

AIRPORT DRIVE TO BE RUSHED

HOME TOWN TALK

By Beddy

Well, San Angelo folks, collectively and individually, will be happy for ten more years. Their city, according to official census figures released today, contains 25,364 persons—more than 2,000 more than Abilene counted within her corporate limits.

Nuf said! In that case Angelo is a lot like a majority of the members of the last legislature. What Dan Moody favored they opposed. What Abilene has Angelo wants more of and better. But, it works both way at that. Both those cities would have given plenty of cash to have had the decennial census taken twelve, twenty-four or thirty months ago. No telling how many they would have enumerated.

Both are fine cities and, after all their rivalry is based a lot more on civic pride than competitive conditions between them. They're far enough apart and the industries supporting them are varied enough to keep one from depriving the other of any growth or prosperity.

Speaking of rivalry between towns. Let's talk plainly a few moments.

In Big Spring you hear Midland advertised more than any other city. Yeah! You'd think sometimes a lot of our most loyal citizens were walking advertisements for Midland. How?

Well, sir, they talk and think in matters of civic improvements in terms of Midland. Somebody recommends or suggests some improvement for Big Spring and right off you hear someone else ask whether Midland has it or what has Midland done about the same thing.

"What will Midland say?" What a question! Once this newspaper printed a news story that caused quite a furore for a few days, and, strange to say the big objection to it was "what will Midland say?"

This 1930 census is going to obliterate any semblance of a reason for comparing Big Spring with Midland. Why in the world should a town of, say 12,500 or 13,000 be compared with one of 5,000 or 5,500?

Midland is a good town. Her people certainly stay in there and pitch all the time. Hard times do not daunt them. You've got to give them credit for that.

But, they haven't done the things for their town that have been done by thinking in terms of Big Spring or any other town. They've been too darned busy building their own town to sit and watch another one.

No Sir! There is no use and no reason for this Midland complex of ours. What we all need is a better Big Spring complex.

On a motion of George Mahan, district attorney, the case of state versus N. W. McClesky was postponed until September 8, in district court this morning as criminal docket was opened.

McClesky is under grand jury indictment for forgery by alteration. Mrs. A. C. Lenz, Roscoe, material witness for the state, was ill and a doctor's certificate was presented to show she was unable to attend the trial.

Court adjourned until one o'clock this afternoon to enable Sheriff Jess Slaughter to obtain additional jurors.

More than half of the prospective jurors were dismissed by Judge Frita R. Smith this morning when they asked to be excused to enable them to work on their farms during planting season.

The entire criminal docket is set by Judge Smith on the opening day of criminal week.

According to the criminal docket about 30 "live" cases are pending disposition during this week.

FEDERATION OF LABOR MEETS

ABILENE, Texas, May 12 (AP)—The opening session of the Texas Federation of Labor today was attended by 500 delegates.

The convention planned to become active in promoting workers' adult education. T. H. Shelby, dean of the extension department of the University of Texas, said speaking this afternoon on "What Can the University Do For Workers' Education?"

Many Texas Roads Made Impassable

(By The Associated Press) Highways in many parts of Texas were in impassable condition today, from the heavy general rains of Saturday, despite sunshine yesterday.

The weather bureau predicted the Trinity river at Dallas would be at the bank full stage today. Lowlands at Trinidad were flooded and the river stage was 35 feet, seven feet above the flood level. Residents of lowlands had been warned to seek higher ground with their families and livestock. Other rivers in the state were rapidly approaching flood stage.

All highways out of Waco were reported open to traffic for the first time in 24 hours, although train service south of there on the southern Pacific was halted as a result of a washout near Bremond. Travel on highways leading to Corsicana, Temple, Austin, San Antonio, Belton, Malakoff, Gatesville, Georgetown, Mexia, San Marcos, Grand Saline, Rosebud, Chilton and other towns in South, Central and East Texas was still hampered by mud and high waters.

Relief work was hindered in the section 80 miles north of Austin where a tornado struck at Anderson Bend Saturday, killing F. W. Tucker and injuring several other persons.

The infant child of Mr. and Mrs. L. C. Hill, which died Sunday at 10:45 a. m., was to be buried in New Mt. Olive cemetery Tuesday afternoon, following services at the graveside with Rev. D. P. Lindley of the First Christian church officiating.

Big Spring, with a total of 283,250, led all cities in the state in building permits issued the past week, according to Del Hilliard city secretary.

Only four cities in the state came within the $100,000 class during the week.

San Antonio was second for the week with $254,626. The Big Spring total was given a decided advancement by a $250,000 permit issued to Robert E. McKee, contractor, for the construction of thirteen new buildings for the new Texas and Pacific Railway yards.

Other permits issued during the week were as follows:

J. F. Walker, brick veneer residence, 902 Runnels street, $6,000.

W. B. Allen, stucco residence, south 2-3 of Lot 2, Blk. 70, original $2,000.

Texas Electric Service Co., fireproof iron clad metal building, corner North Goliad and Northeast Second streets, $5,000.

