Ward was wounded four times in a shooting incident June 16 at the Thunderbird Lounge, East 23rd Street and Fir Avenue. He died last Thursday morning in Methodist Hospital.

Miss Hawkins, who was placed under a $20,000 bond originally by Justice of the Peace Wayne Le-Croy, later to have it reduced to $10,000 upon recommendation of the District Attorney's office, was arrested shortly after the shooting.

Two pistols were confiscated and four other persons were taken into custody at the time of Miss Hawkins arrest. She was charged with carrying a pistol, but was free on bond until her arrest on the murder charge last Friday afternoon.

Buesseler of Texas Tech's School of Medicine to discuss the school's plans in regard to medical training, health service, and community employment. It was also suggested that the UBC, as well as other organizations within the community, suggest ways to improve the medical school so it will serve the total community.

Those meeting with Dr. Buesseler at the Lubbock Club were Eddie P. Richardson, president; Harold Chatman, Dr. F.L. Lovings, Alfred Caviel and T.J. Patterson.

Other meetings are tentatively scheduled, at this time, for the UBC and the dean to get back and suggest more ideas for the medical school operation.

City Citizens Make All-America Game Possible for Youth

Businessmen and concerned citizens made it possible for approximately fifty young people of Lubbock to attend the 11th Annual All-America game last Saturday night at Jones Stadium.

It was a thrill for the young people, boys and girls, to see sixty of the top football players in the country participate on the local turf.

Those who made it possible for the youngsters attendance at the game were: George's Maintenance Service, B. A. Russell, H. S. Brown, Violet Price, U. Kelly and New Hope Baptist Church, Brier-croft Savings and Loan, State Savings and Loan, Jack Spratt, Estacado Barber Shop, Hooper's Cleaners, Evelyn Beck, Ocie Wilson, Brother's Bar Shop and Dillard Kwik Stop Grocery. Homer Wilson bought tickets for the chaperons.

George Francis was the coordinator of the special project which made quite a few young people happy.

Local Girl Scouts Attend Day Camp

Area 7 and 8 Girl Scout Day Camp was held June 14-18 at Mackenzie Park from 9:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. Approximately 360 girls from Area 7 and 8 in Lubbock participated in the 5-day event.

Activities included hiking, outdoor cooking, first aid, crafts, nature and swimming. Emphasis for this year's day camp was "Learning to Know and Enjoy the Out-of-Doors."

Thirty-six girls from the East Lubbock neighborhood participated in the day camp attending were:

Troop 243, leader, Mrs. Annie Lewis; girls: Bridgett Moses, Dorthia Williams, Dianna Williams, Suzanne Dial, Beverly Henderson, Stephanie Sadler, Cheryl Flewellen.

The girls had a great time and all are looking forward to attending Day Camp next summer.

"Don't Knock the Cop" Doing Well

Many of the citizens of the black community have heard about the trio, which calls itself the SOUL Patrol. Perhaps you know, by now, that they are doing big things with a release called, "Don't Knock The Cop," which was written by two members of the group, Fulton Berry and Floyd Price. Bobby Price is the lead vocal singer on the record.

The record has been on the market for two months and is doing real well in the Lubbock, Texas, area, as well as on the South Plains. This record, which is a first for the group, is based on the idea of communicating with the young and old citizens of the community. "We feel as though we need something dynamic for the citizens of the community, and this record is only one vehicle with which to move in the right direction," states Officer William Britt, third member of the group.

The SOUL Patrol, which is heard each Sunday evening over Radio Station KSEL from 7 until 10 p.m., got its beginning in Floydada, Texas, and is presently in the Lubbock community for many reasons. The group, Britt, Berry and Price; has a total of 15½ years on "the beat" as patrolman, motorcycle patrolman and detective with the Lubbock Police Department.

Some of the projects the group has been involved with has included the raising of monies for Dunbar and Estacado High Schools for proms and presentation of money to the Eastern Little League. Other projects, according to Britt, are in the planning stage at this time.

