

Boycott Urged Against Lubbock Power & Light

Protestor's Pleas Fall on Deaf Ears During Thursday's Budget Hearing

Last Thursday the chamber halls were jammed with people in the city of Lubbock who are concerned about expressing themselves. (Staff Photo)

The Lubbock City Council remained firm on its original stand last week and announced city sanitation workers would not be allowed to return to their jobs. In addition, Mayor Morris W. Turner said there would not be another hearing concerning the worker's walkout and there would be no guarantee of any further negotiations with the workers.

The council decision came after a public hearing last Thursday on the proposed city budget for next year. More than twenty speakers appeared before the city council and a jam packed audience in the council chambers at city hall. Citizens were led by a contingent of Catholic priests who asked the council to re-consider their earlier decision on the strike.

Although the hearing concerned all aspects of the proposed city budget, the majority of citizen complaints centered around the garbage strike, higher taxes, and

Blacks Sold Down the River by McGovern McKissick Claims

by Paul H. Wyche, Jr.

Washington-(NBNS)-Former black civil rights activist Floyd McKissick has blasted the candidacy of Sen. George McGovern, claiming the South Dakota Senator has sold out his black supporters.

"To soothe Wall Street, to save the old plantation," McKissick said in a statement following McGovern's appearance before some Wall Street investors, "McGovern appears to have sold his black supporters down the river."

Specifically citing the $6,500 guaranteed annual income, which the National Welfare Rights Organization and the Congressional Black Caucus, have fought for and endorsed, McKissick said the Democratic nominee had abandoned that plan to satisfy the Wall Streeters.

"On August 29, Mr. McGovern decided his own black supporters were in the bag; that they 'had nowhere to go.' So the candidate of Brothers Fauntroy, Clay and Wiley went to New York—and to the applause of the Wall Street Fat Cats—chopped $2,500 out of the guaranteed income he had committed himself to in the Black Caucus Program, and on the floor of the Senate."

McGovern had introduced the $6,500 welfare measure in the Senate, however, he said at the time that he thought the amount would not pass the lawmaking body and he suggested a beginning of $4,000 for a family of four or $1,000 a person as an amount the body would agree to.

McKissick said the three men—Congressmen William Clay of Missouri, Walter Faunt-roy of the District of Columbia and George Wiley, who heads the Welfare Rights Organization—were silent "because their presidential candidate sold them down the river for a pat on the head from Big Business."

"...They've got a plate of crow and humble pie to eat this morning," he continued.

The recipient several months ago of a $14 million grant for his Soul-City, N.C. project, McKissick heads a group of Black Republicans and Democrats for the President's re-election.

He said, despite the contention of most of the nation's black leaders, Black Americans "do have somewhere to go. They can get off the ditched bandwagon of George McGovern and get behind the new majority of the President of the United States, Richard Nixon."

Voter Registration Campaign Seeking 2 Million Blacks

by Olga Corey

Washington-(NBNS)-Despite a shortage of funds, the McGovern-Shriver Campaign is mounting an all-out effort to register 2 million black voters. But it needs help.

According to District of Columbia delegate to Congress Walter Fauntroy, who heads the 21-member Black Steering Committee for McGovern, the drive will be concentrated in six key states where the black vote could be crucial—California, Illinois, Missouri, New Jersey, New York and Ohio.

Fauntroy says that the pledge made by McGovern to black leaders before the Miami convention—that 40 to 50 percent of voter registration resources would go to the black drive—has been kept.

The problem, says Fauntroy, is that money is scarce.

"Many generally large contributors are turning their backs on this campaign," said Fauntroy. "This is ample proof that McGovern's policies will benefit the poor."

Fauntroy predicts that 90 percent of all blacks will vote for McGovern—if they registered. He hopes the drive will be able to register a sizable number of the country's 6 million unregistered blacks.

"The key to a McGovern-Shriver victory," reported the D.C. Congressman, "is voter registration among blacks and 18-24 year olds."

Fauntroy charged the Republicans with carrying on a massive effort to buy, beg or borrow black votes.

He admitted that Democratic efforts to register blacks were not moving as fast as he had hoped, but emphasized that "this is due to lack of funds, not lack of commitment" and urged a "do-it-yourself" drive by black groups.

The Black Steering Committee that Fauntroy heads was set up before Miami as a result of the shift to McGovern by previously uncommitted black delegates. Besides Fauntroy, Congressmen William Clay of Missouri, Louis Stokes of Ohio and Ronald Dellums of California, are members. Also on the committee are state legislators Yvonne Burke of California and Barbara Jordan of Texas, who are expected to win Congressional seats this fall.

"The purpose of the committee," according to Fauntroy, "is to make sure there is substantial black involvement—at every level—in the McGovern-Shriver campaign and in the McGovern administration after a Democratic victory in November."

Also serving on the Black Steering Committee are Garth C. Reeves, president of the National Newspaper Publishers Association; Mayors Kenneth Gibson of Newark and Ricard Hatcher of Gary; Mrs. Coretta Scott King; Georgia State Representative Julian Bond; and Reverend Jesse Jackson, director of the People United to Save Humanity (PUSH).

Fauntroy feels that his black involvement is already significant. As just two examples, he cited the election of Basil Patterson as co-chairman of the Democratic National Committee, and the appointment of former Asst. Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Edward C. Sylvester, Jr. as National Campaign Coordinator.

School Aid for Poor May Be Misused According to HEW Report Findings

by Louise E. Wyche

Washington-(NBNS)-At least 11 of the nation's largest school districts have been using inaccurate and unreliable estimates in accounting for billions of dollars of education funds earmarked for poor schools.

In a confidential report by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, it was discovered that many school districts were using inaccurate figures in reports that they submitted to HEW. As an example, Chicago reported it had 42 schools out of HEW compliance.

But in fact, when applying the full standards, 126 schools were out of compliance, the HEW auditors discovered.

The seven school districts surveyed were Baltimore, Chicago, Hartford, Kansas City, Mo., Louisville, Miami, New York, Oakland, St. Louis, San Diego, and Yuba City, California.

Because of the inaccurate reports from the school districts, HEW is afraid the practice has led to widespread and illegal denial of funds to schools attended by poor children.

Apparently, the existing accounting methods utilized on the federal, state and local levels are so inaccurate, there is little assurance that the money is actually being spent the way it was intended to—for the benefit of poor children.

The Nixon Administration has been pushing compensatory education as an alternative to school desegregation and has said that it has assurances that the money will not be misspent, but this report appears to put holes in that argument.

Under the law, funds under Title I of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 must be used to educate poor children, and cannot be utilized to any significant degree on non-poor schools.

There have been a number of studies that have pointed out widespread abuses by local and state school districts since the enactment of the Act. The Lawyers Committee for Civil Rights Under Law also released a report on Title I funds, in which the group charged "the overwhelming number of school districts receiving Title I funds have taken no action to comply with comparability requirements, and few have plans to do so in the future."

