Rev. Ralph Abernathy Quits SCLC Post, Cites Lack of Funds, Black Commitment

was assassinated in 1968, last week announced that he will resign from that post Aug. 16, the day the SCLC's annual convention begins in Indianapolis, Inc.

Citing the black middle class abandonment of civil rights causes and a lack of funds, Abernathy said he was leaving because those blacks who had attained "high positions made possible through our struggles and the struggles of other poor people...will not support SCLC financially and make it possible for this organization to meet its obligations and commitments."

He specifically mentioned Coretta Scott King, widow of the slain civil rights leader, who he said "still receives 100 per cent of my backing," although she could have saved the organization her husband had founded by sharing funds she had received for the Martin Luther King Jr. Center for Social Change here.

Mrs. King issued a brief statement praising the 47-year-old Baptist minister, but ignored his criticism of her.

Abernathy also noted that the staff has been cut back by more than half in recent years and the SCLA is about $150,000 in debt. However, he added, "for a large organization, that's not so much."

In recent years, SCLC has had to compete for funds with newer and more militant civil rights organizations, including Operation PUSH and the National Welfare Rights Organization.

But, Abernathy steadfastly refused to give ground to or join the more militant groups, such as the Muslims and the Black Panthers, and tried to continue Dr. King's nonviolent posture.

"These and many other struggles have left me battered, tired and worn, for I bear on my body the marks and bruises of the movement to make men free," Abernathy said. "But, in spite of my weariness, please know that even though my head is bloody, it is unbowed."

Shortly afterward, Abernathy went to Dr. King's gravesite to pray. Tears streaming down his face, he told reporters, "I want to talk to Martin now."

Although he refused to name a possible successor, Abernathy discounted Rev. Jesse Jackson, head of PUSH (People United to Save Humanity), because Jackson, who formerly served as SCLC's economic director before an in-house squabble, is no longer a member.

Washington, D.C.—America's only Black State Supreme Court Justice, the president of America's largest Black business, America's most successful and youngest Black magazine publisher, and a world renowned Black research bacteriologist will be among the array of distinguished talent scheduled to appear at the 55th Annual Conclave of Omega Psi Phi Fraternity in St. Louis from July 31 to August 5.

Other nationally famous Black members of Omega to appear will be the assistant legal counsel for General Motors, a Black former president of a newspaper association and the president of a southern college.

The Conclave theme for the 62 year old Black college fraternity will be "Reassessment of Goals For Black Americans In A Democracy".

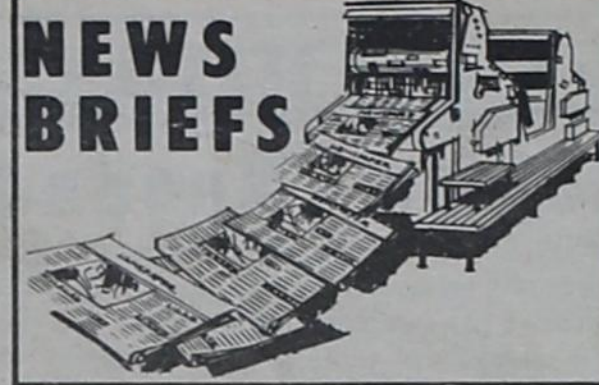

Highlights of the St. Louis meeting will be three major panels including America's most influential Blacks. The panel on Social Welfare will feature Dr. Hildras A. Poindexter, Howard University medical faculty member and world known medical researcher; Robert N.C. Nix, Jr., America's only Black State Supreme Court Justice and Dr. Jerome Gresham, president of Barber Scotia College in Concord, N.C.

The panel on Business will include Otis M. Smith, assistant legal counsel for General Motors; Milton Johnson, an executive and a buyer for the J.C. Penney Company and William J. Kennedy, III, president of North Carolina Mutual Insurance Company of Durham.

