

Dunbar Presents Talent Nights

The stars will be on the stage of Dunbar High School Thursday and Friday, March 8 & 9, beginning each night at 7:30 p.m. Dunbar auditorium is the place for a real talent show with a theme: "Talking Book 73". This affair is sponsored by the band and orchestra.

In the past, with this year no exception, the auditorium is expected to be fully packed with some of the better talent Lubbock has to offer. Heading the big band sounds will be the Shadowfax, Phrase 8 or 9, Estacado Rock Ensemble, the Flaming Arrows, and the Dunbar Stage Band—the Panthertonians.

Dance groups participating in the two night special will include the Blue Jays, Hill and Turner, LaVonda Fullerson and Shelia Patterson (students of Wheatley and Ella Iles Elementary schools), Cassandra Jackson and Michelle Crawford of Dunbar.

Singers are the Black Remarks doing their version of "Love Is"; Remonia Jackson blowing "Baby Sitter"; the Shamatics doing their thing about "Stop, Look and Listen"; DeWayne Simmons will turn the audience with "For The Good Times"; the Tri-Lights and Delores Neal will swing with "All the King's Horses."

This promises to be one of the better talent shows ever at Dunbar with Shelia Patterson and LaVonda doing a Hula Hoop dance which promises to be the show stealer. Of course, Remonia Jackson cannot be overlooked because she is only three years old and knows all the words to "Baby Sitter."

Catherine Gibbs and Frances Inman are the featured singers with the Dunbar Panthertonians. Catherine will be featured on the song "Superstition" by Stevie Wonder. The song "a beautiful job with her version of "O Happy Day."

All of the latest songs will be played in the course of the evening while the dancers execute the latest dance steps. The Saturday afternoon television show Soul Train will definitely have plenty of competition for the talent show's fancy steppers.

Master of ceremonies will be none other than Mr. Virgil Johnson who is head coach of Struggs Junior High School. Johnson also has his own television show during the summer months where he features the latest talent available. This job is no stranger to Mr. Johnson, because he has performed this task for the band and orchestra before. He has recorded several records in the past with the "Velvets."

The directors of the show are James Braxton and Conrad Hutchinsin, III, who are instructors at Dunbar in the music department. Student directors are Daphne

Hall and Charlotte Charney who are sophomore members of the orchestra and band.

Two of the Panthertonians who will be among the terrific talent at the Dunbar talent show are Catherine Gibbs, daughter of Mr. Howard Gibbs of 1508 E. 25th Street and Frances Inman, daughter of Mrs. Willie Judie of 2604 Weber Drive, Apt. D.

The public is cordially invited to come out and see Lubbock's better talent on Thursday and Friday, March 8 and 9th, beginning at 7:30 p.m. each evening.

Civil Rights Report:

Blacks Taking Steps Backward

Washington—(NBNS)—Last week, when the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights issues its third report in as many years, "The Federal Civil Rights Enforcement Effort—a Reassessment," there appeared to be a rather distinct reverberation in the background. Perhaps, because as the Commission itself concluded, its findings were "dismayingly similar" to those of earlier reports.

In effect, we have been steadily wending our way on an ever rotating treadmill with no recognizable gains, but innumerable steps backward.

As in the past, the Commission found Federal enforcement in the civil rights area to be "highly inadequate," lacking high priority and commitment from governmental officials—from the president down through the ranks—and basically "ineffective."

Hoping against hope, the Commission—as part of its manifold tasks—released its findings in a detailed report some 425 pages long. Thinking, perhaps, that it would come to the attention of "the President, his agency heads, the Congress, and the American people and that urgent remedial action will be promptly undertaken."

We are certain, though, that few, if any, Commission reports, hearings, or actions escape the attention of President Nixon. (Witness the speedy acceptance of the Forced resignation of the Rev. Theodore Hesburgh, the outspoken former chairman of the Commission who knocked Mr. Nixon's commitment to equality once too often.)

Thus, it is difficult for us to imagine that President Nixon is not already cognizant of the poor track record of his Administration in the area of civil rights. What is difficult for us to imagine is when, if ever, is he going to do something constructive?

According to the rights commission, there has been little or no progress and its findings in the latest report clearly point out this standstill. Enforcement of civil rights mandates by the executive branch, it said, are so "inadequate as to render the laws practically meaningless."

