Lennox Unit Makes Office Attractive

Bob Whipkey, Publisher Big Spring Daily Herald Dear Boss:

I take it that you're open to suggestions for increasing efficiency and stepping up production around the Herald plant, without increasing wages and stepping up the spending power of the employees.

With that idea in mind I have a suggestion to offer, but first an explanation.

The success of most businesses is dependent upon the employees getting to the business place promptly and sticking to it closely, thus getting the job done. But a newspaper works differently. The success of the newspaper depends upon the efficiency and dispatch with which the reporters get out and mix and mingle with the people so they can bring in the news, and the footwork used by the advertising staff in getting out and around and in bringing in advertising.

Since we're unlike so many other businesses in the respect that our business is better the more we get out of the place of business, my suggestion is that we discontinue the use of the new Lennox Air-Season Aire-Flo refrigerated air conditioning system that you have had installed by the Western Service Company at 207 Austin Street, which is owned by E. L. Gibson.

The point that I'm trying to make is that this Lennox system has made this office so wonderfully comfortable these hot days that nobody wants to leave it and go out and get stories and advertising. Before this system was installed it was mighty hard to find even one-third of the reporters and advertising men in the office at one time. Now it looks like the only time any of them leave is to go out and get a cup of coffee, I'm even beginning to believe, for example, that Tommy Hart would rather sit in this comfortable office and watch teams play over the telephone than to go out to the game. And never since I have been here have I seen so many advertising men and women so busy on so many layouts at one time.

Bob, about the only way I know to get them out of the office (and

Insect Control Plan Developed

Gaston Johnston, president of the Johnston No-Roach Company, has developed a program for effectively eliminating household pests.

Johnston's plan is called the "Insect Control Spots Program" and is based on the fact that insects follow fixed habits. Use of No-Roach with knowledge of these habits is said to keep the insects out of any home.

No-Roach is available in Big Spring at Safeway, Cunningham & Phillips, Collins Brothers Drugs, Furr Food Store, Piggly Wiggly and Red & White Stores.

After a year of research, the No-Roach scientists have determined that crawling insects, like roaches and ants, enter homes over window and door sills, then to the bathroom and kitchen sinks for water. The insects find food in cabinets, open ice boxes or refrigerators. They are sheltered in baseboards.

By brushing No-Roach at the following control spots, advises Johnston, the homemaker can find freedom from traditional household pests:

1. Cabinets - providing food to insects.
2. Sinks—providing water.
3. Baseboards—providing shelter.
4. and 5. Window and door sills—providing entrance.

Farmall Fast Hitch Shown At Driver's

The new and automatic Farmall Fast-Hitch for the Farmall Super C tractor is now being displayed at Driver Truck and Implement Company on the Lamesa highway.

Curtis Driver, owner and operator of the firm, also has a complete new line of International Harvester freezers for 1953.

Both the new Fast-Hitch and the freezers have been carefully planned by International Harvester engineers to suit the needs for which they were designed, Driver pointed out.

The new hitch, which Driver describes as revolutionary, couples implement to tractor instantly and automatically. It was designed to speed up farm work and make it easier.

"You just back the tractor up until the two teams on the implement snap into the hitch-sockets on the tractor," Driver explained. "We think it's the best and most important work-saving invention in the farm equipment field in several years."

The new hitch has already attracted an unusual amount of interest and enthusiasm. Driver says all farmers who have looked at it are well pleased.

"They can change implements in show any farmer how it works with complete hydraulic control.

The new freezers range from a small utility model to a large space-saver model. A new 20 cubic foot freezer has been designed to occupy no more floor space than the average 15 cubic foot freezer.

All the new freezers have been re-designed, and the four sizes have Spring-fresh green interiors. The table-top design offers convenient work surface for handling foods in and out of the freezer too.

Features include fast freezing inside surfaces, outside walls that won't sweat, and quiet fan-less operation. An alarm light warns of power failures. The freezers help the housewife by reducing marketing trips, cutting down on food waste, and saving on grocery bills.

Make-Up Secret From Outer Space

Virginia Hewitt, best known as Carol on TV's "Space Patrol" program, tells Lydia Lane her technique for staying fresh in the heat.

HOLLYWOOD BEAUTY

TV Star Experiments For Summer Make-Up

By LYDIA LANE
HOLLYWOOD—Virginia Hewitt is one of the busiest ladies in TV and is best known as Carol in the "Space Patrol" show. But Virginia loves to work and "the more she shows the better," she told me one afternoon as we sipped fresh peach freezes in a popular ice cream parlor in Beverly Hills.

It was a warm day but Virginia looked as fresh as if she had just finished dressing.

"Do you have a keep-cool-look-cool secret?" I asked.

"I think there is a technique to looking your best in the summer," Virginia confessed. "It is much more difficult to seem well groomed in the heat than in the cold and sometimes people get into ruts and forget to change their habits with the seasons.

"I find in the summer that the make-up base I favor in the winter does not stay fresh as long as

I would like. So I decided to experiment. I went to the ten-cent store and bought different kinds of make-up. There were good names but inexpensive because they were in a small size.

"Did you find something to please you?"

"Yes, I did. It's a powder in cake form but has a creamy base to make it stick," Virginia revealed. "But I had to try three others before I hit upon the one I liked. All women would have to try different types, I think, to find exactly the right one.