The panel on Communications will include Earl Graves, publisher of the new and skyrocketing business publication known as Black Enterprise and Garth Reeves, editor and publisher of the Miami Times and former president of the National Newspaper Publishers Association.

According to James Avery, Grand Basileus of Omega Psi Phi, and an executive with Exxon, the fraternity will have a record turn out this year in St. Louis and some of the usually secret awards from Omega will be the most exciting in the fraternity's history.

Speaking in Washington about the 55th Annual Conclave, Harold Cook, the new executive director of Omega Psi Phi, said that reservations are constantly pouring in to the extend that a second hotel may be used to accommodate the thousands of Omega men, their families and friends.

Thousands of Pa. Welfare Recipients Faced With Food Shortage

Philadelphia—(NBNS)—While Pennsylvania legislators are unable to agree on a new budget to replace one which ended June 30, about 50,495 welfare families are facing a food shortage because they have not received their bimonthly checks. In addition, 27,000 state employees have not received their paychecks.

Coordinators of emergency food distribution programs said last week that their resources are almost depleted and they "don't know how much longer we can hang on."

The problem involves the amount of tax relief. The Republicans want a $309 million tax, while the Democrats, led by Gov. Milton Shapp, have proposed a $218 million tax cut. Shapp is currently trying to resolve the dispute.

Groups Seek To End Bias Against Whites

San Francisco—(NBNS)—In an effort to end alleged "discrimination against white Caucasians" in city employment and real estate sales, a group called Citizens for Equal Opportunity has started a petition drive to get 12,607 signatures of registered voters to put the measure on the Nov. 6 ballot here. A spokesman for the group said the drive was spurred because many whites are disturbed about affirmative action programs adopted by the human rights and civil service commissions.

Reserves and Guard Try to Woo Blacks

Indianapolis—(NBNS)—Maj. Gen. Francis S. Greenleaf, chief of the National Guard, last week announced that the Armed Forces Reserves and the National Guard are trying to recruit more minorities to enlist and serve as civilian employees.

Attending a session of the annual convention of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, Greenleaf said the organizations have made notable progress in recent years but that attracting retaining minority groups has been difficult because of the forces' reputation as being racist.

"But by demonstration to black leadership that we are sincere in trying to change and by showing we have many benefits, both in pay and training, for blacks, we are slowly building up black membership in our ranks," said Greenleaf.

He noted that in September, 1970, there were 4,500 blacks in the Army National Guard and 800 in the Air National Guard. At present, Greenleaf added, these figures have increased to 14,000 and 1,760 respectively.

25,000 Schools Reject Free Lunches

Washington—(NBNS)—The General Accounting Office has reported some 25,000 schools refused to participate in the nation's school lunch program.

There are 1.5 million needy children among the 8.7 million students in the non-participating schools, GAO reported. The needy children are entitled under the law to free or reduced-price lunches.

The school lunch program, which began in 1946, reaches about 27.5 million students in 84,600 schools at a cost last year of about $960 million.

U.S. Wants Youth Corps Money Halted

Washington—(NBNS)—Although the federal government has told local communities to begin planning for implementation of summer youth programs for jobs, the U.S. has asked for a federal court to block the expenditure of $239 million for the program.

A district court judge in New Jersey several weeks ago ordered the immediate usage of the appropriations by Congress for this summer's jobs program, since the Nixon Administration had sought to end the program as part of what it called its "Budget-cutting efforts."

The motion, filed in the U.S. Circuit (Appeals) Court in Philadelphia, says that carrying out the order would damage young people participating in the program as well as the government if the program was halted by budget cuts.

Reform Needed!

With all the information which has come from the Watergate thing in Washington, reform is the only way in which we can overcome problems at the local, state, and national levels of politics. As W. Clement Stone, who has given millions to Republican political candidates since 1967, says: "It's time that we realize the people of this nation should decide upon a code of ethics to establish for candidates, campaign financing, donors, and the like, not only at the federal level, but in state and city elections as well".

