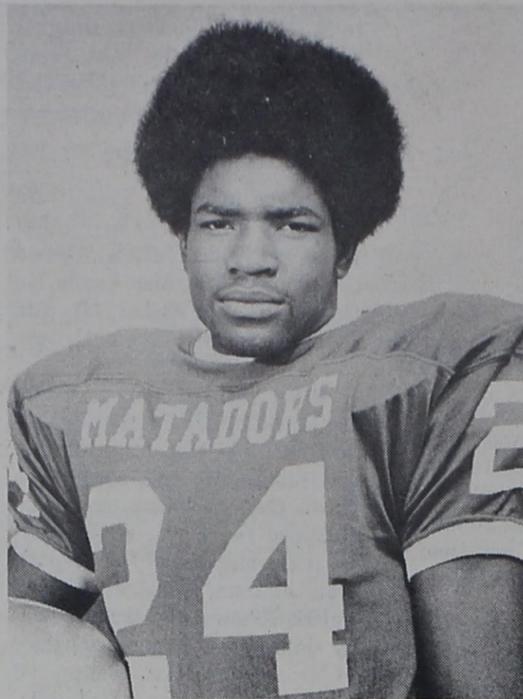

Now, starting his third year, he's in a position to come closer to putting it all together. That doesn't mean a conference championship, which would appear at this point to be destined for Arkansas. But it does mean a better team than 1971 and one that should post about an 8-3 or even a 9-2 record.

You thought that the Super Bowl had been forgotten? Hardly. The chances are good that it could attract the largest viewing audience of any single pro event in history.

You have two colorful teams in Dallas and Miami. The latter has its share of support from regular fans and those who just would like to see the Cowboys win one after coming so close. Miami has caught the attention of the nation as a newcomer, as well as the underdog.

The Cowboys, because of their experience and a defense that has been magnificent, are favored, and rightfully so. The Dolphins probably have more raw enthusiasm and that can't be discounted as an asset. But the name of the game still is blocking and tackling and Dallas would appear to have the edge there.

THE ROUNDUP: Donny Anderson, now living in Lubbock, is in the process of getting a real estate license. It's said that Donny, who is sans contract right now, would like to be a Cowboy, Dallas variety. . . . Won-

LUBBOCK FOOTBALLERS MAKE All-State Team—Two outstanding football stars at Dunbar and Estacado High School were chosen last week by the Texas Sports Writers Association in Dallas as members of the first team Class AAA All-State football team.

This team included linebacker Thomas Howard of Dunbar and running back Larry Isaac of Estacado High School.

Thomas Howard

Both are juniors and were unanimous picks for all-city, all-district and all-South Plains.

Howard, a 180 pound middle linebacker, was in on a record-setting 206 tackles. This included a game in which he made 11 consecutive tacksels.

On the other hand, Isaac, a 175 pound tough running back, established city and school records with 1,372 yards on 222 carries. He scored 114 points, leading the Matadors to a 9-1-1 record.

der if Jim Carlen has a "Lucky Me! I Live In Lubbock" bumper sticker on his car? . . . Chris Blocker, who makes Lubbock his home, has gotten off to a great start on the 1972 pro golf tour with his fourth place finish. . . . Last year bumper stickers proclaimed: "Big Gun in '71" about Tech football. How about this for this year: "Overdue in '72". . . . Best bet for a future all-conference guard at Tech: Bryan Mauk. Why? Simple. He's 5-9 and, following Myers, Mounts, Malaise, his name begins with an "M". . . . Over 20 former WT-NM League players, not all of them ex-hubbers, live in Lubbock. . . . Wonder what-ever happened to Ray "Big Train" Clements, the old wrestler? . . . Most underrated Tech basketball player? Ed Wakefield. He's quick, quiet and deadly.

Amarillo Community Choir To Sponsor Recital

Amarillo (Special)—The Amarillo Community Choir will present a special recital Sunday afternoon, January 23, at 3:00 p.m. in the auditorium of Carver Junior High School. This effort will benefit a special scholarship project underway by the community group. Miss Carla Snell, graduate of Dunbar High School and a senior at West Texas State University, will participate in this program.

Mahon Reception . . .

these boots in the name of Lubbock citizens and the staff of the Lubbock OIC."

Sharing in the presentation was Earnest Butler, who played an important role in making preparations for the reception. Mr. Mahon remarked to Mr. Butler, "Earnest, I couldn't find a better place to receive these boots than in a place where people are being trained; I want to see LOIC do better, better and better things."

