

Supreme Court Dismisses Texas Case

Woman Found Fatally Stabbed At Home

CONSTITUTIONALITY OF NEW DEAL INVOLVED AS BODY MAKES DECISION

WASHINGTON (AP)—The supreme court opened its fall term Monday by dismissing one of five cases in which the constitutionality of the new deal was involved—that seeking to punish East Texas oil men on a charge of producing more than the quota allotted them by Texas.

The government, through James Crawford Biggs, solicitor general, asked dismissal on the ground that executive orders issued by President Roosevelt inadvertently omitted the offense with which J. W. Smith and four other Gregg county producers were charged.

Only recently—after the case was appealed to the supreme court—it was discovered executive orders failed to prohibit oil production above state quotas.

Federal court in Eastern Texas quashed an indictment against the men, ruling the federal government had no authority to control production in states.

The case was then appealed by the government directly to the supreme court.

WASHINGTON By George Durno

Nemesis—

Bruno Richard Hauptmann was scheduled eventually to run afoul of the law even had he never made the mistake of attempting to pass Lindbergh ransom money on a too-observant gas station manager.

The German has never filed an income tax. His name does not appear among the millions of taxpayers.

Trio—

Sooner or later the Bureau of Internal Revenue would have gone after Hauptmann for this delinquent. Sometimes it takes several years to catch up with an evader, but if a name is on the return of a business house the fact that name has made no personal report eventually is discovered.

Spoils—

President Roosevelt was giving the boys a big tip when he told them, following General Johnson's resignation, that reorganization of NRA would be "evolutionary."

All that talk about a reorganization into three branches—administrative, legislative and judicial—can now be pretty much forgotten.

This formula was suggested for the primary purpose of making the NRA job completely unattractive to General Johnson. He conceded as much in his letter of resignation when he said the post offered him in the suggested realignment of authority was "superfluous."

It was a plain to Johnson as the nose on his face that the "Administrator" in such a setup would be a figure-head pure and simple. Two groups of men over whom the Administrator had no control would be determining policy and undertaking enforcement.

Equally well, President Roosevelt and his advisers know that such a setup wouldn't work.

Industry has snarled and snarped viciously at NRA for months now but at least it knew one man was in control of the whole works. Business men claim they ran themselves dry trying to get action out of this one-man organization. They know full well how many circles they'd be traversing if authority were divided.

If Mr. Roosevelt should appoint a policy commission—or "legislative branch"—to chart NRA's future destiny, from three to five men would be involved. As is always the case when a group of men get together, compromise and delay would be inevitable—to say nothing of personal jealousies and bickerings.

Just as with any private business, one man must be responsible. Those dealing constantly with NRA will demand it. And eventually, after the smoke has died down, one man will emerge as the Blue Eagle's new boss. Donald Richberg isn't out of the picture yet despite his disinclination to step into a more thankless job than he has now.

As for future policy of the harassed NRA, President Roosevelt gave a good tip-off in his letter accepting Johnson's resignation.

Elimination of child labor, recognition of the principles of a fair wage and of collective bargaining and first efforts to stamp out unfair trade practices within business—these were the things FDR wanted Johnson to institute.

Backstagers are betting everything beyond that triple play goes permanently out of the window.

Johnson Bids Good-Bye To NRA Employees

WASHINGTON (AP)—Hugh S. Johnson said good-bye to NRA employees Monday and urged them in an emotion-choked voice to give their continued loyal support to those succeeding him.

Two thousand workers jammed the commerce department auditorium to give the resigning a thunderous ovation. Johnson asserted the principles of NRA were right and would continue to prevail.

Mrs. W. R. Hildreth Stabbed With Ice Pick Eight Times

Officers were searching Monday afternoon for W. R. Hildreth after his wife, Mrs. Docia Hildreth, had been found fatally stabbed at her home shortly after noon.

Attracted to the home of her mother by screams, Mrs. Carlton Coburn, who resides next door, found her mother in a dying condition.

