Operating a garden project for low-income citizens is one of the programs financed through an Office of Economic Opportunity grant that Governor Dolph Briscoe announced Friday.

The $34,796 grant to Community Action Board in Lubbock County, Inc., contains $15,527 for administration and $19,269 for General Community Programming. Funded under Title II of the Economic Opportunity Act, the grant is effective retroactively from March 1 through June 30, 1974.

John Taylor, neighborhood program director, says that the board has leased land for gardens in Lubbock and Slaton. The neighborhood councils, which are administered by the board but operate as independent organizations, are charging $10 each for designated plots in order that this can be a long-term project.

Low-income gardeners are provided assistance in their projects and will be able to raise a great deal of their food.

The board operates three neighborhood centers in Lubbock and one in Slaton. During the summer months, classes in arts and crafts are provided for the children. A variety of activities are provided in the neighborhood centers for all ages including a quilting project for some of the women; referral to other social service programs; health education that is provided in cooperation with the West Texas Health Systems; and employment services including coordination with local businesses to hire youth during the summer.

Administration funds are being used to provide technical assistance and seed money to neighborhood groups for special projects; coordinate activities with city and county officials; publish a monthly new letter; and perform general planning and managerial functions.

Grant processing for the state was performed by the Texas Office of Economic Opportunity, a division of the Texas Department of Community Affairs.

Dallas School Principal Elected Vice-President of American Heart Association

Floyd Wilkerson of Dallas was elected Vice President of the American Heart Association, Texas Affiliate, Friday during the Association's Annual Meeting in Fort Worth.

Wilkerson, principal of Roger Q. Mills Elementary School in Dallas, has been active in the American Heart Association for over 20 years. He currently serves on the Texas Affiliate Central Research, Fund Raising, Schools and Colleges, Multicultural Education, and Executive Committees and is a member of the Board of Directors of the Dallas County Chapter of the American Heart Association. He is also a Delegate Representative from Texas to the National Assembly of the American Heart Association.

In accepting the post of Vice President, Wilkerson said that heart disease is the #1 killer in the state today.

"Heart disease is an American epidemic, but for Black Americans, it is an epidemic within an epidemic since heart disease is twice as prevalent among the Black population as the white," said Wilkerson. "These statistics underscore the vital need for the minority population to become actively involved in the community service and educational programs of their local Heart Association."

EDA Approves Ft. Worth Planning Program Grant

Approval of a $75,000 grant to help conduct a program to plan for long-range economic growth and new jobs in the stockyards area of Fort Worth, Texas, was announced today by William W. Blunt, Jr., Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Economic Development.

The city of Fort Worth applied for the grant from the Economic Development Administration, U.S. Department of Commerce.

The city will use the grant to pay administrative costs of an economic development planning staff for the stockyards area for a year.

Fort Worth reports high unemployment—especially among minority residents—since the closing of the city's last major packing plant in 1971.

The project includes marketing studies to help determine types of economic activity that would generate jobs and income in the study area. It also includes coordination of public and private efforts aimed at the restoration of the Fort Worth Stockyards.

The city will provide $25,000 to complete the $100,000 total cost of the program, which will consider redevelopment efforts by other communities with stockyards no longer used by the cattle industry.

Lubbock Delegates Attend Confab

Two delegates of the Pride of Lubbock Lodge No. 328, J.P. Burrell and James Craven, Jr., were in attendance at the Most Worshipful Prince Hall Grand Lodge Free and Mason of Texas and Jurisdiction's 99th annual meeting June 23 through 27 at the downtown Sheraton in Fort Worth, Texas.

The local officers attended the meeting with 1600 other brothers from 500 other local lodges throughout the state of Texas. Burrell, Wishful Master, stated: "It was one of the greatest meetings ever held." The local secretary, Craven, admitted: "There was great harmony among the group attending and everyone was agreeable."

"We appreciate being present at a meeting and being associated with an organization that is trying to do something to help mankind," said Mr. Burrell.

