

Seminar Sponsored by March of Dimes Held in Lubbock Recently

Leaders of men's civic organizations, women's groups, and youth sponsors were hosted by the National Foundation-March of Dimes in Lubbock in a one day educational seminar on the problem of birth defects in Texas. The conference was designed to present the size and the seriousness of the birth defects problem in Texas.

Lubbock physician, Jack Schneider, M.D. discussed "Perinatal Center Development" in Texas to care for high risk mothers and babies. He was followed by Mrs.

Beryl Gibson, R.N., Dallas City Health Department, Maternal Child Care Division, who addressed the group on the "Need for Public Concern." Mrs. Gibson challenged community leaders to do something about the more than 17,000 children that are born with birth defects each year. Several factors, she explained, are directly related to an increase in birth defects. For instance, in Texas the number of teenagers marrying is increasing at a rate four times that of all Texans. In addition, the number of babies born to Texas mothers 19 and under is increasing at a rate five times that of all Texas births. One out of 10 babies born in Texas has a low birth weight which is a factor in birth defects. She went on to say that one-third of Texas infant deaths were due to birth injuries, difficult labor, or loss of oxygen to vital tissues and that 146 counties in Texas have infant death rates higher than the national average. Also, 76,000 children under six were born without any prenatal care. She challenged those

Nursing School Approved For Texas Tech

The Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System, Friday (April 18) approved a school of nursing for Texas Tech University and the Texas Tech University School of Medicine.

Texas Tech President Grover E. Murray, who attended the meeting of the Coordinating Board, notified other administrative officials of the university and the School of Medicine of the approval.

The Texas Tech Board of Regents at its January 31 meeting approved the proposal for the school of nursing and authorized its submission to the Coordinating Board.

Results from a nursing project survey (1971-74) sponsored by the Coordinating Board indicated the need for the establishment of a baccalaureate nursing program in Lubbock.

The nursing education proposal suggested the establishment of a school of nursing which would provide the preparation of nurse practitioners at various levels in a "... boundries totally unacceptable ..."

In a press conference held Tuesday morning, members of the Political Awareness Committee LULAC Council No. 263 attacked the proposed single member districts offered by Representatives R.B. (Mac) McAlister and Elmer Tarbox.

"Rep. McAlister and Tarbox recently proposed a plan for dividing the City of Lubbock into two single member districts," said Froy Salinas. He went on to say, "Their proposed boundries (which was approved by a legislative sub-committee and now pending before the House Reapportionment Committee) are totally unacceptable to the Mexican American Community."

The local LULAC organization also went on record in saying that the Representatives' proposed plan clearly shows their "callous insensitivity and blatant disregard for the needs of our community."

It was revealed at the press multiple entry-exit curriculum.

The curriculum would facilitate training of nurses' aides, licensed vocational nurses, the associate degree nurse and culminating in the baccalaureate degree nurse.

conference that the legislative action taken by the reapportionment sub-committee was "evasive and in direct conflict with a recent court decision concerning single member districts. Mr. McAlister and Mr. Tarbox used their influence as legislators with their fellow representatives on the sub-committee to promote their self interest," said Salinas.

Local LULAC officials feel as though the proposed boundry lines completely dilute the Mexican-American vote by splitting the Mexican-American population evenly between the two proposed districts. "Their plan is an intentional plot to completely deny the Mexican-Americans of Lubbock access to the political process and to minimize the impact of our vote", continued Salinas.

The essence of single member legislative districts is "community of interests among the voters in the district is the feeling of officials of the local organization." "There are two objective criteria of such community of interest, and they are (a) median income, and (b) median education," Salinas reported.

The news media of Lubbock heard, in a written statement from LULAC, that the McAlister and Tarbox proposed district lines ignore such objective standards by splitting people of similar median income and similar median education. "They mix people of high and low income and they mix people of high and low educational levels between the two districts. The result is a denial of any objective basis to their proposed plan."