She had been stabbed seven times in the breast, and an ice pick was lodged in her pelvic bone. The handle had been pulled out in an evident attempt to extract the pick from the left hip.

Mrs. Coburn told officers that she was attracted by screams from her mother's house. She did not go just then, but when she heard another, she started to her mother's home next door. According to officers, she said she saw Hildreth leaving by the back door.

A two year old daughter, Wilma Jean, was in the house when the stabbing occurred.

Mrs. Hildreth was rushed to the Big Spring Hospital where she died at 3:30 p. m.

Hildreth was convicted and served a jail sentence last year on a count charging assault against his wife.

Following his conviction they were separated but recently had seemed to solve their domestic difficulties and were living together.

Mrs. Hildreth is survived by two sons, Orville and Robert, and eight daughters. Mrs. Carlton Coburn, Pauline, Mildred, Mahalia, Zelma, Edith, Helen, and Wilma Jean, all of Big Spring.

No trace had been found of Hildreth at press time Monday.

New Jersey To Ask For Hauptmann Before Trial Begins In New York City

TRENTON (AP)—Governor Moore Monday announced New Jersey probably would move for extradition of Hauptmann before the German carpenter goes on trial in New York on the Lindbergh extortion indictment.

In New York, District Attorney Samuel Foley announced several psychiatrists—not three, as originally announced—will conduct a mental test of Hauptmann, indicted as the Lindbergh ransom extortor.

Foley revealed he talked with Richard Hauptmann this week to stand trial on a murder charge in kidnaping the Lindbergh baby.

"There has been no decision as to time of the extradition," Wilentz said.

Cards, Tigers Prime For Series Tilt

Play To Open In Detroit

First Two In Tiger Camp, Next Three In St. Louis

By The Associated Press
The first two games of the World Series between the Detroit Tigers and the St. Louis Cardinals will be played Wednesday and Thursday in Detroit. The next three will be played in St. Louis Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

Go 12 Innings In Title Scrap

THE DETROIT TIGERS, under the leadership of "Mickey" Cochrane, the player-manager, are already to tie into the St. Louis Cardinals at Detroit Wednesday in the first game of what promises to be a very interesting world series.

Pap Payne And Bud Mahoney Hook Up In Pitching Duel

By HANK HART
The Cosden Olers and the Coahoma Sinclairs wrestled for 12 innings Sunday to a 5-5 deadlock and were forced to postpone the tilt until next Sunday to determine the championship of the U. S. 80 circuit.

11 Qualify In Muny Tourney

Perhaps the outstanding pitcher in the majors this year was Dizzy Dean of the St. Louis Cardinals. An amazing human being, incorrigible Dizzy caused more joy and more grief to the St. Louis club than any player in the history of the organization. He won 30 games, the best record in the league.

Shirley Robbins And M. K. House Mark Up Snappy 88's

Eleven golfers marked up qualifying scores Sunday in the Municipal course fall tournament. The rest of this week will be consumed in qualifying play.

Mr. H. G. Cross says in the San Angelo paper that it looks like all of the pre-season bluster by the Big Spring folk about what a fine football team they were to have this year has turned out to be just so much hot air. As we recall it now it was Mr. B. G. who did most of the blustering.

A PRINCELY CHAT OF MOURNFUL MEMORY

It was just a little story, buried away inside in a newspaper that was heavy with more important news. It bore the headline, "Romanoff has chat with Hohenzollern."

Then, just before the formal declarations of hostilities had been made, Romanoff and Hohenzollern tried to arrange a peaceful settlement. Monarch spoke to monarch—by telegraph—on one, at the last minute, wanted peace.

Now if mortals could have the gift of second sight a little often, the history of this world would be a good deal different. Those declarations of war were the beginning of the end for both emperors.

And each staff replied that the thing was impossible! The war machines were already in action; they were too cumbersome and uncontrollable to be halted. So this final chat between Hohenzollern and Romanoff went for nothing. They never had a chance to have another.