The lawyers said this was still true after Congress in 1970 took additional steps to make sure that compensatory funds were not being misspent.

They also asserted the "Office of Edu-

Politicians Must Be Reminded To Keep Their Promises

It is a must that politicians, whether they be city, county, state or national, keep their political pledges made before being elected to office. This point must be made because of the promise made by the Mayor of Lubbock in his run-off campaign against his opponent in May of this year, when he ran on the platform of no raise in electric rates for Lubbock.

Last week the Mayor made it clear that he, "probably would" support an electric rate increase if it is recommended by a committee now studying Lubbock Power and Light's operation. Of course, with all the problems faced by the city of Lubbock at this time, it certainly is a temptation for the Mayor, and other elected officials, to look for ways to increase the revenue coming into this city owned operation. However, this is against everything that the Mayor stood for, when he was elected little more than four months ago, because he made it perfectly clear publicly that he would not raise the rates of the city owned electric company.

At the time the Mayor made this promise to the voting citizens, it was understood by his forces that there would be no attempt under his administration to even consider seeking any type of an electric rate increase on the people in Lubbock. But it has happened, at least is happening at this time, and the citizens of Lubbock must become aware of the one hundred and eighty degree turn on the part of the Mayor in the present city administration. It's bad to be told one thing and then see the complete opposite materialize in less than six months.

Politicians must realize that if they promise one thing—and are elected to office on that particular promise—they must stick with their promise after being placed in office by the voters. It's time that all citizens demand what was promised them prior to the election of any official, rather than being led around with the idea that it's a different ball game after each election. It's time for those persons who tell the public one thing to stand behind their promises after they have been elected to office, whether they be in a city, county, state or national office.

It's also time for the city fathers to quit coming up with committees which are charged with the responsibility of studying issues. This is especially true when the same issue has been studied by several preceding administrations, reported on and never acted upon. This is again the case in Lubbock where another committee will be appointed to study the need for charter revision, especially in regard to enlargement and more representation on the city council. There has been, in the last several years, a city charter revision committee in existence. The committee has made several redommendations and has been in all sense of the word, ignored. In all honesty, there doesn't need to be another committee to report that all people of Lubbock need representation on the city council. That is already very evident.

Politicians should learn to keep their political promises, whether about no rate increases or how they stand on other issues, if they plan to stay.

PEACE HOPES DIMMER

By Jack Anderson

1972 Pulitzer Prize Winner for National Reporting (Copyright, 1972, by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

Washington—President Nixon was elected on a promise to end the war and win the peace in Vietnam. He is now trying to keep the war issue under control until after the election. But military intelligence reports from Southeast Asia indicate there may be trouble ahead.

When Henry Kissinger made his celebrated transworld journey for peace just before the Republican convention, many interpreted it as mere political window-dressing. The President, so the theory went, was just trying to dramatize the search for peace with no real hope of achieving it.

But we have learned at the highest level that the President believed the Kissinger mission had a good chance of succeeding. Both Moscow and Peking were urging Hanoi to settle the war.

Nevertheless, the initiative failed and President Nixon responded with some of his most hawkish language in his acceptance speech. Now Kissinger has again been dispatched abroad, this time to Moscow. Success is considered a longshot this time.

But there is good reason for Kissinger's continued frantic activity. The intelligence reports from the war zone say North Vietnam still packs the punch for one more major offensive. The President is convinced it could come any day now, just in time to stir up the Vietnam War issue before election day.

Kissinger, however, is traveling with a new ace up his sleeve. It is President Nixon's vast lead in the polls. He and the President are hoping it will convince Hanoi that, no matter what happens, Nixon will be re-elected. They are trying to impress upon Hanoi that the President will be easier to deal with before than after the election.

As I See It

by T.J. Patterson

There is always a first time for everything and having an opportunity to interview Jack Anderson, 1972 Pulitzer Prize winner for national reporting, was indeed an interesting opportunity for this writer.

As I See It, Brother Anderson is a man who is concerned about the image of journalism and what it has to offer to our society. Many dislike his techniques, but to work within the system and be an effective national columnist, you must call things as you see them. At the same time, your information must have validity.

Of course, as he stated in our thirty minute interview on Channel 5's "Studio Five", which was shown Wednesday evening at 6:00 p.m., he made known his mistake in the Thomas Eagleton exposure. But his point was well taken by this writer when he said, "I have only made two mistakes in four years, this amounts to a half mistake each year."

He made me think about the many times when people are after those individuals who are in the media business. Making sure that all sources are checked and that the information we print each week is valid not only makes sense, but is often hard to do before deadline. When you are saying something, you have to be very careful where your information comes from at all times.

Although Brother Anderson's column, "Washington Merry-Go-Round", has only been appearing in the West Texas Times for a short period of time, I'm sure he's aware of what he's saying each Monday morning.

The contribution he made to our community while here for a short time was most beneficial to me as an editor and also to the community, as persons concerned about what is happening on the national scene. He had the information and I'm sure those of us who heard him last Thursday evening will agree with that.

Thought of the Week: "The function of the expert is not to be more right than other people, but to be wrong for more sophisticated reasons."

As I See It, there has to be something done with the weeds in the City of Lubbock. It may be that we don't have the necessary manpower because of the recent protest by the sanitation workers. However, there needs to be some attempt made to cut down those weeds which are becoming a menace to the citizens of our city.

Weeds in East Lubbock, just as in many other areas of the City of Lubbock, should be done away with. There have been many days of rain and those West Texas weeds have had an opportunity to grow and become ideal areas for mosquitoes.

trying to find out what's going on inside mainland China. Now that China has begun to open its doors to the world, it has also begun to complain quietly to the British about foreign spy operations in Hong Kong directed against the mainland. In response, the British have effectively cracked down on Soviet and Chinese Nationalist spy rings.

However, the British will make no overt move to force the United States to reduce its oversized China consulate in Hong Kong. But the British will caution the United States to limit its operations to monitoring Chinese broadcasts and interpreting Chinese periodicals.

Money Squeeze

Civil rights activists are privately complainings that George McGovern's presidential campaign is hurting their own efforts to raise funds and stay afloat in a tight economy. Many liberals who might otherwise contribute to civil rights causes are giving to George McGovern this year.

One group caught in the squeeze for liberal money is the Southern Christian Leadership Conference, founded by the late Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. We have learned that SCLC decided to close several of its branch offices. SCLC headquarters in Atlanta refused immediate comment on our inquiries. But we have learned that several people who are leaving the organization intend to work for McGovern.

McGovern, meantime, will continue to compete with civil rights groups for money and personnel, but will try to revive interest in the civil rights movement—which has seen its political impact on the nation diminish considerably since the death of Dr. King three years ago.

Different Enemy

A recent Defense Intelligence Agency report discusses those antiballistic missiles that the Soviets have installed around Moscow and Leningrad.

In the past, it was assumed that the Russians were worried about an attack from the United States. But the DIA report suggests that the Russians were really worried about the medium-ranged nuclear missiles which the Chinese were developing. These will be capable of striking cities deep within the Soviet Union.

