Dunbar, Estacado Shifted to New District

Weatherization Supervisor Madeline Amalla

Weatherization Department — It's Primary Purpose is to Conserve Heat

(Editor's Note: This is Part II of a series on Lubbock's Community Service Department.)

The Weatherization Department is another department of the Community Services and City of Lubbock.

Its goal is to repair houses in order to conserve energy. This includes insulation, installing storm windows and doors and caulking. The program was started in February of this year.

According to Madeline Amalla, weatherization supervisor, they do not remodel houses.

Sometimes we are mistaken for Urban Renewal. But we do not build, remodel or beautify houses. Our primary purpose is to conserve heat.

Occasionally we will paint a house, but that's in order to retain the wood, she said.

The department also serves the low-income of Lubbock, she said.

We work in all low income sections of the city. Most of the houses we have repaired have been in East Lubbock and the Arnett Benson area.

This past year, which ended Sept. 30, we repaired 40 houses. We were short of help but we repaired 40 houses in a five month period. We were funded for 11,300 houses, but only had time to repair 40.

This year we hope to repair more. The year began Oct. 1 and runs through Sept. 3, 1978.

We have already repaired four houses since Sept. 30, Mrs. Amalla said.

We always repair the homes of the elderly and handicapped first, she said. However, anyone meeting our income guidelines can qualify.

The maximum that can be spent on one house is $250.

We are considering raising the maximum amount Weatherization can spend on one house from $250 to $500. This does not indicate $500 would be spent on each house, but it would give greater flexibility in working on some houses which need more. We would still try to hold to $250 per house as the norm, she said.

The suggested increase is due to increasing costs of material, especially of insulation, she said.

Workers for the weatherization program are provided by CETA. I don't think we could have made it without the CETA workers, she said. They are really the ones who make up the crew.

The CETA workers consist of 3 boys and one girl. They are doing a tremendous job, Mrs. Amalla said.

Mrs. Amalla's work isn't just limited to the office. Many times she joins the CETA workers and helps with the painting. "That's when the photographs should have been taken," she said, "Not when I'm sitting behind the desk."

Everyone in the department gets involved in the work, even our director, Mr. Bottoms has gone out and helped repair houses, she said.

Going out and working on the houses helps me to become a better supervisor. I don't just sit behind a desk and give orders. Working with the crew gives me an opportunity to see what type of work they are doing.

The Weatherization Department is composed of Mrs. Amalla, a foreman, bookkeeper and the four CETA workers.

In order to know what weatherization is about, you really need to go to the site and see what is done, she said.

What I like best about this job, Mrs. Amalla said, is to see the expression on someone's face once the house is completed. It really makes your work seem worthwhile.

Next football season Dunbar and Estacado football teams will be taking on new opponents.

Last week the two schools received word that they had been realigned into a different district. University Interscholastic League officials announced last week that both schools had been moved from District 3-AAA into District 1-AAA.

Perryton was dropped from District AAA because of a drop in enrollment. The drop left the district with only four teams, therefore Dunbar and Estacado were shifted.

Coach Louis Kelley of Estacado and Coach Van Jefferson of Dunbar talked with the Times about the realignment.

After two or three days of thinking about the change, Kelley said, we are pretty excited about it. We expect competition to be about the same as before.

When you really think about it, he said, we were about the most logical teams to realign. We are the closest to the other teams than anyone else. It's about the same distance from here to Dumas and Borger.

The distance was the main factor considered, he said. To pass over us would have meant getting some other team farther away, Kelley said.

The change does not mean we received a promotion or a demotion. It merely means new teams and a change is always good, he said. The rules and regulations haven't changed; they're still the same and we're looking forward to being in the district.

The shift just happened and there's nothing we can do about it, Kelley said. We're just going to accept it and concentrate on winning.

Coach Jefferson told the Times that he regrets leaving the district because of the friendship and rivalry. But he said, "No matter where we are, we are going to have to play, and that's what we intend to do."

I play it day by day and game by game; therefore, I'm not upset about it, he said. It's going to work out fine.

We'll be playing the same way, with the same intensity, Jefferson said. It will be the same situation, he said. There are some strong teams in this district also.

Coach Louis Kelley

I think it will be just as valuable to me as the other district was in the past, Jefferson said.

Barbara Gail Ray Recognized

The Rev. Walter Griffin, pastor of United Baptist Church, aids Barbara Gail Ray with district and state trophies she received after being crowned "Miss New Zeal" and "Miss United Baptist Church," respectively. Barbara is accompanied by her sponsors, Novella Sanson, left, and Alberta Nails, youth director of United Baptist Church and District.

During the past few months, Barbara Gail Ray, a thirteen-year-old seventh grade student at Coronado Junior High School in Plainview, has received district and state recognition from her church.

Ms. Ray was honored by the United Baptist Church in July as "Miss United Baptist Church." In August, she was crowned "Miss New Zeal" at the District Association in Lubbock. Dr. Floyd Perry, pastor of Lyons Chapel, was host.