More than 300 persons were a part of the affair which got underway at 5:00 p.m. at the training facility. The overall echo of the LOIC project was that it is doing what is needed to be done in the Lubbock community.

Prior to the afternoon affair, a special fund drive was kicked off with a press conference announcing that a $150,000 fund raising drive is underway to better equip and train more people in the Lubbock community.

Mr. Richardson, in the announcement, said: "This fund raising effort will make it possible for more poor people of the community to find their way out of their poverty and frustration which engulf their lives daily."

He also echoed what the founder of OIC, Dr. Leon Sullivan, has said many times, "You can be anything you want to be: all you have to do is believe you can and be willing to do it." These words denote the spirit of self-confidence and the desire to develop oneself within the social system that exists today, rather than destroy it.

"This same spirit is completely consistent with the pioneer individualism of Lubbock citizens, recently demonstrated by the dramatic recovery from the tragedy and destruction of the May 11th tornado," said Richardson. "A manpower program, proven and stable as the LOIC, should be recognized and supported by all citizens, so that the program might truly present the local situation, rather than outside influences," he continued.

According to Mr. Richardson, "Weekly report meetings will be held each week in the Fund Raising Office in the First National Bank-Pioneer Natural Gas Building." The drive will continue through April 10, 1972.

At the present time, there are two facilities in the Lubbock community. The main center at 2200 East Broadway and a branch facility at 1805 Avenue D. Both centers involve some 200 trainees in various courses in business skills and personal development.

The theme for the drive is, "OIC, The Way Out".

SOUL PATROL MAKES RECEPTION for Congressman and Mrs. George Mahon last Monday afternoon at the Lubbock Opportunities Industrialization Center (LOIC), 2200 East Broadway. Members of the Soul Patrol are William H. Britt, Fulton Berry and Floyd Price.

To Know Yourself

Amarillo—There's a vibrant force awakening still minds that say we can't make it in this oppressive system that was not designed for minority progress. Do you agree or disagree with this statement? Any way you vote, you should first take a good look at yourself. One Black leader said, "A man without a knowledge of himself is like a tree without roots."

Have you read the book on Black Heroes in World History? Did you know that the greatest military genius the world has ever known was Black? That the founder of Chicago was Black? That the mathematician and scientist appointed by George Washington to survey and lay out Washington, D.C. was Black? That the first American to set foot on the North Pole was Black? Black brothers and sisters, just how well do you know yourself? I think the time is now for you to take a good look at your face, you can be beautiful but you have first got to stop being ugly.

I was in Tulsa, Oklahoma, last week and had a chance to see a production presented by a group of high school youth, "Black Is." They told it like it is. They were beautiful. But to present something like this, one has got to "know himself." Do you?

The Fellowship League of Shiloh Baptist Church held their regular annual Christmas dinner in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ordie McKnight, 1604 N.W. 16th, December 18th at 7:00 p.m. The menu included turkey and all the trimmings. Members present included: Olivia Perry, president; Hattie Brown, secretary; Mattie Cribbs, treasurer; Mable James, program chairman; Willie M. Clay, Inez Oates, Hattie Elam, Myrtle Sutton, Bobbie Miller, Henry Lee McCoy, Mildred Anderson, Mamie Bridges, Bessie Hopson, Roberta McKnight, Irene Holland and Dorothy Murkledove. Visitors present were: Mr. and Mrs. George Howell, Rev. and Mrs. Joner Parker, Rev. Mrs. Susie Neal and Broeher Neal, Rev. and Mrs. R. Manning, Brother John Chandler, Mr. and Mrs. C.L. Austins, Rev. and Mrs. David Hill, Rev. J.W. Hackett, Mrs. John Perry, Rev. and Mrs. H. Ashurst, Mrs. B.F. Holloway, Mrs. Delma Ward, Mrs. Velma Lillie, Mrs. Ruby Fluellen and Brother Ranson. They all reported having a wonderful evening.

her 16th birthday, Her birthday was Tuesday, January 11th.

The occasion for the last Sunday dinner was so her brothers, Frank and Charles, who left for Prairie View College where they are junior and freshmen students, could participate in the family affair. Her brothers spent Christmas Holidays with their family here.

Olympia is a Dunbar High School student and is assistant musician for the Sunday School at Bethel A.M.E. Church where the family members are very active.

"Baby Sister" to her friends and family, plans to continue her music career and other decisions may be made before she graduates from high school.

Her friends shared the good meal with the family and wished her many more happy birthdays.