IN A few instances, the gods of fortune were with the Cardinals today as the Reds lost opportunities because of freakish bouncers or blows with hit labels on them and because of spectacular defense support of Manager Frisch's men. But from the fourth inning on, when the Cards pushed over three more runs to run their lead to 5 to 0, the result was never in doubt.

They did it again, these fantastic, down-trodden, ball-playing demons from the other side of the East river, hammering home the answer to Bill Terry's now famous query—"Brooklyn? Are they still in the league?" It didn't matter much that St. Louis, clubbing the Reds again 9 to 0 while the Dean boys held their arms, needed no assistance closing out the campaign, and the greatest closing surge in baseball history, by the safe margin of a two game lead.

Upon the board went a big "3" for the Cards in the fourth as St. Louis making the Red Bird lead 5-0 with Jerome "Dizzy" Dean in command. A crowd of 44,000 that boomed the Giants loudly at every opportunity and cheered themselves into a frenzy at every near miss of the Dodgers, nearly bowled Blundy and Terry down with one mad howl of triumph.

TIGER ISLAND

By Gouverneur Morris

WONG BO AGAIN

The gunboat which Bowers and Ivy had failed to signal was named Lady Smith and flew the British flag. She had picked up Flint's first mate, O. B. and while hurrying to the scene of the disaster had received word from the admiralty in Singapore to take any survivors prisoners with the exception of two passengers.

In "spilling the beans," as Flint himself had called it, he had gone into particulars and separated the sheep from the goats. It was known to the newspaper man, who made much of it, that Harvey Bowers, the famous big-game hunter, and a fellow-passenger, a Miss Green, had been abandoned on a sinking ship.

It would have been a front-page story anywhere. The ship had been seized by her Chinese captain for the insurance, and that gentleman would, if caught and in course the passengers perished, either be hanged by a social arrangement with the Chinese government or beheaded in the execution-yard of Canton.

The captain and the crew of the Lady Smith were young and adventurous men to show off and make records. To be hurrying to the scene of the disaster and to be upon the trail of a Twentieth Century pirate exhilarated them beyond measure.

A given spot in the sea cannot be precisely located by instruments, however, and, today, there was a time when they passed immediately over the sunken Boldero, but by now all signs of the wreckage had been dispersed far and wide by the ocean currents.

It was Commander Ashton's theory that Bowers and his fellow-passenger had gone down with the ship and his examination of the nearest land, Tiger Island, was perfunctory. Wong Bo and his pirates would not choose so small and precarious an asylum. They would make for Borneo.

If the disaster had been of an ordinary nature, Commander Ashton would have stood by Tiger Island long enough to send a party ashore. But he had to do with pirates and it was his duty to overtake them, if possible and bring them to justice. An examination of the distant shore of Tiger Island through a pair of powerful marine glasses revealed nothing.

If Bowers had been able to make a smoke, it would have been seen as you get out your Fall and Winter clothes have them cleaned by the modern to get from one valley to the other was through their own house, and that was a matter of minutes.

But to go around from the one door to the other took hours. The upthrust of volcanic rock which divided the one valley from the other was in every part, except toward the beach, where it faded to nothing, precipitous and worn smooth by erosion. These physical facts at a later date were to stand them in good stead. Just now they seemed rather in the nature of a nuisance.

The flora was rich in species. There seemed to be traces, terracotta-like formation of stone, of former habitations. This would account for the presence of the banana, for a fine grove of breadfruit in the more open valley, for the oranges and for the superior size and quality

These became more and more tame and friendly.

They would call to Helen from near-by treetops and invite her to join them. But she, sure of human protection and any number of meals a day, would leap up and down on the ledge outside the cave and shout defiance, or she would wince and invite them instead to come and visit her.

