

School Milk Cut For Lack Of Fund

Washington—(NBNS)—About 40 million U.S. school children will not get milk under the special government milk program while a congressional appropriation is pending.

"We don't have the money to pay for the milk and so we are cutting out the program in all schools with school lunch programs," said Herb Rorex, director of the Agriculture Department's Child Nutrition Service.

Rorex said that Congress has not passed an appropriation bill for this program other than including $25 million in a continuing resolution to run the Department.

The President's budget request for this fiscal year was for $25 million, the amount Rorex considers necessary to continue the milk program in schools without lunch programs.

The federal government has paid an average of 3 cents for a half-pint of milk, although the amount has varied according to the need of the district. Last year, these cartons cost an average of 5 cents with the student paying 2 cents. The cost this year is expected to be 10 cents with the student paying the full amount in most cases.

"This is an emergency situation," said Lucille Barnett, president of the American School Food Service Association. "Children need milk and with prices skyrocketing, they are not likely to get enough at home."

"I don't understand how the government could get away with this. I thought the milk lobby was one of the strongest lobbies in Washington."

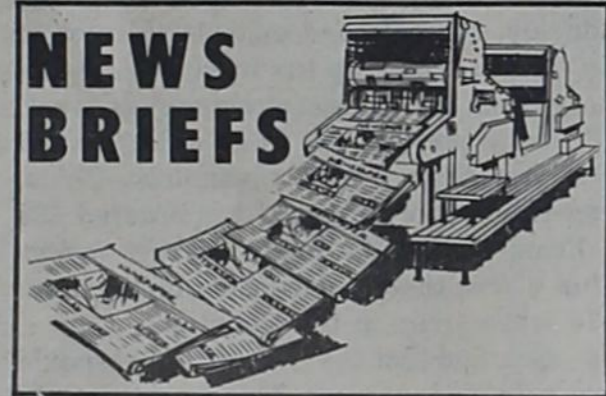

The federal government currently reimburses schools with 8 cents for every lunch served and 40 cents for every one served to a needy child.

Black Female Office Holders Increase; But They're Still Hampered by Racism, Sexism

Hung Jury in Huey Newton Trial

Oakland—(NBNS)—After one full day of deliberation, and two hours into the following day, a 10 man jury in municipal court announced it was deadlocked and unable to return a verdict on charges against Black Panther leader Huey Newton and his bodyguard, Robert L. Ray.

The two were charged with battery and carrying concealed weapons after being arrested by a former disc jockey, Alonzo Miller charged that they had beaten him up in an Oakland nightclub of which Newton is part owner.

Judge Winton McKibben said that motions for a retrial was scheduled Sept. 6 if the prosecution wishes. District Attorney Alex Selvin of Alabama County said that he would move for a retrial.

Dick Gregory, Other Protesters Acquitted

Washington—(NBNS)—Dick Gregory and seven others who were arrested for prayer demonstrations at the White house were acquitted after an hour long trial before U.S. Superior Court Judge Charles W. Halleck.

While stating that he did not believe that the arresting guards were attempting to deny the protesters right of free speech, Judge Halleck said that he found it "strange and very unusual that top security officers in the white house happened to be present whenever a visitor drops to his knees."

All eight had been arrested for unlawful entry when each had knelt for a few minutes inside the White House grounds. Gregory noted that "I don't think we'd go to jail if we'd showed up at the White House praying for the President's health." The group was protesting the continued, illegal bombing of Cambodia.

Thurgood Marshall At World Law Conference In Ivory Coast

Abidjan—(NBNS)—Addressing the general body in attendance at the World Law Through Peace Conference being held at Abidjan, Ivory Coast last week, Justice Thurgood Marshall urged judges to remain independent of politics. "When judges watch election returns, they squander the only power they have," Marshall said.

Mrs. King Notes Integration Gains Paid For by Black Dedication

Atlanta—(NBNS)—Commenting on the decade that has past since the historic March on Washington in 1963, Mrs. Martin Luther King Jr. pointed out that the changes since her late husband's "I have a Dream" speech were "paid for with heroism and dedication of countless thousands of Blacks in one of the most magnificent movements for progress of this century."