This makes a lot of sense, as we not only have problems at the national level, but also many similar problems on the state and local level. It's always interesting to find that once a person is elected at the local level, those who voted for the candidate—especially if they belong to a minority group—are forgotten about until the next election comes along.

Almost always there are favors rendered to special friends of politicians at both the city and state level—especially when those persons have made large contributions to the candidates campaign. If you are a little man, there are many things which are not made available to you, regardless of the fact that you did vote for a particular candidate.

This is the way it has been in the past, but the future may hold a different picture for those politicians who say one thing and really do another for their "special friends". In West Texas, and in the black community in particular, many voters eyes are being opened to the way of "white man's" politics and to the realities of life.

We would advise all politicians in the West Texas community to be aware of the way people are "re-thinking" about politics. As Mr. Stone has stated . . . "not only at the federal level, but in state and city elections as well." There is going to have to be some sort of political reform in order to get our political system back on course.

As the gentleman previously stated, "It's time for people of this nation to decide . . .".

DEAR EDITOR

Dear Editor

What we, who are deeply involved in POW-MIA campaigns have been afraid would happen, since the cease-fire, is beginning to take place.

Our government seems to be taking the easy way out, by starting to change the status of all our MIA's (Missing in Action) to PFD (Presumptive Finding of Death) beginning immediately and to be completed within one year. Without any new evidence—using only the proof they had when all these men were declared MIA.

Why these changes should not occur until inspections of grave and crash sites is completed, is because Article 8(b) of the Peace Agreement clearly limits the obligations of the communists to supply information on the missing in action. The only provision for the dead is an obligation to help determine location of a grave. If the man our government presumes dead is not in fact dead, and therefore has no grave site, his accounting is no longer provided for in the peace treaty. Then, why is our government so anxious to change the status? WHY?

The families of these men have waited patiently for 4½ months for the officials in the defense department to publicly condemn the Communists for refusing to account for 72 men of whom there is proof of capture.

Instead MIA families are being smeared in the news media, by Pentagon Officials, as selfish, rumor mongering charlatans, profiteers, and raisers of "false hopes", because they are distributing bracelets and bumper stickers.

If the Defense Department would use as strong a language against the Communists, as they have against the MIA families and concerned citizens, we would already have an accounting of our men.

Instead, the government is waging a campaign to destroy the only weapon the families have—PUBLIC OPINION. The same weapon that the returned POW's credited for bringing them home.

Now, the government wants to "silence public concern".

PENTAGON SEEKS WAYS TO NEGATE BOMB HALT by Jack Anderson

(Copyright, 1973, by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

Washington—Some Pentagon generals are looking for ways to continue the bombing of Cambodia beyond the August 15 deadline.

Air Force brass hats are doing their utmost to persuade the South Vietnamese to take up the bombing when U. S. bombers are finally withdrawn. The Air Force believes that the continued shower of explosives on jungles and rice paddies is essential to prevent a Communist takeover.

The South Vietnamese, however, are opposed to the suggestion as the congressional doves. The South Vietnamese believe they need all their air power to defend their own country.

In an effort to change General Thieu's mind, the generals are now looking for ways around the Paris peace agreements, so more planes and more bombs can be handed over to the Saigon government.

All of this would seem to fly in the face of Henry Kissinger's efforts to bring Prince Sihanouk back from Peking and put him in power in Cambodia as head of a coalition government. But intelligence reports suggest that Sihanouk is merely a figurehead and has no real power to negotiate a peace agreement.

It looks as if President Nixon, in his effort to bring peace to Vietnam, has heightened the war in Cambodia.

Chou's No: President Nixon is eager to have Chou En-lai visit him in Washington. Previously, Chou has turned down Nixon's invitations, explaining he could never come to the United States as long as Chiang Kai-shek's government has an embassy in Washington. But newspapers have speculated that the Chinese premier will now accept a White House invitation.

The latest word from CIA sources, however, suggests that Chou is more determined than ever to stay away.