Ms. Ray won over eleven other contestants. Miss Ivory White of Pleasant Grove Baptist Church in Tahoka, Texas, was runnerup.

Ms. Ray won the talent competition with "Sometime I Feel Like A Motherless Child." She was accompanied by her aunt, Miss Ora Ray of Plainview.

On Oct. 6-11 Ms. Ray journeyed to Houston to compete in the State Convention for the title of "Miss B.M.&E. of Texas." Ms. Ray competed on the state level against more than 100 girls. She was accompanied to Houston by Rev. Walter Griffin, and Mrs.

A.B. Nails.

Ms. Ray will be crowned at a banquet in her honor in Dallas on Dec. 9 at Bishop College.

In school, Ms. Ray is actively involved in basketball, volleyball and choir.

Ms. Ray is a member of the church GA's and the youth choir. She was also elected as a state usher for all-youth and women's meeting while in Houston.

Ms. Ray represented New Zeal District Association with $696.00, the highest amount raised in her district.

Bakke is Simply Not Qualified

I, along with the members of Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, Inc. Eta Lambda Chapter, am very concerned as to the ramifications of the Bakke vs. the University of California case which was heard by the Supreme Court on October 12. The case concerns the University of California at Davis' special admission program, which Allan Bakke contends is discriminatory.

The special admission program of the University of California allows for 16 minority students to be admitted every year, after careful screening by a special committee, to the Medical School. This committee takes more into account than the usual test scores and previous grades. The committee tries to look at the background (what conditions the applicant had to contend with), benefit to society (only 3% of the doctors in the U.S. are Black) then finally the committee looks at test scores and previous grades.

Allan Bakke, a white 37 year-old, three year Medical School applicant strike-outs (if there's such an adjective), says that special admission programs are what he terms as, "reverse discriminatory." Bakke uses as his ammunition that there were minorities in Med School who had not made the required grade point average of 3.00 on a 4.00 scale. But what Mr. Bakke failed to note was that there are a large number of whites also who did not score as high as he on the test and also did not have as high a grade point average as Mr. Bakke. But, if he had made this known he would not have a case, right?

At this point I would like to submit that previous grades and tests scores do not mean that an applicant would make a good student or for that matter a good doctor upon completion of Medical School. In other words, "actions speak much louder than words."

Allan Bakke won his case in the State Supreme Court. But the University of California took the matter to the U.S. Supreme Court. The Justice Department has also filed a friend of the Court brief in favor of the program. The director of the Medical School said that there was nothing discriminatory about the special admission program. Bakke is simply not qualified to meet our requirements.

My main concern in this case is if the Supreme Court rules in favor of Bakke, what will happen to Affirmative action programs?—In some cases negative action! This ruling would not only affect Blacks, but women and other minorities as well. Not only does it affect Medical School admission programs, but education and jobs as well. The gains in which blacks and women have made might be negated depending on the U.S. Supreme Court ruling.

Letter to the Editor

To the editor,

According to the 1970 census women now comprise approximately 53% of the general makeup of this area. Chicanos represent approximately 21% and Blacks approximately 10%. Compared with the law school enrollment it seems that there is basis to believe that Texas Tech School of Law is not attracting its share of prospective minority and women law students.

The insufficiency of minority and women representation at Texas Tech has been justified by administration and admissions by the lack of sufficient quantities of applications from which to select "qualified students." (We seriously question the criteria used to determine a qualified student.)

We urge the administration at the School of Law to set up an active student-faculty committee to attract qualified (their standards, not ours) minority and women students.

JACK ANDERSON'S WEEKLY SPECIAL

U.S. Issues Arrest Alert For Panama Chief's Brother

by Jack Anderson with Joe Spear

Copyright, 1977, United Feature Syndicate, Inc.
WASHINGTON—Five years ago, we reported that the brother of Panama's dictator Omar Torrijos had been smuggling heroin into the United States. The State Department tried to cover up Moise Torrijos' role in the multimillion-dollar drug smuggling operation.

Last year, however, the Justice Department, in a sealed indictment, named the dictator's brother as a narcotics conspirator.

Now we've learned that the Customs Service has issued a confidential alert to its agents to arrest Moise Torrijos if he ever sets foot in the United States. So far as we can determine, the United States still wants Moise and will grab him if he shows up in this country.

The State Department, meanwhile, learned about the sealed indictment and was alarmed about the effects on the Panama Canal negotiations if the dictator's brother should be arrested in the United States. A top law enforcement official told us the State Department may have leaked the news of the indictment to the dictator, who in turn tipped off his brother.

Intelligence sources have confirmed that Moise Torrijos used to make frequent, high-spending trips to Miami and New York City. Abruptly, these visits stopped. Instead, he is now living in Spain where he serves as the Panamanian ambassador. Spain happens to be a major link in the international heroin smuggling chain. One congressional expert claimed Torrijos is now involved in Spanish heroin smuggling.

