Dunbar Graduate to Perform Here Friday

Specialist 5 Chester H. Griffin, string bass player in the Concert Band of the internationally famous United States Army Field Band of Washington, D.C., will perform with the Field Band at Municipal Auditorium in Lubbock on Friday, November 5th, at 8:15 p.m.

Specialist Griffin, son of Mrs. L.H. Griffin of 2806 Vanda Street, has been a member of the Army Field Band since January of 1971. He was graduated from Dunbar High School in 1965. He attended Texas Tech and received a bachelor of music education degree from Howard University in Washington, D.C. in 1970.

Prior to entering the Army, Specialist Griffin performed with the Lubbock Symphony Orchestra and the Roy Roberts Combo in Lubbock.

Specialist Griffin resides with his wife, Janis, in Washington, D.C. This admission-free concert by the "Kings of the Highway," the official touring musical representative of the United States Army, is being sponsored locally by the Jaycees, in conjunction with the Chief of Information, Department of the Army.

In addition to the full performance, special assemblies have been scheduled at Estacado High School by the Band and at Dunbar High School by the Chorus. Both assemblies will be on Friday, November 5, 1:30 p.m. at Estacado and 2:30 p.m. at Dunbar.

Citizens Group to Discuss Forms of City Government Today at Luncheon

Dr. J. William Davis, Jack Kastman, and Mrs. T.J. Patterson will speak on basic forms of municipal government and methods used in the election of city councilmen at the November 4 general meeting of the League of Women Voters. Mrs. Patterson has worked with groups interested in better representation for minorities. Dr. Davis, a government professor at Tech, and Mr. Kastman, a former member of the City Council, are members of the City Charter Amendment Study Committee which was adopted in February, 1970. In June, 1971, the committee adopted a resolution directing the city staff to study the feasibility of enlarging the council to seven members, with three to have residency requirements in specified districts to allow representation by minority groups.

County Tax-Assessor-Collector Russell S. Hardin will deputize League members attending the luncheon meeting. These members will then help register voters as a part of the League's continuing drive for voter registration.

The luncheon meeting, which is open to the public will start at 11:45 a.m. at the Gridiron Restaurant, 4413 50th Street. Lunch reservations may be placed by calling Mrs. Les Horner, 799-0576, before Tuesday evening, November 2. Any woman of voting age is eligible for membership in the League. Further information on the League can be obtained by calling Mrs. J.R. Johnson, membership chairman, at 762-4335 or Mrs. Duane Jordan, president, at 795-9718.

Editor Speaks to NHS Group

T.J. Patterson, editor of the West Texas Times, spoke to Monterey High School's National Honor Society, 1971 Fall Initiation, last Sunday afternoon in the school's auditorium.

Ninety-two high school students, sophomores, juniors and seniors, were initiated into the honor society Sunday.

Mayor James Granberry proclaimed Sunday, November 7th, "Rev. O.D. Hollins Day" in the City of Lubbock in ceremonies at City Hall Wednesday morning. At the same time, Rev. Hollins' brother, T. J. Hollins, of the First Mission Baptist Church of Santa Ana, California was made an honorary citizen. He is conducting the 25th Anniversary services for his brother.

The week-long services got underway last Sunday and will conclude Sunday afternoon with Rev. A.L. Davis, minister of Greater St. Luke Baptist Church, delivering the anniversary sermon at 3:00.

A banquet was given in honor of Rev. and Mrs. Hollins Tuesday evening at the Plains Co-Op Oil Mill. Ernest Butler was chairman of the banquet committee.

Appearing on the banquet program was the Lyons Chapel Choir, under the direction of Mrs. Sammy Miller, church pianist and director of the 100-voice choir. She is the daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Hollins.

Other daughters of the couple are Mrs. Mildred Snell and Mrs. Mary Kennard, both of Lubbock.

Mrs. Hollins has assisted her husband in work of the church and has served as director of the youth department of the New Zeal Baptist District Association, of which Rev. Hollins is moderator. Prior to being elected moderator,

Inspection Team Appointed Here

Six young men were recently appointed to work as an insurance team in the Lubbock District of Atlanta Life Insurance Company. This special team is under the supervision of C.F. Cooke, district manager of the Lubbock District.

The primary purpose of this team is to learn about production and collection in the insurance business. This training program will receive training in management as well as other executive tools while in the Lubbock District.

The members are E.L. Steen, captain, of Austin; Wyatt Whittle, also of Austin; Don Wallace of Longview; and Bobby Thomas, Ricky Alford and Tyrone Ervin, all of Lubbock.