Members of the East Lubbock Business Association (ELBA), under the sponsorship of Stubb's Bar-b-que, will have a bar-b-que feast at the American Legion Hall in Yellowhouse Canyon Sunday afternoon, July 7, at 2:30 p.m. This special effort, according to an official of ELBA, will attempt to explain the purpose and goals of the organization.

"We need more residents of East Lubbock more involved," admits C.B. Stubblefield, member of the ELBA board of directors. "We want to pack the house on Sunday afternoon (July 7) and tell everyone what the organization is all about," he continued.

The meal will be free and everyone in the community is asked to attend.

Dr. Floyd Perry, associate vice president of Academic Affairs at Texas Tech University, will be the guest speaker. Other board of directors along with Stubblefield will participate on the program. Those members are Harold M. Chatman, R.J. Givens, Alfred Caviel and Bobby Williams, chairman. T.J. Patterson, ELBA president, will serve as master of ceremonies.

The primary purpose of the afternoon feast is to inform residents of Lubbock more about ELBA.

MARK 50th ANNIVERSARY—Hundreds of Lubbockites were on hand to wish Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Phea, Sr., a "Happy 50th Wedding Anniversary" last Sunday afternoon at Mae Simmons Community Center. Serving as host and hostess were their sons and daughter, Joe Phea, of 1816 East 24th Street; Theodore Phea, Jr., of 1801 East 24th Street; and Mrs. Emmalene Phea Chatman of 2308 Date Avenue.

Lovely gifts, wrapped in a golden colored paper, were seen throughout the beautifully decorated rooms of the community center. Many of their friends mingled and talked with each other throughout the huge hall, expressing happiness for this couple who moved to Lubbock from Bonham, Texas, in 1951.

The Pheas, who reside at 1810 East 24th Street, were married June 22nd, 1924, at Bonham.

Out-of-town guests included Mrs. Gussie Dodd Davis of Bakersfield, California, a sister of Mrs. Phea; and Mrs. Tommie Maddrey of Bonham.

Minority Business Aid Could Revitalize Area

We are sure that any type of revitalization program for minority business development could help any community in America today. This is especially true with the communities in West Texas. This point was hammered out loud and clear by Alex Armendaris, director of the Department of Commerce's Office of Minority Business Enterprise (OMBE) before 700 mayors during their Forty-second Annual Conference of U.S. Mayors in San Diego, California.

We must agree with Mr. Armendaris when he said: "If we are to restore life to our neighborhoods, the vital organ of our cities, we must insure that business can grow there." He went on to add: "Today we have only a piece of the puzzle, yet we do know that minority entrepreneurship can help you (mayors) restore the vitality of inner city neighborhoods."

We hope that Mayor Roy Bass and his counterparts in Lubbock and West Texas took note to what the OMBE director is talking about. This approach would help a great deal. While redevelopment of deteriorating neighborhoods requires substantial investment and a single business venture would not produce such a turn-around, the clustering of several businesses would substantially improve the commercial environment of any community.

We know that the clustering of these businesses, if made possible, would serve to attract shoppers and to make more feasible municipal investments in street lighting, police protection, landscaping and parking facilities. These type of ventures would also serve to stabilize communities, attract other business investment, and reassure residents that the area has a future.

There are success stories in America who have taken advantage of the business clustering projects. In such places as Norfolk, Pittsburgh and Wilmington these projects are underway through the help of the National Council for Equal Business Opportunity—an OMBE funded organization.

Since there is a plan in the making to further develop a program to coordinate revitalization plans with minority business support resources, we would encourage Mayor Bass to look into the possibility of a research grant which has been provided by OMBE for one year to the U.S. Conference of Mayors. We would encourage that such an effort would involve minority groups who are, at the present time, concerned about the revitalization of their community.

We would hope that our Mayor would formulate some sort of policy or policies that would encourage minority entrepreneurship, such a strategy for community revitalization would overcome many of the racial barriers in the community. No matter how we look at it, a minority business strategy, municipal procurement, zoning patterns, transportation facilities and administrative policies affect the business environment.