When I knew Chou in Chungking during World War II, he had a surprisingly shrewd grasp of American politics. He is an exceedingly sophisticated man and it is highly unlikely that his understanding would have diminished during the last three decades.

Chou must be aware how badly Nixon has been weakened by the Watergate scandal. It would be out of character for the wily Chou to venture into an American political hornet's nest at this time.

The secret CIA reports indicate that Chou is not eager for a White House dinner, when he knows it may leave him hungry an hour later.

Lack of Proof: The Pentagon's dismissal of court

Haven't our MIA families been patient long enough? Don't let apathy leave these men behind, as 389 men were left behind in Korea.

Our government sent these men to war, and it is their obligation to get a full account of all the men. Even if it does take two or three years! These families have the Right to Know what has happened to their loved ones!

You, the American public, are the MIA families' only Hope. Write letters of protest to stop this status change.

Instead of PFD, why not presume them alive? Until we have definite proof from Hanoi—for Only Hanoi Knows.

Write the President, Congress and Department of Defense—Now.

Sincerely, Mrs. D.L. Alderman

As I See It

by T. J. Patterson

I had a rather interesting talk with the executive director of the Lubbock Housing Authority Board, James Stiles, last Friday afternoon in his office. He comes on as a man who is quite concerned about his responsibility—that of taking care of Green-Fair Manor and Hub Homes Apartments—as well as the more than 100 houses in the Cherry Point addition.

He made it clear that he will maintain the Green-Fair Manor Apartments, without hiring a manager. He says, "I'll be at the apartments (Green-Fair) twice a day, in the morning and afternoon. And if need be, I'll come back since most of those people work long hours."

All of this is good, as I related to Mr. Stiles, but Green-Fair Manor needs a full-time manager to take care of the many problems which exist in the area. It will be impossible to manage those 236 apartments without a manager. One of the problems Mr. Stiles admits to is the inability to find a qualified manager on the allowed salary.

This writer also told him that it would make a lot of sense to pay a manager a decent salary in order to keep the apartments up and not have to spend large sums of money to repair apartments that tenants have destroyed.

About the garbage dumpsters which are placed at the curb in front of the apartments, he stated that they will be painted (four a day) and this will help the looks of the area. This may help the looks at the outset, but what about the many problems those dumpsters will cause to the small children of the area? Unless those dumpsters are moved back to their original area, some kid may be hurt, either as a direct result of the dumpsters, or by darting into the path of a car from behind one of the high trash cans.

martial charges against former American prisoners of war was not based solely on a willingness to forgive and forget. Investigators have determined that there was no hard evidence to back up the charges.

The two men who brought the charges, Col. Theodore Guy and Rear Adm. James Stockdale, are reported to be bitter about the dismissal, but willing to follow the military code of obedience. Stockdale has protested privately to the Pentagon that the dismissal makes him "look bad".

Guy and Stockdale charged that the men received special treatment, including food, beer, cigarettes, peanuts and tours of Hanoi in return for making antiwar statements and giving information against their fellow prisoners.

The men say they made the antiwar statements because they—like hundreds of other Americans—honestly opposed the war. But they bigorously deny every giving information that would hurt their fellow prisoners.

Colonel Guy said his charges could be backed up by 12 witnesses. Pentagon investigators learned, however, that the witnesses could offer only hearsay testimony. It was widely whispered, but never proven, that the men ratted on the other prisoners.

So far as the Pentagon could find, the charged POWs were merly the victims of old soldier stories.

Military Might: Two Democratic congressmen, John Moss of California and Michael Harrington of Massachusetts, want to take a hard look at the influence of the military academies on American life. They feel that the military aristocracy, particularly graduates of West Point, are influencing government policy.

From the first days of our Republic, our forefathers have been suspicious of military influence. No less a folk hero than Davy Crockett warned against the growing power of West Point.

