Legion

About six weeks from now men of the American Legion will be on their way to Miami to elect a new national commander (and incidentally have a good time).

Progressively each year since the boys first whooped home from war our national political parties have manifested more and more interest in the Legion leadership. The boys are boys no more. They are approaching middle age and they represent a substantial cross-section of the community's backbone—particularly when so well organized.

It isn't that the American Legion can be "delivered" to either the Democrats or Republicans in a national election. Its membership is entirely too widespread for that. But Legion leaders can—and do—make it either tough or easy for the administration in power in connection with the federal program for veterans.

This year the White House has been watching maneuvers preliminary to the October convention most closely.

Reports have been circulated that a movement is afoot an anti-New Deal ticket at Miami. It has been rumored that Col. Hanford MacNider, former National Commander, prominent Iowa Republican and Minister to Canada under Herbert Hoover, is pulling the strings of this movement.

Reliable Legion politicians, after getting reports from their scouts all over the country, say these reports are inaccurate.

Candidates

Nothing is more dangerous than to count an American Legion chicken before he is hatched but the pious-feelers are predicting that Frank Belgrano, Jr., of San Francisco will be the Legion's next commander.

Belgrano is a member of the Finance Committee—rated most important of the groups running Legion affairs. In private life he is an official of the Bank of Italy, that all-powerful West Coast financial institution controlled by the Gianninis.

The Bank of Italy has adopted a general policy of playing along with the New Deal although it is by no means enamored with all of the Roosevelt program. Belgrano is not regarded as hostile to the administration.

Chief opposition to Belgrano at Miami is expected to be R. Murphy of Iowa. Ray is a friend and Iowa political colleague of Senator Louis Murphy—although they're not related.

And here the rumor-spreaders are confounded. Murphy and Col. MacNider also are close friends. Legionnaires who should know say that Mac, unless he is engaging in double-crossing of which they don't believe him possible, is supporting Murphy.

A third candidate is Vilas Whaley of Wisconsin, distinctly anti-

Pension Act Is Delayed

Railroads Ask Injunction To Halt Operation Of New Law

WASHINGTON (AP)—Railroads Tuesday filed suits in the District of Columbia supreme court asking an injunction to prevent the federal railroad retirement board from operating the pension law passed at the last session of congress.

The suit was filed by a committee of five attorneys headed by R. V. Fletcher, general counsel for the American Railway association, on behalf of more than 150 railroads.

The law was attacked on the grounds it was violative of the commerce clause of the constitution and also that it violated the 5th amendment to the constitution by taking property without due process of law.

After a brief hearing before Justice Proctor of the District of Columbia supreme court, decision on the application of the railroads was put over until Wednesday.

Attorneys Unprepared—Attorneys representing the retirement board told the court they would be unprepared to answer the petition of the carriers until then. They promised no orders would be issued in the interim.

The retirement act provides that employees shall pay two per cent of their monthly salaries and the railroads four per cent of their payrolls into a general fund to be held in the United States treasury to pay pensions to employees who have worked 30 years or who have reached the age of 65.

Officers Find No New Developments In Findley Death

Officers investigating the death of Rufus Findley, who met his death apparently at the hands of a hit and run driver Sunday morning near the airport, said Tuesday there were no new developments in the case.

They were at complete loss as to how to proceed in uncovering the person who drove an automobile into Findley and left him, a battered heap, on the highway to die.

Findley was killed probably about 3 a. m. Sunday just east of the airport. He was buried here Sunday evening.

Cooling Plant Resumes Work

Machinery of the meat cooling plant here was put back into operation Tuesday morning after two days of trouble.

Killing of cattle for consumption of the federal cannery was resumed at once but County Administrator R. H. McNew said that the mechanical troubles would precipitate a cannery close down this week.

During the two days in which the cooling plant machinery was out of order, no cattle could be killed. Since all carcasses must have been chilled for at least 48 hours, McNew said it would be necessary to close down the cannery for 36 to 48 hours until the meat supply could be replenished.

Meanwhile, cattle buying in the county is still at a practical standstill. No cattle other than those to be used in the cannery here or those condemned are being bought pending relief of congestion at concentration points.

Mary Pickford To Meet 'Doug' In Hollywood

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—Mary Pickford disclosed upon arriving here Tuesday she will meet her estranged husband, Douglas Fairbanks, in Hollywood soon. She asserted she "probably will have less to say concerning my domestic affairs after that conference than I have now."

She would neither confirm nor deny reports of their pending reconciliation.

After the cattle situation had reached an apparently hopelessly muddled state Monday evening, the cattle committee suddenly drove a deal with Ollie Cox of the Double Heart ranch south of Sweetwater for Brahma cattle for the affair. They also arranged to get a stock of broncs from Cox.

V.F.W. offered to decorate the city in anticipation of the event. The organization offered to string bunting, drapes and flags over the business district free of charge. This work, authorities indicated, would be started soon to secure advertising benefits.

A committee appointed a program committee composed of Kirby Miller, Harry Lee, Jess Slaughter to draft an order of events for the occasion and to confer with the advertising committee in an important meeting Tuesday morning.

Publicizing of the rodeo will be started at once. Plans are to make the Big Spring affair the major Labor Day celebration of West Texas.