At the present time, Steen, Whittle and Ervin are working in Lubbock; Wallace in Midland; and Thomas and Alford are getting their experience in Amarillo.

"This group of young men," according to Cooke, "is one of the top teams in the country working on special efforts of Atlanta Life. Since their involvement with the Lubbock District, October 15th, the team has written $412.00 worth of new business for the district."

Charles E. Terrell, who works closely with the young men, admits that "they are quite capable of contributing something constructive to the Atlanta Life program in West Texas, as well as any area they may go."

The special team will depart the Lubbock District November 19th.

"REV. O. D. HOLLINS DAY"—Reverend O. D. Hollins, minister of Lyons Chapel Baptist Church, at right, and his brother, Reverend T. J. Hollins of Santa Ana, California, on the left, received proclamations from Mayor of Lubbock, Dr. James Granberry, Wednesday morning in the Council Chambers of City Hall. Sunday has been proclaimed "O.D. Hollins Day" in Lubbock by the Mayor.

Rev. Hollins served 38 years as president of the district Sunday School and Training Union programs.

Rev. Hollins has been instrumental in the building of three sanctuaries since he came to Lubbock. The present facility was completed in 1961.

The Hollins family came to Lubbock in 1946 from Tahoka. On June 13, 1946 he organized a church on a small plot of land donated by Dr. C.H. Lyons, Lubbock's first Black dentist, who also gave $850.00 to begin a building project. The church began with a membership of seven persons.

In 1961, the building and plot (located in the old Queen City addition) was sold to Urban Renewal and a new site was purchased at East 24th Street and Quirt Avenue. An educational building was constructed and an auditorium was added in 1965.

The two young ladies are part of a five member team, the Five Flames, representing each of Lubbock's High Schools, which present programs to civic and employee audiences, help work the report meetings and tell the story of the United Fund.

City Elections Are Not Really Too Far Away!

It won't be long before steps will be made by local politicians to seek your precious vote. The city elections next year should be some which will contain some surprises. At this time, however, we would like to call your attention to some important things which we feel the Black community should know.

First, when you look at the incumbents, look carefully at the record of each individual. Determine for yourself if these people are worth voting for again.

Of course, there will be some among the new aspirants, who would have you believe that they will work for the interest of all the people, until they are elected. Then we are faced with the same old, "business as usual" city fathers.

Second, remember the best way to judge, if you please, a candidate is by what he says, where he says it and what he will not say. There are those who always have two speeches—one for each side of the tracks. Then also there are the sharpies who talk to television and radio reporters, in double talk, and really say nothing. Please don't forget that anyone who evades every major issue with the pat answer, "I will cross that bridge when I get to it," doesn't intend to ever be forced to cross that bridge.

We Must Lead Ourselves

"Black is beautiful and it's so beautiful to be Black." S.C.L.C.

Our strongest bond is our blackness. Working together to achieve common goals we reach out to one another. We make life better for all through dedicated aim and effort. Blacks, wherever they live, are challenged to share common aims and goals and to improve the conditions of life for Black people. Pressing forward in our search for peaceful ways to solve problems, we join with others seeking change and challenge to set good examples before the eyes of the world. "Recognition is one thing but performance is still another." We are called upon to prove that we are men and women.

It is obvious that Black people must lead and run their own organizations. The revolutionary idea—that Blacks are able to do things themselves—can only be conveyed by the Black people. We must help to create an aroused and continuing Black consciousness that will provide the basis for political strength. To have our daily needs met we must achieve self-identity and self-determination.

Black people must continue to press forward for change in local and nation-wide patterns of oppression. However, this does not mean that we should strive for the same kind of rewards obtained by the white society. The ultimate values and goals are an effective share in the total power of the society and not domination or exploitation of other groups. We need full participation in the decision-making processes affecting the lives

Remember also, in order to be ready for the really big elections, come spring of 1972, we must get ourselves registered now. This is a must. It is imperative that we do this now, or as soon as possible.

Keep in mind also that the City of Lubbock Elections are not really far off. This page of the West Texas Times has started now getting ready to inform you, our precious readers, of the upcoming elections in the various cities throughout West Texas. We hope to make introductions of each candidate. This will not mean that we would endorse such candidates. Rather, it would let you know what they are saying and how they are speaking, or not speaking to the real issues.