But for the record, the Panamanian embassy told us all reports about Torrijos' smuggling activities are false.

Connection Cracking: We have discovered a related story about the "Mexican Connection," the heroin smuggling operation out of Mexico, run mainly by Hispanic-Americans.

They sell a murky brown heroin commonly called Mexican mud. The profits are laundered through Mexican banks and funneled back into this country. Then the laundered money is invested in legitimate businesses, particularly real estate.

We've learned that federal agents are preparing a major crackdown on the Mexican drug trade. They will focus on the financial transactions rather than the drug trafficking. Our sources say that some large U.S. banks will be implicated.

Dear Leonid: President Carter has been in secret contact with Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev. They have been exchanging personal letters. The letters have been delivered by ambassadors in Washington and Moscow.

Brezhnev has written a couple of harsh letters to the president. He reportedly let Carter know, for example, that he didn't like the president's public remarks about human rights in the Soviet Union. Brezhnev regarded this as meddling in Soviet internal affairs.

But in the past few weeks, there has been a warming of Soviet-American relations. President Carter has pressed for a face-to-face meeting. No agreement has yet been reached, but the obstacles have been quietly removed, one by one.

An official close to the president told us he wouldn't be surprised to see a Carter-Brezhnev conference before the end of the year.

Hot Air: We have a report on the high cost of hot air. The hot air was produced by the Senate during its recent all-night talkathon over natural gas. It cost the taxpayers a cool $10,130.

The police overtime cost $5,000. It cost another $1,300 to keep the Senate restaurant open. The doctor's office also had to remain open in case any member talked himself into a coma. That cost $503. Then the air conditioning bill for cooling all that hot air was $459.

The senators generated enough energy in one night of talking to heat the homes of at least 20 families.

Portrait Prices: President Carter has found another way to save the taxpayers a little money. In the spirit of sacrifice, he has decided that he can do without those traditional oil portraits of his cabinet members.

Earl Butz, who told one joke too many when he was secretary of agriculture, is about to have his portrait unveiled. His painting cost the taxpayers $5,750. But Carter's agriculture secretary, Bob Bergland, will have to settle for a plain old photograph that will cost less than $500.

Staff Still Stable: President Carter promised months ago to slash the enormous size of the White House staff. But the staff is still as big as ever. Of the approximately 600 members of Carter's staff, only 14 occupy legally established positions.

Each year, the White House asks Congress for staff funding. In the past, however, the money has been badly misused. For example, Richard Nixon used the cash to pay the White House plumbers.

A bill in Congress would slash the size of the White House staff by about 70 percent. Carter, our sources say, is worried about the proposed staff cutback.

Alice Day Named Coordinator

Mrs. Alice Day has been named head coordinator for community volunteers in Lubbock County in a new project designed to increase citizen involvement in providing social services to elderly persons, neglected or abused children, and handicapped persons.

Mrs. Day's office is located at 701 Main Street, Lubbock, telephone 762-8922.

Mrs. Day said she will be assessing service needs in Lubbock county and contacting organizations and individuals to let them know of opportunities to volunteer.

"There are many ways in which people can help their less fortunate neighbors," she said. "We would like to establish a committee to make daily telephone calls to elderly people who live alone to see if they are all right. We want to find mature individuals who could help young mothers having problems with family stresses learn homemaking skills and how to give better child care. We hope to develop resources for families who may have emergency housing needs, and to help elderly and handicapped persons use available medical and financial resources."

"I especially hope that people with time to contribute to helping their neighbors will contact me," she said, "so that we can match the persons who wish to help with people who need assistance."

UNCF/Arthur Ashe Tennis Benefit Most Successful Exhibition Yet

Ambassador Andy Young whistled his serve in like a pro. Harry Reasoner favored a bloop which arched high and then dropped in—mostly. Walter Cronkite played the net like he was pouncing on bulletins and exclusives.

And when the celebrities were all done frolicking, Arthur Ashe and Marty Riessen showed them how the pros do it—with Arthur coming out on top.

All this action took place at the United Negro College Fund/Arthur Ashe Tennis Benefit—the third annual tennis exhibition and the most successful yet.

An almost-full house saw the matches and the fun in New York's Felt Forum, part of Madison Square Garden, on Sunday afternoon, Oct. 9th.

The biggest winners of all were the 50,000 students on the 41 UNCF campuses who gained from the proceeds at the door. UNCF officials were not sure how much the benefit made, but it was far more than the previous two years of affairs featuring Arthur Ashe.

"We were just delighted with the program from every standpoint," UNCF Executive Director Christopher F. Edley said.

As with last year, AMF Incorporated provided the principal corporate sponsorship. Others chipped in, too, to make the event a success. Burger King gave the trophies, Dunlop contributed some equipment, the Amsterdam News gave editorial support, the New York Apples of the Team Tennis League lent their surface, American Airlines raffled off a trip for two as a door prize and Mateflex, also assisted in donating the playing surface.