J. L. Hudson, secretary, reported that collections for the occasion amounted to more than $600 and that outstanding pledges totaled more than $100.

Purses aggregating $500 will be offered to participants in the rodeo. Dates will be September 3 and 4.

Vaccination Of Children Urged Before School

AUSTIN—The schools throughout Texas will soon be opening for another term and the Texas State Department of Health urges the parents of school children to see that they are protected against disease in so far as possible. Vaccination against typhoid, diphtheria, and smallpox should be done at once.

School children are exposed to much infection so that where a definite preventive is known, parents should take advantage of it. These vaccinations may save many days out of school, doctor fees, and maybe life itself. More than six hundred children die each year in Texas from diphtheria.

The child should be taken to his family physician at this time for a physical examination to determine if he has any remedial defects. A child with subnormal eyesight or hearing cannot be expected to do as well in his studies as one that has normal sight and hearing. A dentist should be consulted in regard to the teeth. Any defect found and corrected before school opens will mean much to the child and will have its effect on his school work as well as his physical well being.

Some physical defects of children, such as underweight or malnourishment, show no appreciable present effect. If such a condition is not corrected it may result seriously in later years. No hard and fast rules as to a child's weight at a certain age are available, but parents should see whether or not the child shows some gain each month.

Arthur Crowshaw, meteorologist at the United States weather bureau at the Big Spring airport, returned Saturday night from a month's vacation spent in west and northwest points, including San Francisco, Agua Caliente, Portland, Oregon, and Vancouver, British Columbia.

Mrs. Lige Davis, Midland Woman, Dies In Abilene

ABILENE—Mrs. Lige Davis, pioneer of Jones county and for the last 18 years, a resident of Midland, died at 10 p. m. Tuesday in an Abilene hospital, where two weeks ago she underwent major surgery.

Mrs. Davis was a sister-in-law of Mrs. W. R. Chapman here. While en route to Abilene for a visit in the Chapman home, she became ill in Haskell and was rushed here for surgery. For a time her condition improved, but late last week it again became grave, resulting in death Monday night.

Leaving here Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock, her body will be taken, overland in a Kiker-Knight funeral coach, to Midland for burial beside the grave of her husband, who died February 7, 1924. Rites will be held from the home of a daughter, Mrs. Lorraine Bucy, with Rev. W. J. Coleman, Presbyterian pastor, officiating.

Martha Paxton, 60, was born at Savoy, Texas, June 20, 1874, and 45 years ago moved with her parents James and Hattie Paxton, to Jones county. At Anson, she was married to Lige Davis, a pioneer of Jones county family, who had settled with his parents in this section in 1868. The couple moved to Midland in 1918. Mr. Davis until his death was a prominent rancher of that area.

Surviving are four children, all of Midland. Besides Mrs. Bucy, they are Mrs. Elizabeth Dublin, Mrs. Georgia Kirk Hutchison and Don Davis.

Reveal Details In Cold-Blooded Slaying Scheme

Heads Rodeo

CENTERVILLE, (AP)—District Judge H. Adkinson ordered Mrs. Salsbery and Ibb-Bass, 22, her lover, to be held for the grand jury and denied bond.

A statement by Mrs. Salsbery, 23, revealed details of a cold-blooded slaying scheme. She told how she and Bass, after fourteen months of surreptitious love-making decided to "get rid" of her 26-year-old husband.

They decided, the statement said, to poison her husband and set fire to the home. Mrs. Salsbery was then to run to neighbors and say a lamp had exploded.

DETAILS BARED—CENTERVILLE, (AP)—Horrible details of a murder plot conceived by Mrs. Charles Salsbery and a man with whom she admittedly carried on an illicit romance, were bared Tuesday at examining trials of the unlettered farm couple when they pleaded guilty to charges of murder and arson in connection with the slaying of the woman's husband.

Athletics Coast To 9 To 0 Victory

WASHINGTON, (AP) — With a nine run deluge in the first inning, the Philadelphia Athletics Monday coasted to a 9 to 0 victory over the Washington Senators in the first game of a scheduled doubleheader. The second game was postponed because of rain.

The Athletics fell on three pitchers during the opening inning, collecting ten hits, including three doubles, off Al Thomas, Jack Russell and Jimmie Foxx.

Women used to suffer from a peculiar form of anemia—caused, doctors believe, by the rigid steel and whalebone corsets that used to be laced so tightly. With saner corsets, this malady also has just about vanished.

We often talk about the diseases such as smallpox and yellow fever which are conquered by medical science. These lesser ailments yielding less dramatically to medical common sense, are also worth a thought.

Schedule SOFTBALL Standings

Manager Ivey of the Couden Pipeliner soft ball team at Foran, has advanced the idea of a play-off between the winner of the Big Spring leagues and the Foran loop. Then, he said, the winner of the play-off could play San Angelo, Abilene and Midland champs.

The Pipeliners play the Carter Chevay team a practice game on the City Park diamond this afternoon at 6 o'clock.

The Herald Type Lice play the fourth game on the diamond tonight with the Foran Humble team.