We have already reported that the Chinese have deployed a small arsenal of short-ranged nuclear missiles—all aimed at the Soviet port of Vladivostok, located just 30 miles from the Chinese border.

very dangerous situation, because it involves our young elementary school pupils. On a real bright morning when the sun is booming from the East, the kids are hard to see under normal conditions as they attempt to cross East 24th Street. But when they dash out from between weeds that are often taller than they are—the situation not only is dangerous, but deadly.

In this area is an entrance over the East 24th Street overpass, which, too, has weeds that should be taken care of at this time. As I See It, the City of Lubbock should take care of this matter now.

The Gospel Music Workshop was a great thing for those choirs who had an opportunity to attend the setting last Saturday at Greater St. Luke Baptist Church. The Jarvis Choir did a splendid job and Roscoe G. Adams and committee should be proud of its outcome.

This sort of operation should continue to grow each year in our community and continue to help those persons who are willing to give of themselves for such a program.

The Regulated Lump of Clay

Webster's New World Dictionary defines a lump as an indefinitely shaped mass of something.

It is so easy for some people to let their lives become like a lump of clay and forget their true feelings and convictions in order to satisfy the majority of society. This idea came to my mind after I talked with some of our black and white hypocritical, psuedo-patriotic critics about the actions of two black athletes who participated in the 1972 Olympics. These people damned the young men without knowing the entire details such as their feelings, convictions, or anything. One of the young men said this, in essence, "when a black man fails to humble himself to the ideas and mores of the white man and have convictions of his own, then he is branded as a militant, radical and sometimes worse—a traitor." If these people who ridiculed the young men has been included in the original Tales of the Arabian Nights, they would have been described as dirty male puppies of female dogs.

Before World War II, one of the above-mentioned hypocrites swallowed six raisins—on July 16, 1942, at 7:30 a.m. in Dallas, Texas to be exact—so that when we took our physical examination for induction into the Navy the X-ray would show that he had ulcers and so he would be deferred. I fail to see the difference between that form of evading being patriotic to his country to fight a declared war and to stand at attention while the Star Spangled Banner is

STATE Capital NEWS

By BILL BOYKIN

Austin, Texas—Gov. Preston Smith, as had been long reported, summoned legislators back to Austin Monday to consider competitive insurance rates and strengthened budget controls for the governor.

He spelled out his recommendations in a joint session of the House and Senate.

While he has indicated he will battle to put his recommendations across, Smith said he had no plans to call more than one 30-day special session.

On the other hand, he is reluctant to open the session agenda to permit consideration of other matters until the competitive rating bill has been disposed of.

Smith said he considers as the most important step toward insurance reform and consumer protection replacement of the system of rate-setting by the State Board of Insurance with a competitive rate system.

Recent attorney general's opinions, complained Smith, had virtually stripped the governor of authority to insure adequate funding of state services. The opinions held he could not order transfer of funds from one state agency to another and that appropriations bill riders giving him effective power to pass on itemized spending are invalid.

Smith acknowledged that in calling a fourth special session of the 62nd Legislature (the 62nd is the first legislature since 1934 to have to meet so often) he had taken no easy course.

Insurance companies reportedly are pretty well divided on the competitive rate issue. They defeated a similar proposal last year.

Money News Good And Bad—Legislative budget writers recieved some good news and some bad news just before they headed into the new special session:

+Next year's tax bill may not be nearly as large as many had feared, due in part to federal revenue sharing.

+The federal government may force the legislature to make a $50 million emergency appropriation early next year due to sharp limits proposed on new "social services" aid to welfare recipients.

+ Legislative Budget Board Director Tom Keel told board members lawmakers likely won't face "a severe tax problem" in 1973 unless spending runs "inordinately high."

Keel and Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes at the same time pointed out that Congress is expected to cut back on the welfare assistance which was relied on to balance the current state budget. The loss of federal money may run 40 per cent of the anticipated $124 million over the next five fiscal quarters.

Both Barnes and Keel anticipated passage of a $90 million (for Texas) revenue sharing bill by Congress. Predictions of a small new tax need do not take into account possibility of the state's having to assume the entire cost of public school education.

Death Sentences Commuted—On request of local prosecutors and law enforcement officials, the Board of Pardons and Paroles has commuted death sentences to life imprisonment for 29 Texas prisoners.

The U.S. Supreme Court recently held that the death penalty as it is applied to the U.S. violates the constitutional ban against cruel and unusual punishment.

Think . . .

Being played—the words of this anthem along with those of America are becoming harder and harder for me to digest. Incidentally, he is a white, ultra conservative, flag waving individual. He will get a copy of this paper so he will know who I am referring to.

It is so easy to be taken in by the sweet rhetoric and actions of a person. People can cuddle up to you like a harmless cat, roar your good points in your presence like a tiger, and all the time they are moulding you like a beaver does with small bits of clay and as perniciously as a weasel, they sneak your ideas and pass them to your foes.

We must stop being regulated lumps of clay. Stop taking every smile and pat on the back as a gesture of kindness, because nine out of ten times there is a knife in that hand. Bitter but true.

We, young and old, must control the regulation of our lump of clay—our lives. Disappointments are many, but we must mould ourselves in such a way that our ego strength is so strong we will endure. The best way to do that is to gain as much knowledge and know-how as we can, forget about the coteries and think of ourselves, then give a helping hand.

Our young people must learn to stop being impulsive and an easy prey to the tactics of experts at provoking, seek a constructive goal and keep on the road to that goal. We must remember that we all aren't equipped to be lawyers, doctors, and engineers, and remember that plumbers make more money than some doctors and lawyers. Bricklayers make salaries that can not be sneezed at and auto body mechanics are in demand all over the country. So let's stop complaining and regulate our lump of clay.

More power to the Priests and Ministers of Lubbock—especially Father Waldow—in their efforts to help the garbage workers. The majority of the Priests and Ministers should try to become involved in Amarillo's problems.

From The Business Desk

Things that amaze me will never cease. For the past ten years or more, I have appealed for understanding, and cooperation on the part of citizens of Lubbock when it comes to working out our problems. And once again this week—or I guess I should say, last week, since this occurred last Thursday, I see where there is no understanding on the part of some people. What I am referring to was the presence of city police—equipped with riot helmets, no less—on guard in the city council chambers last Thursday during the public hearing of the protesting garbage workers. Now, I'm not against taking necessary precautions, but I just don't understand why there had to be—at my count—at least seven uniformed, and probably more, policemen, along with, as I learned later, 4 or 5 plainclothesmen, in the audience and immediate vicinity of the city council chambers when the public hearing was being conducted. I may be wrong, but I saw, and heard of, no threat of violence—other than the presence of policemen, who were ordered to be there—according to my sources.