Now, however, military men with close personal ties to the top men in the Pentagon hold top policy positions in the civilian branches of government. General Alexander Haig has taken over as President Nixon's chief of staff. Major General John Dunn is deputy chief of staff for Vice President Spiro Agnew.

And hundreds of other retired military men are scattered through the federal government. They are called "double dippers" and draw military pensions and civilian salaries at the same time from the taxpayers.

It may be difficult, however, for Congress to look at the controversy objectively. The Constitution specifically states that "no person holding any office under the United States shall be a member of either House during his continuance in office." Yet dozens of congressmen hold military commissions.

Once, a Kansas senator named James Henry Lane was ejected from Congress for accepting a reserve brigadier's commission in the Union Army. Now reserve officers sit on the congressional committees that have jurisdiction over the Armed Forces.

It seems that the reason for placing the dumpsters on the front lawns of the apartments was because the City of Lubbock sanitation trucks couldn't get down the alley ways when it rains. If this is the case, then it should be impossible for all city residents to get their trash picked up since most of the allies in Lubbock are not paved!

No matter what the excuse is concerning the dumpsters being in front of the apartments, they should be placed behind the apartments where they were to begin with. It just doesn't make sense to this writer to endanger the lives of little boys and girls who must have some place to play in the area.

Although Mr. Stiles has a terrific challenge, the Lubbock Housing Authority Board and tenants of Green-Fair Manor will have to work together in order to upgrade the living conditions in the area. It'll not be done overnight. Certainly it will take a great deal of time and patience if this area is to become a positive, livable apartment complex in this city.

This writer did invite Mr. Stiles' office to use the West Texas Times when there was a need for communications about the welfare of the apartments. Since the complex is looking for capable people to work within the complex, I invited Mr. Stiles to submit an advertisement for help to the Times, as he has had no response in advertising in the local daily paper.

It is all of our responsibility to upgrade our community. Green-Fair Manor is only one area which needs to be re-developed in a manner which will help people. Many of our attitudes must change, and in so doing, everyone will be helped.

City elections will take place in approximately nine months. As of yet, nothing has been done about the recommendations made by the City Charter Commission in regard to the enlargement of the City Council.

It certainly would be wrong for all city councilmen to reside in East Lubbock, as it would be difficult to understand the wants and needs of the other areas of Lubbock. Yet, as you know, all of the elected officials are from West Lubbock. It is difficult for those elected officials to truly understand the wants and needs of the other citizens of Lubbock, although I am sure they make an attempt, no matter how concerned they are about people who reside in other areas.

It now appears as though nothing will be done before the next election, but let's at least see a push on the part of concerned citizens to have the question put on the April ballot to see how the majority of the voters in town feel about enlarging the council. Let's hope something will get underway before April, 1974. You know, a Ward System would make a lot of sense in the Hub City. Don't you think so?

Police Beat

Attempted Murder

Tony Price, 2405 Weber Drive, Apt. C, reported to the Lubbock Police Department that he was driving in the 1500 block of East 24th Street when everything fell apart. He told police that he had an argument with a lady, who was riding in the car, when a man passenger stepped in and started to shoot him (Tony).

According to Tony, the man said: "I don't want to shoot you. I can whip you with my fist." Tony told police, "I got the best of the man, and the lady gave the man the gun and he shot me."

Tony was shot in the right thigh; bullet did not exit. He is believed to have been shot with a .22 caliber pistol.

Aside from the man who allegedly shot Tony and the woman, there were two other men in the car.

House Burglary

House Burglary

The residence of Albert Lincoln, 1829 Manhattan Drive, was broken into one day last week while the Lincoln family was out of town.

Entry was apparently gained by kicking the front door open. The door was discovered by a postman who reported the matter to a neighbor in the block.

It was believed that the only thing missing, according to the police report, was a pump shotgun.

Sam West can hardly wait. Sam, in case the name is not as familiar a household word as Spiro T. Agnew, just happens to be one of the major leagues' finest defensive outfielders. That should have been in the past tense, "was" because it has been a few years since the veteran player and coach last wore spikes in anger.