Mr. Salinas told the group: "It is ironic that the objective criteria of Urban and Rural areas used was in cutting Pete Laney of Hale Center out of the Urban Lubbock and giving him only Rural areas in Lubbock County. How unfortunate that objective criterias were not used for the two districts drawn strictly within the city limits of Lubbock."

"We are today (Tuesday) calling upon the House Reapportionment Committee to correct the actions taken by the sub-committee. We are also asking the committee to approve a redistricting plan which will have some objectivity and reflect the spirit of the court decisions. Furthermore, we are pleading with the committee to deny approval of the McAlister-Tarbox plan."

A warning was given by the local LULAC chapter that if the committee fails to follow the spirit of the prior court decision, they will ask the court to intervene. "Furthermore, should these measures not prove productive additional litigation will be forthcoming," said Salinas.

On Kissinger

For some time, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger was both the darling of the press and the star of the Ford and Nixon administrations.

That was because Kissinger, primarily under Richard Nixon's direction, achieved outstanding results as a negotiator in Russia, China and the Middle East.

No such dazzling series of accomplishments could continue forever; the Secretary's most recent mission failed and Kissinger is in trouble with Congress for allegedly not being fully candid on several subjects.

Thus critics, long without ammunition, are currently firing away with relish and in volume. It's rumored Kissinger will resign. And some of the President's Palace Guard are working to divide Ford and the Secretary.

Whatever happens from here out, Kissinger's record, overall, must be judged one of the more memorable and productive in the history of the United States.

The Bankruptcy Racket

The number of bankruptcies within the past year has increased alarmingly. The implications are several and all bad.

The depressed economy is, of course, the cause of many recent bankruptcies but an even more sinister cause is an unfortunate trend among many to exploit bankruptcy selfishly.

Because so many states allow debtors to enter into bankruptcy rather easily to evade payment of legitimate debts, and because of greater social acceptability of bankruptcy in this economy, the temptation to evade economic responsibility is often considerable.

There are those lawyers and others who now specialize and often encourage the filing of bankruptcy petitions. And in many states one who has avoided payment of debts through bankruptcy can quickly reacquire material wealth with no obligation to pay creditors who were thwarted by successful bankruptcy action.

Federal and state-level remedial action is needed to check what has become the flowering of a bankruptcy racket.

Fishing Time

This is the time of year blood rises in the veins of the millions of fishing Americans. From now until fall fish will be taken in the streams and lakes of every state—many of which have been frozen over during the winter.

What is it about fishing that attracts so many? One expert claims it's the natural instinct of hunting food—the basic drive to survive. Other factors are the break from the hectic pace of life and the fellowship and beauty afforded.

Ford Hits Jackson

In his recent speech to Congress, and since, President Ford has attacked Senator Henry Jackson's interference with the conduct of U.S. foreign policy. Ford cited statistics on Jewish migration from Russia which showed that quiet diplomacy in Washington had raised the number of emigrants from several hundred a year to over 35,000 by 1973.

But, the President said, because of Jackson's success in writing USSR immigration policy requirements into a mutually beneficial trade agreement between the two countries, Moscow cancelled the trade agreement, and the flow of emigrants has dwindled to a few thousand.

President Ford's statistics (and his argument) are impressive. Of course, Jackson's efforts were well-intended, if perhaps also political as charged.

But an intriguing aspect of the President's singling out of Jackson, however, is the implied admission that the Washington Senator is the top contender for the Democratic presidential nomination next year. The campaign is on.

As I See It!

by T.J. Patterson

Over the past several weeks, this newspaper has spoke out in this column about the need for the City of Lubbock to be present at all functions when visitors from other areas are invited guests. It was also suggested that these persons be made honorary citizens by a member of the city council. I think this is a good thing to happen, but there's one thing which must take place. The mayor or city council must be invited.

Organizations sponsoring such functions should make it known through an invitation, by writing, that the mayor or city council are invited to participate in the program at hand. If this is done, the mayor or city council will have ample time to make arrangements to participate in the event. Without a formal invite, it is unfair to assume that those elected officials will be present. After all, who wants to go to a function where one is not invited.