The fem soft ball teams have the use of the diamond for third games on Wednesday and Friday. There seems to be quite a bit of interest in the women's games but they play a rather poor brand of ball, probably because they have been practicing only a short time.

D. H. "Old Folks" Reed stopped back in town for a few hours a day or two ago after attending the Tech "school" and then continued his journey to Portales, N. M. Reed reported a very interesting and enjoyable time. Bill Stevens, who used to coach here, was attending the school. Coach Hennig was on hand from Sweetwater, but the Angelo coach, Harry Taylor, did not make it.

"Old Folks" will return about the 21st of this month, in time to make the trip to New Mexico with the football boys. The departing date has been tentatively set for Thursday, the 23rd.

Bristow expects forty or more will make the trip. The boys will be assessed five bucks per each to help cover expenses. Plans are being made to go to Ruidoso, but the department heard Monday that the place was out of water. It's a beautiful spot, however, located high in the mountains with lots of tall pine trees.

Doyle Robinson is anxious to have lights on the football field this year, and it may be that a campaign will be launched before long to secure the "dough."

Linckmen To Have Tough Battle With Flew's Tonight

The Lion soft ball team will either snatch the league No. 1 lead tonight or leave the lead up to The Herald Type Lice and Couden. And if the Robinson Groceriesmen have their way about it, the Lions will be out of the picture.

It's possible for the Kiwanians to get into the swim and make it a four way tie. If Robinson wins tonight and the Lice and Coudenites lose their next encounters it will be anybody's race.

It is possible for the Ford team to overtake Linck, leading in league No. 2, but the Groceriesmen have a one game lead. Linck has won seven out of eight and Ford six out of eight.

The Linck team will have one of its toughest battles tonight with Flew's club. Ford should win handily from the C-P. Druggists Friday.

Club Outfit Wins Game

Settles Team Tallies Once In Fourth And Twice In Fifth

The Kiwanis soft ball team moved up the percentage column a few notches Monday night by snowing under the Settles Hotel team 19 to 3.

The Clubmen put three across in the initial inning. Coots got on base on an error and was brought home with a double by Swatzie. Madison walked and Black doubled to score Swatzie and Madison when the Hotel infield erred.

Kiwanis tacked two more scores up in the second when Bristow and Driver singled and Swatzie doubled on a Hotel error.

They came back strong with four in the third. Madison bingled, Black got on base on an error and Fowler walked. Gentry to fill the sacks. Gullyey, next man up, cleaned the bases with a hard smash through right short that was good for a home run.

The Settles boys made their first tally in the fourth when Fowler hit one through the Kiwanis infield for a double, advanced on an out by Galbraith and scored when Scotty got on base on an error.

The Clubmen went out in order in the fourth, but in the fifth they added seven runs. Hardy bingled, Gentry got on an error, and Bristow walked to fill the bases. Gullyey singled to score Hardy and Gentry and Driver hit to bring in Bristow and Gullyey. Coots followed with a nice double and L. Harris laid one over the center fielder for a circuit smash, cleaning the bases.

The Settles scored two in the fifth. Graves walked, Wagner singled and Connor doubled to fill the bases. Graves and Wagner scored on hits by Fowler and Galbraith but Connor was out at the plate.

The Clubmen added three runs in the sixth. Black singled and Hardy tripled to center to score Black. Bristow completed the act with a home run over the center fielder.

The Kiwanians got 13 hits and the Hotelmen three. Errors were numerous.

The boys were chatting with the eminent Jerome Herman Dean around the rugout when some one mentioned the fortuitous circumstance by which the Cardinal right hander entered an agreement with a St. Louis business man this year—an agreement by which Dixey, in return for some part-time radio ballhoop, receives $100 for each pitching victory. The total now is around $2,100.

"Yeah," came back one of the lads, "you will have his shirt before the season's over."

Martin Gains In Slugging

Baber Blasts Out Triple And Single In Four Trips For .420

By HANK HART

Almost every member of the Couden Oiler team improved his batting average in last Sunday's game against Col-Tex when the Oiler piled up a total of 15 assorted hits off Dave Pfeifers.

Most prominent among those who gained was Set Martin, hitting in all but one of his appearances at the plate. Martin's average jumped from .300 to .380 and went into a tie with Pap Payne for fourth place. Martin also crossed the plate twice to boost his runs scored total to 23 for the season, two more than Lefty Baber, his closest rival.

Baber saw his average increase slightly when he blasted out a triple and a single in four trips, the three base blow coming with the bases loaded. His average stands at an even .300.

A quart of the Coudenites moved closer to the charmed circle of 300 when each scored two bingles in five trips. Sam Bain is the highest with an average of .297, followed by Baker at .290, Moxley at .283, and West at .280. Mileway and Skeeter contributed home runs to the Oiler cause in Sunday's battle.

Bristow Issues Grid Equipment

Coach Obie Bristow issued equipment to twenty-six Steer football candidates Monday and beginning this afternoon at 5:45 daily workouts will be held on the old practice field in Washington place.

The short seasons will be limited to conditioning exercises only. "Just getting the boys in shape for camp," Bristow said.

Josh Couden, Jr., has returned from Fort Worth and Dallas, where he has been for several days.