Sam, who spent most of his years toiling for the "forgotten" team, the Washington Senators, was as colorful as vanilla ice cream in a 7-Up float.

But when it came to baseball, Sam ranks as one of the finest outfielders in history. Indeed, unless somebody has come along that I haven't heard of, he held the American League record for the greatest number of chances with the fewest number of errors.

In his fading years, Sam also filled in at first base because, while he may have lost a little snap in his legs, his eye at the plate was still sharp and his club was timely in its hitting.

I once did a piece on Sam for a Washington newspaper, I believe it was. It was some time after he had finished playing and coaching. He was being mentioned as a possible Senator manager.

Sam, at the time, was co-owner of the Sports Center and it wasn't long after I started questioning him before he smelled a rat. He never did seek out publicity and he tried to shun it when it came his way, deserved or otherwise.

The paper had told me to disguise the fact that Sam was being considered as a manager, but he caught on quick. He wasn't, and his tone of voice underlined the word, interested for one minute.

His thoughts that day trailed back to his rookie days with Roswell, the bumpy bus rides, the stinking heat, the dust. He remembered it all too well. Manage in Washington? No, sir. He wasn't qualified and, to try his hand at it, he'd have to start in the minors, and he'd been there, thanks.

So we talked about his career and once again the memories flooded back, of his days in the minors, the rise to the majors, the friends he had made, the highlights.

It was also, during that long talk, that he took sharp exception to aging reflexes forcing players aside.

"It's not the reflexes that go first," Sam declared, "it's the legs. Where you used to beat out those close infield hits by half a step, you were thrown out. It was Pop-Plod as ball hit glove and foot hit bag, where it used to be Plod-Pop."

Now Sam is one his way back to a reunion. Commissioner Bowie Kuhn is hosting members of the first All Star teams, American and National, in St. Louis. Then they'll all fly to Kansas City for the Tuesday night All Star game.

Sam has been like a kid with a new toy, waiting for the day to arrive. He looks forward to being there again and talking to those stars he played with and against.

There were 36 players in that first All Star game in 1933, 18 on a side. I think the records show that Sam was 1 for 4 in a game won when Babe Ruth arched a two-run homer for the Americans.

Nine of those original stars are gone, including the immortal Babe, Lou Gehrig and others. But Sam will shake hands with Lefty Grove, among others, and that will be interesting in itself. And thereby hangs a tail, of course.

Grove was a fireballing lefthander for the Boston Red Sox, one of the all-time great southpaws. He was a feared pitcher in his days as he cut a swath through the sluggers.

For some reason, Sam and Lefty never hit it off too well. Late in the career of both, the Nats and Red Sox were battling it out in old Griffith Stadium. Grove was pitching for the Beantowners and West was doing his bit for the Senators.

At one point in the game, Sam came to bat and Grove let go his Sunday pitch, Sam tried to avoid it, but the ball caught him flush in the ribs. Grove started solicitously over to Sam as he trotted painfully to first base.

"I'm sorry," Sam reports Grove as saying, "I didn't mean to hurt you." Sam had been waiting years for this chance. He grit his teeth, smiled and punched back.

"Lefty, you never threw hard enough to ever hurt anybody." Actually, Sam said, that ball still hurt like the devil.

Sam may not have been colorful, but he was a major leaguer in every sense of the word. It's way past time for current Lubbockites to recognize him and show him the honor he deserves.

At least eight teams begin firing today for a berth in the state National Baseball Congress tournament when the North Zone, NBC, competition gets underway at Lowery Field at 6 p.m.

Opponents for tonight's opener probably won't be known until just before the scheduled start of the twin bill. Tournament Director Bill Dean was hoping for a field of from eight to 12 nines, highlighted by the appearance of the popular Lubbock Hubbers.

Definitely in the field Monday were Longview, former state champions; Arlington's Cardinals; teams from Fort Worth and El Paso; two from San Angelo; and two other local teams in addition to the Hubbers.