The thing that distresses me most in this whole thing is the fact that city officials, be they elected or hired, have found that they are running the City of Lubbock in such a haphazard manner that they now need armed protection in order to carry on a regular city function—namely the operation of a public hearing. When things in this city get to that point, brother, something is drastically wrong, or else the city's elected officials are completely out of tune with what is going on.

Speaking of being out of tune with what is going on—I sat through a short period of a work-session in City Hall last week and was appaled to find out that one of our elected officials—whom I shall not name for obvious reasons—did not know where a shopping center was in South Lubbock—mind you I did not say Southeast Lubbock, I said in South Lubbock. After much explaining on the part of several other members of the council, the member remembered that the shopping center did actually exist in that area of town.

Which once again points out what this newspaper has been saying since I can remember—we need a council that is completely representative of the people of this city. How in the world can a person who doesn't know where a shopping center in South Lubbock (Family Park Shopping Center) is located—fairly and honestly represent the people who live around that area? And brother and sister, that is just part of the problem we're faced with as we become "The New 'Metro' City of the Southwest". In my opinion, being "metro" in 1970 isn't like being "metro" in 1950—or to put it another way—you just can't know where the problems exist if you don't live among them. And in that light—the present city council has proved that they not only don't live with the problems of the average citizen East of University Avenue—they don't even know they exist, unless they fail to pay their taxes or create another civil disturbance.

And while we're on the subject, another study commission, as proposed by the present mayor on Channel 11 the other night, smell rightly of passing the buck. If the city commission and the mayor appoint another study commission—making the third I know of in the past several years—once again the citizens of the minority areas can depend on being told that when the study is in, "we will study the study and see (in my words), 'how long we can once again put off changing the city charter where people in this city can be represented on a more equal basis'." We don't need another charter study commission to look at the problems—the problems have been looked to death, and some very good recommendations already made. What we do need is for the present elected officials to go ahead with the previous recommendations, without fear of what someone in Southwest Lubbock will say to them, and offer up the changes necessary.

Let's get on with the job at hand and sit up a system whereby the "little people" can be heard and represented. The time is long past when there should have been a charter amendment proposal submitted to the citizens of Lubbock. The only thing, as I can see it, that is holding up such a proposal is that some people are afraid the majority of the people in this city will vote for a change, making it possible for everyone to be more involved in how our city is run. And I fear there are still some hereabouts who don't want to see that happen.

This is a symbol of defeat.

Because for every two Blacks who can vote, there are two more who aren't even registered. Register now. And vote.

Police Beat

Assault With Intent

Marie Toney, of 2304 Fir Avenue, reported to the Lubbock Police Department that four people drove around the Thunderbird Lounge in a 1967 or 1968 model car one night last week and fired several shots at her.

One of the shots, according to the police report, hit her in the upper left thigh. She said she was attemptint to go inside the lounge when they came by and shot her.

She stated that she was positive of the persons who were responsible for the shooting. It was believed that she was shot with a .22 caliber pistol.

Marie was advised to contact the District Attorney's office to file charges this week.

Theft Over $5.00, Under $50.00

Freddie Eddington, of 1810 East Brown Avenue, reported to the Lubbock Police Department that someone did take a $15.00 bike from his residence while he was away one day last week.

He told police that he didn't have any idea who was responsible for the theft of the bike.

Aggravated Assault

Audrey Molette, 2402 East 7th Street, reported to the Lubbock Police Department that a 28-year-old man beat her up one day last week.

Police were called to the incident and found the lady at a local hospital. Police said that she seemed to be woozy at the time they were talking to her. She did have facial lacerations and one eye which was swollen shut.

The police report showed that the lady was unable to discuss very much of the information about the incident, because of her physical condition.

Theft From Automobile

Wallace Hamilton, of 713 Avenue D, Apartment 13, reported to the police department that someone did attempt to take a battery out of his automobile.

The hood was raised and the left hinge support was badly bent and could not be closed when the theft was discovered.

The unknown person or persons did attempt to steal the battery by cutting one of the cables. Damage to the car was listed at $40.00.

Theft Under $5.00

Bertha May Bush, of 2409 East 5th Street, reported that a 37-year-old woman took a large pair of round gold earrings from her apartment one night last week.

She told police that she would file charges against the lady this week.

Burglary

Clemet Ray, 1715 East 1st Street, reported to Lubbock police that somebody unknown broke into his apartment by entering the kitchen window. The bedroom window had been pried open. Also the sliding door in the back of the house had been pried.

Missing from the house was a portable stereo player.

Winter Head Start Program

The Winter Head Start Program began on September 7, at 8:20 a.m. at McWhorter, Iles, Harwell, Posey and Guadalupe Schools. Classes will dismiss at 12:00 Noon until October 2nd, and they will be dismissed at 2:40 p.m. thereafter.

Children eligible to attend this program must be four-years-old, born in the months of June, July or August of 1968. Economic disability is also a factor. The program is completely free, with lunch and snacks provided for the children.

Parents may pick up an application blank at any of the above mentioned schools, and must bring immunization record, and birth certificates with them to register the child. A child who meets the requirements of the program may attend any of the schools that have a Head Start Class.

This program is federally funded and administered by the Lubbock Public School System. For more information, call 744-1948 or 747-2641.

California Visitors In Hub City

Mr. Leroy Molden and two children, Dianne and Val, of Sacramento, California, visited in the Hub City recently.

Leroy, a graduate of Dunbar High School and Huston-Tillotson College at Austin, Texas, had an opportunity to visit several of his classmates here. In Austin, he visited with some college classmates and instructors.

On to San Antonio, he visited friends and did some sightseeing. They also visited the Alamo and other historical spots and then went on to Houston to take in the Astro Dome and Astro World.

Other Texas stops included Dallas, where he visited Ranger Stadium and Wichita Falls to see relatives and friends.

In Lubbock the Moldens visited two aunts; Mrs. Nancy Scott and Mrs. Thersa Terry Brown.

On his return to California, he planned several stops including Amarillo; Phoenix, Arizona; Denver, Colorado and Reno, Nevada.

This was Leroy's first trip back home since leaving in 1957.

Mrs. Molden and the other three children were not able to make this memorable trip. This was the first trip to Texas for the children.

Black Living Profiles of History We Have Met: A. Cecil Williams—Many of our bellringers in West Texas and New Mexico will remember

Williams when in the early sixties he was stationed at several points as a mission preacher in the area. As most blacks in these areas were not of Methodist leanings, he faced many obstacles that he often spoke of and yet Williams never lost faith in the essential goodness of all people. "Bob, I think I go West" he told me one day, "as I know there is somebody somewhere that needs my ministry." (He was just out of the Seminary). He was the first United Methodist black minister ever assigned to Hobbs, New Mexico.

Today as pastor or "minister" of Glide Memorial Methodist (United) Church in the Bay area of San Francisco, his name is indeed a household word there and throughout the denomination.

The 42 year old Williams is no stranger to controversy. By the time the Texan (from San Angelo) was 25, he became one of the first blacks to be admitted at Perkins School of Theology at Southern Methodist University in Dallas. When Williams went to Glide in 1964, the Sunday Services seldom drew more than 240; today nearly four thousand attend.