Recruitment Programs Scheduled This Week

City of Lubbock Personnel and Police Departments officials will present a series of programs this week at local centers, in an effort to help Lubbock Police Department recruitment.

Meetings are set for Tuesday, at 7:00 p.m. at the Mae Simmons Center and Wednesday at Guadalupe Center at 7:00 p.m.

"All we want to do is help set some type of a constructive image for the policeman in the community," Britt went on to add. "It takes the total community to make it a better place in which to live, it is not done by one individual or one segment of people, it has to be done by all."

"The number one problem facing our youth in Lubbock, at the present times, is finding jobs for them," he added. "The young people of the community should, however, make and continue to make applications at City Hall and other political sub-divisions as well as private industry to find employment," he continued.

"The button and bows experiences should be used today in order to bring up our children. As parents, we should teach our children how to find jobs and even how to treat their fellow man," the eight year veteran of the Lubbock Police Department said.

"The young men should take pride and respect in their black sisters," he stressed. "Let's quit hanging names on them (black sisters) that they shouldn't bear."

The record, "Don't Knock The Cop," spells out what Officer Britt stresses. "We must realize that without law and order and without the 'man with the stick', no one could be free." The song stresses this and also that cops are helping keep homes safe each night for the black, brown and white; and without cops, "democracy would surely fall."

Officer Britt feels as though there should be more image of the black policeman. "Even looking at a national television series, Adam 12, there are no signs of black patrolmen in leading roles. This show, for example, is viewed by millions of people," he pointed out.

"Man, all we (the SOUL Patrol) wants to do is something constructive for the black community. We are concerned about the welfare of any youth within the Lubbock, Texas, community," he concluded.

HONOR AMERICA DAY

195th Anniversary of the United States

July 4, 1971 -

June Was a Good Month

There is no doubt about it, the month of June proved to be most productive for the black community of Lubbock.

The activities sponsored by the United Black Coalition during the "week-end of awareness"; the special effort of the up and coming Black Movement Council, who made a special contribution to this community; and the All-America Football game which was another success this year.

There is much more which must be done in the future months, beginning with this month, July. We must realize, however, that we all must be positive in what we are doing.

One of the All-Americans, J.D. Hill, who played on the West squad, did something beautiful last week when he talked to the young blacks attending the annual Eastern Little League banquet, giving them some insight into what makes a great athlete, like himself, find the necessary desire to be the best-or an "All-American."

In another area, we see the efforts of an infant job development project, the Opportunities Industrialization Center (OIC), as we see it about to be funded and employing people of the community.

June was quite productive, and the same pattern should be followed throughout the year. It has been a month of constructive involvement, and another example of this was the appointment of a Citizens' Grievances Commission by the City Council to investigate alleged police harassment in the City of Lubbock.

The month of June brought two well known black speakers to town who really turned on many of the citizens of East Lubbock. This activity was also constructive and as it should have been, Lubbock needs more of this type of positive activity.

Let's all make a pledge to ourselves this month, July, to out do the month of June in positive and constructive activities. Let's make a pledge to involve more of our citizens, and let's make a pledge to go about our involvement in a manner which will benefit all in Lubbock, black, brown and white.

True, Lubbock, Texas, has had and still has a number of problems. We'll not solve any of them by complaining about them. We must all do something constructive to help erase each and every problem, as they are confronted. We should do more things in the ensuing months than we did in June, now that we have learned where our path is headed, and how our efforts should be directed. June was a good month, now, let's do bigger and better things in July. Right On!!

The 4th of July weekend offers time for a taste of recreation, a bit of fun popping off fireworks, maybe a thought or two about that old-fashioned virtue patriotism, and innovative ways to honor America.

Pondering over patriotism-real patriotism-we inevitably reach the conclusion that this country just didn't happen to flourish. Much of the toil and struggle that helped make the United States strong and free represented someone's contribution in self-sacrifice, either in peace or in war.

