New 'Toon Continues Disney Trend Toward Diversity

LOS ANGELES (AP) — For most of the last century, the Disney 'toon heroine was as white as, well... Snow White, the studio's first feature-film superstar, who marked her debut in 1937's "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs."

It would take some 60 years for the Disney artists to begin painting their leading ladies with all the colors of the wind, including the American Indian Pocahontas (1995), the Chinese Mulan (1998) and the Hawaiian Lilo (2002).

Only now, with "The Princess and the Frog," have Disney animators put a black female front and center. Ironically, the inspiration for the new film came from two Caucasian men: current Pixar-Disney chief John Lasseter and the late Walt Disney himself.

"The story really came from an initial idea of doing an American fairy tale, which hadn't been done at Disney," said "Princess" co-director Ron Clements. "And setting it in New Orleans, which is John Lasseter's favorite city in the world. It was Walt Disney's favorite city in the world... Out of that, it seemed natural that the heroine would be African-American."

Discussion of the character's race had some of the film's principals bristling. "We walk around being black every day, and nobody talks about it," noted Anika Noni Rose, who supplies the voice of lead Princess Tiana. "So, I suggest you follow your instinct and let it be nothing to

Yet the "Dreamgirls" actresses continued to talk: "The big deal is that it will quietly affirm to young brown-skinned children that they are special in this world," Rose said. "And I think that it is a bigger deal to those of us who grew up without it and are now adults and have been waiting for it. It's exciting to us, because we know how important it is to our children to have, to be image affirmed."

Production was started on "Princess" in March 2006, long before the election of a new American president. "We tried to arrange that," joked co-director John Musker. "We voted for Obama," Musker continued. "That was about as much influence as we had on things."

But the coincidence isn't lost on some members of the "Princess" cast. "It is historical in the sense now that there is 'Obama' and 'Tiana,'" said veteran character actress Jenifer Lewis, widely known as "the black mother of Hollywood." "It is a new day," she continued. "There is hope. There is change. That is what this movie is going to bring."

Perhaps, but the directors remind us that making history was never their point.

"It is a universal story," Musker said. "It is a story of trying to follow your dreams and overcoming obstacles. And I don't think that necessarily knows a certain color."

Walt Disney's "The Princess and the Frog" is now playing in Los Angeles and New York and opened nationwide on December 11, 2009.

From the Desk of Parson D.A. Smith "Executive Homosexuality"

Remember Idi Amin Dada Oumee. AKA 'Big Daddy', AKA 'Butcher of Africa', AKA 'Conqueror of the British Empire', AKA Lord of All the Beasts of the Earth and Fishes of the Sea? Remember the guy who killed between 100,000-500,000 people?

Remember the guy who father ran out on his mother and left him to be raised by him being the third born of eight siblings?

Remember the guy who had only a rudimentary education and was basic illiterate, yet excel at sports and converts to Islam at an early age.

Remember the guy who was determined to make Uganda a "black man's country" expelling the country's 40,000-80,000 Indians and Pakistanis after claiming he had received a message from God during a dream.

Remember the guy who challenged the United Kingdom and the United States and breaks relations with Israel and throws his support behind the Palestinian liberation movement. Remember the guy who killed ordinary citizens, former and serving Cabinet ministers, the chief justice, Supreme Court judges, diplomats, academics, educators, prominent Roman Catholic and Anglican clergy, senior bureaucrats, medical practitioners, bankers, tribal leaders, business executives, journalists and an accountable number of foreigners.

Remember the guy who ordered entire villages to be wiped out. Remember the guy who had so many corpses thrown into the Nile River that workers at several locations had to continuously fish them out to stop the intake ducts at a nearby dam from becoming clogged.

Ida Amin is dead however, it appears he is alive and well in the present leadership. Uganda is on the verge of passing a law within a few months that will make homosexuality a capital offence with the ultimate price being death. It is noted that Uganda is joining 37 other countries on continent where American evangelical Christian groups are at a rapid pace spreading bigotry toward gays.

What is so disturbing about this is white male Americans who called themselves Christians are said to behind closed doors help formulate this anti-homosexuality law. Rachel Maddow on MSNBC is to have caught the big time preacher Rick Warren in a blatant lie. She produces video of him saying one thing out of one side of his mouth while endorsing another on the other side. Are not preachers of his stature to HOLY to lie? Well kiss my gris!