Without any doubt, minority business has a long way to go in our community before it will truly enter the mainstream of America. We feel as though a strong momentum is underway in the city of Lubbock. The West Texas Times is proud to have the city of Lubbock and its mayor as a partner in this mutual endeavor, of telling the world that there are people in Lubbock and West Texas who really care about people.

As I See It

by T.J. Patterson

It was quite refreshing to visit in the city of El Paso, Texas, last week. This trip to the city was in regard to a church meeting, but the opportunity I had in visiting with Brother and Sister Jethro Hill (A Delta and Omega) was quite educational. Whenever I travel outside the city limits of the Hub City, I try to find out what other black people are doing in their community.

Brother Hill was informing me on a credit union several brothers of the community have developed. The success, which began with only fifteen dedicated brothers, is slowly coming and the effects of the union is being seen.

You know, a credit union would help our community. They have done it in El Paso, why can't we get it done in Lubbock. As I See It, we can make it happen if we blend our forces together.

The complimentary article on the Opportunities Industrialization Center (OIC) in Reader's Digest was needed. A portion of that story, which appears this month, mentions the Lubbock OIC and its chairman of the board, Rev. A.L. Davis. This is good and we should appreciate good things happening to our community.

When you see Rev. Davis, tell him you read about his good program in the Reader's Digest. He'll appreciate it as well as the participants of LOIC.

It would have been a good thing if Lubbock had been one of the two housing units to receive money from the Department of Housing and Urban Development in Texas last week. Anyway, the Green-Fair Manor Apartments needs some money to be used for rehabilitating the project.

As H.R. Crawford, assistant secretary for housing management, has said: "Too often we have emphasized the buildings, rather than the people." There needs to be some help in those same areas.

Green-Fair Manor has many problems and there should be something done about the many shortcomings seen in that complex.

The National League of United Latin American Citizens (LULAC), director, Joe Benites of Phoenix, Arizona, spoke with confidence last Thursday at the LULAC convention in El Paso. He said: "We are not militant, but we are younger, more educated, more aware, and more of us have more economic power than LULAC's in past years."

Brother Benites made this statement after a two-point program of political participation in the next presidential election. The two point program is as follows:

First, "LULAC hopes to filter down its organization to the local levels information on good and bad legislation as well as explaining voting records of legislators, and

Second, "LULAC hopes to conduct a massive voter registration drive."

If the members of LULAC get their thing together in the Southwest, it will appear as though a sleeping giant is awakening and looking for opportunities.

If you look at it, blacks can do the same thing. We, too, are a sleeping giant in the Southwest.

The whispering grass is telling me that a plan is afoot to seek a predominately black radio station in this part of the country. I hope those persons involved will do what they can to develop such an idea.

Arabs Expect More Than Nixon Promised

Washington—Secret intelligence reports warn that Arab leaders expect more from President Nixon than he actually promised them. They tended to listen to the President with an ear for what they wanted to hear.

Egypt's President Anwar Sadat, Syria's President Hafez al-Assad and Saudi Arabia's King Faisal, according to the intelligence reports, believe the President is committed to settling the Arab-Israeli dispute on their terms.

They fully expect the President to pressure Israel into restoring the 1967 borders and creating an independent Palestinian state. If he fails to get these concessions from Israel, the intelligence reports warn, the Arab leaders may feel double-crossed.

The intelligence reports indicate that the Arab leaders may already be having doubts about Nixon. They urged him to give the Palestinian question first priority. Otherwise, they warned, the moderates wouldn't be able to restrain the Palestinian extremists.

Now Sadat has made a personal, passionate appeal to his new friend in the White House to use his influence to stop the Israeli attacks on southern Lebanon. Similar messages have been sent by Assad and Faisal.

Lebanon's Premier Solh telephoned U.S. Ambassador G. McMurtrie Godley to request new U.S. assurances of Lebanon's security.

The President's failure to restrain Israel has disappointed the Arabs. There is danger his triumphant tour of the Arab capitals could backfire on him.