Evidently this was the case when the mayor or city council representative was not present to make the honorary citizenship to State Senator Julian Bond of Georgia.

As I See It, let's hope that both sides in the future will communicate as it should be done. If this is done, everyone is happy. As I See It, communications is always a problems.

It would be a wonderful thing if the overpass on East 24th Street was repaired by the City of Lubbock before someone is fatally injured. As a traveler over this overpass several times a day, I can truly attest to the fact that something must be done about its condition.

If the City of Lubbock would only recover the present asphalt at the west end of the overpass, this would help a great deal. Of course, it takes time to get anything accomplished, but this overpass should be given some type of priority as soon as possible.

If you agree that the overpass should be repaired as soon as possible, call the mayor's office or city manager's office and let these men know that there is a dire need for something to be done. As I See It, I know they will appreciate your input to something which will prevent a bad scene from happening in East Lubbock. As citizens, regardless of where we live, we should be concerned about informing those individuals who can help the situation. I hope you will help to pass on this information.

Thought of the Week: "If a person would spend six months minding their own business, they'd be too tired the next six months to mind anyone else's business."

Not only has the "soul Patrol" been gone from Radio Station KSEL, but this writer learned this week the Willie Mitchell was let go last week by KSEL. It's rather interesting to note that both groups, Soul Patrol and Willie Mitchell, apparently were dismissed because of the same situation.

Strange things are always happening in Lubbock. How many of you believe that strange things are happening? If you don't believe me, then check it out for yourself.

If you ask me, I would say that the "Ward System" will work in Lubbock. If you don't believe me, then check out the recent Community Services Commission election when six persons were elected from six different areas of Lubbock by persons of those areas.

Surely, the "Ward System" could very well work in City Council elections if the entire body of residents would get behind a positive program. It is impossible to say what will work if we don't give it a chance.

Anyway, it's something for all citizens of Lubbock to start thinking about in 1976.

Read Your Black Community Newspapers.

For years, Congress dished out money to the bureaucracy without paying too close attention to how it was spent.

The General Accounting Office is supposed to be the investigative arm of Congress. But its auditors must depend upon the government agencies for their information. If the GAO reports are too critical, the cooperation is cut off.

The bureaucrats supply Congress with no more information than necessary to maintain friendly relations. And Congress seldom presses too hard, for fear its sources of information will dry up.

But the Watergate scandal has infected Congress with a new spirit of investigation. The House Government Operations committee has prepared a study of all the investigations that are planned by House committees in the months ahead.

The House Appropriations Committee alone, for example, has started fifty separate investigations. These include major reviews of health, education and welfare programs.

At last, the watchdogs on Capitol Hill are beginning to growl a little.

Funeral Faux Pas: The recent furor over which American dignitary would attend Chiang Kai-shek's funeral can be blamed directly on Secretary of State Henry Kissinger.

At first, President Ford planned to send Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz to Taiwan. This, according to our sources, was Kissinger's recommendation. But the Nationalist Chinese protested furiously, and Vice President Nelson Rockefeller was dispatched to Taipei instead.

Since he opened the doors to Red China, Kissinger has studiously courted Peking. He has gone out of his way to favor Taiwan with any gesture that could be interpreted as friendly. He has instructed his associates, according to our sources, that he personally will make all decisions regarding the two Chinas. And his rule of thumb has been to deny virtually all requests made by Taiwan. At times, his treatment of the Nationalist Chinese has been openly insulting.

It was this policy, as much as anything, which dictated the choice of Earl Butz to attend Chiang Kai-shek's funeral.

In truth, Kissinger himself would have benefited from a trip to Taiwan. Our sources say he has never set foot on the island.

Color Barrier: A House subcommittee is investigating a little known form of racial discrimination in the armed services. It seems that some nations where U.S. troops are stationed have asked that our men match the color of the local population. If the natives are white, they want our soldiers to be white. If the locals are black, they want black American troops. The legislators have found that the Pentagon does little to resist this kind of racial discrimination.

No sale: Jackie Kennedy Onassis, we have learned, often sells her used clothes to raise extra spending cash. But when clerks in one New York used clothing store discreetly told their customers which items were Jackie's, they turned up a number of Kennedy haters who refused to buy them.