Earnest Gomez, frame house, $200.

G. B. Walters, frame house, McDowell Heights, $200.

MOB BURNS COURTHOUSE TO KILL NEGRO

A part of the mob which killed George Hughes, a negro at Sherman, Texas, by burning down the courthouse, is shown in the upper picture. The crowd was photographed as it waited for the ruins to cool so an inspection could be made to determine if the negro actually had been recaptured in the building. The negro had confessed to an assault on a white woman.

The $60,000 Sherman, Texas, courthouse was reduced to ruins by a mob of citizens who fired the building to kill George Hughes, 41-year-old negro who had confessed to attacking a white woman. Hughes had been locked in a vault of the courthouse. In a race riot that followed the fire, several buildings in the negro section of the city were destroyed.

Military Inquiry Started In Sherman; Citizens Called

SHERMAN, Texas, May 12 (AP)—Presided over by Col. L. S. Davidson, the first session of a military court of inquiry into mob activities here last week was held today.

Col. Davidson explained that the workings of the court were similar to those of a grand jury. He said names of persons summoned before the court would not be made public because to do so would defeat its purpose.

"The best people of Sherman" will be called to identify members of the mob, the officer said.

With the arrest today of four additional alleged members of the mob which burned the courthouse in its efforts to lynch George Hughes, negro, charged with criminal attack, the court had 20 riot suspects ready for investigation. Nineteen of them were in jail and the twentieth was released subject to call.

SHERMAN, Tex., May 12 (AP)—Ruled by national guardsmen and Texas rangers, business in Sherman was resuming its normal pulse today after last week's mob disorders in which the Grayson county courthouse was burned and George Hughes, negro, accused of assaulting a white woman, killed and buried.

Col. Lawrence E. McGee, commandant of the national guard, said today that the mob had been completely broken.

Pilot's Big Fist Is Teacher Of Lesson; When Not To Fly

Pleasure Hop Almost Ends In Tragedy; Liquor Did It

NEW YORK, May 12 (AP)—Elbert "Tex" Anding, an airplane pilot, and four passengers, including two women, possibly owed their lives today to the knock-out punch "Tex" packed in his right fist.

With his plane lurching and diving crazily 1,000 feet over Holmes airport, Queens, yesterday, Anding fought with an intoxicated passenger for control of the stick until a blow on the jaw stretched his assailant unconscious on the floor of the cabin.

Anding was taking passengers aloft for five minute flights at $1 a trip. Two women and three men boarded the plane and he took off.

He said when he was at an altitude of 1,000 feet one of the men left his seat and coming to the pilot's place demanded to be permitted to fly the plane.

Anding ordered him back to his seat whereupon the passenger attempted to wrest the control stick from his grasp.

The plane dipped and wobbled dangerously as Anding and the passenger fought for possession of the stick while the two women screamed hysterically. Holding the stick between his knees Anding battled the passenger, finally ending the affair with a blow that knocked him out.

The pilot landed at once and ejected the disturber, who threw rocks at the plane until he was taken in charge by a policeman.

The pilot refused to lay charges against the man and he was released without police learning his name.

Wound May Prove Fatal To Woman

Little hope was held today for the recovery of Mrs. C. H. Gordon, 511 Lancaster street, who is in the Big Spring hospital suffering from a bullet wound which attending physicians said took effect just below the heart.

Mrs. Gordon was probably fatally wounded at her home at 2 o'clock Sunday morning.

A bullet from a .38 calibre pistol entered her body just below the heart and passed out of her back. The bullet tore a jagged hole.

An operation in an effort to save the woman's life was performed several hours after the bullet took effect.

Mrs. Gordon has been in ill health.

Two Use Cromwell Line Here Sunday

Miss Mary Reagan, of Port Lavaca, and M. B. Blake, of Oklahoma City, took passage from here Sunday at 1 p. m. on the Cromwell Airline ship, to San Antonio. Miss Reagan was enroute to her home and Mr. Blake transferred at San Antonio to a Southern Air Transport ship for Houston.

Cromwell Airline cancelled its northbound schedule Monday on account of bad weather north of San Antonio.

Spanish-American Vets Seek Charter

Papers asking for a charter of Spanish War Veterans were drawn up at a meeting held at Sweetwater, Saturday night, according to Thomas A. Chilton, temporary post commander. Twelve veterans of the war have signed for membership.

Chilton, who is stenographer of district court, now in session here, is interested in organizing a chapter in Big Spring. Permanent officers of the Sweetwater organization will be elected when the charter is received. Tom Crutcher has been named temporary adjutant.

WORKERS IN CAMPAIGN SUMMONED

$30,000 Issue Needed To Provide For Improvements

Sale of thirty thousand dollars worth of six per cent, five year first mortgage bonds against property of the Big Spring Airport, Inc., will be undertaken Tuesday morning.