Storm Warnings: Economic storm warnings are hitting the White House from all over the world. The huge oil price increase has halted two dozen nations, which have no oil of their own. They cannot possibly pay the $10 billion that has been added to their oil bill.

Food prices have also soared beyond the reach of millions of people. Unless these people are fed, several nations can expect violence in the streets.

One of the Western partners, Italy, is on the brink of bankruptcy. This could cause financial repercussions throughout the West, causing banks with heavy Eurodollar deposits to fail.

Many nations today face economic collapse. Unless some solutions are found quickly, economic despair could spread around the world. It could produce the worst economic disaster in history.

The United States, of course, couldn't escape the repercussions. Already, the stock market is faltering and bankruptcies are increasing.

But President Nixon's economic advisers refused to panic. They insist the U.S. economy, at least, is strong enough to survive any foreseeable financial crisis. They also believe that the world's money managers have the ability to head off a disaster.

Treasury Secretary William Simon believes that simple monetary prudence and belt-tightening will prevent a world depression. He intends to call upon the American people to do their part by holding down consumption.

Perhaps the world is not headed for depression and disaster. But it is at the crossroad.

Forgotten Project: Everyday, the United States is becoming more dependent upon Middle East oil. The American people simply are consuming more oil than the United States is producing. In another five years, our oil bill may reach more than $15 billion a year. Even the United States, with all its wealth, cannot dump that much money into Arab coffers year after year without going bankrupt.

At the height of the gasoline shortage, President Nixon announced a grand plan to make the United States self-sufficient in energy by 1980. He gave it a fancy label—"Project Independence"—and then apparently forgot all about it.

The Federal Energy Administration, which is supposed to implement "Project Independence", hasn't even developed a blueprint on how to do it. The President, meanwhile, has made a deal with Saudi Arabia, which will make the United States more dependent than ever upon Arab oil.

"Project Independence" isn't the only problem that the federal energy experts are neglecting. They were also supposed to prepare plans to protect the elderly, the poor and the disadvantaged from the energy crunch.

For example, FEA promised to set up a "Special Impacts" office earlier this year to help the helpless, who are victimized by high energy crisis. But it has come up with only one program, which has been roundly criticized by the migrant workers it was supposed to help.

The federal energy planners, it appears, are not very energetic.

He Didn't Mean It: State Department insiders report that Secretary Henry Kissinger has had second thoughts about his threat to resign over the wiretape imbroglio.

In private, Kissinger has frequently threatened to resign when he was exhausted and felt unappreciated. His suppressed frustration finally came to the surface during an emotional press conference in Salzburg, Austria.

But sources close to Kissinger say he didn't really mean it. He had come home from his herculean triumph in the Middle East expecting to be praised. Instead, he was bombarded with questions about his role in the wiretap controversy. It was more than he could contain. And for a few minutes, he lost his cool.

It wasn't his first temper tantrum. He has been known to explode with rage on other occasions when he has been exhausted and frustrated. One former aid told me Kissinger once hurled a book at him. Another said Kissinger let fly a wad of crumpled paper.

But these outbursts have been rare. And until Salzburg, they had been confined to the privacy of his inner office. All they prove is that Kissinger, like the rest of us, is human. And like the rest of us, he sometimes feels like chucking the whole thing.

But Kissinger's friends say he really loves the diplomatic game and has no wish to resign.

GOP Fears: The Republican members of the House Judiciary Committee are hardening in their support of President Nixon. This distresses Republican leaders who would like to divorce the party from the President.

A big GOP vote against impeachment, they fear, will bring down the party with the President. Voters who oppose the President's conduct may take out their vengeance in November upon all Republican candidates.

Yet most committee Republicans are ignoring the majority of Americans and are listening instead to a small minority of vocal Nixon supporters.

Judiciary chairman Peter Rodino, a Democrat, has made repeated concessions behind closed doors to appease the Republicans. He is eager to vote out a bipartisan bill of particulars. But committee sources say he will be pleased if he is able to win five Republican votes out of the 16 Republicans on his committee.