Bob Teague, Channel 4 newscaster, and Bill Boggs, host of Channel 5's "Midday Live" program, both local New York shows, were co-emcees.

During the intermission, Kraft, Inc., represented by Vice President Herm Wille, contributed $25,000 to the UNCF.

Just for the record, and the fun aside, here's how the major matches came out:

Boggs and George Seewagen tied Stanley Siegel and Arthur Carrington, 2-2; Cronkite and Riessen tied Reasoner and Ashe, 2-2; Young and Riessen defeated Alan King and Ashe, 4-0; Gordon Parks, Sr. and Cam Kicklighter tied Gov. Brendan Byrne of New Jersey and Herb Fitzsimmons, 3-1; and Ashe defeated Riessen, 6-2.

Ashe's "Blue" team defeated Riessen's "Green" team on total points, 11-9.

Services Held For Mrs. Bessie Boyd

Services were held for Mrs. Bessie Boyd, 82, at 1:30 p.m. Saturday at Ford Memorial Church of God in Christ.

The Rev. F.L. Clark and Bishop J.E. Alexander officiated. Burial was in the City of Lubbock Cemetery under the direction of Sedberry Funeral Home.

Mrs. Boyd died last Monday in Colonial Nursing Home where she had been a patient the past seven years. She had lived in Lubbock 47 years.

Survivors include a son, Arlanda Etheley Jr. of Brooklyn, N.Y.; eight grandchildren; 20 great-grandchildren; and 10 great-great-grandchildren.

Women Recognized As Priestesses

"In ECKANKAR there is no discrimination between men and women. Women have become priestesses in ECK for the past 6 million years," says Sri Darwin Gross, spiritual leader of ECKANKAR, the Path of Total Awareness.

Darwin Gross pointed out the need for the woman to express herself spiritually at a recent ECKANKAR Youth Conference in Florida:

"Religious platitudes and customs handed down through the ages have kept women stereotyped as the wife, mother, homemaker and cradle rocker, leaving her little time for freedom for self-expression—her creative arts generally being limited to sewing, cooking, gardening, or writing. It seems that only in about the last one hundred years have women gradually stepped out of the wife and homemaker role and begun proving themselves as creative, intelligent and capable human beings."

Both men and women are recognized as priests and priestesses in ECKANKAR when they reach the unfoldment level known in ECKANKAR as the Mahdis. At this stage one is able to reach the Self-Realized state of spiritual awareness, the first step toward God-Realization. It is said that women have the same opportunity for spiritual advancement and unfoldment as men.

"Restrictions are not placed on either sex in ECKANKAR," Sri Darwin explained, "as each individual Soul is allowed total freedom to grow and develop according to his own time and consciousness."

The ECKANKAR International Office is located in Menlo Park, California.

A New Look at the Black Experience: "You show me a people who have no knowledge of their history, no sense of connection with their culture; you show me people who have not been deeply and permanently affected by all the rivers of blood that have been shed for them—and I will show you a people who have no right to be free! I show you a people who have no right to call themselves followers of the Lord Jesus Christ! He said, 'I am come that they might have life and that they might have it more abundantly'."

"Let me tell you what I found out after working for seven years with the opportunity of dealing with millions of dollars of a major city—Atlanta. If those seven years have taught me anything it taught me this: Being Black is not enough! There is a corollary to that: Blackness has run out! We have milked every dollar out of Blackness we are going to get! I also found out that Black folk will lie; Black folk will steal; Black folk will stab you in the back for thirty five cents! So we know who we are."

"Yet when I look at the world today it fills me with sorrow. Little children today are going to suffer tomorrow, and nobody cares! You don't care—if you cared about it you would do something about it."

"Black people today, right now, this minute are not just poor, unemployed, and underemployed. They are disillusioned, disappointed, disgusted, and desperate. And desperate men do desperate things. They take desperate positions. They do not respond to your condemnation because they have never been praised. They do not respond to incarceration because they have never been free. They do not respond to death because they have never lived. They kept dreaming that one day they would be a star like you and me. But they found out in the summer of 1977 that their dreams are not coming true. So they are leaving—Gladys Knight says on the Midnight train! They are fed up."

"No one responds to kindness more than a desperate man! Open your mouth and heart sometimes, to a thug and say hello to him . . . Jesus said, 'When you have done it for the least of these you have done it unto me.' We must make decisions now about what we are going to do about desperate men." From E.I. Darnell in "Trying to Love Two" and a recent candidate for mayor of Atlanta.

Barbara Jordan Speaks: More new voters than ever before are officially labeling themselves as independents because they believe the Democrat and Republican parties are "just some kind of a shell game and they don't want any part of it . . . The two parties are also viewed by new voters as groups of grubby politicians who are trying to sweep up the last crumbs of patronage from the political system," declared U.S. Representative Barbara Jordan, D-Tex in a recent fund raising dinner for U.S. Rep. Harold Runnels, D-N.M.

