Million Dollar Student Loan Program Announced by Gulf

Gulf Oil Corporation has announced the names of ten additional colleges and universities which will participate in the company's million dollar student loan program during the 1973-74 school year.

They are: Grambling College, Grambling, La.; Hahnemann Medical College, Philadelphia, Pa.; Lehigh University, Bethlehem, Pa.; Meharry Medical College, Nashville, Tenn.; University of Notre Dame, Notre Dame, Ind.; Point Park College, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Rice University, Houston, Texas; University of San Diego, Alcala Park, Calif.; Texas A&I University, Kingsville, Texas; Texas Tech, Lubbock, Texas.

The program, which benefits college students who have financial need, was begun during the 1971-72 school year. Since then the following schools have received grants: Assumption College, Drexel University, Duquesne University, Hampton Institute, The University of Miami, Northeastern University, Susquehanna University, Temple University, Texas Southern University, Tulane University and Wilkes College.

The Gulf Student Loan Fund, believed to be the first such program provided by industry, has an initial budget of $1,000,000. The program is in addition to Gulf's scholarship grant programs through which the company supports about 300 students in colleges and universities each year.

The Student Loan Fund Grants establish at participating schools is a permanent source of money from which the schools can make loans to some graduate but primarily undergraduate students. This makes borrowing funds possible for students who would otherwise be unable to secure adequate help through traditional scholarship, work-study or loan channels, because of personal, financial or related circumstances.

Dr. Alexander Lewis, Jr., President of Gulf Oil Foundation, explained "Each program is tailored to the needs of the particular school involved and the institution itself will administer the loans. We think it is good today to emphasize the people-oriented aspects of aiding higher education, because in most cases the schools' physical facilities have already benefitted from the numerous so-called 'brick and mortar' grants of the past decade. Right now we think colleges should concentrate on the urgent need for producing well-trained people to solve societal and environmental problems."

Designated colleges and universities each receive, as an outright grant, $10 thousand per year for five years from the Gulf Oil Foundation to establish the Gulf Student Loan Funds. Individual loans normally do not exceed $1,000 per student in any one year and are repayable to the school at a reasonable time after the student completes his education. This provides a continuing turnover of the original Gulf grants and gives the institution a fund which can be operated in perpetuity.

Loans from the fund are made at the lowest feasible interest rates which are consistent with or below those which students must pay to secure funds from other sources, but in any case not above the prime bank rate at the time of borrowing.

Gulf is hopeful that other corporations will establish similar student loan funds in addition to their traditional aid to educational programs. Gulf believes this can become an important part of the aid package needed to help students meet the rising costs of education and at the same time promote a sense of responsibility concerning the payment for the cost of education by the student.

Press Apathy, Lack Of Black Freedom Lead To Watergates, Publisher Says

Washington—(NBNS)—An apathetic press and continuing denials of the rights of the poor and the black has led to Watergate, the nation's most successful black publisher told the 41st annual national awards banquet of Sigma Delta Chi, the professional journalistic society at the National Press Club.

John Johnson, the publisher of Ebony, Jet and a number of other black-oriented magazines, said the "crucial problems" which the nation is faced with today, were caused by the denial of equal protection of the law to millions of black Americans, their political disenfranchisement, and an apathetic press.

"There is a reciprocal relationship between black freedom and white freedom," Johnson told the 200 SDX members. "In other words, an increase in the amount of freedom available to blacks increases the amount of freedom available to whites and the converse is also true: A decrease in the amount of freedom available to blacks leads to a decrease in the amount of freedom available to whites. "This is the larger meaning of Watergate: Freedom is indivisible, and so is repression."

He pointed out that there is a general tendency to put the rights of blacks and the rights of whites into separate compartments.

"Black crime and white crime, white poverty and black poverty; white morality and black morality. The same tendency existed to separate public from private morality

Washington—(NBNS)—John Connally, former Texas governor and Treasury Secretary during President Nixon's first term, would be the strongest Republican presidential nominee to contend with the Democrats in 1976, according to Georgia State Representative Julian Bond.

Addressing a breakfast news conference last week, Bond, a political activist, said, "Connally would be the toughest Republican candidate because he is such an aggressive and outgoing person" who attracts many voters.