The five GOP members most likely to join the Democrats in an impeachment vote are Reps. William Cohen of Maine, M. Caldwell Butler of Virginia, Tom Railsback of Illinois, Hamilton Fish of New York and Robert McClory of Illinois. But not one of them is certain.

Meanwhile, the House leadership has told Rodino privately that it wants a House vote on impeachment not later than August 9th. This might still allow time for a complete Senate trial before the November elections.

Heppner, Ore. Gazette
Times: "Streaking by college students makes more sense than lying down in front of Army trucks. And it's a wonderful way to tell the boys from the girls, which we haven't been able to do for a decade. But how come photographers never get on-coming pictures of streakers at work? All of them are rear view pictures. If I had assigned a photographer to cover a parade and he came back with a picture of it disappearing in the distance I'd fire him. Newsweek ran a picture of a dozen streakers, taken from the rear of course. It looked more like a platter of Parker House rolls. Remember when if a kid in college had a B.A. it was only a college degree?"

spent two days with his sister and family, Mrs. Joe McGowen. Accompanying him home were a sister of Navasota, Mrs. Addie Belle Howard; and two cousins, Mrs. Alea Bonner and Mrs. Estella Kennedy of Houston. The trip to Los Angeles was a gift from Mr. Washington to the three relatives who have never been on the West Coast.

Her love is shoreless, a unique thing;
Much richer than any man made ring.
A closeness that could never be imitated,
Always filled with love, never hated.
She's never failed to nurture,
The fruit of her labor she will endure.
Forever patient, always calm,
This is dedicated for my dear Mom.

The most wonderful person, true indeed,
Sacrificing to fulfill my every need.
She'll be there whenever there is sadness,
Accompanying kind words, promoting gladness.
Without such love humanity would be lost,
The fortunes of the universe, it couldn't be bought.
Fathomless love, one to behold,
Far superior to diamonds or gold.
Forever expanding her external charm,
A beautiful woman, my dear Mom.
Mother, you are always dearest to me,
It makes no difference where you may be.
Come what may, Come what will,
I love you Mom, and always will.

Final Rites Read Here this Week for Longtime Resident, Mrs. Pearl Fair

Crime Prevention In Texas

The scene is an average neighborhood in Texas. A would-be burglar stalks one of the homes; he sees that all doors appear to be securely locked and windows are shut. He walks to the rear of the house and disgustedly sees no signs of invited opportunity. Before he can leave the area, a police patrol car stops him and checks his identification. The police were summoned when an alert neighbor reported a suspicious man near the home of an out-of-town family.

What could have been a financial tragedy was averted because of the public information campaign being conducted by Governor's Criminal Justice Division, is one of the first comprehensive programs of its type in the United States. Six cities, Amarillo, Abilene, Beaumont, Corpus Christi, Odessa, and Waco, are involved in the massive public information effort.

By systematically using the mass media, making community talks, neighborhood visits, and on

Aaron Tops Fan Mail List

Henry Aaron, the Atlanta Braves home run king, Thursday, June 13, was named America's No. 1 recipient of fan mail in 1973 by the U.S. Postal Service.

Postmaster General E.T. Klasken presented Aaron, during a brief ceremony in Washington, D.C., with a plaque which read: "Henry Aaron, America's No. 1, Home Runs—723; Fan Mail (1973) 900,000."

According to a survey conducted by the Postal Service, Aaron received a total of approximately 900,000 fan letters during 1973. The figure was supplied by the Atlanta Braves Club.

In its survey, the Postal Service asked professional sports organizations, the three major television networks, motion picture companies, television production companies and fan mail organizations, to submit the approximate amounts of mail their top personalities each received. Some who were invited to participate did not choose to respond.

Aaron proved to be the winner,

It was a long weekend for me. First, I kept dousing the thermometer outside my window with cool water, trying to get it down to a point where it was reasonable.