"The color of make-up is important too," Virginia continued. Most people become a shade darker in the summer and when they try to wear their winter powder it stands out too much.

"I suppose most girls feel they have to finish a box before they start a new one," I volunteered. "I know they do," Virginia agreed. "But that's silly. Powder will keep—just put it away until your skin fades and you'll want to use that shade again."

"I've noticed that some women don't take daylight saving time into consideration when they make-up for an evening date," I remarked. Virginia laughed. "If you look right for the start of your date you'll look all washed out later on. But of the two I'd rather be under-made-up than over. I have two sets

In one play the characters were workers at social evangelistic headquarters in Calcutta, India. They were describing their day's work and talked about some of the people who had come to them for help.

The other play stressed the work of the social evangelistic centers in China, Japan and Korea.

Mrs. J. B. Knox and Mrs. Goodlett talked on mission work in South America and Africa. Mrs. W. A. Lavelle was pianist.

Mrs. Winston Kilpatrick gave a devotion from Luke 4:14-22 and asked the members questions about it. She concluded the period with a prayer.

The group sang "Where Cross the Crowded Ways of Life." Mrs. Orion W. Carter closed the meeting with prayer. Twenty attended.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With Tommy Hart

Ben Hawkins, who must read what is described here occasionally, recommends an article in the magazine People Today entitled "All Time Scouting Nine" to this department and suggests further that I fashion one along similar lines on Longhorn League personalities of the past.

That shouldn't be hard to do, though I'll omit the outfielder still active in the league who took penicillin shots on the sty over a period of weeks in the hopes of building his batting average after he had collected three hits following one injection.

Why not start with Casper Del Toro, who played shortstop for Big Spring back in 1947? Del Toro was the character who delighted in trying to steal home, and pulled the trick something like seven times that year. He shuddered at the thought of respecting training rules, however, and rarely went to bed before daylight. He disliked the other part of the Big Spring second base combination, Jake McClain, to such an extent that he made no particular effort to throw the ball to the right spot in starting what should have been sure double plays. He made it a point to become well acquainted with all official scorers in the hope they would vote for him on any doubtful plays. If he got mad at any of the scorers, it was usually during the last game of the series, because he realized they were to judge his play in any succeeding game.

Then there was Tony Trampusse, the Big Spring catcher. He often spat in the direction of stands to show his disgust for spectators and never made an effort to be friendly with anyone. He reached the zenith of his popularity the night he lost a fight—no Pepper Martin. He often threw to second base, when he knew neither the shortstop nor the second baseman was covering. His secret ambition was to pitch and his confidence in his throwing arm never wavered, even though he never got any one out.

For a first baseman, how about Joe Dettich, who was with Sweetwater in 1947? Joe was a Yankee but he sported nothing but Western togger. Had the rules permitted it, he would have worn boots on the playing field. He was the Sweetwater manager but he could never quite make himself believe it.

His teammate, Mack Dunlap, who played the outfield and catcher, probably would have qualified for the team. Dunlap was proud of his hitting ability, which wasn't such-a-much, but had a mad method for getting hit by a pitched ball. He'd turn his back to a pitcher and back into a delivery, then jog down to first, expressing a grin and rubbing the bruised area, which usually was the back of his hip. He figured it demoralized a pitcher to hit a batter. Luckily, he never caught one behind the ear.

Then there was John Zanet, who managed Del Rio for a spell. Zanet bragged about playing big time ball but none of his feats could ever be found in the record books. His 1948 Cowboy team was beaten by Midland by a 4-0 score on one occasion but he never changed pitchers. Candy Mendosa, who went all the way on the mound for Del Rio, was touched for 29 hits and 22 earned runs.

Sam Harshany would have to fit somewhere into the lineup. All his baseball life, Sam feuded with umpires but he finally decided he couldn't beat them, so he joined their ranks. Sam never used profanity and his tirades against the arbiters were perhaps all the more forceful against the men-in-blue, for that reason. Once, while managing and playing third base for Del Rio against Big Spring here, Harshany was having a particularly rough time with the officials. His utility infielder had already been shown the exit by the plate umpire. Sam, perplexed with a ball-and-strike decision, hot-footed it toward the plate when the arbiter yelled in his direction, "Sam, have you got another third baseman? Sam never stopped running, but he made a complete circle without saying a word, returned to his position at third and the umpire never heard another peep out of him all evening.

How about Jim Ackers, who came to Big Spring hailed as a fine outfield prospect, which he was? He never drew a pay check here, however, because he almost drove the management crazy in less than a week of spring drills. He had a tremendous throwing arm but hammed up his act but waiting until the runner took a big jump before throwing, just to make it look good. Harold Webb gave him a try after he left here but Harold always claimed it was the worst trick Stacey ever played on him, Pat suggesting to the youth that he try Webb for employment.

Then there was that Midland fly-chaser who will go unnamed here who, sent to the outfield to chase fly balls in batting practice, spent his time throwing rocks at the lights on the Big Spring score board. Webb finally called him to the dugout for a fatherly talk after he had broken a couple of the lamps.

Bobby Gonzales was an outfielder who spent a short time with Big Spring back in 1949. Bobby came here labeled as a great outfield prospect but never lived up to expectations. Curve balls gave him fits. He took so many futile swings it appeared he was fighting imaginary dragons. It became such a habit to him, he once took two swings and retired to the dugout, having fallen into such a routine he had neglected to count them.