In addition, the commission said some things that many of us already know but either utter in hushed voices or not at all. That is: "Many agency officials genuinely believed they would incur the wrath of powerful Members of Congress or lobbyists—and thereby jeopardize their other programs—if they actively attended to civil rights concerns. Moreover, since non-enforcement was an accepted mode of behavior, any official who sought to enforce civil rights laws with the same zeal applied to other statutes ran the risk of being branded as an activist, a visionary, or a troublemaker. Regrettably, there were few countervailing pressures. Minorities still lacked the economic and political power to influence or motivate a reticent officialdom."

However, the commission and its members have been around for a while. And, to counteract these "inherent difficulties," the commission mapped out a strategy which puts the responsibility squarely where it belongs.

"...We knew that government employees respond to direct orders. We were convinced that if our Presidents and their agency head and sub-cabinet level appointees had persisted in making clear that the civil rights laws were to be strictly enforced, and had disciplined those who did not follow directives and praised those who did, racial and ethnic inequality would not have been as prevalent as it was in 1970.

"Leadership—presidential, political, and administrative—and the development of realistic management processes are the keystones to a vigorous and effective federal enforcement effort.

"Our study concluded that this leadership unfortunately was lacking. Despite certain halting steps forward and a few promising public pronouncements, Presidents and their appointees seldom assumed their potential role as directors of the governor's efforts to protect the rights of minority Americans."

In its most recent report, the commission found that civil rights efforts have been plagued with "inertia," extensive delays, and no effective coordination between agencies with similar responsibilities. Thus, we imagine that a government-wide plan for civil rights enforcement, which the Commission charged is not non-existent, would be like asking for pie in the sky.

The Commission in no uncertain terms, clearly places the initial and ultimate responsibility for obtaining equal opportunity on the President and appeals to his "good faith" to "live up to (the) commitments" of "our imperfect democratic society."

"Without the leadership of the President," the commission report states, "this job (of obtaining domestic tranquility between our diverse population) not only becomes infinitely more difficult, but a steady erosion of the progress toward equal rights, equal justice and equal protection under the Constitution will occur. History suggests that so long as one man is not free the freedom of all is in jeopardy."

The first requirement, according to the Commission, is that of "an unequivocal, forceful implementation of all the civil rights laws now on the books."

By now, the commission is, perhaps, renowned for its exhaustive studies, hard-hitting statements that the guilty parties believe are below the belt, and its recommendations, which are encompassed in the great American dream, but what is, after all, only a dream for blacks and other minorities who lack the political clout to cause a do-nothing President to metamorphose.

The report was submitted to the White House Office of Management and Budget last September, but was held up for release until after the November election. The forcefulness of its language, its allegations, and its implications could, possibly, explain why Father Ted is no longer head of the Commission.

Outstanding Science Students Attend Recognition Day Here

Outstanding science students from Lubbock high schools participated in Science Recognition Day, sponsored by Southwestern Bell in Lubbock on Monday, Feb. 26.

Those attending were selected by the schools.

The daylong program featured Bell System speakers discussing current and future developments in communications.

William D. Bullock of Bell Telephone Laboratories, Murray Hill, N.J., discussed "Future Trends in Communications."

Roy Wickerham, Southwestern Bell science demonstrator, presented "From Beryllium to Vanadium, by Way of Krypton" in which he outlined communications developments to the moment.

"Designed With Man in Mind" was the topic of Dave Link, Southwestern Bell engineer from San Antonio. His talk centered around the human factors considered in building communications equipment.

On-line computer input and output was demonstrated by C.H. Chambers, district marketing manager for Southwestern Bell from San Antonio. His "Conversation With a Computer" emphasized that modern communications and computers have great possibilities for the present and the future.

What Happened to Lubbock in Selection??

Recently, the state's top six officials selected 37 persons to serve on the constitutional revision commission out of 900 nominees for the positions. It is about time for something to be done about the 97 year old constitution. Thank goodness that the voters of Texas decided to make it known at the polls last year.

There were three blacks, four Mexican Americans and four women among those chosen for the task of re-writing the constitution for the State of Texas. This will be a hard task, and let's hope something positive will come from this effort.

What is disturbing about the selection of persons making up the commission is there was no one chosen from Lubbock, Texas, as well as the South Plains area. It is hard to believe that the city of Lubbock didn't have any type of representation since it is the eighth largest city in the state.

Not only this, but Lubbock is fortunate to have one of the better Law colleges in the nation as well as Texas Tech and Lubbock Christian College. The College of Medicine is also an asset to the State of Texas.

