

OEO Praised In "Secret" Nixon Report

Washington—(NBNS)—A federally authorized evaluation of the Community Action Program (CAP) funded by the Office of Economic Opportunity has given new fuel to opponents of Nixon's planned termination of CAP.

The report praised CAP as "highly constructive" in meeting the goals of the Nixon administration," says that local community action programs "are becoming very positive forces in their communities" and can aid communities in rising "to the challenges of revenue sharing and other forms of government decentralization."

The until-last-week secret report described the Nixon administration's concept of community action one of mobilizing, not merely spending, anti-poverty resources, and states that this criteria is being met.

A federal evaluation team investigated programs in 591 urban and rural communities from 1965 to 1972 and concluded that they have been successful in achieving that goal. CAP "is already producing highly constructive results," the report said.

Howard Phillips, appointed by Nixon as acting director to phase-out OEO has challenged the credibility of the report, charging that it is the work of "various people identified with previous administration policies."

Phillips, appointed by Nixon as acting director to phase-out OEO has challenged the credibility of the report, charging that it is the work of "various people identified with previous administration policies."

Phillips had been charged with suppressing the favorable report but after its existence was publicly disclosed by other sources he permitted its limited circulation.

The report is expected to be used by congressmen interested in retaining community action programs and keeping them independent from becoming financially dependent on local governments which may not be inclined to use revenue sharing funds to keep them alive.

A leading congressional supporter of CAP is Senator Jacob Javits (R-N.Y.) who believes the elimination of the program is "contrary" to the spirit if not the letter of the Equal Opportunity Act, the enabling legislation for OEO.

Community action agencies around the country have been active in programs designed to benefit the poor in the areas of employment, education and health. From their inception they have been charged with stirring up the poor against "the establishment."

The new evaluation report concluded, however, that "municipal and county or local governments have been extremely supportive of community action programs," at least since 1968.

On a recent television news show, Phillips retort to that part of the report was that if local governments were so favorable to CAP, they will provide funding for them from revenue-sharing proceeds.

He neglected to point out however that when the evaluation was being made, city officials had not been asked to stretch revenue-sharing funds to cover community action programs.

Meanwhile the 98-member organization coalition sponsoring the National Mobilization for Domestic Unity in Washington Feb. 20 reports that support for a national lobbying effort to save federal anti-poverty programs, including CAP, is growing.

Jim Couch, national coordinator for the Mobilization said that nearly 5,000 people have already been to Washington to demonstrate support for the effort. Thousands more are expected to lobby in the halls of congress on Feb. 20, he said.

• Heard and passed on the financial report from Mrs. Billie Caviel, treasurer. She also urged members to continue to pay their monthly dues.

• R.J. Givens gave a brief report to the body about the new ownership of Coronado Apartments. He told the group that the new owner said he would remodel and carpet each apartment. Givens stated that the owner said that rent would be raised from $80 a month to $140 and no apartment would be rented to families with teenagers. An effort to integrate the apartments is also being done, according to Givens.

There was opposition from some members about the statement made that no families with teenagers would be allowed to move into the Coronado complex. Other than that, the group was definitely in favor of someone cleaning up the "eyesore" area. Givens also stated that the owner told him that studies show that teenagers have idle time and they tend to destroy rental property.

A representative from Coronado Apartments is scheduled to speak to the local branch at their next meeting to discuss the new movement underway at Coronado.

"Black Journal" Refunded Another Season Says Report

Washington—(NBNS)—"Black Journal," the public affairs program which has featured such controversial persons as Angela Davis, has been refunded for next season, it was reported here this week.

Last December, there had been speculation that the black-oriented program would not receive funding this year after the Corporation for Public Broadcasting (CPB) had omitted it from its "tentative" list of national programming.

At that time, Tony Brown, dean of Howard University's School of Communications and producer of the show, lambasted CPB President Henry Loomis and Board Chairman Thomas B. Curtis as "the new right wingers" who think the program "separates the races." Brown attributed the cancellation to Loomis' "Negro friends in Miami (who) say the program is too militant." However, Loomis said he wanted to consider "additional points of view" about black programming before a decision on whether or not to drop the program was made.