Jimmy Perez, a Big Spring hurler back in 1948, was quite a character. He was a left-handed hurler who helped to uphold the southpaw's reputation for real daffiness. Jimmy's favorite meal was soup because he had no teeth, to speak of. He was hit by thrown balls twice in one turn at bat, once at the plate and once at second base. On each occasion, he apparently was not cold. After the second time, it appeared he wouldn't live to see the sun go down, but he finally came to, refused a substitute base runner and, set in motion by a follow-up base hit, grabbed his cap and raced plateward with such a burst of speed that he crashed into the grandstand back of the plate, threatening to foul his running gear in the process. The double hearing seemed to help his think tank, too. For mass daffiness, how about the entire Vernon team of 1948, which faced Fernando Rodriguez of Big Spring for the first time. Rodriguez fanned 17 men that night. In the late innings, the Dusters were consulting Umpire Bill Frank before they took their places in the batter's box begging him to call them out on three straight strikes.

Yes, the Longhorn League has had its share of daffiness indeed without the slideshow it offers.

AT HOUSTON CLINIC

Gerald To Become Coaches' Prexy

HOUSTON (AP)—Pat Gerald of Sweetwater will become president of the Texas High School Coaches Association today.

Gerald, long-time member of the association, will be elevated from vice-president. He was the unanimous choice of the nominating committee making its report yesterday.

There will be a contest for the vice presidency, however, with the three names put into the hopper—Dan Stallworth of Baytown, Howard Harris of Harlandale (San Antonio) and Raymond Mattingly of Bowie.

The association holds its annual business meeting today with a change likely in the coaching setup of all-star games during the Texas Coaching School. There are only four conferences that will allow their coaches to tutor all-star teams in coaching schools—the Southeastern, Southwest, Southern and Missouri Valley, The Big Ten, Pacific Coast, Skyline, Ivy and Big Seven Conferences have banned it.

The plan of using high school coaches to handle the all-star teams will be brought up. Then the association won't run into embarrassing situations like the present—Coach Everett Shelton of Wyoming is lecturing at the Texas Coaching School here but can't coach an all-star basketball team because of a Skyline Conference ruling.

Dallas will make a bid for the 1954 coaching school with prospects of being quickly accepted.

The coaching school, which ends here tomorrow, has drawn 1,817 high school and college mentors from over the Southwest. This is more than 200 under the all-time record of 1,800 set at Fort Worth last year.

Plans For Year To Be Talked

UPSTARTS NEED BOTH

Braves And Brooks In Double Header

By BEN PHLEGAR AP Sports Writer

With one eye on the standings and the other on the calendar, this looks like the day of decision for the Milwaukee Braves.

Charlie Grimm's club runs up against league-leading Brooklyn twice today. Nothing less than a pair of victories will convince anybody except the rabid Milwaukee fans that the Braves still have a chance.

The Braves, who jumped from a lackluster seventh-place outfit in Boston to dangerous contenders in Milwaukee, trail the Dodgers by 7 1/2 games. Two triumphs would leave them 4 1/2 behind; a double defeat would drop them 9 1/2 back. It's a rare season when a club can make up that much ground in seven weeks, all that's left of the 1953 campaign.

Only six games remain between the two clubs, including the double-header today. So far Brooklyn has won 11 out of 18, six out of seven on the Braves' own field.

The Dodgers suffered their first loss in Milwaukee yesterday, a 5-3 decision which saw the Braves come from behind in the eighth inning. Milwaukee scored twice in the seventh when a sharp grounder that looked like a sure third out bounced off Junior Gilliam's shoulder. They got three more in the eighth, two when Walker Cooper delivered a pinch hit single with the bases loaded and one more when Erv Palica walked Eddie Mathews with the bases loaded again.

Third place Philadelphia, nine games back of Brooklyn, trimmed fourth-place St. Louis 7-3. The New York Giants, who have collapsed completely in the West, lost two more, 9-4 and 7-6 to Chicago with the second game running 10 innings. Pittsburgh defeated Cincinnati 6-4.

The top spots in the American League remained static with the New York Yankees still five games ahead of the Chicago White Sox. Although both won, neither the Yanks nor the Sox had easy going.

New York had to come from behind to edge Detroit 5-4 while Chicago was carried 14 innings at Philadelphia before Sam Mele broke it up with a two-run homer.

Ben Flowers pitched a shutout in the first inning.

Ted Kluszewski drove in three runs with two homers and Gus Bell also homered for Cincinnati but the long ball attack wasn't enough against the Pirates. The heavy hitting came against 19-year-old Jim Vaughn, who won his first game of the season. Johnny Hetki pitched four hitless relief innings.

The Giants spotted Chicago eight runs in the first game and when they tried to catch up in the eighth inning, which finished fourth in regular season play and then proceeded to knock off the first place club, Coahoma, in the first round of the Shaugnessy playoffs, defeated Cook's, 6-1, in the first game of this series Tuesday night.

Indications are Speck Franklin will hurl tonight's game for the Big Spring club. Gene Farham may go back to the rubber for the Col-Tex team. Farham set the Big Springers down with three hits and struck out ten in the opening game.

The teams will clash again Tuesday night. The first team to win three games wins the championship.