It's rather hard to believe that Governor Dolph Briscoe, Lt. Gov. William P. Hobby, House Speaker Price Daniel Jr., Attorney General John Hill, Supreme Court Chief Justice Joe G. Greenhill and presiding Judge John F. Onion Jr. (those persons responsible for choosing the commission) would leave out the growing city of Lubbock when selecting persons for such an important commission.

Lubbock has a population of 152,876, according to the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce. It would appear as though cities like Amarillo, San Angelo, Arlington, Corpus Christi, McAllen, Beaumont, Marshall, Iowa Park and Galveston are not moving ahead like Lubbock is at the present time.

Nevertheless, it's one of those things when you are a long way from the Capitol that things just don't go the way they should. Lubbock is contributing a great deal to the welfare of the state and it should be heard in situations as re-writing the constitution to the state.

In looking at the larger cities, they received their share of representatives on the infant commission. Austin and Houston have six citizens each serving on the commission and Dallas has five. Even San Antonio was able to have four persons selected.

The legislature has ten (10) days to review the panels and raise any objections to any of the appointments before they become official. We doubt, at this time, if any of those citizens will not be accepted by the legislature.

Our representatives in Austin, three representatives and state senator, are fighting a hard battle for the citizens of the South Plains. Our legislature should be informed on how we feel in West Texas about being left out of important matter such as this commission.

There's no doubt about it, we'll miss former governor, Preston Smith. He utilized his many talents to keep Lubbock represented on important matters while he served as the state's governor and Lt. Governor. He's no longer at the State Capitol and it looks as though we'll have a hard row to hoe.

Anyway, we can't just give up because we were not able to have someone from Lubbock on the commission. We'll have to continue doing our best and continue to grow. Lubbock has a lot of things going for itself, and last week's hurdle won't stop us.

What happened to Lubbock last week? Well, it's a big hunch that a lot of politics were utilized to keep us out of the action. There'll be another important commission coming our way one day. We hope that all the politicians who are seeking a state office will realize that our votes out west do count. If they don't believe us, just look at the tally sheets during the last state election, they tell a story.

As Lubbockites, as well as citizens of the South Plains, let's keep our thing going. We'll get there one day. Maybe Lubbock can be chosen as one of the regional areas which will be designated for the hearings of the commission. After all, since we didn't get a representative, maybe it would make a lot of sense for the commission to come to the Hub City.

JACK ANDERSON'S WEEKLY SPECIAL

OIL PICKPOCKETS

by Jack Anderson

(Copyright, 1973, by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

Washington—The term "energy crisis" has pushed its way uninvited into our everyday vocabulary with the help of a massive media campaign financed by the oil industry.

Certainly the oil companies would like the government and the public to think there's an energy shortage. Then they can use the emergency as an excuse to end government regulation and to raise prices.

But whether the energy shortage is a genuine problem or a scare campaign remains undetermined.

David S. Freeman, chairman of the Energy Policy Project, recently called the energy crisis "a smokescreen for a massive exercise in picking the pocket of the American consumer to the tune of billions of dollars a year."

The speech predictably made Mobil Oil President William Tavoulares erupt like a new-found oil well. As a member of the project's advisory board, he successfully forced the Ford Foundation, which finances the project, to call Freeman on the carpet and tongue-lash the oil industry critic.

Freeman particularly enraged the oil industry when he criticized oil quotas. These quotas keep large amounts of foreign oil off the American market, thus making the oil supply low and the price artificially high.

This "drain American first" policy helped create heating oil shortages in some parts of the nation this winter and has drained our energy resources, says Freeman.

Instead of repealing the quotas, Freeman notes, the oil companies are demanding that the government keep them. The oilmen want the government to lift the price restrictions on natural gas and to allow them more neovironmental liberties in drilling, mining and exploration.

Freeman has excellent credentials. He was an adviser to both Presidents Kennedy and Johnson, but his latest advice has not impressed the rich oil barons.

Drugs That Kill

The crackdown on the distribution of the drug speed has apparently been successful enough to trigger a counter-phenomenon. An unpublished federal report claims drug users are switching from speed and psychedelics to sedatives.

In this report, the Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs warns that many of the sedatives now in vogue among thrill seekers may lead to a trip to the morgue. Unknown to many users, the sedatives can be addictive and can cause convulsions leading to death. Such drugs as

As I See It

by T.J. Patterson

In the city of Lubbock, it is easy to find persons who are involved with some sort of narcotics or drugs. It is becoming the object of average conversation in barber shops and other public places.