Brown, who made no secret of his wrath, threatened to "go for their jugular" in order to keep the program on the air. He said he would enlist the aid of the Congressional Black Caucus, the National Urban League, and other national civil rights groups to support the "Friends of Black Journal." In addition, Brown said he was considering possible legal redress since public broadcasting is financed by tax monies.

According to some sources, the "Friends" conducted a mass write-in and other supporters picketed Curtis' law offices. As the board met here last Wednesday, a group of about 12 persons marched outside the CPB offices to protest the cancellation of "Black Journal."

Following the board meeting, the CPB announced that "Black Journal" would receive a $350,000 budget next season, the same amount it now receives. In addition, the board said it had budgeted $300,000 for "additional black programming," but did not go into specifics.

("Soul," the only other black public television program now being aired, has not been refunded to date.)

The CPB said "Black Journal" was renewed "on the basis of the show's popularity, mail from viewers and the recognition of a need for minority programming." However, it is believed that Brown's energetic campaign served as considerable encouragement in the board's decision.

Brown could not be reached for comment.

The Lubbock Branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP) was elected as the host chapter for the state meeting later this year and plans are being made to make Lubbock NAACP Country. In keeping with this big effort, Dr. F.L. Lovings, local president, presented five goals the local chapter will work toward this year at the regular meeting last Sunday afternoon at Posey Clinic, 1602 Vanda.

Before presenting the goals to the local membership, Dr. Lovings told the group, which numbered forty people, that the community must know what we stand for and how we act. He made this reference in regard to many cases the local chapter has been called upon to aid in the past few weeks.

Goals For Local Chapter

The goals for the local chapter are: (1) increase the membership, (2) see that equal education is a way of life in Lubbock, (3) total complete potential involvement as a race, (4) a complete end to school segregation in Lubbock, and (5) an end to tokenism in the local school system.

Janice Marie Johnson, youth field director of the Regional Office in Dallas, was special guest at the monthly meeting. She told the body that the regional office was happy over the efforts being made by the local youth council.

"The youth council should be involved in the total program of the NAACP chapter," she told the group. "It appears as though the local chapter will have more than 200 unexpired members, this is good," she continued.

"There are 60,000 young people involved in the NAACP, making this group the largest youth civil rights group in the country," she made known. "It is of most importance that the youth council and the branch continue to work together for the betterment of the total body," she concluded.

Dr. Lovings made it known to the body that the regional director, Richard Dockery, will be in the city March 1, 2 and 3 to set up a workshop which will help the local chapter get ready for the giant state conclave. Also coming to the Hub City the latter of February is the state president, Gilespie Wilson, who will also work closely with the preparations of the state meeting.

Carver Case Comes Up

The body discussed briefly the recent decision made toward bringing Jeff Carver, the youth who was tried and found guilty of murder with malice against a Dunbar High School youth, back to Lubbock from Huntsville Penitentiary where he was sentenced for five years.

In previous meetings prior to the outcome of the Carver case, the local chapter went on record to take a stand if the outcome was not satisfactory. Recent developments in the case prompted the local chapter to move that Dr. Lovings appoint a special committee to contact the regional director, Richard Dockery, as to what steps the local chapter could take to see that the outcome of the trial of Carver would be fair to all parties involved.

Other Business Discussed

• Names of Committee chairmen and members were appointed by Dr. Lovings.

• Dr. Lovings called a special meeting of the executive committee tonight (Thursday) at 7 p.m. at Mae Simmons Community

Historical Development of Negro History Week Reviewed Recently

by Marilyn Henry

The challenge before us as students of history is to examine the past partial frames of reference we as Black people have confined ourselves to. We must create a wider frame of reference which will release our reality, the reality of the overwhelming majority of men and women on this globe.

In order to do this we must create a new rationale, a new way of reasoning. We must teach our young the task of seeing themselves with their own eyes, out of a glass blackly.

For it was with this purpose that Carter Godwin Woodson uttered these words... "If a race has no history, if it has no worthwhile tradition, it becomes a negligible factor in the thought of the world, and it stands in danger of being exterminated."

Carter Godwin Woodson, editor, publisher, author, opened the first celebration of Negro History Week. The celebration was launched in February, 1926 for the purpose of exposing and emphasizing the salient facts of history influenced by blacks, mainly facts brought to light by researchers and publications of the Association of Negro Life and History directed by Dr. Woodson.