The High School Auditorium will be the scene at 7:30 p.m. today of the season's first meeting of the Big Spring Quarterback Club, an organization formed solely to boost athletics in the local school. Old members are urged by club officials to be in attendance. In addition, the welcome mat is out for individuals interested in athletics or curious as to what sort of people and what kind of objectives makes such a club 'go'.

The Big Spring Quarterback Club has great plans for the coming school year. Those objectives will come much easier, Co-Captain Jack Cook has stated, if the membership continues to grow as it should. Minimum fee for membership is $1 per annum.

"Good as our program was last year," Cook stated recently, "we feel we can improve upon it this year. And we feel the earlier we get started, the better job we can do of boosting athletics."

The organization's "board of strategy" has already been in session, mapping preliminary plans for the 1953-54 school year. Members of that board are Lee Porter, Omar Jones, Frank Martin, Jack Robinson, W. P. Hughes, Bob Currie, Jimmie Stewart, Ted Hull, T. L. South, Glenn Brown, Jack Smith, Al Mack, Rogers and Clyde Angel.

Last year, the club used organizational funds for such things as motion picture films for the football team, membership cards, lapel buttons, a banner, gifts for coaches, trophies, a banquet and other items.

The club managed to be represented at every Steer football game during the 1952 season, both at home and away. Prior to each game, they gathered near the Steer dressing room to lend the players encouragement and wish them well.

More than one school official said the club's work did more to revive interest in school teams here and help the morale of the team than anything ever undertaken locally.

Sports Reduce Dallas Lead

By BARD LINDEMAN Associated Press Sports Writer

The Shreveport Sports won their second straight game since returning to the top spot by beating the Dallas Texas League lead to 3 1/2 games Wednesday night.

Fred Martin blanked Houston 1-0 on three hits for the Sports.

Fort Worth helped the "big picture" by dropping Dallas 6-4. Oklahoma City drubbed Tulsa 8-2 and San Antonio topped Beaumont 6-5.

Shreveport Manager Mickey Livingston was Dr. Livingston, psychiatrist, as he sent his latest pitching acquisition, Martin, against the club that turned him loose only last week. Martin responded and put the Buffs down on three singles. He didn't walk a man and allowed only one runner to reach third base.

The Sports were held in check by Floyd Woodruff until the last inning. Ninth inning singles by Joe Saekly and Bud Heastel and a scoring by Jay Jones brought a run and the ball game.

Bengals Visit Lamesa Sunday

The Tigers invade Lobo Park at Lamesa on Sunday for a double bill with the Lamesa Red Sox. Ynez Yanez, skipper of the Tigers, said he would send Bob Beall and Jack Rogers to the mound. Jackie Jennings will catch with Guy Lara as relief.

In two previous contests with Lamesa, the Tigers have split. Yanez has booked a game at Steer Park here on the afternoon of Aug. 16 with the Midland Hawks, an aggregation which also has split with the Tigers.

Bobby Maxwell May Enter Tourney At Littlefield

LITTLEFIELD — The first annual Littlefield Invitational Tournament is expected to have the largest field of amateurs of any tournament held in West Texas, when it begins with qualifying rounds August 12, continuing through August 16. Pro Kenneth Wright has announced.

Wright said that some of the most outstanding amateurs in Texas have already indicated they would be on hand for the big invitational play. Some of the players who will be here for the tournament include Wesley Ellis, Stan Moser and Paul Carmack of San Antonio; Billy Erfurth of Lubbock, winner of the 1952 state amateur championship; Bobby Maxwell of Big Spring; Jack Williams of Plover; Raymond Marshall of Lubbock and many others.

The course at the Littlefield Country Club is laid out around a beautiful new air conditioned Lauderston club house, and features some of the finest bent grass greens and grass fairways of any new club in Texas. Abundant water, through an underground irrigation system keeps the course in tip-top shape at all times. The course measures 6400 yards around twice with elevated greens and gently rolling terrain. Wright predicts the course will become a regular stopping place for the amateur circuit in Texas in future years.

Meals will be served each day of the tournament in the clubhouse dining room. A calcutta pool and barbecue will be held at 8 p.m. August 14. Prizes of golf merchandise will total more than $1,000, with an added $200 for pros in the pro-am August 12.

Persons not wishing to qualify August 13 may send their scores and entry fee of $10 to Wright at Littlefield. Reservations and hotel accommodations may be secured by contacting H. R. Shelby at phone number 95 in Littlefield.

City Tournament Finals On Tap

Bobby Maxwell and Bobby Wright were to tee off at 1 p.m. today at the Muni Course in the championship finals of the annual City Golf Tournament.

The winner of the 18-hole match succeeds Jake Morgan as the title. Morgan withdrew from the tournament after qualifying.

Maxwell is a past champion and the defending Big Spring Invitational king-pin. Wright is capable of fine golf and, for several years, has been regarded as one of the two or three top-level linkers in this area.

Maxwell fanned out Ray Phillips to advance into the finals while Wright was outlasting his brother, Marvin, in his semi-final round.

The two Bobbys teamed up to compete in the Partnership Tournament at Amarillo last week, which is the principal reason they did not tangle Sunday.

Winner of the tournament wins the big Malone-Rogan trophy, given annually by the local hospital.

Herring previously worked as a replacement in the Big State League in 1951 and 1952. He was assigned to the Tyler game last night.

Grid 11's End Houston Drills

HOUSTON (AP)—Schoolboy football teams end training today for the annual all-star game of the Texas Coaching School with the South a strong favorite.