As members of the black community, we have a problem here in the city of Lubbock. This problem is fast becoming a serious one. Many of those persons who were once smoking "pot" or taking various pills and drinking cough syrup are now taking the "hard stuff." It's becoming routine to hear that people in East Lubbock are involved in heroin and have developed quite a habit.

What is serious is that these drugs are seen in public places and we refuse to do anything about it. I recently learned that drugs are "a plenty" in some of our neighborhood apartment complexes. If this is the case, then our younger people are in a position to become victims of circumstances.

I realize that Lubbock is ten years behind most urban areas when it comes to being a part of the "in thing." Since we are not up on what's happening in the area of drugs, a lot of young people will be caught in the web of narcotics. It is very easy for a young person in Lubbock to create a $40 a day habit on "hard stuff." Due to the habit, a young person will rob and steal to supply his needs.

It would make good sense for our law enforcement agencies to look into the drug problem in East Lubbock. I'm not talking about the weed, or "pot" totally, but the "hard stuff" which is prevalent in the black community.

Perhaps arresting a young person who is being used by someone won't help solve the problem. It would, however, make a lot of sense if we would start arresting those persons who are pushing hard drugs in the black community. In order to stop some of the traffic, we must get the person or persons who push the stuff in the black community.

Lately I have seen many of us displaying bumper stickers on our cars which read "I'm Black and All Together." The bumper sticker is beautiful, but how in the hell can you be "All Together" when some junkie is manipulating the minds of young blacks with heavy narcotics?

Some of the stories I've heard from some of our black brothers about the "way out parties" which take place in some of the East Lubbock apartment complexes must cease. As one woman told me last Saturday, "I wish something could be done about all the dope parties which are being held in my apartment complex."

Many of us are parents of young people in junior and senior high schools. I know we don't want our young people involved in any type of dope activities. Let's quite being users of something which controls our mind. The "man" has controlled our minds too long, so let's start thinking about what is happening in our own community.

Qualudes or Sorpors can be deadly when combined with alcohol. Ironically, these drugs are often pusehd as an aphrodisiac to the naive, even though they are renowned for producing a sedentary, trance-like state in the user.

Qualudes and Sorpors have been labelled as dangerous drugs in England since 1966. Yet they are still classified with aspirin on the Food and Drug Administration's danger scale here in the United States.

The sedatives are easily obtainable, either with or without a prescription. There is no underground manufacturing, as with LSD or mescaline. The pills found on the street come straight from the nation's booming pharmaceutical companies. Usually, they are obtained in large numbers by sellers who forge prescriptions. But there are also a few greedy druggists who are willing to compromise their integrity for a few dollars.

The unpublished study comes on the heels of our own report that the Food and Drug Administration is top-heavy with officials who have worked in the past for pharmaceutical companies. The FDA, true to form, has been reluctant to crack down on the black market in sedatives.

Congress, however, might force the FDA to take action. Some congressmen concerned with the new drug craze are preparing legislation that would force the FDA to tighten its controls. Meanwhile, the FDA still operates on the risky premise that a once-approved drug is innocent until proven guilty.

Around and About

Gummy Budget—President Nixon's budget cuts apparently have left about 200 old people in Houston toothless. A program run by Model Cities provided dental care for senior citizens, many of whom recently had their bad teeth pulled. The old people expect to get their dentures, but Houston Model Cities director Jack Matthews tells us that the oldsters now may never get their false teeth—due to Model City program economy cuts.

Flying In Style—Georgia's Air National Guard chief, Joel Paris, is up to his old tricks again. Last fall, General Paris was caught taking a weekend trip to Florida in the Guard's old C-47 cargo plane. Now, the general has gotten a new plane to ferry him around the country. The general admits he is converting a newly assigned Air Force T-29 plane into what he calls "an administrative aircraft." This means the general is taking out the navigational and radar equipment and replacing it with a galley, an icebox and other plush equipment.

Sticker Ban—Commanders on U.S. military posts are cracking down on bumper stickers. Any bumper sticker on a car registered at the base is carefully scrutinized for political overtones. On many posts, for example, the bumper sticker—Nixon's Had ITT—is strictly taboo. At Fort Bragg, N.C., GIs have been ordered to remove even small flower decals from their cars. Fort Bragg officials, apparently, regard the little flowers as symbols of peace.