The observance comes once every year about the second Sunday in February and it is meant to embrace the birth dates of both Abraham Lincoln and Frederick Douglass. To Negroes at that time, both men were considered to have been emancipators of the Negro, each in his own right. Lincoln, because he signed and supposedly pushed the Emancipation Proclamation which freed the slaves, and Frederick Douglass because he was the spiritual inspiration for the emancipation.

Schools particularly were encouraged to give special emphasis to this week in their curriculum. The aim was to give Negro school children the opportunity to learn something unusual about their history.

It was stressed that the purpose of the celebration was neither to eulogize the Negro nor to decry others but to give the race its proper place in history.

To appease whites who frowned on the announcement of a week of observance especially and exclusively for Negroes, Dr. Woodson explained that the 'Week' was "...by no means meant to bring about a diminution of interest in general history, nor to suggest less attention to the achievement of other races or nations but to give the Negro his place among them."

Negro history became a common occurrence each year in America. It was stressed upon the youth initially because it was felt that through education of the young, builders of tomorrow, this world might be a better place.

Inequality of the races has been perpetrated and has brought the world to the cat-and-dog stage of racial strife that permeates the world today.

Many Negroes in those days, not long after the turn of the century, looked at this nation, the Negro's place in it, and despaired. The Black nationalist, Marcus Garvey, had a significant role in the rise of Black awareness during the 20's. The Negro people were looking at themselves contemporaneously and historically and found themselves coming up with such facts as... Negroes supplied the demand for labor of a large area of America, they have been a conservative force in its economic development, they have given the nation a poetic stimulus and they have developed the most popular music of the modern era.

In his native country the Negro moreover, produced in the ancient world a civilization contemporaneous with that of the nations of the early Mediterranean, he influenced the cultures at that time, and he taught the world the use of iron by which science and initiative have remade the universe.

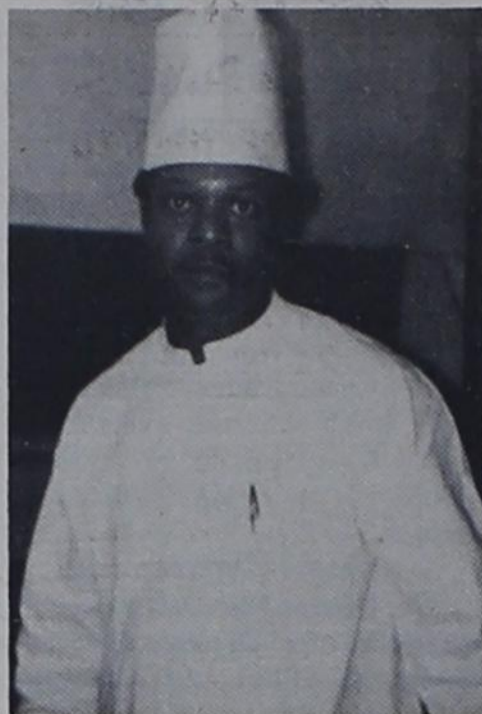

However, though the initial verve, enthusiasm and grandeur was there for Negro History Week, it was allowed to become stagnant, thus losing its appeal and significance to the young and old.

If it is to be revived it must, not only give us a measurement as to where we are, where we have been, but most importantly, what and where we must be.

On this level, the challenge is to make Black history a presence in the land, more than a theme for rapping once a year upon, but to give it a visible body and form. It should be totalized into all curriculums, totalized into the black community as part of our everyday lives. Our youth today see it as an isolated phenomenon and the rest of the year very little mention is given about our historical development and our turbulent presence.

Therefore, as teachers of the young, it is necessary for us to develop and maintain a total intellectual offensive against the false universality of white concepts.

This new philosophy of Black History observance would conceive of Black schools and our daily lives as centers of applied knowledge and guides to action. It would relate learning to Black culture and the Black community, and would develop the capacity for growth in the context of the live problems of the day.

Sports of The Times

by Joe Kelly

A week ago there was some doubt, some questions about the Texas Tech basketball team. The Raiders had just dropped a game to Baylor for their first road loss; they were tied with SMU; and they had to play the Mustangs in Dallas.