MURDER BY THOUSANDS

A striking contrast between crime conditions in the United States and crime conditions in England is drawn by J. H. Wallis, popular writer of detective stories, who has devoted a little spare time to comparing statistics on real and fictional murders in the two countries.

In England, he finds, detective story writers actually "kill" more people than do real-life murderers. In England there are approximately 100 homicides a year and the fiction writers can keep ahead of that mark without half trying.

But in the United States—well, Mr. Wallis finds that American murderers remove some 1000 mortals from this earthy scene every year; and that's a mark that even the most active S. S. Van Dines, Ellery Queens, and Mignon Eberhart can't hope to keep up with.

Which perhaps explains why the American detective story generally has more homicides in it than does the English variety. One murder, by itself, is an unusual and absorbing thing to an English reader. They have to come in bunches to thrill an American.

NEW PARTIES NEEDED

As the congressional campaign begins to warm up, the need for some sort of realignment of parties becomes more and more evident.

Consider, for instance, the recent statement of Senator Hastings of Delaware and Nye of North Dakota—both Republicans.

"Senator Hastings attacks the Roosevelt program as 'revolutionary' and says that 'it must be evident by this time that it is dangerous.'"

Senator Nye, simultaneously, assails President Roosevelt because he is "not liberal enough," and denounces the NRA for fostering monopoly.

The party, thus contains two wings—one ultra-conservative, the other ultra-liberal.

The same thing, of course, is true of the Democrats, to just as great extent. What we need to make our politics realistic is a new alignment that will group liberals in one party and conservatives in the other.

OUR SANER AGE

Because of changes in national dietary habits, the famous old malady, gout, has almost passed from the picture in America today.

Dr. R. C. Williams, assistant surgeon general of the U. S. Public Health Service, points out that in the gay '90s gout was an extremely common disease. People ate rich foods without regard to the needs of their system—and they paid the penalty. Today, with saner eating habits in vogue, gout is very rare.

It is the same with dyspepsia.

ROOSEVELT, IN WISCONSIN, HAILS NEW DEAL ACTION

In this colorful setting at Beach View pavilion at Green Bay, Wis., President Roosevelt made a major speech of his cross-country tour and declared that "neither the demand nor the action" in the "new deal" has reached the end of the road. The President, shown standing on the speakers' platform beside his son, John, spoke in connection with the Wisconsin tercentenary celebration. (Associated Press Photo)

HORSE AND BUGGY DAYS

An Archduke, a Wounded Soldier, and a Little Man in a Wrinkled Suit

Probably you'd call her the first of all the bathing beauties. Anyway, here's the once-popular Annette Kellerman, who first demonstrated that a girl can make a fortune in a bathing suit. The movies didn't overlook a bet, and Annette starred in a number of films. This is the way she looked in "Neptune's Daughter."

Just another wounded soldier, then—now a world-famous dictator in charge of the destinies of a great nation! The picture was taken in an Italian hospital in February, 1916, and shows Benito Mussolini chatting with Dr. Ambrogio Binda, who was treating him for wounds received in action.

When this picture was taken—in 1911—people were chiefly interested in it because they wondered if the lady would ever be given the title of Empress. It shows the Archduke Franz Ferdinand of Austria-Hungary, his wife, the Duchess of Hohenberg, and their children. Because she was only his morganatic wife, it was predicted that she could not be recognized as Empress when he came to the throne. But a pistol shot at Sarajevo, two and one-half years after this picture was taken, decreed that the problem would go forever unsolved.

This determined-looking little man in a wrinkled suit frightened almost every ruler on earth every time he opened his mouth. Lenin, who turned Russia into the first Communist nation, is shown addressing a crowd in Petrograd (now Leningrad) in the early days of the Bolshevik revolution.

He couldn't even fly an airplane when this photo was taken... Charles A. Lindbergh is shown as he looked in 1921, just after he had ridden his motorcycle from Chicago to Louisville, Ky., in 24 hours, to join the R. O. T. C.

It didn't quite seem possible, somehow—but it happened. Jack Dempsey knocked out the towering Jess Willard, who had seemed too big to be beaten, and won the world's heavyweight championship, at Toledo, O., in 1919. This shows Willard on the floor following one of the first-round knock-downs.

SPITE MARRIAGE

by Katharine Scotland Taylor

Chapter 23 SELF-SACRIFICE

"You will never know," said Marsha "what your faith in me, and your caring for me, means to me; will always mean to me!"

Her voice broke, and she said Mrs. Powers' eyes filled and she spoke quickly, lightly, of other matters. Marsha's first thought now was for Mrs. Powers and for that which was good for her; she was learning that lesson of love which makes the needs of others one's own.

She had new eyes and they told her that Mrs. Powers was helped by seeing her on those sleepless nights when pain kept vigil and that Mrs. Powers' knowing the nurse to be awake and alert was not the same.

The fact warmed Marsha, who felt from it a sense of tenderness that made her eyes sting; almost maternal tenderness. She reflected often and gratefully on the fact that she was, "so absurdly strong" and, fleetingly, she mused upon the mercy of crowded hours and the weariness that sent her soon into sound and dreamless sleep.