I wouldn't be surprised if the Lubbock Police Department hasn't been informed about the drug problem in East Lubbock. If they can catch whites in West Lubbock, then it's time to do something about the drug problem in East Lubbock. After all, I'm sure, we're all concerned about the welfare of our young boys and girls.

If nothing is done about the situation, then I guarantee that it will cause a great deal of hurt in some families in our community. As black people, we should know what drugs did to us in the early days of Harlem. Why we are so easily hooked now, I just can't understand.

The problem is something we all need to do something about. Let's quit talking about the problem in the pool hall, barber shops and on the bus; and start doing something about it. Let's save a brother before it is too late. Let's start naming people who are responsible for pushing dope!

If the Lubbock Police Department doesn't investigate the problem, then I suggest that every church and minister start a campaign against this dreadful problem. We know that sickle cell anemia is a dreadful disease, but you let your little boy or girl get hooked on some hard stuff, then you've really got a problem.

The Lubbock Police Department can't stop this problem without help, so let's put some stumbling blocks in the path of those persons who are hooking our younger people on drugs. This is a serious problem and we must "do our thing" now if we are going to lick the problem.

I was happy to learn that Boy Scout Troop 102 spent Saturday afternoon helping clean up Green Fair Manor Apartments. One of the Scouts told me that he wanted to do something for a brother. This project is good and the Scouts of Troop 102 should be commended for a job well done.

I am still waiting for a troop or pack to call me about cutting down the weeds on East 24th Street. I'll be willing to help get them down since the City of Lubbock refuses to do something about them.

Letters to The Editor . . .

Dear T.J.:
I read in your editorial, "What Will Happen to Green Fair Manor Project?" We have been criticized very severely concerning the condition of the Green Fair Manor Project. A tour of the project convinced me the criticism is just.

The Housing Authority staff is faced with many problems. Lack of funds has been placed on Public Housing throughout the country and because of this more problems are created. Maintenance men have been laid off at both Green Fair Manor and Hub Holmes projects because of a financial squeeze. Weather conditions sometimes prevent the city trucks from emptying the dumpsters as scheduled. When dumpsters are full, garbage and trash are placed on the ground and this causes trash to spread over the yards. However, these are not excuses for the way Green Fair Manor Project looks.

Police Beat

Stab Victim

Charles Patterson, 2628 Hickory Avenue, reported to the Lubbock Police Department, while he was being treated for a stab wound at Methodist Hospital, that he had problems at the Checkboard Cafe, East Main Avenue and David Street.

He said that he did not know who stabbed him and he was trying to break up a fight on the inside of the cafe when it all happened.

According to Patterson, he would not file charges against the person who stabbed him if he knew who had done the stabbing.

He was stabbed in the left elbow and received a wound on the right arm.

Assault With Intent

In another incident at the Checkboard Cafe, East Main and David Street, a Lubbock woman told police that she got into a fight with her husband.

According to the lady, her husband had stabbed her in the top of the head with a pocket knife.

She did go to West Texas Hospital where she was treated and released after the incident.

She told police that she did not wish to file charges against her husband.

Stolen Bike

L.R. Watson, 1001 Quirt Avenue, who resides in the Hill Top Mobile Home, reported to Lubbock Police that someone took a girl's bicycle from his premises one day last week.

Pink in color, the bike was valued at approximately $35.

Theft Over $5, Under $50.00

A Coca Cola truck deliverman, Danny Dampier, reported to the Lubbock Police Department that someone did remove two cases of Dr. Pepper from his delivery truck while it was parked at Estacado High School last Friday afternoon at approximately 3 p.m.

The cold drinks were valued at $6.00.

*****

House Burglary

Jewell Miller, 1324 East 17th Street, Apt. #5, reported to the Lubbock Police Department that someone broke into her apartment while she was away.

The unknown burglar did take a .38 caliber pistol which was valued at $89; an 8 track tape player and recorder valued at $275; four tapes valued at $24, and an assortment of men's and women's clothing.

Attempted House Burglary

Arletha Banks, 705 Avenue D, Apt. 47, reported to the Lubbock Police Department that a man removed the screen and raised the window in the bedroom of her apartment one day last week. She screamed and the man left.

A little later, he returned to attempt to remove the screen on the window to the living room. Her sister-in-law came out of another apartment and stopped the man. She asked him what he was doing? He replied that he was looking for someone.

The party he was looking for was asleep in his apartment. At this time, the lady called the police to report the incident.