The North lost its starting wing-back yesterday when Fred Kirk of Austin (El Paso) became ill. The El Paso star won't get into the game, scheduled tomorrow night at Rice Stadium, at the beginning but he is likely to play some.

Joe Frank Allison of Henderson stepped into his place in the lineup and there was no appreciable loss of strength.

The coaches announced their starting offensive lineup.

Coach Dallas Ward of Colorado will use this one for the North: ends, Mike Brady, Lubbock, and Charles Bradshaw, Center; tackles, Edmon Gray, Odessa, and Bobby Lockett, Breckenridge; guards, Jimmy Gafford, Lubbock, and Frank Maykus, Forney; center, Jerry Tubbs, Breckenridge; quarterback, Larry Friday, Midland; halfbacks, Leonodus Fry, Brownwood, and Allison; fullback, Jack Webb, North Side (Fort Worth).

We should try to do what we intend to do before we are overtaken by the dark. "The shadows of evening are stretched out." — Ja. 6:14.

Each New Step Of Progress Has Seeds Of Disadvantage In It

Every time somebody invents a new gadget or divides new adjuncts to man's pleasures and comforts, it creates a problem that invariably lands in the courts. One of the biggest headaches in this field is the artificial and premeditated production of rain. That is a legal mare's nest of such proportions that everybody seems to be ducking it.

Mr. Justice McFarland brushed the witnesses aside and by agreement on both sides accepted the stipulation that Mr. Arkow did operate the air-conditioning unit, that it does make a noise, and that Mrs. Gerahberg claimed it was a detriment to her health and thus a violation of the Administrative Code.

There Are Many Reasons To See Rodeo—Best Is It's A Good Show

Here we are in the midst of rodeo time again, and the fever should be catching. There are many reasons why you probably will want to go. There is the provincial appeal based upon preservation of the color and spirit of the West, and it is valid. Of course, most of the resemblance between the modern rodeo and the open range round-up is confined largely to horses, livestock, lariats and cowboys.

Still another reason is that the physical facilities here are just about the best of any outdoor rodeo plant in the country. There aren't any posts to obstruct views; each row of seats is high enough that the one in front can't block the line of sight; every seat is a good one.

Taft Always Refused To Move For Mere Political Expediency

In 1947, I believe it was, Robert and Martha Taft came up to my farm in the Berkshires on their way to Murray Bay. We got into the usual discussion of his candidacy for the presidency. I laid it on the line honestly, pulling no punches, covering no facts by the politenesses of hospitality. The essence of my statement was that he refused to do anything to recognize the lust of the populace for glamorous personalities, the preferences of many for expediencies rather than for adherence to moral principles.

He refused to do anything to recognize the lust of the populace for glamorous personalities, the preferences of many for expediencies rather than for adherence to moral principles. I cited example after example of his avoidance of political expediencies that would have made it possible to reach the White House and then he could do as he pleased. I said to him then that his opponent, Thomas E. Dewey, is a master of temporizing.

Taft exploded in anger. "I will not do it! I will not do it!" he shouted. "When I'm wrong, I admit it. When I make a mistake, I say so out in public. But I shall not cheapen myself for any office."

Logic is not too highly prized in politics and the logical person is often not the most popular man. Bob Taft never tried to become popular at the price of logic. Yet those who knew him intimately stuck by him through every defeat. In the formation of the Republican-Southern Democratic coalition, he displayed the highest qualities of statesmanship, for without it, the Congress might have fallen into the pitfalls of a one-party operation.

It Might Seem That Russians Not Sure Of Themselves To Read Big Four Note

WASHINGTON (AP)—If the state of men's minds could always be read from what they wrote, it might seem the Russians were unsure of themselves in their note this week on the Big Four foreign ministers conference.

Washington met here with the foreign ministers of Britain and France. On July 15 they sent the Russians a note suggesting that they and the Russian foreign minister meet to consider German unification and free elections.

The Western Powers could hardly lose with such a note, even if the Russians didn't answer. The proposal at least might win support for Chancellor Konrad Adenauer in the West German elections of Sept. 6.

The Russians have controlled East Germany completely for the eight years since World War II. That would seem time enough to crush the East Germans' spirit and discipline them under communism if they could not be won over to it.

At the end of the eight years, the East Germans—through riots, defiance in accepting American food, and desertions from the police and Army—have demonstrated neither discipline nor love.

That if Germany ever did get reunited it might not tie up with either camp for a long time but to try to play off the West against Russia, or the other way around, strictly for the good of Germany. Tuesday night Russia responded

Chemist Became Famous By Pleasing His Wife

NEW YORK (AP)—All most husbands feel they get for trying to please their wives is exercise—and maybe a kind word.

But the reward of Paul Charlap, a chemist, was fame and financial success. It was by trying to please his wife that Charlap developed a chemical that increases the snag-resistance of nylon stockings and adds to their wearing quality.

The Charlap success saga is the kind of "young love conquers all" story Hollywood would reject as too true to make a good movie.

In 1948, while carying for their infant, "Cookie" Charlap snagged her stocking and complained to Paul: "If you know so much about chemistry, why can't you do something to make my hosiery last longer?"

Paul checked with du Pont chemists and found they had a substance which helped protect nylon from snagging during the manufacturing process. "Why couldn't a housewife use it?" he asked. He was told it was impractical—to, high a temperature was required, and the substance washed away in soap and water.