WILL SOUTH VIETNAMESE TURN ON AMERICANS?
by Jack Anderson with Joe Spear
(From United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

Washington—Fear is growing inside the State Department and Pentagon that the fall of Saigon, now considered a certainty, may result in a bloodbath between the South Vietnamese and Americans.

The experts are deeply concerned that when Americans evacuate the city, South Vietnamese citizens and soldiers will panic and attack them. Thus, military and diplomatic officials have for weeks been assembling and updating contingency plans for such an emergency.

But even if the evacuation goes smoothly, hundreds of people who want to get out will be left behind. Much of the responsibility for this catastrophe, insiders have complained to us, can be attributed to the U.S. ambassador in Saigon, Graham Martin.

He is a fanatic believer in the South Vietnamese cause and, we are told, has absolutely refused to accept the possibility of a communist victory.

Behind the U.S. embassy in Saigon, for example, a recreation facility called the "American Club" is being built. One person who recently returned from Vietnam told us that, under Martin's guidance, the carpenters were still hammering and sawing away just a few days ago.

As a consequence of this attitude, our sources say, Martin has done little to get his employees out of the country. Insiders are worried that the tragic scene which recently occurred in Da Nang will be repeated. When the U.S. consulate there was hastily abandoned, scores of Vietnamese employees were stranded.

State Department spokesmen say the evacuation of Americans has proceeded slowly to avoid creating panic among the South Vietnamese. At Congressional urging, however, President Ford has now given "very high priority" to the American pullout.

Also left behind when South Vietnam is finally abandoned will be thousands of orphans who could not be brought out on Operation Baby Lift. The blame for this lies mainly with the South Vietnamese bureaucracy.

Most of the 1,700 orphans who were flown out of Vietnam over the past three weeks had already been processed before the big airlift began. Arranging for additional adoptions, however, proved virtually impossible.

Rosemary Taylor, an Australian who has been running adoption agencies in Vietnam for eight years, told us that 12 of her orphans had died of various diseases in the past month.

"I dare not think too much about all my babies who are dying while their papers are being completed," she told us sadly.

Watchful Eye: Congress is picking up investigative steam.

Police Beat

Burglary of Private Residence

Ellis Osby, 1323 East 16th Street, reported to Lubbock police that she came home one day last week from school through the front door and heard the back door slam. This excited her so she asked a friend to walk through the house to see if anyone was inside. The friend, as could have been expected, didn't find anyone in the house.

The friend did, however, notice that the back door glass had been broken. This was apparently the means of entry.

Taken from the house was approximately $700 in merchandise. Among those items taken were several tape players, an AM/FM radio, .22 caliber pistol and two speakers.

House Burglary

Finis Keele, 2406 East 7th Street, reported to Lubbock police that persons took advantage of him one day last week by breaking into his house by the use of the back door.

Taken from the house were two color television sets, valued at $600; and an AM/FM radio valued at approximately $60.

Car Burglary

Don Jones, 1838 Manhattan Drive, reported to Lubbock police that one evening last week someone unknown took a 12 volt battery without his permission from his 1966 model automobile.

The battery is worth approximately $36.

Theft

Sometimes, people have some strange situations with others. This was the case one day last week at a local coin laundry. Cora Williams, 2122 East 30th Street, reported to Lubbock police that she had a problem with a person in the laundry.

She told police that she placed her nice clean clothes in a dryer and left for a few minutes. Upon returning, she saw a man putting her clothes into his car. The man drove off. At that moment, Sister Williams went inside to verify that her clothes were missing. You guessed it, they were missing and the unknown man had them.

She got a friend to go with her and they chased after the man. The man was stopped several blocks away from the establishment. She asked him if he had her clothes. He was very nice and said he was sorry. The man returned the clothes to her.

Sister Williams thought her problem was solved until she got home. After carefully checking the clothes, she found that several items were missing. This is when she made the police report.