Speaking in the same forceful manner in Roswell, New Mexico, which has made her one of the most sought-after and honored speakers in Congress, the Texas congresswoman stressed that parties have lost their effectiveness on both ends of the political spectrum—with presidents as well as voters—because of image. Miss Jordan said the true role of political parties is as an avenue of communication between government decision-makers and the people, and as a collection point for discussion and decision making.

Quotable quotes: "Not only have U.S. Congressman Harold Runnels of New Mexico and Congresswoman Barbara Jordan been next-door neighbors in the Longworth Building in Washington many years, but they belong to the same party and on some questions vote together, while he is generally cast as a conservative and she falls into the liberal camp. The political "love affair" goes a long way back. It was Harold who appeared before the New Mexico Democratic delegation in New York in 1976 and revealed that his choice for vice president was none other than highly literate and intelligent Barbara Jordan; and as he made his statement he exhibited (much to the astonishment of many) a campaign button with Jordan's name already printed on it. It was no joke, although Barbara would have had some distinct disadvantages with some voters, being black and a woman at the same time." End of quote from Leaward Lines in Hobbs Daily News Sun.

And from the same source: A Man Called 'Bing'. "Awhile back, when Elvis Presley died, his mourners cried, 'The King is dead!' To an older generation, however, the real king died Friday when the golden voice of Bing Crosby was stilled forever." End of quote.

Until the next experience, Peace and be a good neighbor. Remember they come in all colors.

Miller Cited For Excellence

The Miller Brewing Company received the National Award of Excellence from the U.S. Department of Commerce, Office of Minority Business Enterprise, for its efforts in supporting the growth and stability of minority business.

In accepting the award at ceremonies held in the Omni Hotel, Miller President John A. Murphy said:

"While this award principally recognizes our accomplishments in providing assistance to minority contractors, that is only a part of our firm commitment to equal employment opportunities. We have implemented an effective affirmative action program which is producing very positive results in the hiring and promotion of minority employees as well as the use of minority businesses in the mainstream of Miller's growth."

In conjunction with Miller's emphasis on the construction of new production facilities, the company developed a Minority Business Economic Development program in mid-1974 for the selection of qualified minority contractors and suppliers, and to provide assistance in such matters as insurance, banking and advertising.

In the two and one-half years that the program has been operational purchases of goods and services from minority owned operations have more than doubled while minority subcontractor's participation on all projects has increased substantially.

The program involves joint responsibility between Miller and the general contractors on a project, aiding smaller minority subcontractors with their administration and technical performance.

The success of Miller's Minority Business Economic Development program is reflected in the increasing number of minority owned and operated firms capable of making substantial strides in their business future.

Miller is an operating company of Philip Morris Incorporated. Principal beer brands include Miller High Life, Lite and Lowenbrau.

in cities and towns where there is ONE electric company (a monopoly) electric deposits are required for "hook-up."

For example: minimum deposit is $15 and electric customers number 60,000 — that means $900,000 is out of circulation. Because you have competing electric companies in Lubbock — you pay no deposit for "hook-up."

Sheridan's Ride

by Jack Sheridan

Right off the bat, let me clarify something that occurred in the line of this duty this past weekend.

As you probably know, Civic Lubbock, Inc. sponsored a local production of the famed Rodgers and Hammerstein musical comedy of Navy goings-on in World War II, the beloved "South Pacific," in the Memorial Civic Center Theatre.

Regrettably, I cannot tell you anything about the performance. I did not see it! (one of the few shows in a 20-year period and more that I have been forced to miss). The crux of the matter was that the Waddington Advertising Agency of this city, which represents Civic Lubbock, Inc., did send me two complimentary tickets (press) but they were for Friday night and I did not pick up my mail at home until close to 7 p.m. that night. The tickets were there but, fresh from my drill press daily occupation at Cutron, Inc., I was oily, dirty and no time to clean, change and make the Center in time. So, I missed out.

Too bad, too. For Janis Geddis is a longtime friend and she was "washing that man right out" of her hair and I did want to see her. There were a lot of other people involved that I equally wanted to report on, such as director Ric Brame, Lou Keay and many more. Well, it was not to be.

As I told the advertising agency, never, NEVER trust an overnight mail delivery service in this city. Allow two-three days to get a letter delivered across town. I can hear from my agent in New York almost overnight, I can hear from the agent in London in two days, but it takes from two-three days to get a letter from the Texas Tech University campus to my apartment on Avenue R, a distance of about eight blocks! So, if you want me to know something TOMORROW, don't send it TODAY! No apologies extended to the gentlemen based at 15-16th and Ave. G, either!

So, what did I do over the weekend? Well, thanks to Citibus and my sturdy and, thank heaven, reliable-to-date legs, I went off to the Fox 4 complex out on 19th Ave. to catch an important movie. (You see, since they cut off the Saturday service on the bus line, the LCC-Redbud Square route which took me to the theater door) I can only make it to 21st and Memphis and then it is hike the rest to make either the Fox 4 or the Cinema West. The glories of pedestrianism!