Washington—(NBNS)—A report released by the Joint Center for Political Studies indicates that while the black female has more than doubled her presence among elected public officials in the four years since 1969, she is still hampered by racism and sexism in that pursuit.

The majority of black women in elective offices across the country are members of boards of education and concentrated in municipal offices throughout the nation, the report says.

At the federal level, where decisions are made that touch every household one way or another, black women, like black men, are "acutely under represented", the report said.

There are only 17 black women elected officials in county office, only four in federal elective office, the U.S. House of Representatives, and these four women are 25 per cent of all women in Congress.

According to the report, black women account for only about 12 per cent of all black elected officials, and "is an infinitesimally small percentage of all elected office holders in the nation." These figures represent about a 160 per cent increase over the number four years ago.

The study was conducted by Dr. Herrington J. Bryce, director of research at the Joint Center, with the assistance of Alan A. Warrick, a research assistant at the Washington-based private organization.

The report offers information on the number of black women in elective offices, their geographic distribution, the categories of offices they hold, their stability in office, some fundamental explanations for their under-representation in the political process, and some historical perspectives that put in focus the plight of women in the electoral process since they won the right to vote in 1920.

One of the disturbing findings, according to the report, is the fact that black women tend to develop little tenure in elective offices. Only 46 per cent of those who were in office in 1969 held the same office in 1973 and few experienced upward mobility into higher offices.

3 of 5 Slain by New York Police Are Black—Same Ratio as Arrest Rate

New York—(NBNS)—Three out of every five persons killed by New York police during the last three years were black, according to a study of Police Department records.

Although this proportion is three times higher than the black population of the city, it closely approximates the proportion of blacks arrested for crimes of violence.

Police department records for 1970, 1971 and 1972 show that 59 per cent of those killed by police were black. A New York Times sampling of 700 crimes of violence in 1971 shows that 62 per cent of those arrested on homicide, robbery, felonious assault and rape charges were black.

The 1970 census shows that about 20 per cent of New York's 8 million residents are black.

The proportion of whites and Spanish

Jesse Owens, considered by many sports experts to be the greatest track and field star of the half century, is to be the kick-off speaker of the United Fund campaign on October 2, George Miller, campaign chairman announced today.

The traditional launching of the fall community drive is a kick-off luncheon at the city coliseum annually attended by members of Lubbock's civic clubs who cancel regular meetings for the week in order to attend the send-off of some 3,500 volunteers calling on behalf of the United Fund's agencies. Tickets for the luncheon will be on sale at the door or may be picked up from the United Fund office for those not associated with civic clubs.

In making the announcement of the guest speaker, Miller said, "We feel we are extremely fortunate to obtain the former Ohio State University and Olympic great as our speaker. I have heard Mr. Owens and he is truly an inspirational speaker. Our citizens are in for a rare treat at the kick-off luncheon."

Presently a resident of Phoenix, Arizona, he lived in Chicago for a good many years where he devoted much of his time to underprivileged youth as a board member and former director of the Chicago Boys' Club, an organization serving 1,500 youngsters. He was, for five and a half years, the Sports Specialist of the State of Illinois Youth Commission.

This famous all-time Olympian is currently making public appearances on behalf of and conducting speaking engagements before youth groups, civic meetings, sports banquets and giving commencement addresses at various schools and colleges throughout the country. He is also a representative of the Ford Motor Company, Marketing Division and Sears Roebuck, speaking in behalf of these companies to sales groups, marketing people and other various functions.

In 1955, the U.S. State Department delegated Mr. Owens as America's "Ambassador of Sports" and sent him on a two month goodwill tour of the Far East. The following year he went to Australia as one of the personal representatives of President Eisenhower at the 16th Olympiad. He was the honored guest of the German people at the 1972 Olympics held in Munich, Germany.

speaking persons killed by police was found to closely parallel the proportion of these two groups arrested for crimes of violence.

•Whites, who make 65 per cent of the population, were found to represent 22 per cent of those arrested and 19 per cent of those killed by police.

•Hispanics, who make up 15 per cent of the population, represented 15.3 per cent of those arrested on the named charges and 12 per cent of those killed.