There are several questions to be asked: "Did the man really steal the clothes?" or "Did his wife send him to bring her clothes home from one of the dryers?" Would you file charges on the man? It's very interesting, isn't it?

Burglary

Phil Brown, 2720 East 3rd Street, reported to Lubbock police that persons unknown entered his place of business one night last week. Entry was apparently gained by using a pry bar and prying two boards loose on the back door and the lifting up the bar across the door.

He told police that upon entering the business, the unknown persons removed from the juke box approximately 100 records (valued at 33 cents each); one case of spare ribs, valued at $21.20; twenty pounds of link sausages, valued at $10.50; and approximately sixty pennies from the cash register. He also discovered that one set of domino markers were taken, valued at $8.00.

Car Burglary

Henry Clemens, a resident of Slaton, reported a problem he had while at the barber shop in Lubbock one day last week. He told police that his car was parked in front of the Sedberry Barber Shop when someone took his 8 track stereo player from his car. This stereo was valued at approximately $68.

According to the police report, this incident happened at approximately 5:30 p.m. and his car was locked.

Free Toll Number Furnished Runaway Youngsters

A toll-free telephone number for runaway youngsters to use to calm their parents is being promoted by The Southland Corporation, which has more than fifteen 7-Eleven stores in Lubbock.

Jere Thompson, Southland president, said the company wants to make the approximately 3 million customers who shop daily at more than 5,100 7-Eleven stores more aware of the "Operation Peace of Mind" hotline program. Each of the stores will prominently display a window decal giving the phone number and instructions on how to use it.

"Operation Peace of Mind" originated in Texas in September, 1973, under the sponsorship of Gov. Dolph Briscoe, and 7-Eleven Stores in the state came to its support soon afterwards.

Thompson said, "We're very concerned about the problem of runaway youngsters, and 7-Eleven welcomes the opportunity to help reestablish communications between runaways and their parents."

Runaways anywhere in the United States can call the Houston based "Peace of Mind" hotline to notify parents they are alive and well. In Texas the number is 1-800-392-3352. The national number is 1-800-231-6946. $$ Inflation Hits 'Home'

Buyers Turn To Remodeling

Even though mortgage rates have begun to drop recently, the cost of home buying is still high—too high for many people to afford. (Excluding land, the average cost of a house in 1974 was $28,000 compared to $19,000 in 1970.)

As a result of these spiraling costs, many homeowners are deciding it's far more practical to "stay put" and improve their present home, rather than buy a new one. This "fix-up" trend has become so prevalent that the remodeling industry hit the $20 billion dollar mark in 1974.

One major impetus to the home remodeling boom has been the drive to save on energy consumption. Homeowners have been adding insulation and buying storm doors and windows to reduce the loss of winter heat. But, also, they have been installing modern heating and cooling equipment or upgrading existing systems.

In the kitchen, the largest market for cabinets is in remodeling (as opposed to new homes and other types of housing)—accounting for 58 percent of cabinet production.

Here are some kitchen remodeling tips offered by one of the country's leading appliance manufacturers—the KitchenAid Division of Hobart Corporation.

According to company researchers, a dishwasher-sink

With the cost of new housing up, many homeowners have turned to remodeling as a practical alternative. In the kitchen, dishwasher-sink combinations—such as this one by KitchenAid—provide a useful work-cleanup center in a minimum of space.

combination may be the ideal replacement for an existing sink. With the basic plumbing in place, installation can be relatively inexpensive.

And, combinations, they point out, are not only popular with consumers, but practical, as well. Company units—for example—measure only 48 inches wide and consist of a stainless steel sink, steel storage cabinet and a Superba or Custom model KitchenAid dishwasher. (The dishwasher has an "Energy-

Saver" feature which significantly reduces the use of electricity as much as 50 per cent.)

When a Hot-water dispenser and food waste disposer are added, the unit becomes a compact center for meal preparation and cleanup.

With the skyrocketing costs of new housing and the shortage of mortgage money, while many Americans may not be on the move — through home remodeling, statistics indicate that they're certainly "on the mend".