In addition, Bond said "Connally is just so slick" that he reminds people of the late President Lyndon B. Johnson with "sort of Richard Nixon too, and a little of Spiro Agnew."

Bond said he thinks the best Democratic candidate to oppose Connally would be Massachusetts Sen. Edward Kennedy. However, the Georgia legislator said in recent conversations with Kennedy, the Senator did not indicate an interest in running for president.

Nevertheless, Bond said he believes that Kennedy is interested and that the Massachusetts Democrat is capable of uniting the old Democratic coalition formed under Franklin D. Roosevelt as well as attracting southern whites.

Citing Kennedy's recent visit to Alabama Gov. George Wallace, Bond said Kennedy has already made a positive move in that direction and did so without compromising his liberal and contrary views on major issues.

Bond said he thought Kennedy's Chappaquiddick incident would not allow the Senator to raise the morality in government issue in the campaign, although "he (Kennedy) does stand for it."

The Georgia legislator also noted that the Southern Election Fund, which he heads, has raised $115,000 this year in its efforts to support candidates for office in the South.

In Mississippi, Bond said, 24 of 36 candidates supported by the Fund won last month's Democratic primary, and 80 per cent of those are expected to be elected. Bond also said the Fund plans to support candidates in Florida, Georgia, North Carolina and Virginia.

In conclusion, Bond, an active supporter of Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern last year, said he would still back the South Dakota Senator in a rerun of the election because "He (McGovern) stood closer to the things I believe in."

"Each day brings new evidence that white people are suffering injustices which blacks have endured for more than 200 years," he said.

Bradley Pulls Off Political Coup in Election Bid at LA

Los Angeles—(NBNS)—Tom Bradley, the new mayor-elect of this city, last week got his wish of seeing "the Sam Yortys of the world get kicked in the pants by the voters."

Bradley, who gained 56.3 per cent of the nearly 800,000 votes cast to resoundingly defeat the three-term incumbent mayor, Sam Yorty, said he hopes his election will initiate a "new thrust" of black leadership in electoral politics and that it showed "that people will listen to a candidate and make their judgment on merit, instead of race or creed."

The 55-year-old Bradley, who was a policeman for 21 years and a City Councilman for the last 10, added that "by seeing me up front all the time, people were able to see beyond the color of my skin."

"I believe that for the young people, it (my election) has great significance. Far too many have been turned off by the political process. Some opted to do nothing. I lived in the system. I believed in it. This election showed that if they are willing to work hard enough, prepare well enough, it is also possible for them to dream as I have dreamed," Bradley said of his victorious second try for the mayoralty of this city.

University, is the out-going president of the organization, which is the third-largest SDX chapter in the world.

In 1969, when Bradley first attempted to unseat Mayor Yorty, the latter resorted to a barrage of unfounded charges and appealed to the racial fears of the L.A. electorate.

Blacks comprise 15 per cent of the L.A. electorate. Bradley also received some assistance from Sen. Edward Kennedy, Democrat of Massachusetts, who sent some 30,000 telegrams to Chicano homes and, he was especially strong in liberal, Jewish-dominated districts on the west side.

Bradley, who will take over the leadership of the nation's third largest city, is the first black mayor to win with the help of a majority of white votes.

In 1967, when Carl Stokes became mayor of Cleveland, that city was more than one-third black. Richard G. Hatcher, mayor of Gary, Ind., and Kenneth Gibson, mayor of Newark, N.Y., both won in cities which are more than 50 per cent black. And, in Washington, D.C., where the population is 71 per cent black, Mayor Walter Washington was appointed by the President.

Texas Ranks Fifth In Black Population

With more than 25 million black people in these United States, as black people we must realize and know—without any doubt—that we are the largest minority race of people in the United States. We are an important people to this country and our children and our children's children should know this. Tell them they are members of a proud and courageous people. Please tell them also that they are Americans.

For those of you who don't know, the state of Texas ranks fifth in black population with 1,399,005 residents. The largest population of black people being the state of New York with 2,168,949; followed by Illinois with 1,425,674; California with 1,400,143; and Florida with 1,401,651 black people. Although the 1970 Census has been questioned, it is believed that there were approximately 1.87 million black people missed in the count. (This amounts to about 7.7% of the black population). Regardless of the outcome of the census count, these figures will be gospel until 1980.