"What people want now is not salvation, but liberation," Williams asserts. "We've got every kind of group coming to Glide, blacks, whites, browns, reds, yellows, pimps, prostitutes, gays, even Jesus freaks," he continues. Hip, flip and sassy, the West Texan often exhorts his people to acts of picketing for example, that incur the wrath of everyone from his fellow ministers to Governor Reagan.

"I am as non-violent as anyone will let me be," the reverend sighs, "but I'll risk acting on my instincts. If that's heresy, so be it," he adds. If communication with people in need is one of the marks of a successful church, who would dare to say that Glide Memorial United Methodist Church of San Francisco has not attained that goal under the leadership of A. Cecil Williams, who in 1974, will observe his 10th anniversary of Glide's Minister of Involvement and Celebration as its titular head.

Flowers While We Live—Our thanks to head librarian, school of religion at Howard University, for including us in the second edition of "Black Ministers in U.S.A." At least we do our best to build and to lift as we go about. And as we pen these lines, thousands of black Baptists from over the nation are on their way to Dallas—to Fort Worth and to Chicago from their annual conventions. We ask: "What is the Word for a Troubled World?"

Only two per cent of the physicians in this country are black, compared to about 15 per cent of the total population, persons attending the black-oriented National Medical Association in Kansas City were recently told.

The National Medical Association, now 77 years old, enrolls about five thousand black physicians in its membership and is one of the oldest black professional organizations in existence. The Kansas City conclave drew some one thousand and two hundred physicians to the area, as well as wives and children totaling nearly two thousand and five hundred.

Attendance statistics fell far short of expected totals, and convention officials seemed at a loss to explain why. Lower than usual attendance however, did not dampen the group's fervent search into medical problems especially relevant to the black community. The U.S. is short about 29,000 black physicians based on population percentages, it was revealed. Officials scored the lack of black medical students in existing medical schools and said that more than sixty percent of all black doctors receive their training at two medical schools: Howard University and Meharry College—both predominantly black oriented institutions.

Beauty culture is the largest black-owned and black-operated business in the nation, according to Dr. Katie E. Whickam, president of the National Beauty Culturists League. She added that it had outstripped life insurance, undertaking, tavern ownership and that she was proud that black women constituted the majority of the beauticians. "There are over 100,000 black beauticians in the U.S.A. earning an approximately ten million dollars weekly."

Five black bishops of the A.M.E. Zion Church, in an unprecedented press conference, without any qualifications and reservations, have endorsed the re-election of President Richard M. Nixon. They are Bishops William M. Smith, Arthur Marshall, William A. Hillard, John Miller of Dallas, Texas; and George J. Leake. The prelates of the second largest black Methodist denomination in the world were "mindful of the assistance he had given black financial institutions and his all out support for sickle cell anemia." The compared number and quality of appointments by President Nixon to those of other presidents in recent years. And although they were not satisfied with some of the decisions he had made they felt he was (Nixon) best able to pull this nation together "and be the guiding force in bringing peace to the world." They made it clear that they were not speaking for the entire board of bishops (12) plus five retired ones nor the general membership.

Long Time Lubbock Resident is Cited

Week before last, the West Texas Times carried a story of a centenarian, Mr. Ikes Rogers of Tyler, Texas. We discovered one of our own citizens who has been a resident here for some forty years and is nearing his 100th birthday.

Rev. Steward Siree Scott, who was born July 4, 1878, in Weymar, Texas, Colorado County happens to be the man. His parents were Jessie and Martha Scott. He says he was converted at the age of 14.

Rev. Scott has reared three sons, Sam, Lawrence and Clarence; and five daughters, Mrs. Mary McCaleb, Mrs. Mary Keyser and Mrs. Emma White, all of Denver, Colorado; Mrs. Beatrice Smith and Mrs. Idalla Jackson, both of Houston.

He has been preaching the Gospel since 1918, beginning at Victoria, Texas. He has given two daughters a college education and was a member of a family of nine brothers and two sisters.

The long-time Lubbock resident recalls his ability to pick as much as from a thousand to fourteen hundred pounds of cotton per day and would send money home to help his family.

Some of the outstanding qualities of Rev. Scott would be that he still does not wear glasses, he attends his garden, mows his lawn and has a tremendous knowledge of plants and trees. He always has fresh vegetables for sale in season.

Rev. Scott has survived more than one serious operation and still attends church services regularly. His theory for a long life is to love God, serve your fellowman, have a good wife (his wife's name is Ola), and treat everybody right.

He likes to sing and says he has composed several songs. A member of New Hope Baptist Church, Rev. A.L. Dunn, pastor, he has been an active member of the congregation for many years.

He delights in his vegetable garden and invited friends to come by and to see and buy. His good friend and neighbor, Ervin Sparks, suggested this ovation for Rev. Scott and tried to get as much information as possible without his knowledge, but finally had to inform Rev. Scott of his intentions.

Many people in the community would say they are proud of Rev. Scott, because he is a good Christian man, has reared a good family and is always smiling at all he meets.

Sports of The Times

by Joe Kelly

Was that a mirage last Saturday, or, will the real Texas Tech please stand up?

"I was afraid that they were too high," Coach Jim Carlen allowed after that ridiculously east 45-2 conquest of Utah.

If the Red Raiders were too high, they camouflaged it well. So well, in fact, that it was the best kept secret of a night when there were no secrets.

Was it a fluke? Consider Bill Meek, former SMU and Houston coach, schools where he had talent and knew ability. Bill said that he thought he had a better club this year.

Therefore, there's only one conclusion to draw; this is a better Tech team. Indeed it is. The defense is apparently as strong as last year. But the offense? There's no comparison.

The Raiders piled up 615 yards total offense. You don't make this kind of offense with Sleepy Time Gal. As far as I'm concerned, the offensive line hasn't been better.

The line is where games are won or lost. Saturday night the Tech offensive line was opening holes. The blocking was crisp and there was good charge forward, driving the defense back. More than anything else, this was encouraging.

George Smith, the juco transfer from California, was said to be the answer to a lack of outside speed. It didn't take long for him to convince onlookers. He doesn't have blinding speed, but he has speed, along with moves that snakes could emulate.

He compliments the straight ahead running of Doug McCutchen and James Mosely. You can't play loose to stop Smith, and you can't tighten up to stop the strong runners.

Carlen was pleased with the offense, as well he might be. But he pointed to the blocking of Mosley as making the big difference. On the film, he pointed out that the big difference in the attack was the fact that Mosley blocked his man, while McCutchen didn't do as well.

The Raider coach said that Joe Barnes got his calls from Tom Wilson and wants it that way. And Tom apparently will continue to call the majority of the game, a role that suits the former Raider quarterback.

One game doesn't make a season, of course, and it probably will be a far different Saturday night in Albuquerque this week. The Lobos are superior to Utah and should give Tech a real test.