It is only in motion pictures that wild animals attack man without cause. Sometimes a wounded or cornered animal attacks and sometimes one which is half famished. The man-killing lions and tigers are mostly superannuated and often lame specimens, who can no longer overtake and pull down the wild swift game on which they have been accustomed to feed.

If Tiger Island had been sufficiently provisioned with goats, pigs, deer and antelope, the tigers Big Ben and Lurline might never have caused Bowers and Ivy a moment's anxiety. But the island was not well enough provisioned.

In effect the banks have virtually promised to lend the government all the short-term money it wants without querying its purpose or haggling over terms—provided the central bank spectre is laid. They still balk at long term bonds but they don't think that will impede an agreement. They argue that there's no point to a central bank if the Treasury can be sure of raising its requirements through existing channels. Banking conservatism view such a pledge as an enormous concession—but preferable to the chills and fever of a contest which might deprive them of their most cherished powers.

Insiders say that Mr. Moley has lent a sympathetic ear to his proposition.

It is that you can get too far on sheer merit. Then politics will cut your head off.

Mrs. Max Weisen has returned from a visit with her children in East Texas. While gone she visited with her daughters, Mrs. A. Cuckler of Kilgore and Mrs. R. J. Campbell of Fort Worth, and her son, Joe F. Weisen of Ranger. She reports conditions very dry in East Texas.

Better

Improvement in the stock market last week—especially in the volume of trading—signified two things: relaxation of the Wall Street opposition to the New Deal and recognition that business is actually on the upgrade. Much of the new buying that came into the market was from sources which insiders call "good." Big shots who have been sitting on the sidelines—either through lack of confidence in the outlook or to obstruct recovery sentiment—got back in the game. Ray Moley and Vincent Astor rate assists on this development too.

Here are four signs which wise observers accept as indicating an authentic upturn.

1. Business statistics reflect better conditions week by week. The figures still don't look so good as against those of a year ago but by this time in '33 the down-trend had already begun. This year the delayed seasonal rise has just begun to operate—so comparisons from now on will be increasingly heartening.
2. It's now apparent that the ravages of the drought were greatly exaggerated. Farmers in unaffected areas are better off than they have been for years. Those whose crops were wrecked are being cared for by the government and have hopeful prospects for '35. The farmers are unbundling their pocketbooks and business is benefitting—especially mail order stores.
3. Retail trade has lately reported tremendous gains west of Cleveland and some signs of life even in the East.
4. The textile strike accomplished some good by cleaning up a burdensome inventory situation and the industry now has a chance for a fresh and more profitable start.

Wrench

All this buoyancy in the atmosphere makes things tough for the conservative die-hards who were hoping for a blue October to put the New Deal on the spot just before election. It's hinted in informed quarters that this is one reason why hard-bolled steel men wouldn't mind provoking a strike this month with a wage cut. That's about as big a monkey wrench as could be heaved into the recovery gears.

Steered

The New York banks are confronted by a delicate problem in diplomacy—how to guide the city administration into paths they think are sound without appearing to do so.

They're also shooting the works on an inside campaign to convince the administration that a central bank isn't at all necessary—that present credit machinery will carry whatever load Washington sees fit to impose on it. Raymond Moley's contact work in New York has given them a chance to present their case privately and they've made the most of it.

The bankers' attitude towards Washington has taken a sharp turn in the past few weeks—since they have come to realize that the menace can't be shrugged off. There's a new atmosphere of "let's get together on this thing. If Uncle Sam needs more cash we'll provide it." The disposition to be critical of federal financing and drive as hard a bargain with the Treasury as possible (as in the case of the 4th Liberty conversion) has evaporated in the face of the emergency. The masters of credit are willing to forget their aversion of an unbalanced budget if they can only retain their Eleven of his 32 selections found their way into the consensus. The only exception was Bill Werber of the Red Sox, who was Judge's choice for third base instead of Pie Traynor of the Pirates, the favorite of the consensus.

"Some surprise, he says, may be shown over the selection of Werber but look at his record! As this is written, he was batting over .300, rated right up with the leaders in hits and was leading both leagues in stolen bases."