Thirty men have been called to meet at the Chamber of Commerce offices at 8 a. m. Prospect lists have been prepared and plans made that it is expected will result in completion of the work in one hour.

The purpose of this issue of mortgage bonds is to provide funds with which to retire $30,000 indebtedness of the airport and to buy additional land.

The debts were incurred in meeting specifications of aerial passenger lines which wished to use the field, and to provide as nearly as possible a really modern and completely equipped airport.

Need for the additional land lies in recommendation of department of commerce representatives, who are to make reports upon which will be based the decision of the postoffice department as which of the three cities—Big Spring, Sweetwater or Midland—shall be the junction point of two air mail lines that are to be opened during the summer or early fall.

Some changes, additions and improvements to the lighting system also must be made.

When these improvements are finished the port will be eligible to apply for AIA rating with the department of commerce, as a rating necessary for the field to be officially recognized by the government.

It is necessary to raise this fund immediately, because options to buy the additional land, already extended, will expire at once.

These bonds have no relation to municipal bonds that might be voted for the purpose of making this a municipal airport. They are similar in nature and purpose to the bonds sold last summer to insure erection of the Settles hotel.

The bonds will be redeemable at any interest paying date during the five-year period, at the end of which they must be retired.

The Chamber of Commerce board has guaranteed payment of interest annually until the Southern Air Transport lease of the field expires. Experience of other cities with their airports causes local business men to believe the port will earn enough, when turned over to the airport company by S. A. T. to pay interest on the bonds. At any rate, it is pointed out, land and improvements of the company form ample collateral for a $30,000 mortgage.

Those called to meet at 8 a. m. Tuesday are: Fox Striplin, T. B. Currie, Shine Phillips, B. Reagan, R. L. Price, R. T. Piner, Carl Blomsheld, Lonnie Glasscock, E. E. Fabrenkamp, S. H. Morrison, Joe Edwards, Fred Miller, Frank Gary, Tom Ashley, Houston Cowden, M. L. Tinsley, J. Y. Robb, Roy Carter, Wendell Bedicheg, Clyde E. Thomas, H. S. Faw, J. E. Collins, Joe Fisher, Jack Ellis, Elmo Wason, V. H. Flewelling, G. R. Porter, Steve D. Ford, Clay Read, Frank Pool, Rube Martin, Victor Mellinger.

Cordell Returns From Firemen's Instruction Course

Olie Cordell, captain in the city fire department, has returned from College Station, where he attended a three-day school for firemen of the state.

He was sent by the city commissioners and, after attending lectures and demonstrations on various phases and improved methods of fighting fires, will give his co-workers in the department the benefit of information received there.

REV. OWEN TO AUSTIN

Rev. R. L. Owen, pastor of the Presbyterian church here, will leave Tuesday noon for Austin, where he will attend a meeting Wednesday of the board of trustees of the Presbyterian Theological Seminary of which he is a member.

Fellow out at the ballgame Sunday was what would generally be referred to as torn between a couple of fires. He wanted to see the ball game, and yet he didn't want to leave his automobile. So he drove his machine right on through the fence. That like to have broken up the ball game. Thinks us, if there was as much interest in the ball game being played as there was in that fellow making first down through the fence, we have to call in a C. P. A. to keep track of the funds. Being score keeper we gave the fellow an error on the play.

Texas and Pacific climbed off the cellar floor Sunday, dusted the dust from their trousers and beat the Bankers. That little trick put them on the escalator and advanced them upward one notch. At the present time the Bankers are sole owners and operators of the cellar department of the Big Spring Amateur League. The rest of the teams have won some and lost some; but the Bankers have just lost some.

Frexy Anderson, that twisty haired young man that earns his daily dozen in the same manner as your servant, also has his night ball games to contend with. Dealing us a dirty dig he expostulates quite a bit as follows: "It is just a coincidence that after writing our articles about the introduction of night baseball, that we read the nocturnal diamond game is being played in our own territory. That happens to be out at Big Spring where they do other queer things like letting Bobby Campbell write for their newspaper. It really isn't their intention to play the night game, the moonlight sport being the outgrowth of an aggravated twilight league. Their lighting facilities, however, happen to be none at all, and they go about their business by the illumination of glowing cigars. The late evening baseball is not unknown to our own fair city. A half dozen amateur teams and up are banging the ball about almost daily."

Nothing "queer" about us working over here. The only thing we've ever had against Nature is that it demands one must work at something or somebody. Some are born under the star of ill-fate and have to stay in Abilene. Others, like the Water Bucket, can go to places like Big Spring to watch the trains come in.

Wood hurried some fast ones Sunday. Had he had a little more support he would have cut the tally down considerably. Six errors were marked against Texas and Pacific players. Woods had twelve batters whiff during the nine innings. But he hurt himself too. He walked one, and hit three batters. That's bad business hitting batters. Never hit a man with a baseball bat in his hand. We learned that early in life.