*****

Assault With Intent

George Lee, 1614 Avenue D, reported to the Lubbock Police Department that he was at 1701 Avenue A when a lady did cut him.

He told police that he thought she used a knife, but was not sure. He did have a cut on the left side of his head, about 1 1/2 inches long and was near the temple. He said he didn't know if he was going to file charges.

Sports of The Times

by Joe Kelly

The night Texas Tech beat Arkansas and clinched the Southwest Conference basketball title, I was in Pampa. I ate a leisurely dinner, thinking that I couldn't get the broadcast on the radio.

After paying the bill and picking my teeth, I got in the car, turned the radio on and decided, aw, what the heck, I'll punch KFYO's dial. And would you believe it, there was the game done in Jack Dale's inimitable style.

Somehow I managed to stop for all the red lights and never hit a parked car as I rode back to the motel, missing a play only when the radio faded out.

All through those tense, tight moments, I sat glued to the radio, losing five pounds of sweat and chewing fingernails until Bryan Mauk clinched the victory. Then I let out a yell that so startled inhabitants that two salesmen in a room 25 yards away opened the door, came to the car and wondered what the hell?

Now it's on to the NCAA playoffs and a tough foe in the opening round, South Carolina. The Gamecocks of Frank McGuire are a running, shooting team and they'll give Tech's defense a real test.

The Raiders were 7-5 in non-conference play, meeting some top teams and playing some far from that class. For an indication of what to expect, review those games.

Tech lost to a below average Kansas team by 16 points, lost by 11 to a good St. Louis club, dropped a game to average Utah State by 10 and lost three-point games to Air Force and New Mexico.

The most significant thing is that, with the exception of the New Mexico game, the others were on the road, and it was on the road that Tech won the conference. Tech also dropped a 9-point game to Baylor in the conference, on the road.

The Raiders, as Coach Gerald Myers said earlier in the season, are not overpowering. "We aren't going to blow anyone off the court," Gerald said. "We don't have that kind of team."

The record proves it. Fourteen games were won with a point spread of from one to nine. The five where big margins existed were TCU 10, Rice 14, Nevada Las Vegas 14, TCU 22, NE Missouri 26. The latter was the biggest margin of the year for the Raiders.

So, while I'll be watching and pulling for Tech, it looks to be too much of a mountain to climb. It would be great to see a Tech victory, and anything is possible when two teams play. Still, the major achievement was winning the conference and that's great honor.

Also, the Raiders deserve great congratulations on placing Ron Richardson and Richard Little on the UPI all-conference team, Rick Bullock on the second team and honorable mention for Ed Wakefield. And well deserved congratulations to Gerald on being named UPI Coach of the Year and the same for Region 6, NCAA.

The individual recognition is deserved, although the first to holler about it would be the honored players and coach. It was a team effort, from start to finish. And when you have unselfish players like the Raiders, individual awards are hard to reap.

The recognition will give the coaches even more ammunition for recruiting. They can tell a prospect, look, Tech not only won the conference title, but landed two players on the first team. You can get recognition even when you don't have players leading the league in scoring. The combination, title and awards, should be a big help.

Coach Kal Segrist's Raiders, with inexperience in their ranks and hampered by poor training weather, came back from their opening road swing in good shape.

The Raiders managed one of three against Arizona, a real feat this spring, and three out of four from UTEP. Tech unfortunately lost Reuben Garcia, a major league pitching prospect, for a good hunk of the season. He could be back in time to play a big role in the conference fight.

Any turkey hunters among the readership? If so, you all will be interested in learning that New Mexico is issuing 6,400 permits for a spring season that runs April 21-29.

Applications should be submitted to the Santa Fe, Albuquerque, Raton, Las Cruces or Roswell Game Dept. offices before 5 p.m. March 30. Hunters will be required to have both a special turkey permit and a valid 1972-73 big game, general hunting or general hunting and fishing license. Write New Mexico Fish & Game for more information.

If you've neglected your boat and your fishing tackle during the ice and snow, it's not too late to get busy. But you'd better get with it, because the weather shows signs of getting pretty now.

You first ought to put new plugs in your motor, check the gas for water evaporation in it and have a tuneup on your engine. Examine your reels to see that the line is strong and that no dirt has gotten into the bearings.

In general, check everything, from boat to motor to tackle box.

of cleaning up the project. Trash and garbage is being hauled off to the dump ground. Abandoned cars will be towed away by the city wrecker. Unit inspection will begin in March of each apartment in the project in accordance with our lease agreement.