Now the sun is shining, literally. Tech overcame SMU on a brilliant second half effort and put the pressure on the Ponies. It isn't all clear sailing, but the path is smoother.

A week ago, because of space limitations, these scribbles had to be sliced. Lost were no great earth shaking lines. And part of what was cut Shelby Metcalf, A&M coach, said in midweek.

Shelby said that SMU had the talent, but that Tech played better as a team. What I added was that Tech had the material. Nothing has changed and it's still true, only it was borne out Saturday night.

Worth writing, perhaps, is the estimate that this still primarily is a two-team battle for the championship, between SMU and Tech. Baylor has an outside chance, but that's all.

As of Monday, SMU had road games against Rice, TCU, Arkansas and A&M. Tech was faced with Rice, Texas and Arkansas on the road. Thus, each has two extremely tough road games. Baylor has only two road games, but they are SMU and Tech.

Now, let's look at the record through Saturday. Tech is the only undefeated team at home, crucial to winning titles. But five teams have lost only once at home, so the edge is thin.

On the road Tech again has a slim edge. The Raiders and Baylor, surprisingly, each have won three and lost only one. SMU has won two of three. Where the Raiders might have the edge is only one road loss (Baylor), where the Bears have lost two (Texas, A&M).

A week ago I opined that I thought 12-2 probably would win the conference outright and 11-3 would do no worse than tie. A 10-4 mark this season probably won't be good enough. It's a lead pipe cinch to say that 13-1 will sweep the marbles off the carpet.

Tech is 4-0 at home, 3-1 on the road; SMU is 4-1 and 2-1; Baylor is 2-1 and 3-2. Arkansas and A&M already have lost three on the road in compiling 4-4 marks and have to be considered out of the race, although mathematically still in. It's far from over, of course, but the Raiders are in the driver's seat. The come-from-behind victory over SMU on the road can do nothing except give confidence.

In fact, it's that kind of team. They have won the overtime conference games, they have rallied after being down, they have won the one-point games. All combined, it tells the Raiders that they can win. And the loss to Baylor, even, probably has made Tech a better team for the stretch.

Gerald Myers and George Davidson have done a great coaching job this season. Gerald has built an unselfish unit that plays well together and runs his offense.

George has built a good defensive team that has forced mistakes and turnovers, limited the opposition. Together, it has been a good combination and it is getting every bit of value out of individuals. What's more, you can't single a player out, not one, as being the key to the Raiders.

Sure, the five starters have done well, but when you can go to the bench for such players as William Johnson, Phil Bailey, Bryan Mauk, Gene Kaberline and James Derkowski—and all deliver—you have a remarkably well-rounded squad.

The individual glory of leading the conference in scoring, free throw shooting or rebounding isn't present. What is there is team play. And on such are championships built.