Another who got his mouth caught on a "lying pole" was U.S. Sen. Chuck Grassley of Iowa. Remember him, the one who said certain thing about health legislation being presented by Democrats would mean "pulling the plug on grandma"? Well this guy who also is against Legal Aid for people who cannot afford to hire an attorney is in association with a secretive group of Christian politicians that has ties to Uganda legislators who introduced the anti-homosexuality law.

St. Matthew's Baptist Church News

Church services got started at the St. Matthew Baptist Church, 2020 East 14th Street, last Sunday morning, December 13, 2009, where the proud pastor is Rev. Edward Canady.

Sunday School got underway last Sunday morning with Superintendent Sister Shirley Davis in charge.

The subject of the morning lesson was "An Unexpected Sign." The scripture text was Isaiah 7:13-17; Luke 1:30-38. The Unifying Topic was "Prophets Foreshadow Messiah's Birth."

The teacher of the morning was Rev. Alvin Butler. The review was given by Pastor Canady.

The main thought of the Sunday School lesson was: "Therefore the Lord himself shall give you a sign; Behold, a virgin shall conceive, and bear a son, and shall call his name Immanuel." Isaiah 7:14.

The morning worship hour began at 11:15 am. The morning devotion was led by Deacon Edward Williams and Brother Gerald Jackson.

The St. Matthew Baptist Church Choir sung out of their hearts and souls again.

The morning message was delivered by Pastor Canady. His subject was: "Are You Willing To Go?" The scripture text was Isaiah 6:8: The Song of Inspiration was: "Because of Who You Are."

The weekly meetings held at St. Matthew Baptist Church are as follows:

Mission meets on Wednesday evening at 5:00 p.m.

Bible Study is held on Wednesday evenings at 6:00 p.m.

Choir Rehearsal is held on Friday evenings at 5:00 p.m.

The Ushers will meet at 11:00 a.m. on Saturday mornings.

All who are involved in these meetings are asked to be present

The morning announcement were read last Sunday morning by First Lady Sister Shirley Canady.

Let us pray for our sick and shut-in of the Lubbock Community. Your prayers are welcome.

Let us pray for Rev. Nina Davis, Rev. Walter Jackson, Sister Lola Byrd, and Sister Lorene Conaway.

Let us remember the Federation of Choirs will be held at St. Matthew Baptist Church on Sunday, December 20, 2009. Everyone is welcome to be present at 2:30 p.m.

Spirit of God, please change my heart and give me a new desire.

Help me to be a man of peace who's not controlled by anger's fire.

Thought For The Week: "Anger left unchecked is cause for alarm."

To whom was the Son is given?

He was not given to the angels, for they announced to the shepherds, "Great joy that will be for all people" (Luke 2:10). Isaiah said, "To us a child is born, to us a son is given" (Isaiah 9:6).

John 3:16 says, "For God so loved the world that he gave his one and only Son, that whoever believes in him shall not perish but have eternal life." All those who choose not to believe exclude themselves. To choose neither child nor Son, birth nor gift, means to refuse the right to the deed as a gift of salvation.

THINK ABOUT IT!

"The Times We Are Living In!"

By Eddie P. Richardson

We are now living in a very complex, fast paced, hurry up, every one is in a hurry with no particular place to go. Behind can't catch up, hurry up, you are making me late but, for what? This is the electronic age, super high way, push button, instant pre-mixed. Everyone is for self. What happened to "I am my brother's keeper?"

This is the mind-set of most of the population at this time but, on the other hand, there are still some so called normal people who takes life as it really is - one step and one day at a time and maintains respect, faith, and love for God. Self and mankind and take and respect life as it is and do not push and and try to mak life to fit their agenda .

They must slow down and realize this is God's world and not theirs.

Some of us are running so fast that the real world is passing us by. We are too busy to see or realize it. What a shame, as the old saying goes, they need to slow down and smell the coffee! How many of us have taken the time to slow down and really smell the coffee? Sometime some of us are so, so called busy that the real world is passing us, right in front of our noses while we think we are too busy to realize. It is passing us by! The modern age is good! It is ever, beautiful with all the conveniences moderations, easy fi. It's computers, and every kind of electrical gadget under the sun but, meanwhile, we need to go back to the basics and being human beings again. For example: love of family, self, neighbors, church, school, and community. As a whole, we must start caring for others and stop being selfish jealous, forget our own agendas and work collectively together for the good of all. Together we can work collectively. We can turn all the negatives to positives. Then there will be more peace and happiness for all of us.