I went off to see the provocative Ken Russell handling of "Valentino." This R-rated, 132 minute film, out of Britain, is yet another of the outrageous, yet compelling treatments that Russell has done on remembered personalities. You'll remember he devoted a lot of time to prove that Russian composer Tchaikowsky was homosexual, he demeaned Gustav Mahler in a pseudo-biographical film and he never does anything that doesn't either drive one up the wall or enlist one in his peculiar, particular cult.

"Valentino" is no exception. To play the sultry Latin silent screen hero who died in the 1920s to more hoopla, more frantic and frenetic nonsense by adoring fans than the late Elvis could ever have envisioned, Russell took the Kirov (Russia) ballet defector Rudolph Nureyev to enact the title role.

Russell begins his film with the unforgettable mob debacle of Valentino's lying-in-state at a New York funeral home, the breaking in of frenzied fans to catch a glimpse of his rouged corpse and through the pecking activities of newspeople, certain celebrities who played roles in real life with the dead idol are caught and the story told in sometimes lurid, sometimes parody rephrasing, as he moved from male stud, gigolo, dancer up to the immortal roles in "The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," "The Sheik," "Blood and Sand" and "Son of the Sheik."

There is an early sequence of Nureyev dancing with a character, the noted ballet genius Nijinsky, where in Valentino is teaching him the tango (thereby unleashing a thought of homosexuality, of course) and there are sequences throughout the film that are both witty, caustic and others that are simply too much!

At one point in the film Nureyev says (in character) that he knows nothing about acting. Well, you can't review a film and say it better. He should return to his toes and let Robert Redford have the silver sheet.

At another point in the film a very pertinent comment is made by the lady (Leslie Caron) as Nazimova that the whole thing is (well, family newspaper, expletive deleted—but oh, so true!). Only time I can remember seeing and hearing a film review itself!

None of this is to be taken seriously. The patent-leather, slicked-back pompadour that the real-life Valentino wore, the Italian dark-complected memory, these are not here. Nureyev is brownhaired, older and, in his nude scenes (oh, yes), he does display his lithe-muscular body and a provocative rear end. But, for what many consider the world's leading dancer, is this what it is all about? Surely, Nureyev didn't, doesn't need the money and a matinee idol he already is. One thing is certain! Nureyev is not threatening anyone this year come Academy Award time.

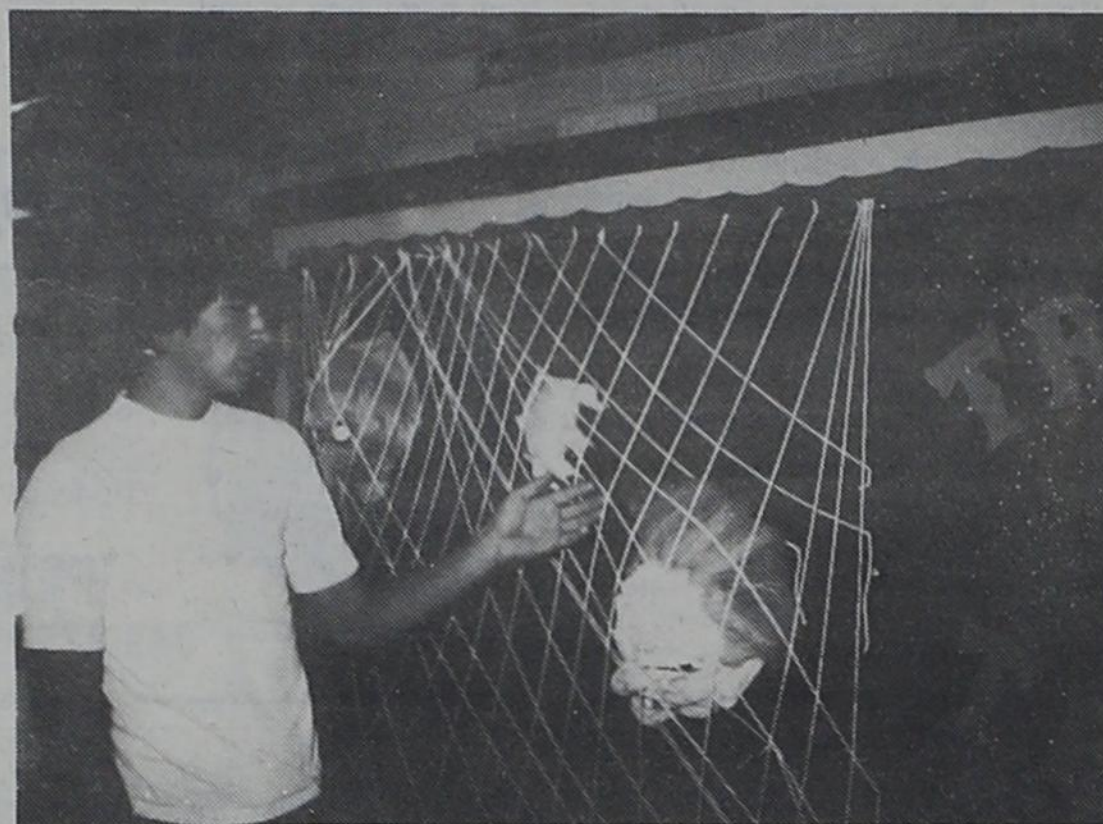

Incidentally, the few dancing bits, the Nijinsky tango, the interpolated ballet touch in the same sequence, the episode with an alcoholic partner in a dance act (performed before a most embarrassing caricature of the late "Fatty" Arbuckle) give Nureyev a chance to do what he does best—dance.