Bozeman Principal Wants Teachers to Work With Students

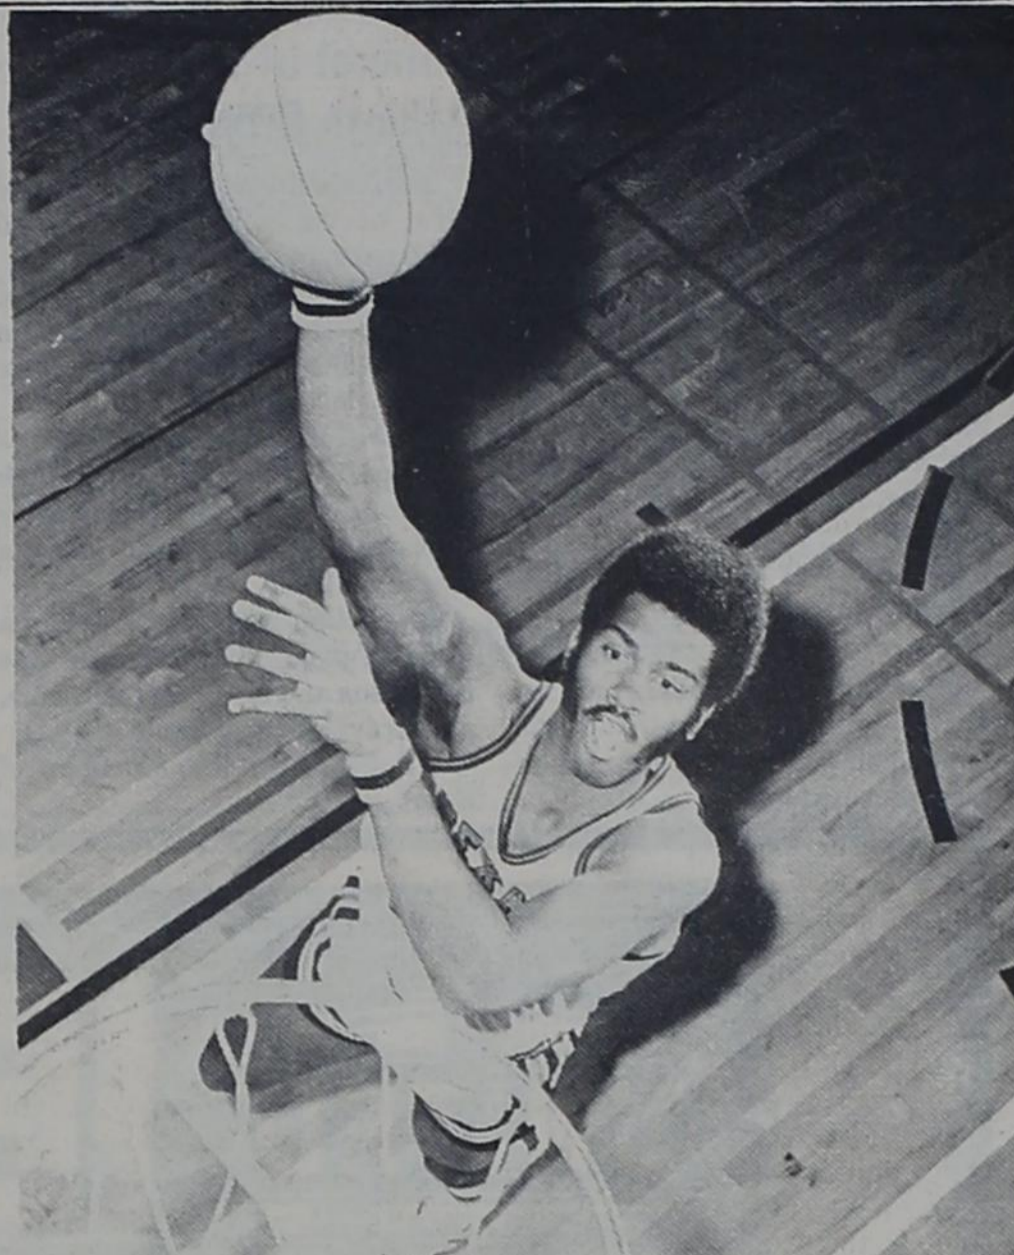

Bozeman Elementary School's principal, Clarence Priestly, likes to see teachers take the students "where they are" and work with them to the best of their ability.

The principal of the northeast Lubbock school is a twenty-year veteran in classroom and school administration assignments. A native of Lubbock, Priestly was graduated from Dunbar High School in 1946. He has been in his present assignment for five years.

Priestly advocates that parents visit his school to talk to the teachers and to him. "If it is impossible for one of my student's parents to come to the school, I would hope that they would call me about any concerns," he says. He comments that his staff teaches much that isn't found in textbooks, such as courtesy and honesty. He makes these points with pride, adding, "This is what I mean when I say that the Bozeman staff goes beyond the call of duty."

The Music Department of Mt. Vernon United Methodist Church is presenting Mrs. Jimmie T. Smith in a mammoth musical Sunday, February 18, 1973 at 4 p.m. Mrs. Smith is the daughter of Mr. & Mrs. Jimmie Walker of 2602 Globe and the wife of Mr. Buddy Smith, who is a Senior at Prairie View University.

Mrs. Smith is Bilingual Third Grade Teacher at McWhorter Elementary School in Lubbock. She is a 1967 graduate of Dunbar High School and a 1971 graduate of West Texas State University in Canyon, Texas with a major in Spanish and a minor in English. While at West Texas State, she was a member of the University Orchestra for 3 1/2 years, and a member of the Amarillo Symphony Orchestra for 1 year.