The race of 10 per cent of those killed was not recorded.

The New York Times also released Police Department information showing that black policemen are involved in fatal incidents far more frequently than policemen from other racial groups.

According to the study, during the three-and-a-half year period from Decem-

World famous athlete, Jesse Owens, will be the kick-off speaker for the United Fund Campaign, October 2nd.

His experiences with youth all over the world has brought into sharp focus for him the needs and problems of young people everywhere. His major concern is doing his full share to make available better and more complete educational opportunities for all youth.

The United Fund campaign for 1973 is seeking a goal of $933,239.30 for operation of 31 community service agencies in 1974. First report meeting to review the progress of the campaign is scheduled for noon on October 5 at the First United Methodist Church.

ber, 1969 to April, 1973, one out of every 250 white policeman killed someone, one out of every 58 Hispanic policemen did so, and one out of every 38 New York black policemen did so.

Police Commissioner Donald F. Cawley said in an interview that there was no evidence that black policemen were quicker to draw their pistols than white policemen, but that more black policemen were involved in fatal incidents because a larger proportion of them were assigned to dangerous jobs such as detectives and undercover agents and working in precincts with the highest crime rates.

For a number of complex reasons, criminologists warn that great caution must be exercised in drawing conclusions from the comparison of the racial make-up of the city, those arrested in violent crimes and those killed by the police.

The proportion of Hispanic people, for example, is subject to considerable error because many persons listed by the Census Bureau as Hispanic brought up in Spanish speaking homes, may be listed by the police as black. On the other hand, many persons from Puerto Rico and Cuba consider themselves to be in the "white" category rather than in the Hispanic.

However, psychologist Dr. Kenneth Clark, head of the Metropolitan Applied Research Center, Inc., has speculated, along with others, that the large number of blacks and Hispanics arrested to some degree reflects the administrative policies of the Police Department, and that the higher incidence of blacks and Hispanics killed by police is a natural result of these policies.

In Lubbock, Black Churches Need to Be More Involved

Over the past twelve years, this newspaper has paid close attention to what is happening in our community. During this time, a special news section has been designed for black churches of Lubbock. We have made it our policy to print news about events occurring, from time to time, in the various churches.

On the other hand we've observed our churches growing weaker in our community and not being a viable part of the growth of the black community. In any black community where there is strength, the black church has been the catalyst for making things happen for the betterment of the black population.

In Lubbock, Texas, it appears as though each denomination (Methodist, Baptist, Church of Christ, Church of God in Christ and others) is moving in opposite directions when it comes to the betterment of the entire populus of black people. This has created discontent to our young black people who are not involved in the church, as they were a decade ago.

There are, according to those listed in the City of Lubbock telephone directory, nineteen black churches who advertise in the Yellow Pages, not to mention those churches who are not listed. It would appear with this number, the black church would be more concerned about the welfare of the black community than it is.

At one time, there was only one ministerial body, which was called the Lubbock Interdenominational Ministerial Alliance, but now the Baptist ministers have formed a group called the Baptist Ministers Union. And both of these groups are still not getting down to where the problems really are. It is time for the ministers of this community, regardless of the denomination or church affiliation, to get their churches involved with the welfare of the community, rather than anniversaries and the like.

We know there is leadership among the ministerial order in our community, and we wonder why those with abilities continue to let the church's involvement be a minimum when there are so many situations which the church could address itself.

It is hard to believe that there are sixteen churches in the Coronado Project of Urban Renewal (an area with Ave. A as west boundary, Yellowhouse Canyon as east boundary, E. 19th Street on the north and the railroad tracks on the south) where there are 650 vacant lots. It's really hard to believe that our ministerial body is not doing anything about this dreadful situation.

It's also hard to believe that we have brothers and sisters who attend these churches on Sunday mornings in our "Sunday best" and not mention to our pastor that it is the work of the church to also help our community. Not only must the ministers pull off their rose colored glasses, but members must also begin to see things as they really are. Only then will the church begin to contribute its worth to our community.