Being fifth in the nation, the black community of Texas should have better representation from the state capitol to the city council in the city of Lubbock. This fact needs to be made known to every political sub-division (city or county) in the state of Texas. It's ridiculous that we are not totally a part of this great state of Texas.

From an economical point of view (this is the only thing the system pays close attention to), 1.3 million black people in this state should be heard loud and clear. Taxation on 1.3 million people adds up to a lot of green stuff and it helps the economic situation of the state. Governor Dolph Briscoe should be made aware of this fact when it comes to finding additional monies in the state of Texas.

As black people, however, we've got to keep it out front that we've got over a million black people in Texas. Although many of them reside in the metropolitan communities (such as Dallas, Houston, San Antonio and the like), there are more than 70,000 in West Texas (Midland, Odessa, Abilene, Amarillo, Lubbock and other points west). It is hard to understand why this geographical location doesn't have black representation at the state level.

The Texas Constitutional Revision Commission has been to West Texas, but the fact of the lack of representation wasn't mentioned. Actually, this fact hasn't been brought out anywhere in the state. It's easy to see why this has happened, because of the small time politics of the County officials.

Anyway, black people—remember we're somebody in the state of Texas as well as the nation. The system needs us more than they really think. With 1.3 million black people, we don't have to worry about being forgotten about if we put our thing in the right perspective. Think about ranking fifth in the Nation as black residents of the great state of Texas.

Gas Tax "Gas"

One proposal to alleviate the gasoline shortage, originated by bureaucrats eyeing the billings Uncle Sam would gain from motorists, is to sharply increase the federal tax on gasoline. This, it's said, would mean less gasoline sold and thus, by some strange act, the problems solved.

"Incredible" is the word to describe this proposed "solution". Already beset with high prices, rapid inflation and a scarcity of gasoline, the average citizen is to be "helped" by being struck hard every time he enters a filling station.

Such a tax would probably help little, and certainly create a hardship for the average working citizen who drives to work. Large companies and corporations would simply pass on the expense to their customers, creating more inflation.

If the federal government moves in any direction on the gasoline front, it should lower standards on anti-pollution devices which have lowered gas mileage and increased gas consumption, while at the same time take steps to freeze the price of gasoline at the present level.

JACK ANDERSON'S WEEKLY SPECIAL

THE BIG GAMBLE

by Jack Anderson

(Copyright, 1973, by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

Washington Both Russia's Leonid Brezhnev and China's Chou En-lai have a personal stake in the Watergate outcome. Secret intelligence reports suggest that both leaders took political risks to befriend President Nixon and ease tension with Washington.

Inside the Kremlin, Brezhnev encountered such stiff opposition over his placate-Nixon policy that it brought on a shake-up of the ruling politburo. He was compelled to elevate the military, according to the intelligence reports, in return for their support. But the grim Soviet high command is watching Brezhnev's moves with reservations.

Our experts believe Brezhnev's position in the Kremlin could be undermined if his overtures to Nixon falter. The weakening of Nixon by Watergate, therefore, must be causing Brezhnev some private anxiety.

In Peking, Chou En-lai also overcame bitter opposition before he was able to do business with President Nixon and Henry Kissinger. Chou won the showdown with Lin Piao, who was killed in an attempt to escape to Russia. Lin Piao's supporters have been silenced, meanwhile, but not suppressed.

This is indicted, according to the intelligence reports, by the attitude of wily, old Mao Tse-tung to the Chou En-lai leadership. The venerable Mao has been pleasant and proper in his relationship with Chou. But Mao has been cautious not to embrace Chou.

What does this mean? It means that in both Moscow and Peking there are still powerful factions which would rather restore the old Russian-Chinese alliance. The suspicion runs deep in both countries of the new detente with Washington.

Nixon and IRS—Tax experts are wondering about the million-dollar deal by which President Nixon acquired his San Clemente retreat. The house is located on a 26-acre tract, which the President purchased with the financial help of the aerosol king, Robert Abplanalp.

Father's Day

Mrs. John Bruce Dodd is generally thought to have done more to originate Father's Day than any other American. The idea occurred to her in 1909 when she was living in Spokane, Washington. She suggested it to the ministerial association and proposed fathers be honored on the third Sunday in June.