The love that she would know with Mrs. Powers going, a love that must come to Marsha who had before known nothing of gentle and real affection, would have crippled her had she had more time to brood upon it.

As it was by day there were trips up and down stairs, domestic matters to attend to in the house, ordering to do, the doctor to see, beside the odd, increasing extras that took time.

Such, for instance, was the call of Mrs. Powers' old friend, Mrs. Vining, who always stayed a round two hours. There were checks to write on the family attorney might come or the Curator or the Rector. And flowers must be arranged and Mrs. Powers must be diverted, entertained—and Bob's letters must be written every two days.

Many were the worlds for Marsha, who had known but her own selfish and sometimes cruel world, and there was so much to do in each of them.

Day done, Marsha could creep into the high black walnut bed to sleep soundly for an hour, perhaps two; to wake with compunction and to fumble thickly for her slippers.

Then, a negligee around her, she would make shivering, stumbling way down the passage. If the light by Mrs. Powers' bed showed a yellow slit beneath the door, Marsha would blink herself to sharp wakefulness and push open the door.

"Pain, dear?" she would ask anxiously. "W can do no more than so much!" the weary doctor had admitted to Marsha; "the effect of opium wears away with this!" She would see, Mrs. Powers smile on her, her eyes brighter; she would hear, "Just a little, dear."

She would settle by the bed, sometimes Mrs. Powers admitted that she would have to have "a little pellet" and when this happened Marsha would drop it in a glass of water. Then she would slip her arms beneath Mrs. Powers' shoulders to lift her while she drank.

After that she would sit down by the bed to wait, watch and hope; to hope so fully, so fervently, that she was often drained by the energy she gave to hope.

"Please, please!" she petitioned silently of that vague something that was drawing closer and growing larger for Marsha: "Please keep pain from her!"

"You'll go cold, dear," Mrs. Powers would murmur.

Marsha would answer with a convincing, "I'm quite warm," frequently when her hands were stiffened by the cold and she had to set her teeth to keep them from chattering.

"Will you, just to gratify me, wrap that comforter around you?"

"If you like, but I'm not cold. Is it any better, dear?"

"I think so."

And then again, she'd sit back to wait. It was at such times that she felt oddly close to Bob; quite as if his strength sustained her, as if his love encompassed her, as if everything were well between them, and as if he cared.

And one night as she sat in the chill, dimly lit room she fell asleep to wake with a start and a sob because she had heard Bob say, "My dearest dear! My poor, tired child!"

It had made her tremble violently. "You spoke, mother?" she faltered.

"Water, dear, please."

She stumbled as she moved toward the table upon which was a pitcher, but the ache and the depression that had rooted in an unusually long and trying day, were gone.

Bob must not know how bad it was, she decided again and again; he must never know! When he returned, she must keep him from the room at the bad hours. She considered and at length, ways of doing this. She decided that she could with the help of the servants and the nurse, who would certainly understand the futility of leaving more hurt than must be.

"You'll break down," said the nurse one morning that followed a sleepless night; "it's just a whim of hers, wanting to see you; it'll wear you out!"

For a brief moment a little of Marsha's chill arrogance returned. "Never suggest to her, please, my being tired. Do you understand, Miss Thrope?"

"Yes Mr. Powers. I didn't mean to annoy you, but you're too selfless."

"Nor did I mean to be sharp. But I want to be with her, to do everything I can for her! And if she thought I was being worn down, it would make it too difficult, you see?"

The nurse did see, but she did not cease to be troubled. She released pressure through angry mutter to Hannah, to Ellen; mutters in which she said, "She's wearing herself out! That's all! The human body won't stand more than so much. When's he coming back anyway? She's a saint and—"

But Marsha was finding new food as well as new fatigue through doing what she could for "mother."

The diversion she best liked was looking, with Mrs. Powers at Mrs. Powers' many portraits and snapshots of Bob, Bob in the photographer's high chair, Bob in his first sailor-suit with the real, whistle of which he had been so proud, hanging from a cord that was around his neck.

Bob in military-school uniform, later, in college and on the crew; Bob at some picnic. (The girl seated by him was really beautiful, Marsha realized with a chilling of heart.) Bob with his father, that happy year they spent together abroad.

Under this heading too, same Bob's dogs; horses; the Adirondacks place. "Of course you will go there often with Bob," said Mrs. Powers. "Bob loves it—"

And Mrs. Powers' life ending, Marsha was certain, was the very reason why she would never go with Bob to the Adirondacks place.

His loving it would, of course, wall it away from her.

All that had faded, wasted, small women had been to Bob began to be apparent to Marsha and it led her to write him, in extra letters which Marsha did not show to Mrs. Powers, every small detail concerning his mother which she felt could interest him; his mother's enjoyments; how she spent her time; what they were reading; of her appetite, (if good, that day) which had called upon her. The chronicle was faithful in narrating all that could cheer.

Marsha felt that such word would help him; but once and again doubt crept in through her weariness, which reduced her judgment and left her certain only of the fact that she loved two souls with all her heart and must live, in the chill future, without both of them.

She wrote, one doubtful day, when her head ached from lack of sleep and she could not see quite clearly.

"I have written as I have, thinking it might help you. If my extra letters annoy you, put parentheses about 'Your letters are so long and good, dearest' and I'll understand that you wish a terse report and no more."