The double elimination tourney starts at 6 p.m., with an intermission of 30 minutes at the end of the game and then the second contest. This procedure will be followed each night.

Games this week will set the stage for final competition next week, with the champions being crowned in Sunday action. Dean said that they had split action in order to give more people a chance to see the teams in "prime time" over two long weekends.

A real attraction will come in the second week, on Saturday night, when former West Texas-New Mexico players play a short exhibition game. Former Hubber manager Jackie Sullivan said that he had at least 24 former stars signed up and expected between 40 and 50.

Such "old timers" as Mike Dooley, Chris Haskins, Len Attyd, Virgil Richardson, Jackie Wilcox, Don and Wiley Moore, Joe Bauman, Bob Clodfelter, Ted Clawitter, Walt Buckel, Bill Metzger, Ray Faust, Stan Grzywacz, Rooster Mills, Jim Prince, Jesse Priest, Eulis Rosson, Joe Fortin, Jodie Beeler, Lee Gatewood, Cotton Russell, Zeke Wilemon, Nim Free, Frank Kempa, Deck Woldt, and many others will be here.

Army Reserve Unit Enlistments Reduced to Three Years in Texas During 90 Day Period

Army Reserve units throughout Lubbock, Texas are cutting their enlistment terms for men without previous military service from six to three years for the next 90 days, it was announced today by Col. Billy C. Gunter, commanding officer of the 413th Civil Affairs Company, Lubbock, Texas.

Under a new enlistment option being tried between July 1 and September 30, men without prior military service may join an Army Reserve unit in Lubbock for a period of three years, and then transfer to the Individual Ready Reserve for three additional years. In the past, men without prior service had to sign up for six years of duty with an Army Reserve unit.

"This new three year unit option should be especially appealing to recent high school graduates", Col. Gunter said.

"They will no longer have to commit themselves to active participation in a unit for as long a period of time as in the past, but will still benefit from the up to date skill training offered through the Army Reserve," he said.

Right now, according to Col. Gunter, the local Army Reserve unit has openings for, and is willing to train men to become any one of the following: a Public Safety Supervisor, a Civilian Information Specialist, and Operation or Administrative Specialist, a Legal Clerk, a Stenographer, and Education Supervisor, a Public Works Sergeant and others. Since many of these skills have a civilian application, the Army Reserve training can lead toward a profitable civilian career.

Col. Gunter pointed out that the Army Reservist is also paid while learning. "After enlisting in the Reserve, a young man or woman spends from four to six months at an active Army installation taking his basic and advanced individual training. He'll be paid $307.20 a month while on active duty and receive free room and board."

Rev. Robert C. Tracy, Director of New Life Ministries, together with Board Chairman, Dr. Edw. A. Downs, announce an open house to celebrate the 17th Anniversary of the ministry's advanced training, the Reservist returns to his hometown and attends meetings with his regular Reserve unit, and goes to two weeks of annual training with that unit each year. A total of 16 hours a month are spent at Reserve meetings and the new enlistee receives $2.56 an hour in pay. This hourly pay is increased when the Reservist is promoted. In Lubbock, the 413th Civil Affairs Unit meets at 2819-C West 4th Street.

At these meetings each month, the Reservists continue to build and refine their skills. In many instances the Reservists practice their newly acquired skills working on community improvement projects.

Upon completion of three years of service with the Reserve unit, the Reservist who enlist under this special three year unit option has the choice of staying with the unit, or transferring to the Individual Ready Reserve. Members of this group do not attend meetings, but may be required to perform two weeks of annual training.

The Black Experience: While many sections of the nation are engrossed in the problems of increasing polarization of the races, school busing and desegregation, rising racial tensions and confrontations of many kinds, black and white residents here in a section of Dallas are working together to save what has been the showcase area of South Oak Cliff from the agony of re-segregation.