And then, unable to do much about it, I took to my cubbyhole where I ponder great and little things, makes hen tracks on paper, file for my company reports that unquestionably are added to waste disposal machines and, occasionally, hit a typewriter key or two.

When I finally emerged, I was dripping moisture that I thought must certainly be perspiration. On second inspection, the moisture turned out to be tears. You see, someone had the audacity to slip me a story that pro footballers were going to strike.

To paraphrase the famed saying during the days of the Sox baseball scandals, "Say it ain't so, Donny." Football players going on strike? Oh, no, it can't be.

By reading the moisture-stained pages of the local daily advertising journal, I found it was a fact. The big, burly pros were oppressed, they lacked freedom, whatever that means.

No more Saturdays and Sundays of deciding which game probably would be the most interesting this fall. No more agonizing over Roger the Dodger and Craig Morton. No more distress about figuring how the Houston Oilers would lose their game.

No, sir, the pros were going out on strike, complete with picket lines and, presumably, placards on poles proclaiming that the owners were unfair.

No more "thrilling" College All-Star pro champions game from Chicago. Only the interesting Canadian Football League games and the neophyte World Football League battles are to be seen. It's enough to make a grown man cry.

So far I haven't seen a list of the demands that the pros have made. The only thing that has come out is that they are kept in slavery. They just can't go to the team that they want to play for and their benefits are pretty bad.

Oh, shed a tear for the poor old pros, those grand old men who managed to pass basket weaving and phiz ed, helped along by some civic minded professors.

Where the former old football players had to man the pumps for dear old Enzon after completing their college careers, now they are being starved on salaries of which even bank presidents wouldn't be ashamed.

And, once signed to a contract, poor Bubba Blowout is forced to remain with that team until eternity—or until he plays out his option one year, or is traded to another club he doesn't like. Meanwhile, smart lawyers help negotiate the best deals and advise the players where to buy the best investments with his rewards for size, speed and shark like skin.

Those mean old club owners, the ones who pay the bonuses, who foot the bills, who stick their necks out, who have fickle fans with whom to contend. Why, they're little better than Simon Legree. Pull that barge! Lift that bale! Get a little drunk and—you get invaluable publicity.

Frankly, pro football has become about as exciting as, if Nick Roberts will forgive me, figuring out who is going to win this week's wrestling matches. Maybe the strike is good, if it costs us one season; the pros might have to go to work and see how the rest of us live.

Here it is July and I haven't had my boat in the water yet, for one reason or another. But a recent Parks & Wildlife article has my appetite whet.

The release said that kamloops trout and coho salmon had been switched from Heart of the Hills Research Station to Inks Lake. The fish were to have been stocked in Lake Meredith, but that Northern Panhandle lake isn't full enough yet by P&W standards.

Anyway, a good friend of mine lives at Inks Lake and he says that the latch is on the outside. It would be a good place to headquarter. He could play golf and I could fish.

John Priddy, one of the original Red Raider Club officers, has lived at Inks Lake for seven years and hasn't even been on the body of water once. His hangup is golf, which seems a shame in these days of high meat prices. He could have a well stocked deep freeze, instead of a trophy case.

Anyway, Inks Lake was chosen because it has year-round cool water, abundant forage and public access. It's within easy range of Lubbockites and rates at nearby hostleries are reasonable.

The fish are running about half a pound to a pound in size and, while you probably won't have one mounted, the limit of 10 in possession should mean good pan fries. P&W put antibiotics in the water to hold down disease and moortality and it seems to be working.

Do you have any idea of how much wild game meat was harvested in Texas last year? P&W conservatively estimates that the list was headed by 13 million pounds of white-tailed deer. Another 9 million pounds of freshwater fish were taken by sportsmen, with commercial fishermen hauling in 570,000 pounds.

Friends, that's a lot of meat anyway you look at it. Add to it commercial saltwater fishermen, who reaped almost 100 million pounds of fin and shell fish and it staggers the imagination.