Sports of The Times

by Joe Kelly

If you could turn the clock back 19 years, the Lubbock Hubbers were opening what proved to be the last season of professional baseball in the Hub City.

No one knew it at the time. Jay Haney had the franchise, and a working agreement with the Baltimore Orioles. The Lubbock team would be made up in Thomasville, Ga., where the Orioles had their principal minor league training camp.

A trio of Lubbock men—Haney, R.A. Austin and this writer—would board a chartered TNM&O bus to make the long trek. On the return, the bus would be filled with aspiring players. This would be the 1956 Hubbers.

The trip to Thomasville was far from uneventful. Indeed, in Jackson, Mississippi, there was doubt that we would reach the training camp the next day.

The main excitement was when the brakes failed on the bus and Austin, standing up and pumping, hollered over his shoulder "hey, fellas, we're going to take one with us!"

Austin's aim was unerring. He smashed into a car that hadn't pulled far enough into a crossover. To compound matters, the driver was a fireman. Now policemen and firemen have a way of standing up for each other. Thus, to the pokey went Austin.

To make a long and old story short, we escaped and arrived in Thomasville the next morning. Haney and I went to the training field. Austin allowed as to how he was going fishing.

About mid-morning, Austin showed up. What happened? "Well, I was all set. I was buying rod and reel, getting bait and tips on the best spots. Then some joker said I probably would find I had it all to myself. Seems that the rattlesnakes and water moccasins, warmed by the sun, were coming out.

"I decided I was just crazy about baseball!"

Don't ask me who was on that 1956 team. In all honesty, I couldn't tell you. I do know that "Sugar" Ray Robinson, a pitcher, was on the club. Robinson was a black. The first black, I believe, to perform in Lubbock. And he was a good one.

And to show how times have changed, we stopped outside Abilene to eat. Everyone went in, even Robinson, after a lot of urging. We were seated, when the manager came up.

"Y'll can eat in here, but him" — pointing at Robinson — "will have to eat in the kitchen."

"This is the Lubbock baseball club," Haney replied. "Either we all eat here together or no one eats here."

With the Haney said "let's go" and everyone got up and walked out. It wouldn't happen today.

That summer I planned my vacation to be in Washington so that I could see the All-Star game. I got my credentials and arrived early enough to see the Senators play and have a talk with former Hubber Joe Valdivielso, then the hot short stop.

I went to the Player of the Decade luncheon, which honored Stan Musial, and at each place was the latest issue of the Sporting News. It was then that I learned the Hubbers had folded their tents after the July 4 doubleheader and gone South.

Considerably later, Haney told me that he wouldn't have made the move if I had been in town. That was flattering, but I doubted that it would have made any difference.

Haney was losing money, as had every owner following Paul Dean, and a wealthy Abilene man, owner of the Blue Sox, advised Haney that, if he moved to the Valley, the sale of beer alone would make up what he was losing here.

So, Jay left, Rosenthal Field remained dark and professional baseball in Lubbock, Texas, died. Some laughed with delight. Many others wept silently.

Baseball had written a glorious chapter in the Hub City. At a time when Lubbock barely nosed the 46,000 mark, the game attracted over 100,000 fans eight years in succession. The 1947 team, managed by sheriff candidate (1975) Jackie Sullivan, may well have been the greatest minor league team ever assembled.

Topping that club, of course, was Bill Serena, who went on to the Chicago Cubs. Almost without exception, the players went up to higher classification ball. Paul Hinrichs did a stint with the Yankees and Red Sox.

In those days there was no finer way to spend a summer night. The baseball might be wild and wacky, but it was good baseball, entertaining and exciting.

So, when Sullivan started up the WT-NM Baseball Assn., wild elephants couldn't have kept me away. Just the chance to sit and talk, or be around, so many of the players who brought such great pleasure to so many was a thrill.

I hope I don't grow so jaded that I lose my thrill at being around successful athletes, or men. After all, athletes are the men who are doing and achieving. Sports writers scribble about men's successes; others write about their failures—politics, society, business, world events, and so on.