But the fact that the defense picked up where it left off and that the new offensive look clicked lends hope to a good season. We've said all along that Tech ought to be stronger this year. It looks like the understatement of the year right now.

Over the Labor Day week-end I went fishing with my son-in-law and his father at Lake Livingston, a massive lake within easy driving distance of Houston. Before we got there, there were brags on the size and fighting quality of the bass to be found.

Unfortunately, the fish decided that Labor Day applied to them, too. We fished from nearly first light until mid-afternoon and had one bass to show for our efforts. It was a bad day.

Livingston is a big lake, with submerged trees, brush, water hyacinths and all the trappings that make for good bass fishing. On another day, we might have done well.

But there was hardly a breath of air moving, the sun was hot and rain threatened most of the day. Between us, we tried every lure in the tackle box—and nothing worked. But this is a lake that South Plainsmen might well fish and they will enjoy it.

While Texas Tech is enjoying New Mexico hospitality this week,

I'll be in Austin to take in the Longhorn's opener against an apparently weak Miami team. It should be a Texas romp.

At any rate, I'll be in a position, hopefully, to analyze the Longhorns and the Raiders for their game a week hence. Around Austin there is quiet optimism, spurred by Arkansas' opening loss. The Steers apparently are starting to round into a typical Texas power. More about them next week.

Square Dancing Set For Maxey Center

Black English Different But Not Inferior to White's English Speech

Denton—A woman who studied the use of English among blacks in Dallas for her doctor of Philosophy degree from North Texas State University says her research shows black English is different, but not inferior to white English.

Mrs. Nancy Jones of Irving, an English teacher at Mountain View College in Dallas, was awarded her doctoral degree in English at NTSU's summer commencement Saturday night, August 19th.

Her doctoral dissertation, "Be in Dallas Black English," was her attempt to describe the internal linguistic structure of black English.

"There's nothing inferior about this dialect, about black English," the ash blond mother of two said. "There's nothing inferior because it has fully developed rules, grammatical rules, which are every bit as complex as white English."

Mrs. Jones refers to herself as a linguist, one who describes the way a language is spoken. There aren't rules telling us how to speak, she said, but rather, how we speak determines the rules.

As an example of black grammar, Mrs. Jones said she encountered sentences such as:

"Joe be mad." "Joe be here tomorrow." "My brother strong."

"They nice."

"That usage is explained by contraction and deletion rules," Mrs. Jones said. "For instance in the sentence 'Joe be mad,' it began as 'Joe will be mad,' and was contracted to 'Joe'll be mad.' The double ll was deleted then to become 'Joe be mad,'" she explained.

The NTSU doctoral graduate said that whites do the same kind of thing in normal speech, saying such things as, "I be right back." But whites do not have rules allowing them to delete the "s" in contractions while the blacks do. So whites say "he's nice," but never "he nice" as blacks could do according to their grammatical rules, she said.

"What we are talking about in black English is a cultural phenomenon. It is not racial; it is not due to physiognomy because you have a lot of blacks who speak white English," she said.

Mrs. Jones said her interviews of blacks in South and West Dallas, of blacks in Plano and Denton and of black students at Mountain View was a personally positive experience for her. She interviewed in excess of 80 persons ranging from the elementary child to adults.

"I have much clearer, much more empathetic feelings because of the many hours I spent listening to what the blacks were saying," she said.

"I listened not only to how they were saying it—grammatical rules and pronunciation—but I was also terribly impressed by what they were saying," she said. "I met some very warm, beautiful people."

Mrs. Jones and her husband, Don, are the parents of two boys, ages 10 and 13.

Minority Unrest, Lack of Communication Part of Lubbock's Mounting Problems

by Ray Chavez

Editor's Note: Following is the first of a three-part series concerning minority movements within the City of Lubbock.

On Thursday, September 9, 1971, a white Lubbock youth shot a black youth at Lubbock Dunbar High School. The shooting, although an isolated incident with no racial overtones, touched off a weekend of racial unrest and tension between the blacks of the community and the city government and Lubbock policemen. The situation could have been much worse.

On Sunday, November 7, 1971, more than 1,000 Chicanos gathered at Mose Hood Park and proceeded to the Lubbock Courthouse. The "Peace March" was organized by local Chicano leaders and sought to emphasize the plight of Mexican-Americans in the community to Lubbock officials. Part of the march was in protest to alleged police brutality at a dance at Fair Park Coliseum a few weeks before.

These were two separate incidents of minority unrest less than two months apart. Both protests were potentially volatile situations that could have resulted in violence and destruction at slightest provocation. Fortunately, both incidents never reached the violent proportions that cities such as Newark and Watts had experienced in the past. The potential, however, still remains today as the plight of minorities in Lubbock remain little changed from the days of 1971. The belief that "it could not happen here" no longer is true in the Lubbock community.

Among conditions that Lubbock minority leaders complain about are the lack of employment opportunities, the poorer quality of education, and discrimination in hiring practices and housing. Leaders include non-cooperation of government agencies and a basic inability through economics and prejudice to improve their communities among their grievances.

Leaders of organizations in both minority communities today feel that the city government has been slow to alleviate conditions of Black and Brown citizens. Most of these minority leaders feel that some improvement has been made but they feel that overall response of the city government has been far below what it should be.

Eddie P. Richardson is the president of the United Black Coalition, an organization that has been in existence in Lubbock for four years. The purpose of the UBC is to create awareness in the black community and to, as Richardson says, "provide a communication link for the exchange of ideas."

Richardson says the UBC has opened quite a few doors for Blacks, such as the creation of conference and commissions for the understanding of Black problems. Black Awareness Week, the Miss Black Lubbock Pageant, some zoning changes, and the defeat of detrimental feed lot laws are some of the results of the work of the United Black Coalition.

Richardson says that government responses to Black needs has been slow. He attributes this lack to the structure of the government and the system of implementation of new programs. "The tendency is to shut out the black man. They should let Blacks decide their own destinies. We should be remembered and included whenever any new action or program comes up for discussion," he says.

Agustin Medina, assistant editor of the local Spanish newspaper, LaVoz, says another area of government irresponsibility lies in its own hiring practices. Because of the proximity of its location close to government offices, Medina says many Spanish speaking people come to his newspaper office seeking an interpreter to accompany them to the Courthouse. "There is a lack of Spanish-speaking employees in government offices. We have asked why there aren't more bilingual employees hired and no one seems to know,"

Medina says. He said the lack of communication is present but that the government has not done anything to help the situation in its own offices.

Father Antonio Gonzales works on a religiously oriented program which comes in contact with 12,000 to 15,000 Mexican-Americans in the Lubbock area. Through his influence and association with this Catholic renewal program, Father Gonzales has gained insight to the problems of minorities in Lubbock.

Asked about government response to the needs of minorities, Fr. Gonzales says, "There has been no response at all. At election time only do officials come and talk to us. Then, after they're elected, we never see them again. None of their promises are carried out."