In June of 1910, the first observance was held in Spokane and slowly the day came to be recognized in other cities, some thinking they were the first to do so. Most of the impetus for observing a day for fathers came from women, as did the custom of wearing red or white roses that day. This year Father's Day falls on the 17th and is especially appropriate in view of the recent flood of literature and films picturing old dad as a money-mad monster out of touch with his children. Fortunately, that's an exaggerated protest, and the ties and cigars father receives on the 17th will, in most cases, have been earned the hard way.

As I See It

by T. J. Patterson

It's time that we realize there must be some constructive action begun in the black community of Lubbock. For too long we've been steered in the wrong direction for building ourselves or our community. We've sat back and been left out of the economic cycle of the city of Lubbock. Just the figures, alone, should show us that we've been holding on to the wrong things.

It's going to take hard work on our part, as individuals, groups and concerned organizations, to come up with some sort of an "economic base" where we all can become a part of the economic circle" in our city. By hard work, this writer is talking about working in all kinds of situations where everyone can benefit from each other's efforts. We're certainly not too good to get our hands dirty for ourselves and our community—we've been doing it for a long time now.

Lubbock is a city which is booming economically at this time, and we're not getting our share of the pie. Perhaps the main reasons are that we either did not care, or did not know what was going on around us. We've been too busy "popping our toes" in the wrong direction. Many of us have been too busy looking for credit from other people for some "fine job" we think we have done for the community. Instead of taking ego trips like these, if we would really do some "fine job" for the community, we would not have to seek recognition, it would seek us out. Looking for credit when it is really not due is harder than doing the job right in the first place and then trying to dodge the credit that comes a person's way.

It's going to take a lot of hard work to get us out of this "mess" we're in in the black community of Lubbock, and the entire West Texas area for that matter. All those pretty little words we hear from people don't mean a thing. It's production that counts, no matter what the circumstances are. Many sacrifices will have to be made also, if we are going to climb this mountain of frustration.

signed personal notes, which Abplanalp later tore up, for $625,000. In return, he is supposed to own the bulk of the property around the housing compound.

The President got the deal approved by the local Internal Revenue Service office in California. But we spoke to Internal Revenue experts, who claim the President should have paid taxes on the $625,000. As they interpreted the law, the tearing up of Nixon's notes—in other words, the cancellation of the debt—makes the $625,000 taxable income.

These tax experts point out that the Nixons are using the entire 26 acres, that property records show no evidence the acreage has been legally divided, that the whole deal appears like a gimmick to benefit the Nixons.

A spokesman for the President assured us, on the other hand, that Abplanalp is the legal owner of the land around the Nixon compound, that the land is going up in value and that it will turn out to be a profitable deal for Abplanalp.

Nevertheless, if anyone but the President of the United States were involved, Internal Revenue would be investigating.

The Little Boondoggles!—Most of the military boondoggles the public hears about are the big ones—the billion-dollar cost overruns, the helicopters that crash, the torpedos that miss their targets. But occasionally, my reporters take time out to investigate the small scandals, too. Here are some examples:

- An Army general, stationed in the Panama Canal Zone, wanted to keep up with the goings-on in Washington. So he ordered four copies of the Washington Post flown in daily at an annual cost to the taxpayers of $2,000.00.

- The 101st Airborne Division at Fort Campbell, Ky., heard that the President might drop by. The brass hats decided to pretty up the post for the Commander-in-Chief. In the end, they had to settle for Vice President Agnew. But they still managed to spend a quarter of a million dollars for paint, whitewash, rental cars and miscellaneous displays.

- At every military airlift terminal, the Air Force maintains a "distinguished visitors lounge" for the traveling VIPs. Most of them are retired officers, who have nothing better to do than bum around the country. Yet enlisted men are assigned to rush up to them and handle their luggage while the VIPs relax in carpeted lounges, sipping coffee and watching color television.

These are just a few reasons why one officer described his military experience as "Alice in Wasteland".

Unless we wake up, and really look at ourselves, we're going to rip our own sleeves off. The man in position won't have to do it; we'll go it ourselves. The motivation to make it has to be embedded in the minds of all of us. We've got to get off that "ego trip" thing and take it one step at a time so we can emerge as a strong people, and with a strong community within our city.