Even at that, however, Ganoway, hurler for the Banking department, made the error of walking five men during the four innings he was on the mound. Two of those free passes were handed out in the fourth inning after two were down. And it didn't take the Railroaders any too long to trot in three runs immediately thereafter.

This week should see a bit of change in the way the six teams are lining up. Monday and Tuesday's game should have some bearing on things. Monday Cosden and Riecho clash; Tuesday, the Barbers and the Laundry. There are the teams that are in the initial four places. Looks like the concession man will sell lots of peanuts, and Tiny Reed, our august gate keeper should add a few nickels to the till.

Speaking of gates, we held it a few minutes Sunday while said Reed was prancing around the grandstand gathering in the shekels. Fellow walked into the gate and handed us something that had us worried for a few minutes. It looked familiar, but it had been a long time since we'd seen anything like it at the Dusty Diamond.

"You'll have to pardon me, sir," we apologized, "but what is that?" "That," he informed, "is a five dollar bill!" "Yeah?" said we. "Well, you'll have to pardon us a minute while we count around and find someone worth five dollars. You see, sir, we're used to quarters out here."

First five dollar bill we'd seen since the time we made a grand slam, doubled and redoubled, with a hundred ones and for a half a cent a point. We did that once. And we guess if we could talk to some of our readers, if any, we'd see them arch their eyebrows and ask, "Contract?" Then we'd be forced to drop our head and say, "No'm, just ordinary old Auction bridge. You probably have heard of it."

BAD FRAMES HELP T & P NINE

Sunday Fray Drags Texas & Pacific From Cellar

A young hurler by the name of Ganoway gave up five hits in one inning, walked two and allowed a single in another, and lost a bitterly fought ballgame Sunday afternoon when the T. & P. Railroaders noosed out the Bankers 9 to 8. On their heels throughout the game, the Bankers were never able to over-

COSDEN MEETS RIECHO
What is expected to be the hardest fought game in the City League since the season opened is on schedule for this afternoon when the Cosden aggregation and Riecho clash at 5:30 o'clock.

Cosden and Riecho both have on hand an array of dangerous sluggers. Riecho is leading the loop with four wins and one loss, while Cosden is holding down third place with an even tally of .500 per cent.

Wood struck out two, allowed a hit, and Mays flew out to put the Bankers out of the cellar position in the percentage column.

McPeak started the T. & P. tallying in the second when he singled and scored on Swatzenbach's triple to right. The Bankers in the first of the third gained a one run margin, however, when a double by Mays and singles by Thurman and West accounted for two tallies. But not for long.

In that third inning Ginter arrived on Hefley's error. Billington went out on a high one to J. Payne, and Butler singled. Bishop followed suit with a single, tallying Ginter. Wood struck out, and McPeak blasted a double to score Butler and Bishop. McPeak tallied on Swatzenbach's single.

In the fourth of Bankers gathered in two when Ganoway got on first on Butler's error, and Mays tripled, scoring Ganoway. Mays

PUTT-PUTT BUSINESS SWEEPS BIG SPRING; THE MINIATURES ARE CORNERING THE CORNERS

You can get your golf now as you can your best bouillon—condensed; in small packages as it were. And Big Spring has not been slow in going miniature golf-minded. As a matter of fact, the business law of supply and demand has functioned—it always does—with no small degree of swiftness. Miniature golfers wanted miniature golf courses. They got them; and they're still getting them.

With the advent of the first at Meyer Court several weeks ago the putt-putt craze has penetrated every corner. That might be taken literally. Practically all of the vacant corner lots have miniature golf courses. Today Big Spring may boast of four. This week the total can be increased by one, for another is nearing completion and will soon have its sand traps and water hazards; not to mention its zigzagging courses and trick hazards, in operation.

The newest one will be located on Gregg street just north of West Third. At the present time four are operating daily, and nightly. One is at Meyer Court; another on Fourth street between Main and Scurry; the third on West Third between Scurry and Gregg streets; and the fourth on East Fourteenth street between Main and Runnels.

There is not a great deal of difference between miniature golf and its big brother. No, the golf is not so wide. In fact in some respects the corner lot game has its advantages over the mile after mile trek. It takes a putter and one ball to play miniature golf—and the management furnishes both. No caddy is needed. The walking is immaterial. And the mental hazard doesn't have a chance in miniature.

Of course the putter gets worked overtime. Drivers, brassie shots, explosion shots, etcetera must be brought about with that putter, or else. Par for most of the eighteen hole courses is around 45. The average tally is somewhere in the sixties. One can be a dub at miniature as well as one can be a dub at golf. One can afford to be as a dollar will buy enough miniature golf to last for a couple of days. Then always there is that assurance there will be no lost balls; and if that were possible the ball doesn't belong to you anyhow. Each of the Big Spring courses is bidding for the crowd. The course that can provide the most trick shots gets the business, so they say. As a result of that—well, just stroll over the four courses now open.