Let it be understood that it is not one church's fault that the black community is in the condition it is; nor is it the blame of one particular minister or pastor. It is, however, every minister's responsibility to inform his congregation that something must be done. It is also the responsibility of every member of each congregation to do his part.

There is strength in numbers. If every church in the black community would get involved with the problems at hand, we'd have a much better community to rear our children. Unless we do so, we'll always have vacant lots with weeds, a lack of job opportunities on the fire department and other areas, poor schooling and no representation on the city council and other boards in our community.

Regardless of how we accept the church in the black community of Lubbock is not involved as it should be. The second chapter of Acts, verses 44-45, state "and all that believed were together, and had all things common, and sold their possessions and goods, and parted them to all men, as every man had need."

ON FOOD COSTS

The Agriculture Department report shows that workers who processed and sold the nation's food last year collected nearly as much in wages as the farmers who grew the crops.

JACK ANDERSON'S WEEKLY SPECIAL

DEMOCRATIC SPIES by Jack Anderson

(Copyright, 1973, by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

Washington—The Watergate investigation has exposed President Nixon's political espionage during the 1972 campaign. But lost in the headlines is the fact that the Democratic candidates had their political spies, too.

During the presidential primaries, the Democrats spied on one another. Senator Ed Muskie's staff, for example, prepared detailed smear sheets on his Democratic rivals. Muskie acknowledged this to us, but called their work "negative research."

Senator Hubert Humphrey's political intelligence was poor. The AFL-CIO, however, planted agents in the George McGovern camp and shared their reports with Humphrey.

McGovern had the best intelligence operation. His lieutenants have boasted that they had spies who told them everything Humphrey was doing. They also claimed that they had managed to sneak an undercover man inside President Nixon's campaign headquarters.

Sympathetic government employees, including a man at the Voice of America, also slipped McGovern information.

The Democrats may have been less professional, and perhaps less grim, than President Nixon in playing the game of political espionage. But they had their political spies.

Scoop's Their Man: The Democratic party's old professionals, who were pushed aside by Sen. George McGovern in 1972, are quietly maneuvering to regain control of the party in 1976. As their candidate, they are already lining up behind Sen. Henry "Scoop" Jackson, D-Wash.

In fact, they began planning for 1976 before the smoke had cleared from the 1972 convention. They held secret strategy meetings in Miami Beach before they went home from the convention.

They agreed informally that Jackson should be the figure they would rally around. The Jackson Plan, as this strategy was called, was pushed by steel workers boss I.W. Abel. AFL-CIO President George Meany also agreed that Jackson was the best man in sight for 1976.

Jackson agreed to begin picking up the pieces for both the 1974 and 1976 elections. George Wallace's brother, Gerald, joined in the secret discussions. But the Wallace forces refused to support Jackson. They are strictly for Wallace.

Equal Rights

Stung by setbacks in many states this year, leaders of various American women's action groups say they are launching a new campaign to win ratification of the so-called equal rights amendment to the Constitution by 1976.

Having originally targeted victory by this year, this is an admission of defeat, at least in the immediate future. What hurt the movement was the growing conviction by many women that the much publicized amendment would take away many special privileges they now enjoy. They then turned against political and sociological theorizing.

As a result, the amendment was defeated in eighteen states this year, and rescinded by one state (Nebraska) which had earlier passed it. Most Americans obviously have come to agree with the vast majority of less publicity minded women, represented by Phyllis Schlafly of Alton, Illinois, among others.

Mrs. Schlafly told reporters recently: "You have an occasional woman built like an Amazon but there aren't many," referring to heavy work. The military draft, the ending of the tradition that men should support their wives, the end of women's many special privileges, all seem to have doomed the idealistic sounding amendment, and rightly so; the sexes are different and laws can't change that fact.

As I See It

by T.J. Patterson

As I See It, unless we pay close attention to what is happening in the East Lubbock community. It will just dry up and become another area with no people, churches and schools. This is the way it appears to be going. The population in this area has done a complete about face since 1960. This can, perhaps, be attributed to many reasons, but I would say the main reason is that we blacks have failed to develop what we have, and choose rather to complain about our conditions.

I was looking at the enrollment of Dunbar High School last Friday and found that the enrollment is down, compared to last year. This should give us some type of indication that people are leaving an area which could be developed.