"I don't want to make things harder for you than they must be; and I thought you might, and most naturally, feel I intrude where I can't belong through telling you of your mother."

"The only thing I could not forgive is your letting me continue to annoy you, if I have."

New Deal. The nose-counters say Whaley has only his own delegation and will not be a serious factor.

As usual the famous Legion "king-makers" will be in on the birth. A glance at them may help how near. Insiders say top employment probably will be reached by the end of the month and not exceed 700,000 men. Those who had yearned to see the million mark reached have given up hope reluctantly.

To square the picture it should be remembered 300,000 CCC boys and 20,000 emergency government employes get paid from PWA funds.

NEW YORK

By James McMillin

Incentive

A number of leading New York conservatives agree with the Federation of Labor that the discrepancy between producing power and buying power is a vital factor in retarding recovery. The Federation's estimate that the average factory worker produces 22.3 per cent more per hour than he did in '29 is accepted as correct. Technical improvements in production methods would have brought a still more startling jump if NEA hadn't applied the brakes in the past year. There's no doubt that new efficiencies have slowed reemployment and that wage gains and shorter hours haven't by any means offset it.

They also go along with the Federation's argument that public spending which doesn't create wealth is only a temporary palliative and builds up an intolerable burden for the future. And they insist they want business expansion as much as labor does.

But they still stick to their story that there isn't a thing they can do about it until Washington gives the profit incentive a better break. They're stubborn as ever on the point that it's futile to risk capital unless you have a free hand to make all the money you can and keep it.

Issue

This implies still wider use of labor-saving machinery, freedom to deal with labor according to industry's own ideas, the power to lower wages and lengthen hours "as indicated by conditions" and the general abandonment of New Deal business regulations. These matters are freely mentioned in private.

There's no conscious ultimatum in this platform. It simply reflects the ideas of many financiers and industrialists as to what they must have to induce them to get busy and spend. Only a few of them agree that any such concessions by the government would transfer serious social responsibilities to private enterprise.

Keen observers believe this issue will be the most fundamental in the November election—whether voiced openly or not. It isn't exactly a party question either. Conservative Democrats—especially from the south—might be just as helpful in furthering the big business program as Republicans. Backstage conservative generalship will bear that in mind.

Treasury

Wall Streeters are becoming a trifle annoyed with Secretary Morgenthau. His recent habit of unloading indirect government liabilities—such as bonds of the Federal Farm Mortgage Corp. and Home Owners' Loan Corp.—when ever he happens to feel like it is beginning to get under their skins. They much prefer straight Treasury stuff and wish he'd stick to a definite program.

The Federal Farm Mortgage issue several weeks ago turned out to be overpriced for market conditions and no one was hurt in the rush for HOLC bonds when they came out.

All this has had a softening effect on the federal security market. Some of those who paid a premium for government obligations maturing soon—on the theory they would get prior rights to subscribe to attractive conversion issues—are beginning to wonder if they haven't been played for suckers. It's just possible that other less attractive indirect issues will be auctioned to raise cash to meet part of these maturities and all they'll get for their foresight is the face value of their bonds. They wouldn't care for that at all.

Red

Investment houses wonder if Treasury officials read the Senate committee's recent savage diatribe against "the wickedness of 'pegging' security prices. There's clear evidence that the Treasury itself has been supporting the price of Federal Farm Mortgage bonds in a way that Wall Street says can only be described as pegging.

The boys comment that Secretary Morgenthau's face should be plenty red.

Detail

Beginning in September Federal Reserve member banks will have to report their loans in greater detail. In particular they'll have to separate "all other loans" into commercial credits, bankers' acceptances, etc.

New York understands the Federal Reserve issued this order by official government request. It appears the administration wants to know more definitely whether the banks are really cooperating in expanding credit or just kidding.

Yesterday and Today

WHO would want to go back to the standards of even a generation ago? We have traveled far since then. Inventions and scientific discoveries have furnished the principal vehicles: New conveniences, improved merchandise, better foods, added health-conserving means.

But the thing which has hastened us on to the knowledge and acceptance of their benefits is advertising. It has brought new things quickly to all of us and sped us toward a different, better mode of living.

Modern advertising sells us, not only things, but ideas. The advertising of soaps has sold us the health advantages of more frequent bathing. The advertising of modern bathroom equipment has made bathing a singular pleasure.

The advertising of improved razors and beard softeners has made whisking off whiskers a simple daily ditty instead of a weekly major operation.

Tooth-paste, tooth-brush and mouth-wash manufacturers and retailers are saving us untold aches and years of marred smiles, by advertising the importance of oral hygiene.

As a result of the advertising of food manufacturers and purveyors, we have escaped from the drowsy dullness caused by heavy breakfasts and are full of forenoon vim and clear-headedness.

The clothes we wear, furniture we use, fuel we burn, car we drive, telephone we've installed—all these would not so quickly have come home to us, were it not for the silent but irresistible force of advertising.

KEEP PACE WITH THE WORLD YOU LIVE IN BY READING THE ADVERTISEMENTS IN THIS NEWSPAPER.