Faddist They Say
On any of them your round will have your ball traveling through cedar tree hazards, tile pipe, underground tunnels, wooden stakes, over sandhills, and down into treacherous valleys. The greens are fast, being constructed of sand and oil, cottonseed hulls, or anything else that happens to be able to withstand the pounding of hundreds of feet, and the slouching of equally as many putters.

They say it's a fad. Maybe it is; but fads have paid huge dividends before. And miniature golfers go from course to course each night, seeking bigger and better hazards, more intricate shots, and the latest development in miniature golf-dom.

Presbyterian Women Given 'Equal Rights'

PHILADELPHIA, May 12. (AP)—Women, in their long fight for equal rights, have won another victory. They will have an equal voice with the men in the government of the Presbyterian church in the United States of America.

Announcement was made at the offices of the Presbyterian general assembly today that the overture permitting women to be elected ruling elders had been approved by a majority of the 293 presbyteries in the denomination. The vote to today was 151 in favor of the overtures and 142 against.

The overture will allow women to sit as members of congregational sessions of local churches and as members of presbyteries, synods and the general assembly.

The overture to permit women to become ordained ministers was defeated, according to a recent announcement. Another overture that would allow women to become licensed evangelists was said to be in doubt.

Cleveland Indians Gather 25 Hits During Day

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer
When a team that has been having a hard time holding a place among the league leaders although it holds the club batting lead and one which has stretched a winning streak about as far as possible, get together something is bound to happen. It did yesterday when the Cleveland Indians entertained the Philadelphia Athletics and an overflow crowd of Cleveland fans.

The Indians have shown plenty of hitting power all season while the Athletics had a bad beating coming to them after winning nine out of ten games. The beating was inflicted to the tune of 25 to 7, by far the biggest score of the major league season. Cleveland started by clubbing Ed Rommel from the mound with five hits and three runs in the first inning. And they kept improving this pace, scoring in every inning up to the seventh, and collecting 25 hits. Nine of the blows were doubles and some might have gone for more bases except for the ground rules.

Wesley Ferrell held the world's champions to four hits in his six innings on the mound. He allowed five runs but his mates beat that in two different innings, getting seven in the fourth and six in the sixth.

Brooklyn Wins
Cleveland's batting feat stood out on a day of rather light hitting. The only game that approached it was Brooklyn's 10 to 2 triumph over the Pittsburgh Pirates. The Robins made 18 hits for their third successive victory in the series, while Dazzy Vance held Pittsburgh to four.

The St. Louis Cardinals made 25

Crescent Drug Is Favorite In Big Spring

The Crescent Drug is one of the most popular places in Big Spring, located at the corner of Third and Scurry streets, one of the city's busiest corners, and is on the ground floor of the Crawford hotel building. It affords one of the town's favorite gathering places.

For in this store the best in fountain service, drug sundries, toilet articles, and fine candies are to be had.

Crescent, operated by H. L. Talley and his sons, L. A. and L. G., has been in operation two and one-half years, since the Crawford hotel was opened. The Talleys are experienced drug men and consistently study the needs of their customers so as to be in a position to serve them satisfactorily.

One of the featured lines in this store is King's package candies, for which the Talleys are sole local agents. Popularity of these candies has grown phenomenally here due to the fine service offered by these agents.

One of the latest additions to the equipment, one that has further popularized the store with the people of Big Spring and vicinity, is a brilliant Neon sign, one of the largest in the city.

Only the best and most pure drug preparations are carried. Complete stocks of these are at all times available. The store is splendidly equipped. The soda fountain is noted not only for its popularity but also for its cleanliness.

Grayson's Disgrace: A FEW DAYS AGO one black man in Grayson county had the stain of a terrible crime upon him.

Today hundreds of white men have the disgrace of a terrible crime charged to them.

The crimes were different ones, the latter growing, allegedly, out of the former. But crimes, both.

Organized or unorganized usurpation of the authority and operations of government is dangerous to the city or state or nation.

A mob seeks, because of the inflaming of the baser passions, to overthrow government. The mob spirit seeks to cure an evil with an evil. That is impossible.

There are none who condone the crime for which the black man was sought in Sherman by a madened mob of men gone hay-wire.

There should be no condoning the conduct of the mob. Its actions constitute a blot upon the honor of Texas. Law-abiding, right-thinking, sober-minded citizens of Sherman and Grayson county, and of course there were many who did not take part in the outburst, will suffer because of what occurred Friday.

It is next to impossible to get at the bottom of such things but we hope the military and civil authorities will, of necessity, "make an example" of this episode and do everything possible to bring to justice the chief instigators.

No one wishes more sincerely than we to see the law enforced. The accused negro had punishment coming to him. But we do not like to see the law overturned.

OPINIONS OF OTHERS: Final Census Opportunity: Midland Reporter-Telegram: TONIGHT closes Midland's work on the 1930 census.

Whatever total is compiled by the enumerator or by that time will be Midland's population, the same applying to the county.