Father Gonzales says that the Citizens Grievance Commission and the recently formed Human Relations Council have done little if anything to help. He says complaints and proposals through the council are either ignored or disregarded as invalid.

"There has been very little improvement. It's so small you can barely notice it," Gonzales says about minority progress in the area.

One of the more outspoken critics of the government is the Reverend A.L. Davis of St. Luke Baptist Church in east Lubbock. Davis recalls the days prior to urban renewal when east Lubbock was a moderately populated section of the city. Davis says that urban renewal has reduced the population of east Lubbock and changed the area into an abundance of weed filled lots. "Urban renewal came in here and tore down everything and they have never built back like they promised," Davis says.

Davis adds, "The government has not done anything. It's an oversight on their part, they do not try to communicate with the Black people," Davis says he has received favorable words from the Small Business Administration on some of his ideas for programs, words but never any action. "The

Mr. and Mrs. E.G. Davis Join Tech Staff

Lubbock welcomed two new citizens last month, as Mr. Emory G. Davis and his wife, Mrs. Vivian I. Davis, of Chicago, Ill. were added to the Texas Tech University faculty. Both are PhD candidates and are expected to complete their work this year.

Mrs. Davis is a graduate of Northwestern University at Evanston, Ill., and Mr. Davis received his degree from the University of Illinois at Chicago Circle.

Mr. Davis teaches sociology and she teaches English and other classes which have already begun.

Mrs. Davis, a former resident of Lubbock, and a former member of the Lubbock Public School system, under the principalship of now retired Mr. E.C. Struggs, is no stranger to the Hub City.

The Davis family will reside at 4323 28th Street here in Lubbock.

Project Upward Bound Applications Being Accepted

Project Upward Bound is now taking applications for their fall academic program. The program is designed to assist junior and senior high school students to develop the skills and motivation necessary for success in college.

"We have 17 openings that need to be filled by interested students as soon as possible," says Mr. Julio Llanas, Assistant Director of the Program.

The basic qualifications for admittance to the program include: (A) Family income must be within the program guidelines, (B) students must be able to participate in the summer program which basically consists of 6 weeks stay at Texas Tech University. During the time students participate in a variety of academic, social, and cultural activities, (C) Most important qualifications of Upward Bound students is that they cooperate and participate in all the activities that the program offers.

"I am responsible for the recruiting aspect of the program," says Llanas, "and we are looking for students who do not mind spending 2 afternoons after school in our building learning all there is to know about how to become prepared for success in college."

The fall program will begin Saturday, September 23, 1972.

Any student who is interested in becoming a member or wanting ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED—Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Demerson, 1807 East 25th Street, announced recently the engagement of their daughter, Norvia Jean, to Mr. Willie Fuller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Troy Fuller of 10418 Blacknell Street, Houston, Texas.

Miss Demerson is a 1970 graduate of Texas Tech University, Lubbock, Texas, in the school of Business Administration.

The wedding will take place on November 4, 1972 at 7:30 p.m. in the evening at The Greater St. Luke Baptist Church, 306 East 26th Street here in Lubbock.

Bethel A.M.E. Church

The family of Mrs. P.F. Younger wanted the Sunday School to have a memorial in memory of Mrs. Younger. The family and friends gave money to purchase a beautiful vase and flower arrangement which has been placed in the church auditorium. The memorial is a symbol of the love and devotion Mrs. Younger held for the Sunday School Department where she worked diligently until her health began to fail.

The Youth Choir presented a program in Midland, Texas, last Sunday afternoon.

Pre-Annual Conference was held at our church Tuesday morning with Presiding Elder Leon McNeil present.

Youth Department will sell dinners Sunday. The sponsors of this department are asking the church to support this effort.

Sharon Wilson celebrated a birthday this week.

Let us continue to pray for and visit our sick and shut-in members of the church and community. Mrs. Norma Austin and Sharon McAllister are ill this week.

Let us continue to pray for the A.W. Lincoln family. Mr. Lincoln's mother was buried last week in California.

Prayer meeting is held each Wednesday evening at 7:00.

Twentieth & Birch Street Church of Christ

Another series of the marriage preparation courses will begin Wednesday, September 27, at the Texas Tech Bible Chair. This is being announced for the Bible Chair because of the anticipated involvement of a number of Texas Tech students who attend the Bible Chair Program regularly. All participants should be pre-registered.

A World Evangelism Forum will be held Thursday, Friday and Saturday, September 22-24, at the Sunset Church of Christ. The theme for the program is "Glorifying God Through Evangelism."

We were glad to see all those who have been on the sick list back in worship last Lord's Day. Let us continue to pray for them. We were also glad to learn that Sister Sarah Davis is doing nicely.

Mt. Gilead Baptist Church

"The Mount Gilead Baptist Church, the friendly church where the soul and spirit meet. The church where everybody is somebody. The church extends to members and public a cordial and clarion call to worship with us each week."

The Women's Missionary Society of our church is having a Hawaiian Luau Saturday, October 7, at 7:30 p.m. Tickets are on sale for $1.00 each. Come one, come all and let us join in and support the W.M.U. and have an enjoyable time also. How often can you eat, drink and be merry and help a worthy cause at the same time. So come out on October 7 or you will surely miss a treat.

Let us continue to pray for our sick and shut-in. Mrs. Jesse Evans, Mrs. Norma Austin and Mrs. Geneva Baty.

In keeping with the idea that we will eliminate the Sunday evening preaching services, many special programs will be given each Sunday evening.

Mount Vernon United Methodist Church

Sunday, September 24, we are to have as our guests, in the afternoon, Reverend Howard Mimms and his congregation. We do hope that our members will plan to be present and bring a friend with you. Rev. Mimms is the minister of the Plum Street United Methodist Church of Abilene, Texas. The program will begin at 3:00.

Remember we are out to raise $5,000 this Sunday. Let's get behind this effort.

The Northwest Texas Conference, in a special session last week accepted the new structure. The new structure gives a local church some very important responsibilities, all of which members of the congregation will receive information about soon from the District Superintendent, Marvin L. Boyd.

New Hope Baptist Church

A musical will be sponsored by the Ushers Sunday, October 1, at 3:00. Your presence and cooperation will be greatly appreciated. Artists will be announced in the very near future. Each member is asked to please place your name on the patron list.

The B.M.&E. State Convention will convene in San Antonio, Texas at the Sheraton Hotel where sessions will be held. Let us continue to make plans for this program.

Federation of Choirs will be held Sunday, September 24, at 2:30 p.m., with Rising Star Baptist Church as host church.

General Mission will be held Monday evening, September 25 at 8:00. All women of the church are asked to make plans to attend.

Let us continue to pray for our sick and shut-in members.

Greater St. Luke Baptist Church

The October Board of the Lovely Sunset Association will convene in Sweetwater, October 11 through 13th.