Judge voices the feeling of many when he says: "It's really hard to leave off time-tested pitchers like Hubbell and Warneke. The latter, you know, has beaten the Giants six times this season."

So have each of the Dean brothers, he might have added. Dizzy Dean, of course, won a place as the most popular pitcher in the poll and rightfully so, with 27 victories to his credit, but brother Paul capped the climax of the family's achievements when he pitched a no-hit classic against Brooklyn, allowing only one man to reach first base.

YOUNG BASEBALL PLAYER'S CAREER VALUED AT $50,000

CAMDEN, N. J. (UP)—The career of a young baseball player is valued at $50,000 in a damage suit filed in New Jersey Supreme Court.

The action, started in behalf of Herbert C. Dunn, 21, came after an automobile accident last June in which Dunn allegedly was permanently injured. At the time he was an infielder for an amateur team, but had a "bright baseball future" with major leagues "looming in the distance," the suit asserts.

Joseph Del Luca, former Villanova athlete and driver of the automobile in which Dunn was injured, was named defendant.

Dunn charged Del Luca with negligence.

WHERE DID WE GET THE DOLLAR-SIGN

WHY don't we use a big D for "dollar" and draw two lines through that? Who started the idea of using an S instead?

Well, one explanation links us with old Spanish trading days. Prices were based on pesos, which was abbreviated to read P^s. Gradually, they say, we came to write the P right on top of the S. But the sign was too hard to read, so we rolled the loop off the P, which left $. And finally, we picked up another stroke and put it through the S, resulting in our present $.

Now reading the dollar-sign is natural to every one. But much more important, we believe, is learning to read dollar-values.

When you hold a newspaper in your hand, the dollar-values are right before your eyes. You find them in nearly every good advertisement. They tell you where to get the most quality at the lowest cost.

It's a good practice to study the dollar-values in your newspaper before you set out to buy. Then the price-tags mean more to you than a group of figures.

provocative lustre, a radiant glow, so desirable in the new sparkling make-up to complement the shimmering formal gowns. "Just as the lines of the new gowns are to be regal, molded and gracefully flowing, so must the contour—be molded and clear-cut," Mrs. Adams said. "The smart woman will not dare venture forth after dark unless she has been faithful in her nightly muscle tightening treatment. Also, some of the afternoon dresses have the very high colors and frills which call special attention to the chin, and a double chin is fatal. "The new formal fabrics are so spectacular this year, as to make it imperative that the fabric of the skin should be just as spectacular in its smooth, firm, velvety texture. No woman should be without a skin clearing cream, this coming formal season to keep her complexion fair, transparent and animated. Cosmetics, too, must be considered as to texture. All the fabrics are highlighted and glistening. Especially important in the new make-up vogue are iridescent eyeshadows, flecked with tiny lights, even as shiny bits of cellophane glimmer forth from fabrics, and metal is skilfully interwoven with silk. This iridescent eyeshadow may be used not only on the eyelids, but also brushed on mascaraed eyelashes until the points glitter in the light. An herbal eye tissue oil which is very shiny in texture, is also recommended to be applied to the eyelids and corners of the eyes as a part of the make-up. It serves a double purpose: because it not only gives that fashionable glint, but at the same time acts as a corrective on lines or crows'-feet. Cream rouge rather than powder rouge is advised for evening wear, because it has a higher shine.

Passion Play Pictures To Be Shown At High School Monday

The life of Christ from the birth to the ascension will be shown in the high school auditorium Monday night at 7:45. This is a regular life size moving picture, accompanied by good music. There will be many soul-stirring scenes, including the birth, life, trials, crucifixion and ascension of Christ. Also many Holy Land scenes will be shown, the first reel dealing with the land of our Lord. Many scenes of the Oberammergau Passion Play will be shown, giving close-up stereoscopic views of the village, the players and the home life there. This is where the Passion Play was begun three hundred years ago, a history of which will be given Monday night.