He had developed a chemical solution that put a protective coating on stockings.

Paul thought of his product only as something to please his wife and her friends. Cookie had to prod him into taking it to a merchandising firm. This firm lab tested it for six months, had 1,000 women try it out—then put it on the market.

The Charlaps are still dazed. Some two million dollars worth of the nylon solution was sold in the first few months. The firm expects it to mushroom into a 10 million a year business. The royalties are shared Paul and Cookie of a fortune.

Some people like 'em sunny-side up, others prefer them over easy, and occasionally you'll hear a fellow say he wants his just plain "over."

Burned and powdered they're no good, either, any former soldier will plead, but otherwise nearly everyone likes eggs. Once in a while, though, every individual

Washington Calling - Marquis Childs

Senate Functioned Without A Rudder Near Close Of Session

WASHINGTON — If any demonstration had been needed of the seriousness of the blow to the Administration and to the Republican Party in the illness and death of Senator Robert A. Taft, it came in the closing days of the first session of this unhappy Congress.

Senator William Knowland of California has been acting as Majority Leader. At 45, Knowland has served eight years in the Senate. He is conscientious, tremendously hard-working, loyal to President Eisenhower. But he has a lot to learn about the functions of a Majority Leader.

For nearly 15 years he had been a member of the club, serving alongside such veteran Democrats as Senators George of Georgia, Byrd of Virginia, Hoev of North Carolina and Ed Johnson of Colorado. More often than not they voted together. In the last two or three years of the Truman Administration a coalition of Taft Republicans and Conservative Democrats was decisive on most issues.

George was for nine years chairman of the Senate Finance Committee. Byrd has been on the committee for 20 years and his word on fiscal problems carries great weight in Congress and in the country. If they were certain to vote in committee against raising the debt ceiling, as Taft would quickly have learned, then it was futile to ask Congress for such action.

Worse than futile, one must add, since the slap down is bound to damage the Administration. Taft had doubts about the Administration's all-out stand to retain the Excess Profit Tax. He felt, as he said in a back-ground talk with this reporter shortly before his final illness, that it risked too much in terms of the working relation between Congress and the White House for a limited objective.

What he had not achieved in his three months as Majority Leader was an effective and smoothly working coalition between the Democrats, such as Byrd and George who have on the whole supported the Eisenhower Administration, and those Republicans who could normally be counted on for support. It is only through such a coalition that the Administration can hope when Congress returns in January to pass the measure sidetracked at this session. That will be the difficult task facing Taft's successor.

Senator George Malone of Nevada supplied the one Republican vote necessary in the Insular Affairs Committee to bottle up for the session the Hawaii statehood bill. The House, under the skilled and unflinching leadership of Speaker Joe Martin and Majority Leader Charles Halleck, had passed the measure. If the Senate had followed suit, one of the pledges made repeatedly by the Republican Party would have been validated.

Wherever the fault may lie, whether in the White House or in the Senate itself, one conspicuous lack in the session now ended was any coalescing of leadership before the Eisenhower before the Chicago convention. There are 13 and perhaps several more in that category. Among them were those who felt that when Taft was chosen Majority Leader, with the approval of the majority, any hope of an "Eisenhower leadership" had been forfeited. It was bound to be a Taft-Eisenhower operation, as these skeptics saw it, with Taft in many respects the senior partner.

Yet even with this taken into account, the fact remains that few signs of positive direction have come from this wing of the Senate. Senator Irving Ives of New York was re-elected last November by a majority of more than a million votes. During the session now ended he spent six weeks as a delegate at an international labor organization meeting in Geneva and he has only rarely been heard from. While Senator James H. Duff of Pennsylvania has lately entered into a close relationship with the President, he has for much of the session been a somewhat unhappy spectator of a course of action—or inaction—about which he felt he had little to say.

Small Train Attracts Japs

After staying in the Bay of Yedo for eight days, and going ashore to deliver a letter to the Japanese from the American government, Commodore Perry steamed away. He planned to return a few months later to receive an answer to the letter. The head of the powerful Mitu house wrote to the Shogun, asking:

"Why should we trade our gold, silver, copper and iron for wool, glass and other trashy articles?"

Most of the other nobles in Japan had much the same viewpoint, and many were worried about religion. There was a widespread fear that while missionaries would follow the merchants, and would try again to turn Japan into a Christian country.

On the other hand, there was some fear of the cannon on American naval vessels. The Japanese had a few old-fashioned forts and had learned how to make small firearms, but their weapons were far from a match for those of the Americans.

A Japanese leader suggested that the American plan could be accepted in a limited way. Two or three ports could be opened for trade, but a rule would be made against missionaries coming with the merchants.

Commodore Perry stayed away longer than had been expected. After an absence of seven months, he returned, and this time there were 10 vessels in his fleet. The Americans brought gifts from their president to the Japanese. These included a telegraph set, a sewing machine and a small steam locomotive.

The locomotive proved to be the most exciting of the gifts. It was placed on tracks, and was set in motion, pulling a tiny car. The car was hardly large enough to hold a six-year-old child, but several nobles wanted to have rides. One sat on the car and, with his loose robe flying in the wind, was pulled around on the circular tracks at a speed of 20 miles an hour.