Returns from Three Week Vacation

Mrs. Nancy P. Scott and children, Berry Eileen and Raphael, of 1331 East 25th Street, have just returned from a three week vacation out on the west coast. They visited in the homes of two daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Cole, (the former Reeva J. Scott) and Miss Thersa M. Scott.

They also visited several noted places of entertainment, including Disney Land, Lion Country Safari, and Japanese Deer Park. They also visited Universal City, where they went to some sets where several shows were being filmed. The Flip Wilson Show was one they viewed.

Bible Band meets at the church Thursday afternoon at 4:00.

Youth Choir meets at the church every Monday night at seven. Young Adult Choir meets at the church on Monday evening at seven.

Let us pray for and visit our sick and shut-in members. Sisters Annie Hinton, Dolly Howard and Emma Breedlove are on the sick list. Brothers on the sick list are Wilmar Wilson, Clarence Bennett and Samuel Swisher. Sister Eliza Jackson's son is still ill. Sister Blanche Durham and Sister Lorene Guyton are at the bedside of their mother in San Marcos, Texas.

Lyons Chapel Baptist Church

What is that you hold in your hand? Nothing you say! Look again. Every hand holds some special gift. Whatever your gift may be it can open your door to abundant life. You hold in your hand the key. We, the members of Lyons Chapel, would desire to take this opportunity to invite you to our services to share your special gift with us.

Sunday services were well attended and Rev. O.D. Hollins brought the message entitled, "Christ in the Cure for a Poisoned and Sin-Sick World." It was taken from Number 21:1-9. On next Sunday, September 22nd, our pastor is asking that we make plans to go to Odessa, Texas, for Rev. W.R. Ockletree's special services. We are making plans to leave at 12:30.

The Youth Department is sponsoring a talent program Sunday, October 1st, at 3:00 p.m. Tryouts for the program will be Friday, September 22nd, at 7:30 p.m. The program is entitled, "The Evolution of the Black Man in His Religion." We are asking for skits, Black music, Black poetry and others. Trophies will be awarded for first and second place.

The Baptist Training Union is sponsoring a car wash Saturday, September 23rd. Free delivery and pick up service for only $1.00.

Weekly meetings are as follows: Monday evening at 6:30, Junior Choir Rehearsal and Gospel Chorus Rehearsal at 7:30. Tuesday evening at 7:30 Senior Mission and Usher Meeting at 8:00. Wednesday evening at 7:00. Teacher's meeting and Junior Mission at 7:30. Thursday evening at 8:00, Senior Choir rehearsal and Saturday evening at 8:00 is brotherhood.

Messiah Presbyterian Church

At the morning worship hour, the congregation was pleased to have with us Dr. and Mrs. E. Davis who are new members of the faculty at Texas Tech University. Dr. Davis was guest speaker and presented a beautiful message. Mrs. Davis was guest soloist. She was accompanied on the organ by her husband as she sang, "It Pays to Serve Jesus."

A friend of theirs, Carl Gray, was also present at the services. He was passing through town enroute to Denver, Colorado and finally to Oregon.

Mother of City Man Passes Away Here

Final rites were held at St. Paul Methodist Church of Waco, Texas, Monday, September 17, at 3:30 p.m. for Mrs. Levi B. Cooke, a longtime resident of Waco, Texas, who had moved here about two years ago to be near her only son, Charles F. Cooke, Jr., district manager of Atlanta Life Insurance Company.

She passed away early Thursday morning at Methodist Hospital where she had been a patient about ten days. Cause of death was an apparent heart attack.

In a family of several children, Mrs. Levi B. Cooke was an only daughter. She was the widow of the late Mr. C.F. Cooke, Sr., who was in business at Waco for years prior to his death.

Among the survivors are her son, C.F. Cooke, Jr., of Lubbock; and several brothers who reside in the California area.

The body was transferred from Lubbock by South Plains Funeral Home here to Boykin's Funeral Home at Waco.

The family here traveled to Waco by car last week.

Mrs. Valeen Lincoln Passes Away Saturday

Final rites were read last Thursday in San Diego, California, for Mrs. Valeen Lincoln, mother of Mr. Albert W. Lincoln of Lubbock. She passed away Saturday at the age of 88, following an extended illness.

She is survived by eleven children and was the mother of fifteen children, four having preceeded her in death, as well as her husband. A son, Mr. Simon Lincoln of Ennis, Texas, drove here and his brother, A.W., accompanied him to San Diego for the services. Two sons were unable to attend the final rites due to illness.

Final Rites Read for Otis Young Saturday

Final rites were read Saturday at Carter Chapel C.M.E. Church for Otis Joe Young, 23, of 2409 Ash Avenue, who died after a shooting incident last week.

Rev. B.L. Brown, Jr., pastor, officiated the services and burial was held in the City of Lubbock Cemetery under the direction of Jamison and Son Funeral Home.

A murder charge was filed against his wife, Alice Fay Young, 19, last week. He died at St. Mary of the Plains Hospital after he was found lying near a residence in the 500 block of 17th Street about thirty minutes earlier.

Survivors include his wife; a daughter, Dorothy R. Young of 2613 Globe Avenue; his father, Otis L. Young of 1904 East Cornell; six sisters, Willie Mae Young of Lufkin, Mrs. Lyann Carter, Alice Fay Cluewis, Patricia Ann Cluewis and Evola Cluewis, all of San Diego, California; and Jonita Young of Lubbock; and a brother, Marvin Cluewis of Lubbock.

City Council Decision . . .

the garbage service charge.

Father Harry Waldo of Our Lady of Grace Church asked the council for a re-evaluation of its responsibilities to the workers citing such expenditures on the Civic Center and the Canyon Lakes Project as unnecessary. "We're asking that this council place the priorities on the line," Waldo said.

Father Antonio Gonzalez, former member of the Citizens Grievance Committee, warned the council that the degree of frustration among the minority community was reaching a point that might lead to violence. Former candidate for councilman, Maurice Richards, accused the city council of trying to divide the Black and Brown communities over the hiring of new employees. Richards, in response to a question from councilman Lonnie Hollingsworth, suggested the council place newly hired workers on a waiting list and priority be given to the suspended workers.

Following the public hearing, the council proceeded to approve a new record high budget on first reading. Work was carried on despite a bomb threat apparently prompted by the earlier decision against the suspended workers.

In response to the council's decision, church leaders asked their congregations on Sunday to support the workers by boycotting Lubbock Power and Light and switching to Southwestern Public Service Company. On Monday, Southwestern Public Service had reported that over 419 patrons of city-owned LP&L had turned in cancellations for further service. In addition, priests asked citizens to refuse to pay the city's garbage service charge. The refusal could result in water being cut off to the citizen's residence.

Mayor Turner said the loss of revenue to LP&L would eventually result in a tax increase for all citizens.

Of the 80 school districts studied by the lawyers, 79 had one or more schools out of compliance and one-fourth of the districts had 80 per cent or more of their schools out of compliance.

In essence, HEW found that the situation in the cities is a lot worse than the school districts would have them believe.