By all rules commonly used to estimate population, Midland should have as many as 6,500 people. Based on telephone patrons, water users, electricity and gas consumers, newspaper circulation and a scholastic census, the city should have from 6,000 to 7,500.

Midland will not have that many as has been seen by preliminary census figures of 5,051 and by the comparatively small number of additional names added which had not already been counted by the enumerator.

This demonstrates an unusual case on the part of Midland, that you cannot multiply utility consumer figures by five and get the total. Midland has large numbers of younger citizens, some married and some unmarried, but the large majority with small families. This is due to the fact that there are 25 oil companies represented here and their employees are young and aggressive.

But, is that a bad condition? Definitely not! The city is that much better off by having such a large per cent of community leaders of the young, aggressive type, to carry on with the advice and counsel of the older citizens and to make of midland one of the most virile cities in the southwest, which reputation it now enjoys.

Five thousand or more citizens are a lot of people. The population has trebled since 1920, which is remarkable for any town or city in the world.

Midland's big task is to help these younger citizens get permanently established and to see that others are brought here, oil citizens, farm citizens, cattle citizens and those of all possible commercial and industrial walks of life.

HOW'S YOUR HEALTH

FLAT FEET: To stand flat-footedly on anything means to stand with a fixed firmness. The expression will picture the disabilities of the flat-foot sufferer, who once planted finds it difficult to move.

The human foot is an organ of great complexity, and usually well-adapted to its exacting work. Its structure allows for both strength and flexibility, and with a little care the human foot will serve without complaint.

Sometimes, however, it will break down, and then there is plenty of discomfort. One form of breakdown is a falling of one or both of the arches of the foot.

The foot has two arches, one running in the direction from heel to toes, and the other placed at the base or roots of the toes, at right angles. The arches in the foot help protect the body from the jarring effects of walking, running, and jumping. The curve of the bones which form the arches also protect the nerves and blood vessels running beneath them.

When the arches break down there results a loss of ease in movement, a tendency in the ankle to turn in and of the foot to turn out, and in extreme falling of the arches, pressure on the nerves and blood vessels running on the sole part of the foot. This last state is often associated with nerve pains, and disturbances in the circulation of blood through the leg.

Falling of the arches, or flat feet, may result from a variety of causes. There may be an inherited weakness of the arch structure, or flat foot may be the result of improper shoes, accident, or excessive weight.

Needless to say, the nature of the treatment applied to flat feet must depend upon the cause. In the main, however, the weak foot may be strengthened by exercise, by wearing proper shoes, or, when necessary, by means of arch supporters. Arch supporters to be truly effective should be especially fitted for each case.

More of The Same: Ganaway, however, had another inning in store for him. The fourth was a nightmare. He struck out Bunter, and Billington went out, F. Payne to Hefley. With two away he walked Butler. He walked Bishop. And it took a hot single from McPeak's rod to tally both of them. McPeak added the third tally of the inning when he went home after Payne had passed a ball. Those two innings kept the Bankers on the cellar floor. Hurt relieved Ganaway at the end of the fourth.

The Bankers added two in their half of the fifth when Wood walked Glenn, Edwards gleaned a single, Ganaway was hit by a pitched ball, and Mays singled, Glenn and Edwards chalking up the tallies.

All chances for the Bankers to tie the count or forge ahead vanished in the last of the seventh when Cunningham rapped a nice, double and scored on Gunter's single.

The Bankers earned two in the first of the eighth to trounce on the Railroaders' heels when Thurman tripled and went home when Gilmer muffed West's fly to right field. West tallied when McPeak passed Wood's toss and Gunter's third missed McPeaks shot from home. West coming in.

SEEING HIM OFF

W. H. PARADOS

Hollywood Sights

By ROBBIN COONS: HOLLYWOOD — High on the Santa Monica palisades overlooking the Pacific stands the quietly beautiful home of William Harrigan, actor.

From his porch the view of the sea, especially at sunset, is amazing. The air is sparkling, the bathing and outdoor sports, all shared by a charming wife, are great.

Contrast: Twelve years ago, on the "western front," fought William Harrigan, soldier. War-swept terrain was the only view, the air was thick with bullets and stench, sometimes even the sunsets were like blood.

Many movie actors went through the same thing to be sure. But Harrigan is cited because he holds a distinction of which few in Hollywood are aware.

To Harrigan fell a real-life role more dramatic than any he will ever play on stage or screen—that of rescuer of the famous "Lost Battalion."

Not Stage Bullets: It is history now what happened when an American commander, blindly obeying orders to disregard his flanks and advance, found himself cut off in the Argonne forest.

Harrigan, then a captain, led the rescue attack. Four times a day, for five days, his force attacked under a rain of bullets. In five days they advanced 120 yards, with terrific losses.

They finally broke through—but Harrigan, shot in the head and arm just as he caught his first glimpse of the few survivors in the "cup," spent the remainder of the war, and several months more, in French and American hospitals.

Cinematically, of course, Harrigan is not a hero—life isn't like that. He specializes in and prefers, character leads.