I was quite disturbed over the number of black families moving out of this area. This area would include East 19th on the North Southeast Drive on the South; Avenue A on the west and the Canyon on the east. With as many as 650 vacant lots in this area, it would appear as though something could be done about developing the area and make it a booming community.

Many of us have been fooled that this area is not worth investing in and blacks should move to other areas of Lubbock. Of course, it's a man's business to make his own

The old curmudgeon George Meany, meanwhile, yearns to return to the old ways of choosing candidates in smoke filled rooms. When he was asked about the 1972 convention, he took a deep puff on his cigar and grumped: "Too many skirts and no cigars."

Oily Warning: Saudi Arabia has warned American oil company officials, according to news reports, that it will cut back its daily oil production a million barrels unless the United States changes its Middle East policy. This would leave the West critically short of oil this winter.

The Central Intelligence Agency, however, has reported that Saudi Arabia is bludding. Intelligence reports from the Middle East claim that Saudi Arabia has secretly decided not to reduce its oil production at all.

The Saudis have sought to appease the Arab militants, who want to use oil as a political weapon, by offering to use oil income instead to finance a massive Arab arms build-up.

The Saudis have warned, according to the intelligence reports, that the United States could retaliate against an oil cutback by reducing its food shipments to hungry Arab countries.

The Saudis have argued, therefore, that an oil cutback would wind up hurting the Arab cause. By keeping the oil flowing, they have urged, they can raise the millions needed to buy guns and grain. The Egyptians, for example, are in desperate need. The intelligence reports claim Saudi Arabia has offered to subsidize both Egyptian military and wheat purchases.

Of course, the tough bargaining over oil isn't ended. But it looks less likely that the Saudis are going to withhold vital oil.

White House Wheat Watch: The White House is watching the crop reports with an anxious eye. The world wheat shortage is beginning to look more critical. The Soviets planted a record crop and turned soldiers, students and factory workers into the fields to help bring in the harvest. But suddenly, rains flooded millions of acres in European Russia. Some of the crop has been washed out. Some has been harvested, but it is wet grain subject to rot.

Already, the Soviet Union has put in an order for 116 million bushels of American wheat. Communist China, which is also desperately short of grain, has ordered 133 million bushels. From around the world, foreign orders already are within a few thousand bushels of the total estimated 1873-74 wheat crop in this country.

The experts have warned that the United States should keep at least a year's supply in reserve. This runs about 600 to 700 million bushels of wheat. Already, the U.S. reserves are down to half this amount.

The government has called upon farmers to reverse their past policy of keeping land out of production and to plant all the acres they possibly can. For the wheat shortage affects the price of meat, poultry, bread and other foods. With wheat stocks the lowest in two decades, food prices are sure to continue rising.

decision on what he would like to do and where he would like to live. On the other hand, however, we must take under consideration that unless you develop the area it will continue to die.

Evidently, some whites see something in the East Lubbock community. For example, the Coronado Apartments, 1017 East 29th Street, were at one time black housed. Of the 200 units, which were recently sold to a man from California, there are approximately 40 black families in the apartment complex, as compared to 60 to 70 white families which have moved to Coronado this year.

Many of our students at Ella Iles Elementary School and Dunbar High School at one time resided in this complex. Many of the young tenants are Texas Tech students, and are happy about living in this area. It would appear to me that more of our young blacks would develop this area since persons attending Texas Tech are taking advantage of an area which needs badly to be developed.

If you are a resident of this east Lubbock community, take a little time and drive around and see exactly what is going on. Be fair with yourself and you will see that we are a small town within the city of Lubbock, with many resources going to waste. Don't you think it's time for us to start doing something about this condition?

Many of our black educators attend summer school each year at Texas Tech University and other colleges and universities in the state of Texas. This is good. What is bad is that they never seem to move up the ladder in our public school system. I am sure that the Lubbock Independent School District is quite pleased with the work of these black brothers and sisters, but should show their appreciation by moving some of them up the ladder.

I wonder how many of our talented educators in the LISD are aware of their complacency in the school system. I'm sure we have people who are even talented to become assistant superintendent material.