There are caricatures of the famed women in Valentino's life. Leslie Caron is the Alla Nazimova (that late, great actress) in a role that is a disservice to a memory of one of theater's big one. Caron is almost unrecognizable (where have the days of "Gigi" gone?) but she springs competence to a puzzling interpretation.

Michelle Phillips is the Rambova and down the line you'll find Carol Kane, Felicity Kendal (playing Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer film cutter June Mathis who discovered Valentino and made him a star) and, of all things, an aging Huntz Hall (one of the original "Dead End Kids") popping up as movie great producer Jesse Lasky.

"Valentino" is a wild, wild film. The sad fact is that today's generation is going to swallow all this malarky as whole truth when, in fact, it is a put-on and not to be confused with fact. Well, as I said, Ken Russell, when he produces 'em, he goes for shock value. He gets it again in this one. But, like the character during the course of the film, Leslie Caron, incidentally, mouths—the whole thing is—"expletive deleted."

I made a somewhat caustic comment in a few lines last week about the George Burns-John Denver movie, also at the Fox 4, "Oh, God!"—I took another look to see if I was right or wrong and I've somewhat (but not wholly) altered my opinion. I'll readjust that in our next. And, comment on Lubbock Community Concerts opener this week (too late for press time), the appearance of Dmitri Alekseyev, the eminent young, Russian pianist. In the new Community Concerts setting at Memorial Civic Center.

Ballenger School Halloween Carnival will be held Thursday, October 27, 1977 from 6 to 9 p.m. The event will be in the school building, located at 1110 40th St. in Lubbock. Cookies, cupcakes, drinks, fun and surprises will be had for all ages. Please come. A prize will be awarded to the best costumed child or adult.

Donations Given to Aid Ballenger School

The Ballenger School recently received several donations to aid with their Garden Therapy Project.

Max Johnson of Ralls donated a pumpkin that will be used by the students for their Halloween Carnival. Mrs. A.M. Minnix and Mrs. Tinley Herrington of Lorenzo donated mums for the Chrysanthemum Colorama.

The students will use the mums to root new plants in their greenhouse. The greenhouse is provided by the P.T.A.

Jew was provided by Mrs. Emma Hatchell for the students to use in pottery the students make in a pottery class.

During a recent visit to the Garden and Arts Center, the members of the Green Thumb Junior Garden Club received a cactus plant from Mr. Kimsey Miller and Mrs. N.A. Cox.

The project is sponsored by the Petal Pushers Garden Club which provides regular programs.

On Nov. 3 Mrs. Jodie Howard will present an ecology program. The program is scheduled for 1 p.m. in Ballenger School cafeteria.

The best way to get somewhere in life is to know where you're going and get up sufficient steam for the journey.

KELLY'S HEROES

By JOE KELLY

Texas Tech plays its biggest game of the season Saturday. It's do or die, because there probably will be no second chance. Texas can make or break the Red Raiders.

A year ago the Longhorns came to Lubbock in about the same situation. They shot out in front and played possibly their finest game of the year before losing, 31-28. The defeat finished Texas as a contender for the conference championship.

There's a good deal of similarity this year, but in reverse. A year ago the Raiders were undefeated. This year it is Texas that hasn't tasted defeat. A year ago it was a "must win" game for Texas. This year it is Tech that is in that situation.

The Raiders are going to be faced with playing their best, maybe over their heads, if they are to win. And a second loss virtually would close the door on a conference title.

A year ago Earl Campbell, who had been hurt, started against Tech and what a day he was having when he was re-injured. He carried seven times for 65 yards in the first quarter. Remember, too, that it was 7-7 at the time and Texas later surged ahead by 21-10.

Now Campbell is well, stronger than ever and faster, too. No one has stopped him and it's doubtful that Tech will, either. He is just a tremendous back.

Also, the Longhorns have a new coach and the days of three yards and a cloud of dust are gone. The Steers throw the ball as part of the attack, not as an afterthought. That makes them that much tougher to defense.

Also, Lam and Ham Jones are back and a year older and wiser, with no less speed. And Brad Shearer heads up a defensive line that has been murder on opponents.

As if all the offense and defense wasn't enough, Texas now is the nation's No. 1 team. The Horns will be trying to prove beyond a shadow of a doubt that they deserve that ranking.