Many in the community are happy with the way things are in the city of Lubbock. To those of you who feel like this, I can only say, "OK!" I would, however, like to caution you to the fact that you had better wake up before it's too late. I would advise you to really look at yourself, and your community, with your "rose colored glasses" off.

It's always interesting to talk to young people about what they'd like to do in life or how much money they would take a particular job for. In many cases, most of our young people want a job behind a desk and they want to work for the amount of money the job is really worth. It's good to see this type of ambition, but our young people must realize that they should start someplace and work themselves up so they will have a track record which is comparable to others, although it should be better, also seeking the job.

Our negative attitudes have cost us a great deal in East Lubbock. We have not planned our direction, and therefore, we have had to settle for what ever comes along. Many of us seem to spend more time planning our vacations each year than we do planning our lives from day to day. We never really look squarely at our present condition and therefore we are never able to completely understand the condition our community, or we, ourselves, are in.

Some of us are in business for ourselves, and this is really terrific. I would like to encourage you, however, to not totally depend on the black community, or consumer, to keep you in business. Broaden your scope and outlook on the business you are in. Become more cosmopolitan. With only 7.3% of the population around here being black, there's just not enough people to make things happen. And with the attitudes of many blacks, they would rather buy their ice cream across town—because the "man" had to wait on them, over there.

For several years this writer has sat behind a typewriter and criticized the local black situation. I've been guilty of being confused on the local situation and have even found myself on ego trips attempting to get something done. Perhaps, I've opened my eyes and can see clearly now. If that is so, I hope I can open a whole lot more East Lubbock citizen's eyes.

The welcome has worn off the things we used to do in the black community. Now the real test is upon us. We've got to create some constructive action where we all (at least a great number of us who are concerned) can be proud and also benefit from our hard labors. The facts mentioned the past few weeks about our conditions, past and present, should let us know we have got a long way to go and a really short period of time to get there.

With the help of God, and with the co-operation of each of us—we can make things happen for the betterment of all of us.

Sports of The Times

by Joe Kelly

There's an old saying that class will tell. It certainly applied to Secretariat Saturday . . . and in the Kentucky Derby . . . and in the Preakness.

What a magnificent horse! It's a pleasure to just watch him striding around the warmup area, or into the starting gate. He has power, and the muscles ripple under his velvet coat. Even the most uninformed person can tell by just looking that here is a magnificent animal.

As for the Belmont, the third leg in the triple crown, Secretariat destroyed the field. He left the so-called challengers so far behind that, aside from the early challenge by Sham, it wasn't a race at all. The only question, after three quarters, was whether the big colt could hold it.

He not only held his stride, but lengthened it. As his hooves felt for the ground, made contact and pushed off again, it was apparent that this was his day, his year.

There are no more fields for Secretariat to conquer, at least in this country. The chances are that he has tested his last challenge, that competition for this great horse is over.

What a shame it is, too, for this horse, that has caught the imagination of thousands, is a joy to watch. Like Bart Starr in his prime, he picks the opposition to pieces. Like the Yankees of old, he encourages the field and then runs away and leaves them hanging, wondering what happened.

There have been other great horses. Others have won the triple crown. Man O'War, Bold Ruler, Citation . . . all of these were labeled great. And all deserved it, too.

And because of his ridiculously easy triumph in the Belmont, doubt might be cast on Secretariat. It might be, but anyone who challenged his right to claim being the finest horse in history would have trouble proving that he isn't. His record will live as a testimonial to his greatness.

Not everyone likes to fish, which probably is just as well, just as everyone doesn't like football, everyone doesn't like baseball, everyone doesn't like basketball.

A lot of people don't like to water ski, either, which isn't to say that that makes it no good. There are those who go to the lake only for water skiing and we say, power to 'em. If that's their hangup, that's great. At least they are out and doing.

One of the best lakes in this area slowly is being discovered and, as a result, is drawing more and more people. It is primarily a lake for water skiers.

I recently had some work done on my boat and Greg Renegar, a fine mechanic at Levelland, mentioned that he'd like to take the boat to Bull Lake, to test it under actual conditions in the water. He did, and later told me that they even water-skied with it.

Now, I didn't want to show my ignorance, so I said nothing about Bull Lake. But I did make inquiries in a roundabout way and found out that it is located near Littlefield.