Speaking of fighting men, here is Alexander Kahle too, who on the German side survived more than 180 hand-to-hand struggles without a scratch.

Today he photographs movie stars on the same lot that employs Harrigan.

Zane Grey, prolific creator of western romances, is having his innings in the talkies. "The Lone Star Ranger" has been completed as his first in the new medium, with George O'Brien and Sue Carol as the principals.

BABY GLIDER PILOT IS AFTER RECORD

CHICAGO—(INS)—The world's youngest glider pilot isn't Little Verton, Collington, aged 8, recently failed to prevent his glider from touching this mundane sphere for the required thirty seconds but today he is as optimistic as ever that he will yet achieve his purpose—that of becoming the world's youngest glider pilot.

Murder at High Tide

SYNOPSIS: Dan Parados wealthy unscrupulous tyrant of a secluded island estate, is lured by his cold-blooded wife and his entire retinue of servants. Allen Hunt, coming to inspect Parados' art collection, stumbles into this web of conflict.

At dinner that night, with Parados absent, a "game of murder" is played with Parados the subject of a mythical murder. Anatole Fliques, a French detective who is present for reasons unknown, acts as "investigator." The guests include Mrs. Parados, Celia Ferris, Parados' pretty secretary; Annersley, her sweetheart; Herbert Johns, custodian of the island fort, and Caroline Brent, who has won Hunt's attention. All deny any motive for murder in the "game." As dinner ends Fliques astounds the group by announcing that Parados has been murdered.

THIRTY-FIVE CENTS: Parados was so detested that no one, not even Mrs. Parados, was moved to grief.

"How long have you known about this?" Mrs. Parados demanded.

"Since four minutes of seven, when I found him, madame," Fliques said.

It was now 9:30. Mrs. Parados retorted furiously. "You keep from my knowledge of my husband's death—you inveigle us into your idiotic game—"

"Madame," Fliques interrupted, "I admit everything. My game told me many things. But here are the police."

Three men strode into the room. A thin, wiry man was in the lead. The second man was short and stocky. The third, a tall, elderly man, obviously was a doctor.

"What's happened?" the wiry man demanded. "I'm Franck Banuels, the deputy district attorney." "Ask M. Fliques," Mrs. Parados replied angrily. "He sent the message."

"Fliques!" Samuels ejaculated. "Are you—"

"The principal agent of la Surete of Paris," the little man bowed. "Where's the body?"

"Come with me, M. le Deputy." Fliques pressed down the hall. The key rattled as he thrust it into the lock. A light switch clicked. "He's dead—the master—" Manners was hysterical.

"Keep those women back, Kirk," Samuels muttered.

Parados lay in front of the patio window, which was closed, as Fliques had said. The fingers of his right hand and the toes of his shoes were dug into the carpet. His left hand was clenched against his chest.

Annersley, Johns, and I pushed in. Kirk let Mrs. Parados enter—but the others he kept back. "Stay there," Kirk commanded. "Don't leave the house, none of you."

Mrs. Parados looked at her husband with hard, expressionless eyes. "So this is the end of you, Dan," she said quietly. "And we turned it into a game."

The doctor was holding up the

"And you came out by the same door?"

"No, monsieur. I locked it out, but — emerged by the billiard room."

"Why?"

Fliques shrugged his plump shoulders. "What does it look like when a murder has been committed? I went to see if the Brent collection was—as you say—intact. And it was."

"You found nothing — material here?"

"The price ticket, monsieur."

"Nothing else?"

Fliques dropped his eyes to a dark stain on the carpet. Samuels touched the stain.

"Well, that's not much."

Samuels now drew his arrogant eyes over the group.

"A shot was fired in this room or from just outside it. Any of you hear anything that sounded like a shot?"

There was no reply.

"If any of you know anything you'd better spill it," Samuels continued.

"I heard no shot," I said.

"Nor I," Mrs. Parados told him. The rest were equally positive in their denials.

"Does monsieur believe we are in secrecy?" Fliques murmured. "One or two, perhaps, but not six or eight. Come, my friend, you are a man of intelligence."

"Intelligent enough to believe no more than I can prove," Samuels grunted.

"Paribus, but to assume that only the solid and seen are real; that, most ami, is the grave error. You do not believe these people are in the conspiracy?"

"Not exactly," Samuels said dryly. "A silence may have been used."

"Could he have been killed with a rifle?" Annersley asked suddenly.

"Fliques said the patio window was shut," Samuels replied.

"I suppose a pistol couldn't have been used with any degree of accuracy outside a hearing range?"

"No," Samuels grunted. "He must have grabbed that price tag from the person who shot him. How about the bullet, Doc?"

"Against the left scapula," the doctor answered casually. "I imagine I can get it."

"Do you mind, Mrs. Parados?" Samuels queried.