The purpose of the program is to bring spiritual interest in the church as well as financial effort. We are hoping that it will encourage other young people in the community who have musical talent.

Donations are $1.50. Please help us in this effort. The public is cordially invited. If you are interested, please call 744-0777 or 744-8248 for further information.

Mrs. Smith doesn't need further introduction since she was born and reared in Lubbock.

ringing the bell

with Bob Tieucl

Black History Week: The following is a portion of a "letter to the editor" we forwarded to a number of daily and weekly newspapers recently in the West Texas-New Mexico area. It follows:
To the Editor: Teachers, students, as well as other leaders and laymen in various church, civic, social and fraternal circles are being offered a special kit for use during the coming Black History Week, which will observe its 59th Anniversary Feb. 11-17. Theme for this year's observance is: "Biography Illumines the Black Experience."

The week was formerly known as Negro History Week but black scholars for the most part urge the use of the term "Black" while a minority prefer "Afro-American." It is simply a matter of personal choice. Kits may be ordered from the non-profit and research Association for the Study of African-American Life, 1407 14th Street, N.W. Washington, D.C.

The week or month (National Brotherhood Month of the National Conference of Christians and Jews) may also be observed as "Black Pride" or "Black Dignity" or "Black Awareness" time. Black civic clubs, fraternal groups, churches, etc. can use the time to urge members and neighbors to remove trash and debris and weeds from their surroundings and either tear down or board up old structures and old cars etc. that are fire and safety hazards in our black community. We are our brother's keeper.

Black can be beautiful so can our communities. We too, would like to see towns and cities like Amarillo, Lamesa, Abilene, Midland-Odessa, Lubbock, Pecos; Hobbs, Clovis, Roswell, all in New Mexico as well as other areas, join in the efforts to make our black communities, a more beautiful and clean place to live in.

We call on our city authorities to not discriminate in the enforcing of our health, safety and sanitation laws in the black community.

Most of all, this is a good time to visit your local library as most of them are well stocked with Black Literature and History volumes. If librarians don't have what you want, ask them, and they will get it for you. Right on brothers and Sisters. Let's get with it. Signed: The Bellringer.

Dear Bob: Please come to see us again. I do enjoy reading your column in the West Texas Times and the Midland daily paper. Thanks again for your gift of a one year's subscription to the West Texas Times. Signed: Jack Kyle Daniels, Executive Director, High Sky Girls Ranch, Midland, Texas.

Dear Bob: Why don't the West Texas Times and other black publications like Ebony, Sepia and others feature more black beauties on the front cover? Hear tell that Ebony sold out of January issues because of black beauty on cover. Signed T.N. - We agree. Will pass the tip on.

The following list of ministers in the West Texas area will be contacted by this correspondent shortly in regards to a West Texas Church directory to be published by the West Texas Times. They are I.M. Woodard, W. Gentry, E.M. Pryor, T.C. Jones, G. Williams, A. Hansom, L.H. Hall, Joe Terry, I.W. Ward, Roy Gentry, R.D. Medlock, C. Parks, A. Denman, A. Moore, G. Samuel, Amos Taylor, A. Keener, W.R. Ockletree, M.T. Reed, Waydell Nixon, James Hill, A.W. Wilson, A.L. Davis, K.S. Sutton, H. Bowers, Rufus McClain, Robert Smith, C.C. Campbell, L.V. Miles, A.W. Washington, E.F. Nelson, W.M. Knapp, A. Dotson, V.A. Baucham, W.T. Wright, Ed Lawson, T.R. Watkins, V.L. Brown, G.T. Curry, M.E. Robinson, and A.J. Williams.

A number of these ministers will be appearing at the sixth anniversary of Rev. & Sis. L.H. DeGrate as spiritual leaders of The South Union Baptist Church, McCamey, Texas. See you there brethren. If your name is not listed above, we hope to add it here real soon. The date for the appreciation service of Bro. DeGrate, who is a dedicated mission and education worker as well as pastor is Feb. 11-18-21-22-25. Let's make it a West Texas Homecoming Brethern.

Dianne Henderson New Director for Lubbock OIC

Miss Dianne Henderson was elected last Saturday afternoon, by members of the Lubbock Opportunities Industrialization Center Board of Directors, as executive director of the local program.