Bull Lake isn't new. It's been there a long time. But this is only the second year that it has been owned by the City of Littlefield. Prior to that, it was owned by a man named Smith for some 37 years. He used it largely to feed stock, charging people access to the lake if they wanted to boat, swim, fish or what have you.

Littlefield is making improvements in the lake, which houses some mud cat and nothing else. It's an alkali lake and other fish won't live long. Still, after the snow and rain, the water is higher than it has been in years and water samples are going to be taken to see if other species of fish can survive.

In the meantime, it is probably the best lake in a large area of West Texas for water skiing. Enthusiasts have come, and come regularly, from as far away as Roswell just to water ski.

It's a clear water lake that covers some 1,000 acres. It's 20 to 25 feet deep. You can see it from Farm Market Road 54 long before you come to the entrance.

From the entry gate, there's a good, rolling caliche road, well maintained, that leads down to the water. Before you get to the boat launch site, you stop at a mobile home, where Buck Ross and his wife greet you. Here you pay your fee—$1.00 a boat and $.50 a person.

Buck will tell you that he's a retired oilfield worker and "just about everybody around here knows me." He's proud of the lake over which he has charge and quickly ticks off the improvements that have been made.

Down the road to the right a few yards is the boat ramp. It is fairly shallow, but runway metal ramps give good traction and, as City Manager Jim Blagg says, "you hardly get the wheels of your car wet".

Camping is permitted and people bring both tents and trailers to the lake. "We've had over 200 on some weekends," Buck said with pride. "The city put in toilets and it's clean here".

Indeed it is. The area surrounding Bull Lake has a lot of young mesquite growing. There are lots of wild flowers and it's an attractive setting.

It's easy to reach from the Lubbock area. All you do is take the exit off U.S. 84 at Littlefield, go nine miles down FM 54 and you're at the entrance. Another mile or so and you're at the lake.

Water skiers, take note!!

Barons and Giants Haven't Finished The Game as Yet!

Barons and Giants, two of the strongest teams in the Eastern Little League, have played twice thus far. A game hasn't been completed to date. Last Friday evening's tilt, June 8, was called by Umpire David Collins because "the manager of the Barons wouldn't leave the field after being thrown out."

The first unfinished game (May 19) was wrapped up in a 7-7 tie and was protested by the manager of the Barons, Bobby Brandon.

The contest last week began when Umpire Collins threw out a youth for misconduct when he threw a bat. This action sparked words between Collins and Brandon, resulting in the ousting of Brandon from the game.

Despite the outcome of the contest which Umpire Collins awarded the contest to the Giants, Brandon kept his players until the 9:30 p.m. deadline in order to protest the game.

"I told the umpire that I was leaving the game and that my boys are still ready to complete the game," he told a Times reporter. To no avail, the game was not completed.

It is believed that Brandon wrote a letter to the Board of Directors of the Eastern Little League, within the allotted time, to protest the game. This game lasted 5 2/3 innings.

At this report, no decisions had been made by the Board of Directors.

Scotland has been called the Land of Cakes due to its oatmeal cakes.

Final Rites Read For Hubert Tyler

Final rites were read Saturday afternoon at Bethel A.M.E. Church for Hubert Tyler, 59, of 2203 Date Avenue, with Rev. A.W. Wilson, pastor, officiating.

Burial was held in the City of Lubbock Cemetery under the direction of South Plains Funeral Home.

Littlefield News

Mr. and Mrs. James Holmes returned from their vacation visiting their son and daughter-in-law at Hawkins, Texas.

Mrs. Ula B. James went to Phoenix, Arizona to return her father, who is ill, back to Littlefield. McCarty funeral home made the trip.

A resident of Lubbock for 37 years, he died last Wednesday evening at Highland Hospital after a lengthy illness.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Lola Tyler a step-daughter, Mrs. Margaret Williams of Mount Enterprise; two sisters, Mrs. Josie Scott of Dallas and Mrs. Ruby Washington of Los Angeles, California; and a brother, Lawrence Tyler of Amarillo.

If an old refrigerator or freezer is left in the yard or garage, remove its door completely. This takes only a moment using a screwdriver and may save a child's life.

If you're conscientious and unselfish in what you say or do, you need not worry about what people think.