The West Side Baptist church W.M.U. met at the church Monday at 8 p. m. Plans for future work were discussed, and much spiritual interest shown. The meeting time was changed to Wednesday at 2:30 p. m. Present at Monday's meeting were Mrs. C. O. Murphy, Mrs. L. E. Jobe, Mrs. C. Kinard, Mrs. M. G. Claiborne.

Mrs. Allred, Good Musician, May Be Texas First Lady

Paderewski gained his renown as a musician, quite apart from the incidental fact that he became president of his nation.

Joe Beisy Miller's renown as a composer and pianist, besides giving the Austin home over which she presides the distinction of a fine musical culture, led her to become Mrs. James V. Allred, and one of the two women from whom the eventualities of politics will name the next mistress of the Texas White House.

Mrs. Allred's life, up through and beyond her college days, has centered about two things; originally her music career, and then, after an epochal piano recital she gave in Wichita Falls in 1927, the career of wife and mother in a home life enriched by her gift and training in music.

Native of Oklahoma, Mrs. Allred's father, Claude Miller, and her mother, who was of the Kimberlins, founders of Altus, Okla., lived on a farm in Oklahoma, where Joe Beisy was born and spent her early years. Later they moved to Oklahoma City, where she attended school. When she was in the family moved to Wichita Falls, where she completed high school, twice being chosen the most popular girl of the school.

She majored in music at Southern Methodist university, and studied in Chicago and New York. She holds a permanent teacher's certificate of no greater profession for a supervisor. After her marriage, she substituted for brief periods in the Wichita Falls schools, thus having had experience as a teacher.

Music for Centennial
She has written and set to music several compositions. For the Texas Centennial, she has set to music a poem, "Farewell to My Country," written by Davy Crockett. She wrote the music to the suggestion of Mrs. Ben G. Oneal of Wichita Falls, who suggested the patriotic poem as part of the Centennial observance.

At 16, when Joe Beisy Miller gave a recital in Wichita Falls, her future husband was present and saw her for the first time. Their marriage followed in 1927.

Mr. and Mrs. Allred have two sons, James Jr., four years old, who was born in Wichita Falls, and David, just past six months old, born in Austin, Texas.

Her father, at Wichita Falls, is deeply engrossed in the Allred campaign, working day and night. It is his second experience in political activity, he having been active on behalf of his son-in-law for attorney general four years ago.

Wants Boys To Be Farmers
Mrs. Allred, as her family came on, restricted her club interests to the Music Study club of Wichita Falls, in which she has retained active affiliation, and to interested participation in similar groups at Austin.

The attorney general and Mrs. Allred have been active members of the Christian church, and until they moved from Wichita Falls, Mr. Allred taught the young people's Bible class in the First Christian church there.

As for her boys, Mrs. Allred has said she hopes they will grow up to want to be and to be farmers. "I want them to be real farmers," she said, "of course if they have liking for law or medicine, they will be the ones to choose, but I would like to see them on a large, diversified farm. I have a pet theory, like everyone else, and mine is this: I should like to see ambitious young people stay on the farms, and some of those in the cities move back to the farm. I can think of no greater profession for a man—and I believe farming should be a profession—that is close to the soil."

Mrs. Allred is of course interested in politics, as it affects the race of her husband. She attended and addressed a meeting of women in Wichita Falls, who organized the Allred second-primary campaign there. She was presented, with her husband, at the all-state Allred rally in Dallas a few days ago, and in the ovation given her, shared in the hopes and ambitions of her husband and his friends, for his success in the political campaign. Modestly, she has shared with him the eminence of election by the voters of Texas to the high office of attorney general, and the experience, of his four years of public office in that position.

Air Express Destined For South Texas Now Goes Over Network

FORT WORTH—Restoration of air express service in the major cities of South Texas, including San Antonio, Houston, Galveston, Austin and Brownsville, and in Wichita Falls and Amarillo in North Texas, effective Sept. 1, was announced today by Roger M. Combs, chairman of General Air Express and manager of the six express divisions of American Airlines. The service formerly performed by General Air Express in those areas will be in operation over the lines of Long & Harmon, Inc., which were awarded the air mail contracts on the Dallas-Galveston, Dallas-Brownsville, and Dallas-Amarillo routes.

With these three links in the national network restored to express service, shipments from mid-West and Eastern points, as well as Western points, will be accepted and dispatched by Postal Telegraph offices anywhere in those regions for prompt delivery within twenty-four hours at the most direct South Texas points, Mr. Combs said. American Airlines planes will carry the shipments to Dallas, where connections are made with the Long & Harmon planes serving the Texas areas North and South of Dallas.

Better Homes Drive Speeded By Directors

Housing Administrator Says No Slash Expected In Price Of Materials

WASHINGTON (AP)—Regional state and district directors were named Tuesday to inject impetus into the federal administration's campaign to modernize millions of homes and commercial buildings.

At the same time, James A. Moffett, housing administrator, told reporters he did not "look for any general reduction whatever" in prices of building materials.

"There has been the general impression," Moffett said, "that to start the campaign a bargain price might be named. With few exceptions I believe prices are reasonable and generally below the 1926 level."