NEWEST BEAUTY STYLES
 Natural By Day And Brilliantly Made Up For Evening. Is Report

The well-dressed face this Fall will wear a shiny, brilliant make-up for evening and a dull, natural make-up for daytime, according to Dorothy Adams, beauty adviser in Collins Bros., who recently returned from the annual Helena Rubinstein Beauty School in Dallas which was attended by fifty selected beauty advisers from seven different States in the East.

In addition to bringing back the newest notes on Fall beauty and cosmetics trends, Mrs. Adams was also thoroughly instructed in the latest scientific principles of rejuvenation and skin care, including the most modern methods for exercising the skin, achieving a clear-cut contour, counteracting difficult weather conditions, and warding off the danger signs of old age.

"After-dark beauty this Fall promises to set a new mark for brilliance and splendor, we were told," said Mrs. Adams. "It will be more regal, more scintillating and luxurious than ever before to set off to perfection the new glimmering, elaborate evening gowns in resplendent weaves—metal woven into silk, cellophane gleaming from fabrics, silver and gold lame for the cocktail hour swishing taffetas and stiff laces. During the day, make-up can be casual, natural and dull in its texture in keeping with the coarse textured clothes which will be shown for daytime wear, but at night the well-dressed face will wear iridescent, gleaming eyes; a lustre on her lips, a highlight on her cheek—all in vivid, brilliant colors to achieve an effect as sensational as the gorgeous new evening gowns."

In fact, so sensational is the new formal mode, that Madame Rubinstein was inspired to create a new lipstick for the Fashion openings which she compounded under artificial lights and which she named, in honor of the occasion, "Evening."

Mrs. Adams explained that not only is this new lipstick luscious in tone for evening wear, but it gives an unusual shine and glow to the lips because it contains a newly discovered ingredient which actually duplicates and increases the natural moisture found in gleaming young lips. In youthful lips, this new ingredient intensifies that desirable sparkle and shine. To parched, dried-out lips it brings the quality of glowing youth. The result is a youthful aliveness, a

Whooping Cough Is Dangerous To Young

AUSTIN—There is no other communicable disease as dangerous as whooping cough to the very young, and there is no other disease causing an equal amount of suffering of which parents show such an unaccountable disregard, not only for the safety of their own little ones, but also for the lives of the neighbor's children," said Dr. John W. Brown, state health officer. "There is no natural immunity against this disease during the first six months of life as there is against measles. It is at this age that whooping cough strikes its hardest blow and over 50 per cent of the deaths occurring in children are under one year of age. The disease is usually transmitted by direct contact with the secretions of the mouth or nose, and only a very short exposure is required to contract the infection. Handkerchiefs, drinking cups and toys also may transmit the infection. "The infection is communicable from the appearance of the first symptoms and is most contagious at this early period when the nature of the affection can only be suspected. The incubation period is commonly seven days. A slight fever, running of the nose and a cough make their appearance so gradually and insidiously that a diagnosis is practically impossible unless a history of exposure is obtained. When the "whoop" appears there is no mistaking the disease. If there is whooping cough in your community keep other children away from your little children and keep your children at home. Call your physician early. Isolation of all cases for at least two weeks from the development of the characteristic cough should be rigidly enforced."

They are made that way

Chesterfields are milder
 Chesterfields taste better

Ripe home-grown tobaccos

We begin with the right kinds of mild ripe Domestic tobaccos. Then we age and mellow them like rare wines for flavor and taste.

Aromatic Turkish tobaccos

Next we add just the right kinds and the right amounts of Turkish tobaccos to give Chesterfield the "seasoning" that helps to make them taste better.

Blended and cross-blended

Finally we "weld" these tobaccos together the Chesterfield way—different from any other—to make Chesterfield a milder better-tasting cigarette.

On the air—

It takes good things to make good things ... there is no substitute for mild ripe tobacco