New Hope Baptist Church

Father's Day is Sunday, June 17. Your cooperation and support with the men is needed in order for them to have an enjoyable day.

Crusade for Christ is being sponsored by the Baptist Ministers Union July 16 through 20. Dr. C.A.W. Clark, pastor of Good Street Baptist Church of Dallas, will again serve as guest speaker. Let us all attend and invite others to join us in the worship service. Services will be held at our church.

Ushers rehearsal will be held Friday evening, June 22, at 8 p.m. All members are asked to attend.

As we have in the past, we would like to continue to inform you that we are host to the 70th Annual Session of the West Texas District Association August 6 through 10. Let us all continue to blend our forces and give a good entertainment to our guest.

The National Sunday School and Baptist Training Union Congress is being held next week in Dallas, Texas. Let us continue our plans to send our young people, please.

Food for Thought: "Prayer is the key to unlock all doors and prayer changes things. Try and see."

Whisper a prayer for the sick and shut-ins. Persons in our community on the sick list this week include Mr. John Howard, Mrs. Minnie Walker, Mrs. Katie Snell, Mrs. Anna Johnson, Mrs. Doris Washington, Mrs. Lucille Blaylock, Mrs. Vivian Williams, Mr. James Joynson, Mrs. Lockheart and Mr. Larry McKinney.

Mount Gilead Baptist Church

"Mount Gilead Baptist Church, the friendly church where the soul and spirit meet. The church where everybody is somebody. The church extends to members and public a cordial and clarion call to worship with us each week."

Let us continue to pray for our sick and shut in. It is good to know you are loved and missed when you are ill. So let us visit the sick, call or send a card.

Twentieth & Birch Church of Christ

Let us begin now to make plans for our Summer Gospel meeting which will take place on August 20 through 31. The guest speaker for the occasion will be Brother W.F. Washington. We are looking forward for this spiritual feast.

The item for this month is shortening. Let us give generously in support of our pantry. We hope to help the poor and less fortunate than we are, with what God has graciously blessed us with.

The Adult Class, taught by Brother Sunday Ekahe, won the perfect attendance banner last week. Who will be next?

A big thank you to the brothers and sisters who through their untiring efforts have enrolled 165 families in our community in a free Bible correspondence course. This is done in an attempt to encourage the people to study their Bible in their respective homes. We solicit your continued prayers and support in this soul-saving campaign for Christ.

Greater Saint Luke Baptist Church

Congratulations are in order for St. Luke youth. The Church Trophy is ours until June, 1974. We are proud of our young people and expect greater things from them in the future.

Friendship Baptist Church

Brownfield—Supt. Ethel Williams was at her post of duty on time Sunday. The lesson was turned over to the 3 teachers, and there was deep discussion.

Pastor S.N. North came forward as a rushing wind and carried us up to see the mountain top, in a great review of the lesson.

The pastor brought a burning message at the morning service. His subject was "And he said how can I except some man guide me".

Former Lubbock Resident Visits

A former resident of Lubbock visited here last week. She is Mrs. Ruth Higgings of Los Angeles, California. She had not visited here in 32 years. She reported her visit as a nice one with the meeting of one of her life long friends, Mrs. Sug Johnson.

She was driving and accompanied by her blind mother. She and her son went to Mineral Wells after leaving Lubbock and resided there before moving to California.

While here, she worshipped with Christ Temple Church of God in Christ and was guest at a surprise birthday party for Mrs. Rose Mitchell. This affair was sponsored by the Senior Choir of Mount Gilead Baptist Church on Monday evening. Mrs. Adlene Nash was hostess to an ice cream party for Higgings.

On Tuesday evening, Mr. and Mrs. Troy Nash and Mrs. Johnson were co-host and hostess to a party for her.

They left Wednesday morning for their home. Mrs. Mitchell's husband was a member of the "Buffalo Rhythm Band" while here.

Charles will be playing with the 505 Air Force Band. In it he will play the trumpet.

Charles wishes to extend his love to his friends. This was the last time he will see his mother for a while because she is going on a trip to England for 2 months. She will visit her daughter, granddaughter, and son-in-law, S.Sgt. and Mrs. Larry Young.

Who said older people don't take trips? His mother left the 6th of June from Lubbock to New York by Braniff, then from New York to London by charter plane.