The West Texas Times wants their readers to be able to weigh the testimony against the actions of some of the incumbents and make up their own minds. We want you, on the other hand, to start getting ready for the elections to be held in your community in 1972. It's not too early to start getting ready!!

For all we know, by getting ready now, there could be a Black seek office and come out victorious in city politics. It's needed, especially in the larger West Texas communities. The "man" has been representing the Black man in West Texas, (Lubbock, Midland, Odessa and Amarillo) too long. We can do something about this, come '72.

You're darn right, brothers and sisters, we're going to give you an opportunity to take a long hard look at your candidates in your given communities.

We want our readers to know where all of the candidates stand, and you be ready to elect the best on election day, 1972.

of Black people.

We are indeed saying: "Mr. Charlie, we'd rather do it ourselves." And in doing it ourselves we will develop the habit of participation, the consciousness of ability to achieve, and the experience and wisdom to govern. It is difficult for white America to understand our revolutionary mentality. Needless to say, they (whites) would save themselves a lot of trouble if they did not try to understand and to come to terms with black-oriented mentality.

One thing is for sure: there is a body of Black people determined to "T.C.B."—take care of business. Black people will not be stopped in their drive to achieve dignity, to achieve their share of power, and to become their own men and women.

Black people in this country are uniting. We are beginning to recognize our heritage and build a sense of community. We must define our own goals and lead and support our own organizations.

We Must Be Men and Women, and Make Decisions

I've never met Huey P. Newton, Bobby Seale, or H. Rap Brown; I've only watched them on television being taken jail. Some of the statements and comments they made, I recognized as the secret black man inside me, and I know this holds true to every black man in the country, whether he admits it or not: some because they do not realize it, and some for fear of admitting it. Malcolm X and the rest of these brave black men and women are either a legend or a martyr.

One thing you can say for these people is that they stand taller than most black men I have ever seen; that is they allow absolutely no injustice by white America to go unchallenged. Because of their truths, they are bad guys, but by being truthful they never lie—but expose a lie.

I often wonder how much closer might black people be to freedom now if all of us had faced them with Malcolm X's, Martin L. King's, and H. Rap Brown's kind of courage?

I look at the young brothers growing up in an age being shaped in no small measure by Dick Gregory, James Baldwin, Jim Brown, Mauhammad Ali, and a thousand angry men just like them. And as these go, others come. With these little brothers and sisters coming up, how little or how much like H. Rap Brown and others will they be? Will

From The Business Desk

Well, Halloween is over, part of the people in this country have already celebrated Veteran's Day and the rest will do the same at the traditional time next Thursday, November 11th, the sun and my clock are back on the same schedule, Thanksgiving is drawing near, and most certainly Christmas isn't very far away.

And speaking of Thanksgiving, the paper that week will be published a day early—so everyone will have an opportunity to spend Thursday, the 25th, giving thanks, stuffing themselves with turkey and watching football games on the "big eye."

Don't be too surprised, there I spelled it right that time, if you begin to read and hear about a move here in Lubbock to vote the city "wet" for liquor by the drink. A meeting, scheduled this afternoon, is for the purpose of outlining several groups plans here in town to make such an attempt, which probably makes some sense, as far as I'm concerned.

Many people don't seem to understand why this newspaper requires a stamped, self-addressed envelope for pictures if they are to be returned to the owners. But if they would just stop and think about it—where it costs us 8 cents each to mail a picture back to you, along with having to pay for an envelope, be sure to get the address right, etc., and then carry the letter or picture to the post office—there is an ad in this paper where you can buy replacement pictures for slightly more than 12 cents each.

The good, hard-working people of Slaton, Texas, have done it again. They were confronted with the idea of celebrating Veteran's Day on Monday, the 25th of October, and decided to just go ahead and "do their thing" in the traditional manner, setting their celebration on the 11th of November.

No doubt the politicians have caused a great deal of confusion by moving things around where we have to consult the calendar each morning to see when they designated a traditional holiday and when they didn't. A case in point is the fact that most children were so confused this year, concerning when Halloween was to be celebrated, that many people had "goblins" on Saturday and Sunday nights.

The flap at City Hall last Wednesday, and the subsequent firing of City Manager Bill Blackwell has been expected by this column since June of this year. At that time I visited with several elected officials and came away with the understanding that Mr. B. had been advised to seek employment elsewhere.