Hollywood Stars Put Mansions On Market

By BOB THOMAS HOLLYWOOD (AP)—For the surest sign of economic change in the movie industry, watch the real estate listings. You'll find a flock of costly mansions on the market. For instance, if you have $300,000 kicking around the house, you could pick up the Bing Crosby manse. For some insight on the real estate situation, I talked to the beautiful Irish colleen, Maureen O'Hara. She just sold her stone canyon home to a doctor for $22,500 and is hunting for a smaller one. "It was ridiculous to continue living in that big house when there are just my daughter and myself," said the actress, who is shedding her mate, director Will Price. "The house was designed for lavish entertaining. Besides, it is not economically sound to maintain such a house in these times. Two of the pictures I am considering now are out of the country. If I left, that means I would have to continue paying $200 a month for a maid, $100 for a gardener, $22 for a swimming pool man, $4 for the exterminator, $4 for the water softener, and so forth down the line. "With the movie industry going through a state of transition, you just can't keep up such expenses. It's hard to get your money out of big houses these days. I've bought three places in Bel-Air, put in thousands of dollars of improve-

Sen. Hendrickson (R-NJ), named chairman yesterday of a Senate judiciary subcommittee that will conduct the inquiry, has said a major purpose will be to create "a public groundswell" of sentiment that will aid state and local authorities and welfare agencies in combating teen-age crime. The Senate accepted on June 1 his proposal for a full study to determine the extent, causes and character of juvenile delinquency. It provided $44,000 for the inquiry and directed that attention be given the punishments meted youth-

IT'S A CAT-ASTROPHE Big Battle Over Fleas Stirs Oklahoma Block

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Fifteen cats, a couple of dozen dogs and some three million fleas (by latest estimates) have turned the 200 block on Southeast 29th Street into a battleground. Mrs. Ada Rowan, a rotund, 66-year-old woman with a friendly smile, was blamed for the whole thing. Police Judge Mike Foster, at the request of irate neighbors, asked Mrs. Rowan to explain why she was harboring 15 cats in her back yard. A neighbor testified the cats brought fleas and the fleas were not discriminatory. She claimed they feasted on the neighborhood children too. "I own only seven cats," Mrs. Rowan testified indignantly. "Those vicious neighborhood dogs and unfriendly children have increased my cat family. Those poor little animals come to my house seeking shelter from the dogs and children. I feed them and they just stay there." A neighbor, who has remained friendly to Mrs. Rowan, said the others are all wet. "Those cats don't bring fleas," he protested. "Some of the neigh-

Speaking at a Corpus Christi meeting of agricultural technicians and specialists last week, Dr. J. C. Miller, head of the Animal Husbandry Department of Texas A&M College, told them that dwarfism in cattle is not new it is increasing in frequency and is a major breeding problem confronting the nation's livestock industry.

He said dwarfism is being found in both beef and dairy herds. "It is a factor of grave economic concern," he said, "because it is being found so often in herds of the most popular bloodlines."

While Miller wasn't reported as mentioning this point it is a well known fact that many breeders never let the public know about the dwarf calves that show up in their herds. Many dwarf calves appear perfectly normal at calving. They are frequently "short and compact" and show fashionable show ring possibilities right then. At six months, however, they have begun to develop the definite characteristics of dwarfism.

The subject is under study through extensive experiments throughout the country.

Noble Walker, who farms four miles east of Colorado City, and who has been using his sprinkler system to make it rain on his farm since last fall, was one of the first to drill for water in his area and when he did he was willing to be satisfied with enough to raise a garden in the off years.

In drilling the first well the first water showed up good enough for a windmill, and then he kept on going down. He hit other water several times, each new discovery showing up better than the one just ahead of it. Finally, he got down to 201 feet and at this point gauged 450 gallons a minute. This well was located beside the highway right-of-way and he now says that if he had known for sure so much water would have been found he would have drilled in a more central place so he could have irrigated more acreage with less total length sprinkler pipe. Later on, he drilled two other wells at strategic locations and they also turned out to be good producers. One of these pumped 550 GPM and the other 350 GPM. He has never been able to pump any of these wells down so far and he estimates he has available on his farm, from the three wells, from 1,400 to 1,500 GPM.

Walker irrigated 20 acres of wheat and 10 acres of oats last fall and this spring for cover, grazing, hay and grain. These grain patches were grazed with 23 head of cattle from Oct. 15 until April 1, this year when the grain was watered and permitted to mature. The oats were harvested for hay and made about one ton to the acre whereas the 20 acres of wheat harvested about 20 bushels to the acre. He has 10 acres of alfalfa of which he is mighty proud, and about six acres of this alfalfa surrounds the farmstead on the windward sides and Walker figures this is a sound program just for the cover alone without counting the grazing and hay which is paying regular dividends.

Walker planted about eight acres of his less productive land to a winter grass mixture last fall for grazing. He has irrigated this grass some and has gotten a lot of grazing from the eight acres with much more in prospect for the coming winter and spring. At present Walker is watering about 90 acres of cotton. He has just completed his second watering for this cotton and plans to water it all once more unless good rains come as a substitute.

This Mitchell County farmer is now figuring on the construction of a reservoir between two of the wells for use next year and to do his sprinkling at night from this reservoir. He believes there will be less water loss through evaporation at night and that he would be able to run two or more lines side-by-side which would also help in reducing evaporation. He plans to seed another 10 acres to alfalfa this fall along with some winter cover crops.