"We want stabilized neighborhoods," said Dr. Charles A. Hunter, board member of Kimball Area Residence Alliance (KARA), a coalition of South Oak Cliff neighborhoods. Hunter, a Bishop College professor continued: "We are not trying to get people to stay. We expect residents, both white and black, to relocate at a fairly rapid rate, but we want new residents, both white and black, moving in at the same time and rate."

"Before the 1968 Civil Rights Act, we had neighborhoods that could cut themselves off from people, particularly the identifiable minorities, by gentlemen's agreements and by refusing to negotiate sales. "We don't expect much abuse along those lines in our area, but we are concerned about 'block busing' and 'steering'.

Steering is specifically illegal under the Civil Rights Act. It is the practice of steering one ethnic group toward a particular area of town. We've had many cases of realtors who said you don't want to buy in Oak Cliff because it's going black. It's had a devastating effect."

KARA has four specific goals. (1) To develop and maintain a positive Oak Cliff image. (2) Develop and improve neighborhood awareness. (3) Maintain stable and high quality schools. (4) Fair and open housing.

"We are contemplating house to house visits", white engineer William Heald, board chairman of KARA told the press. "We are proposing things like a newsletter and a telephone committee. We hope to create a mechanism of rumor control. There have been some block parties. I think white residents are learning they have nothing to fear", Heald concluded.

If this correspondent should have the opportunity within the foreseeable future to take a real vacation and really live it up for a few days, we want to take it here in the deep South. It has been several years since we were in East Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi and indeed it is the "New South". Blacks are registering and voting and electing representation in many levels of government, especially on the local level. Industry is coming south and jobs are available for those really wanting to work. The whole landscape is a lively green as there has been plenty of rain this year in many areas and the fishing is above average. Just wished I could move some of it to home in West Texas and Eastern New Mexico.

Attending a planning session of the General Conference of the Christian Methodist Episcopal Church in Oklahoma City the other day, we learned that this one of the Big 3 black Methodist denominations, will hold its 1974 General Conference in the Holliday Hotel-Motel complex in Philadelphia. This could be the first time in history that a major religious denomination has held a General Conference within the confines of a Motel Complex. Word comes that our room has been reserved as a member of the press. Bishop Henry C. Bunton of Washington, D.C. will be the entertaining prelate.

Here in Houston, the black newspaper publishers of the nation are meeting, with my former boss, Mrs. Ada Franklin, publisher of the Kansas City Call, being awarded a Distinguished Service Medal. Until later, remember neighbors come in all colors. Be a good one and I'm on my way home in West Texas and Eastern New Mexico.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Lackey and children left Tuesday for Los Angeles, California and Disneyland. The brother, Hubert Malone, flew to Disneyland to bring the vacationers back to Oakland where they had a family get-together with another brother, Mr. and Mrs. Earnest Malone; and a sister Roberta. The Lackeys, who were former residents of the Hub City, reside in New Mexico. They are children of Willie Mae Malone who is a proud mother of a family who have good jobs where ever they are.

Mr. O.V. Wright, son of Mrs. Myrtle Wright, has undergone surgery at Methodist Hospital. He is in the public school system at San Antonio, Texas. His condition is satisfactory so far.

Mr. and Mrs. Carlo Dade are proud parents of a lovely little girl, born Saturday, July 14, 1973, at Lubbock Osteopathic Hospital. She weighed 8 1/2 pounds and healthy as they come. Mrs. Dade (Cheryl) is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. R.A. Pillow. Her husband who has not seen the baby, is employed at Meharry Medical College and plans to arrive as soon as possible.

Miss Edith Carrington attended the funeral of her aunt, Mrs. M.E. Taylor, in Cleveland, Ohio, last week.

Mr. Fred McQuinney is home from the hospital and recuperating nicely.

Mrs. Clarence "Marcella" Fagans of Seattle, Washington, who is visiting her family here, the Sanders, was the recipient of a surprise birthday party, hosted by her sisters and brothers in the home of Mrs. Lillie Smith, a sister.