So, you have a combination of a must game for Tech and No. 1 ranking for Texas. You don't know how able Rodney Allison will be, and he could make a difference if completely well. Still, it promises to be a bitterly fought game, one maybe as much in doubt up to the end as the Texas-Arkansas battle.

The conference ended its non-league fights last week on an impressive note, with TCU and Baylor winning. That ran the record to a fine 18-9-0 tally for the season, one of the best ever. In the process the league beat some pretty good teams.

Del Ray Mounts was one of the honorees into the Tech Hall of Honor almost two weeks ago. The Perryton graduate was one of Tech's many great guards and, in many ways, the most unusual.

Del was a walk on and first caught the notice of Polk Robison as a freshman pitcher on the baseball team. Polk saw him in action and said to himself, "now there's a fighter." He was, too. He didn't know the meaning of defeat and he played every game that way.

Leave it to Bill Whitmore, the irrepressible sports information director at Rice, to remember Del. He was in the pressbox for the Owls' game and remarked to us: "I wonder if he (Del) still has teeth marks in his head?"

It happened at Rice once. Del went up for a rebound and a taller Rice player came down on top, obviously with his mouth wide open. Del had to be escorted from the court and, as I recall, had stitches taken in his scalp. It was one of the rarer injuries in sports.

Fortunately I kept my mouth shut, so the World Series didn't cost me any money. It well might have, because I didn't think New York had a chance. In fact, I'd have bet that the Dodgers would win in four straight.

Even after the Yankees won the first game, I still thought that it was a fluke and that the Bums would win the next four. But Mike Torrez, Ron Guidry and Sparky Lyle were something else.

The Yankees were a strange championship club. They had fights. They didn't get along. They loafed at times. They pulled some bonehead plays. They lacked clutch hitting much of the time.

But, like the Oakland A's in their prime, they were pros with pride. Winning was more important than coming in second. And what a way to wind things up, with Reggie Jackson, the most controversial of all, putting his name into the record books with an almost unbelievable final game.

Will the Yankees win next year? For that matter, will the Dodgers? Will winter simmer down the feuds and fighting and fussing among the champs, or will players leave? And, even if they do come back, will the club be able to duplicate 1977?

As for the Dodgers, they had a strong club, but much of their success was getting that quick start. If I had to bet right now, I'd go with Boston and Cincinnati to meet in 1978.

*****

Better get your long Johns out. It was just a year ago Friday that we had the big snow, which delayed the start of the Texas game an hour and a half. Doesn't seem possible, in view of the hot fall we've been having.

Prediction—it won't snow in Austin Saturday, unless it is the touchdown variety.

D.C. Fair in Charge of LHA Programs

D.C. Fair's job is to find housing for those who need it and don't have the money. He's in charge of the Lubbock Housing Authority, and he's made significant improvements to that organization since he took over 14 months ago. He was recently commended for his work by the Housing Authority Board of Commissioners. As the programs become more successful, more money is available. This year, through various funds, $806,000 was appropriated for the Lubbock Housing Authority.

The money is used for five programs, Fair explained. First the prospective tenant makes an application to see if he or she is qualified: have a low income and a large family.

The first program is the Section 8, one in which the tenant participates in the rent, which is pro-rated according to income—what the tenant makes determines the amount of rent he pays, and the rest of the rent is paid by Lubbock Housing Authority.

The second program is 18-1, the Hub Homes project, which is the oldest. There are 130 units with one, two, three and four bedroom homes. Money to keep up this facility comes from the Modernization program, which donated $565,000 to replace water and gas lines, put in check meters and repair, replace or installation.

The third program is 18-2, the Greenville project, owned by LHA, on Weber Drive. There are 236 units with one, two, three and four bedrooms. The Modernization program contributed $170,000 for renovating the old units.

The fourth project is the Turnkey-3, with 220 individual houses in Cherrypoint, but these are being rented by tenants. CETA is funding $46,000 for a painting program, where each house will be painted as close to the tenants request as possible.

Fair came here from 25 years in the Lubbock Independent School District, where he worked as a visiting teacher, primarily as a liaison between the home and the school; he'd go out to the troubled kid's houses and work with the parents. He checked on truants, and made recommendations about students to their school.

"I don't want to do anything to build me up; I want to build up the people in the tenement. I'm concerned about what happens to them."

This weekend, call both families for practically the price of one.

It's true! This weekend—and every weekend between 11 p.m. Friday and 5 p.m. Sunday—you can place two Long Distance calls for practically the price of one weekday evening call, when you dial the 1+ way.

For example, a 10-minute call to someone a thousand miles away weekday evenings (5 p.m. to 11 p.m., Sunday-Friday) would cost you $2.44, plus tax. Which, you'll admit, isn't bad.

But for practically the same price, you could make two eight-minute calls over the same distance... any weekend.

It's almost like getting one call free!

So this weekend, enjoy a couple of Long Distance calls. And make three families happy!

Long Distance. What else is so nice for the price?