While running an irrigation efficiency test on the Palmer Baxter farm in Dawson County a few days ago, technicians of the Soil Conservation Service took a little time out to compare his cotton following winter hairy vetch with cotton following cotton.

They say the difference is first and immediately apparent in the color of the cotton. That on the land on which vetch was grown last year the cotton has a much darker green color and is about twice as tall as the cotton following cotton.

They counted the fruit on three average stalks of the cotton-following-vetch and the cotton-following-cotton, and when these stalks were averaged the following was found:

On the stalks of cotton following vetch there were six bolls, 17 squares and one bloom.

The best cotton on Baxter's farm say the conservationists, is in an area where last year's vetch caught and held some blowing topsoil. The average of three stalks from this area showed 12 bolls, 28 squares and four blooms.

Mother Kills Her Children

ARAB, Ala. (AP)—A distraught mother answered her children's invitation to join them in play yesterday by cutting their throats and slashing herself wildly.

From a hospital bed Mrs. Pearl Griffin told Coroner Aubrey Carr she felt her nerves "let go" about four months ago.

Carr said the 28-year-old mother killed Rickey Griffin, 6, Ronnie, 4, and Rosalind, 3, while they were alone in her parents' home in Olander, seven miles north of here. Her father, W. F. Chaney, said she had been suffering with a nervous disorder.

Carr said the mother told him she had repeatedly asked her family to send her to a mental institution, and had told her husband she was going to kill herself.

She said she had worried about leaving the children to be "pushed around."

When the children called to her to join them in play, she picked up her father's razor, went upstairs and killed them, Carr said the mother related.

Hosea Griffin, 16-year-old brother of the woman, said he saw blood dripping from the ceiling of the living room when he returned to the house.

The youth ran to the upper floor and found the bodies of the children on the floor. The mother lay among them, still clutching the razor.

Carr said Mrs. Griffin told her father, "I killed my children so they would go to heaven. I couldn't leave them behind."

Mrs. Griffin came home about a month ago from Detroit where her husband, Arnold, 28, works in an auto plant.

Carr said he asked the woman if she realized after killing the first child that she was "doing something terrible wrong."

He said she replied: "No, I was going to go through with it."

Mrs. Griffin was charged with three counts of murder and a guard placed at her bedside, the coroner said.

Army Officer Hails Acquittal On Red Connections Charge

FT. DEVENS, Mass. (AP)—Army Lt. Sheppard C. Thierman, 31, of Brooklyn, N. Y., today hailed his court martial acquittal of charges he had Communist ties as a vindication of "my honor as a loyal American."

Specifically, the nine-man court martial board yesterday acquitted the bespectacled doctor of charges of perjury by lying about Communist affiliations and of obtaining his Army commission fraudulently.

He won a directed verdict of acquittal on a third charge of failing to cooperate with the Senate Internal Security subcommittee last fall.

Thierman said in a statement: "I am extremely grateful and joyful at the results of the verdict. My honor as a loyal American has been vindicated."

"I received a fair trial in the American tradition in which all parties performed their duties according to law."

Thierman's civilian attorney, Emanuel Bloch, who defended atom spies Julius and Ethel Rosenberg at their trial, said after the verdict was announced that it "represented a setback for those who would like to stifle the thoughts of those with whom they do not agree."

City Will Get More Frequent Airline Service

Return to the use of DC3 airliners by Pioneer Air Lines will result in more frequent air service for Big Spring, effective Saturday, Billy Watson, local manager, announced today.

Starting Saturday, six flights daily will be serving Big Spring, rather than the present four.

Watson said the new schedules also will result in better service to points north and south of Big Spring.

Tentative new schedules, to go into effect in a week, call for east-bound planes to leave here at 7:15 a. m. (arriving in Dallas 9:37 and in Austin via change at Abilene at 10:24); at 1:26 p. m., arriving in Dallas at 3:46; and at 7:56 p. m., arriving in Dallas at 10:17.

Those schedules will meet major flights out of Dallas for the East, said local Pioneer Agent Billy Watson. Westbound flights will leave at 9:24 a. m. (having left Dallas at 7 a. m.); at 4:38 p. m. (having departed Dallas at 2:15) and at 8:07 p. m. (having left Dallas at 5:45). The first two flights will provide for the first time, one-plane service to Lubbock and Amarillo, since the schedule goes northward out of Midland.

These two trips also make connection to Austin and Houston by way of Midland. The 9:24 trip out of here reaches Amarillo at 12:13 p. m. or Austin at 1:05 p. m. The 4:38 p. m. departure will reach Amarillo at 8:16 or Austin at 8:33.

The tentative schedule provides for all six flights through here five days a week. On Saturdays and Sundays there will be two flights each day. Pioneer is planning curtailment of activities on the weekend, because of new operational methods brought about by the CAB ruling that required Pioneer's return to DC3 service in lieu of the Martin Pacemasters which were being used.

Normandy Memorial To U.S. War Dead Shown By Sculptor

NEW YORK (AP)—The 22-foot full-scale model of a war memorial to be built in Normandy, France, was displayed yesterday by the sculptor, Donald De Lue.

The memorial, to commemorate the D-day landings on June 6, 1944, will be erected in memory of 15,000 American war dead buried in Normandy.

The model shows a nude man, arms aloft and mouth open as though speaking. The granite base of the memorial, De Lue said, will be inscribed, "For I have seen the glory of the coming of the Lord."