It was quite pleasing to see Dr. Hazel Taylor, a recent graduate from Texas Tech University, join the faculty at this institution after working for years in LISD. I would encourage all black teachers in the system who are concerned about moving up the ladder to let the public school administration know about it. After all, our young people should be able to see a black administrator in action.

I thing Sister Joan Y. Ervin, member of the Lubbock Independent School Board, should even know of your feelings. It would even make good sense to drop her a line about the way you feel. It's time for all of us to get involved in "positive matters" and not just sit around and boast about the number of degrees we have attained over the past ten years or how many colleges and universities we have attended.

As I See It, the LISD would appreciate this type of an effort. Especially when it'll help strengthen our efforts in the public school area.

Police Beat

Theft of Mail

There were two ladies in the Green Fair Manor Apartments who reported to the Lubbock Police Department that someone broke into their mailboxes last week. In the past, the West Texas Times has urged that authorities do something about this type of situation. It would appear as though something would be done about it. This column, however, has been advised that the Postal Inspector's Office has to address itself to this type of problem. "The Police Beat" would like to advise whoever is involved that many people are suffering because of the lack of followup on problems existing in the Green Fair Manor Apartments concerning the "mailbox problem". We hope something will be done about it in the future. This type of problem doesn't make sense. If it's handled right, it can be corrected.

Burglary of Mailbox

One of the ladies who reported her mailbox being burglarized was Joyce Marie Sammuell, 2806 Weber Drive, Apt. B. She reported that when she went to the mailbox to check her mail, she found the lock and door had been pryed open.

She also discovered that her welfare check, in the amount of $140, was not in the box as it arrives on the 5th of each month. There was no other mail in her box also.

Another lady, Joyce McGuire, 2407 Weber Drive, Apt. C, reported the theft of a "government check" taken from her mailbox on September 7th. The check was in the amount of $72.

Unlike Sammuell, she had an idea who took her check. This writer hopes that she will file charges, in the proper place, against this person who took the check.

House Burglary

Herman Harris, 1914 East Auburn Avenue, reported to the Lubbock Police Department that someone unknown entered his house while he was away. Entry was through a bedroom window which was apparently left unlocked.

He reported that a tape player, four men's shirts and two pair of pants were taken from the house. They were valued at approximately $156.

House Burglary

House burglary is becoming (or should we say it is a popular thing) a problem in the Lubbock community, especially in East Lubbock. Lonnie Richardson, 3606 Yucca Avenue, reported to Lubbock police that he found a man running out of the back yard of his house one night last week.

After carefully investigating the situation, he found that the man

The genius in advertising who thought up the slogan for Avis to the effect that, because we're No. 2, we try harder, never saw Texas Tech's scrimmage Saturday.

Still, he seemed to sum up what the reserves, using Utah plays, unfortunately, felt. The reserves scrapped the so-called first two offensive and defensive teams pretty much to a standstill. When it was all over, there was a lot of head shaking.

True, the "Utes" only scored once, but it was a sustained drive, something like 70 or 80 yards and included a fourth and 15 pass that succeeded against a veteran defensive backfield.

Indeed, that vaunted defensive secondary did a good job of equalling the rest of the team. Neither was impressive. Oh, for a time, the defense had the upperhand, but as the session continued, the reserves became embarrassingly potent.

Okay, so it was a dismal effort Saturday. It's behind us and the real game is ahead, that's the important thing. There's no question but what the players were tired after two-a-days. Work has been intensive this fall and the enthusiasm, Saturday, wasn't there.

As one observer quipped, as he listened to the Country Western music languidly flowing from the loudspeakers onto the field: "The players are about as inspired as the music."

I have every confidence that the Red Raiders will put it all together this week. They may have scored a lopsided victory over Utah last year, but the Utes have a better team, apparently, than they showed.

Also, in Don VanGalder, they have a quarterback who is one of the best. He's a year more experienced and he has a more experienced line to operate behind. The Utah defense is suspect, but Bill Meek is capable of bringing that along rapidly.

It's not, despite the 45-2 rout a year ago, an easy opener. The Utes are capable of moving the ball and Tech's defense ought to get a good test, both on the ground and through the air.