The impression that many people have about Green Fair Manor is that it is an unfavorable place in which to live. After working as secretary of Green Fair Manor for one year, I have a different judgement of the project. Every tenant in Green Fair Manor is not filthy, dishonest, and destructive. Some of the cleaner and nicer people in our city live in Green Fair Manor.

The staff, along with the tenants, are in the process of making Green Fair Manor Project a cleaner and safer place in which to live.

Dear Sir:

Would you put the following information in your paper? In regard to all the students (who) graduated from Dunbar High School from 1955 up until 1963. Or the parents of the students who know their whereabouts, so we can send out invitations.

If any persons are interested, get in touch with Earnest Kelly at 2808 Marburg, Dallas, Texas 75215.

The reason for this is, the students here in Dallas, are planning a class reunion in Lubbock, if the students there want to participate.

The Editor,
West Texas Times
Dear Editor:

I sent the following letter to the "Lubbock Avalanche-Journal" some weeks ago when they published their feature story on the retirement of George C. Woods. As the letter points out, George Woods, as well as, a number of black citizens in Lubbock experienced racism in employment. I am sorry to say that such practices continue in our city. Not only are some employees turning away black applicants for certain jobs, but others are making no effort to upgrade black employees who are already working on jobs for which they are over-qualified. In other cases, where the employer really does not want a black worker, campaigns of harassment are often mounted against the black person who will not quit.

I do not know why the "Avalanche-Journal" did not print my letter. I telephoned about it when they had had it for almost a week. I was told by a reporter that it probably could not be printed the Sunday after I sent it in because there were too many letters. When I asked if editorials were not printed on other days, I was told that there probably had not been enough letters on other days to make up a column. I hope that this does not mean that the "Avalanche-Journal" is unconcerned about discrimination in employment in Lubbock because it seriously affects the black population as it has over the years.

I am sending the letter to you in hope that you can print it, and in the hope that we will become more conscious of the ways we are being exploited where it hurts the most—in our pockets.

Yours truly,
S/Vivian I. Davis

Editor, Lubbock Avalanche-Journal
710 Avenue J
Lubbock, Texas
Dear Editor:

I read your article about the retirement of George C. Woods. From the story, I inferred that Woods had great ability and leadership qualities evidenced by his long involvement and many achievements in Lubbock civic affairs. You also pointed out that Woods worked at a number of different jobs in Lubbock, most of which were menial or hardly above that level. Since the city recognized his qualifications and abilities by calling upon him for civic service, and since he had had already some college education before he came to Lubbock, one has to suspect that racial discrimination in employment accounts for his low level in job status.

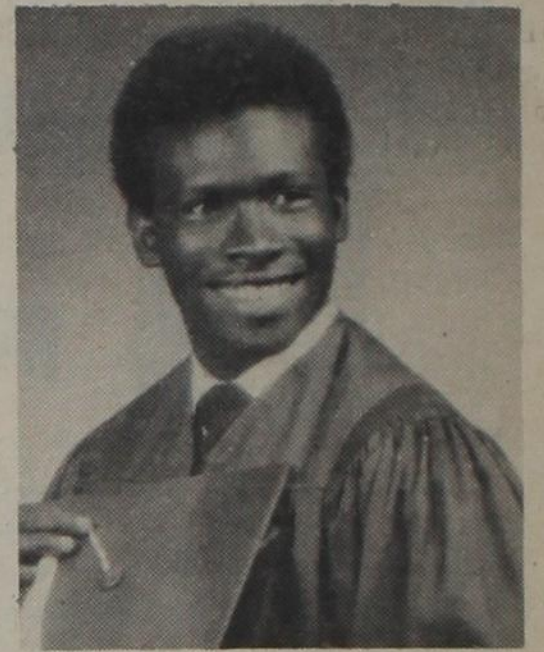

Personally, I know a great deal about George Woods and about other black men in the Lubbock community. Because of discrimination in employment, they have had to be supermen simply to do the ordinary. They have often had to work two jobs just to educate their children. (Black students who wanted to attend college until very recent years have had to go to east Texas or out of the state altogether.) They have paid a tremendous price in the loss of income, employment status, job security, and in unrealized hopes and aspirations.

I especially applaud George Woods, not merely for his civic achievements, but because somehow he was able to be a man in a situation where he never had an equal opportunity to develop his true potential. Though he would never complain about the injustices meted out to him in personnel offices, I wonder just how many thousands of dollars in income, to speak of none of the amenities that go with professional jobs, were lost to him and to his family though he worked harder than most men.