Will Contact Clubs
The new directors, the administrator said, were selected primarily for sales promotion activity. They will contact local communities through chambers of commerce, women's and civic clubs. To tell home owners how and why they should borrow for home modernization.

"It will be purely a local effort, steered by the directors," Moffett asserted.

Moffett implied that political considerations did not govern the choice of the directors, pointing out that "a lot of financial institutions are run by Republicans and many Republicans are home owners."

Pay Ranges to $6800
While they get their pay—from $4500 to $6800 each—through the NECA, the funds are supplied by the housing administration, which retains full authority over the directors.

Moffett said the directors would be replaced in "a few weeks or months" with permanent state organizations involving personnel of the FHA only. The NECA supplied men to help in getting the modernization plan under way before adverse weather sets in.

ALLRED'S EARLY LIFE SHOWED A LONGING AMBITION FOR AN EDUCATION TO ADVANCE SELF

By RAYMOND BROOKS

"Jimmie" Allred, born in a humble Montague county farm home, early was fired with longing and ambition for an education and for his equipment to advance himself to a position comparable with those eminent "first citizens" of his community.

As in his boyhood and early maturity, he began to feel the returns of ambition and hard work, he came to a sense of effectiveness and power. He knew he was on the right course, and he followed through with an intensity and singleness of purpose that has carried him now into the run-off, one of the two men between whom Texas will choose its next governor.

Early Struggles
Early struggles and ambition and plugging gave him an intensity and a colorfulness that have stood him to good effectiveness as a political campaigner. A pugnacious and aggressive type of courage has blended into the format of that intensity and concentration.

Convictions grounded in youthful poverty, in the trails and the sweet victories of making his own way all the way up, have shaped his political philosophy, and are strongly reflected in much of what he offers as a campaign platform. This statement is equally true of his opponent, Tom F. Hunter; and the fact is important, in that the purposes and viewpoints that shaped themselves in the early struggles of two self-made young West Texas men, will leave an impress upon the public policy and life of Texas, as controlled by the outcome of this month's political contest.

Change this year has made both of the final contestants men rather under the traditional size of the typical West Texan. Mr. Allred is slight, and his youthfulness reflect that he is in his 30's. Mr. Hunter, still shorter than Allred, is dolly-poly. That neither is a big man physically probably strikes a sympathetic, response in the minds of the average-sized citizens, of whom there are lots more than of the over sizes.

Much of Allred's campaign platform is an epitome of that natural trend of thought, the product of his early life and environment. A glance at the main events of his life, and the thought of his humble, poverty-enriched boyhood life, do much to set the man of today, his campaign and his public policy declarations, in clear-cut perspective.

Make First Money as Bootblack
Allred's father was a farmer; later a rural mail carrier, later operating a modest business of buying and selling horses and mules. All red's first dimes were earned shining shoes in a Bowler Barber shop. Then he moved over to wash dishes, at 25 cents a day, in a cafe. Then he peddled magazines, then got a job as stenographer in a law office, and studied law as he went. He served a turn in the navy, attended Rice institute at Houston, and after studying law in Texas completed his law work in Cumberland university.

Back in Texas, with his law license, he began law work in the office of Bernard Martin and Ben Advance! Not Retreat!

WHAT IS YOUR ANSWER
By Georgia E. Robertson

If your doctor said it was necessary in your case to give up candy, of which you were fond, would it be easier if it were banished from your home and office, or would it be just as easy to let it alone if it were within reach at all time? You know without making the test.

Or, if it were your child would you feel you were giving him a square deal in carrying out the doctor's orders if you kept candy in his sight and also ate it before him? Would he be more likely to disobey orders with it in easy reach all the time to tempt him, or if you planned so he would seldom see it and would have difficulty in getting it? You know the answers.

Will it lessen drinking to have beer and light wines sold in a multitude of places where men, women, young people and children continually have occasion to go—as grocery stores, drug stores, lunchrooms, restaurants and hotels?

Will there be less temptation to use alcoholic beverages when sold in these respectable places where every one must go—even women, girls and boys—with beer and win bottles on display and freely sold, with apparent perfect respectability and "good form" to partake of, or to have the same beverages sold in the old-time saloons behind barred windows and screened doors as though something to be ashamed of, and indulged in only when hidden from sight and where women and young people were forbidden to enter and into which self-respecting men used to be ashamed to be seen going?

And what of the vast army of young girls and young men who must virtually become bartenders in these saloons and eating places unless they give up their jobs and face starvation for themselves and their dependents? If they remain they will also have constant temptation thrust upon them.

These new-time saloons frequented by women and girls will cause more drunkenness than the old-time saloons.

Are you going to be one of those who by your example will help to make serving of alcoholic beverages fashionable and popular among your "set" and so be instrumental in causing drunkenness? Are you going to make no protest against having hundreds of licensed places in your town? Dare you say it does not concern you?

July capitalizations totaled $1,940,000, an increase of 2.8 per cent over June but a decline of 40 per cent from July last year. The total number of firms chartered was 108, a decline of 17 per cent from June and 28 per cent from the similar month a year ago.

All classes of industries showed a sharp decline in number of charters from July a year ago, and all but the manufacturing and real estate-building groups showed a marked drop as compared with June of this year.