Carrying this train of thought a bit further, many of us can't ignore the indications that America didn't wax robust from material sources alone. The idea of reverence for a Supreme Being is intertwined with the nation's development since the day the country was founded 195 years ago.

On this comfortable, lazy weekend, the churches and synagogues will have their doors open as usual on the Sabbath. If we juggled the family schedule a bit, and perhaps arranged the family picnic or golf date or trip to the beach an hour later, we could slip into our chosen church or temple and listen to the men in the pulpits reading the Scriptures and discussing the truths that weathered the test of time for centuries before 1776.

Obviously, most of us are aware-often, we're not allowed to forget-that separation of Church and State is a fundamental principal in the United States. This premise in an official sense, and undoubtedly has steered the nation away from some grave pitfalls.

But individually, throughout the country's history most leaders have been influenced by the Judeo-Christian ethics, the source of the Ten Commandments. Anyone familiar with American tradition will observe the concept of divine guidance was seldom far from the minds of those who played significant roles in shaping United States' destiny.

Here are a smattering of instances in which reverence for Sacred Providence was indicated. The list could be much more extensive.

On the day of this country's birth, the Founding Fathers wrote into the preamble to the Declaration of Independence "...and to assume among the powers of the earth that separate and equal station to which the laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them. . ."

As school children or adults, when we pledged allegiance to the flag we recited these words "I pledge allegiance to the United States of America and to the republic for which it stands, one nation, under God. . ."

Since then we've seen the motto "In God We Trust" on our money so frequently, we've virtually forgotten it exists.

On the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery is carved the inscription "Here rests in honored glory an American soldier known but to God."

So the idea of a religious observance on this Independence Day weekend assumes validity. Both Church and State today are confronted with new perplexities that the Founding Fathers never dreamed of. Consequently, religious bodies are assuming increasingly activist roles.

The questions leap out at us. What can we do about peace in Vietnam and the world? Threats to the environment? Drug addiction and disillusioned youth? Disadvantaged minorities? Unemployment? Poor housing? Education? Hunger?

These problems cry out for innovative approaches and hard work. Perhaps, as has been said about New York's vast, interrelated difficulties, they can't really be solved, but must be managed. On the other hand, maybe you hold the magic key to certain solutions.

There is an ironic footnote to current religious activism. Karl Marx contended that organized religions-particularly Christianity-diverted man's attention from the problems at hand by insisting that suffering was mankind's lot on earth and salvation could be found only in the hereafter.

But events in recent years have shown that religion is abandoning this ostrich posture and is trying to cope with temporal affairs. There is room for you to share in this program.

Theologian Paul Tillich observed that in weighing the price of space exploration, with its effect upon social priorities, a tendency toward cynicism often follows. "These spiritual factors, however," he continued, "should never lead to a decision to give up either the production of technical tools or attempts to penetrate into outer-terrestrial spaces. . . For danger is not a reason to prevent life from actualizing its potentialities."

And in this matter of priorities, let's make a list of our own. Putting first things first, the allotting of some time for religious contemplation this holiday weekend should be tops on the schedule.

Its Only Just Begun

I have seen more positive activity and actions in the black community recently that has ever been displayed here in the history of East Lubbock.

People have slowly began to unite and work together for the betterment of the total community and the entire City of Lubbock as a whole.

The "week-end of awareness" saw a lot of people working together for the betterment of the community.

O.I.C. is on the right track for human development and making producers, not just consumers, of many people in the area-as they have been in the past.

With the positive forces working for unity and community betterment we still have that small group of so-called leaders, or big shots, that continue to want to be "me" and "I".

The people in this group continue to brag about how long they have been here, how much and how long they owned property, and how many years they have worked in the community. But as Sister Clara Luper said so many times week before last, "how long you worked, how much you worked and how hard you worked are all lost efforts if you can not show results." And many of the people of this group can only give "lip service" to their results, with little or no concrete results being seen.