When I started writing this column, I was going to say that it was about this time that the baseball season opened in Lubbock.

Rosenthal Field had been freshly painted in basic green, with orange for the Orioles. There was expectation in the air. It was a new season, new faces, new foes. The wind and sand of March had settled. Spring was in the air. Play ball!

I wonder if the ghosts ever rise on these warm spring nights and circle amid the mobile homes, now the extinct site of Rosenthal Field?

They must find kindred spirits, like Grover Seitz, Pappy Stokes, Rooster Mills, Deck Woldt, Roy Parker, Harry Gilstrap (to insert a sports writer), Wilcy Moore, Joe Budny....the list could go on and on. Major Leaguers? Very few ever made it, before or after the fact. But in their hearts, every one of them was.

And I, for one, miss it.

The Roundup—Chris Blocker, former Tech and pro tour golfer, now owns his own club in Jacksonville, Fla., is doing well. . . . Congratulations to Jay McClure, one of the stalwarts of the PGA, for

Local Scouts Are Among 12 U.S.D.A. Award Winners

The South Plains Council was one of twelve councils out of 433 councils in the U.S.A. to receive the United States Department of Agriculture's Green Seal Award, according to a council representative.

The Green Seal Award is presented to twelve councils each year for outstanding work in conservation. The main project in 1974 was done in Camp Haynes, which is located east of Silverton. However, other conservation work was performed by Scouts and Explorers at Camp Post and Camp Tres Ritos, located fifty miles north of Las Vegas, New Mexico. Conservation work was done in the Carson National Forest during the council's summer camp program and in Camp Post.

Girl Scout Junior Olympics Held Recently

Fourth and fifth grade Girl Scouts from all over an eighteen county area braved win, sleet, rain, and snow to participate in the Girl Scout Junior Olympics. The girls and their leaders gathered at Camp Rio Blanco near Crosbyton to play and learn and meet Girl Scouts from other towns. As a special surprise, the girls got to meet Mr. Jerry Harlen, an amateur rodeo performer from Slaton. Mr. Harlen showed them his ropes and outfit and talked about the life of a cowboy.

Nine girls from Posey School went to the event. They were Alberta Lee, Cynthia Fifer, Lisa McDaniel, Brenda Griffin, Christina Gonzales, Gwen Simmons, Lucretia Green, Jackaline Rogers, and Dorothy Ramos. Five girls from Iles School who attended were Linda DeVaughn, Adrienne Gilbert, Sharon Ausbie, Sharon McGuire, and Mary Mitchell.

Arthritis Meeting to Be Held Thursday

Area residents interested in gaining information on the nation's number onecrippler, arthritis, will have an opportunity to do so at a special forum to be held in Littlefield at 8 p.m. Thursday, April 24, in the high school auditorium.

Arthritis is not just an "old folks" disease. It can strike at any age, from birth to age 30 or 40. Almost two million Texans suffer from the more than 100 forms of arthritis.

Statistics released by The Arthritis Foundation indicate that one out of 10 Americans has arthritis in some form and that 250,000 children are stricken each year.

Dr. Bruce Bartholomew, chairman of the Department of Rheumatology at Texas Tech University School of Medicine, will discuss the various kinds of arthritis and its symptoms, diagnosis and treatment. Dr. Bartholomew's specialty deals with arthritis and the rheumatic diseases and he is one of an estimated 20 rheumatologists in Texas.

An associate professor in the Department of Orthopedic Surgery at TTUSM, Dr. Kenneth Scholz, will also be a panelist. He will present "New Techniques in Surgery for Arthritis", a portion of which will be a slide presentation. Doug Langley, Registered Physical Therapist, will make up the third members of the forum panel. He will speak on "Self Help Methods of Therapy for Arthritis." A demonstration of a paraffin bath and other self-help aids will also be presented.

The public is urged to attend this free meeting sponsored by the Texas Agriculture Extension Service and the West Texas Chapter of The Arthritis Foundation.

Practically any girl who knows how to cook can find a man who knows how to eat.

The utmost tragedy in the world, in the minds of small boys, is that the home team lost.