Your article cites the time a Lubbock mayor presented Woods with a gold cigarette lighter and a new suit in honor of his achievements in Lubbock civic affairs. I wish this community had only given him the opportunity to work at the kind of job for which it recognized he was qualified. Surely, seeing Woods get what he deserved, would have been a great inspiration to Lubbock blacks, and he would have been able to give much more of his talent to the progress of Lubbock.

Yours truly,

Minister's Wives Alliance On The Move

New members not included are Mrs. J.E. Alexander, Mrs. Leon Anderson, Mrs. S.R. Anderson, Mrs. Adolphus Cleveland, and Mrs. S.S. Scott.

This year the organization is trying to break the record for 1973. The organization is inviting all ministers' wives to come and unite with them in the Alliance. "We are on the winning side of God," says Mrs. Wilson. She continued, "If God be for us, who can be against us. God is our judge, not man, and He is for us. He proved it by giving His son," she continued.

"Troubles are bound to come to us as they come to all men, but so what? Nothing can ever separate us from the love God", said the newly elected president. "We are more than conquerors through Him." "So wives, won't you join us,

Lubbock Native, Howard C. Gibbs, Jr., Has Eyes set On Higher Things While Serving in U.S. Air Force Here

'Today's Army Wants to Join You'; 'Join the Navy and See the World'; 'The Marines are Looking for a Few Good Men'. These are all popular slogans designed to entice today's young men and women into one of the branches of the armed service. They promise travel, excitement and opportunity. Yet, they didn't promise the one thing that Howard C. Gibbs Jr. wanted the most: the chance to further his education and become an Air Force officer.

Airman Gibbs, a 22 year old native of Lubbock, is currently serving as a Law Enforcement Specialist at Reese.

"I came into the Air Force to further my education and to take advantage of every available opportunity to better myself."

He is well on his way to achieving his goals. Airman Gibbs is taking on base extension courses through South Plains College at night, and has applied for the Airman's Education and Commissioning Program (AECPP). If selected, the Air Force will send him to school to finish his degree requirements, and then to Officers Training School at Lackland AFB for commissioning as a Second Lieutenant.

Howard Gibbs is an aggressive well spoken young man who likes his job, but whose interests are as varied as his abilities.

"If I am selected for the program, I wouldn't mind staying in Law Enforcement because I'm

An imposing figure, Airman Gibbs checks the identification of all personnel entering the base, as well as assisting visitors and greeting civilian guests.

familiar with the field," he said, "but I would like to use my linguistic ability to get into the intelligence branch of the Air Force. I have had four years of another language and I would like to use it if I could."

Among the Air Force officers many qualities must be the ability to communicate with people. For this, Howard Gibbs seems to possess a rare ability.

"I feel that as far as people to people relations are concerned, the changes rest with one's fellow man. This is a personal problem. I would look to each individual for change, friends, co-workers, and my supervisors, both enlisted and officers. This is how I would go about making changes. Right now I think that in this area, the Air Force has taken the lead in solving many problems."

"I've been happy in the Air Force. It's a good institution. I feel so strongly about the opportunities and programs that if I were given the opportunity to advise someone about going into the service, I would tell them to go Air Force."

After leaving the Air Force, Airman Gibbs would like to continue his education, and eventually enter the teaching field at the university level.

"The one thing that I've learned, you can never stop getting an education. The more you learn, the better off you will be. I want to do something in life that I, as well as my children and relatives, can be proud of."

There is no doubt that Howard C. Gibbs Jr. is well on his way to making a lot of people very proud.

FIRST PLACE WINNER—Vicki LaNell Edwards, 10-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Edwards of 1710 E. 28th Street, was first place winner in the recent Lubbock Music Teacher's Association Sonata-Sonatina and Concerto Contest.

She played the second movement of "Sonatina" by Wanhel. The contest was held at Trinity Baptist Church.

Vicki's music teacher is Mrs. Cecile B. Meskimen.

Local Church to Merge

Faith First Baptist Church has announced that their membership have emerged with the congregation of Rock of Ages Baptist Church in the near future.

Under the dedicated leadership of Rev. G.B. Coleman as pastor, many programs will be brought to the Lubbock community.

The congregation cordially invites the city of Lubbock to come to worship with them each week and witness the great spirit of God in action.