As for the Raiders, the potential is there. You can talk all you want to about inexperience, but it depends on what you mean. If you mean many offensive and defensive players didn't start last year, you're right. If you mean they haven't (1) played or (2) gained experience in games, you're wrong.

All in all, I look for an interesting game, with the Raiders getting a good test, but coming out on top with ease. Both teams probably will be a little tight. Both probably will make mistakes.

After that, I look for the Raiders to start putting on a show, led by Joe Barnes, George Smith, John Garner, James Mosley and the finest stable of backs Tech probably has ever had. By all means get a look at Tech Saturday. I think you'll like what you see and will come back—and back—and back.

Everybody else is picking the way the conference is going to wind up after the final action, so I might as well join them, even though the only team I've seen is Tech.

It appears to be another one of those years when the league is divided into three portions. The top echelon has only one team, Texas. The Horns appear to be in a class by themselves. In the second echelon is Tech and, at this point, SMU and maybe Baylor. The third echelon has Arkansas, A&M, Baylor, Rice and TCU.

I hope someone trips up Texas. At this writing, I don't know which team it will be. The Horns could be better than last year.

Then comes Tech and SMU—and I'm going to have to include a much improved Baylor team on this level. Injuries could kill the Mustangs and hurt the Bears.

That leaves the lower echelon to the Aggies, Owls, Frogs, and would you believe it, the Razorbacks!

If you want to analyze it, SMU could have the more explosive attack, while the Bears will depend more on balance and inspiration. Tech has ability and good depth.

I can't buy the Kiddie Korps at A&M as a contender. Arkansas could surprise, because I respect Frank Broyles. The Hogs could hurt anyone and everyone. The Owls will hve ups and downs, with more of the latter. While the Frogs could be the best defensive team in the league and be the real spoilers in the title chase.

So, to go out on the proverbial limb, here's the way I read the finish (and don't go out and bet the rent money).

V.A. Information

Recently returned Vietnam Era veterans are advised to "keep an eye on the calendar" to avoid overlooking important federal and state obligations.

Following up on information provided VA advises each veteran shortly after discharge, of this recommended schedule:

- As soon as possible, register with local state employment service office. (Veterans have up to one year to apply for unemployment compensation, but applications filed after a long period of unemployment could result in a lower rate of unemployment compensation).

- In 10 days, report address to Selective Service through local board (in person or by mail).

- In 30 days, register with Selective Service or any local board, if not already registered.

- In 90 days, apply to former employer for reemployment.

- In 120 days, (one year if totally disabled at time of separation) convert Servicemen's Group Life Insurance (without examination) to private, commercial policy.

- Within one year from date of notice of VA rating on disability, apply to any VA office for G.I. life insurance based on service connected disability.

- Within one year, apply to any VA office for dental care.

- As soon as possible, apply to any VA office for G.I. education or training, which must be completed within eight years of separation from military service.

VA notes there are no time limits for veterans to:

- Apply to any VA office for a G.I. loan guaranty to buy a farm, or buy, build or improve a home.

- File claims with any VA office for compensation for service connected disabilities or disease, or apply for hospital care.

- Seek assistance from local offices of state employment service in finding employment or entering Labor Department job training programs.

VA added that its 72 veterans assistance centers around the country are ready to help veterans get a fresh start in civilian life.

Time is our most valuable asset, use it wisely.

Levelland News

Four families in Levelland, Texas became subscribers of the West Texas Times this week. They are Lee M. Smith, Willie L. Majors, Clarice Everett and Warren Blair. There are more who will become subscribers in the near future.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Blair have been residents of Levelland for 44 years. A very close knit family, they have six children (3 boys and 3 girls). They have been married for 44 years and have enjoyed every minute of it. They have 12 grandchildren and two great grandchildren. One of their daughters, Phyllis Kaye, is attending Midwestern University at Wichita Falls, Texas. She was a very active student at South Plains College.

A local educator, L.G. Griffin, expressed his concern of the Times and hoped that there will be a reporter from this community real soon. He also stated, "There should be a form in the West Texas Times where persons could join the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP)."