If and when there ever is a history of minor league baseball written, I hope there will be a chapter on Roy Parker. For those of you who never heard of him, Roy unquestionably the most versatile athlete ever to play in the old WT-NM League.

Roy was the type who could win 27 games with his lefthanded slants, play the outfield when not pitching, take a turn at first base, relieve six nights out of seven, hit close to .400 and make it all look easy.

And, with the Texas League using the designated hitter, he's the old player who probably could step right in today and hit consistently—and with power. He was something else.

"Summer of '74" . . . Continued From Page One

ciation are cooperating to bring this exhibit to the public. It may be seen from June 25 through July 13.

"Summer of 1774", as this exhibit is called, serves to remind the "jet age set" how his forehearers lived, especially in Kentucky in 1774, as it was settled by men such as James Harrod and Daniel Boone. These rugged pioneers used their muskets for protection from Indians and to provide food for the table from the abundant supply in the forests around Harrodstown (now Harrodsburg). Two British made muskets from this period are shown in the exhibit. These and other articles are on loan to the library from the Briercroft Savings and Loan's Mount Vernon collection.

Mr. V.A. Pistole, Lubbock businessman, has loaned various household items used by his family in the early 1800's in Kentucky. These are displayed in the Genealogical Department of the library. There is an interesting hand woven coverlet, flat irons that had to be heated in a fireplace before being used to iron clothes; a pressed wood clock, and a biscuit jar which made the journey with the family from Virginia to Kentucky.

Also a part of this exhibit is a spinning wheel of the same type used in pre-revolutionary times. An interesting document in the exhibit is a paper bonding James Harrod as an executor of an estate. It bears his signature and also those of Samuel McDowell and William Montgomery, a famous Indian fighter. Mr. William Harrod, conductor of the Lubbock Symphony, is a descendant of this pioneer and remembers hearing his grandfather speak of him.

The exhibit will be in place until July 13, and the library is open from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Thursday, and 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Friday and Saturday. It will be closed on Thursday, July 4, a city holiday.

South Plains Association of Governments Receives Grants for Law Enforcement

Governor Dolph Briscoe has approved four grants totaling $87,159 to the area served by the South Plains Association of Governments, Lubbock, for improving law enforcement and justice.

Largest of the action grants, $25,713, goes to SPAG for fourth-year funding of the regional law enforcement teletype network. The network permits communication with other agencies and provides access to computerized data from state and national information centers.

Garza County will receive $11,859 for second-year funding of adult and juvenile probation services.

Crosby County has been awarded a grant of $11,687 for second-year funding of a project providing social and personal rehabilitative services to juvenile and adult misdemeanor probationers.

A grant of $37,900 will go to SPAG for criminal-justice planning in the counties of Bailey, Cochran, Crosby, Dickens, Floyd, Garza, Hale, Hockley, King, Lamb, Lubbock, Lynn, Motley, Terry and Yoakum.

The money comes from the Criminal Justice Division of the

Newly Funded Community Service Project Begun at Texas Tech University

Using university academic expertise to help rural areas and small communities of the South Plains solve housing, health and environmental problems is the objective of a newly funded community service project of Texas Tech University, administered through the Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System.

D.M. McElroy, head of Continuing Education at Texas Tech, will direct the project, an expansion of an existing program at the university.

With the cooperation of the South Plains Association of Governments (SPAG), seminars will be conducted by professors whose backgrounds provide them with unique knowledge on the various problems to be explored.

Videotapes of some of the seminars will be produced by KTXT-TV, Texas Tech's educational television station. Some of the tapes will be prepared for possible broadcast to the general public; others will be produced for video cassette distribution among local governments comprising SPAG membership.

To conduct the project, Texas Tech is matching $23,519 of its own funds with a $46,000 federal grant from the higher education Title I Community Service and Continuing Education Program. The Coordinating Board administers the Title I grants for public and private colleges in Texas.