Girl Scouts of East Lubbock Service Unit Stage Family Dinner Here Friday

Girl Scouts of the East Lubbock Service Unit held a family dinner Friday, April 11, at the Dunbar High Cafeteria. Troop 28, Iles School, presented a flag ceremony. Mrs. Lester Winters, leader of Troop 25, led the blessing. Drinks were furnished compliments of McDonald's Restaurant. After dinner, songs and dances were presented by troops from Wheatley, Martin, and Posey Schools. Cookie sale certificates were presented to 27 girls who sold over 24 boxes of cookies. Three girls were presented patches for selling more than 72 boxes. The champion saleswoman for the Service Unit was Cheryl Price, a sixth grader in Troop 31, Wheatley School. Cheryl sold 113 boxes of cookies. The following troop leaders were given certificates recognizing their outstanding leadership: Mrs. Lester Winters, Mrs. M.O. Bunton, Mrs. Pedro Souza, and Mrs. S.R. Roberts. These women have devoted many volunteer hours to providing girls with Girl Scouting. To climax the evening, a surprise award was presented to Mrs. W.H. Stephens, who has been a Girl Scout over 40 years.

Bethel A.M.E. Church

Services were well attended last Sunday morning with the Rev. Mrs. L.E. Moore of Dallas filling the pulpit. She spoke real well and asked all present to read the Bible more and utilize good Christian teachings everyday. "Those degrees we got, all the money we got and pretty things we got won't get us to heaven," she told the group.

Senior Choir Number One sang several selections during the morning worship under the direction of Mrs. L.C. Struggs.

Visitors present last Sunday morning included Ms. Helen Bailey, members of Lyons Chapel Baptist Church, members of the Ladies Social & Art Club, and the

Mrs. Stephens first became a Girl Scout in Corsicana, Texas when she was a young girl. As an adult, she has been a leader and special adviser. In recognition of her dedicated service, she was chosen by the girls of Troop 31 to be their "Hidden Heroine." Discovering and honoring women who have made contributions to their communities is the bicentennial project for the Girl Scouts of the U.S.A.

Mrs. Stephens' name, along with the names of other Hidden Heroines, will be inscribed on a plaque to be displayed at the Caprock Girl Scout Service Center.

Black Women Tell of Their Roles in "Non-Traditional" Women's Job Rolls

What does it take and what does a woman need if she wants to break into a job that is "non-traditional" for women?

Mildred Fredericks and Sandye Sanders, who are black, were among a group of five women who shared their experiences at a recent conference sponsored by the Women's Bureau of the U.S. Department of Labor.

They recalled with humor and laughter—but with a serious tone, too—their struggles to prove themselves capable of performing a "man's job."

Take Mildred Fredericks: She walked into a television station in her hometown in Massachusetts and told the station's management it should provide a community program for minorities.

Although she had no experience in broadcasting, she was hired to produce the show.

Today she is an associate producer for KGO-TV, the ABC network affiliate in San Francisco. She has produced several shows for the station's minority-aimed series, "All Together Now."

Ms. Fredericks added that to survive in a nearly all-male job environment, she has had to develop a "strong sense of self."

Sandye Sanders was a mill cabinet apprentice and earned a master's degree in French literature before she decided what she really wanted to be—a truck driver.

After attending a truck-driving school for three months and getting her Teamster's card, she began driving for small firms.

She called employers' reactions "predictable," adding: "After the man doing the hiring picked himself off the floor, he would usually say, 'Why not?' They were willing to give me a chance."

Ms. Sanders finds reactions vary when she pulls into a truck stop. "Waitresses are very interested in what I'm doing," she told the conference.

The other speakers at the conference, "Job Options for Women in Today's Economy," were white.

They included Beverly Warner, an assistant district manager for Equitable Life Assurance Co.; Linda Walsh, an apprentice carpenter; and Jean Watson, a research engineer for Chevrol Research.

TV PERSONALITY—Mildred Fredericks, an associate producer for KGO-TV in San Francisco recounts her experiences in entering and surviving in a job market dominated by men.