The problems we have had recently—and this goes back several Mayors—is being able to understand who answers to whom at City Hall. The elected officials, on the most part, expect and are expected to answer to the citizens, which naturally would make most people think that city employees would have to answer to the elected officials. But the rub has been over whether the position of City Manager answers to anyone or not. Until this problem is straightened out we all can look forward to more confusion, more misunderstanding in city hall, and probably more cases of people being fired from time to time.

One thing for sure though, I would personally hope that the Mayor and Council make an honest and sincere effort to find someone of ability from a little closer to home next time they decide to fill the manager's chair. It would seem to me, with as many fine graduates as we see leave college here in Lubbock every year, that someone who knows more about Lubbock—in all respect—and less about Municipal League membership might fill the post right on.

It is my understanding that the representatives of the group opposed to the flour mill idea met last week with oil mill representatives, and things may be on the way to being worked out. We have done, and will do some more, checking on the proposal, and things look good for both parties at the time of this writing. But before we go any further, we will do some more checking, and inform our readers of the outcome.

Reverend W.A.I. McDonald's Address

by Jodie C. Sanford

(This address was delivered by Rev. McDonald on October 6th, to The East Texas Baptist Association at its annual session in Longview, Texas and at 1:15 a.m. Saturday, October 9th, Rev. and Mrs. W.A.I. McDonald had a serious automobile wreck. Both of these fine Christians are in serious condition. We seek the prayers of the Saints. Excerpts of his address follow.

The first installment of this column was published in last week's issue of the West Texas Times. The final installment is presented this week).

The Saints Challenge Us

Many who walked with us are gone and walk with us no more. Their voices are hushed, their footfalls are silenced and their presence we only long for, but their great spirits are yet with us and speak to us. They are saying to us today keep the faith. This associational year carried home some of East Texas' most loyal workers and some of Butler College's best friends and supporters like Mrs. Flewellyn, Mrs. Roberta Isabell, Rev. B.T. Hawkins, Rev. M.C. Driver and many others that time will not permit me to name here. But their spirits move us today to work for a better and more servicable Butler College.

The Theme

"Go ye, and teach all nations." This is 'Our Mission Imperative' The Gospel ends with a claim "All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth", (verse 18), A great Commission "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations", (verse 19), and a great promise "And lo I am with you always", (verse 20).

Some one has suggested that perhaps these concluding words are not the exact transcrip of the language of Christ. They seem to reflect both the meditation and experience of the early church. But they are not therefore less true. Rather they give the substance of his teaching—as it was ratified in the venture of his first century followers. We can never concede to the shallowness of this casual age, who says, "one religion is as good as another". All authority means supreme right to appoint to office: thence comes the great commission. It means right to require obedience—because of love poured out unto death, and now triumphant in the eternal kingdom. It means right to govern in both earth and heaven. A true faith is not chosen by men; it chooses men. It is not a garment that we can don or doff, but a very life. Christ claims to be the Lord of life.

Christ has spoken the Word about our human nature: we are lost without God, and God has sought and still seeks us in him. Christ has spoken the word about salvation: he is himself the Word from above history who enters history to redeem.

Christ has spoken the Word about human destiny: men are not intricate congeries of veins and nerves, but children of God by adoption through Christ. Christ has spoken the Word about God—in very incarnation. Other's faiths give gleams of God's light: they are the flush in the sky before the dawn. But Christ is the brightness of his rising, "the fullness of the Godhead bodily" (Col. 2:9). Thus there is but one central question. Perhaps it is not "What would Jesus do?" for we are not Jesus, and cannot presume fully to say or know what he would do. It is rather "What would Jesus have me do?" So long as we consult "our best judgement," or "the calculated risks of politics," or "what our friends think," or "the wisdom of men" we thus far deny the authority of Christ. Not seldom his commands run counter to what seems to us to be practical wisdom. He has right to command. The command is spoken in the gentleness of love and the rigor of holiness. He shares with us all the hazards of obedience. The issue of his dictates is joy. But—authority is his, in heaven and in earth.

A World Venture

We need not soon pause to ask how the sense of world mission came to the early church. It may have been mediated through the failure of the plea of Jewry, but it came from the lips and life of Christ. All nations is a recurrent theme in his teaching. In an age of narrow loyalties, when national prejudices were sharpened into animosity and often into contempt, Jesus ranged the world both in the gifts of his love and the yearning of his gospel. "One World" made it's bid for a time to become an accepted slogan, the expression of a recognized necessity; but, had we listened, we could have heard it long ago from Christ.