"When a man's dead he's dead," Mrs. Parados answered. (Copyrighted, 1930, William Morrow and Company)

WATER OF FAMOUS POOL IS PURIFIED

PARIS.—(INS).—Bathers need no longer fear to go near the water in the pretty pool of the Lido in the Arcades of the Champs Elysees. It is now "Verduzized" and as pure as Paris or any other drinking water. The famous system of purifying water used during the war by the French government has been installed in what is called the most beautiful pool in the world. In addition, the water is changed twice a day and temperature varies from 21 to 24 degrees.

SPORT WANTS ALAN GOULD ASSOCIATED PRESS SPORTS EDITOR An increasing number of inquiries demand to know when Primo Carnera is going to "fight somebody." This is a sample: "How long are the fans going to stand for this Carnera pushing over a lot of set-ups? If he can fight, why doesn't he meet some one who isn't working on space rates?"

It is refreshing, at least, to find widespread skepticism in the genuineness of Carnera's string of fistic appearances about the country. The New York State Athletic commission has refused any longer to permit wrestling events to be billed as anything but "exhibitions."

Even Buckingham Palace Feels Style Changes

Into throne room of Buckingham Palace, London (center), will flock thousands of society women in 1930 court dress (right) at royal receptions this spring much as did their sisters of 1900 (left).

LONDON (AP)—Beauty and brilliance of the frocks worn by the women presented at Buckingham palace this year are expected to eclipse all past records.

Many Americans will be among the thousands who will curtsy before the king and queen.

Loud speakers at strategic points will help relieve the congestion of traffic that has caused much discomfort at receptions in past years.

The new arrangement is King George's idea. The loud speakers will be connected by telephone with officials in side the palace, who can thus summon carriages to all exits as soon as guests begin to leave.

Another reform will attempt to stop the practice of women accepting large sums of money from society girls in return for presenting them at court. Court rules are far less rigid than formerly, but actresses and women who have been through the divorce court as the guilty party still are barred.

Queen Mary already has chosen designs and materials for gowns she will wear at the four courts May 14, 15, June 27 and 28.

One will be a gleaming silver tissue, another pale oyster-grey satin, a third embroidered blue brocade, and loveliest of all, perhaps, a gown of cloth-of-gold, with golden lace of priceless antiquity. With all of them the queen will wear the famous Koh-i-noor diamond.

Arrangement of the three feathers of the regulation court head dress always causes confusion. Court rules require they be worn upright, emblematic of the Prince of Wales crest.

Many women, however, arrive with the feather placed at a more decorative angle. Last-minute alterations then are necessary, for everyone entering the throne room has to pass inspection first by the lord chamberlain's officials.

One of the few persons to defy the regulations successfully was Ambassador Dawes. He appeared last year in ordinary evening dress instead of the customary silk knee breeches.

mander of guardsmen who took charge Saturday night under Governor Dan Moody's martial law proclamation, prepared today to conduct a military court of inquiry into the disturbances.

Sixteen men were held in jail last night awaiting action of this court today. Fourteen of them also were charged by federal officers with violation of the prohibition laws.

A coroner officially declared Hughes to have been suffocated in a records vault in the courthouse. His body later was dragged through the streets and burned in the negro district.

Col. McGee announced his intention of leaving nothing undone to "get at the bottom" of these occurrences.

Guardsmen today were stationed at the corners of the courthouse square with machine guns and were patrolling the streets. A heavy guard also was maintained about the jail, where the 16 men arrested after the riots were held for hearing.

Quiet prevailed in the city all day Sunday, the troopers' greatest difficulty being in directing the traffic of swarming thousands of motorists drawn by curiosity.

A military order prohibiting the congregating of more than three persons on the streets tended to cramp the sightseers.

Most of Sherman's negro population of 1,500 to 2,000 was back at home after having fled at the inception of the mob action. Officers were paying especial attention to protecting their lives and property.

At the Presbyterian church, the congregation yesterday arose in a body to "repudiate the rioting as representative of the best citizenship of Sherman" and to "resent" the destruction of property.

Dr. T. A. Wharton, pastor emeritus of the Presbyterian church, launched a movement to pay negroes for property damaged by the mob and planned to start a financial campaign today.

A statement signed by a number of business men expressing regret at the disorders was read at the Baptist church.

DEADWOOD, S. D., May 12 (AP)—A top mountain overlooking the Black Hills helped civilize "Deadwood Dick," one of the last of the romantic figures of the old west, has been buried in a rock-hewn grave.

Military honors, an Episcopal service and the last respects of the handful of survivors of gold rush days marked the funeral late yesterday in a raging May blizzard. As Richard W. Clarke, 85, "Deadwood Dick," died in a hospital last Monday.

Hundreds of persons crowded near to the top of Sunrise peak, overlooking Pine Crest park, for the burial of the frontiersman, prospector, Indian scout and stage coach guard. The grave was blasted in the rocky peak by Henry Brasch, who came here with Clarke in 1876.

To one side of the grave is Mount Roosevelt, on which is a monument to the former president. On the