Mt. Vernon United Methodist Church

Last Sunday morning was something special at our church. It was a Sunday set aside to honor one of our members, George Woods, a longtime resident and civic worker of Lubbock. With Sunday as Dedicational Sunday for Mr. Woods, Dr. F.L. Lovings, president of the local chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP), delivered the layman message.

Let us continue to pray for and visit our sick and shut in members.

Twentieth & Birch Church of Christ

The annual Bible Lecturship was held this week in Lamesa, Texas. Several of Lubbock's preachers participated in the program. Brother Waydell Nixon, our minister, made the affair with some of the Lubbock preachers.

Brother and Sister Nelson McCormick are on the sick list this week. Please remember them in your prayers to the Father.

The ladies of the church began their Bible class last Sunday afternoon at 5 p.m. They are hoping that others will join them in this effort each Sunday afternoon.

Johnathan Evans and Waydell Nixon are taking the communion to the sick this month. Be sure to let them know if anyone requested the communion.

Other members on the sick and shut in list include Sister E. Carroll, Sister Georgia Malone and Sister Sadie Harper. Go by and encourage these sisters. Brother T.E. Ray has not been feeling well lately.

Brownfield—Supt. Mrs. Ethel Williams was at her post Sunday, February 4th, and reported a splendid service. The lesson for the morning was taught by Brother Willie Terry and Sister Mary Byrd. Our pastor, Rev. S.N. North, brought the high points on the Sunday School lesson.

Bozeman Principal...

Bozeman has 610 students enrolled, kindergarten through sixth grade. The staff includes twenty-six teachers. In addition, there are aides, clerks, custodians, and cafeteria personnel. Bozeman shares with other schools the services of specialists, such as nurses, speech therapists, and counselors.

With obvious sincerity and pleasure, Priestly comments, "It is a joy to me to work where there is a spirit of cooperation such as exists at Bozeman. I look forward to getting up and going to work." He praised not only his staff, but the students and parents as well.

Priestly took his bachelor's degree from Huston-Tillotson College, Austin, in 1950. He received his master's degree from the University of Colorado, Boulder, in 1959. He has completed additional academic work at New Mexico State University, Las Cruces, and at Texas Tech University.

The first teaching experience for the friendly administrator was in 1953, when he undertook to teach grades five through eight in a two-teacher school at Shallowater. He stayed in that assignment for six years. In 1959, he joined the faculty of Lubbock's Ella Iles Elementary School, teaching sixth grade and directing after-school recreation. In 1962, he was elevated to the assistant principal's post at Iles, and in 1965, he took the principalship. He was transferred to Bozeman as principal in 1968.

Priestly finds time to participate in a number of organizations. His church membership is with the Mt. Vernon United Methodist. He belongs to Phi Delta Kappa and Omega Psi Phi fraternities, and to several state and national educational organizations. He is former president of the Lubbock Elementary Principals Association, and he is a member of the Community Action Board. He has served in the past with the summer Head Start program.

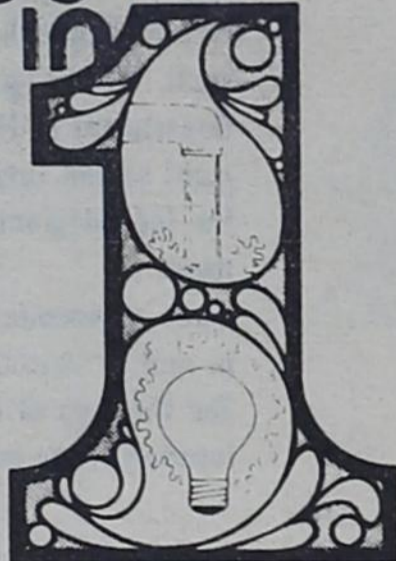

Mrs. Ruth Smart Priestly, wife of the principal, teaches first grade at Haynes Elementary School, located in west Lubbock. They have a married daughter, Mrs. Nell Renee Hodge of Lubbock, who has presented the couple with a granddaughter, Ronette. Little Ronette is four months old. Another daughter, Tanya, is a senior at Dunbar High School. She served this past fall as one of the United Fund "Flames". Their youngest daughter, Sheila, is a sophomore at Dunbar.