CLOSING THOUGHT

We live in a fantasy world, a world of illusions, the greatest task in life is to find reality (Iris Murdoch, Anglo-Iris author and philosopher (1919-1999).

That special day of the year is almost here. As soon as schools close for the holidays, the traffic will pick up. The frenzy begins. Children are excited and for all practical purposes, school could be dismissed earlier because most children by now only have their minds on what they will get for Christmas and how much they will enjoy the holiday freedom from reading and writing and concern about any books at all.

Some schools and some churches have Christmas plays or activities which lead up to Christmas, which involves school aged children. Many of them are busy practicing for a play and that coupled with the thought of what Christmas will bring keeps them occupied.

Many children are especially good at this time of year because they want Santa Claus and their parents to make sure that their wishes are fulfilled on Christmas night. Hopefully, all children will get their wishes.

Christmas, however, is not just for children, though sometimes it appears that it would be better celebrated if it were. We could help our children by letting them know the story of Jesus instead of, or in the place of the story of Santa Claus or Chris Cringle.

Though the story of Santa Claus is a noble one wherein children who have been good and nice are duly rewarded with material things of their desire, they still need to know about Jesus Christ and the circumstances surrounding his sacred birth and what it means for mankind. Santa Claus represents that part of the holiday which makes the commercial side of the holiday blossom into the jingle of dollars for merchants. We need to get 'in cinque' and help our children to be thankful for the birth of Jesus Christ who has taught us to love unconditionally and help to have 'PEACE ON EARTH and GOODWILL TOWARD MEN!'

Black Lawmakers Raise Heat on Obama to Focus on Minorities

WASHINGTON (AP) — Black lawmakers who have largely held their tongues during President Barack Obama's first year in office are stepping up their demands that the nation's first black president do more for minority communities hit hardest by the recession.

While still careful about criticizing Obama publicly, they appear to be losing their patience after watching him dedicate more than $1 trillion to prop up banks and corporations and fight wars in Iraq and Afghanistan, while double-digit unemployment among blacks crept even higher.

"Obama has tried desperately to stay away from race, and all of us understand what he's doing," said Rep. Emanuel Cleaver, D-Mo. "But when you have such a disproportionate number of African-Americans unemployed, it would be irresponsible not to direct attention and resources to the people who are receiving the greatest level of pain."

Dating back to Obama's campaign, many black leaders have pressed him to take more of a stand on the challenges facing minorities. Most voiced criticisms privately for fear of jeopardizing his candidacy or undercutting his popularity after his election. They also have tread lightly so as not to be at odds with their own majority-black constituencies, who strongly support Obama.

But frustration has been building.

The 42-member Congressional Black Caucus flexed its influence last week when 10 of its members held up a financial regulation bill backed by the administration until leaders agreed to add about $3 billion in foreclosure relief for struggling homeowners. Rep. Barney Frank, D-Mass., the House Financial Services Committee chairman, later added $1 billion for neighborhood revitalization programs.

During the stalemate, the lawmakers issued a statement saying they would no longer support public policy "defined by the world view of Wall Street."

"Policy for the least of these must be integrated into everything that we do," they said.

And earlier this week, the all-Democratic caucus responded to Obama's proposal for a new jobs package by saying it would insist on initiatives targeted to minorities. Pointing to outsized percentages of African-Americans losing their jobs and homes, caucus Chairwoman Barbara Lee, D-Calif., said Obama must live up to his campaign talk that racial disparities cannot be ignored.

"The facts speak for themselves," Lee said. "The gaps are very real."

Some have sought to pin blame on the president's advisers.

"It's not the president. It's his economic team," said Rep. Corrine Brown, D-Fla. "I don't think they're doing their job."

The unemployment rate among African-Americans is nearly 16 percent, almost double the 9 percent rate for whites. Roughly one in four blacks lives in poverty, compared with about 11 percent of whites.

Obama was a black caucus member in the Senate before winning the White House last year, but he has never had a close relationship with the group. In recent interviews, he has addressed their criticisms by saying he must represent the entire country, not any one population, and the best way to help low-income communities is to improve the overall economy.