Crime Prevention . . .

premise inspections, the anti-crime drive is striking at the heart of residential and commercial burglary opportunity. Governor Briscoe commented on the state's staggering burglary rate when he formally approved project funding. He said, "Most burglaries are due to the oversight of a few simple security measures. Targets of opportunity in burglary are easy to recognize and eliminate: a door left unlocked, an open window, an open garage door, or a yard strewn with newspapers—an indication that a family is gone and their home unattended."

"Statewide emphasis on the prevention of this type of costly crime should make a significant impact on disabling the fast moving cycle of crime."

"The success of any program of this nature, which is totally dedicated to crime prevention, is the ability of the police to encourage citizen involvement plus the citizens' genuine willingness to protect themselves."

"If Texans will take the common sense approach of securing their homes at all times, we can witness a great decrease in burglary victimization."

The campaign utilizes a concept relatively new in the United States. In this country, police have neglected the area of security, relying solely on apprehension after the fact.

Crime prevention, on the other hand, involves anticipation, recognition and appraisal of the crime risk, plus action to remove or make that risk less attractive.

The stated goal of the program is to reduce the incidence of burglary by 18 percent the first year and 30 percent in the fifth year.

The Black Experience: Am I a Racist? (A test in racism). According to Harriette Flachmeier in the Dallas Morning News "White racism is fundamentally the assumption that being white is superior to being non-white. While few whites today would argue for biological superiority, most whites assume a cultural, social and personal superiority...although few of us today participate directly in acts of violence and hostility against non-whites, nearly all whites accept the psychological "benefits" of having a designated caste of inferiors", states Ms. Flachmeier.

"Who is a racist? Here are a few examples: A racist is someone who thinks Blacks don't live in certain neighborhoods because they don't want to. A racist is someone who favors civil rights, but knows you have to watch out for property values. A racist is someone who believes there is a place for everyone—as long as everyone stays in his place. A racist is someone who thinks some Blacks are as good as white people. A racist is someone who believes that everyone in our society gets what he deserves. A racist is someone who believes that America is already the land of equal opportunity. A racist is someone who thinks Blacks make great athletes and entertainers, but not people", believes Ms. Flachmeier of Garland, Texas. She concludes: "Most whites do not know they are racists and remain under the illusion of innocence. They fail to reflect on events or fail to take racism seriously. Some whites are vaguely aware and are beginning to feel uncomfortable but find it easier to rationalize away the causes of the problems.

"What I am saying is, we are all racists; we have different brands of racism. To explore and examine the myths of prejudice and hate that prevail within the white community, systems and institutions is a mammoth job and each individual has to begin where one is with the issue. With courage and determination our society can be restructured so that the social systems and structures make freedom, justice and power equally accessible to all people", concludes Ms. Flachmeier.

A. Lewis Williams, hard hitting and forthright editor of the A.M.E. Christian Recorder, in a recent editorial decried the practice of a number of black Methodist denominations making "chancellors" of bishops in the colleges over which they preside as "a thorn in the side of educators for many years, and no less troublesome today." He adds, "Because a man is a bishop, does not necessarily prepare him to be the high executive officer of an educational institution."

Black and Brown leaders and organizations throughout the country are lining up in strong opposition to a bill pending before the U.S. Senate that would stifle attempts by minorities to gain access to the broadcast media. As we go to press public hearings are being held on License Renewal Act (H.R. 12993) which has already passed the House of Representatives. "This bill strikes a devastating blow to the legitimate aspirations of minorities to gain ownership and control of mass communications media in their communities", states Dr. Carlton Goodlett, president of the National Newspaper Publishers Association.

Letters should be addressed to the Senate Commerce Committee, Attn: Senator John O. Pastore, Chairman, U.S. Senate, Washington D.C. 20510. The Federal Communications Act now requires each TV and radio broadcaster to apply every three years to the FCC for a renewal of their license to operate. Black or Brown or other minority groups can now challenge the renewal of a station's license and obtain the license for themselves. According to the Oklahoma Eagle "just the threat of a challenge has forced television and radio stations to be more responsive to Black needs. Now we stand to lose even that", it concludes. Write or wire today. Tomorrow may be too late.