The world venture is written in our human nature. It is "in the constitution." Our language is the bequest of the speech of many lands and generations. Our music knows no national boundaries. Our food comes from the end of the earth. Moreover, our wishes and our curiosity bind us to mankind. Whatever our prejudice, travel posters quicken our hunger to see how other people live. The Good Earth is a novel about China, Lost Horizon about Tibet. Travelogues have a perennial interest. If we live on one bank of a river, we would be curious concerning folk on the other bank; and nowadays oceans are no wider than a river. Edna St. Vincent Millay, the poet is right in her insistence that if we try to live in narrow heart, we suffocate:

"The world stands out on either side
No wider than the heart is wide."

But this writing on our nature is not enough; for our self love denies the world bond, and of our selves we have little to give. The commission of Christ comes to fulfill our nature in the bond of the gospel. Gratitude constrains us. For we ourselves learned of Christ through Christian Missionaries, and must in very thanksgiving share the gift we have received. Joy constrains us. Joy must be shared: A doctor would be called recreant if he did not proclaim his discovery of a cure, and the Christian is recreant if he fails to tell the glad peace and power of Jesus Christ. But even when we do not feel either gratitude or joy, even when our mood is low, we are under orders: Go therefore. Authority is Christ's but he stoops to use our human hand and heart to work his will. We have not always obeyed. Whether we obey or not his "marching orders" remain: go therefore.

The Method We Must Use

Make disciples is the method, baptizing and teaching are the components of the main task. When these words were first spoken, there were a dozen men, none of whom seem worth mentioning in a history book, and a Leader whom Renan, with crass blindness, called "the illusion of an impassioned woman." And now? Celsus said it was "the wildest of dreams" to believe that people of many lands could have "one mind in religion." Now we have come to realize that the peoples of the world must have one mind or die in their violent hates. Now the logic of history points to the alternative—Christ or chaos.

Baptizing them: this Christian rite has it's place. Beyond all the sometimes needless controversies, it has more than it's own kindling symbolism. Perhaps Matthew was swayed, in the use of the word, by the baptism which the synagogue required of proselytes. What of it? Christianity made the rite rich in history and more quickening in its significance. Baptizing into a profound meaning. Some symbol or ritual we cannot avoid—until we succeed in living as disembodied spirits. The Christian forms, especially of baptism and the Lord's supper, have been and are yet used of God with singular blessing. They vivify truth; they unite the Church; through the Word that accompanies them they are the "means of grace."

My Views
they reject us of today and count us as obsolete Tom's, or will we have paved a better way for them? After all, most of us are not like H. Rap or Dick Gregory, except in spirit.

Most of us are not in the front lines. At best, most of us are distant soul brothers, enjoying the comforts of the relatively uninvolved Middle Class, while reaping the benefits of his Black Revolution.

The coming generation will be unlike mine, which learned only gradually that black men should always protest injustice. Their generation, following Rap Brown's, is likely to grow up taking for granted that black men should always fight back.

The difference between my generation and my father's generation is that in the early 1900's there was no such thing in Mississippi as a Negro protest movement, no such animal as H. Rap Brown, and the phrase Civil Rights had nothing to do with black men.

What annoyed me most in my early know-it-all years was the apologetic look always in black men's eyes. As a teen-ager, I saw it in the eyes of all black adults. What about my generation? As I look back on my young adult years, the 1960's, I remember a spark of pride and confidence in the eyes of black men my age. To me, the message in their eyes was, "I know I can, and I will."

Another change for me and my generation was exposure to some of the things white children had been getting all along. In other words, Mr. Charlie opened a few doors. Even as out of date as my generation will seem to the coming generation, I want what Rap Brown's generation wants.

I want it even more for the upcoming youngsters. It goes without saying they will want it too. Exactly how they go about getting it is something my generation may never know.

One thing for sure, black men and women, it is time to stand up and make some decisions—no matter which generation you are a part of.

Each man has to fight for what he believes in, for what he wants, and on his own terms. If Rap Brown's way fits you, then so be it. If you would rather join your well-to-do economic boycotts or Civil Disobedience Group, so be it. If you would rather work with whites for change through the negotiation process they prefer, so be it. If you would rather concentrate on one aspect of the problem, such as teaching or counseling less fortunate blacks in the ghettos, so be it. And if you don't want to do anything but live your own life, so be it!

But whatever you do, let it be your own decision, growing from your own convictions, not anyone else's. Let no man sell you his battle cry. It is your life, and the moments that mean the most will be those when you do what you feel you must—because of an urgent command from your guts. Do not sell out—stand up and make your own decisions!