"I think it's a mistake to start thinking in terms of particular ethnic segments of the United

Tiger's Troubles Widen His Distance From Blacks

Amid all the headlines generated by Tiger Woods' troubles - the puzzling car accident, the suggestions of marital turmoil and multiple mistresses - little attention has been given to the race of the women linked with the world's greatest golfer. Except in the black community.

When three white women were said to be romantically involved with Woods in addition to his blonde, Swedish wife, blogs, airwaves and barbershops started humming, and Woods' already tenuous standing among many blacks took a beating.

On the nationally syndicated Tom Joyner radio show, Woods was the butt of jokes all week.

"Thankfully, Tiger, you didn't marry a black woman. Because if a sister caught you running around with a bunch of white hoochie-mamas," one parody suggests in song, she would have castrated him.

"The Grinch's Theme Song" didn't stop there: "The question everyone in America wants to ask you is, how many white women does one brother waaant?"

As one blogger, Robert Paul Reyes, wrote: "If Tiger Woods had cheated on his gorgeous white wife with black women, the golfing great's accident would have been barely a blip in the blogosphere."

The darts reflect blacks' resistance to interracial romance. They also are a reflection of discomfort with a man who has smashed barriers in one of America's whitest sports and assumed the mantle of the world's most famous athlete, once worn by Muhammad Ali and Michael Jordan.

But Woods has declined to identify himself as black, and famously chose the term "Cablinasian" (Caucasian, black, Indian and Asian) to describe the racial mixture he inherited from his African-American father and Thai mother.

This vexed some blacks, but it hasn't stopped them from claiming Woods as one of their own. Or from disapproving of his marriage to Elin Nordgren, despite blacks' historical fight against white racist opponents of mixed marriage.

On the one hand, Ebonie Johnson Cooper doesn't care that Tiger Woods' wife and alleged mistresses are white because

Tiger Woods

Woods is "quote-unquote not really black."

"But at the same time we still see him as a black man with a white woman, and it makes a difference," said Johnson Cooper, a 26-year-old African-American from New York City. "There's just this preservation thing we have among one another. We like to see each other with each other."

Black women have long felt slighted by the tendency of famous black men to pair with white women, and many have a list of current transgressors at the ready.

"We've discussed this for years among black women," said Denene Millner, author of several books on black relationships. "Why is it when they get to this level ... they tend to go directly for the nearest blonde?"

This tendency may be more prominent due to a relative lack of interracial marriages among average blacks. Although a recent Pew poll showed that 94 percent of blacks say it's all right for blacks and whites to date, a study published this year in Sociological Quarterly showed that blacks are less likely to actually date outside their race than are other groups.

"There is a call for loyalty that is stronger in some ways than in other racial communities," said the author of the study, George Yancey, a sociology professor at the University of North Texas and author of the book "Just Don't Marry One."

The color of one's companion has long been a major measure of "blackness" - which is a big reason why the biracial Barack Obama was able to fend off early questions about his black authenticity.

"Had Barack had a white wife, I would have thought twice about voting for him," Johnson Cooper said.

So do Woods' women say something about the intensely private golfer's views on race?

Jason Hancock noted that after a week of pressure from activist groups and the media, numerous conservative politicians and Christian leaders that have been linked to the law (Uganda's anti-homosexual) have publicly spoken out against it, including Rick Warren, author and leader of California's Seaddleback Church and U.S. Sen. James Inhofe, Republican-Okla.

The question all of us professed to be Christians need to ask of ourselves is: "What would we do if our child was gay?" Would we want them to be executed by the United States government? Would we want a child of ours who was gay to be criminalized because we believe that they were not born gay? Would we feel inferior in a society of having a child where secrets Christian groups would impose their so called law from their god because of their anti-gay, bigot behavior? Yet, these same bigots have secrets clubs and even churches where they break their married vows and have stolen America and the world blind! Would we love our child (our own blood) in spite of off?

I have been preaching more than a half a century and I come to know that in spite of whatever I am and spite of my ill behavior, Jesus loved even me! That same Jesus loved my child that is gone on to glory and that same Jesus love gays. He just does not agree with the sin! Nor does He agree with the acts of sin of all humanity. How shameful for it is for American so-called Evangelical Christians to encourage the leaders of Uganda to pass a law to make homosexuality a crime that ends in death by human hands.

No wonder people think church is a game! What is the penalty for being a hypocrite?