Please, all of you, forget the past, start from now and lend your influence and talents to something that is working. Do not fight or refuse to work with progress and progressive programs. Who gets the credit or who can make things move is irrelevant. What counts is results.

If you worked hard in the past and did not get results, that did not mean you were not sincere. It probably meant that your approach and techniques were wrong. Learn from past experiences and from what must have been wrong before, and share those experiences with the people who are now working so hard for good, positive results.

Speaking of results, the visits from the black community in the past few months to the Zoning hearings, and to the City Council, have certainly pointed out to some people in down-town Lubbock that black people live in this city also. And the "week-end of awareness" helped prove to some people that we can be positive and constructive.

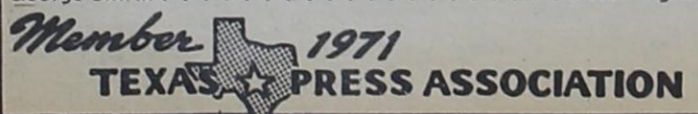

Along with development of people, keep your eye on O.I.C. The things this column and the West Texas Times have been pleading for the past 10 years are becoming a reality. The important things like community involvement, recognition of the black in the city, and development and training of unemployed or underemployed citizens as well as recognition from the City Council as far as city employment is concerned are all becoming realities.

These things are slowly coming to pass. Maybe somebody heard the Times after all this time. I certainly hope so.

MIDLAND - ODESSA

with Bob Tieuel

Black Studies: A recent Harvard University catalog contains, among other academic offerings, 15 Afro-American Studies courses. That's more courses in this field than are offered by first rated Howard and Fisk Universities, which are predominantly black universities.

At Harvard, the course in Afro-American studies is an "Introduction to Black Civilization—An interpretation of African history from about 800 B.C. to 1591 A.D." It is taught by an eminent Africanist—Dr. Ephraim Isaac. The slave trade, contemporary African independence pressures, as well as present trends in black American radicalism will have their separate courses and analysis.

It is as in the past, lack of precise data that has rendered any attempt at interpreting the black man's role in the process of civilization a matter of academic speculation. This is particularly true of discussions about the black man's contributions to the development of the New World civilization. This is the main purpose of this column: "to clarify and classify" as one reader suggested.

Our mail bag: Please forgive us but this column receives more mail and other types of communication (verbal or oral) than we can possibly ever take care of, but we do try hard, in the language of the ghetto. We answer a lot of bellringers here and we call by telephone (when in the area) when we have a number. Anyway, if we don't answer within several weeks, please write or call again. Who was it that said the third time is "charm", if we were not black and poor we could hire several secretaries and go on a national syndicate but for now we stick with West Texas and New Mexico.

For example, a bellringer wrote several months ago: . . . "Granted that the average black income in America is as you state for a family of four . . . It is a very respectable income indeed and hardly bad enough to cause all the unrest, violence and talk of 'ghettoes' we hear about almost daily. I usually agree with your views and very constructive attitudes. Yes, we can all work together for a better America." Signed: Mrs. D.E.N. of Odessa.

Right on, Mrs. N. The only hangup is that too many want to profit from the black income without offering comparable incentives, like jobs and other opportunities. Black dollars should mean black jobs, but this is not always the case, if you get the idea. Write again and sorry to be delayed in answering.

Word received here is that a prominent black civic club of Odessa is attempting to bring state representative Curtis Graves to the Permian Basin for a speaking engagement this summer and a "Black Awareness Bar-B-Q Observance." We buy the idea and hope they are successful. This column reported Rep. Curtis Graves appearance in Lubbock on June 19th and the man tells it straight and like it is. "Racism in our national and state life as well as on the local level must be destroyed," he declared, "or we face total destruction of our vaunted way of life in America." Graves made a good race for mayor in Houston recently and says that "next time I'm going to win."

That's faith, Brother.
